OCTOBER TERM, 1922.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Appellant, v. MINNIE ATKINS ET AL.	No. 45.

NANCY ATKINS, H. A. RIDGWAY, GUARDIAN of Nancy Atkins, et al., Appellants, v. THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, MINNIE Folk, née Atkins, et al.	No. 46.

APPEALS FROM THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE EIGHTH CIRCUIT.

BRIEF FOR THE UNITED STATES.

STATEMENT.

Pursuant to authority conferred under several acts of Congress to enroll citizens of the Five Civilized Tribes, the Dawes Commission listed the name of Thomas Atkins as representing a blood citizen of the Creek Tribe of Indians; thereafter, that name was enrolled on the final roll of Creek citizens which was approved by the Secretary of the Interior, and subsequently an allotment of land was selected for him. Patent therefor was issued in 1903 and recorded as required under the law.

Asserting that Thomas Atkins was a myth and never had any existence; that the enrollment of his name was procured through fraud and was the result of a gross mistake of law and fact, the United States brought suit to annul the allotment certificate and patent and to quiet title in the Creek Nation to the land against various claimants under instruments specified in the bill of complaint. (R. I, 10–12.)

A large number of persons were made parties defendant to this suit, and from the pleadings this remarkable situation was presented:

Defendant Minnie Atkins claimed that she was the mother and heir of Thomas Atkins, deceased.

Nancy Atkins, another defendant, claimed that she was the mother and heir of Thomas. She filed a cross bill asking a decree against the United States and all other parties except those claiming through her.

Henry Carter asserted that he was the identical Thomas Atkins, the son of Minnie Atkins, enrolled by the commission.

Upon the issues presented the District Court ruled that the fraud must be of such a character as precluded a party from introducing evidence in an adversary proceeding and not merely the presentation by a party of false evidence.

On the question of whether Atkins was a myth, it was held that as it was a necessary qualification for enrollment that one be living on April 1, 1899, Atkins's enrollment was a finding by the commission to that effect and hence could not be attacked. The result was that the United States was denied participation in the case on these questions and the court refused to annul the patent. (R. I, 130–142.)

Voluminous testimony was taken on the cross issues as between Minnie and Nancy Atkins and Henry Carter, and the court found and decreed that Minnie Atkins was the mother of Thomas and that she was the owner and entitled to the possession of the land involved as against all the defendants and complainants, subject only to the right, title, and interest of defendants Charles Page and Edward C. Hanford, who claimed through her. The title of these three persons in the property was quieted as against all the other parties to the suit. (Opinion, R. I, 143–146; Decree, R. I, 146–151.)

From this decree both the United States and Nancy Atkins appealed to the Circuit Court of Appeals, where the decree was affirmed (R. VI, 5005–06; Opinion, R. VI, 4996–5004; 268 Fed. 923). Appeals were then taken to this court.

ASSIGNMENT OF ERRORS.

The errors assigned by the United States are fifteen in number (R. VI, 5013–14), but may be summarized as alleging error in the affirmance by the Circuit Court of Appeals of the decree of the District Court, and its concurrence in the conclusions and findings of the District Court in—

1. Decreeing and finding that Thomas Atkins was a real person, the son of Minnie Folk, née Atkins, and that she and her heirs are entitled to the land in controversy subject only to the rights of Page and Hanford claiming through her.

2. Holding and deciding that the action of the Dawes Commission in enrolling the name Thomas Atkins and in alloting land in his name was conclusive upon, and not subject to attack by, the United States for fraud and mistake and that said action could operate to vest title in a fictitious person.

3. Not finding that the evidence established that the alleged Thomas Atkins never had any existence and was a fictitious person, and in not decreeing a cancellation of the patent issued in his name.

4. In making any findings of fact as against the United States after its bill had been dismissed and in considering, as between Minnie Atkins on the one side and Nancy Atkins on the other, the evidence which had been introduced theretofore by the United States to establish that Thomas Atkins was a myth.

Under this assignment of errors, we submit the following propositions:

I. The finding of the Dawes Commission was subject to impeachment at the suit of the United States for fraud or mistake.

II. The evidence establishes, and the courts below should have found, that Thomas Atkins was a myth. Hence the patent issued in his name conveyed no title.

ARGUMENT.

I.

The finding of the Dawes Commission was subject to impeachment at the suit of the United States for fraud or mistake.

Upon the point that fraud had been perpetrated on the commission the Government's bill alleged that through the connivance of Minnie Atkins the name Thomas Atkins was placed upon the 1895 roll of Creek citizens as a member of her family. (Par. V [b] of complaint; R. I, 6–9.) The materiality of this lay in the fact that the Dawes Commission, in preparing the final citizenship roll from which allotments of Creek tribal lands were made, relied upon and accepted this 1895 roll as evidence showing those who were entitled to enrollment. When the commission enrolled Thomas Atkins it had adopted a rule whereby it listed for enrollment the names of all those appearing on the 1895 roll concerning whom nothing definite was known.

The pay roll of 1895 was made up, under the supervision of the National Council, for the purpose of making per capita payments to members of the Creek Tribe from a fund of $200,000 appropriated by Congress.

Upon objection by defendants to evidence introduced by the Government to show fraud, the District Court ruled that the fraud which would subject a finding of the Dawes Commission to attack must be not fraud in the presentation of evidence but fraud which would prevent a full hearing by the commission. Reliance for this view was placed upon those cases of which Vance v. Burbank, 101 U. S. 514, is typical, which hold that, to set aside as fraudulent the finding of a tribunal made in an adversary proceeding, the fraud must be such as to have prevented the unsuccessful party from exhibiting his case fully to the tribunal. This view was concurred in by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Now, we think the courts below were clearly in error in applying the principle of that line of cases to this case. The fundamental error was in considering the proceedings of the commission as adversary. Had there been a hearing with the United States or the Creek Tribe actively contesting the enrollment of the name Thomas Atkins, had witnesses been heard on the question of whether he ever existed, the decision of the commission would have been impervious to attack under the rule announced in Vance v. Burbank, as supplemented by the decision in United States v. Wildcat, 244 U. S. 111.

The rule of Vance v. Burbank has only been applied, in this court at least, to cases where there has been a contest proceeding where full hearing has been had and testimony introduced or the opportunity to do so given. De Cambra v. Rogers, 189 U. S. 119; Estes v. Timmons, 199 U. S. 391; Love v. Flahive, 205 U. S. 195; Ross v. Stewart, 227 U. S. 530; Ross v. Day, 232 U. S. 110, and others are examples of the application of that rule.

The District Court, however, seemed to consider the fact that the Creek Council had notice of the proceedings before the commission and hence might have made objection to the enrollment of any name rendered the proceeding an adversary one. Mark, the notice was not as to this specific individual case but general notice or knowledge that the Dawes Commission was making inquiry and determination upon which to predicate enrollments generally.

But that can not be the criterion by which a proceeding can be judged to be ex parte. The Government has fully as much notice of proceedings to acquire public lands as it had of the Dawes Commission proceedings, and yet the former are held to be ex parte, and fraud intrinsic therein is held ample basis for relief in equity. McCaskill Co. v. United States, 216 U. S. 504; Diamond Coal & Coke Co. v. United States, 233 U. S. 236; Washington Securities Co. v. United States, 234 U. S. 76.

The same is true of naturalization proceedings. Johannessen v. United States, 225 U. S. 227; United States v. Ness, 245 U. S. 319.

Certainly the proceedings before the Dawes Commission were at most of no greater dignity than those attending the acquisition of public lands, or the proceedings for a naturalization certificate.

In United States v. Minor, 114 U. S. 233, a suit to cancel a patent for fraud, this court distinguished Vance v. Burbank and definitely pointed out the scope and extent of the rule of the latter case. It explicitly held that that rule applied to cases where "a contest between individuals, for the right to a patent to public lands, has been brought before these officers, and both parties have been represented and had a fair hearing" (p. 243).

That the rule of Vance v. Burbank is limited to cases where there has been a hearing in which the issues sought to be impeached have been tried, is evidenced by a later statement in Hilton v. Guyot, 159 U. S. 113, 207:

> It has often, indeed, been declared by this court that the fraud which entitles a party to impeach the judgment of one of our own tribunals must be fraud extrinsic to the matter tried in the cause, and not merely consist in false and fraudulent documents or testimony submitted to that tribunal, and the truth of which was contested before it and passed upon by it. [Italics ours.]

The case of the C. R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Callicotte (C. C. A.), 267 Fed. 799 (certiorari denied, 255 U. S. 570), is illuminating as to the extent to which equity will go to relieve from judgments obtained by fraud, even in litigated cases. See also Marshall v. Holmes, 141 U. S. 589; Wells Fargo & Co. v. Taylor, 254 U. S. 175, 183.

The decision in United States v. Wildcat is not to the contrary, for it is plainly limited to cases other than those involving fraud or mistake. It was there said that in order to impeach the decision of the Dawes Commission for fraud or mistake, the proof must be full and convincing, sufficient within the recognized principles of equity jurisdiction in cases of this character (p. 120). The significant part on that point is that the two cases cited by the court on the latter proposition, Maxwell Land-Grant Case, 121 U. S. 325, and Colorado Coal Co. v. United States, 123 U. S. 307, are cases in which it was sought to set aside patents for fraud similar to United States v. Minor, and Washington Securities Co. v. United States, supra. It is clear, therefore, that the court did not intend to adopt the rule of Vance v. Burbank as the sole and controlling rule in cases of fraud on the commission.

The courts below considered the Creek Nation as the real party in interest so far as the allotment and patenting of the lands were concerned, and held the United States to the same rule that they thought applied to the nation. However, there can be no doubt of the capacity of the United States to bring this suit in its own right. It was supervising and making the enrollment and allotments pursuant to its solemn covenant and agreement with the Creeks and therefore executing a public policy. Its interest is not to be confined to the assertion of rights incident to the ownership of a reversion or to the holding of a technical title in trust nor because it is without pecuniary interest. Heckman v. United States, 224 U. S. 413, 437; La Motte v. United States, 254 U. S. 570, 575.

Independently of the question of fraud we contend that if no such person as Thomas Atkins ever existed, the enrollment of that name as a citizen of the Creek Nation and the allotment and patenting of a tract of land in his name was a nullity, conveyed no title, and that no rights or interest thereunder could vest in any person. In the last analysis of the case under this theory the United States is asserting, as against all these defendants, that Thomas Atkins had no heirs for the very good reason that he never existed, and that those claiming to be his heirs are not such, and consequently take nothing by the action of the Dawes Commission and can convey no interest in the land. Cf. Iowa Land & Trust Co. v. United States, 217 Fed. 11.

It is well established that a conveyance or patent to a fictitious person conveys no title and there can be no bona fide purchaser from such patentee or grantee. Moffat v. United States, 112 U. S. 24; Thomas v. Wyatt, 25 Mo. 24. In order to effectuate a transfer there must be one capable of receiving it.

Suppose there were a conveyance of restricted Indian lands by a stranger to the title. Would there be any doubt of the right of the United States to maintain a suit to remove the cloud cast upon the title by that conveyance? That is precisely the situation in this case: The Government asserts that all the parties defendant are strangers to the title to this land. Surely it is entitled to be heard on that issue.

Now, it will not avail to say that the United States, through the Dawes Commission, had control of the allotting of the lands of the Creek Nation and therefore had jurisdiction of the subject matter. In the Moffat case the United States likewise had jurisdiction of the patenting of public lands, and yet the action of the Land Department in issuing patents to fictitious persons was held to convey nothing. The Land Department had no authority to convey public land to a fictitious person; neither had the Dawes Commission authority to allot lands to mythical persons.

The principle which in our view is applicable to this case is that of Scott v. McNeal, 154 U. S. 34. There it was decided that a purchaser at a sale of property made pursuant to an order of a probate court, acting upon the estate of a person supposed to be dead but in reality alive, conveyed no title as against the latter. If, as there held, the true owner could not be divested of property by an order of a court entered upon the theory that he was dead, we think it equally true that the rightful owner of the land here involved—the Creek Nation—could not be deprived of its property as a result of a decision based on the assumption that Thomas Atkins was living, when he never existed. The jurisdiction of the Dawes Commission depended on the existence at some time, at least, of those enrolled by it.

The courts below, however, took the view that, as the Dawes Commission enrolled the name Thomas Atkins, that pre-supposed a finding that such a person existed, since the law provided that only those living on April 1, 1899, should be enrolled; consequently that the proof tendered by the Government as to the nonexistence of Thomas Atkins constituted an attack upon that finding, and could not be admitted under their interpretation of the decision in the Wildcat case.

But if it be considered an attack upon that finding, we assert that this case is one of the class excepted from the effect of that decision, and that it can be further distinguished from that case.

As has already been pointed out, the decision in the Wildcat case specifically excepted cases of fraud and mistake. In that case no question was raised of the existence of Thlocco, the allottee, but it was contended that he died prior to April 1, 1889. That is very different from the assertion that he never existed.

In the Wildcat case, one basis for the upholding of the finding of the commission was the protection of bona fide purchasers. Thlocco had heirs and this court took the view that those purchasing from his heirs and relying upon the action of the commission should not be disturbed. In this case the purchasers must have at their peril established the existence of heirs, and, if Atkins in fact had no heirs, their situation is as if they took from a stranger to the title.

But if we clothe the finding of the Dawes Commission with all the dignity of a judgment in an adversary proceeding, there is yet another ground upon which the Government is entitled to relief. It is on the well established principle that equity will grant relief against a judgment, the enforcement of which would be unconscionable, or which was rendered through mistake or accident, the party seeking relief not knowing of the existence of a defense or being prevented from availing himself of it by accident or mistake.

This principle was so ably discussed not long since in Pickford v. Talbott, 225 U. S. 651, 658, et seq., as to make unnecessary a citation of cumulative authorities. It is proper only to apply the principle to the present situation.

When the Dawes Commission enrolled the name of Thomas Atkins, the Government had no knowledge of his nonexistence, nor was there anything to put it upon inquiry on that point. If it, or the Creek Nation knew the fact, it would have made the point before the commission. If Thomas Atkins was a myth, it surely is against conscience to give force and validity to the finding of the Dawes Commission and to permit the Creek Nation to be deprived of a part of its lands. The Government therefore was entitled to be heard upon the question whether Thomas Atkins was a myth and had no existence.

The action of the trial court in excluding evidence on that point was error, as was its action refusing to hear the Government on the question of fraud.

II.

The evidence establishes, and the courts below should have found, that Thomas Atkins was a myth; hence the patent issued in his name conveyed no title.

The situation presented in this case is unusual and arose in this wise: Practically all the testimony had been taken on the issues raised by the pleadings when the decision of this court in the Wildcat case was announced, whereupon the trial court ruled that the United States was not entitled to be heard on the question of fraud on the commission or on the question whether Thomas was a myth. This resulted in a dismissal of the Government's bill. (Memorandum opinion of district judge, R. I, 130 et seq.) Notwithstanding that ruling, the court proceeded to consider all the evidence adduced upon the issue of whether Thomas was a myth and rendered a decree as between Minnie Atkins and Nancy Atkins. This action was approved by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Now, if we are correct in our view of the law, the findings of the courts below are divested of their force and ought not to be given the presumptive effect usual in ordinary cases. This for the very good reason that they were arrived at under an erroneous view of the law. They start with the existence and eligibility for enrollment of Thomas Atkins, established beyond gainsaying by the action of the Dawes Commission. With this false start, no question being in the minds of the court of the existence of Thomas, it became merely a matter of deciding which of two persons, Minnie or Nancy, was his mother. Thus the courts below did not pass upon the evidence without prejudice, for their mental vision was clouded and obscured by the error in holding the action of the Dawes Commission to be unimpeachable. By reason of this fundamental error, the foundation of the finding is vitally weakened and becomes an unstable support, the vice of that error permeating the entire structure.

The situation is, in principle, like that in Vitelli & Son v. United States, 250 U. S. 355. There it was sought to uphold a reliquidation of certain imports made by the collector of the port, on the ground that although under the statute the power to reliquidate rested upon the existence of fraud, yet the presumption attending his acts cast upon the importer the burden of showing that no fraud had been committed. It was further contended that although the statute had been erroneously construed below, nevertheless as the record showed fraud, the reliquidation should be sustained. This court held (p. 359) that the erroneous construction of the statute dominated the entire situation, and ordered that the case should be given consideration "disembarrassed from any mistaken construction as to the presumption created by the statute."

In addition to that, we think it wholly unwarranted for the courts below, after shutting the United States out of the case, to consider the evidence adduced by it and determine thereon an issue against it.

Again, there was no finding against the Government on the facts by the District Court. When it considered the facts the Government was already out of the case by virtue of the ruling of the court denying its right to be heard.

The Circuit Court of Appeals, after approving the action of the District Court, did proceed to consider the evidence as if the Government were in the case, but that we submit is the only court which made a finding of fact against the Government.

For these reasons the rule is inapplicable here that findings of fact concurred in by two courts below will not be disturbed by this court unless shown to be palpably erroneous. But in any event we believe the case comes within the exception and that the findings below can be shown to be palpably erroneous.

Before proceeding to a discussion of the evidence, we wish to express regret that the record in the case is so voluminous. When the record on appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals was being perfected, the Government requested that it be printed pursuant to the act of February 13, 1911, 36 Stat. 901, in diminished form (R. VI, 4972), but the trial court on motion of counsel for the Nancy Atkins interests, ordered that it be printed in full without abridgment (R. VI, 4960–61). Our judgment is that it would have been possible to have diminished the record at least one-half and probably two-thirds.

However, in the hope that it may aid the court, we have prepared a digest of all the material evidence. We have tried to present that of the defendants as faithfully as that of the Government and have not intentionally slurred any deemed significant. This digest is printed as an appendix, and in our discussion we make reference to it and also to the record.

We think in the proper presentation of the case we should first refer to—

(a) Evidence relating to proceedings before the Dawes Commission.

The enrollment of the Creeks had not proceeded as rapidly as had been hoped; many Creeks were reluctant to accept allotments and did not present themselves before the Dawes Commission for allotment.

When the act of March 1, 1901, c. 676, 31 Stat. 861, the original Creek agreement, was being considered for ratification by the Creek Council at Okmulgee in May, 1901, the commission opened a temporary office there to carry on a "drive" for enrollment. Special efforts were made to get members of the tribe and heads of families to appear before it. A few days before the agreement was ratified (May 25, 1901) the established rule of the commission requiring personal appearance was lifted. This was done because of the opinion entertained by some that those not enrolled when ratification was effected could not be thereafter.

During those last few days previous to ratification the commission adopted this plan: They took the 1890 and 1895 tribal pay rolls and made a card for every name on those rolls which was unaccounted for—every name not already enrolled; personal appearance of the enrolled or any member of his family was not required; in so far as they could they secured information concerning these names from some warrior, town king, or member of the tribe; if they had information that any name was not entitled to enrollment, they did not put it upon a card, otherwise they did. During this "rush" about 500 names were enrolled per day.

The Thomas Atkins enrollment card, Govt. Ex. A-1 (R. VI, 4652), was made up from the 1895 tribal pay roll. (Testimony Hopkins, R. I, 182–213; Hastain, R. I, 237–253; Lieber, R. I, 253–265; Bixby, R. I, 266–280; Digest 3.)

The 1890 and 1895 rolls were made up from town rolls, submitted by the constituent towns of the Creek Nation; Thomas Atkins was enrolled on the Euchee Town roll.

Samuel W. Brown, town king of Euchee Town, states that when the 1890 roll was made up at a convention of the townspeople, the names of Minnie and Nancy Atkins were placed thereon; Thomas Holden, brother-in-law of Minnie, stated that she had two children; it was decided to place the two upon the roll; the Christian names of the two children were not given; the words "Thomas and Mary" were not written above the words "two children" at that convention, nor were they there when the council approved the roll.

The names Ed Schrimsher, Minnie Atkins, Charlie, Susan, Thomas, Nancy, and Mary were placed upon the 1895 roll by Brown upon information furnished him by John Davis, Minnie's uncle, of whom he inquired if he knew the "remnants" of the Atkins family; Davis said he did and gave Brown a list containing those names; he did not state what was the relationship between the ones on the list.

This roll was considered by a committee appointed by the Creek Council, which, in passing on the town rolls, asked the town king and warriors concerning them. Brown doesn't know that the Atkins family was discussed before the committee "because we never had much trouble with our rolls—always tried to get it right, and we stated that is all we could get up and they accepted it." This committee reported to the council and if the council found the rolls correct, they were approved.

Brown knew personally all the old members of Euchee Town but not all the young ones; did not know any Euchee named Thomas Atkins except Minnie's father; never knew or saw a boy named Thomas Atkins, who claimed to be Minnie's child. He recalls payment to Minnie on the 1895 roll—she received payment for four—Govt. Ex. A-2 (R. VI, 4652); Brown drew for Schrimsher and Nancy Atkins; when Minnie drew the money she did not say those she drew for were her children—Brown supposed they were. Brown was interrogated at Okmulgee by the Dawes Commission clerks about unaccounted-for names from Euchee Town, but does'nt recall giving any information regarding Thomas Atkins. (R. I, 214–232; Digest 7–9.)

Noah G. Gregory was town king of Euchee Town in 1890; he was at Okmulgee in May, 1901, when the Creek agreement was under consideration; was called to help the Dawes Commission in enrolling names and to correct the town rolls which he had; went over the Euchee roll with Hopkins of the commission; when they came to Minnie Atkins's name Gregory said the last he had heard of her she was in Colorado, didn't know whether she was living, had tried to find out but couldn't locate her; Gregory knew that Minnie had two children (Harvey and Charlie) living with Holden. Nancy Atkins was not at Okmulgee at that time, nor was Holden or any member of Minnie's immediate family. He never knew any member of Euchee Town named Thomas Atkins. (R. I, 232–237; Digest 10.)

Larry Brown, Chicken (Dixon), and George Clinton, who were in the house of warriors, representing Euchee Town, and who in addition to Sam Brown constituted the official representatives of Euchee Town, with Noah Gregory as town king, all testify to being present at Okmulgee in May, 1901, but that they were not called before the Dawes Commission for any purpose nor did they talk with any of the clerks of the commission. Chicken states that he told the clerks of the commission that Sam Brown made up the roll. None of these knew Minnie, Nancy, Lee, or Thomas Atkins.

Edward Merrick, the employe of the Dawes Commission who made out the card of Thomas Atkins on May 23, 1901, made an investigation and was unable to find any record in the office of the commission relative to that record other than the tribal roll prior to May 23, 1901. There was no old census card in this case; the name Thomas Atkins was put on a card because it was on the 1895 tribal roll; most of the cards written out in the last few days contained only the name and tribal roll. Doesn't know where information as to age, blood and parentage appearing on card came from, but must have come from sources besides 1895 roll, from what some one told him. (R. V, 3451–80; Digest 4–6.)

Minnie Folk (Minnie Atkins) in her Seattle testimony stated she had Thomas Atkins put on the 1895 roll by her uncle, John Davis; such was her testimony at Sapulpa, in a case in the state court between Nancy Atkins and herself, although she denied at the trial the Sapulpa testimony. (R. V, 3993; Digest 209.) According to the testimony of Sadie James, Minnie told her that the name Thomas Atkins represented her father who had been dead 17 years. (R. 559; Digest 26.)

It is not clear just how or by whom the information came which resulted in placing the name Thomas Atkins on the 1895 roll. While Brown positively states that he received it from John Davis when making up the roll, yet the record discloses (R. VI, 4987–88) that from 1891 to 1896 Davis was in the penitentiary. This fact would also cast doubt upon Minnie's statement that she had Davis put Thomas on the roll.

However, the District Court specifically found that Minnie had conveyed information of the birth of Thomas to relatives in the Indian Territory, which resulted in his being placed upon the 1895 roll. (R. I, 145.) If the court was correct in that finding, or if Minnie instigated Thomas's enrollment, and he was a myth, she was responsible for a fraud upon the Creek Nation and upon the Dawes Commission for which the Government was entitled to relief, regardless of who was the medium through whom the information was communicated.

If Thomas Atkins was a myth, it is an inescapable conclusion that his enrollment was the consequence of fraud and false representation.

But we wish to make clear to the court that the Government's case does not depend upon the establishment of the particular manner in which the fraud was perpetrated. We are content to rest it upon the other grounds specified. We have discussed the fraud feature because of a desire to secure a ruling as to the character of the proceedings before the Dawes Commission, and to overcome the effect of the ruling below that those proceedings are adversary, and that fraud extrinsic alone is a basis for attacking them.

(b) The evidence on the question whether Thomas Atkins was a myth.

The case on the facts presents, as against the Government, the conflicting claims of two different interests to the land, namely: (1) Minnie Atkins, claiming as the mother and heir of Thomas Atkins, deceased, whose interest has been acquired by Charles Page; (2) Nancy Atkins, also claiming as mother and heir of Thomas Atkins, deceased, who asserts title subject only to a lease executed by her under order of the county court of Nowata County, Okla., the interest in which is now held by Rutherford and Ferguson.

The trial court found against the claim of Henry Carter, decreed him not to be Thomas Atkins and to be entitled to no interest in the property in controversy. No appeal therefrom was taken and that interest is now out of the case. When referred to herein it is only in connection with the other phases of the case.

It may lead to a better understanding of the situation out of which this controversy arose to make at this time a brief general statement, the correctness of which we believe will be conceded.

One H. U. Bartlett had taken a deed to the land, purporting to have been executed by Minnie Atkins October 21, 1912. (Government Ex. A-58, R. VI, 4731.) The following month Bartlett executed an oil and gas lease to the Gypsy Oil Co. (Govt. Ex. A-59, R. VI, 4732-36); the Gypsy went upon the land and started a well December 25, 1913, in which oil was discovered January 23, 1914. (R. I, 315.)

It developed that the deed to Bartlett was a forgery (see Bartlett v. Atkins, 169 Pac. 1076). Bartlett was anxious to cure his title, and to that end employed one Betty or Sadie Mann to endeavor to locate Thomas Atkins, the allottee. In March, 1914, Betty met Sadie James and informed her of her employment; Betty put Sadie in touch with Bartlett and Sadie was also employed on the investigation. She decided to locate Minnie Atkins if she could, and in June, 1914, succeeded in doing so at Fort Lawton, Seattle, Wash. On this western trip Betty Mann accompanied Sadie, but just before leaving Sapulpa or Tulsa Betty met Long, who was working in the interest of defendant Page and agreed with him that should Minnie be found she would advise Long. (R. II, 1063–64.)

When Sadie interviewed Minnie at Seattle she made an offer on the part of Bartlett for a lease from Minnie, and it was tentatively agreed that the latter would deal with Bartlett when he arrived. In the meantime Betty, to whom Sadie had not confided her discovery of Minnie, being suspicious of her, had had Sadie shadowed and learned of Minnie's whereabouts. She communicated with Long, who arrived before Bartlett and made an offer of $4,000 for a lease to the Gem Oil Company, in which Page was the controlling factor.

Captain McNab, an officer at Fort Lawton, became interested in the matter, summoned one Hanford, an attorney at Seattle, and together they induced Minnie to execute a deed of trust to McNab, so that all dealings relating to the land would be looked after by him. McNab and Hanford would not execute the lease to the Gem Oil Co. but stated to Long that they desired to investigate. After conferring with Long, Hanford and McNab guaranteed to Minnie, who was anxious to get immediately the $4,000 offered, that she would receive $5,000 if she would wait and abide their judgment.

Hanford in company with Long went to Oklahoma to investigate the value of the property. Long furnished expense money under an agreement that he should be repaid in the event a lease was not executed to the Gem Oil Co. They arrived in Oklahoma on Sunday morning, spent most of the day with Page and one of his attorneys discussing the leasing of the property; Monday, Hanford made some investigation of the suit in the state court brought by Nancy Atkins to quiet title to the land in controversy; Tuesday, with Long, made some investigation of the Dawes Commission records, and on Tuesday evening wired McNab to execute the lease to the Gem for a consideration of $10,000, which was paid to Hanford in two checks of $5,000 each; the first he cashed, keeping $3,000 for himself to cover expenses, as he says; the $2,000 balance he turned over to McNab. The second check was made payable about a month later, for the asserted reason that Page was not satisfied of the identity of Minnie.

Long and Hanford returned to Seattle to get further data from Minnie regarding her past life. (Hanford, R. V, 3689–3702.) Thereafter Minnie gave statements and evidence so varying and conflicting in character that we treat them in detail. So far as the Minnie Atkins interests are concerned, the controversy centers about the alleged birth of Thomas to Minnie in Leavenworth, Kans., in the year 1885.

There is and can be no dispute that Minnie Atkins was a pupil in Carlisle Indian School from January, 1881, to July 8, 1884. The records of the school establish that. (R. I, 332–333; Digest 14.) When she left Carlisle it was to enter the employ, as a domestic, of George H. Hyde, a banker of Leavenworth, Kans. She arrived there on July 10, 1884, as is shown by a post card dated July 11, 1884, addressed to the superintendent of the school by Hyde, reporting her arrival on the previous day. (Govt. Ex. 15, R. VI, 4859.)

It is also established beyond all controversy that Minnie gave birth to a child, Robert Lee Peterkin, at the home of Mrs. Wood in Leavenworth on July 31, 1886; the child lived but a few weeks. Testimony of Peterkin R. I, 425; Digest 18–20; Mary K. Allen R. I, 462–463; Digest 20; baptismal records, R. I, 475–476; Digest 21; burial records, R. I, 479; Digest 21.

The contention of the Government is that this was her first child, but the final claim made by

Minnie was that she had a child previous to that, Thomas, whose place of birth she ultimately gave as Granny Letcher's at 217 Seneca Street, Leavenworth, in the summer of 1885. (R. V, 3911; Digest 190.) This last testimony before the court was the fifth given by Minnie in court proceedings. It was the eighth statement she had made about the matter. The first statement was made in July, 1914, to Hanford and Long, representing Page, soon after the lease had been given to the Gem Oil Company. She then stated she went to Leavenworth in 1882, worked four years (three for Grodevant, one for Stafford); left latter's and had the boy, Thomas; born at the Sisters Hospital in the summer of 1886 or 1887; she stayed in Leavenworth one year after his birth. (Long R. V, 3516–17; Digest 156; Govt. Ex. A–112, R. VI, 4832.)

The second time she told of the matter was at Sapulpa in July, 1914, in a suit pending in the state court between the Minnie Atkins interests and the Nancy Atkins interests. There she testified that she never gave birth to any child except Thomas, Harvey, Charlie, and Alice (R. V, 3946; Digest 198); she went from Carlisle School to Hydes for three months, then to Grodevants at Fort Leavenworth for one year and six months; then at Lieutenant Stafford's a year, and left there because she was with a baby by name of Tommy Atkins (R. V, 3948; Digest 199); she left Stafford's to go to the Sisters Hospital to give birth to the child (R. V, 3949, Digest 199); after she left the hospital she carried him to a lady to care for him during the day while she went out to work, returning to the baby after work (R. V, 3957; Digest 201). [Upon this computation, starting with July, 1884, as the time of her arrival in Leavenworth, this would bring the birth of Thomas in April, 1887.]

The third time she told the story was after search had been made of the records at the Sisters Hospital and it was ascertained that no maternity cases were taken there prior to 1890 and that Minnie's only stay there was in October, 1886. (R. V, 3609; Digest 162; Gov't Ex. A-81, R. VI, 4779.)

She was then brought to Kansas City, where she was interviewed by Hanford, Josey, Rice, and Long, representing Page interests. A statement dated September 29, 1914, was taken (R. V, 4044). In that she stated that she went to Leavenworth from Carlisle and worked for Hyde; Grandma Spain and Mrs. Hamilton, her daughter, were the women she knew in Leavenworth (R. V, 4049–50; Digest 212); she stayed at Hydes three months; then went "knocking around," stayed a good deal at Granny Letcher's; worked a few weeks for a rich Jew before she went to Granny's; Granny was pretty near white, but a colored woman; she lived on Seneca Street; there was a corner saloon near and a livery stable; asked if livery was Crilly's she answered, "some such name as that"; remembers a grocery store run by Rube Smith near by (R. V, 4051; Digest 212);

Granny had a one-armed boy named Sam Nash and a boy named Walter around the house; she was at Granny's about three months before her child was born; she was going with two men then but did not remember their names; Thomas, her first child, was born there in the winter of 1885; she borrowed the money from Rube Smith to pay the doctor; she would not tell the name of the father of Thomas; she stayed at Granny's (around Leavenworth) for about a year after the child was born; the child nursed at the breast and during the time he was nursing no men came to see her. (R. V, 4053–55, 4057; Digest 213.) She first worked at Fort Leavenworth for Grodevants, then for Staffords, for whom she was working when she took up with Peterkin. (R. V, 4060; Digest 213.)

After procuring this statement from Minnie she was taken by the Page interests to Tulsa where, in October, 1914, she gave a deposition at the office of Rice & Lyons, Page's attorneys, for use in the state court case.

In the Tulsa deposition she testified that she went from Carlisle to Leavenworth, worked five months for Hyde; that a child (Thomas Atkins) was born to her at Granny Letcher's; she remained a year in Leavenworth, then went to Fort Leavenworth; worked for Grodevants a year, then a few months for Staffords; Tommy was a year and a half old when she left Leavenworth to go to Fort Logan; she left him at Letcher's; she never saw him after that but heard when in Detroit that he was dead; she knew after she went to Hydes that she had Tommy and went to Granny's; the child was born two years after she came to Leavenworth; that she testified at Sapulpa that the child was born at the Sisters Hospital because Granny didn't run a very good house and not because she was a negress; while at Grodevants and Staffords she went to Granny's all the time. (R. II, 1304–1307; Digest 53.)

[According to this statement Thomas was born in 1886, July or August, since she arrived in Leavenworth in July, 1884; but the fact is she had Robert Lee Peterkin on July 31, 1886.]

On December 17, 1914, Minnie, at Seattle, Wash., made what is sometimes referred to as her confession to Montgomery, who was representing the Creek Nation. In that statement, given in the presence of Hanford, Montgomery, and McNab, she declared that no child was ever born to her by the name of Thomas Atkins, or Tommy Atkins, and that the Thomas Atkins for whom she drew the "grass money" (1895 pay roll) was her father; that she was the mother of only three children—Mabel, or Alice Peterkin, Charlie Harrison, and Harvey Harrison. (R. II, 1374; Digest 55.)

The receivership hearing in March, 1915, was the first court proceeding wherein the United States was a party. In that hearing Minnie gave the following testimony: When she left Hydes she was "with" Tommy Atkins; she was down in the city about a year after leaving Hydes before she went to Grodevants; slept at Granny's a lot during that year (R. V, 3980–81; Digest 206); nursed Tommy at Granny's for about six months (R. V, 3967; Digest 203).

In a deposition given at Seattle, Wash., before Examiner Penick in this case, Minnie gave this version:

That she had Tommy put on the 1895 roll by her uncle, John Davis, as Thomas Atkins; she hadn't named Tommy Atkins (R. V, 3997; Digest 209); at the time she drew the money on the 1895 pay roll she had had five children born to her (including Mabel or Alice, who had died, and what she called a premature birth, Robert Lee Peterkin, who lived a week or ten days and who was born after Tommy.) (R. V, 4004–05; Digest 209); went from Carlisle to Hydes at Leavenworth, where she stayed three months or a little over; didn't have Tommy when she came to Leavenworth; from Hydes went to Grodevants; was at latter's two or three months, then to Lieutenant Stafford's; got Tommy at Hydes (R. V, 4008–09; Digest 209). Was in bed about two weeks at the time she gave birth to him; doesn't know the name of the doctor who attended her; Mrs. Witt washed and dressed the child (R. V, 4013; Digest 210); stayed around Leavenworth a year or more after she had Tommy, so she could go to Granny's and nurse him; she had Tommy after she left Grodevants; worked up to two months before she had him; Tommy was about 2 years old when she left Leavenworth and went to Fort Logan; did not regard it as any humiliation to associate with Granny Letcher. (R. V, 4020–21; Digest 210.) Thinks she was carrying Thomas when she was working for Grodevants; Thomas was born between warm and cold weather; it was getting summer, but still cold. Granny lived on Seneca Street at that time. (R. V, 4034–35; Digest 210.)

On the trial of the case, Minnie gave her final story:

Became pregnant at Hydes; went from Hydes to Grodevant's; had the child at Granny Letcher's; named it Thomas Atkins after her father; a man named Lee was the father of Thomas; she couldn't remember his last name; stayed at Granny's three weeks, then returned to Grodevants; came down town every night to see the child; Thomas was about 2 or 3 years old when she left for Fort Logan; had five children in all; Thomas Atkins, the first one, then Robert Lee Peterkin, then Alice, then Charlie, and last Harvey. (R. V, 3911–12; Digest 190.) The reason she now tells for the first time the name of the father is "because they all just wanted to hang it on me that my son was a colored child." (R. V, 3917; Digest 191.) Went directly from Hydes to Grodevants and didn't stay in Leavenworth a part of the time (R. V, 3924; Digest 193); didn't know Sadie James until she came to her house at Seattle (R. V, 3929; Digest 194). Would never refer to any negro woman as a "lady" (R. V, 3957; Digest 201); Tommy born in the summer

(R. V, 3966; Digest 203); nursed Tommy at the breast for about six months (R. V, 3967; Digest 203). Doctor McCormick attended her, didn't get any pay that she knew of, doesn't know who got him; it was three weeks after the baby was born when she went back to Grodevants; came back and forth to Granny's to see baby, on the bus; would come just as soon as she could get away from Grodevants; Frank Grodevant would be late and she had to wait on him; would go back on last bus at 12.30 a. m.; bus fare was ten cents each way; would nurse the baby when she made those trips. (R. V, 3981–83; Digest 207.)

In view of these conflicting and inconsistent statements, no reliance can be placed upon Minnie's testimony as to the birth of the child Thomas. In and of themselves they constitute strong proof of the Government's claim that Thomas was a myth.

We recognize that human memory is fallible, but there are some things which are indelibly fixed upon the mind. It is incredible that any woman could fail to recall the incidents attending the time and the place of the birth of her first-born child. Yet Minnie did not place the birth of Thomas at Granny Letcher's until she told the story of Thomas the third time at Kansas City. She could tell the Christian name only but couldn't remember the surname of her acknowledged first lover, the father of Thomas. (R. V, 3920–23; Digest 193.)

We do not stop to analyze the testimony of Minnie or to consider the lame excuses which she makes for the inconsistencies. The net result is to induce the conviction that the entire case as to the birth or existence of Thomas is a fabrication.

The Government proved and accounted for Minnie's time in Leavenworth very closely. By uninterested witnesses the following was established:

She worked at Hydes for about four or five months; Mrs. Hyde observed no signs of pregnancy nor suspected Minnie of anything of the kind; Minnie had no men associates that Mrs. Hyde knew of (R. I, 343; Digest 14); Minnie went directly from Hydes to Grodevants at Fort Leavenworth; Mrs. Hamilton testified that Minnie called upon her frequently, both while at Hydes and Grodevants, and that it was a considerable time after she left Hydes (within two years) when she noticed Minnie in a family way (R. I, 362); that was the only time she knew of her being pregnant while in Leavenworth. (R. I, 366; Digest 16.)

The Grodevant expense account kept by Herbert Grodevant, deceased (which is Govt. Ex. 1, R. VI, 4840–48), shows that Minnie received pay for services from October, 1884, and up to September 15, 1885, except for a period of about two weeks in June, 1885. Frank J. Grodevant, who lived with his brother at the time Minnie worked for the latter, states that he saw Minnie around the house several times a week and that she did not have the appearance of being in a family way. (R. I, 393–394; Digest 17.)

Mrs. Stafford stated that Minnie went to work for her in September or October, 1885 (thinks it was September 15), and worked until the following June

(1886), when she discharged her because of her condition (pregnancy); (R. I, 444–445; Digest 20); the testimony of her husband is to like effect. (R. I, 450–451; Digest 20.)

Charles Peterkin, who lived with Minnie at Fort Leavenworth, testified that he first saw Minnie to know who she was in the spring of 1885 and started living with her the second day after the discharge from the army of Oliver, who had been living with Minnie. Oliver was discharged, according to War Department records, December 18, 1885. (R. I, 441; Digest 20.) Prior to living with her and after first seeing her in the spring of 1885 he saw her about five or six times a week; Minnie showed no signs of pregnancy during that period. About a month after he commenced living with her he discovered she was pregnant about three or four months along, this pregnancy resulting in the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin in July or August, 1886. (R. I, 420–424; Digest 19.)

In the face of this evidence Minnie was driven in her last testimony, which must be relied upon by the defendants, to the extreme of asserting that she left Grodevants for three weeks to coincide with the June, 1885, expense account of Grodevant, and in that time was confined, then resumed her duties with the Grodevants, nursing her child evenings, keeping her breasts soft and relieved of milk by working them with her hands, as she had no breast pump (this operation would have to be performed about five times during the day and each operation would take 15 or 20 minutes. R. VI, 4543–44; Digest 269); yet none of those who were in a position best to observe outward signs of pregnancy knew anything of it. Further comment would seem unnecessary.

But this is not all. Minnie, when she finally fixed the birthplace at Granny Letcher's, located the house at 217 Seneca Street, but the city directory for 1885 shows Lily White a resident at 217 Seneca Street. (R. III, 2086; Digest 85.) Lily White, who preceded Granny Letcher at 217 Seneca Street, ran a house of ill fame and that constituted such a nuisance that the neighbors circulated a petition to the city council to compel her to remove. That petition was dated July 5, 1885. (Govt. Ex. 59, R. VI, 4912–13). The council acted upon the petition at a meeting held August 5, 1885, and referred it to the city marshal with instructions to abate the nuisance. (Govt. Ex. 61, R. VI, 4914–15.) Feth testified that he drew the petition up on July 5, 1885, at the request of his father and mother, who lived at 223 Seneca Street. (R. II, 1441–47; Digest 61.)

Mrs. O'Day, who did hair dressing for Lily White's girls, and who lived back of 217 Seneca Street, testified that Lily White lived there during the summer of 1885; that she refused for business reasons to sign the petition against Lily White, which she remembers was circulated about the middle of the summer. (R. II, 1536–37; Digest 66.)

These were not all the witnesses for the Government on this question, but the testimony of the others established Lily White in the house when Minnie alleged she had Tommy there. (John Rohr, R. II, 1422, Digest 59; Eckert, R. II, 1583, Digest 67; Malone, R. II, 1481–82, 1516, Digest 62; Dassler, R. II, 1462, Digest 61.)

(c) The case presented by the Minnie Atkins interests is a fabrication.

The recorded testimony of Sadie James is an intensely human document; we do not attempt to give it in detail but touch only the high points.

Sadie knew Minnie Atkins in Leavenworth from July, 1884, to the fall of 1887 or spring of 1888. (R. I, 511; Digest 23.) Minnie denied this at the trial but had previously admitted it at the Sapulpa hearing. (R. V, 3929; Digest 194); the reason for the subsequent denial will later be obvious. She first became interested in the case in March, 1914, when she was employed by Bartlett, through the intervention of Betty Mann, to locate Thomas Atkins. (R. I, 512–513; Digest 23.) Betty told Sadie that she had been trying to find Thomas Atkins for three years and had come to the conclusion that there was no Thomas (a conclusion with which Sadie agreed), but that Sadie could secure employment from Bartlett by telling him that she knew Minnie, and where Thomas was born. (R. I, 515; Digest 24.) Sadie suggested that they frame up a Thomas Atkins, and then took Betty to the Office of Dennis Jones, a negro lawyer of Leavenworth, enlisted his help and that of Rube Smith, his partner, neither of whom knew Minnie, to frame up a case establishing the existence of Thomas Atkins. (R. I, 517–519; Digest 24.)

Betty returned to Kansas City and Sadie went back to Jones's office, where she conferred with him and Smith and the frame-up was outlined, namely, that they would say the child was born at Granny Letcher's in 1885; Rube Smith said he would be the father; they planned to get Mary Smith, a white woman, to pose as the midwife. A white woman was decided upon because Dennis doubted that any colored woman could be procured, since "they were all too afraid of getting arrested"; Doctor McCormick was named as the attending physician, for the reason that he was dead. (R. I, 520–521; Digest 25.)

Sadie met Bartlett the next day, told him that she knew Minnie had a child named Thomas born at Granny Letcher's, and that she had last seen him when he was 5 years old. Bartlett advanced her some expense money and told her to furnish such evidence as she procured about Tommy to Betty and two detectives whom he had hired. (R. I, 522–523; Digest 25.) Thereupon Sadie returned to Jones' office, told him and Rube that she had procured a job and for them to go ahead with the plan. Dennis said they would hunt a boy of Indian color, show him around Leavenworth, and get people to swear they remembered when he was born to this Indian woman. (R. I, 524; Digest 25.) Later, Sadie suggested to Bartlett that she be allowed to search for Minnie Atkins. Bartlett agreed. (R. I, 529; Digest 25.) Sadie had another interview with Jones, who told her that "he had got the talk started about Tommy Atkins and this Indian woman among several that he knew were all right". (R. I, 533; Digest 25.)

Sadie related how in April, 1914, after her employment by Bartlett, she interviewed several persons around Leavenworth endeavoring to secure them to agree to testify to the birth of a child to Minnie at Granny Letcher's. (R. I, 589–594; Digest 29.)

After considerable traveling about, Sadie located Minnie at Fort Lawton, Seattle, Wash., in June, 1914. She went to the home of Minnie, who recognized her. Sadie told her that she was a Government officer, engaged in enrolling, and that she wanted to know about Thomas and Alice who were enrolled as two of Minnie's children in 1895, and for whom she could not account. Minnie told her that Thomas Atkins was her father, who had been dead seventeen years when she drew that money; that she had been hiding from the Government for nineteen years because she had drawn that money. Sadie told her that the land allotted to Thomas was valuable; that she was working for Bartlett as well as the Government, that all Minnie had to do when the Government officers asked if she had the child was to say "yes"; that Bartlett would give her $2,000 for a deed to the land. Minnie asked "who is dead in Leavenworth, that if I say I had a child that was born in 1885, that I can say I gave it to." Sadie promptly said Granny Letcher, Minnie assented, and procured a piece of paper and marked down the year agreed upon, 1885. Sadie then told her that she had already started this story and had framed it up with some people in Leavenworth. (R. I, 560–561; Digest 26.)

Sadie then related how Minnie's husband was made acquainted with her earlier life and of what was planned (R. I, 563–566; Digest 26); how, through the defection of Betty Mann, who had accompanied her to Seattle, Long, the representative of Page, appeared on the scene and made an offer for a lease; and of the intervention of Capt. McNab and Hanford who took over Minnie's interests. (R. I, 571–575; Digest 28.)

She further stated that she went to see Minnie on the following Sunday when Minnie told her she had signed over her business to McNab, that "they are going to make a white case out of it and they are not going to have any negroes in it at all. * * * they want me to say that I had a baby born in the hospital and I gave him away when he was two years old". (R. I, 578; Digest 28.)

Sadie and Betty returned east with Bartlett, and Sadie, seeking to continue her employment with Bartlett, and leading him to believe that Tommy might still be alive, induced him to allow her to proceed with a search for him to the end that if found a deed might be secured from him. (R. I, 586; Digest 28.)

She then saw Dennis and asked him if he could secure a man with nerve enough to sign this deed as Thomas Atkins, suggesting, that if so, they could switch him to the Gypsy Oil Co. rather than to Bartlett. (R. I, 599.) Sadie then made a trip to the Pacific coast, but after awhile Bartlett became convinced that she was duping him and let her go.

About the middle of August Betty Mann told Sadie that one Cook, a government officer, was going to arrest her because she had been passing herself as a government officer. She went to her attorney, C. S. Walker, and told him of this, asking him to go with her to see Page, so that she might tell Page "there ain't no Tommy Atkins," and that she was going to get out of his way because "he is working with Fred Cook making a dead man." She told Walker also of what Minnie had told her of Thomas Atkins being her father. Walker told her to go to Page herself and that he would wait in his office until her return. (R. I, 615; Digest 30.)

Sadie went to Long's office, adjacent to Page's, because she knew Long, told him what she had come for, and Long said Page wanted to see her. She went with Long to Page's office; Long introduced her to Page, who said he had been looking for her. Sadie said, "Mr. Page, I came up here to tell you there is no Tommy Atkins." Page replied, "I don't give a damn if there ain't, the Government record says so and we will make one." Told Sadie he wanted the birth and death of Thomas Atkins established in Leavenworth and asked her if she could do it; she said yes. Page then said he had been informed by friends in Leavenworth that Dennis Jones was a shrewd man, had been on the police force, and a detective, was a lawyer and a politician, and that his influence in the case would help it—could Sadie get it? She told him that Dennis Jones and Rube Smith were her "coworkers," but that she feared she would have difficulty in getting Jones as he had been working with the Gypsy Oil Co. trying to make a live Tommy, and would be disinclined to turn around and make out a dead one. Page told her to tell Jones he would get arrested if he didn't stop trying to make a live man. Page directed her to meet him that evening at the Sand Springs Park—an amusement enterprise of Page's. (R. I, 616–617; Digest 30.)

At Long's suggestion Sadie then went to Mr. Rice's office on the next floor (Rice, of Rice & Lyons, attorneys for Page) and gave him the names of some who could be used as witnesses, Long telling Rice that Sadie was now working for them. (R. I, 618; Digest 30.)

Returning to Walker's office she reported to him that she had told Page, and had a job to get some witnesses. He said that she, Page, Long, and Josey were headed for the penitentiary. Sadie promised to inform him of the result of the meeting at the park. (R. I, 619; Digest 31.)

Sadie then relates the incidents connected with the meeting with Page and Long that evening, when Page agreed to give her $1,000 to establish the birth and death of Thomas Atkins in Leavenworth, and told her to come to his office for a contract the next morning. Sadie asked Page how he was to reconcile the new evidence with Minnie's Sapulpa testimony, wherein she swore that she had the child at the Sisters Hospital. Page said he would make Minnie "go back on the stand and say the reason she told that lie she didn't want her husband to know she lived with negroes." (R. I, 620–621; Digest 31.) The next day a contract between the Gem Oil Co. and Sadie was executed, whereby it was provided that Sadie should receive a check for $1,000 (check for that amount being deposited with the contract in a bank) when witnesses furnished by her had testified "in land suit wherein Minnie Folk, née Atkins, is seeking possession of allotment * * * of her son, Thomas Atkins," and when Page and Josey were in legal possession under their lease, declared valid; if they were not declared legal owners under the oil and gas lease then the check to be returned to the company. (Govt. Ex. 42, R. VI, 4902; R. I, 621–622; Digest 31.)

Long arranged to meet Sadie in Leavenworth the next day, and then asked her to meet Hanford, who was in his office. Sadie demurred because she had had an unpleasant experience with Hanford at Seattle, but was induced to talk to him. She twitted him on the result of Minnie's testimony at Sapulpa, and then asked him if he understood that she was going to make a negro case out of it. He asked in reply if she thought she could make it, and told her that he had taken Minnie to Leavenworth and that she didn't know anybody and didn't know where to take him. (R. I, 624–625; Digest 31.)

Sadie told Walker of the contract and he secured a copy of it at the bank. (R. I, 626; Digest 32.)

Went to Leavenworth, told Dennis Jones of her employment by the Gem Oil Co., and that they desired him to work. He agreed and then Sadie brought him and Long together, but Dennis insisted (as Sadie had previously advised) on seeing Page, so a trip to Tulsa was arranged, which resulted in Jones's employment. (R. I, 631–632, 636; Digest 32.)

His contract is reproduced as Govt. Ex. A-83 (R. VI, 4782–83.) It is dated September 23, 1914, and under its terms Dennis was to receive $10 per day and expenses of $5 per day, and if the Gem Oil Co. was successful in its suit in the Creek County court, and if satisfactory evidence was produced by Dennis of the death of Thomas Atkins, he was to receive an additional $500. There was a stipulation that any information obtained by Dennis was to be confidential and not disclosed without consent of the Gem.

Thereafter Sadie, fearing prosecution by the Federal authorities because of having represented herself as a government agent, made a confession of her part in the transaction and received immunity.

Sadie is corroborated by Betty Mann as to the former's employment by Bartlett and the conversation with Dennis Jones wherein it was agreed to evolve a "frame up" (R. II, 1058–59; Digest 35); as to the agreement with Long whereby Betty was to communicate with him if Minnie was located (R. II, 1063; Digest 36), Long admits this (R. V, 3500–01; Digest 155). Betty testified to a conversation with Minnie at Seattle when the latter was located wherein Minnie stated that the Thomas Atkins on the roll was not hers and must belong to her brother or sister (R. II, 1065; Digest 37), and that she had drawn money she was not entitled to, that she was afraid of the Government, and that was the reason she had not written or gone back to see her children in Oklahoma. (R. II, 1096, Digest 39.)

Harry Folk, Minnie's husband, testified for the Minnie Atkins interests but was not asked by them regarding Sadie's conversation with him in which she told him that Minnie was to assert that she had a child Thomas. (R. V, 4163; Digest 215.)

The testimony of Mrs. Kirk is proof that Sadie was thought to be a friend of Minnie, and disproves the assertion made by defendants that Minnie complained to McNab and Hanford that she was being annoyed by Sadie. (R. V, 3691; Digest 165.) Minnie asked Sadie to have her taken to Mrs. Kirk and agreed to meet Sadie there. Mrs. Kirk testified that she expected Minnie to visit her in July, and that Sadie did call at her house looking for Minnie; related how she accompanied Sadie and Bartlett to Seattle to see Minnie and how Hanford abused her and would not let Minnie talk to her. (R. II, 1129–33; Digest 42.) Also that of Mrs. McComb who stated that Minnie told her of this land matter and she understood from her that Sadie had brought her good news concerning it. (R. V, 3858; Digest 183.)

But the most striking corroboration of Sadie's story is the testimony of her attorney, C. S. Walker. He states that Sadie told him of her conversation with Page and that she was to be employed to secure witnesses to testify to the existence of Thomas Atkins, although Page knew that there wasn't a Thomas Atkins because she had told him. (R. II, 1283–90; Digest 49.)

We can not, in the space of this brief, undertake to refer to the many bits of evidence supporting Sadie's testimony. What has been set forth already is, in our judgment, amply sufficient. The Minnie Atkins interests of course assail Sadie and her testimony. Whatever her past, they knew it when they employed her, and can not now be heard to attack her reputation or character.

Further, on the question of fabrication of a case, the story told by Mrs. A. G. Wilds is very illuminating. She was employed by Betty Mann and one Kohler, a detective, to endeavor to gain access to Minnie's home and to listen to what she said. She went to Minnie's for the first time July 26, 1916, made herself agreeable to Minnie and they became very friendly. She tells that Minnie talked very frankly to her, told her that Page had made her swear to lies; how Long had wanted her to claim the "nigger kid." (R. III, 2099–2100; Digest 85.)

Mrs. Wilds also gives corroboration to the story of Sadie James, for she states that Minnie said that Sadie found her, and she, Minnie, gave her a good many facts about herself but that she could have given her a great deal more. (R. III, 2101; Digest 86.)

Mrs. Wilds later wrote the Secretary of the Interior about the matter for the reason that she felt a fraud was being perpetrated. (Govt. Ex. A–101, R. VI, 4813.)

Again, it is significant as showing that Sadie's story of the "frame-up" is true, that Hanford testified that he never heard of Granny Letcher until after Sadie had been employed by Page. (R. V, 3799–3800; Digest 178.)

The confession of Minnie given in December, 1914, to Montgomery is a further proof of the claim that the case of the defendant Page is a fabrication. That confession was given without any compulsion; McNab and Hanford were present, Hanford obstructing as much as he dared. Montgomery told Minnie that he wanted only the truth. McNab advised Minnie to sign it if it was the truth. (Montgomery's testimony, R. II, 1371–75; Digest 56; Hanford's, R. V, 3717–22; Digest 172; R. V, 3818–19; Digest 180; McNab's, R. V, 4130–34, 4152; Digest 101, 104.)

This confession was left by Montgomery with McNab to be held by him until immunity was secured by the former for Minnie and if not secured was to be destroyed (R. II, 1373). This action by Montgomery in thus trusting the confession to McNab shows his fairness in the whole transaction. The attitude of McNab and Hanford is in strong contrast. The very next day Hanford went to Minnie and induced her to retract the statement, communicated with McNab, who, without consent of Montgomery, returned the confession to Minnie. McNab's justification of his conduct is of itself a sufficient commentary on his attitude. (R. V, 4137; Digest 102.) And even Hanford on cross-examination reluctantly admitted that this confession would have accounted for all the discrepancies in Minnie's testimony and for all the suspicions raised in his mind since the suit of the Government had been instituted. (R. V, 3820; Digest 180.)

Witnesses for the Page interests testified to seeing Thomas Atkins at Granny Letcher's for varying periods from 1885 to about 1898.

The federal census for 1890 (Govt. Ex. A-98, R. VI, 4813) for the household of Granny Letcher shows William Phillips (Jim Mayo), Samuel Smith, Walter Banks, and Fannie Cavell there, the two latter as "roomers," Walter being listed as 12 years of age.

Roy Reynolds, clerk in the Census Bureau at Washington, testified that he had examined the census returns for Leavenworth for 1890 and found no name Thomas Atkins or Tommy Atkins, appearing therein. He identified the schedule of Molly Letcher's household as one of the schedules which he examined and stated that in making up those schedules the practice in 1890 was to list all persons residing in a dwelling, children as well as adults, whether members of the family or not. (R. III, 1708–11; Digest 70.)

If, as claimed, Tommy Atkins was born in 1885, he would have been 5 years of age at the time of this census, and if, as alleged, he lived with Granny Letcher all his life, it is indeed strange that his name does not appear on the schedule.

A brief reference to the testimony of a few of the witnesses for the Page interests will give a hint of the character of much of the evidence with which they sought to support their case.

Mrs. Cobb testified positively to the birth of Thomas Atkins to Minnie at Granny Letcher's on the last day of May or the first day of June, 1885. (R. IV, 3164; Digest 132.) Yet she could not recall the year of the birth of her own first child. (R. IV, 3204; Digest 133.) She also testified that just previous to the birth of her second child, April 20, 1885, Minnie, herself then in a pregnant condition, waited on her for four days but that Minnie was unable to do very much work because of her condition. (R. IV, 3164–65; Digest 132.) Yet the fact is that Minnie was able to work all during the next month—May—at Grodevants, and no one around there knew or suspected her condition. But this woman's evidence is totally discredited by testimony given by T. W. Bell, who testified that she told him at his office in Leavenworth, while depositions were being taken in this case, that Page had gone over her testimony with her and had told her that he wanted her to testify to the birth of this child at Granny Letcher's and to nothing else, and he (Page) would make her comfortable for life. Further, that later at Kansas City she told Bell that she would be willing to testify for him but must first see the big man with the money. (R. VI, 4433–34; Digest 259.) This evidence of Bell is corroborated by Martin, who was present during a part of the time the conversation took place (R. VI, 4442–43; Digest 260), and Blakeney testified that Mrs. Cobb told him in substance that she knew about this boy Thomas Atkins; that he had a birthmark; and that he was taken to the country by Henry Carter. These three witnesses were identified with the Henry Carter interests, and Mrs. Cobb was plainly out for the highest bidder.

Another instance is the testimony of Doctor Carpenter, the physician who attended Minnie at the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin in July, 1886, at Mrs. Wood's. This witness testified that he made a digital examination of Minnie while she was in the first stage of labor and could testify that she had previously had a child, because he remembered encountering in that examination notches or scar tissues, an indication of a previous childbirth. This testimony was given 30 years after the birth, without any record to refresh his recollection. Truly a marvelous memory—more so when it is remembered that Minnie was not a regular patient of his! What is also remarkable is that he took this method of ascertaining the fact instead of the usual, common-sense way of asking the patient. (R. IV, 2997–99; Digest 124.)

The purpose of this evidence was to refute the Government's contention that Robert Lee Peterkin was Minnie's first child. Yet this witness admitted on cross-examination that he had previously told Mr. Allen, a representative of the Creek Nation, that he thought the child was a first child, and also that he had stated to another person that he couldn't without his records tell whether it was or not. (R. IV, 3014–15; Digest 125.) The correspondence between Mr. Allen and Dr. Carpenter and the latter and Mrs. Anderson are interesting sidelights upon the doctor's attitude. (Govt. Ex. 4–14, R. VI, 4852–58.)

It is of importance to note that Minnie never mentioned the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin, in the Kansas City statement or Tulsa deposition, nor until the receivership hearings in March, 1915, although the Page interests knew of this since Hanford had learned of it in August, 1914, from Peterkin in Boston. (R. V, 3799; Digest 178.) The reason seems obvious, since it necessitated a limited period within which Tommy's birth must be established, and that period was materially narrowed by the production by the Government of the Grodevant expense account. The desire of Hanford that Peterkin conceal from others the information he had, which would disclose the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin, is of interest in this connection. (See his letter of November 23, 1914, to Peterkin, Govt. Ex. A-84, R. VI, 4783.)

Another significant matter is that although Sam Nash and Walter Banks, who resided at Granny Letcher's at the time Tommy was alleged to have been born there and while he lived there, had been used as witnesses previously, they were not produced at the trial of this case. These two, certainly, if any witnesses could, might be relied upon to sustain the case of the Page interests. Yet no explanation of their failure to testify is possible other than that they had a change of heart after Sadie James made her confession, or else the Page interests did not dare risk using them.

No person who lived at Granny Letcher's during any of the time Tommy was alleged to be there was produced as a witness by the Page interests. The Government, on the other hand, adduced the testimony of many who had lived at Granny's and none knew of Tommy being there: Hudson, R. III, 1747, Digest 72; Thomas, R. III, 1762, Digest 73; Reed, R. III, 1839, Digest 74; La Vallay, R. III, 1859, Digest 75; Paire, R. III, 1885, Digest 76; Lower, R. III, 1906, Digest 77; Carter, R. III, 1924, Digest, 77; Dale, R. III, 1931, Digest 78; Brown,

R. III, 1997, Digest 80; Tutt, R. III, 2031, Digest 81; Flint R. III, 2075, Digest 84.

We wish to call the court's attention to the fact that considerable of the Government's evidence was of documents and records, the verity of which can not be contested. They were all made long before any question of Thomas Atkins's enrollment arose; some of these are the petition to the Leavenworth city council to abate the nuisance maintained by Lily White at 217 Seneca Street; the federal census records of 1890 showing the inmates of Granny Letcher's house; the Grodevant expense account; the post card sent by Hyde to the Carlisle School reporting the arrival of Minnie at Leavenworth in 1884; the baptismal and burial records relating to Robert Lee Peterkin; and the hospital record showing when Minnie was at the Sisters Hospital.

The treatment accorded Minnie herself is a reproach to the Page interests. It will be recalled that when the lease by McNab, as trustee for Minnie, was executed to the Gem Oil Co., Hanford received the stipulated condition of $10,000 in the form of two checks of $5,000 each. He cashed one, retaining $3,000 for "services and expenses" and gave the remaining $2,000 to McNab. The second check was made payable July 30, 1914, for the reason that Page wanted to be satisfied of Minnie's identity before she was paid. (R. V, 3877; Digest 185.) Apparently, the first $5,000 to Hanford and McNab had no strings on it. Now, Long and Hanford went to Seattle immediately upon the execution of the lease, procured a statement from Minnie, and no question seemed to remain as to her identity; she testified at Sapulpa, gave her Kansas City statement, but still the money was withheld. When testimony was being taken in Leavenworth and the Page interests were endeavoring to establish that Thomas was a negro, Minnie became so upset that her testimony could not be taken. She went to a hospital and it was then that payment was made to her, and she consented to give her deposition at Tulsa. (R. V, 3779; Digest 176.)

It is plain that the purpose was to withhold the money from Minnie until she testified as Page wanted and she was paid only when she was so disgusted with the proceedings that it was feared she would desert them. The attitude of Page is evidenced by the communication of Rice, his attorney, to Hanford, setting forth why the second draft was not paid. (R. V, 3746; Digest 174.)

The Nancy Atkins claim.

Nancy's claim is that she is the mother of Thomas Atkins, who was born to her at Wagoner, Okla., about 1889 or 1890. The Government proved by three witnesses who were present that the child was a girl and was born dead—one said it died the same day. (Elnora Mayshack, R. III, 2163, Digest 89; Eliza Sterling, R. III, 2179, Digest 90; Angeline Moody, R. III, 2190, Digest 91. Henry Anderson saw it being buried, R. III, 2195–97; Digest 91.)

A number of witnesses were produced who testified to statements made to them by Nancy that she had had a child born dead. (Dora Smith, R. III, 2209–10, Digest 92; Henry Kidd, R. III, 2220–21, Digest 93; Lula Smith, R. III, 2224, Digest 93; Martha Hardridge, R. III, R. 2233–34, Digest 93; Patsy Jenkins, R. III, 2235–36, Digest 94.)

Micco Harjo, the legal guardian of Nancy, testified that Nancy first told him that the child was a girl, but after she was approached by one Hammett, who wanted a lease upon the Thomas Atkins allotment, she declared it was a boy. (R. III, 2167–71; Digest 90.)

Nancy gave testimony February 9, 1914, in the case of Nancy Atkins, an incompetent, et al. v. H. U. Bartlett et al., in the District Court of Creek County, Okla. Then she stated that she had had but one child born to her, a girl born dead, at Wagoner, Okla.; that she never had a child around with her at Wagoner. (R. III, 2162–63, Digest 88.)

On behalf of Nancy, testimony was offered to show that a child, she declared to be her boy, named Tommy, often accompanied her around Wagoner; but the Government produced witnesses who lived in Wagoner and remembered no such boy accompanying her; nor did they know of any other than a Thomas Atkins, the son of Dick Atkins, who was in town frequently with his father.

See the testimony of the witnesses just referred to, and also: Sarah Coats, R. III, 2241–43, Digest 94;

Anderson Childers, R. VI, 4291–93, Digest 220; T. Howard Morton, R. VI, 4299–4300, Digest 105; Jim Childers, R. VI, 4301–06, Digest 105.

The several conflicting statements of Nancy are as follows:

In a deposition given in the office of attorneys McDougal & Lytle in Sapulpa, she stated that she had a girl child born to her at Wagoner, Okla.; that this was her only child and it was born dead (R. IV, 2785); that she so told Harjo, Hammett, and Robinson, who wanted her to swear that the child was a boy; that was the first time she had ever heard of Thomas Atkins. (R. IV, 2787; Digest 247.) Harjo was then endeavoring to lease the Thomas Atkins allotment. (R. IV, 2790; Digest 248.) At this deposition she was examined by her own attorney and denied that she had told Mr. White, who was negotiating for a lease, that Thomas Atkins was her child and lived to be 10 or 12 years old. (R. IV, 2792.)

Nancy was put on the stand at Sapulpa and there, to the surprise of counsel calling her as a witness, testified that she gave birth to a child "supposed to be a boy," who lived to be 10 years old. She was then cross-examined and admitted swearing as she did in the deposition at McDougal & Lytle's, explaining it by saying she had been told by Harjo there was "big money in it" for her and that Harjo had induced her to deny the child being a boy (R. IV, 2775–77; Digest 247); that she had been told that she would go to the penitentiary if she didn't change her testimony (R. IV, 2780; Digest 247); and that Betty Mann had told her she would get "big money" if she denied the child (R. IV, 2782; Digest 247).

In her testimony at the trial in the case at bar she sticks to the story that the child was a boy and died in 1900, and reiterates that she was promised money to deny the child, now fixing the sum she was to receive at $2,000, and was threatened with the penitentiary (R. IV, 2698–2702; Digest 241); she admits that after the deposition at McDougal & Lytle's office, and before testifying at Sapulpa, she made a statement at Coffeyville, Kans., similar to that given at Sapulpa in McDougal & Lytle's office (R. IV, 2707; Digest 242).

It is apparent that Nancy's testimony that Thomas Atkins was her son is worthy of no credence and her interest in maintaining that arose when she saw a chance to make some money. From her own statement her change of testimony appears to be due to the fact that she didn't get the money promised her for her first testimony. (R. IV, 2708; Digest 241). Her first statements, made long before the Thomas Atkins allotment was thought to be valuable, to her associates at Wagoner, were given under no compulsion but freely and voluntarily.

We believe it was well established that as against the Government Nancy's claim was without merit.

Error is assigned by Nancy Atkins to the ruling of the District Court rejecting proferred evidence to the effect that it was the general reputation in Wagoner that the child, said to be Thomas Atkins, seen with Nancy was her son. (R. III, 2444; assignment VII, R. VI, 5021.)

This ruling seems amply supported by the precedents in the federal courts. Blackburn v. Crawfords, 3 Wall. 175, 187; Fulkerson v. Holmes, 117 U. S. 389, 397; Flora v. Anderson, 75 Fed. 217, 233, 234; Northern Pac. Ry. Co. v. King, 181 Fed. 913, 914.

In any event, we do not think the evidence if admitted would have changed the result.

CONCLUSION.

The judgment in No. 253 should be reversed and a decree for the United States ordered.

The judgment in No. 254 should be affirmed.

APPEALS FROM THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE EIGHTH CIRCUIT.

APPENDIX TO BRIEF FOR THE UNITED STATES.

DIGEST OF EVIDENCE.

RELATIVE TO DAWES COMMISSION.

The testimony of former Commissioner Bixby, E. Hastain, P. B. Hopkins, John G. Leiber was as to the practice of the Dawes Commission in enrolling Creek citizens. These enrollments had not progressed as rapidly as was hoped; many Creeks were reluctant to accept allotments. When the act of March 1, 1901, the original Creek agreement, was under consideration on the question of ratification by the Creek council, the Dawes Commission opened a temporary office at Okmulgee, where council was in session, to carry on a drive for enrollments. On the last few days before the treaty was ratified on May 25, 1901, about 500 names were enrolled per day.

Prior thereto the practice of the commission had been to require personal appearance of the person desiring enrollment, if adults, or if minor or incapable of enrolling himself, some member of his family.

Special efforts were made by commission to get members of the tribe and heads of families to appear before it, and the rule requiring personal appearance was lifted a few days before May 25, 1901, the ratification of the first Creek agreement. The reason for this change was the opinion held by some that those who were not enrolled when agreement was ratified would be cut off from enrollment.

The commission, during those last few days, adopted this plan: They took the 1890 and 1895 rolls and put upon cards the names of those who had not been enrolled; they did not require the personal appearance of the enrollee or any member of his family; in so far as they could, they secured information about these names from some chief of the warriors, town king, or member of the tribe; possibly they took the town roll to the town king and enrolled all names upon the tribal roll unless he had information that they were not entitled to enrollment, in which case they did not put their names on the card—otherwise they did.

The Thomas Atkins enrollment card, Govt. Ex A, was made up from 1895 tribal pay roll. Evidently no information was received from the 1890 roll concerning Thomas Atkins, because there would have been a notation on card to that effect, and further because age is given as ten years, and 1890 roll would not have contained name if he was ten years old in 1895.

One important point to which inquiry was directed was to ascertain whether the person to be enrolled was living on April 1, 1899.

There was a card called a completed card and one called an uncompleted card; no card was completed until they were satisfied that enrollee was alive on April 1, 1899; had age and sex, parentage and everything that decided whether he should be enrolled.

The incomplete card required further investigation. (R. 182–213, 237–253, 253–265, 266–280.)

J. C. KENNEDY:

Formerly chief clerk of land office division in office of Superintendent of Five Civilized Tribes; that included the enrollment division; in 1912 the practice was not to put on certified copies of census cards pencil notations appearing on the originals; in 1914 practice was changed so that pencil notations appearing on originals were put on copies; he had something to do in making order for that change. (R. 4465–66.)

Cross-examination:

Pencil notation was put on a card when matter was pending and undisposed of; when final action taken, notation thereof in ink was made on card. (R. 4466.)

Edward Merrick:

Law clerk in office of Supt. Five Civilized Tribes; connected with Indian Service at Muskogee since 1901. In April, 1901, started work in Creek enrollment division; remembers Creek Council meeting at Okmulgee to consider ratification of original Creek agreement, act of March 1, 1901; went to Okmulgee shortly after May 1st; Commissioner Bixby, Hopkins, Beaver, Leiber, Hastain, and witness worked on enrollment Creek citizens; council had been in session more than two weeks before treaty ratified on May 25, 1901; went over to Okmulgee in endeavor to ascertain whether names on rolls unaccounted for were entitled to enrollment in order to complete Creek enrollment. These unaccounted names referred to were names on tribal rolls for which no application for enrollment had been made. Had 1890 and 1895 tribal rolls, approximately 1,500 or 2,000 names unaccounted for.

Witness states he made original census card of Thomas Atkins on May 23, 1901; has made investigation and is unable to find any record in office prior to May 23, 1901, relating to that record other than the tribal roll; there was no old census card made by field parties; name Thomas Atkins was one of the unaccounted for names; every name on 1895 roll which was unaccounted for there at Okmulgee was listed on a card—this because it was thought by some that unless names were enrolled before ratification they could not be enrolled; for that reason Commissioner Bixby decided that every unaccounted for name, whether any person appeared on behalf of that person or not, should be listed on a card; accordingly, a great many cards were made during the last 3 or 4 days that contained only the name and tribal enrollment. A great many of the unaccounted for ones were completed over there because town kings and warriors and other persons there gave them other information. It was the intention to list for enrollment either on a completed card or uncompleted card the name of every unaccounted for citizen appearing on the tribal rolls, and that was done.

No independent recollection as to information received relative Thomas Atkins; the tribal roll was the basis of placing these names on roll unless commission was advised that persons represented thereby had died prior to April 1, 1899; the name was listed because it appeared on the tribal roll; about 500 to 600 names per day were listed for enrollment in the last three days before treaty was ratified. There was never a time when there were so many names listed as in those three days except prior to March 4, 1907, when they had another rush by reason of the act of 1906 closing the roll on March 4, 1907. (R. 3451–57.)

Cross-examination:

Made reference to authentic tribal roll whenever there was one; 1895 pay roll contained more information than authentic roll; the council acted upon the authentic roll; pay roll copied from that; the only information in reference to Thomas Atkins that was procured from either 1895 pay roll or the 1895 authenticated roll was notation under tribal enrollment (R. 3467). Other information on card must have been secured from what some one told him or member of commission, if not procured from Minnie Atkins' census card (R. 3468); information relative age, degree of blood and parentage must have come from some other source beside the 1895 rolls (R. 3469). After enrollment completed, in all cases where cards uncompleted, investigation was made by field parties; when town kings or prominent Creek citizens would come into office, they would be asked about different persons (R. 3469–70). The cards that the field parties took out were cards not completed as to descriptive data, parentage, and age; that wouldn't include the Atkins card; doesn't think anything ever done with Atkins card for several years after May, 1901 (R. 3475).

Irwin Donovan:

Was a law clerk in the Creek enrollment division of the Dawes Commission from September, 1904, to January, 1905; testifies as to practice obtaining when letters issued to withhold patent in any allotment case. In case such as Thomas Atkins, the letter directing withholding patent would be prepared in enrollment division, directed to Creek land office, and notation thereof with reason for action or reference to letter would be on the census card. (R. 4451–52.)

Government offers in evidence "hold up" record; certified copy of letter written and entries made on Dawes Commission records relating to holding up of patents on Thomas Atkins' allotment; offer rejected. (R. 4452–53.)

There is received in evidence defendant's Exhibit B–14, certified copy of census card of Thomas Atkins. (R. 4948–54.)

Also received in evidence Commissioner Needle's letter of May 9, 1905, to E. B. Miller, directing withholding of patents on Atkins' allotment (R. 4453.) Govt. A–23. (R. 4664.)

SAMUEL W. BROWN:

Creek citizen of Euchee Band; town king of Euchee; was such in 1895; there was a payment made to members of Creek Tribe in 1890 and in 1895; was clerk at convention which made up 1890 roll of Euchee Town; in 1890 Minnie Atkins was out of the Territory, Nancy was in Territory; some time at Muskogee, and also at Wagoner, which are in eastern part of Creek Nation; witness was living on Snake Creek, in western part of Creek Nation; convention held on square grounds on Snake Creek, purpose of it to take census to make up roll for payments; recalls name of Minnie or Mammie Atkins and that of Nancy Atkins being called up there; their names were placed upon 1890 roll; one of the neighbors of Thomas Holden, brother-in-law of Minnie, said that Holden knew something about Minnie having children. Thomas Holden stated that Minnie had two children, but he didn't know their names; witness said it wouldn't do to leave them out if they are not in the country and it would be better to enroll them, and if council will not accept they would have to cancel them; didn't know names of children; the words Thomas and Mary were not written above the words two children there at that convention; council ratified the roll but the words Thomas and Mary were not thereon then; doesn't know when those words got on 1890 roll.

Was town king of Euchee in 1895; held a meeting to consider census for 1895 roll; after that meeting witness had to gather names of rest of the people and put them on the census.

Minnie, Nancy, and Jim Atkins names were placed on 1895 roll by witness, who was given those names by John Davis, Minnie's uncle; took the list Davis gave him and put it down in a little memorandum book (Govt. Ex. A-32, R. 4707); Davis gave him names of Ed Schrimsher, Minnie Atkins, Charlie, Susan, Thomas, Nancy and Mary.

Didn't have much conversation with Davis that day—just asked him if he knew the remnants of the Atkins family and he said he did and gave witness the list; didn't say anything about the kinship existing between these different ones and witness did not question him.

Didn't know the children in the list, knew Ed, Minnie, and Nancy; put these names given by Davis on 1895 roll; this after convention; roll was not thereafter taken up in convention.

Roll was taken to Creek Council, which ratified it; at time of ratification committee of council was appointed to consider census rolls of each town; committee asked town king and warriors about rolls; doesn't know that Atkins family and their names on it were discussed before the committee because "we never had much trouble with our rolls—always tried to get it right and we stated that is all we could get up and they accepted it."

Committee reported to council and council, if it found the rolls correct, approved them.

Recalls payment made to Minnie—she received for four—witness collected money due Schrimsher and Nancy Atkins.

Knew personally all the old members of Euchee Town, but didn't know some of the young ones; didn't know any Euchee named Thomas Atkins except Minnie's father; never knew or saw a boy named Thomas Atkins who claimed to be Minnie's child;

Clerks of Dawes Commission at Okmulgee when Creek agreement was ratified asked him about unaccounted-for members of Euchee Town; doesn't recall giving any information about Thomas Atkins.

When Minnie drew money she didn't say those she drew for were her children, witness assumed that they were. (R. 214–222.)

Govt. Ex. A-32 (R. 4707) received in evidence; being page 76 of memorandum book of Sam W. Brown, in which he listed names of Minnie Atkins and others. (R. 4558.)

NOAH G. GREGORY:

Creek Citizen, Euchee Town; was town king of Euchee in 1890, recalls conversation in connection with making 1890 roll for Euchee Town; was in Okmulgee in May, 1901, just before ratification of original Creek agreement; called there by Dawes Commission to help enroll names and to correct the rolls he had; went over Euchee roll with Hopkins; remembers name of Minnie Atkins on 1895 roll; when they came to her name witness said that the last he had heard of her she was in Colorado, didn't know whether she was living, had tried to find out but hadn't been able to locate her; knew Minnie had two children living with Holden; didn't know Minnie personally then; Nancy was not present at Okmulgee during enrollment period in May, 1901; Holden was not there or any member of Minnie's immediate family; never knew any member of Euchee Town named Thomas Atkins. (R. 232-237.)

LARRY BROWN:

Euchee Tribe Indian; in 1901 was a warrior of Euchee Town (an officer); other officers in 1901—Chicken Dixon and George Clinton—perhaps Sam Brown. Dawes Commission had an office in Okmulgee at time of council meeting called to ratify Creek agreement; didn't know Minnie Atkins; never knew of her; nor of Nancy; doesn't mean to say Minnie never lived there nor Tommie, doesn't know much about Euchees in Sam Brown's neighborhood. (R. 1712–13.)

CHICKEN:

Member Euchee Band of Creek Indians; was officer (warrior) of Euchee Town in 1901; talked with members or clerks of Dawes Commission at Okmulgee relative members of his town and their enrollment in May, 1901, at time of Council meeting which was considering ratification of Creek agreement; he told Dawes Commission Sam Brown made up the roll; doesn't recall if they (clerks) asked about particular persons who were members of his town; doesn't know Minnie, Nancy or Lee Atkins; he didn't put any name on roll; lives in Polecat division of Euchee Town. (R. 1714–16.)

GEORGE CLINTON:

Substantially same as that of Chicken, except says no one of Dawes Commission talked with him or any one else (warriors) from Euchee; doesn't know Minnie, Nancy, Lee Atkins. (R. 1716–20.)

The following introduced by Minnie Atkins relative to the Dawes Commission:

EDWARD C. FUNK:

Clerk in office of Superintendent Five Civilized Tribes; identifies card given him as Creek census card of Thomas Atkins; put notation on card "E. B. Miller, chief clerk land office, letter of May 9, 1905, from Commissioner to the Five Civilized Tribes directing action to be suspended the matter of issuing deed to heirs of No. 1"; put top notation there about two years ago; that is "E. B. Miller, chief clerk"; doesn't know who put the other notation. According to practice the other part of the notation quoted must have been put on card soon after May 9, 1905 (the receipt of letter); practice for awhile was to certify cards without pencil notations, then that was changed so as to have all notations on copy. (R. 3653–57.)

J. C. KENNEDY:

Clerk in office Superintendent Five Civilized Tribes; doesn't recognize handwriting of notation on Thomas Atkins census card relative letter of May 9, 1905, etc. (R. 3658–59.)

W. H. ANGEL:

Identifies Government Ex. A–3, certified copy of pages of letterpress copy book (letter), transmitting Creek roll for approval by Secretary of the Interior. (R. 3660.)

D. N. HODGE:

Creek Indian; was a member of house of kings at one time and of house of warriors at another; was present at the making up of 1895 roll; when lists of towns were brought in they were referred to a committee and the council acted upon the committee's report; kings and warriors in council exercised very great care in fixing up the roll; Dawes Commission consulted people about making up its roll—consulted kings and warriors. (R. 3663–65.)

THOMAS HUMPHREY:

Shown defendant's Ex. B–25 (R. 4958), certified copy of Thomas Atkins' census card, made April 2, 1912; copy contains every notation that was on card when witness certified to it (R. 4458–59).

Cross-examination:

Did not himself make certified copy, merely certified it upon O. K. of some other employe; usual practice was to put in ink on certified copies notations appearing in pencil on original; remembers case called to his attention by Mr. German where certified copy did not have the lead pencil notations which appeared on the original, and that thereupon order was issued to thereafter put on copy not only typewritten and ink work on card, but also lead-pencil notations appearing on the original. (R. 4459–60.)

ROBERT L. BAUGH:

Worked in the land office of Dawes Commission October 19, 1913; shown census card and states that notation in pencil thereon is in his handwriting; must have put notation on between October, 1913, and 1915, when he quit; thinks Kennedy told him to put notation on card. (R. 4553–54.)

TAMS BIXBY:

While he was at Okmulgee enrolling Creek citizens, the Creek attorney was there; he frequently appeared before commission and had an opportunity to appear whenever he desired, representing the Creek Nation. (R. 4645.)

Cross-examination:

Tribal attorney and committeemen were in and out of the office now and then, and when they desired to take up cases with witness they did so; couldn't say that they examined every enrollment case, every card; Creek attorney did not stay with witness and go over these cards. (R. 4647.)

GOVERNMENT'S EVIDENCE RELATIVE TO CLAIM OF MINNIE ATKINS.

Alice M. Robertson:

Neighbor to Minnie's father and mother; knew Minnie; taught her at mission school and at Carlisle in 1881, 1882; saw her in 1895 at Muskogee; Minnie had two children, by Peterkin; next saw her at Fort Lawton, Wash., in July, 1914, where witness went at instigation of Gypsy Oil Co. to identify her as same Minnie; was not allowed to talk to her about Thomas because of objection by Mr. Hanford, attorney. (R. 290–300.)

Records at Carlisle Indian School show Minnie admitted there January 2, 1881, and left July 8, 1884. (Several short periods between those dates she was farmed out for a few months to different persons. Records there show Minnie 15 years old. (R. 328–340.)

Mrs. Laura J. Hyde:

Minnie came to them as servant in July, 1884; estimated her to be about 18 to 20. Had no men associates that Mrs. Hyde knew of. No indications of pregnancy; never suspected Minnie of anything of the kind; always thought Minnie a virtuous girl; never before this case came up did she hear of Minnie's association with negroes. Worked for Mrs. Hyde about 2 or 3 or 4 or 5 months; Minnie left suddenly, possibly on account of a soldier; heard of Minnie having children; heard she was an unnatural mother, did not love the child, never heard of her leaving child with negroes to be cared for. (R. 341–347.)

CLAUDIUS A. HAMILTON:

Knew Minnie when she was working for Hyde in 1884; Minnie came to see his wife, who told witness Minnie was a Carlisle girl. Minnie went from Hyde's to Fort Leavenworth. Witness saw her frequently when she was working at Fort; Minnie would come to his house. Noticed Minnie in family way when she was working at Fort; told her not to come to his house any more; later came with Peterkin, whom Minnie introduced as her husband; her condition had then passed away. That time only time witness saw Minnie in condition of pregnancy. Also knew Minnie at Fort Logan, Colo.; she was living with Peterkin; had had three children, two boys called the Harrison boys and Mabel Peterkin, latter died when about two years of age. (R. 347–359.)

MARY SPAIN HAMILTON:

Wife of Claudius Hamilton; before her marriage, which occurred in 1883, she was superintendent of laundry at Carlisle School; there became acquainted with Minnie. After her marriage lived in Leavenworth; Minnie called upon her there in 1884. When Minnie was working for Hyde saw her two or three times. From Hyde's Minnie went to Ft. Leavenworth; saw her often after she went to Fort; about once a month Minnie would come to witness's house. While at Hyde's Minnie showed no signs of pregnancy, nor did she at Carlisle, when witness saw her there. Quite awhile after Minnie went to the Fort witness noticed signs of that condition; it was within two years after she went to the Fort. Her husband quarreled with her about Minnie coming there, and she told Minnie of it and latter stopped coming to her house; after a while, she came with Peterkin, whom Minnie introduced as her husband. Condition had disappeared; saw Minnie quite often after that; once a month, probably more. Saw Minnie later at Ft. Logan, Colo. Witness lived at Ft. Logan six or seven years. Minnie lived at Ft. Logan 3 or 4 years. Peterkin left her and Minnie lived with Harrison, a butcher, at Logan Town, near Fort. Minnie had a baby at Fort by Peterkin—Mabel; it died there; was 8 or 9 months old. Minnie had two boys, the Harrisons, born after Mabel. Witness saw Minnie often after birth of the boys. Minnie told witness she was going away from Logan but didn't say where. Minnie while in Leavenworth showed signs of pregnancy only the one time referred to.

In June, 1914, Sadie James came to see her while she was living in Denver.

Cross-examination:

First saw Minnie in Leavenworth in 1884; she noticed Minnie's condition some time before her husband did; suspected it before it began to show; didn't say anything to Minnie about it; knew Peterkin for about a year after Minnie first brought him; she then introduced him as her beau, later as her husband, probably the second time. (R. 359–382.)

Frank J. Grodevant:

Lived with brother, Herb Grodevant, at Ft. Leavenworth beginning Feb., 1884, and until Nov., 1887: Knew Minnie; she was employed at brother's house as domestic; saw her every week, probably several times a week. Minnie was employed in 1885; he was there when she came and after she left. Minnie shown by brother's expense records to have been employed Oct., 1884, until Sept. 15, 1885. (Not admitted that records show continuous employment that period.) Minnie did not give birth to child while employed there; nor did she show any signs of pregnancy; never saw anything out of the way in her conduct; later Minnie worked for Stafford, an army officer at Leavenworth; witness saw Minnie at Ft. Logan after she went there in Nov., 1887; when he first saw her at Logan she was wheeling a baby. (R. 388–406.)

Margaret Morton:

Living at Ft. Leavenworth in 1884, 1885, 1886; knew Minnie; Minnie worked for Lt. Stafford and Grodevant. Stafford's the last place she worked; left there and rented rooms at witness's mother's house, living then with Peterkin, her husband. Minnie gave birth to a boy there the latter part of July, 1886—July 31—child christened Robert Lee; lived four or six weeks, perhaps longer; Minnie lived at mother's house a month or two after death of child, then went to Hamilton's; Minnie attended funeral of child; this was about her first time out after the child was born. Child born at 815 or 816 N. 8th St., home of mother of witness; not positive that Minnie went to Hamilton's after leaving mother's house; she was back there several times after she left "our" place; knew Minnie worked in Leavenworth at Hamilton's or elsewhere before leaving for Colorado; thinks she worked for family named Hirshfield. (R. 406–419.)

CHARLES PETERKIN:

Soldier at Ft. Leavenworth in 1885. First saw Minnie in the spring of 1885 at that place; met her in January, 1886; she lived with a soldier by name of Oliver; soon after he became acquainted with her (in 1886) he discovered she was in a family way, about 3 or 4 months along; saw her 5 or 6 times a week from time he first saw her in 1885 until he commenced living with her in 1886; when he first saw her in 1885 her appearance was as a woman not in family way; she retained that appearance up to time he met her January 1, 1886; commenced living with her second day after Oliver's discharge (January, 1886); stayed with Minnie at her room at the Stafford's; continued to live with Minnie until fall of 1889; left her at Leavenworth in fall of 1887; she joined him at Ft. Logan in spring of 1888 (March). From the time he first saw Minnie in 1885 until birth of Mabel Peterkin at Ft. Logan, Minnie had one child, born at Leavenworth in summer of 1886 (July or August) at home of Mrs. Woods (mother of Margaret Morton); lived less than a month. Never married to Minnie; never talked with Minnie as to who was father of this child born at Woods'. "It was not necessary." Doesn't think Minnie associated with any man other than Oliver from time witness saw her in 1885 until he commenced living with her; not probable that she was pregnant more than the one time during period 1885 to birth of child at Woods'. She did not give birth to any child from time he first knew her in 1885 until birth of Mabel Peterkin at Ft. Logan, other than that born at Mrs. Woods'; the child born at Mrs. Woods' was Minnie's first child. (States this on general experience with women.) Next child born in summer of 1888 (Mabel Peterkin); had two other children after he left Ft. Logan. After leaving Logan, sent Minnie $45.00 to pay her fare to Ft. Clark, Texas; she didn't come to him there; went from Ft. Logan to Clark in fall of 1889. Minnie told him she first worked in Leavenworth for Hyde, then to Grodevant's; Minnie did not associate with negroes any of the time he knew her; she was not a "public character." Minnie lived with one man after witness left her, Burke; Mabel Peterkin is his daughter; Minnie didn't associate with any other man than these three during those years; she was not a drinking woman; discovered Minnie was in family way about the first month after he began living with her; never heard of Granny Letcher, nor of Minnie visiting or staying at her house nor of Minnie visiting at any negro's house at Leavenworth. (R. 419–440.)

John C. Hesse:

Chief of Division, Adj. Gen's office, Washington, D. C. Produced record of William D. Oliver, showing his discharge at Leavenworth December 18, 1885. (R. 441–442.)

Admitted that Patrick Burke, who Peterkin testified as consorting with Minnie, is dead. Oliver also shown to be dead. (R. 442–443.)

Cornelia G. Stafford:

Wife of Major Stafford. Was at Ft. Leavenworth in 1885; employed Minnie when she went to housekeeping in Sept., 1885; Minnie worked for her until June following (1886) when she discharged her because of her condition, which was very apparent; never knew of her associating with negroes: none at the post. (R. 444–450.) When Minnie first employed her condition good; no appearance of recent illnes, strong and robust.

John Stafford (major, retired):

Minnie worked for him from Sept., 1885, for about 6 or 8 months; when employed showed no signs of recent illness; Mrs. Stafford discharged Minnie because of her condition. (R. 450–462.)

Mary Katherine Allen:

Daughter of Margaret Woods. Was at mother's house in August, 1886; Minnie was there with baby about four days old; baby fully developed; christened

Robert Lee Peterkin; died about two weeks later; when witness first saw baby it was in bed with the mother, who was recovering from illness due to childbirth; child appeared to be a nine-months child. (R. 462–472.)

BERNARD STEPHEN KELLEY (priest):

Identified baptismal records showing baptism of Robert Lee Peterkin on August 15, 1886, son of Charles Peterkin and Mary Atkins, born July 31, 1886. (R. 473–476.)

J. J. O'CONNELL:

Identified record of sale as undertaker of casket to Charles Peterkin Aug. 16, 1886, for Robert Lee Peterkin, age about four weeks; buried Mt. Muncie Cemetery. (R. 476–478.)

A. L. SCHOTT:

Mabel Peterkin born there; died about 1889, about a year old; Minnie had two boys born quite a while after Mabel; was living with Peterkin; heard that she lived later with Harrison, the butcher; the children were Harrison's. (R. 506–509.)

Sadie James:

First met Minnie in July, 1884, at Leavenworth; Minnie came there in 1884 and left about fall of 1887 or spring of 1888; didn't know of her having any children at Leavenworth; next saw Minnie in 1895 in Kansas City, Mo., at old Union Station; she had two children, Harvey and Charlie Harrison, Harvey about 1½ years, other about 3 years old; took Minnie to her house where she stayed until afternoon when she and children left; said she came from Colo. and was going to Indian Territory to draw her money; saw her in 1896; then in June, 1914, at Ft. Lawton, Seattle; knew def. H. U. Bartlett; never knew child or man named Thomas Atkins, related to Minnie; was engaged by H. U. Bartlett to endeavor to find Thomas Atkins when she was at Leavenworth in March, 1914; was engaged by Bartlett through Bettie Mann (Sadie Mann), sometimes known as Bettie Rasberry; Bettie told her there was trouble about deed Harjo and she (Bettie) got for Bartlett and that "we have got to find the Thomas Atkins to make the deed good. I have been working on the case three years and I don't believe there ever was a Thomas Atkins. "All you (Sadie) got to do is to tell them you know Minnie and that you knew when the child was born" (R. 515). "I, Sadie, said Whoever said that Minnie had a son here by the name of Thomas Atkins." That she (Minnie) had no child here by the name of Thomas Atkins. She (Bettie) said, "I said so, myself." Bettie said she would wire Bartlett and have him in Kansas City to-morrow and for witness to tell him that she knew a child was born; witness suggested they see a negro lawyer, Dennis Jones; she and he had just pulled off a deal; went to Dennis'; going down there witness framed to have Thomas Atkins (R. 516). Saw Jones and explained proposition. "I want a boy started [———] by the name of Thomas Atkins, born in 1885; said, can you do it? He said "I can get lawyers, doctors, and bankers in Leavenworth, Kansas., to swear that hell's an icebox" (R. 517). That was between 2:30 or 3 p. m.; then went with Bettie to a sporting house, where they met Rube Smith, whom Sadie introduced to Bettie as a partner of Jones. Smith was a colored man. Went at 6 p. m. to Jones' office—he and Rube Smith were there (conversation at R. 520); agreed then that they would say baby born at Granny Letcher's house in 1885, Rube Smith to be the father. Dennis Jones suggested about baby born at Letcher's (R. 521). Rube said he would be the father; we said we would get a midwife; Dennis said can't get any colored women, they were all too afraid of getting arrested; we thought we could get Mary Smith, a white woman, and Rube said he could get her to swear that she saw the baby when it was two days old; talked over doctor and decided to "lay it on Dr. McCormick, because he is dead." Witness said when she got to see Bartlett and got in the job and got this boy worked up "we will switch it over on the Gypsy (Oil Co.) because I don't think this man has got as much money as the Gypsy" (R. 521). Next day met Bettie and Bartlett, and witness told Bartlett she knew Minnie and that she had a child named Thomas Atkins, raised by Granny Letcher, and had last seen him when he was 5 years old; agreed to try to find Thomas for Bartlett; went back to Jones' office, found him and Smith there (R. 523); told them of meeting Bartlett and that all they had to do was to start working; Dennis said we will hunt up a boy of Indian color and bring him to Leavenworth, show him around and get witnesses to swear they remember when he was born. Went to see Bettie Mann at Kansas City; met a boy whom two detectives said was Thomas Atkins (R. 526); witness said he could not be Minnie's because too old; boy introduced to Bartlett; he was taken to Oklahoma to go before Dawes Commission; Bartlett came to see witness at Tulsa and she suggested a hunt for Minnie; he agreed; witness went back to Leavenworth, told Jones, and advised him and Rube to keep talking up about baby; Jones said that he had got the talk started about Tommy Atkins and this Indian woman, among several that he knew, were all right; later received a written contract with Bartlett employing her to find Minnie, she to receive $1,000 and Bettie same (R. 545); secured picture of Minnie and showed it to Jones and Smith. Tells about forgery of deed to Bartlett (R. 552); details steps of search for Minnie, resulting in finding her at Ft. Lawton, near Seattle, in early days of June, 1914; Minnie recognized her. Sadie told her she was a Government officer hunting people to enroll. Asked Minnie about Thomas Atkins. She said "Thomas Atkins was my father. He had been dead 17 years when she drew that money." Witness asked "Where is Alice?" Minnie replied, "Sadie, don't ask, she has been dead too long and [I] don't want to know." Minnie said she had been hiding from the Government for 19 years account of crime she committed in drawing that money. Witness told she was working for Bartlett; also that Thomas' allotment was very valuable and that all she had to do if questioned by Government officers was to say she had a child Thomas; that Bartlett would give her $2,000 for a deed to the land. Minnie asked, "Who is dead in Leavenworth, that if I say I had a child that was born in 1885, that I can say I gave it to?" Sadie said Granny Letcher. Minnie agreed and procured a piece of paper and marked down the year 1885. Sadie then told Minnie that she had already started this story in Leavenworth (R. 559, 560).

Witness at request of Minnie told her husband (Folk) of Minnie's having children (R. 563); Minnie told her that Charlie, her son, was Peterkin's and Harvey was Harrison's; later talked over with Minnie in presence of her husband the frame-up about the baby at Granny Letcher's (conversation, R. 566). See R. 568 for understanding that Minnie was to execute deed for land and swear to existence of Thomas Atkins. Bartlett told witness and Bettie if they found Minnie to tell her he would pay $5,000 for the land, and if she knew where the boy was would pay $5,000 for boy. Bettie and witness had planned to buy from Minnie for $2,000 and to beat Bartlett out of $3,000 (R. 569). Sadie relates how she waited next day for arrival of Bartlett and finally upon his nonarrival she began to suspect Bettie and made a trip to the fort to see Minnie; was followed by two men; saw Minnie, who told her a man had been there and left paper to be signed; found Capt. McNab and Mr. Hanford there; Capt. McNab asked witness if she knew Long, Page, and Josey (Long represented Page); said they had wired Supt. Dana Kelsey about Long. Saw paper, read a few lines of it; it said something about Minnie being the mother of Thomas Atkins, born in Leavenworth 1885, died in 1899; told Capt. not to have Minnie sign; told him baby died when 6 months old; Long said that was too early and "we would have to fix it." Minnie was to leave with Long for Spokane; witness told Capt. not to have Minnie sign papers or go with Long; went back to Bettie's and Long came in; he offered witness and Bettie $3,000 to steal Minnie and take her back to Oklahoma; witness refused, and stated she was going to keep Minnie there until Bartlett's arrival. (She herself telegraphed for Bartlett.) Bettie said she wired Long because Bartlett offered only $1,000 apiece for finding Minnie; that Long was working for Page, who had lots of money.

Next day returned to Minnie and latter told witness she had signed over business to McNab; that "they" were going to have a white case—no negroes in it; wanted Minnie to say she had baby born in the hospital and that she gave him away when two years old. (R. 578.) Next day, found Minnie's house closed up; was told by neighbor Minnie was at McNab's; went to latter's house, asked for him, was told he was not there; found telegram in Bettie's room that Bartlett was arriving next day; met him, went to McNab's with him; Minnie came in; acknowledged she was Minnie; asked if she was mother of Thomas Atkins; McNab answered "yes, but she hasn't seen him since he was two years old" (R. 581); returned to Denver with Bartlett and Bettie. Had agreed with Minnie that latter would swear to existence of Thomas Atkins; witness to get a picture from Mrs. Hamilton (R. 586); had told Bartlett Thomas Atkins was in Los Angeles, California; went to Hamilton, got picture of friend of Mrs. Hamilton's son; friend worked on railroad; agreed to take Mrs. H. to Los Angeles.

Going back to time of frame-up with Dennis Jones, Sadie relates talks with number of negroes in Leavenworth whom she endeavored to get to agree to swear remembering Minnie as having child at Granny Letcher's. All declined to do so (R. 589–591); relates (R. 592–593) conversation with Father Shorty, supt. of orphan asylum (was endeavoring to get boy suitable to pass off as Thomas Atkins).

Witness tells of visit to Dennis Jones, where she related the result of her trip and talked over possibility of getting some one to pass as Thomas; agreed that Sadie would try to find some one in West for that purpose, and if Dennis Jones found some one better for the purpose to wire her; next day they received letter from Bartlett with deed for Thomas to sign and expense money to Los Angeles. (R. 595.) Went to Los Angeles, then to 'Frisco, Seattle, and Portland; found Bartlett at Portland; had interview with him and two detectives; detectives took picture obtained from Mrs. Hamilton and later ran down original, a railroad conductor (R. 605); went to Seattle to see Minnie; Minnie avoided her, didn't get to talk to her (R. 607–608); returned to Portland; many detectives on her trail; was offered $2,000 by one to sign papers swearing she had seen baby since it was two years old (R. 609). Returned to Tulsa, Okla., saw Bettie who told her of money received from Page (R. 611); witness went to Gypsy Co., saw Crawley, who asked if she had found anyone yet; he said Dennis Jones told them the boy had gone to Boston; asked witness if she thought the boy was in Boston; she (lying) said yes (R. 611). Had talk with Bartlett, who said he didn't believe there was a Thomas Atkins (R. 612); discharged by Bartlett. Witness later informed she was to be prosecuted for posing as government agent. Went to her attorney, C. S. Walker, told him of it and asked him to go to Page with her while she told Page there wasn't any Tommy Atkins, and that she was going to get out of his (Page's) way, she thinking that Page was instigating her prosecution. Also told him what Minnie had said to her about Thomas Atkins on 1895 roll being her father. He told Sadie to go to Page by herself. (R. 615.) Went to see him; saw Long, who said he wanted to see her and took her to Page; she told him she had come to tell him there was no Thomas Atkins (R. 617); Page said "I don't give a damn if there ain't; the Government records says so and we will make one."

Told Sadie he wanted the birth and death of Thomas Atkins established in Leavenworth, and asked witness if she could do it; she said yes.

Page then told her he had been informed by friends in Leavenworth that Dennis Jones was a shrewd man, had been on the police force, and a detective, was a lawyer and a politician, and his influence in the case would help it—could Sadie get him. She told him that Jones and Rube Smith were her coworkers, but she feared there might be difficulty in securing Jones as he was working with the Gypsy Co. to establish a live Tommy and would be disinclined to turn around and make out a dead one. Page told her to tell Jones that he would get arrested if he didn't stop trying to make a live one. (R. 617.)

At Long's suggestion, Sadie went to Rice's office on the next floor and gave him the names of some of those who could be used as witnesses, Long telling Rice that Sadie was now working for them. (R. 618.)

She returned to Walker and reported what had transpired. He said she, Page, Long, and Josey were headed for the penitentiary. (R. 619.)

At Page's direction she met him that evening at Sand Springs, a park near Tulsa owned by Page. Page agreed to give witness $1,000 if she would produce witnesses to swear to the birth and death of Thomas in Leavenworth. She accepted but insisted upon a contract. Asked Page how he would reconcile the new evidence with Minnie's Sapulpa testimony wherein she swore to the birth of Tommy at the Sister's hospital. Page said he would make Minnie "go back on the stand and say the reason she told that lie she didn't want her husband to know she lived with negroes." (R. 620–621.)

Next morning executed contract with Gem Oil Co. whereby she was to be paid $1,000 when witnesses furnished by her had testified and Page and Josey were declared in legal possession under their lease. (Gov't Ex. 42, R. 4902.) R. 622.

After executing contract Sadie, at suggestion of Long, saw Hanford in former's office. She twitted him upon the result of Minnie's testimony at Sapulpa and asked if he understood she was now to make a negro case out of it. He asked her if she thought she could do it and told her he had taken Minnie to Leavenworth and that she didn't know anybody and didn't know where to take him. (R. 624–25).

Sadie then told Walker of execution of contract and he procured a copy of it. (R. 625.)

Went to Leavenworth, arriving August 31st; saw Rube Smith, told him she was working for Gem Oil Co. (Page), agreed that Rube should get $500; talked about securing witnesses; met Long; then to Aunt Kate Logan's; Long came and took statement of Aunt Kate (R. 630). Long met Rube and latter agreed to take $5 per day and expenses and $500 when case finished (R. 631); saw Dennis Jones, who first refused to consider employment as he was working with Gypsy, but upon being threatened (suggested by Sadie) with arrest, agreed to work with Gem. Long saw Dennis and agreed to contract, but Dennis demanded a contract with "boss man" (Page); arrangements made to go to Okla.; returned to Oklahoma and reported to Page. Dennis arrived later and Sadie took him to Page's office; present, Page, Long, Ben Rice, Dennis, and Sadie; Page hired Dennis as Leavenworth representative; contract prepared; Dennis said it was too binding; drew one himself. Page told Dennis "I want the birth and death of Thomas Atkins established in Leavenworth, Kans.; I want him to be born in 1885 and die in the fall of 1898 or spring of 1899 and live long enough just for an allotment." Dennis suggested a man in Boston died when 20 years, named Thomas Atkins, another in North Platte, Neb., living. Page vetoed; wanted dead man; Dennis ought to be able to find a grave (R. 636-637). Sadie made trip to several places endeavoring to find grave, but unsuccessful; recalled by Page to Tulsa; Page told her he wanted her to handle Minnie and get deed from her, promising Sadie $1,000 for it (R. 643); deed was to be to Creekmore, because Page said it would look too bad to have it in his name (R. 645); after depositions were taken in Leavenworth saw Page, who told her Minnie had broken down and things breaking badly for Gem (R. 646); later saw Minnie in Long's office, peeped in at her. Long said to Page they (Hanford and he) were going to take Minnie to Rice's office to rehearse her for trial; then Page employed Sadie to get hold of Nancy Atkins and secure confession from her relative her baby; went to Nowato, got in touch with Mrs. Yarboro, friend of Nancy's, who agreed to help (R. 648–649); saw Nancy at Mrs. Yarboro's house; Nancy confessed that Bettie Harjo had got her to tell the lie about the baby; that she was told that Minnie was dead and all she need to do was to say her girl was a boy (R. 650); made arrangements for taking Nancy from Nowata (steal her), but Page when told of expense involved abandoned it.

On cross-examination, Sadie tells again about details of frame up (R. 706-707) and why Granny Letcher's was decided upon as place where Minnie would be said to have had Thomas.

Tells of deal whereby forged deed Atkins to Bartlett was procured. (R. 801.)

Never saw Minnie at Granny Letcher's, altho she (Sadie) was there every night or so when witness was working for Brock. (R. 814.)

States man named Bludsoe offered her $5,000 for statement to the effect that witness had been hired to tell a lie on Page. (R. 844.)

Says Page wanted testimony relative Thomas Atkins to have him born in 1885 and die in spring of 1899; changes testimony previously given that death was to be in fall of 1898 or 1899. (R. 872.)

Witness relates interview with Minnie at Seattle at Fort, when Sadie went with Robinson, Buell, and Montgomery to see Minnie. Minnie said, "I am still the mother of Tommy Atkins." Hanford took Minnie into kitchen and Minnie said, "I am still the mother of Tommy Atkins; Capt. McNab has quit; get out, you crooks." (R. 906, 907.)

After making her statement to Gov't agent, Sadie was approached by Ed Egan in January, 1915, who endeavored to get her to swear that Henry Carter was son of Minnie. Offered $5,000. Sadie refused. Egan said he represented Uncle Sam Oil Co. (R. 1026–27.)

Granny Letcher lived on Seneca Street in Leavenworth, between 2nd and 3rd, No. 217; then moved to Seneca between 3rd and 4th. This latter was a few years after she moved to 217. Moved to Seneca St. in fall of 1885; previously lived on Cherokee St.; moved off Fourth and Choctaw about spring of 1880; stayed on Cherokee about a year; moved to Delaware between 7th and Broadway; stayed there 3 or 4 months; moved to 215 Cherokee St. Granny lived on Shawnee St. about 1890 (or 1888 or 1889; R. 1037); died on Seneca St., No. 217.

Minnie worked with Sadie at Dr. Brock's Sept.–Oct., 1885; there about five weeks. (R. 1042.)

Sarah E. Mann (also known as Bettie Mann):

One-eighth Creek Indian. Knew Minnie when little girl; went to school with Minnie at Tallahassee and at Carlisle; Minnie 2 or 3 yrs. older than witness; knows Nancy Atkins; were children together; knew Harvey and Charlie Harrison; saw them when 1895 payment made; they were just small children then; after 1885 didn't see Minnie until 1914 (June) at Ft. Lawton, Wash. (R. 1053–54); first attempted to locate Thomas Atkins or Minnie in July, 1912, for John Hayden; was working for Bartlett; didn't find Minnie or Thomas (R. 1054); saw Nancy in Aug., 1912; said she had one child (dead, died when born), and that was all the children she had; told witness Minnie had two children, Harvey and Charlie, and that Minnie had two children dead; thought Minnie was dead (R. 1055–56,); Nancy said she didn't know anything about Thomas; thought he belonged to her brother, Lee Atkins, and a white woman he lived with; witness knows Sadie James; saw her in Leavenworth in March or April, 1914; told her of her search for Thomas and Minnie and Sadie suggested her participation; that she could help, knowing so many in Leavenworth; suggested Dennis Jones and they went to see him; told Jones didn't think there was any Thomas because couldn't get trace of him. Jones said, "If that is what you want, I could get up the evidence; I can prove that hell is an icebox, and I can use from bankers down to niggers." (R. 1059.) Jones asked when Thomas would have to be born and witness said 1884 or 1885; called up several persons and then suggested better ascertain if Minnie is dead or alive; witness got Bartlett to employ Sadie to help locate Minnie and Thomas (R. 1060); had conversation with Rube Smith; told him she was hunting Minnie and that latter had lived at Hyde's; Rube said he had lived next door to Hyde's about that time, but didn't remember an Indian girl working there (R. 1061); witness and Sadie working together on this matter; they discovered that Minnie was west with the soldiers (R. 1062); witness had conversation with Frank Long, who told her he was working for Page for the Gem Oil Co., and they would pay her more than Bartlett to turn over Minnie to them if she found her (R. 1063); offered $5,000; agreed to turn Minnie over to him for that sum; on evening they left for Seattle had conversation with Long, who told her to send telegrams signed Bill Jones in case she found Minnie; he to reply "Mrs. Bill Jones"; went to Seattle at Bartlett's expense (R. 1064); located Minnie at Ft. (Lawton?) at Seattle; had conversation with her at her home; Minnie told her about her children; witness told her about Harvey and Charlie; Minnie spoke of two that were dead; one died at Leavenworth, other at Ft. Logan; don't recall the names (R. 1065); witness told her there was a boy on the rolls named Thomas

Atkins and she (Minnie) said he is not mine; must belong to my brother or sister; said her father was named Thomas, but he had been dead too long. Witness told Minnie they were hunting Tommy and her, and there was a chance for her to make some money; Minnie said she would be very glad to make some money; told Minnie all she had to do was to keep still and not tell anyone else that Tommy was not hers and she could get some money; that a man would give her money to sign a lease (R. 1066). Minnie said she would do it, but didn't want anyone else to know, especially her husband; witness told her not to say anything of her being there; wired Long, who came to Seattle and went to see Minnie; upon return said Minnie had said she didn't have a Thomas; said he told her not to say that any more; said that is all right, we will have a Thomas before we get through. Sadie said suppose one was born at certain time; Long said Thomas has got to be living in 1900 (forget what year he said); he said the dead one we can't use him (R. 1068). Long went back to see Minnie, but McNab and Hanford wouldn't let anyone see her; saw Hanford next day with Long at the Reno Grande Hotel. Long and Hanford left Seattle the next day (Monday); Long told witness Capt. McNab wouldn't let Minnie sign lease; that they thought there was something big in it and were going to try and hold it up and make some money themselves. Long told her to get lease by any means she could and said he would give her $6,000 to get lease to Gem Oil Co.; said he was taking Hanford, Minnie's atty., and he could handle him; was taking him down there (Okla.) and we will fix this thing all up (R. 1069); left Seattle with Bartlett and Sadie returned to Tulsa; saw Page, who said he was glad she had turned the deal to him, and that he had sent her some wires and was sorry she didn't get them; was out of humor with Hanford and Long the way they had treated her; asked her what she thought, if there was a Tommy; she told him to ask Long. Page said he was responsible for Long's contracts, etc.; got her check for $50 or $100; complimented her on her work; that he wouldn't have got the lease but for her; reference to Thomas Atkins made by Page was first mention of that (R. 1071). When witness said to ask Long, Page said "that doesn't make any difference; it is all right; we will have Tommy fixed up all right" (or something to that effect; R. 1071–72); finally got a settlement from Page (Bartlett had terminated her employment); knew Sadie was employed by Page; witness settled with Page quite a while after Sadie got employed; Page wanted some one to get up proof of Tommy Atkins' birth, and said he had to have some one to do it (reference to Sadie's employment); day before Minnie testified at Sapulpa had a conversation with Page, who wanted her to go out to his house to see Minnie. He seemed to be a little worried about her making a good witness. Betty wouldn't go (R. 1073); identifies receipt executed to Gem Oil Co., Page, and Josey for $550 cash and warranty deed for residence in Sand Springs, Okla., executed to her by Page; release by her of all claims account securing lease from Minnie and services (R. 1075). This ended her connection with the case.

Cross-examination:

After trial of case Nancy Atkins v. Bartlett, Nancy said to witness: "Why didn't we let me claim that child and make some money, and we wouldn't have hunted up Minnie; I could have been Tommy's mother just as well and we could have had a lot of money now." (R. 1094.)

Redirect:

At Seattle, Minnie told witness that she drew some money for somebody not entitled to it and she was afraid of the Government, that was the reason she had never written back and had not come back to see her children (R. 1096); witness thinks Minnie told her she drew for her sister; said she had drawn for several (R. 1100). During conversation with Page, after Minnie had been on stand first time, he told her Minnie had been swearing wrongfully and that he wanted evidence of Tommy's birth; witness declined to go. Page said he had nigger woman who would go. During these conversations it was just generally understood that there was no Tommy. (R. 1099.)

J. B. White:

Heard Minnie testify in district court at Sapulpa in July, 1914. Minnie testified she had four children; first one, Thomas Atkins, born in Sisters Hospital, Leavenworth; had but one in Leavenworth; other three born in Ft. Logan; that she worked for Hyde, then Grodevant, then Lt. Stafford; worked 3 months for Hyde, then went to Grodevant's for year and six months, then to Stafford's for year or over; had to quit on being heavy with child; went to hospital and gave birth to Thomas; refused to give name of the second child, girl, two boys, Harvey and Charlie Harrison; said she left Thomas when about 6 months old, got a woman to take care of him; after she went to Michigan, received letter from this woman saying Thomas was dead; had never seen him since he was 6 months old. (R. 1105–6.) Witness went to Sisters Hospital in Leavenworth to investigate if Minnie had been there and found a Minnie Peterkin had been in the hospital two weeks in the eighties. (R. 1109.)

William A. Cranston:

With father in livery business at 320–322 Cherokee St., Leavenworth; identifies entry of charge, $2.00, to Long and Gem Oil Co. of rig Sept. 12/14. (Note this corroborates Sadie James as to this transaction in securing rig to go to cemetery. R. 1111.)

O. Giacomini:

Proprietor National Hotel, Leavenworth; identifies entry on hotel register; showing F. B. Long registered Aug. 23, 1914, registered from Kokomo, Ind.; also shows register of Mrs. F. E. Mann and daughter, Sapulpa, on Aug. 24/14; also shows Long registered Aug. 21/14 as from Kokomo. Atty. Hanford agrees that entry is in handwriting of Long. (R. 1113-19.)

MARTHA JONES:

Testifies that Sadie James came to her house drunk one evening in summer or fall about 2 yrs. ago (Aug., 1914); Rube Smith came there to see Sadie, as did a white man. (R. 1122.)

IRENE VINSON:

Knows Sadie James; met her in Leavenworth in Aug. or Sept., 1914; Sadie came to her house; had been drinking; went to Miss Martha's (Jones); on the way met a white man whom Sadie said was her lawyer from Tulsa; he said to Sadie "Well, I will see you later on." (R. 1124-27.)

CLARA KIRK:

Knew Minnie as Minnie Folk at Vancouver; was very good friends with her and corresponded with her. Saw Sadie James and Bartlett in July, 1914; came to her house to find Minnie; asked her to go to Seattle to see Minnie to see if they could have a talk with her; was expecting Minnie to visit her on July 8th; went to Minnie's; visited there all day with Minnie. Minnie went to the post after lunch; Folk came while Minnie was gone and visited with her; Sadie James came out, all three waiting for Minnie to return; finally Folk said he didn't think she was coming back; witness had Minnie's suit case and "as I came back out I got off the car at the station and I seen Minnie break and run towards me and she snatched the suit case out of my hand and I said, 'What does this mean, Minnie?' and she said, 'I just want to help you.' I got to the house and Hanford was there; Minnie introduced him; he started in abusing witness; told her she had better go back to Portland, where she belonged; witness went out on porch; Minnie followed her; Hanford stamped his foot and called for Minnie to come in there; she (Minnie) ran like a whipped child; never saw Minnie any more." Later that evening saw Hanford at O. R. & N. station. Hanford again abused her because of traveling with negro wench. (R. 1128–34.)

Cross-examination:

While visiting Minnie latter told her she was going to get $5,000 on the 28th or 29th of the month from some land of her father's estate (R. 1139) and that she had a son that would be awful wealthy some day.

For the purpose of showing fabrication the Government introduced the testimony of Dennis Jones, R. J. Smith, Sam Nash, and Walter Banks, given on behalf of Minnie Folk at Leavenworth, October 1914.

DENNIS JONES:

Lawyer, resides in Leavenworth—there for 50 years; knew Granny Letcher; saw Minnie 1884 and 5 at Granny Letcher's; she was in family way when at Granny Letcher's, 217 Seneca Street; gave birth to boy named Thomas Atkins there; saw Minnie at Granny's often, with child; saw child with Minnie about a year or so; Minnie left Leavenworth when child was a couple of years old; couldn't say whether Minnie lived at Granny's all the time; didn't see Minnie after she left until recently; child stayed with Granny; was there when Granny died in 1900; Granny had boy named Jim there then; she also raised Sam Nash and Walter Banks; witness raised a boy with whom Tommy played; Tommy then about 10, 11, or 12 years old. (R. 1160-66.)

Cross-examination:

First time he saw Minnie was in 1884 at Letcher's; guess Minnie must have been pregnant then; Tommy was 12 or 14 years old when witness last saw him; thinks Tommy went to school in Leavenworth; heard that Tommy died at Chicago (R. 1171-72); last saw him in 1898 or '99; first found out Minnie's name was Atkins after Tommy was born (R. 1174); Tommy was about 2-6 months old when he first saw him.

R. J. Smith:

Corroborates Dennis Jones as to birth of Tommy at Granny Letcher's at 217 Seneca St. in 1885; except last time he saw boy (R. 1179-86) the latter was about 8 years old.

Cross-examination:

Admits being employed by Long to round up witnesses; talked to Jones about case; talked with witnesses during taking of testimony (R. 1188-90); Tommy might have been born at hospital (R. 1195).

Sam Nash:

In 1884, 85, 86, lived at 217 Seneca St. with his grandmother, Granny Letcher; knew Minnie; she came to house on Seneca St. when he saw her; about that time she was in family way; gave birth to child Tommy there; Aunt Betsy was midwife; first saw Tommy when he was about 3 days old; Minnie left when Tommy was about 2 years old; she was at Granny's two months or little more after Tommy was born, then went to work and was there off and on for the two years Tommy stayed at Granny's; Tommy was sort of in witness' care; bought some clothes for Tommy when latter was 10 years old; when Tommy was about 11 years old lady came and took him away, saying his mother had sent for him (R. 1339-44); warm weather when she came (Note: Walter Banks said it was cool weather); said she was going to Kansas City and then to his mother's in Okla.; never saw Tommy thereafter, nor the woman (R. 1345); this was about two years before Granny's death (that was in 1900); was working for Dr. Brock when Tommy went away; then said was working for Spratley's when Tommy left (R. 1346). Tommy went to school at separate school for negroes; Miss Montgomery was teacher; Walter Banks also went same school. (R. 1348.)

Cross-examination:

Talked matter of his evidence over with Mr. Long; Granny didn't keep a bawdy house; never noticed anything wrong with Minnie's conduct; Dr. McCormick was attending physician at birth of Tommy (R. 1352); Minnie never contributed to Tommy's support so far as witness knows; never tried to locate Minnie; no communication with her; no man acknowledged Tommy as his son (R. 1353); woman who took Tommy was light mulatto (R. 1354); first talked to Rube Smith about this case (R. 1358); Minnie came to Granny's two or three months before baby was born (R. 1360).

WALTER BANKS:

In 1884–1886 lived at 217 Seneca St. with Granny Letcher, his adopted mother; Granny had a boy named Jim Mayo older than witness; Sam Nash, one-armed boy, and Tommy Atkins lived there; latter's mother called Indian Minnie or Minnie Atkins; was three years older than Tommy; remembers Tommy when a baby; Minnie nursed witness some; Minnie left Tommy at Granny's until he was 10 or 11 years; witness played with him and Sam Nash; Tommy went away with some woman whom witness had never seen before; never saw Tommy after he left, nor Minnie; Tommy left before Spanish-American War. (R. 1318–21.) Witness is a negro.

Cross-examination:

Never heard name of woman or any conversation she had with Granny or anyone else about taking Tommy. Tommy and he went to school together at North Leavenworth school; Tommy went when 6 and continued until he went away—about five years. Miss Mackey was teacher; she was colored; has seen Minnie in last few days, same one he knew (R. 1327–31). Minnie left Tommy when he was between 1 and 2 years old. (R. 1335.)

EDWARD CHARLES FRITSCHE (deposition for defendant, introduced by Government):

Druggist; worked for Adolph Lange in summer of 1885; knew girl called Indian Minnie; waited on her a number of times, and saw her at Letcher's, on lower Seneca St.; saw her there with baby nursing; baby three or four days old when first saw it; she walked streets with a fortune teller; Minnie disappeared a few weeks after baby born; saw child until he was about 6 or 7 years old; named Tommy Atkins; saw him at Ella Abbitt's place (R. 1221–25).

Cross-examination:

Witness admits talking with attorneys in case, and has memo. of names and dates (R. 1227–28); frequented Granny's place as bawdy house (R. 1240); when first saw Minnie she was pregnant about 7 or 8 months gone; she was staying there regularly (R. 1241); had no particular interest in Minnie; went to Granny's several times after Minnie left (R. 1243); first saw Minnie in July or August, 1885; first time he ever heard boy's name was from Skinney Frischman at Ella Abbitt's (R. 1248); now says Minnie didn't show signs of pregnancy when he first saw her (R. 1250).

EDWARD CHARLES FRITSCHE, as witness for Government:

Knew an Indian woman before he went to school; she was about 28 to 30 years old; went to school in 1883; remembers when petition to remove Lillie White from 217 Seneca St. was gotten up, that was in July, 1885; after her removal Granny Letcher moved in, in 1885; was there when Indian woman had a baby in early fall of 1886; was same woman he had previously seen in 1883; woman was a prostitute in 1883 and same afterward; child he saw in 1886 was a few days old; first heard child's name just before giving deposition—heard it in Mr. Bond's office; Mr. Hanford was there (R. 1256–60); was in a theater and was called out to meet Bond and Hanford (R. 1261); asked him about knowing anyone named Tommy Atkins born 1885 or '86 at Granny's; he made some memo.; from that memo. gave deposition; admitted he was mistaken about some of testimony given; saw child but didn't know it was Tommy (R. 1263). Told Bond he was looking for work and asked a letter to Page (R. 1264); Bond wrote Page; went to Okla. to see Page who told him to stick around and maybe they could find something for him to do; Page suggested that he would put up a stand for him at his park in Tulsa (R. 1265); Page said to stick around if there is anything else we can do for you. Saw Bond while en route to Okla. to testify; Bond started to talk to him and he told him he didn't care to discuss case; Bond said "You haven't got cold feet—they haven't bluffed you, have they?" The child I saw at Ella Abbitt's was too old to be the child he saw at Granny's; erred in so identifying it in deposition (R. 1266). Talked with Dennis Jones about coming to Tulsa; Jones told him about Page having helped others

(R. 1267). When he went to Bond's office, Bond paid him $10 for that day; they gave him $10 per day; says he was convinced he made errors in previous testimony (R. 1268); identifies Minnie as Indian whom he knew in Leavenworth (R. 1271); saw and identified Minnie preceding summer in office of Bond who phoned him to come there; Minnie was there; he recognized her but she did not recognize him; some one else was there [Long?] (R. 1279).

Recalled:

Endeavor made to show that his change of testimony was due to duress but this not done; testified again that the woman he saw with child was the one he had known as a prostitute in Leavenworth in 1883. If she was not in Leavenworth in 1883 she couldn't have been the same woman. (R. 1314.)

Rush Greenslade:

Attorney for Gypsy Oil Co.; his company made search for Thomas Atkins; employed Dennis Jones to assist; contract between Gypsy Oil Co. and Jones (Govt. Ex. A-88, R. 4801) offered in evidence and two letters from Jones to Crawley, V. Pres. of Gypsy Co.; went to Wash'n, D. C., and N. Y. City with Jones in search of Atkins; co. claimed under Bartlett (R. 1215-18). In the contract it was stated that Jones had reason to believe he knew the whereabouts of Atkins (date of contract, Aug. 3, 1914); letters state Jones's conviction that Thomas is alive and will be found. (Govt. Ex. A-89 & A-90, R. 4802-3.)

C. S. WALKER:

Attorney. Sadie James came to him about Bartlett in summer of 1914; told him she had been to Seattle, in employ of Bartlett, with Bettie Mann and had found Minnie; that Betty sold Minnie to Page; after Long got hold of Minnie, Bartlett wouldn't pay them; wanted witness to assist her in collecting her portion due from Bartlett; went with Sadie to Brown's office where contract was; examined it; took up with Bartlett settlement of amount due Sadie; after two weeks Sadie told him she had a deal with Page to establish birth and existence of Thomas Atkins (R. 1283–85); witness had spent considerable time in investigating Atkins case for a client; asked Sadie if she thought there was a Thomas Atkins or that he ever existed and she said No. (R. 1286.) Sadie said she was going to get witnesses to prove for Page that Thomas was son of Minnie and the place and time of his birth. Sadie said Page knew character of her mission; she had discussed it with him; she said "of course Mr. Page knows there never has been any such a boy as Thomas Atkins because I told him so." (R. 1286.) Later told him she had a written agreement with Page and Long; saw the contract; went to bank at Sadie's request to read it; identified Gov't Ex. 42 (R. 4902) as contract (R. 1287); Sadie told him Minnie had told her she never had any such a boy as Thomas Atkins (R. 1288); asked him what could be done with her if she went to another State and manufactured testimony; witness told her she would be put in "pen" (R. 1288–89); three or four weeks later came to his office and told him she had been to Leavenworth and had gotten witnesses by whom she was going to prove the birth and life and existence of Thomas; called the name of two or three; remembers name of negro lawyer, Dennis Jones (R. 1289); later Sadie became uneasy about situation and asked witness what she should do; he advised her to go to Judge Allen's office and confess.

W. I. Williams:

Attorney. Knows Sadie James; came to see him in early fall of 1914 reference to a contract she had with Gem Oil Co., or Page and Josey; this before her confession to Government; his partner Davidson had handled business for Sadie; on this occasion partner out; she left without stating business; returned in a few days and then on a subsequent call stated she had contract with Gem Oil Co. by which she was to hunt up and produce evidence to show that Minnie had a son named Thomas Atkins; said she had complied with contract and wanted her money; Page had put her off; witness wanted to see contract (R. 1295); went to bank and saw it; identifies Govt. Ex. A 42 as contract (R. 1296); made copy of contract; saw Page for her several days after Sadie went with him; Page said Sadie had rendered capable and efficient service and had complied with contract so far as furnishing witnesses; was willing to pay her but that Josey objected; agreed to pay $250 anyway; finally Sadie got $250; Sadie later told him Page would pay $750 if she would take it in furniture (R. 1297); Page wanted her to start rooming house in Tulsa. In latter part of November, 1914, Sadie told him she was going to quit working for Page because he wouldn't pay the $750; that she was going to work for Bartlett; said there wasn't any Tommy Atkins; told him Page and Long knew it.

Government attorney reads portion of testimony of E. C. HANFORD, given in receivership hearing March, 1915:

Attorney for Minnie Atkins. At Sapulpa hearing when Minnie testified that the child was born in the Sisters Hospital; made investigation at that hospital on return trip to Seattle with Minnie; found no record of Minnie there in 1884 or '85; Sister Superior told him they did not receive confinement cases; asked to see all records and found record Oct. 7 to 21, 1886, of Minnie Peterkin; saw Peterkin and had conversation with him relative Minnie; after that went to Leavenworth to see some old soldiers that Peterkin had named; found nothing; returned to Tulsa; heard from Long as to name of house and locality in which child born; went to Leavenworth; Long was going there with Sadie James and had arranged to go with Betty Mann; had no confidence in Betty; witness went to Leavenworth with Betty to see if what she said checked with what Long found with Sadie. (R. 1300-01.)

Minnie didn't mention birth of Robert Lee Peterkin in Leavenworth in July, 1886, or at any other time in her deposition at Rice & Lyons's office at Tulsa; doesn't think Minnie was asked in reference to the Peterkin baby. (R. 1315–16.)

"Subsequently Minnie was brought back to Leavenworth, at which time the depositions were taken; that was in 1914; depositions were in State court case. Minnie didn't testify at that hearing because in hospital; later went to Tulsa." (R. 1316–17.)

That he (Hanford) had a conversation with Minnie the morning after she made the confession to Montgomery; this was before he went to McNab to get Montgomery to bring him to Minnie's house, where she recanted. (R. 141.)

MALCOLM E. ROSSER:

Attorney for Nancy Atkins's interests. Was present in July, 1914, at Sapulpa as such attorney when Minnie Atkins testified to birth of one child in Leavenworth; she made no mention of birth July 30, 1886, or death August, 1886, of Robert Lee Peterkin; was present at taking of depositions in October, 1914, at Leavenworth for use in State court suit when Dennis Jones and Rube Smith, Walter Banks and Sam Nash testified; they are negroes and were called on behalf of Page and Minnie Atkins. (R. 1301–03.)

Government introduces portion of Minnie's testimony at Tulsa.

Went from Carlisle to Leavenworth; worked nearly five months for Hyde; child named Thomas Atkins born to her at Leavenworth at Granny Letcher's; remained in Leavenworth a year after Thomas was born, then went to Ft. Leavenworth, where she worked a year for Grodevant and for Stafford a few months; when Thomas was 1½ years old she left Leavenworth for Ft. Logan, leaving Tommy with Granny; never saw him thereafter; heard when in Detroit he was dead.

Knew after she left Hyde's that she had Tommy and went to Granny's; child born about 2 years after she came to Leavenworth; testified at Sapulpa that she had child in Sisters Hospital because Granny didn't run a very good house and not because she was a negress; while at Grodevants and Staffords went to Granny's all the time. (R. 1304–07.)

Government offered Minnie's previous testimony given at receivership hearing to show that defendants had fabricated a case regarding birth of Thomas Atkins; offer refused by court. See R. 1415–16, for explanation of sequence of testimony.

The testimony of Minnie Atkins (Minnie Folk) which was given in deposition in case pending in Creek County, Okla., District Court wherein Minnie et al. were plaintiffs (deposition taken October, 1914, in Rice & Lyon's office in Tulsa); this deposition taken after the depositions taken at Leavenworth, and in it she stated:

After leaving Carlisle Indian School went to Hyde's at Leavenworth; worked there nearly five months; a child was born to her there named Thomas Atkins at Granny Letcher's; remained Leavenworth about a year after his birth, then went to Army post about 3 miles from Leavenworth; worked at Grodevant's for a year, then at Stafford's for few months; left fort when Tommy about 1½ years old; went to Ft. Logan, Colorado; left Tommy at Granny Letcher's when she left Leavenworth; has never seen him since; heard that he was dead. (R. 1304-06.)

Also testimony of Page at receivership hearing.

Learned that Jones, Smith, and others testified that Minnie has given birth to Tommy at Granny Letcher's; Minnie took stand on his behalf and her own at Tulsa and testified to same facts; testified after she stayed at his house for two or three days; had a hard time getting her to tell the truth about certain things. (R. 1317.)

FRANK L. MONTGOMERY:

U. S. Probate Attorney. Acting in minor and restricted Indian matters coming before probate courts in Oklahoma; is under supervision of Secretary of the Interior; knows Sadie James; he signed so-called immunity paper produced by Sadie; knows Minnie; first saw her in Dec., 1914, at Ft. Lawton, Seattle, Wash.; talked with her there; Harry Folk and Capt. McNab present; discussed matter of legality of allotment to Thomas Atkins (R. 1369); Minnie claimed she was mother of Thomas. Hanford was present one day (Wed.); (he interviewed Minnie several days); Minnie said she was nervous and tired and would take up matter Friday. Saw McNab Thursday; Hanford came in and Minnie later; prior to this, witness had gone over with McNab and Minnie all the information he had upon the Atkins controversy. Witness already had information that Minnie had a child named Alice, but was unaware of where she was born; also knew of Charlie and Harvey Harrison; had no information as to Robert Lee Peterkin (R. 1370). On this Thursday morning discussed conveyance made by Minnie of royalty interest and possible fee in allotment to Page; pressed Minnie for truth relative Thomas Atkins' enrollment; Hanford warned Minnie witness was Government officer and that any statement would be used against her (R. 1371); practically same statement made to her by McNab; question of immunity for Minnie was discussed (in case she made confession). Minnie deliberated for some time and then stated she was not the mother of Thomas Atkins; that the Thomas Atkins for whom she drew the "grass money" was her father; that she had three children, Alice Peterkin and the two Harrison boys, Charlie and Harvey; no one questioned her until she finished; further discussion had between all present as to immunity; all discussed the matter of her testimony at Sapulpa in July previous of having had the child born at Sisters Hospital and also her testimony taken in Oct., 1914, at Tulsa; read from that testimony and from confession of Sadie James (R. 1372); then witness suggested that this confession be reduced to writing and left with McNab; that if he succeeded in obtaining immunity for Minnie, McNab was to deliver confession to him, otherwise to burn it; that was agreed to; confession was prepared by witness in McNab's private office, and when completed Minnie was told by McNab that she didn't have to sign unless she wanted to and that it would be taken against her; but now was the time to tell the truth; Hanford also warned her as her attorney. Minnie after some deliberation signed the statement; witness delivered it to McNab and never got it back (R. 1373), has never seen it since (R. 1374); en route on train from Seattle to Denver, about 3 or 4 days after signing of statement, witness reduced to writing substance of that statement for his private files; substantially the statement was (R. 1374–75):

> Dated Ft. Lawton, Dec. 17; I, Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, in the presence of C. E. Hanford and Frank L. Montgomery, United States probate attorney, do hereby state that no child was ever born to me by the name of Thomas Atkins, or Tommy Atkins, and that the Thomas Atkins for which I drew the grass money was my father; that I am the mother of only 3 children, Mabel or Alice Peterkin, Charlie Harrison, and Harvey Harrison.

In addition to what appears in confession, Minnie stated to witness that Sadie James made the suggestion to her that she had a child named Thomas Atkins. No one during these days of conversation there at Ft. Lawton had mentioned the name of Robert Lee Peterkin; after confession signed witness had lunch with Minnie and her husband at their house; Minnie prepared lunch and was agreeable, pleasant, and hospitable (R. 1375–76); went with Minnie to National Bank of Commerce to secure amount ($5,000) paid to Minnie by Page for lease, this money to be Minnie's regardless of whether title was good or bad (R. 1376); this was done at witness's suggestion, he fearing that Page interests hearing of confession might undertake to tie up this fund in Tulsa by legal proceedings; Minnie signed at bank some paper required by bank whereby she could draw the money from the Tusla bank. (R. 1377.) Wired Commissioner Sells of confession of Minnie and recommended effort be made to secure immunity for Minnie; succeeded in getting immunity. (R. 1378.)

Cross-examination:

First had attention directed to case by Mr. Mott, who told him of information which could be furnished by Sadie James; went to Kansas City and saw Sadie; Mr. Buell cooperated with him in matter. (R. 1380–81.) At interview with Minnie at Ft. Lawton, witness read to her testimony of witnesses taken in case; Minnie was incensed and resented the attempt made to "their" trying to make the father of child a negro (R. 1387); next day after confession was signed witness went to McNab's quarters; Hanford came in and requested them to go to see Minnie; witness went but not McNab (R. 1395–96); when they saw Minnie she repudiated the confession (R. 1397); said she had made the statement to please witness; that he had been very persistent and she had wanted to get rid of him; that she had been subjected to strenuous ordeals for months in regard to birth and existence of Thomas Atkins; that the statement was untrue; that she was the mother of Thomas Atkins and that the written statement had been signed purely under those circumstances; said she would rather not have any property rights in the land than be harassed so much. Witness said to her that she had made him a lot of trouble but if she was telling the truth now he hoped she would get the land and hoped to assist her in getting it. (R. 1397.)

Redirect:

Guarded against being influenced by Bartlett and Buell (R. 1401); secured authority from Washington to make Seattle trip (R. 1402). When he interviewed Minnie and was reading to her the depositions taken at Leavenworth, Minnie said no one could get her to say that she was not the mother of Thomas Atkins. She also stated that she was subjected to the influence of Page through Frank Long at the time that she was at Leavenworth, and that she knew none of the parties there except Mr. Crilly, the liveryman, and that while she knew him, much of what she testified to was not true. (Probably read to her the depositions of Rube Smith, Sam Nash, and Walter Banks.) Minnie stated that she had been framed by Long and others to say that Tommy was born at Letcher's and not at the hospital, and was emphatic that no one could get her to say that Tommy was never born to her (R. 1403); no perceptible difference in demeanor of Minnie on day of confession than other days when witness saw her. After confession Minnie expressed satisfaction that the thing was over and a hope to secure the money from Okla. before any legal proceedings could be started to withhold it (R. 1405). Either witness or Hanford suggested withdrawal of money and both concurred in that being desired. When Hanford came into McNab's quarters the day after confession signed, he told witness he had been to see Minnie (R. 1406); thinks Hanford stated that Minnie had retracted (R. 1407).

W. P. Z. GERMAN:

Testified that on receivership hearing Government introduced evidence showing that Minnie gave birth to Robert Lee Peterkin at Mrs. Woods in Leavenworth on July 31, 1886, before Minnie testified or her affidavit was filed. (R. 1412–13.)

GEORGE DOTTER:

Lived at 217 Seneca St., Leavenworth; was born there; left there July 28, 1884, when his father sold the place, was 14 at the time. (R. 1417–22.)

JOHN ROHR:

In 1883, 84, 85, 86 was clerk of district court at Leavenworth; had been at Lily White's place—a house of prostitution; first time May 16, 1885; place was on Seneca St. between 2nd and 3rd on south side of street, adjoined Seth's place (R. 1422–25); went once after that, same place, between June 1 and Sept. 30, 1885; was within about 3 or 4 months after first time. Reason why he can not more definitely fix second date is because he gave to Malone in that year several checks, one dated July 14, another May 28, and third Aug. 18 (Malone lived with Lily White; R. 1429). Witness loaned money to Malone and went to Lily White's to collect (R. 1430); thinks it was the $500 check he went to collect (that is dated Aug. 18/85. R. 1432).

On cross-examination is asked regarding testimony given in a deposition previously in this case which varied from that now given in respect to date of second visit to White's (R. 1432–36); states he was in error and now desired to stand by last given testimony (R. 1436).

William P. Feth:

Architect. Parents lived at 223 Seneca St. (south side); house not now standing, nor is 217 Seneca St.; lumber yard there now; made drawing of that Seneca St. as it existed (approximately) in 1884–5–6; drawn from memory; drawing identified as Govt. Ex. A–91; locates various streets and places from plat (R. 1438–40); also made plat of location of fort prison and some residences (including Grodevant's) at Army post at Leavenworth (R. 1440), Govt. Ex. A–79 (R. 4779); was 15 yrs. old in 1885; was living then at 223 Seneca St.; witness was author of petition to remove Lily, petition dated July 5, 1885; drew it up at request of his mother and father (R. 1441); does not remember a family named Letcher living at 217 Seneca St.; identifies Govt. Ex. 59 (R. 4912), petition for removal of Lily White from 217 Seneca St. and Stella Forrest from 303 Seneca St. (R. 1447–48).

FRED METCHAN:

City clerk of Leavenworth; has custody of city records; identifies minutes of city council Aug. 5, 1885, relative petition for abatement bawdy house of Lily White and action thereon, which was reference to city marshal with instructions to abate the nuisance. (R. 1450–53.)

HARRY H. SECHLER:

Identifies father's signature on petition. (R. 1456.)

WILLIAM W. KREW:

Works for Abernathy Furniture Co.; employed by that company since 1884; knows property 217 Seneca St.; factory just across the street from there and a little east; knew Lily White by sight; she lived at 217 Seneca; she was white woman; doesn't know Granny Letcher; remembers name, though; doesn't remember colored family living at 217 Seneca; remembers Sam Nash; thinks he lived on Kickapoo St.; Lily was there in 1884. (R. 1457–59.)

C. S. W. DASSLER:

Attorney at law; had an interest in property known as 217 Seneca St.; Dotter resided there; they sold to Emma Serrill; witness purchased some of the notes given by Serrill in payment; notes were secured by mortgage; purchased first batch of notes Oct. 27/85, another batch Oct. 29/85, and another Nov. 7/85; fixes dates by checks given to pay for them (R. 1462–64); filed suit to foreclose mortgage Oct. 30/85; Lily White made party defendant because occupant of premises (R. 1465); suit dismissed Nov. 27/85; witness collected rent from tenants after he acquired title on Nov. 24/85; Mrs. Letcher was first tenant from whom he collected; the first money collected was on Nov. 28/85 from Letcher and others; Letcher stopped paying rent about April, 1890, and then commenced again in Sept., 1894; continued then until her death. (R. 1467–69).

Cross-examination:

Says stated dates from his books; no independent recollection; doesn't know of own knowledge who was occupying premises when suit filed. (R. 1470.)

LeBan Gardner Hopkins:

Attorney at law; lived in Leavenworth since April, 1868; he and Dassler acquired 217 Seneca St. in Nov., 1885. (R. 1477–80.)

J. A. Malone:

Lived in Leavenworth until 1889; was policeman in Leavenworth and deputy sheriff; knew Lily White; she ran a sporting house on Seneca between 2d and 3d, south side of st.; when he first met her witness was on police force; was at her house one night, stayed about an hour and a half talking with Lily; that the only time he was there; no colored people there that he saw (R. 1483). Lily after lived on Choctaw St. close to 4th St.; she went from Leavenworth to Kansas City, Mo., then to Tacoma, Wash.; saw her in Tacoma; Lily died in June, 1894. Knew Ella Abbott in Leavenworth in 1890, at brick house on Choctaw St. (R. 1485), same kind of house; in 1894 Ella was at cor. 3d and Cherokee Sts. conducting sporting house, continued there in 1894 and '95; never saw any boy there by name of Thomas Atkins or Indian Tommy; never heard Ella mention him; Ella had not conducted sporting house in Leavenworth previous to 1889 (R. 1487); identifies letter received by him from Ella in May, 1916 (Govt. Ex. 57, R. 4911); this letter askes interview with Malone and refers to Hanford as one of "our lawyers" (for oil co.) and to the other outfit as a "negro oil co. fighting us"; asks that Malone give no deposition and not to talk to this oil co. until she talks with him; Hanford was to see him about six weeks before this deposition; in conversation with Hanford related substantially what he has now testified. (R. 1488–89.)

Cross-examination:

Robinson, the detective, was to see him (R. 1490); Lily was next to the Feth house on Seneca St.; colored people lived in house after Lily; Ella Abbott was referred to as his girl (R. 1497); knew all the girls who were there; tells how he happened to see nigger child there at Ella Abbott's; doesn't recall what child was called; has no idea what Ella refers to in letter rec'd by him (R. 1501); came to give deposition with Robinson, who explained what Govt. wanted to prove (no Tommy Atkins); Robinson told him he represented Buell; Govt. subpœnaed him; Robinson told him Buell paying his (witness also) expenses from Tacoma to Leavenworth for deposition (R. 1502–03). Rec'd letter from Ella after Hanford had been to see him (R. 1507).

Redirect:

Letter also from Gem Oil Co.; destroyed that letter (R. 1508), this letter was before Robinson had been to see him. Saw colored child referred to at Ella's when she was at 3d and Cherokee in 1895; Ella had colored woman as help; child was in kitchen where colored cook was (R. 1509). Prior to 1889 Ella did not run sporting house in Leavenworth; had wide acquaintance in performance of official duties with houses of ill repute in Leavenworth, never heard of Minnie Atkins or Indian Minnie, or Indian boy or Tommy Atkins in these houses (R. 1510).

Indian Tommy at their home, never saw such a boy there, nor such a woman (R. 2065–68). Rec'd letter from Sam Nash (Govt. Ex. 52, R. 4908); met him on street after that; Sam said he was getting along nicely; said Mr. Page was a very nice gentleman and had treated him awful nice (R. 2070).

GEORGIA FLINT:

Married Jim Mayo (Jim Phillips) in October, 1890; they lived with Jim's mother, Granny Letcher, she was then living on Choctaw St. (fall of 1890); Granny moved to Shawnee St.; Jim and witness did not stay with Granny until she moved off Shawnee St.; they moved down on Shawnee and ran a restaurant; later went back to Granny's when she was again on Seneca St.; visited Granny some while they ran the restaurant and frequently when witness was keeping house on Cherokee St.; was in Leavenworth from October, 1890, to 1895 or 1896; during this time, besides Jim and witness, Sam Nash and Walter Banks lived at Granny's; also a little girl named Maude; the latter was at Granny's on Choctaw St.; no boy at Granny's named Tommy or Indian Tommy or Thomas Atkins that witness knew of. (R. 2075–77.)

JOHN C. KETCHESON:

Lived in Leavenworth since fall of 1886; printing and binding business; printed the 1885 and 1886 directory of Leavenworth; identifies them; Government reads in evidence entries showing Lily White living at 217 Seneca St. in 1885, Granny Letcher at

215 Cherokee St., Jim Mayo at 215 Cherokee St.; also Sam Nash same as Jim and Granny. Directory of 1886 shows Granny Letcher, Jim Mayo, and Sam Nash at 217 Seneca St. and Lillie White at 326 Choctaw St. (R. 2085–87.)

Mrs. A. G. Wilds.

First met Minnie Folk in April, 1915; first went to Minnie's house in July, 1916; asked by one Kohler to ascertain when Minnie was going to leave Seattle, also talked to Betty Mann before she went to Minnie's; Betty and Kohler appeared to be associated in the matter; Betty told witness to just go over and let Minnie talk, see what she had to say and report to her; witness became very friendly with Minnie (R. 2096–98). Minnie talked very freely about her affairs; Minnie told witness that Hanford had beaten her out of money; that Page had paid out $10,000; the first $5,000 for Minnie and the other for Hanford for his services, that Hanford kept the first $5,000 himself and when she went to bank to draw some money there was not a nickel there (R. 2099); Minnie said she had called Hanford down and dropped him cold; witness asked how she came to take Hanford back and Minnie said Long talked her into it; that Long said Hanford knew so much about the case that best thing to do would be to keep him in the case because they had told so many lies at the first trial. (This was in July and August, 1915.) Minnie said Long gave her drinks at the first trial and wanted her to claim the nigger kid and she refused (R. 2099–2100). Minnie said Hanford was a crook; that Page and all of them made her swear to lies and that if she had had her way in the first place she wouldn't have gone to law about it but Page wouldn't have it any other way; that she had a different story every time, that the plans had to be changed altogether after the first trial because they had all sworn to lies; that they made her swear to lies and tried to make her claim the nigger kid; in making these statements lies were referred to frequently by Minnie; Minnie spoke of her visit to Leavenworth and said that the niggers there all swore they knew her and that she never saw any of them before in her life until she went to Leavenworth (R. 2100); she had to give Sadie James credit for finding her (that Minnie gave Sadie a good many facts about herself, but could have given her more), that Sadie had been employed by Page to help manufacture the story of the nigger kid, that Sadie had double-crossed Page and told the truth to the Government and got another $1,000 for that; Minnie told her Long "could make you lie and make you think that you were telling the truth"; said he had made her swear to lies all right, but that he couldn't make her swallow that negro dope. Kohler and Betty told witness they wanted this information in good cause, that Minnie was trying to steal some money away from her child who was going ragged in the streets—called him Tommy Atkins (R. 2101).

Minnie often referred to Tommy Atkins but never as her son or boy; that they had paid witnesses to swear that Tommy was drowned at Leavenworth; Minnie said "I get my money on a dead Tommy Atkins"; the other side still searching for a live Tommy. Page and Long told her if the boy was alive she wouldn't get a cent; that he had to be dead. She later said if other side found the live Tommy she would get half and he would get half.

Witness was instructed by Betty Mann to try to get Minnie to admit there was a live Tommy Atkins; witness asked Minnie if there really was a Tommy Atkins and Minnie hesitated and then said "Sure there was a Tommy Atkins; he is on record and they can't go back on that" Betty Mann, when she was ready to leave Seattle, gave witness the information that there was no Tommy Atkins. Witness advised Mr. Nixon of this and Mr. Talley (Nixon was the one at head of case who employed her; Talley was a lawyer at Tulsa); also advised Interior Department by letter. Reported verbally to Nixon, who had called her from Seattle to Tulsa to check up work done in Seattle by other operatives (R. 2102–03); some of the reports related conversation in which things were supposed to have been said in witness's presence which were never said in her presence (R. 2104). Dictograph had been installed at Minnie's; witness knew of it. Minnie regretted having testified falsely; said if she had her way she would have told it her way in the beginning, but Page wouldn't let her; he wanted to go to law (R. 2106).

Cross-examination:

Govt. Ex. A–101 (R. 4813) is introduced in evidence, letter of witness to Secretary of the Interior. (R. 2150.)

Redirect:

Minnie told witness that Page paid her a salary for seven months before he had any right to do so; it was done on the quiet; said she could have been receiving that salary all her life but that it was cut off after the first trial after Mr. Allen had caught them in the lies. (R. 2156.)

RELATIVE TO CLAIM OF NANCY ATKINS.

Government introduces portion of testimony of Nancy Atkins given Feb. 9/14 in case Nancy Atkins et al. v. H. U. Bartlett et al., pending in District Court of Creek County, Oklahoma—

Lives at Nowata, Okla.; Micco T. Harjo is her guardian; never married; had female child born to her—born dead; never had any other child; had sister Minnie Atkins and brother Lee Atkins; last saw Minnie in 1895; living at Wagoner when child born; was working at Barnard Hotel; baby born at Mrs. Williams; never had any child with her at Wagoner; never worked at McNally's restaurant; doesn't know Thomas Atkins. (R. 2162–63.)

Robert L. Baugh:

Examined records in office register of deeds Creek County, Okla., with relation to instruments filed for record affecting title of Tommy Atkins allotment; other than the patents no instrument of record prior to deed purporting to have been executed by Minnie Atkins to H. U. Bartlett in October, 1912. First instrument of record to Gem Oil Co. was lease of Alexander McNab and Minnie E. Folk and Harry B. Folk executed June 24, 1914, recorded June 29, 1914, a trust deed by Minnie Folk to McNab dated June 13, 1914, recorded June 22, 1914. (R. 2159.)

ELNORA MAYSHACK:

Lived at Brushy Creek near Wagoner, Okla., for about ten years; was living at Wagoner at the time of payment made to the Creeks in 1890; is a freedman of the Cherokee Nation; knew Nancy Atkins in 1890 and for about a year before that; Nancy lived with witness at time of 1890 payment; had been living with her then about six months, in Wagoner; Nancy had child born in morning; died in afternoon, not at witness' house but in a tent "across the track;" witness was present at birth; Nancy had received one payment before that time and got a payment after child born; Nancy told witness she had no other child; Nancy lived with witness about two years after child was born in Wagoner; then witness went to Brushy Creek; Nancy went with her and stayed about one year; witness would see Nancy after that every two or three months; Nancy never had any other child than one mentioned; no boy lived with Nancy while witness knew her. (R. 2163–67.)

MICCO HARJO:

Citizen of Creek Nation; has known Nancy Atkins for 10 or 12 years; is her guardian; at time of his appointment as guardian Nancy lived at his house in

Nowata; Nancy first told him that child she had was a girl, then said it was a boy; first conversation about it was in 1912; first said it was a boy after Hammett had been to see her about a lease; Nancy had been told that if child was boy she could get lots of money out of it. One Hammett and one White both came up about a lease. Nancy never told witness child was a boy until after she was told if it was a boy she could get money; child was born dead; witness told White what Nancy had said about child being girl, but White said he had evidence that it was a boy. (R. 2168–72.)

ELIZA STERLING:

Was present when Nancy Atkins gave birth to child at Wagoner; child was born dead—it was a girl; child born at Elnora Williams's house; Nancy stayed around Wagoner about 6 or 7 years off and on; then went to Nowata; witness saw her frequently while in Wagoner; Nancy lived with witness part of time; knew of no other child that Nancy had. (R. 2179–82.)

Cross-examination:

Thinks child was born in 1889; witness's mother was midwife and witness went with her on this occasion (R. 2183); changes date of birth of child to 1890 (R. 2186).

Redirect:

Nancy used to lead around boy named Joe, son of Betsy Birney—about 3 or 4 years old; witness didn't know any boy in Wagoner named Thomas Atkins. Nancy took care of Minnie's children, Charlie and

Harvey Harrison, for a while. R. 2186–87. (Govt. Ex. A–104, R. 4821, certified copy of sentence of Nancy to penitentiary introduced, showing date of sentence December 23, 1890. R. 2189.)

ANGELINE MOODY:

Knows Nancy Atkins; knew her parents; was present at birth of child to Nancy at Wagoner in house of Elnora Williams; doesn't know year child born, but before Nancy went to "pen"; it was at the time the Iron Mountain Railroad was being built through Wagoner on north. Child was born dead; this was only time Nancy in family way; child born was girl. (R. 2190–91.)

HENRY ANDERSON:

Lived in Wagoner when Iron Mt. R. R. was being built; was straw boss on gang working on road; became acquainted with Nancy Atkins when he first came to Wagoner; she was then in family way; knew of child being born to Nancy; happened to go to Elnora Williams to look up one of his men, Ellis Harris, and found him digging a hole in the yard; asked him why he didn't come to work and Harris said Nancy had found a baby that night and he was going to dig a hole and put it down there; had a box lying on ground; witness picked off the top and looked at it and saw a little newborn baby in it; Harris said it was Nancy's child; saw Nancy frequently after that for about 5 or 6 years; she was not in family way after that child was born; there was a little boy belonging to Della Snow that ran around with Nancy;

it "run around there with all them women"; witness well acquainted in town; knew a Thomas Atkins who lived north of town ten miles, son of Dick Atkins. (R. 2196–99.)

Cross-examination:

Thomas Atkins he knew was son of Dick Atkins; he was there about the camp; was half negro, part Indian—half brother of Nancy's (R. 2205–06); this Thomas had a sister named Chaney Trent (R. 2208).

DORA SMITH:

Went to Wagoner in 1894 or 1895; lived there 18 or 19 years; knows Nancy Atkins; knew her at Wagoner; she had two little boys who she said were Minnie's boys; Nancy told her once or twice that she was the mother of one child; that it was dead; Nancy never told her of having a boy living. (R. 2209–10).

PATSY WILLER:

Lives in Wagoner; has lived there for 28 or 29 years; was married December 28, 1887, and next day went to Wagoner to make it his home; knew Nancy Atkins; first knew her a few years before witness went to Wagoner; Nancy came to Wagoner after witness; when she came, Nancy was in family way; Mandy Burnett was a midwife; she told witness she was worried over Nancy's condition, as the baby had died; witness understood Mandy to say child was a boy; Mandy told witness the child was buried. Nancy remained in Wagoner 6 or 7 years after this; witness never knew her to be in family way again; would see her frequently; saw Nancy with two little boys, who she told witness were her sister Minnie's; no boy named Thomas Atkins around town that witness knew of. (R. 2211–15.)

Henry Kidd:

Lived in Wagoner from 1892; knows Nancy Atkins; didn't know her when she went to the "pen". Betty Mann and Nancy met witness on street (some time ago) and Nancy told witness she never had but one child and that it was a girl and came dead; Nancy then turned to her lawyers, who were in a buggy, and said, "I told that and I told you Mr. Kidd would tell the truth." Didn't know any Indian named Thomas Atkins at Wagoner; there was a colored boy; witness saw him hauling wood; he was Dick Atkins's boy, brother to Chaney Trent; this boy died when about 13 years old. (R. 2220–22.)

Lula Smith:

Moved to Wagoner in 1891; knew Nancy Atkins; worked with her at Barnard Hotel in Wagoner; Nancy told witness she had a child but that it was dead, either born dead or died soon afterward. Nancy left Wagoner about 5 or 6 years after witness came there; saw Nancy frequently; Nancy had been in "pen" before witness came; Nancy never in family way to witness's knowledge; never knew of any boy around Wagoner named Thomas Atkins. (R. 2223–25.)

Martha Hardridge:

Lived in Wagoner since 1891; knows Nancy Atkins; first met her at Barnard Hotel, where witness and Nancy were working; Nancy was there when witness came; roomed together; worked there off and on for eleven months together. Nancy told witness she had given birth to a child born dead. Nancy didn't have any child with her during that year. Knew Joe Birney when he was a small child; he and Nancy would be around there together, and very often Joe would come to hotel where Nancy worked; witness never knew a Thomas Atkins living around Wagoner (R. 2233–34). Joe was about 5 to 7 years old in 1891 (R. 2235).

PATSY JENKINS:

Lives between Wagoner and Choteau; knows Nancy Atkins; she lived awhile at his house; later brought two boys there, Charlie and Harvey—small boys; knows no boy around Wagoner named Thomas Atkins. Nancy told him she had had a girl born dead—this was told before she brought the two boys over. (R. 2235–37.)

Cross-examination:

Nancy said the boys were her sister Minnie's children. (R. 2238.)

SARAH COATS:

Knows Nancy Atkins; first knew her in 1891, when she was working at Barnard Hotel, Wagoner; witness was working for McAnally (another hotel); saw Nancy frequently; knows no boy, Indian or colored, around Wagoner named Thomas Atkins, or Tommy. (R. 2241–43.)

STUART BREWSTER.

Lawyer; lives in Leavenworth; as a boy played with Alva Adams and boys with whom latter played in 1897–98; names number of boys with whom he played, including Tommy Owens and Tommy York; never was any boy in that crowd at that time named Indian Tommy or Tommy Atkins. (R. 3902–03.)

ALEXANDER J. MACNAB.

First learned that Minnie Atkins claimed to be mother of Thomas Atkins when Sadie James was at Fort Lawton. It was on advice of Hanford and Mrs. McCombs witness got Hanford into the case; he was employed by Minnie; had talked to Sadie and Minnie together at time he called Hanford into case. It was while Sadie was still in Seattle that deed of trust was signed by Minnie to witness; Hanford was sent to Oklahoma by witness as trustee, and witness as trustee made lease to Gem Oil Co. Consideration was $10,000 and one-fourth interest in the oil. Nothing in lease or outside of it that witness remembers that they (Gem) were to pay any attorneys fees of the trustee. Consideration paid in two checks of $5,000 each, payable to Hanford. The first $5,000 was appropriated for attorneys fees and expenses, other $5,000 to be turned over to Minnie at a later date, the reservation made of Minnie's $5,000 because Gem people wanted to get her testimony before it was paid. This was explained to Minnie and was satisfactory to her. Witness explains this did not mean testimony before court, because they had no hope of bringing case to trial within the time stipulated that money should be paid. (R. 4090–94.)

Five thousand dollars was turned over to Hanford and witness by Mrs. Folk (Minnie); of that Hanford took $3,000 for expenses to which he had been put and to carry on case; $2,000 was taken by witness, two hundred of which was used for expenses in case, the balance of $1,800 being on deposit as a fund on which to draw for any legal or other purposes. Minnie wanted witness to keep it as his commission, but he states he could accept no commission for the service; that he did not feel like accepting a commission from her, as he was an officer and she the wife of a soldier. Took the money as a means of protecting Minnie's interests in case it became necessary for him to take legal action involving expenditure of money. (R. 4095.)

Besides executing lease to Gem Oil Co., receiving the $2,000, witness counseled with Minnie and her husband a number of times prior to relinquishing the trusteeship. Nothing paid to or promised him other than $2,000 by anyone connected with this case. (R. 4096.)

Remembers Montgomery having conversation with Minnie in presence of witness and Hanford, in December, 1914, at witnesses office. Minnie signed a statement in regard to Thomas Atkins, which was turned over to witness with understanding that Montgomery was to wire Washington to secure immunity for Minnie from prosecution for previous contrary statements made to court, and when immunity granted, statement was to be turned over to Montgomery. Witness turned it back to Minnie the following day, or within two days, and has not seen it since. (R. 4096–97.)

The substance of the statement was that Minnie had never had a son named Thomas Atkins and that she had had only three children—a girl that died and two boys, Charlie and Harvey. Did not contain statement that Thomas Atkins appearing on 1895 Creek roll was placed there by Minnie and represented name of her father.

Montgomery objected to return of statement to Minnie. He showed a telegram from Washington which dodged the granting of immunity but he still felt he could obtain it.

Statement was signed by Minnie in witness's office and in his presence. (R. 4098.)

Cross-examination:

Minnie did not appear frightened by Montgomery's statement about her committing perjury in her former testimony; her main idea seemed to be to get rid of the case. (R. 4102.)

Returned statement to Minnie because Minnie told him that it was false, that Montgomery had persuaded her to sign it, and upon thinking it over she concluded it was wrong to sign it; that she did have a son named Thomas. This was day following day statement was signed. (R. 4102–04.)

Mrs. McComb first asked witness to see Minnie about this land matter; interviewed Minnie, who told him she had a son Thomas; that he had some claim on land in Oklahoma; that he was dead and she was entitled to the land and had been offered $2,000 for it and was going to take it; she knew nothing of the value of the land.

While at Minnie's, Long came in and Minnie told him that he was to talk to witness as her representative. Long stated he wished to secure deed for land (or lease, witness not sure which). Witness told him he would make investigation to ascertain value of land, title to it, and what offers others would make. Long left some papers which he had prepared for signature. Thereafter witness telephoned Hanford and brought him into the case. (R. 4105–07.)

Sadie James came to Minnie's that same morning after Long had left and told witness and Hanford, who had arrived, Long was not the man she was to bring out to make deal (Bartlett); that he had not yet arrived and urged that no deal be made with Long. (R. 4108.)

Long came again while Sadie was there that afternoon and witness talked to him on way to Post from Minnie's. Long expressed pleasure that responsible people were to handle matter and said all that his firm asked was to be given the same chance as others.

Went back to Minnie's later that afternoon and found she had made up her mind to go with Long to Spokane, where her husband was temporarily stationed, and sign deed for consideration of $4,000.

Minnie thought $4,000 was all the money she could use in her lifetime. (R. 4109.)

Hanford and witness decided it would be very foolish for her to sign deed without knowing what property was and tried to dissuade her from going, and finally did succeed in getting her to go up with them and talk it over with Mrs. McComb. As a result of this talk, it was decided that Minnie should deed over property to him as trustee, so that she wouldn't do anything such as she contemplated doing—deeding property to some one for a small sum without knowing what it was. (R. 4110.)

When witness first saw Minnie that morning before he met Sadie or Long, Minnie told him of Tommy's birth at Leavenworth when she was young and "inexperienced"; seemed embarrassed in telling it. Didn't say what particular place in Leavenworth she had had child; that she turned the boy over to somebody to raise; didn't know his present whereabouts or what had become of him, as she understood boy was dead. (R. 4111-12.)

When Sadie James came, she told witness and Hanford that detectives had followed her. He and Hanford went out and talked with them later; didn't find out who they were. (R. 4114.)

Sadie did not, so far as witness remembers, say anything about Tommy except that he was dead. (R. 4115.)

Sadie had something to do with Minnie's changing her mind about going to Spokane with Long. (R. 4116.)

Went to Mrs. McComb's to get Minnie to turn over matter to witness; Minnie didn't go with them; Hanford and witness went there to get Mrs. McComb to influence Minnie. After talking with Mrs. McComb, they sent for Minnie, and agreement to deed to witness was made and trust deed executed. (R. 4117.)

Cross-examination by HANFORD:

Remembers that Sadie told Minnie that she (Minnie) didn't know that Tommy was dead and that Minnie said she didn't know that he was dead of her own knowledge. (R. 4121.)

Was reluctant to accept trusteeship. No understanding between Minnie or any of the parties that any compensation was to be received by witness. Objected to provision in lease for percentage of profits of lease being paid trustee, but was told by Hanford this was to make it irrevocable, so that Minnie could not revoke at will. (R. 4124-25.)

Agreed to see that Minnie got $5,000 for lease, and it was understood when Hanford went to Oklahoma that Minnie must receive in cash at least as much as she would had she deeded to Long. "We raised it a thousand dollars, in order to make it so much better than a deed would have been; so the sum of five thousand dollars was to be obtained for Minnie in cash for her lease." (R. 4127.)

When Montgomery interviewed witness he stated the government had decided to take a hand in the matter, as the case seemed rather involved, and that he was there for the sole purpose of getting the facts for the benefit of the government. He gave the impression to witness that he was not interested in the case in any way; didn't state government's position in the case. (R. 4130-31.)

Just before Minnie signed the statement made to Montgomery she asked "What would happen if I sign that thing and it isn't true?" and that both Montgomery and he told her that if there ever was a time when she could get down and tell a truth, it was then and if it wasn't the truth she should not sign it. (R. 4133.)

Doesn't remember Minnie making any declaration at or just prior to signing statement that she was the mother of Tommy Atkins and that he (Montgomery) could never make her change that. (R. 4135.)

Remembers that Hanford charged Montgomery with misrepresenting his status and that he was merely an attorney for an opposing interest (the Creek Nation), and that Montgomery stated he only wanted to find out the truth. Also remembers that Minnie asked if land reverted to Creek Nation if her boys would get a share. Montgomery told her if land reverted to Creek Nation all the members of the Nation would have an equal interest in it. (R. 4135–37.)

Called up Montgomery on the telephone the next evening after statement was signed and told him he (witness) was convinced statements made therein were untrue; that he (Montgomery) had in a measure been unfair; that he had used witness's name and had gotten at Minnie through witness indirectly; that witness had told him from the start he didn't wish him to do that; that he (witness) didn't want to have anything to do in the case; that he (Montgomery) through misrepresentation in a way had gotten Minnie up to witness's quarters to sign this statement and that all the time, directly opposed to witness's wishes, he had operated on Minnie's sympathies through his apparent influence with witness and his apparent standing with witness, and witness felt that he (Montgomery) had been unfair; that he had gotten witness into the case again when he didn't wish to be; that he had used witness's influence over Minnie to get this statement signed and that witness felt thoroughly convinced that it was untrue; that he hadn't got the immunity that was promised and if he had it would have made no difference; that witness was thoroughly convinced that the statement was untrue and he was going to turn it back to her. (R. 4137.)

Didn't want to be concerned in case, because he had carried on as far as he had intended to; it was a great deal of trouble and worry and he felt that Minnie was secure and wouldn't be bilked out of the property and he gave it over and deeded back. The understanding with Minnie at time that he took the trusteeship was that it should extend only until that stage was reached. (R. 4138–39.)

Hanford told witness at that time, or a little later, that Montgomery was not a disinterested official of the Interior Department, but that he was representing a special interest that was a co-claimant for the property. Doesn't remember when he first learned of Creek Nation's interest and that Montgomery's object was to obtain from Minnie a statement against her own claim, so as to have it revert to Creek Nation. (R. 4139–40.)

Redirect:

Minnie told him she had put children on roll to get money for them; she had drawn the allotment for them while going through Oklahoma. (R. 4142-43).

Doesn't recall whether Long's first offer was $2,000, but his second, the one in the afternoon, was $4,000. Believes there was with papers Long left a statement for Minnie to sign, stating that Minnie was mother of Thomas Atkins and he was dead. (R. 4143–44.)

Doesn't know whether Sadie James had talked to Minnie before she told him about having Tommy at that time; Minnie did tell of having an offer of $2,000 for the property and that a man was coming during the day to talk over and complete the deal. (R. 4145.)

The $2,000 paid to him out of first $5,000 received for lease was paid to witness as his fee for services. He didn't see anything improper in accepting it but later felt that he should return it to be disbursed in Minnie's interest. The further disposition of the $2,000 is a matter which concerns him personally and a matter of his own desire; he is under no legal obligation to pay any part of the money in furthering the litigation. (R. 4147–49.)

Had information about interest of Creek Nation and of filing made upon this land by one Garrett and understood that action by Creek Nation was only preliminary to the filing for title by Garrett interests, before he saw Minnie the day following her confession and thinks he had it when Minnie signed the confession. (R. 4150.)

Hanford saw Minnie the night of the day she made the confession and thereafter saw witness. (R. 4150.)

Deeded back property to Minnie because it was desired by her, and witness felt she was distrustful of him. (R. 4151–52.)

Recalls that Montgomery showed him telegram signed by Mr. Sells, Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

Doesn't remember at time of Minnie's confession whether Hanford told Minnie that if she signed confession it would mean that she would lose right in the allotment, but he does know Minnie so understood because she asked if that was the case and was told it was. Hanford was present and advising her then taking part in the discussion. (R. 4152.)

Cross-examination:

Is quite sure but doesn't know of own knowledge, Minnie had received the $5,000 when she signed confession. (R. 4153.) Hanford said to Montgomery that talk about immunity for Minnie had nothing to do with case, or "can not be done"; Hanford took issue with Montgomery over question of whether it was necessary or could be gotten. (R. 4155.)

T. HOWARD MORTON:

Lived in Wagoner, Oklahoma, since 1891; knew Nancy Atkins about time he went there (1891); was with Davis & Jones Mercantile Co.; never knew of Nancy's having boy named Thomas Atkins or any living child; knew Thomas Atkins, son of Richard Atkins; he died when 10–12 years old; doesn't remember year; saw him frequently around store; can't recall ever seeing him with Nancy; this Thomas hauled wood for witness. (R. 4298–4300.)

JIM CHILDERS:

Citizen of Creek Nation; son of Napoleon Bonaparte Childers; brother of Ellis Childers; knew Dick Atkins; they lived about 1½ miles from father's place northwest of Wagoner; first knew Nancy Atkins in 1890 in Wagoner; knew her when she was in a family way; she was living at Birney's when in that condition; saw her two or three months after this condition disappeared; up to about 1894; witness worked in Davis & Jones' store, began in 1894, worked a year; would see Nancy often in store; knew Thomas Atkins, son of Dick Atkins; would see him at the store; would see him sometimes with Nancy for two or three days. Thomas was about four or five years old; never knew of any other Thomas Atkins in Wagoner. Nancy kept Charlie and Harvey, Minnie's children, for awhile. Witness took Harvey and kept him; Nancy asked him to take care of him as she couldn't; he was then four or five years old; kept him until 1898, then turned him over to Kate Holden; Birney children and others would be around with Nancy—would come into the store. (R. 4300–06.)

THOMAS AUGUSTUS MOZEE:

As a small boy played all over town of Leavenworth; played around Ella Abbott's place over Abele's drug store; played with Tommy Owens, Willie Owens, two boys named Dix; played around Crilly's barn on Seneca Street between 2d and 3rd with Tommy Owens; witness sometimes called Tom Doyle; Tommy York also played with witness; didn't know any boy named Tommy who lived or played up on Seneca Street other than Tommy Owens, Tommy York, and himself.

Played on the stairway leading upstairs over Abele's drug store where Ella Abbott lived; no boy that lived there played with witness; did not know of any boy living there; did not know any boy in town called Commodore or Tommodore; knew Mr. Crilly by sight; Tommy Owens called witness Tom and did so around Crilly's barn. (R. 4482–87.)

Knew Walter Banks; he was older than witness; he lived on Seneca between 2d and 3d. (R. 4490.)

MRS. ADA ARMERLY VAN DUZEE:

Testifies she lived in house on 2d Street about a block from 217 Seneca Street; knew that there was a family living across the street from Crilly's barn who were running a house of ill fame; they were white people; people in her block talked over the matter; it was very obnoxious to them. This was in 1885. (R. 4505-09.)

RICHARD NICHOLS:

Colored. Was a witness in case of Nancy Atkins et al. v. Minnie Atkins et al.; gave testimony by deposition at county courthouse at Leavenworth on October 7, 1914; when he came off witness stand Rube Smith gave him $5.00; asked if anybody went over his testimony with him before he went on stand, witness replied "No, sir," and made like answer to an inquiry if anybody had talked about what the other witnesses testified to before he went on stand. Government claimed surprise because this was in conflict with statement made prior to going on the witness stand (R. 3254–55). Witness then cross-examined by government counsel.

Witness admits talking to assistant United States attorney and Mr. Allen one or two weeks previous; denies that he said in conversation with them that Rube Smith and Dennis Jones went over testimony of other witnesses with him before he went on stand. Admits having conversation with Fred Cook and Mr. Allen in Codding's office in Leavenworth about a year previous, but denies saying then that he knew nothing about the case; that Rube Smith told him that he could just as well make some money out of it and that Rube went over testimony of the other witnesses with witness and that he (witness) went on stand and swore to just what the others were swearing to; states that a stenographer was there taking down "some stuff," but that witness wouldn't sign any statement. Denies that he stated that reason he wouldn't sign was because Dennis Jones wouldn't let him; admits that he testified in 1914 that he knew Minnie Atkins, but denies that he told government officials that Dennis Jones and Rube Smith had put him up to say that and that in fact he didn't know her. (R. 3256–57.)

Cross-examination:

Was threatened by government officials with prosecution for perjury if he didn't tell truth and change his statement; that "he had better get right." (R. 3258.)

Redirect:

Admits first talk with Mr. Allen; was in office when stenographer took down what was said, and that witness agreed to return and sign statement when transcribed; didn't go back.

Q. And you told Mr. German and Mr. Bagley and myself in the National Hotel that the reason that you didn't come back was because Dennis Jones told you not to come back?

A. I might have had, but then if I had Mr. Bond and Mr. Jones and them—they was on the other side; of course there wasn't no use of me going back there unless I was going to change that, and I can't change that and tell the truth, and there wasn't no reason for me to go back. Wasn't no reason to care if I could read it; I could tell, but there wasn't no use of my going back. It wasn't worth while. (R. 3259.)

Cross-examination:

States that he is deputy sheriff and janitor at courthouse and expects tip when rooms are used; asked Rube Smith what was going on and was told depositions were being taken "about Minnie Atkins"; said he knew her; this was overheard by Hanford, counsel for Minnie, who put him on stand; that was all the conversation had. (R. 3260–61.)

Re-examination:

Asked if he had not stated to government counsel that various witnesses who had testified had received money for so doing admits partially that that was true, and admits that the defendants counsel arranged or promised to take him to Oklahoma as a witness; does not directly admit promise of additional money to him or that he made statement that such promise was made. (R. 3262–63.)

After interview with government counsel at Codding's office, witness went to district judge and told him about it, and that he had testified to truth on stand. Judge told him to stick to truth. (R. 3263.)

Recross:

Admits that government counsel in Codding's office told him that all they wanted was the truth about the matter. (R. 3265.) Denies that he told government counsel that he was afraid to testify for government for fear that he would lose his job. as Rube Smith and Dennis Jones were strong in politics (R. 3268); admits that counsel for government told him that government could not and would not pay a cent for testimony (R. 3271–72).

Charlie Anderson (introduced by defendants):

Gave deposition October 7, 1915, in case Atkins v. Atkins; went over to courthouse to see who were to be witnesses; didn't know until called that he was to be a witness; was paid $5.00 by Rube Smith after he had testified. (R. 3273.)

Dennis Jones hired and paid him to trail or shadow Sadie James. (R. 3283.)

For Minnie Atkins.

Emily Ripley:

Went to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1878; husband was chief clerk of military prison; knew Mrs. Lettie Grodevant quite intimately; visited her frequently and Mrs. Grodevant visited her; saw Indian Minnie at Grodevants; she appeared in family way—saw her through a window—and discussed it with Mrs. Grodevant; appeared advanced; that was in 1885, before August; saw her afterwards, condition normal; Mrs. Grodevant told her Minnie had had a baby. (R. 2797–99.)

Cross-examination:

Only time she observed Minnie around fort was while she was living at Grodevants; knew Mrs. Grodevant very intimately before her marriage; lived next door to her at fort; Mrs. Grodevant, for about 2 or 3 years after marriage, lived next door to witness;

doesn't remember year Mrs. Grodevant was married; remembers birth of a stillborn child to Mrs. Grodevant the first year of her marriage, but can't tell the year it was. (R. 2801–02.) Doesn't know what became of Minnie after she left Grodevants. Reason witness gives time of seeing Minnie pregnant while latter was at Grodevants is because that is only time she ever knew Minnie at the fort (R. 2804); was in Mrs. Grodevant's house at time she noticed Minnie—latter was in the yard; had seen Minnie a few months before; can't tell how long afterwards she again saw Minnie; noticed condition of pregnancy but once; fixes year when she saw Minnie thus as 1885, because that year she gave birth to a child and buried one (R. 2805); child born in January, 1885; the one that died, died in August; had not seen Minnie until latter part of May or first of June, 1885; witness had gone frequently to Grodevants prior to birth of her child in January, 1885; Minnie was not working for Grodevant then (R. 2806); went to Mrs. Grodevant's during a period of 3 or 4 months after birth of child until time she saw Minnie first; would sometimes (not often) dine there in evening; played cards there in evening (R. 2807). Witness now says she first saw Minnie a month prior to the time she noticed the evidence of pregnancy in May or June, 1885 (R. 2808–09); saw Minnie working in kitchen about two months later; condition of pregnancy had disappeared (witness was in dining room); from first time she saw Minnie witness would see Minnie almost every day she was at Grodevants (R. 2811); first time she saw Minnie at Grodevants was in May or June (R. 2812); the evidence of pregnancy which she observed was pronounced (R. 2813).

Lee Bond was first to talk to witness about this matter; in summer of 1915; Mr. Long was with Mr. Bond; Long talked to her; a man who said he was a lawyer also talked with her in Cincinnati; recently talked to Bond and Judge Stuart; now staying at hotel where Mrs. Bond is—"around there together." (R. 2815–16.)

At time witness remarked to Mrs. Grodevant that Minnie was in pregnant condition, Mrs. Grodevant expressed no surprise; said she was afraid she (Minnie) was. (R. 2816.)

Witness now says the first time she saw Minnie might have been two months before she noticed pregnancy. It was before witness's child was born that Mrs. Grodevant told her she was going to have an Indian girl work for her. (R. 2819.) In March or April she first saw Minnie; last and only time she saw Minnie after she had seen her in pregnant condition. Mr. Bond and witness's son married sisters. (R. 2821.) Associates seeing Minnie with death of her own child because that year was memorable to her; Mrs. Grodevant and she had been warm friends, but just before death of her child in August Mrs. Grodevant and she had a difference and "I missed her very much and she didn't come to my house." Mrs. Grodevant and witness patched up their difference prior to Grodevants leaving fort in fall of 1889 or 1890. (R. 2824–25.)

Cornelia Hyde Collins:

Daughter of Geo. H. Hyde; resided in Leavenworth during years 1884 and 1885; was 14 years old in '84; knew Minnie Atkins; she worked for Hydes a few months; Minnie left suddenly; remembers seeing "this soldier" two or three times around back door; thought he came to see Minnie; saw Minnie once after she left their employ; witness was driving down Choctaw Street, Leavenworth, and saw Minnie on that street between 3d and 4th; she was without a hat "apparently as if she were staying about there"; Choctaw St. was a disreputable part of town; Minnie was standing in front of a disreputable place; this about two months after Minnie left their employ; witness shocked at her condition—pregnant; concluded it must have happened while Minnie at their house; never saw Minnie again; heard of her having one baby. (R. 2826–30.)

Cross-examination:

Mr. Long came to witness's house once and told her of Atkins case and of the child being born at a negro's house, between the time Minnie worked for them and the time she worked at Grodevants at the Fort; witness had told him that she was unable at that time to state definitely just how long it was after Minnie left their house until she saw in pregnant condition, and witness wrote Mr. Allen (for Government) to the same effect; Mr. Long explained that Minnie's winning valuable land involved was dependent upon proving that she had child at negro's house between time she worked for witness's parents and Grodevants. (R. 2830–31.)

Mrs. John D. Sheehan:

Lived at Fort Leavenworth when a girl; knew Mrs. Grodevant, she lived next door to witness; assisted Mrs. Grodevant in household duties; witness then about 16 years old; Mrs. Grodevant didn't employ help regularly; a parole man from the prison would help around house; thinks it was about 1884 or '85 that she assisted Mrs. Grodevant; assisted her about three weeks at this time; never knew of a girl named Minnie Atkins working for Mrs. Grodevant. (R. 2835–37.)

David Atchison:

Was engaged in wood, coal, and ice business in Leavenworth in 1880 at 4th and Seneca Streets, a block and a half west of Crilly's barn; knew girl named Indian Minnie; first saw her in 1885; she used to come to order wood and coal; had a baby with her; ordered wood and coal for Mrs. Letcher; Mrs. Letcher lived on Cherokee Street, between 2d and 3d, then moved to Seneca between 2d and 3d; recalls the year he saw Minnie as 1885 because it was year before real estate boom in Leavenworth. In going to ice house from wood yard, went by Granny Letcher's house and saw Minnie in the yard a few times. (R. 2842–45.)

Cross-examination.

Witness is father-in-law of Lee Bond; son of witness Mrs. Ripley married one of witness's daughters.

Lee Bond asked witness if he knew Indian Minnie; witness said, "No; who is Indian Minnie?" Bond replied, "You ought to know Indian Minnie; she lived in your neighborhood." Witness said he would study up and then began to think about this woman coming to get coal with baby in her arms. (R. 2845.)

Minnie began buying wood from witness during winter of 1885-86. (R. 2847.) Minnie later went out to Fort to work for Grodevant when child was less than a year old (R. 2850); saw the child in Letcher's yard when it was able to walk; there were other children there—white (R. 2855); saw child when it was about 7 years old (R. 2856-57). Attention of witness called to testimony given by him preceding spring wherein he stated that he believed he saw Minnie in 1884; he now says between '83 and '86 and also that she didn't have the baby in 1884. (R. 2858-59.)

L. B. Bell:

Went to Leavenworth to live in 1884; knew Indian woman there called Indian Minnie who lived at Granny Letcher's on Seneca Street; witness was hack driving and drove Minnie to Fort on one occasion; there was an Indian boy at Granny's—two years old when witness first saw him—called Commodore, also Tommy Atkins; must have been 6 or 7 years old when witness last saw him; never saw Minnie with this boy. (R. 2859-61.)

Cross-examination.

First saw Minnie in winter of '84-'85; never saw her after he hauled her to Fort; saw the boy two years afterward; never saw Minnie at Granny Letcher's; doesn't know anything of her having any boy—the boy that played around there was called Indian Minnie's boy. (R. 2863.) Pomp Graham first talked to him about case (R. 2864); drove Minnie to Fort in spring of '84 (R. 2865); doesn't know any of the people who lived at Granny Letcher's; doesn't recall seeing Minnie until he went to hack driving in January, 1885 (R. 2867).

Mrs. Lucinda R. Riley:

Witness born and raised at 326 Choctaw St., Leavenworth; her mother owned that property; moved from there in the spring of 1885; Lily White moved there immediately after they moved out; leased property from witness's mother. (R. 2871.)

Cross-examination:

Thinks Lily White came there from place on Seneca Street; Lily lived there (Choctaw Street) about a year, possibly longer (R. 2872); witness moved back to Choctaw St. house in May, 1888—house had been vacated about three months before; thinks another party had lived there after Lilly White moved out (R. 2873); Lily White's hurry to get into house was on account of action of city council requiring her to vacate her Seneca St. place (R. 2875).

Mrs. John Welch:

Father worked at Crilly's; witness carried his meals; saw Banks boy, two other boys, and Tommy Atkins around there; Tommy was living in the Feth house when witness moved there; Tommy was 7 or

8 years old then; recalls that mother and she stopped a quarrel between older boys and Tommy; knew of Tommy being there with Granny Letcher until about 1894. (R. 2877–80.)

Cross-examination:

Tommy was small—about 2 years old—when witness first learned his name; Granny told witness this boy was a child of Indian Minnie (R. 2882); Mr. Crilly brought Long to witness's place about 2 or 3 years ago; Long asked her if she knew Tommy Atkins and Granny Letcher (R. 2884); witness born in 1876; was about six years old when she first saw Tommy around Crilly's (R. 2890).

PHILIP TUCHER:

Worked for Crilly & Cranston; Van Tyle & Geo. Waller; Crilly & Cranston were on Seneca St. between 2d and 3d, north side of street; Van Tyle's was at 3d and Seneca; worked around that block 18 years; knew Granny Letcher; she lived on Seneca between 2d and 3d—right across from Crilly's barn; knew Indian girl named Indian Minnie who lived with Granny, saw her for a year or more there; saw her in pregnant condition; saw her nursing baby afterwards on porch at Granny's; saw her carrying baby in her arms; saw baby after he grew up and got to playing around in yard—called him Tommy, nicknamed him Commodore; didn't come around the barn; was about 4 or 5½ years old then (about 1890); doesn't know positively what year Minnie had this boy. (R. 2891–93.)

Cross-examination:

About five years before fire that destroyed Crilly's barn witness commenced working on Seneca Street; Granny Letcher not on that street then; Dotter living in the house Granny later occupied; several families moved in and out after Dotter before Granny lived there (R. 2895); didn't see Indian woman before Granny moved into the house; Jim Mayo was about 30 years old when Granny moved into house; Sam Nash, about 18 or 19 (R. 2896–97); Tommy only child witness paid any attention to; Indian Minnie stayed with Granny Letcher until Tommy was about 3 years old (R. 2897); is positive Granny was living in Seneca Street house when Minnie was pregnant (R. 2899).

Crilly first mentioned case to witness winter before last. Came with Hanford to Kansas City to see witness (R. 2902); Crilly asked if he knew Indian Minnie and if he knew her when she had the child; doesn't remember Lilly White (R. 2903).

Recalled.

Saw Indian Tommy around Ella Abbott's place over Abel's drug store, 3d and Cherokee Sts.; knew boy until he was about 3 or 4 years old. (R. 2995–96.)

Mrs. Ina Massie McCormick:

Wife of Dr. John A. McCormick; husband told her of attending a childbirth of a young Indian girl in Leavenworth in 18*65* (probably means 18*85*) (R. 2905); saw this Indian girl once when she came with a woman named Letcher to see Dr. McCormick (R. 2906).

Cross-examination:

Dr. retired from active practice in early '80's—'83 or '84—but he had a great many families that he cared for and was their physician after that; Dr. asked witness if she wanted to see the Indian girl; simply went and looked at her (R. 2908); knew this colored woman with Indian girl to be a midwife; can't describe colored woman; can't describe Indian girl—just an ordinary Indian girl; has no judgment as to what her age was (R. 2910–11); husband asked her if she wanted to come in and see the Indian girl who had had the baby (R. 2912).

ALEXANDER FORD:

Came to Leavenworth in 1875 or '76; worked for Dave Atchison in 1885; was sort of foreman for him in hauling of wood from Missouri; some days would stay around wood yard working or delivering; knew an Indian woman (Indian Minnie); saw her around wood yard; first time witness saw her she came for baskets of chips "and things," from Mrs. Letchers; had a "papoose baby" with her; saw her several times; saw her once by the house; understood child's name was Tommy. (R. 2913–15.)

Cross-examination:

Heard child spoken of as Tommy at Letcher's (R. 2916); that was about 1885; talked to Hanford and Long about matter (R. 2917); child was about five or six months old when witness first saw him (never saw him but once; R. 2918); Rube Smith came to his house and asked him to come to Leavenworth to testify; "they" gave him a couple of dollars one time and $5 another time—received $10 or $12 all together; talked to Long, Hanford, and Bond (R. 2919); saw Indian woman at Letcher's during a period of two or three months; last time witness saw child he was 7 or 8 months old (R. 2920); has no way of fixing time he saw this Indian woman at wood yard except that it was in the eighties (R. 2922); Granny Letcher lived on Seneca St. between 2d and 3d at that time in the frame house (R. 2023); child looked to witness to be full-blood Indian (R. 2924).

WILLIAM D. FORD:

Lived in Leavenworth in 1885; worked at times for Dave Atchison at wood yard, 4th and Seneca Streets; knew Indian woman called Indian Minnie "around there"; every time she came around there she carried a baby in her arms; heard the baby called papoose; thinks this was in 1885; they lived at Letcher's on Seneca between 2d and 3d; never saw Indian Minnie at Letcher's but did see the baby. (R. 2926–27.)

Cross-examination:

Saw baby in 1895, was then 10 or 11 years old; witness was told it was the same boy; was at the wood yard only one summer—the summer he saw Indian Minnie before he went away to Missouri. (R. 2928–30.)

(Witness seems confused as to his dates; states it was summer, 1883, then 1885. R. 2930–31.)

Witness talked with Hanford and Rube Smith about the case (R. 2932–34); Mr. Bond gave him $10 when witness came over to testify; received $6 since that; Mr. Bond is to pay his board. (R. 2935.)

John F. Roderick:

Was a member of firm that ran a bus line from Leavenworth to the fort between years 1879–1885; knew Indian Minnie; first saw her on corner 5th and Shawnee Streets waiting for a bus to the fort; remembers hauling her time and again, back and forth between town and fort; on one occasion about last of June or first of July went in Mollie Peters's at 3d and Seneca (Seneca Hotel); Mollie was a fortune teller and also waited on women; Mollie told him she had just brought a baby into the world and for witness to go over and see it; witness went over and saw baby lying by the side of Indian Minnie; about 3 or 4 weeks later went there again and asked about baby, and was asked to get baby, and did so, and took it over to Aunt Mollie's; baby was in house across from Seneca House; colored people lived there. (R. 2937–41.)

Minnie was at bus stand when he first saw her; didn't see her go in bus. "How I knew this Indian Minnie; I recognized her; they told me afterwards who she was"; didn't discover that she was in family way then, but he did discover it; saw her 3 or 4 times a week on an average (R. 2943). It was last of October or first of November, 1884, when he first saw her; witness drove busses mostly at night; saw Minnie riding in busses; she rode in the bus he was driving (R. 2944); first time he saw Minnie at Molly Peters's was in 1882 (R. 2945); the baby was 3 or 4 days old when he first saw it (R. 2947); child was 10 or 12 days old when he took it from house across from old Seneca House to Molly Peters's; first saw Minnie on street with baby in her arms about 8th or 10th of July, 1885 (R. 2951); after he dissolved partnership with Crilly & Cranston he went to Fort Riley and stayed until November, 1885, then began running bus again; never saw Indian woman again until two years ago (R. 2953); saw this Indian woman several times with Mollie Peters; she was on her way to Lange's drug store when witness saw her with baby (R. 2954); called the baby Tommy Atkins, also called papoose; admits that papoose is all he ever heard child called. [Note: In previous testimony at Leavenworth he stated that when he took child to Aunt Mollie's it was 1½ months old. (R. 2956.)] Crilly talked with him about case, also Long (R. 2958); denies that at Leavenworth he did not testify that when Long first talked to him he could not remember anything about it (R. 2959).

A. L. Johnson:

Physician and surgeon; lived in Leavenworth in the eighties; remembers attending Mrs. Mattie Edwards (now Cobb) at childbirth in April, 1885, at old Seneca House on Seneca St.; second day after Mrs. Edwards' confinement he called to see her; a woman came in and after she went out Mrs. Edwards said to witness that he might have a case there; didn't learn woman's name; saw that woman about two months ago at his daughter's house; she came with Mr. Long; Long introduced her as Mrs. Folk; identified her as same woman he had seen at Mrs. Edwards's; knew Granny Letcher; was called there to see Indian baby boy in February, 1886; baby was about six months old; it was dark complexioned; didn't look like a nigger; treated baby again in June, 1886, at same place; it was about a year old. (R. 2961–65.)

Cross-examination:

Fixes time of incident regarding Mrs. Edwards' baby by fact that he was then living on the "Hastian place" just out of city limits; kept no record of obstetrical cases until 1889; can not tell any other obstetrical cases he attended that year; received letter from Mr. Bond asking if he had attended Mrs. Edwards in April, 1885; wrote Bond he had no record; was asked to go to Federal Building at San Francisco; young man there asked him about confinement of Mrs. Edwards and if he was sure it was 1884 or 1885; witness said couldn't swear to it; witness asked his daughter, who fixed it with reference to time witness and wife made trip to Chicago (R. 2966–67); letter written by witness to this man (Rathburn) March 22/16; (Def. Ex. B–2, R. 4937); states birth was in April, 1884; the statements then made were facts as he remembered them; after that letter Mr. Long came with Mrs. Folk to see him (R. 2968); another doctor assisted at confinement of Mrs. Edwards—was a stranger to witness, can not tell his name; Granny

Letcher lived across street from Mrs. Edwards at this time (R. 2969); at the time he saw this woman at Mrs. Edwards' he didn't notice that she was pregnant; she was in room about five minutes; recalled the face when he saw it 32 years later (R. 2972).

[See in connection with this testimony Def. Ex. B-3, B-4, B-5, B-6, R. 4938-40.]

Regarding Ex. B-3, Dr. Johnson says in answering that letter he made no investigation to determine whether date stated in letter was true; just took it for granted date given in Bond's letter was correct (R. 2990-91). Came to Muskogee to testify at Mr. Long's request; agreed to come for expenses and time; received check for $250 from Long (R. 2991-92). Judge Stuart (counsel for defendant) told witness not to talk to anyone (R. 2994).

C. R. Carpenter:

Physician; practiced in Leavenworth 30 years; remembers being requested in 1886 by man named Peterkin to attend woman in confinement in Leavenworth on North H. Street (R. 2997); found woman in labor; a physician can determine whether woman in labor has had a child before; details changes which take place in pregnant woman during labor (R. 2998); the substance of that is that membrane of organ is ruptured and while these tears heal the edges never come together, thus leaving a notch or scar. Made an examination of this woman to see if this was first child and found evidences of previous labors; notches are evidence of a full birth (R. 2999).

Cross-examination:

Understands house where confinement took place was Wood's house (R. 3000); recollection is that it was in daytime that he reached house (R. 3001); recollection child born during night; light (lamp) was "kinder dim"; examination to determine evidences of previous labor is important because first labor is always hardest (R. 3003); in all labors there are lacerations of the womb but not always lacerations of perineum; doesn't think that there were any lacerations of the perineum—it was perfectly normal; might have been some lacerations of perineum—wouldn't be sure (R. 3004).

Will not state that after labor has begun one can by digital examination tell positively whether woman has previously given birth to a child, but says one can in a majority of cases. (R. 3010.)

First man who talked to witness about the case was a detective; never did know his name; Mr. Anderson, a lawyer of Los Angeles, also talked with him; told Mr. Anderson that he couldn't remember whether that was her first child and that he would try to get his records and ascertain. Witness was very hazy about matter, and at that time only thing he could remember was Peterkin coming for him; wrote for records, but they were gone. (R. 3014–15.) Upon testing his memory he began to recollect that during this examination of this woman he had found evidences of previous labor. (R. 3015–16.)

Attention of witness directed to deposition taken before examiner in California wherein he stated that he had told Messrs. Allen and Cook when they had talked to him that his best recollection was that it was the first child born to her; denies that he stated on that occasion that it would be impossible for him to testify with any degree of certainty as to whether it was her first child by reason of the large number of childbirths occurring during his practice attended by him. (R. 3016–17.) Later, says that he presumes he gave the answer to the questions which the deposition shows. Admits stating on deposition that his recollection was that this was first child; that his records would probably show, but that he didn't always note that point in his records; never received any of the records sent for; had not had his memory refreshed by any record, statement, etc. (R. 3017.)

Witness is asked about correspondence between Mr. Allen and himself relative his testimony. (R. 3022-23.) Govt. Ex. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. (R. 4852–56.)

MILTON WEBSTER:

Knew Indian Minnie at Granny Letcher's in 1885 or 1886; saw her in a family way—far gone on May 30, 1885; she had a baby boy—was about 4 or 5 weeks old when witness first saw it—this not long after he had last seen her when pregnant; Minnie told him it was her child; last time saw child it was about 11 or 12 months old; witness left Leavenworth in 1887; never saw Minnie or child thereafter. (R. 3030–32.)

Cross-examination:

Last time saw child was in fall of 1887. (R. 3032.)

Adolph Lange:

Was in drug business in Leavenworth in 1884 and 1885 on 4th and Shawnee St.; lived over store; knew Indian Minnie, saw her frequently; knew Mollie Peters as a fortune teller; saw Indian Minnie with her; they came to his store. Witness made trip to Saxony in 1884; returned from Europe in September, 1884; saw Indian Minnie after that time in pregnant condition; it was year following, in '85; it was warm weather; remembers selling Minnie a peculiar shaped pocketbook at the time. (R. 3047–50.)

Cross-examination:

His understanding that Minnie stayed with Mollie Peters; was on ship leaving for Europe June 18, 1884; knew Indian Minnie before he went to Europe; saw her around Leavenworth before July 11, 1884; she came to his store before that time, sometimes on errands for Molly Peters; first saw her the year of 1884—before he went to Europe (R. 3052-53). After his return, in September, 1884, Minnie would come to his store once or twice a week (R. 3054).

A. W. Hopkins:

Lived in Leavenworth 40 years; grand secretary of secret order of Knights and Daughters of Tabor—a beneficial order of colored people; association met in grand lodge; meeting in Memphis in 1884; acted as outside sentinel there—Indian woman, mixed breed, was inside sentinel; she asked witness if he knew of young woman in Leavenworth named Minnie Atkins; returned to Leavenworth in September or October, made some inquiries, but didn't find Minnie at that time; finally in spring located her at Granny Letcher's; saw her in summer and she had a baby in her arms; walked up to her and looked at baby—Minnie said it was hers. (R. 3067–70.)

Cross-examination:

Granny Letcher then living in Seneca Street, right across from Crilly's barn (R. 3075); denies having talked with Sadie James and told her that he didn't know Minnie or an Indian boy (R. 3079). After depositions were taken in Leavenworth, some lawyer asked witness if he understood, or did Dennis Jones and Rube Smith understand, that he (witness) was father of Minnie's child, and witness told them he didn't know what they understood (R. 3081).

W. P. Gempel:

Bookkeeper at Leavenworth Water Co. Identifies a contract for water service at 215 Cherokee St. dated Oct. 23/85 for saloon of Max Harris; also plumber's return Oct. 22/85 certifying that fixtures have been installed. (R. 3087–89.)

M. A. Harris:

Formerly in saloon business at 215 Cherokee St., Leavenworth; remembers having water installed there; doesn't remember the date he moved in; it was in 1885. (R. 3096-97.)

Lizzie Kazey:

Laundress; knew Granny Letcher; went to see her occasionally; knew her when Granny lived on

Cherokee St. and on Seneca St. between 2d and 3d; saw Indian girl called Minnie Atkins at Granny's twice; she had a child about 2 years old, named Tommy Atkins. (R. 3098-99.)

Cross-examination:

Saw child on both visits, which were about two weeks apart; doesn't know date or year it was; married in May, 1882; it was after her marriage when she saw Minnie and Tommy, perhaps it was two years after her marriage (R. 3099–3100); went to Granny for advice regarding housekeeping; when first married lived on Miami St. for a year, then to Osage St. for five years; was probably the first year she moved to Osage St. that she went to see Granny Letcher and when she saw Tommy, who was then, witness says, two years old (R. 3102–03). [Note.—This would make Tommy two years old in 1884.]

Sadie James was at witness's house in December, 1914; asked her if she knew Mary Letcher and if she remembered boys Mrs. Letcher raised; told Sadie she remembered Walter and Sammy Nash. (R. 3103–04.)

> Q. Now, did you tell Sadie James, Lizzie, that they wanted you to swear that you knew Indian Minnie and Tommy and you had agreed to do it, but when the time came God wouldn't let you swear that lie; that you were 51 years old and a Christian?
> A. I never told her anyone was after me because I didn't know what she wanted with me at that time.
> Q. Did you tell her this other?
> A. No, sir; I never told her nothing like that. Some gentleman was with her; I don't know who it was—but I never told her that, though. I didn't tell her somebody was trying to get me to swear, because I didn't know what it was when she came to my house.

Q. Did you tell her anything about God wouldn't let you swear that lie?

A. If I did, Judge, I done forgotten it; I don't remember anything like that. (R. 3104.)

Some one came and got her when they had court at Leavenworth. Pomp Graham told her to be ready; that government would send her to Muskogee. Dennis Jones furnished her ticket; she came down to Muskogee; Dennis Jones, Rube Smith, and others came down on same train. (R. 3106.) Upon arrival she went with Jones; doesn't know who is to pay her for coming down; didn't ask; thinks Government has her here. (R. 3107.)

Frank Heis:

Lived in Leavenworth since 1868; in spring of 1885 endeavored to purchase certain lots on Choctaw St. owned by Mrs. Schiller; she asked too much money; she moved out that spring and Lilly White moved in. It was early in spring when Mrs. Schiller moved out and Lilly White moved in. (R. 3110–11.)

Cross-examination:

Witness left the adjoining property in summer of 1886; Lilly White was living in Schiller property then (R. 3111); didn't know about petition to get Lilly White off Seneca St. (R. 3115.)

Patrick De Laney:

Was on the police force of Leavenworth beginning 1894; then in fire department beginning 1899; was fire chief for 3 years; knew of Granny Letcher; she lived on Seneca, between 2d and 3d; knew a boy called Tommy Atkins, lived with Granny; arrested him in 1896 or 1897; appeared to be about 12 years old; never knew Indian woman named Indian Minnie. (R. 3118–19.)

W. J. COWLING:

Knew Lilly White; worked for Burdett & Heis in 1885, on Choctaw and on Cherokee streets; knew Schiller house next door to stoneyard; Lilly White moved there about April 1885, not later than May. (R. 3131–32.)

JAMES M. ALLEN:

Has been connected with Rock Island Railroad in various capacities since 1875; knew Indian Minnie during 1884, 1885, in Leavenworth; saw her several times, particularly at Granny Letcher's on Seneca Street; saw her there with baby 3 or 4 months old in her arms; it was in 1884 or 1885; it may have been earlier than that but sometime during that period; changed service with Rock Island in 1885 and wasn't on streets as before. (R. 3139–41.)

Cross examination:

Saw Minnie several times during latter part of 1884 and early part of 1885 at Granny's—always went there in daytime (in evenings, about 5 p. m., R. 3147); went there to see a man to sell him transportation (R. 3150); thinks he saw Minnie at fort, and that she was working at Grodevants; never saw her at Grodevants (R. 3154); Grodevant told him

Indian Minnie was working for him (R. 3157); doesn't remember whether this was before or after he saw Minnie at Letcher's; was talking with Grodevant and witness said, "There goes Indian Minnie"; won't say this was before or after he saw her at Letcher's. "Everybody in town knew Indian Minnie" (R. 3159).

MATTIE COBB:

Lived in the old Seneca House on Seneca St., in Leavenworth, in 1885; had a child born to her April 20, 1885, in that house, Grace Edwards; Indian Minnie waited on her four days just before baby was born; Indian Minnie was pregnant then; she had a child born at Granny Letcher's last day of May or 1st day of June following birth of witness's child; saw it many times; had it in her own house and washed its hands and face; it played with witness's children; baby was called Commodore; saw Minnie around there 5 or 6 months, then she disappeared; Minnie went back and forth to fort. (R. 3163–64.)

Cross-examination:

Minnie was not able to do very much of the work when at witness's house those 4 days; witness saw child when four days old in bed with Minnie at Granny Letcher's; witness had baby "around the house" for a year or two (R. 3165); witness would run over to Letcher's every once in a while to see baby and Granny would bring it over to witness's house; saw it for the next four years; couldn't say child was full-blood Indian, it favored the Indians (R. 3166).

An effort was made in cross-examination by Carter interests to secure admission from witness that she had stated that she had noticed a birthmark on Tommy's shoulder and also that he had been taken out to the country by an old vegetable man named Carter. Witness would not make such admission (R. 3169–71); talked to Long, Page, Bell, and Bond about case (R. 3172–73).

Cross-examination:

One Bob Martin endeavored to get her to testify that the Indian child (Tommy) had a white spot beneath its shoulder; Martin was associated with Bell and Blackney in case (R. 3184; see also R. 3192–93). Can not recall date of her first marriage nor year her first child was born (R. 3204).

Saw Minnie daily for 4 months that she saw her; she was working out at the fort and went back and forth; slept at Mrs. Letcher's; went to fort in the daytime (R. 3225); Minnie hung around the fortune teller's a great deal (R. 3228); Tommy was about 5 years old when she last saw him (R. 3229); Granny Letcher moved into the Seneca St. house in the fall of 1884; it was cool weather (R. 3232); George Crilly was first person who mentioned Minnie's name to her since 1885, about 3 months ago (R. 3234).

THERESA SWOBODA:

Employed by Leavenworth Times; identifies issue that paper for May 12, 1886, containing account of storm which passed over Kansas City and Leavenworth, also issue of May 13, 1886, containing further account of destruction caused by storm. Offered these articles in evidence. (R. 3286–88.)

Cross-examination:

Identifies Leavenworth Times of May 1, 1885, containing account storm that occurred on Tuesday before Friday, May 1, 1885; also issue of May 21, 1885, having article relative departure of 20th U. S. Inf. from Ft. Leavenworth to Ft. Assinniboine. (R. 3290–91.) Witness doesn't remember hearing of this storm of 1886. (R. 3291).

THOMAS HIGGINS:

Born in Leavenworth 1881; worked for father there for 3 years from time about twelve years old, then worked for McNally driving delivery wagon; knew Tommy Atkins to be around alleys and on Seneca and 3d Streets; Tommy about 11 or 12 years old; sometimes rode on back of wagon witness drove; never remembers seeing him after 1900 (first saw him when he first worked for McNally—worked for McNally 1897–1900); Tommy lived at Granny Letcher's on Seneca Street; looked like an Indian. (R. 3292–94.)

Cross-examination:

Last saw Tommy in 1900 (R. 3296); Pomp Graham first talked to him about case; asked him to testify; promised him transportation, wages and expenses; also furnish transportation for witness' wife. (R. 3300–01.)

ALVA ADAMS:

Knew Tommy Atkins, played with him around alleys and lumberyards near Granny Letcher's on

Seneca Street, between 2d and 3d Streets; last time saw Tommy was in 1897 or '98; Tommy would be captain of one side when boys played war; Tommy was also called Indian Tommy. (R. 3302–03.)

Cross-examination:

Witness 10 or 12 when he first saw Tommy (R. 3306); Tommy lived at Granny Letcher's (R. 3308). Pomp Graham and Higgins (witness's brother-in-law) came to him about case—first he had heard of it; Pomp asked him to be witness. (R. 3309.) Witness spent 60 days in jail in 1898; Tommy living at Letcher's when witness went to jail; didn't see him after he left jail (R. 3310); remembers Sam Nash who was about 6 or 7 years older than witness (R. 3311); witness thinks Tommy was older than he a year or so (R. 3312).

Henry Carter stands up and witness declares he is not the boy he knew as Tommy Atkins. (R. 3318).

Elof A. Crilly:

As a boy played in neighborhood of his father's barn at 220–222 Seneca Street, Leavenworth; lived in old Seneca House, and after that was burned, in the new Seneca House built on same site; knew Granny Letcher who lived on other side of street from father's barn; played around lumber yard adjoining Granny's and back of Granny's with Tommy, Walter Banks, and others; Tommy and Walter lived at Granny's; Granny would often give the boys playing around there cookies and things like that; Tommy about 6 or 7 years old when witness first knew him, about 1892; saw him for about two years, never saw him since. (R. 3319–23.)

Cross-examination:

Must have become acquainted with Tommy and Walter soon after Granny moved onto Seneca Street (R. 3324); Tommy looked like a mulatto; Tommy was the only name witness knew him by; saw Tommy but about 1½ years (R. 3325); witness was 11 or 12 when he played with Tommy, who then was 6 or 7 years old (R. 3329). Mr. Long came to see witness after witness's father had talked to him about case; talked to his father and to Mr. Long about three times about case; also talked to Mr. Hanford (R. 3330); never heard what happened to Tommy; witness's father mentioned fact that "they" were trying to put some one up as Tommy; also told him that he felt that Henry Carter was Tommy Atkins because Henry remembered incident of pointing to pear trees and being told pears would drop off if he pointed to them (R. 3330–31).

George Crilly:

Came to Leavenworth in June, 1870; went into livery business for himself in 1878; been in that business continuously since then. One time member of Crilly & Cranston, formed in 1880, and continued until 1892; also member firm Roderick, Crilly & Cranston, formed in connection with contract for bus and freight service to Ft. Leavenworth; this was dissolved some time in 1885 or beginning of 1886, won't be positive about date.

Stable located in 80's at 220–224 Seneca Street; lived at old Seneca House, adjoining the stable, between 2d and 3d Streets; knew Granny Letcher from 1877; she died in 1900, about 8th of July or August; she lived across the street from stable in Dotter property; Lily White succeeded the Dotters and Granny succeeded Lily; Granny moved in about middle of 1885; knew Indian Minnie; she was about 22–25 years old; had seen her around on streets time and time again, first one place and then another; that was a good while before she came to Granny's; first knew her there in latter part of 1885; would see her around Granny's often but she wasn't there constantly—would be there two or three days, then would disappear and witness wouldn't see her for a week or ten days; then she would show up, and again go away for same period or perhaps two or three weeks; saw her around Leavenworth altogether 2½ or 3 years.

Saw Minnie not later than July or August, '85; must have been latter part of year, with child 5 or 6 months old, on back porch of house occupied by Granny, across the street; saw her probably half dozen different times with child—he was called Tommy. Saw him around there continuously after that until Tommy was 6 or 7 years old. Witness called him Commodore; recalls incident at Van Tyle's stable at 3d and Seneca Streets, when Tommy picked up Van Tyle's pipe and put it in his mouth; this last time he recalls seeing him—might have seen him thereafter but can't say; was burned out in 1890; few weeks later started rebuilding stable and moved back to that location.

Fixes date of seeing Tommy in arms of Indian Minnie by fact that his wife was away and had been for some little time; she left in 1885; had been away about a year when she died in September, 1886. (R. 3332–38.)

Cross-examination:

Met Long early in this case; he first mentioned name Atkins to witness who knew Minnie only as Minnie; has been employed by Long to drive him around and also some of his witnesses. (R. 3339–40.)

Witness was asked about conversation with Mr. Allen (gov't counsel) as to when he saw Minnie with baby with reference to time his wife left him (R. 3341), says that he doesn't think he stated that he saw this boy with Minnie before his wife left him, "that is along about the time." Lilly White moved out of this house in summer of 1885, remembers that from "petition papers" he found; won't be positive that his wife left him before Lilly moved out (R. 3342); it was about that time (R. 3343); thinks Lilly left in June or July, 1885; Granny moved there in fall of '85 (R. 3343).

Witness has been hired to search for witnesses; thinks now Lilly White and Granny Letcher were in that house for a while at the same time (R. 3344); saw Minnie around the streets with Ida Foster long before she was at Granny's (R. 3346).

Doesn't remember petition circulated to have Lilly White removed from 217 Seneca St.; never saw petition until Gov't Ex. 51 is exhibited to him (R. 3347). Is asked about signers of the petition and states he knows a great many of them; they lived in that locality (R. 3347–50); Lilly White left that house suddenly (R. 3350).

Never saw Minnie in family way (R. 3354); saw her at Letcher's 2 or 3 years after child born (R. 3356); considered Tommy part negro, part Indian; Minnie was woman whose character was questioned (R. 3358).

Long sent witness money to pay expenses of certain other witnesses in coming to testify (R. 3360). Relates call upon him in November, 1914, of Henry Carter and how he endeavored to ascertain by tests if Carter was the same boy he knew as Commodore; was not satisfied that he was, but told Long he wouldn't be surprised if Carter didn't prove to be Commodore (R. 3362–63).

Witness's boy that played with Tommy was about same age as latter, perhaps a year younger; he was four years old when witness's wife left him (R. 3366).

Witness admits talking to Clarence Turner and saying that he could lay his hands on the Tommy involved and that he thought Henry Carter might prove to be Tommy (R. 3368). Asked if he didn't state in 1916, after receivership hearing, to R. C. Martin that in his judgment Carter was the boy "Commodore"; witness denies the positive statement but states he said that Carter might prove to be the boy (R. 3368–69.)

Lawyer, admitted to Kansas bar in 1892; from 1880 to 1885, '86, '87, was porter at Continental Hotel part of the time, part of time on police force and part of time barbering; went on force as special policeman in 1884 to collect road tax (in summer); was on again in 1885; was regularly a special policeman in '85; knew Granny Letcher, knew her up to time she died; knew her when she lived at 215 Cherokee St.; next lived on Seneca St. between 2d and 3d; Jim, Sam Nash and Walter Banks, and a little boy called Arch (one-eyed boy) were members of her family; Arch stayed there occasionally, also Tommy, son of Indian Minnie; knew Minnie; first saw her about winter of '84 at Letcher's on Cherokee St.; didn't know her then, but knew her when she was with Granny on Seneca St. in spring of '85; saw Minnie in a condition not normal in May '85 at Granny's; knew a child there which Minnie said was hers; it was several months old when he first saw it; child was 12, or 13, or 14 years old when he last saw it; would see him at times; kept track of him enough to know it was same boy; knew Minnie to be around Granny's or in Leavenworth from '84 to '86 or '87; doesn't know just when she left or where she went; she disappeared; child was then about 1½ years old; has seen Minnie since I have been "here"; states positively it is the same woman who is now Mrs. Folk; has known Sadie James for 33 or 34 years; remembers her coming to his office to see him about Indian Minnie or Indian

Tommy; first time was in spring of 1914; stated she was looking for Indian Minnie who stayed at Letcher's; asked if witness knew Minnie; witness stated he believed he did, and that she had a "kid" there; told her Minnie was gone and he didn't think she could find trace of her around there; told her to see number of men from whom she might find out where she was. Not many days after Sadie came with Betty Mann; wanted more information and names of some old colored women; he named them; witness did not tell Sadie that he didn't know Minnie; didn't tell witness she wanted to hire him to help manufacture a Thomas Atkins; never said to her that he could get bankers and doctors and lawyers to swear hell was an ice box; it was on Friday and she wanted to come again on Saturday, but he told her that was motion day in court and that she better come some other time; the next week she came with two white men; Swift was one. Sadie had a paper she wanted to execute—a deed transferring land in Oklahoma; heading was State of Missouri, County of Jackson; witness told her she would have to have paper fixed up in Missouri; Sadie said it wasn't her signature; wanted him to sign paper; gave her name of Mr. Calloway, a notary in Kansas City. Pretty sure she didn't say anything about Tommy and Minnie Atkins.

Betty and Sadie came back to his office and Sadie wanted witness to go to Kansas City to meet a Mr. Buell or Bartlett; told her he didn't have time; thought something was wrong but didn't let her know he had any suspicions; she never came to his office and told him that she had met Bartlett, that he had a lot of money and that she wanted him to go ahead and help her manufacture a Thomas Atkins. Received a telegram from Mr. Long at Tulsa, Okla., asking him to come there (this after he had talked with Sadie); went to work for Gypsy Oil Co. on March 4, 1914; went to work for them before he got in touch with Mr. Long; a man by name of Adair was the next one to come to see him about Indian Minnie matter after Sadie's first visits; this on 3d or 4th of August, 1914; witness was called to Mr. Bond's office and Adair talked to him, asked him if he knew about a boy an Indian woman had there in Leavenworth; witness told him what he knew and that he had heard of a boy answering that description living Washington, D. C. Witness heard this from a Mrs. Venerable; he was repairing one of his houses for her to go into; she had just returned from a visit to Washington and Maryland; he asked her if she knew of a boy named Tommy Atkins; was induced to ask her because it was fresh in his mind—looking for the boy; "they" (Sadie and somebody else) told him whoever found the boy and mother would be well paid for it; agreed to accompany Adair to Washington the next day.

Made a contract with Gypsy Oil Co. through Adair, who was representing it. Identifies def. Minnie Atkins' Ex. B-7 (R. 4940) as the contract signed by him; contract read into record (R. 3383); provides for payment to Jones of $10 per day and expenses while trying to locate Thomas Atkins, and further that if Thomas is located and his identity established, Jones is to receive an additional sum of $500. (Crawley not Adair signed for Gypsy.)

Went to Washington, found a Thomas Atkins there, but was not right party; returned to Leavenworth and was relieved under this contract.

Some little time after received telegram dated Sept. 16, 1914, from Long to come to Tulsa; telegram read "Will expect you Tuesday morning Sept. 22d sure"; met Sadie James at station. Before receiving telegram some one came to him in Leavenworth, can't say whether it was Sadie James, and talked to him about working for Gem Oil Co. Denies being visited by Sadie James and being told by her that she wanted to hire him for the Gem Oil Co. and that she would bring Long to see him, but for him to insist on seeing Page before making any arrangement.

When he met Sadie at station in Tulsa she said she would show him where Mr. Long was, and witness went to his office; saw Rice and Page; entered into a contract with Page; it was an agreement to do practically what he had been doing for Gypsy (so witness says). At that time didn't know Sadie was working for the Gem Oil Co.; she never told him she was going to get him hired by Gem nor did witness ask her to.

Sadie came to his office and told him she had been in Seattle, Tacoma, and other places; wrote him three post cards while she was away; told him she had found mother of Tommy in Seattle; did not tell witness she had framed Minnie up to claim she had a son named Tommy Atkins; witness at that time working for Gypsy Oil Co.; Sadie never had any arrangement with him whereby if boy found they would switch to Gypsy. Under contract with Gem Oil Co. witness has been paid $10 per day when there was anything to do. First time he talked with Long about employment with Gem, witness told him he was under contract with Gypsy and couldn't accept; later, when Gypsy contract expired, he thinks perhaps he wrote him and that caused Long to send telegram.

Contract between Jones and Gem Oil Co. read into record (R. 3390–91); it provides for payment to Jones of $10 per day and expenses not to exceed $5 per day (15 days being time contemplated for work); also that if Jones shall obtain satisfactory proof of death of Thomas Atkins and Gem Co. shall be successful in its litigation, Jones shall receive additional sum of $500. Contract recites that Jones represents he has valuable information relative to life, birth, and death of Thomas Atkins, and is in a position to obtain definite data thereon, and he agrees to give his time to securing that data and shall proceed to do so on his own initiative and under instructions from Co. Never at any time in conjunction with Page or Long or Sadie James or any party to this suit did witness attempt to fabricate a case; never attempted to practice any fraud. (R. 3372–94.)

Cross-examination:

Is an attorney of record for defendant Charles Page; remembers occasion of taking depositions at Leavenworth; asked if objection was not made to his presence there, states objection not made in his presence; asked if he was not then made counsel in case in order that he might remain in attendance while witnesses testified; can't tell why; doesn't know whether telegraphic communication was sent and advice returned that he had been entered as an attorney of record. (R. 3394.)

Testified as a witness in the case pending in Creek County in 1914; had not prior to that time been engaged by Sadie James nor later by Gypsy Oil Co. to look for a living Thomas Atkins (R. 3395); had not upon his own initiative looked for a Thomas Atkins previous to employment by Gypsy Oil Co.; he had made some inquiries in his own behalf because he had been told by Sadie James that if Thomas Atkins were found a reward would be paid (R. 3396).

Had some business with Sadie previously relative to property of an old soldier at the soldiers' home, who wanted to will his property to Sadie; also wanted to obtain certain papers in Odessa, Missouri, held by a bank; Sadie wanted witness to go to Odessa to seek to obtain papers; he declined but recommended another lawyer.

Denies that he suggested to Sadie that she marry the old soldier; that he got him into his office and furnished money for the marriage license and that he paid for the marriage license (R. 3397); denies that he got the old man into his office and got a power of attorney for Sadie James. Identifies Govt. Ex. A-8, R. 4839, as power of attorney he made for Sadie, in which Sadie was authorized to attend to all business for Charles Lane (the old soldier), sign his name, etc. Witness states Lane told him to put those powers into the instrument. Admits he took acknowledgment of the power; says he didn't know anything about Sadie being married to Lane then. Told Sadie that she could go and get a white lawyer to do more down there for her than he could and gave her a letter, dated Nov. 26, 1913, to Codding & Codding, of Leavenworth, in which he stated that he had known Sadie for many years, from her girlhood days, during which time he had never heard of any wrong act or deed on her part; that her maiden name was Sadie Harris and until her marriage to Charles Lane, her name was Sadie Johnson and as far as he knew, she was a worthy woman.

Denies that he and Sadie wanted to get the old man's property and divide it; denies also that after power was executed he and Sadie did take charge of the property and divide it (R. 3399); denies that he tried to draw old man's pension that was paid for a year and a half after that and to take it as his; denies that Lane turned the proceeds of his pension check over to him (R. 3400). Witness denies he and Sadie operated together to find a living Thomas (R. 3401); had no agreement with Sadie (R. 3402).

Denies that he testified in October 1914 that first time he had seen Minnie was when she came to church with a negro; declares that he testified that first time he saw her was at Letcher's on Cherokee Street in '84 or '85. Admits that yesterday was first time he ever claimed to have seen her at Letcher's on Cherokee St.; says that was the first time the question was ever asked him.

Q. You found out since you testified in 1914, Dennis, that she couldn't have been living on Seneca St. when she was in a family way?

A. No, I didn't find that out. I just testified what I knew.

Q. But you were asked all about your knowledge of this woman and when you first knew her.

A. Yes, sir, I told it.

Q. And you didn't tell you saw her on Cherokee St.?

A. They asked when I knew her and I said eighty-four and eighty-five. (R. 3402.)

Witness is confronted with his testimony given in October, 1914; admits that he read it before he signed it. In it he testified that Granny Letcher's was a place where men and women resorted for immoral purposes; that he lived just about four blocks from Letcher's; that Minnie stayed at Letcher's most of the time she was pregnant and afterwards when child was toddling around and pulling to chairs; that first time he saw Minnie was at Granny's in 1884; she must have been pregnant then; that the way he found out her name was Atkins she came to the colored church at 6th and Pottawatomie Sts. with a colored man and the other darkies wanted to know why he would bring a white woman there, and he among others began to inquire about her name (R. 3402–04). Admits that this was his testimony at that time, particularly the church incident (R. 3404).

Admits it is six and a half blocks from his house to Cherokee St. but explains that when he testified that he lived four blocks from Letcher's all the time he saw Minnie there he was thinking of when she lived on Seneca Street.

Remembers petition circulated to remove Lilly White (Govt. Ex. 59; R. 4912), was in police service at time; says Lilly moved out in April before petition was circulated (R. 3405; see also R. 3408).

It was after the birth of the child that he saw Minnie with colored man at the church (3406).

Denies that he stated in his office in presence of Betty Mann and Sadie James that he wanted them to see Henry Byrd, a negro at Leavenworth, and have him agree to be father of Tommy (R. 3409).

Q. Rube Smith wanted to be this child's father, didn't he?

A. I don't know what Rube wanted to do. (R. 3409.)

August 22, 1914, witness wrote Gypsy Oil Co. in which he expressed conviction that Thomas Atkins was living (R. 3412-13); on 26th got letter from Gypsy saying they didn't want him to go out again until he got definite information; this witness considered terminated his employment.

On 22nd of September (next month) he declared in his contract with Gem Oil Co. that he had definite information of death of Thomas Atkins. Witness says he based that statement on information received which consisted of a letter from Washington, D. C., attorney dated September 29, 1914, wherein it was stated that he had furnished Mr. Greenslade with names of Chicago people who could give information relative history of Thomas Atkins, furnished by the woman witness referred to. (R. 3414.) This was in answer to one written by witness on September 27, 1914, wherein he asked who parties in Chicago were who gave information of death of Thomas Atkins. (R. 3414–15.) This letter was written four days after his contract with Page and Gem Oil Co.

Witness says he also received information of death of Thomas Atkins from Greenslade after latter had dug around in Washington, D. C. Greenslade told that in New York City before they returned to Leavenworth.

Witness admits writing letter to Gypsy after his return, wherein he stated he was convinced he would be successful in search for living Thomas. (R. 3416.)

Sam Nash now works in Page's bank at Sand Spring; Walter Banks is looking after freight coming in and going out of Page's depot at Sand Springs. (R. 3422.)

Referring to telegram received from Long asking him to come to Tulsa, witness states he now thinks that prior to that time he must have had talk with some one about employment with Gem Oil Co., but it couldn't have been Sadie James. Was rather surprised to see Sadie at station at Tulsa; she took him out that evening to Page's park. (3425.)

Recalled:

Produces two commissions appointing him to police force of Leavenworth; one bears date May 13, 1885; witness was working in his barber shop when he got that commission; Lillie White moved from Seneca Street before witness got this commission; referring to petition to remove Lillie White and Ella Forrest, witness stated that address therein given for Ella Forrest as 305 Seneca St. is incorrect, Ella lived at 230 Seneca Street. (R. 3907–08.)

Cross-examination:

Commenced working on police force in 1880; was appointed a special policeman in 1884, served part of year, and again in 1885, also in '86, '87. Lilly White never lived on Seneca Street but once. (R. 3909.)

Shown copy of decree in divorce action of Charles Lain versus Sadie Lain (Sadie James) showing that J. K. Codding was attorney. (R. 4156.)

Cross-examination:

Witness wrote a letter to Codding recommending Sadie James to him in another matter (R. 4157).

[There was read into evidence an article from the Leavenworth Times issue of about December 6, 1914, or January, 1915, wherein Jones was quoted as stating that he believed Henry Carter to be Thomas Atkins. R. 4312–13.]

Witness states that he was misquoted, and endeavored to have correction made but without success. (R. 4314–15.)

Asked about letter sent to attorney Codding relative Sadie James and admits the matter involved was the property of the old soldier Lane [Lain]. (R. 4316.)

JOHN COUCH:

Knew girl named Minnie Atkins in Muskogee in 1897; took a trip with her in 1897 to Denver, Colorado, and Fort Logan; stayed four or five weeks; borrowed money of Minnie to return to Oklahoma; didn't to his knowledge see Sadie James in Kansas City on way out to Denver; Minnie didn't leave station, so far as he knew; wasn't out of her company but about thirty minutes; that was in August, 1897. (R. 3480–82.)

Cross-examination:

Witness and Minnie were not married; lived with her at Fort Logan for four weeks. (R. 3483.)

BETTIE MANN, recalled:

States that she told Page, Long, and Josey in summer time of 1914 that there wasn't any Tommy Atkins; admits execution of instrument dated October 12, 1914, between C. H. Rogers and S. C. Mann and Kirkbride, wherein it was declared that Thomas Atkins was then living and his whereabouts known to "said brokers"; it was agreed therein that ——— dollars would be paid upon production of a deed from Thomas covering his allotment and proof of his identity. Witness states reason she signed this when she knew there wasn't any Tommy was "just because they wanted to frame up and wanted a Tommy Atkins." (R. 3495.) Kirkbride, Rogers, and she agreed to frame up a Tommy.

Cross-examination:

After she had done work for Bartlett along up to March, 1914, she had discovered that there wasn't any such boy as Thomas Atkins; knew Minnie didn't have any; she and Dennis and Rube and Sadie framed up to create one in March, 1914.

Q. You knew when you were working for Mr. Long and Mr. Page and the Gem Oil Company, when you took this trip to Seattle, you knew Minnie didn't have any such child?

A. I had never been able to find where she had one.

When she talked to Minnie in Seattle, before Long arrived, she was in employ of Long and Page, as well as Bartlett; working for both sides. (R. 3496.)

F. B. LONG:

Employed by Charles Page; been with him about one year; prior to that was employed by Page & Josey from 1912 in charge of Page's lands, leases, and rentals; secretary of Gem Oil Co.; no stock in company. Made investigations to find out owners of Atkins allotment; investigated claim of Nancy Atkins and concluded she was not mother of Thomas. Received advice from one C. B. Rogers that he had information about Thomas; agreed to give Rogers one-eighth interest in a lease if he could procure one; in May, 1914, Rogers told them he didn't believe he could locate Thomas; that he had been working with Betty Mann and he and Betty believed Thomas was dead; that Betty would be able to locate Minnie Atkins; later came to tell them Betty knew where Minnie was. Next day witness met Betty at Sapulpa. She told witness she had been working for Bartlett; that she had located Minnie and was going to see her; that Bartlett would be there also. Witness agreed to pay Betty $2,000 if she put them in touch with Minnie, and they obtained a lease from her. Betty would not tell witness where she was going, but promised to wire him; about week after received telegram signed Bill Jones, asking if he was ready to come. Wired answer that he was "if you are positive you have the right party"; received another wire telling him to come at once; went to Seattle, Washington; didn't send Betty any telegrams en route; arrived Seattle Saturday, June 13, 1914; saw Betty, who told him Minnie was at Fort Lawton; also told him that she (Betty) had Sadie James with her; witness knew of but didn't know Sadie then. Betty told him Sadie really had located Minnie and had talked to her but had refused to tell Betty where she was. Betty had found out where Minnie lived by hiring detective to follow Sadie. Betty put him in touch with their detective, Kohler, who went with witness to the fort; went alone to Minnie's house; there were three men there, one holding horses, two on the porch with Minnie; witness was introduced by Minnie to the two men, Capt. McNab and Lt. McComb; witness told them he wanted a lease on the allotment. Capt. McNab asked if witness was white man "who is supposed to be here"; witness answered "I suppose I am." McNab said there had been a negro woman around there for 4 or 5 days bothering Minnie, wanting to buy the land; witness told him she was not employed by him nor did he know anything about her; that he wanted a lease, not the fee. Told McNab he had brought lease and contract and would like to talk it over with him. He then talked alone with Minnie to satisfy himself as to her identity; she told him she was mother of Thomas Atkins; McNab and McComb then came into the house and lease proposition was discussed; they told witness the negro woman had offered $4,000; witness stated he would give more than that and one-eighth royalty for a lease; it was suggested that attorney be employed who was familiar with lease forms; McNab and McComb seemed a little suspicious of witness, and he gave them references to wire to. McNab said they would consult their attorney and for witness to return in afternoon. Returned to fort about 3 p. m.; saw some visitors on porch—"saw this negro woman on the porch"; didn't go up to house; waited around and soon McNab and Hanford came along; McNab and Hanford were to represent Minnie; discussed terms of lease and witness's proposition. Hanford stated they were having Minnie execute trust deed to McNab so she would be protected; agreed that witness would not attempt to see or talk to Minnie any more, but have dealing with McNab and Hanford; didn't see Minnie again until day he left Seattle.

Witness went back to hotel; that evening Hanford phoned him that Minnie has executed trust deed to McNab. Next day, Sunday, Hanford came to hotel and said they were ready to do business; Hanford stated they had concluded to make independent investigation and he would write friends to inspect property and report; witness suggested that would keep him in Seattle too long, and agreed to advance expenses of trip to Hanford to make investigation with understanding that he would reimburse witness if lease was not executed to them. (R. 3497–3506.)

Saw Sadie James and Betty Mann on Sunday at their hotel; Betty phoned him to come; Sadie James was there and flew into rage over fact witness was there, accusing Betty of double-crossing her. Witness told Sadie he had seen Minnie and had found that the Army officers had taken over her affairs; Sadie said "we don't want to fall down on getting Minnie" and offered to get Minnie and take her to Everett, Washington, for $6,000; witness told her there was nothing to be done with Minnie, that she had turned everything over to McNab; did not state to Sadie James there at that time that he (witness) had found a Tommy or would make a Tommy. Saw Minnie next day (Monday); she was called over to McNab's quarters, where witness and Hanford were with McNab, and witness asked her if she was satisfied to have McNab and Hanford act for her.

In conversation with Minnie on Saturday, Minnie told witness Tommy was born in Leavenworth, Kansas; didn't inquire of her where or when he died. (R. 3506–08.)

Upon arrival of Hanford and witness in Tulsa, the latter placed Hanford in touch with Page and Josey, and negotiations were had which resulted in a lease on a bonus of $10,000. (R. 3508.)

Next made investigation of Indian Office records relative Atkins family, and interviewed several persons in Oklahoma. Went to Seattle about first week in July to go over data with Minnie; discussed with Minnie for several days her history, made memo. of substance of conversations with her. (R. 3510–11.)

Witness reads from memo that Minnie stated she had Tommy right after she left Lt. Stafford's (witness deduced that this was in 1886 or 1887); Minnie stated boy born in summer; that he was born in Sisters' Hospital; she went right to hospital from Stafford's; witness states Minnie first said something about boy being born in colored place but quickly changed it, saying it was a slip. Witness did not put that in memo. (R. 3516–17); Minnie stated that she named Thomas after her father; that she couldn't get any wages with child on her hands, so she gave him to a woman in Leavenworth, part colored; then she went to Ft. Logan with 18th Inf.; stayed there 8 years; in 1888 or '89 received letter to send money to the boy—she did so. Had Alice and two boys there; Alice died when one year old; went to Oklahoma with Harvey and Charlie Harrison (witness figures this as 1894); Minnie thinks she was in Oklahoma two years; Kate Holden took the boys. Minnie told them about going to the payment at Okmulgee in 1895 and that Thomas was then alive; that it must have been about 1896 she went to Denver with John Couch; finally landed in Ft. Logan latter part of 1896 or early part of 1897; 7th Inf. there then; later she stated went to Ft. Logan in July or August, 1895, and made trip with Couch in July or August, 1895; after a year went to Detroit, Michigan; stayed there two years then returned to Ft. Logan; while there then she heard from Thomas who was still in Leavenworth (R. 3517–19).

Witness says Minnie also stated (this not on the memo.) that when she was at Detroit she received a letter telling of Tommy's death—received the letter after 7th Reg. came back from Cuba. (R. 3519.)

Sadie James in August, 1914, came to Gem Oil Co. office and told witness she had quit working for Bartlett, that they had been all over the United States looking for Tommy, had located five or six, but they didn't prove out; that she had lots of information that would be valuable to Gem Oil Co.; witness took her to Page, who directed him to bring Sadie out to the park at Sand Springs. Witness met Sadie and her husband at park; found Page and had talk. Sadie represented that she knew all about Tommy's life history and could get witnesses; knew he was dead. Page told her if she got the evidence he would give her $1,000. Sadie wanted a contract and one was drawn next day; check for $1,000 was deposited in escrow to be delivered when Sadie fulfilled her part of contract. (R. 3529-30.)

Sadie went to Leavenworth and witness met her there. She introduced Rube Smith to him as a man who would know all about Tommy Atkins. Had told him previously that Rube was the father of Thomas. Rube told witness he might be, didn't know, he never said he was. Witness wanted him to admit it. Told witness about Minnie, and he fixed birth of Tommy as 1885 or 1886. (R. 3531.)

Witness relates visits and interviews with Kate Logan, Sam Nash, and George Crilly (R. 3531-33); Crilly gave him some 40 or 50 names of people who might know about matter; Nash also gave him some names (R. 3533); employed Rube Smith to look up information for him, agreed to give him $5 a day, and verbally agreed to give him $500 if they won lawsuit (R. 3534).

In meantime, Sadie James had been working to discover place where Tommy died; she had also made trips to Weldon, Missouri, and Pilot Knob to visit cemeteries; witness expressed dissatisfaction and said that she was not getting anywhere; Sadie then proposed that she would fix up a burial place for $500; witness declined and then had Tulsa office call Sadie down there. Sadie went away next morning (R. 3534–35); witness never talked to Sadie after that (R. 3536); later says he is mistaken about that when he recalls date of contract with Dennis Jones (R. 3537). Sadie returned to Leavenworth and told him Dennis Jones was through with the Gypsy Oil Co. and to go to his office and see him. Witness went and had brief talk with Jones, who stated he could accept employment but would rather make arrangements with witness's employer. Witness agreed to pay Jones's expenses to Tulsa; few days later Jones came to Tulsa, Sadie met him and brought him to office of Gem Oil Co., where he executed a contract. Witness returned to Leavenworth and saw Mr. Hanford; it was agreed after another conference at Tulsa that Hanford should go to Seattle and discuss with Minnie a valuable line of evidence which witness had secured, Minnie had previously testified at Sapulpa. (R. 3537–38).

In a week or 10 days they decided to take some depositions. Mr. Hanford came back with Minnie, who "was very much surprised to learn that we had learned the truth about her" (R. 3538), the truth about the place of birth of Tommy. She had told Mr. Hanford on way from Seattle that she didn't want that known and didn't think it was anybody's business where he was born, and she had testified that she had the boy at the Sisters Hospital, and that in truth Thomas Atkins was born in Granny Letcher's house (R. 3538); that was in fall of 1914; October. Witness and Minnie went to Leavenworth and talked to Crilly. Crilly and Minnie recognized each other. Witness had previously phoned that Minnie was with him (R. 3539).

Witness details visits made with Minnie to different persons to see if they would recognize her. (R. 3540–41.)

The next day Rice, Page, and Josey came and talked over all the different information with Minnie and soon after that the day was set for taking depositions and all these witnesses testified in the State court case. (R. 3541.)

Cross-examination:

During employment in Indian Service became familiar with records in office of Dawes Commission.

Knew of Sadie James; she was a notorious woman; had been tried for murder a few times and ran the "Bucket of Blood." (R. 3544–45.)

Knew reputation and character of Betty Mann and knew of her conviction for forgery prior to 1914. (R. 3546.)

The $10,000 for the lease was paid in two checks, both payable to Hanford. (R. 3571.)

Explains statement made in letter written July 7, 1914, while en route to Seattle with Hanford, that "Hanford is still talking right" thus: That when witness and Hanford left Seattle, Hanford was very distant and cold; after reaching Tulsa he maintained that attitude; "we couldn't get acquainted with him personally"; this even after agreement prepared providing that McNab as trustee and Minnie were to furnish Hanford's services as attorney and they (Page et al.) to pay expenses; they were trying very hard to get close personally to him and finally before they left for Seattle witness thought he had gotten pretty close to him. Josey admonished him particularly to keep Hanford in the case, that he wanted his services on account of his connection at Seattle. Hanford had said before he left that he would stay with them; that he would continue as attorney for Minnie, provided they (Page et al.) paid his expenses; a contract was prepared and Hanford signed it and it was signed by McNab and Minnie.

Hanford had been gotten into case by McNab, and Minnie was dependent upon McNab and McComb families, consequently Page et al. wanted to keep Hanford in the case. (R. 3579.)

After interviewing Minnie and getting data about her history, etc., which was incorporated into memo., the information contained in the memo. was put into an affidavit which Minnie signed. "That affidavit has the exact facts that were in my written notes because it was written from them." (R. 3585.)

Called upon to produce affidavit, witness states unable to locate it. Hanford states he had it and that he destroyed it because it was not true. (R. 3587.)

After Minnie testified in the State Court suit at Sapulpa on July 21, 1914, wherein she stated that she carried Thomas when she was at Staffords and went to the Sisters Hospital and had the child there, and that but one child was born to her at Leavenworth; witness went to Leavenworth the next day and looked over records of Sisters Hospital, found that maternity cases were not taken there until after 1890; went through the records for 1885, 1886, 1887, 1888, and couldn't find that Minnie had been there. Then went to Cushing Hospital but couldn't find any record of Minnie being there (R. 3608–09). Minnie and Hanford went to Leavenworth a few days later and then Minnie returned to Seattle (R. 3609); Hanford went to Boston to see Peterkin; that was first time witness had heard of name.

Next step in case was when Sadie came in August. (R. 3610.) Learned from her or Rube Smith name of woman with whom Minnie had left child, Granny Letcher on Seneca Street, and that it had been born there. (R. 3614.) Minnie testified at Supulpa that the baby was born at the Sisters Hospital and she testified at Tulsa that it was born at Granny Letcher's. (R. 3633.)

Witness is unable to find statement made by Minnie to Page, Josey, Rice, and witness after they had gone over case with her. (R. 3629–35.)

Sadie proposed to them in consideration of $1,000 to produce witness who would swear Tommy was born and lived until 1899 and that his father was a negro. She was to receive the $1,000 if they won out. (R. 3635.)

THOMAS E. KIRKBRIDE:

Contract executed between him and Sadie Mann and one Rogers is referred to; witness states Betty Mann told him she knew Tommy Atkins was alive and when and how she would reach him; witness declares he did not enter into a conspiracy with Betty or Rogers to manufacture a Thomas Atkins. (R. 3661–62.)

R. A. JOSEY:

Associated with Page in Gem Oil Co. To best of his recollection first time he ever heard any claim that Thomas Atkins was a myth was when Minnie Atkins made her confession at Seattle. Page and he were sole owners of capital stock of Gem Oil Co. (R. 3666.)

Cross-examination:

Wasn't anxious that Hanford be employed or retained by them; didn't know anything of his legal attainments or ability. (R. 3667.) Can't explain what he understood from statement in letter received from Long that "Hanford is still talking right" (R. 3668–69); doesn't remember receiving affidavit of Minnie Atkins which Long stated in another letter he was sending (R. 3670). Does not remember Minnie making written statement in Kansas City, but remembers being present with others and having conversation with Minnie. (R. 3670–71.)

Must have received information regarding Sadie James prior to wire from Long July 16, 1914, because Long refers to her only as "Sadie." Doesn't remember what information he had previously unless it was her in connection with other parties trying to secure lease. (R. 3671.)

Doesn't know why assignment to lease of Gem Oil Co. was made to himself and Page; recollection is Rice & Lyons (attorneys) suggested it; witness was depending on Page and Page's attorneys.

Witness sold his interest in land involved to Page for $140,000, with an agreement that if litigation is lost witness is to pay back $20,000 (R. 3676–77); market value of property at that time was at least one and one-half million dollars (R. 3678).

Edward C. Hanford:

Remembers when Dr. Carpenter testified at San Diego; had not then seen Dr. Carpenter; had heard that his testimony would be worthless because of his senility; relates how he happened to put him on stand. (R. 3026–27.) Cross-examination on this matter. (R. 3028–29.)

Commenced practice of law in Seattle in 1898. First met Minnie Atkins on June 13, 1914. Was called to Fort Lawton near Seattle by Capt. McNab who told him of Indian woman then called Indian Minnie, from whom a negro woman was endeavoring to secure deed of oil land, offering $4,000 therefor. McComb and McNab had been called into the case; a man named Long was also there asking for a lease; he had left form of lease and contract; witness advised that matter be looked into before any papers signed—that it might be possible to develop land themselves without leasing; went with McNab to Minnie's house; witness was introduced to her as McNab's lawyer called in to look after her interests; Minnie said she didn't want her interests looked after, that she intended to accept the $4,000 offered for land. Witness and McNab tried to "jolly" her out of that idea and told her they would do everything they could to prevent her selling unless land was not worth more; she was determined; Minnie told them of Sadie James bothering her and that she (Minnie) feared her.

While they were talking Sadie James arrived at car station and started towards Minnie's; an auto with two men in it followed her; Sadie didn't come to house, and they sent Minnie to see what was the matter; Minnie brought Sadie to house and she said the men were detectives who were following her; she was told that witness was McNab's lawyer and that nothing would be done until matter was looked into. McNab told Sadie that Long was endeavoring to secure lease for Page; Sadie told Minnie she would get term in the "pen" if she signed those papers because Minnie didn't know Thomas was dead. Minnie insisted Thomas was dead. Sadie told McNab and witness she had seen Tommy when he was five years old, in 1899. Sadie represented that she had been sent out by Dawes Commission to get the land.

McNab and witness went out to see detectives, and on the way agreed that Sadie was dangerous and must be got rid of; detectives would not disclose for whom they were working; returned to Minnie; told Sadie they wanted her to keep away from Minnie, and she must leave. Sadie departed, and McNab and witness started for post; on way witness suggested that they have Minnie execute deed of trust to McNab in order to keep her from signing property away. On the way they met Long; he was waiting for them; had seen, so he said, that something was going on at the house; was told plan to have McNab made trustee, and expressed pleasure; McNab assured him of a fair chance; Long agreed not to attempt to see Minnie, and was assured the matter was in McNab and witness's hands. Deed of trust was executed by Minnie, they agreeing to see that she got $4,500 if she would wait until witness went to Oklahoma to investigate. (R. 3690–95.)

At time memo. of trusteeship executed Minnie admitted that she had five children. (R. 3696.)

As soon as trust agreement was entered into witness informed Long thereof, and that he would have to deal with witness acting for NcMab. Had talk next day with Long, as a result of which it was agreed that witness should go to Oklahoma at expense of Long to make investigation, and if lease was entered into with any other than Long's company witness would repay Long for expenses. Next day Long gave witness ticket to Oklahoma and $100 expense money. (R. 3696–97.)

Long desired to be sure Minnie's action in trust deed was voluntary, so asked Minnie about it (in presence of McNab and witness); she said it was satisfactory. Long desired Minnie's signature to compare with a photo signature of hers which he had—this he later explained was to check her signature with signature on roll. (R. 3697.)

Went with Long to Oklahoma, and on the morning of their arrival went out early to see Page, with whom they had breakfast, and discussed question of leasing. Page made several offers. Upon arrival of Rice, Page's attorney, and after further discussion, Page offered $10,000 for lease with 12½% royalty. Witness told Page he thought that would be satisfactory, and if he decided to make lease to Page that would be considered tentative agreement as to bonus price. (R. 3698.)

Next day Long and witness went to Sapulpa to look into record of suit involving Nancy Atkins's claim to land; called up judge before whom case pending and informed him Minnie was living, and he stated he would not render the judgment prepared in that case. Did so next day, however. (R. 3699.)

Went to Muskogee and looked into Indian Office records relative Minnie and Nancy Atkins and others. Witness got oil maps and explanations and opinions regarding Cushing pool and its probable extent. Had several conferences with Page and Rice and agreed upon form of lease in all respects except that witness insisted Page should bear all expense of quieting title in Minnie; they insisted that witness should cooperate; finally agreed that McNab and Minnie would furnish witness's services free of cost except that they (Page et al.) should pay witness's expenses. Contract entered into and sent to McNab and witness wired later that immediate drilling necessary and that execution and return of lease should be expedited.

McNab had wired of interest of Bartlett and Gypsy Oil Co. to secure lease, but witness found out about forged deed of Minnie, which they had taken, and felt that they were adverse claimants and he couldn't deal with people who were claiming under a forged deed, and that influenced him to give Page the lease as well as the fact that he was an individual and witness was dealing with him rather than a corporation, where he would have officers to deal with. (R. 3700.)

At his request payment was made to witness in two checks of $5,000 each; reason given was that he desired to have $5,000 to cover his expenses while litigation was going on, the other $5,000 to go to Minnie. One check was made not payable until July 30th; reason assigned by Page and Josey was that they were not satisfied of the identity of Minnie. (R. 3701.) Agreed that Long should return to Seattle to satisfy himself as to identity of Minnie. Long returned to Seattle with witness and they went to American Lake and explained matter of checks to Capt. McNab. He agreed to arrangement subject to approval of Minnie. (R. 3702.)

Long and witness interviewed Minnie who told her life history; Long took notes; Minnie said that while at Leavenworth she had given birth to Thomas Atkins at the home of an old colored woman with whom she had left him; Long asked her the name of this colored woman; Minnie asked if that was necessary, to which Long replied yes, that they could go there and trace Thomas and find if he is really dead; Minnie said "wait a minute"; got up, left the table, returned, sat down, and said she was mistaken, that he was not born there but at the Sisters Hospital. Prepared and had Minnie sign affidavit reciting details told by her. (R. 3703–04.)

Upon McNab's return to fort he talked to Minnie about the two checks and he told witness it was satisfactory. They cashed one $5,000 check; witness gave McNab $2,800, keeping $2,000 for expenses. (R. 3705.)

Received word from Rice & Lyons of a hearing to be had at Sapulpa and started for Oklahoma with Minnie, who was needed for purposes of identification. [This Sapulpa hearing was an injunction suit brought by Gem Oil Co. against the Gypsy Oil Co. to prevent interference with Gem's possession of property. R. 3706.]

After having started back with Minnie to Seattle, stopped at Leavenworth to look up records at Sisters Hospital and was told no confinement cases were taken at the time witness figured Minnie had child. (R. 3707.) Witness scolded Minnie for lying and she confessed that she had lied and that child was born at an old colored woman's in Leavenworth; witness drove her around town, but Minnie couldn't recognize house although she recalled places she had been and places she had known; wouldn't tell name of colored woman. (R. 3708.)

Interviewed Peterkin in Boston, who told of his relations with Minnie and of birth of girl child to her at Woods in 1886. (R. 3709.)

Tells of being informed of employment of Sadie James and of warning Page that she was a dangerous woman; Page was sure that Sadie would find evidence of death of Tommy. (R. 3711.)

Witness relates trip of investigation in Leavenworth and how evidence was secured relative to Granny Letcher, etc. (R. 3711–13.)

Went to Seattle and endeavored to get Minnie to tell about her past, saying to her that they had secured information about colored woman at Leavenworth, etc. Minnie wanted to return to Leavenworth and would not tell anything, although witness states he "could see that the information they had was correct."

Deposited check for $5,000 for collection (second check). Received telegram that check not paid. Wired Tulsa and received reply that Rice advised Page not to pay check. (R. 3714.)

Received word that depositions were to be taken and to bring Minnie. On way back Minnie admitted information witness had was correct; said reason she had not told was she did not want people at Seattle to know it. Upon arrival at Kansas City, Page, Rice, and Long talked to Minnie, who wouldn't tell anything. One of these men told witness Minnie was afraid he (witness) would tell McNab and that

Seattle people would know; witness assured Minnie, and she then stated she had had Tommy at Letcher's; so they decided to take the deposition; Minnie taken ill and could not give her deposition when others were taken at Leavenworth; afterwards Minnie's deposition was taken at Rice & Lyon's office. (State court case.)

Witness's next activity with this matter was after receipt of copy of complaint on behalf of Quinton Garrett suing for cancellation of Thomas Atkins's allotment and for its allotment to him. He left this to Rice & Lyons. Went out to see Minnie and found Mr. Montgomery, a representative of the government, who told him he was investigating Minnie's claim to the land, whether it was good and whether suit should be brought for cancellation of the allotment and patents. Stated he wanted the true facts, but wanted to talk to Minnie alone; Minnie insisted on Hanford staying. Minnie was very much excited about something Montgomery had read to her to effect that people at Sapulpa had had witnesses to prove father of Tommy was a negro. Witness assured her that witnesses had not so testified. Asked Montgomery to let him see what he had read to her. Mongtomery refused, but said he had shown it to McNab in confidence. Told witness he (witness) had been deceived by people down there, but witness insisted that he had facts. Montgomery said he would return next day. On that day witness went to Minnie's and found Montgomery there, who asked if he knew Minnie had executed a deed to Page; Minnie told witness she had, which was his first knowledge of it. Montgomery asked Minnie several times if she was mother of Thomas Atkins and she said she was but his father was not a negro. Montgomery told her that Government had proof the whole thing was a frame-up; Minnie asked why she was not allowed to hear depositions taken at Leavenworth; witness reminded her that she was sick. Montgomery read to Minnie deposition of George Crilly, and she corrected several statements made by Crilly, but said Crilly remembered it better than any of them. (R. 3717–19.)

Montgomery left saying he would return next day but Minnie requested him not to and he said he would wait until Friday. On Thursday witness went to see McNab, found Montgomery there; McNab said Minnie was on her way there.

Upon her arrival, McNab lectured Minnie about the deed given to Page, told her Montgomery was there to find out if she was mother of Thomas Atkins; that he claimed to have proof that she never had such a son and that Minnie should tell the truth; that Montgomery would give her immunity if she had claimed land falsely; McNab left room and Montgomery told witness he couldn't give immunity but could agree to try to get it; witness told Montgomery he had no right to talk of immunity and sending people to penitentiary and to ask her what he wanted to know; Montgomery asked if she was mother of Thomas

Atkins and she said she was—nothing could make her change that. Montgomery told her he knew she never had but those three children born at Fort Logan and had never had a child named Thomas Atkins; that if she did make a statement now he was through and she could take the consequences.

Witness and Montgomery had some altercation about talking of immunity and statements about children and nonexistence of Thomas; Montgomery then said to Minnie, "You never had any boy named Thomas Atkins, did you, Minnie?" and Minnie bobbed her head.

McNab returned to the room and Montgomery told him Minnie had made statement and he wanted it in writing. Statement written, and Montgomery asked Minnie to sign, but she wouldn't say anything and wouldn't sign. McNab had left and witness called him back. Minnie asked McNab if he wanted her to sign and he told her she should not sign if it was not t[illegible]ut if it was true she should sign it. Minnie sign[illegible] It was agreed to leave the statement with McNab to be destroyed if immunity was not secured, and if secured to be turned over to Montgomery. (R. 3720–23).

McNab returned the statement to Minnie the next day and she burned it. Witness states his recollection of contents of statement to be that Minnie was not the mother of Thomas Atkins and that the only children born to her were Alice (Mabel) and Harvey and Charlie. (R. 3724–25.)

Next day witness went to Minnie's; she wanted him to get Montgomery, who she said was a devil and had made her sign that paper—something that was not true. Witness told her he didn't want her to tell him anything; went to McNab's and found Montgomery there and told McNab and him that Minnie had told him statement was not true; McNab did not go, but Montgomery went with witness to Minnie's, who retracted her statement and declared that she was the mother of Thomas Atkins. (R. 3725–26.)

Witness tells of efforts made to collect the second $5,000, a part of the $10,000 bonus consideration for lease and of refusal of Gem Oil Co. to pay until Minnie "told the truth." $500 had previously been paid on this second $5,000. While admitting that lease was made without guarantee or warranty of title, yet Gem Oil Co. contended that they were entitled to "fair dealing" from her. This was reason advanced for not paying. Rice wrote witness to that effect and stated that when Minnie had given testimony "in conformity to the truth," he saw no objection to paying a certain portion of the money, but that it was not advisable to pay all until she had appeared at the trial and testified. (R. 3744–46.)

Witness represented Minnie Folk. (R. 3747.)

Cross-examination:

Doesn't think Minnie desired an attorney to represent her, for she didn't want any interference. (R. 3757.) The trust agreement defines witness's service and fixes his fee; also later gave Minnie a stipulation to do all things necessary as her attorney in quieting title to land, he to get 10 per cent; this made after he returned from Oklahoma at the time McNab was released as trustee by Minnie. Had general understanding with McNab as to what should be done before Minnie was consulted. Told Minnie in "joking" way that they would send her to Canada where "these people couldn't get at her." Admits that at receivership hearing he stated they would take steps to prevent her from selling her land and that he said nothing at that time about "jovial way." (R. 3759-60.)

First guaranteed Minnie $4,500; then, after talking to Long, guaranteed $5,000. (R. 3761.)

The agreement respecting his fees was that he should receive 10 per cent of the royalties; expenses to be paid out of that. (R. 3762.)

Page has advanced witness's expenses of a personal nature; has paid the expenses witness was put to in this case; witness made arrangement that during pendency of this suit Page should advance witness $125 per month; Page has been doing this (R. 3763); also took employment from Rice & Lyons. Tried to get McNab to advance more money out of the $3,000 balance of first $5,000, but latter declined to do so. (R. 3764.)

Later, witness states that probably he retained $3,000 out of the first $5,000 and gave McNab $2,000 (R. 3778). Minnie did not receive a cent out of the first $5,000. The first money she received was an advance of $500 to be charged against the second check when paid (R. 3779); she got the balance of $4,500 after she made her statement in Kansas City, when she was sick at the hospital This statement bears date September 25, 1914; depositions were taken first week of October (R. 3780).

On first trip from Seattle to Oklahoma when he accompanied Long to investigate, witness and Long arrived in Tulsa on Sunday morning; went to Sapulpa Monday to investigate court record in Nancy's suit; Tuesday went to Muskogee with Long to look over Dawes Commission records and returned Tuesday night to Tulsa; sent telegram to McNab to execute lease which had been left there by Long; didn't offer lease to anyone but Page; wanted to lease it to Page. (R. 3785–91.)

Page and Josey were to defray all expenses of witness incident to litigation but witness explains retention of $3,000 by him from first $5,000 as necessary to pay his living expenses and other expenses not considered necessary—treated it as an advance on his fee; when McNab relinquished trusteeship Minnie agreed that he (McNab) might keep the $2,000. (R. 3809.)

Now states real reason why second check not made payable at once was because Gem Oil Co. was not sure of Minnie's identity; the matter of Minnie's not testifying right did not come up until later. (R. 3811.)

In first conversation had with Minnie at Seattle, she admitted having five children; at Sapulpa hearing she said she had four; in the affidavit she gave which witness declares was false all through, she said she had four children; and she so declared at Tulsa in her deposition; when Montgomery took her confession she said she had three; witness on none of these occasions corrected her or called attention to discrepancy; on receivership hearing she said she had five children and that is first time she mentioned Peterkin child; at deposition before Examiner Penick she said four and a miscarriage—the latter clearly a reference to Peterkin child. (R. 3796.)

Witness shown schedule of dates in handwriting of Long (Govt. Ex. A–112, R. 4832–33) indicating birth of child in 1886 or 1887; witness says this was calculation made by Long from Minnie's narrative (R. 3797).

Q. Tell us how it happened when you went to hospital in Leavenworth you looked at the records for 1884 and 1885?

A. Mr. Pinson, we guessed up and down and all around at the time that that boy was born and at that time I suppose I thought it was 1884 and 1885; and I had stopped looking for the record of Minnie's being in the hospital, when she was so positive that she had been in the hospital that I started in again.

Minnie was still so positive that he looked further and found it in 1886; guesses he got the information to look at 1884 and 1885 from one Marshall who had some recollection as to when Minnie left Carlisle. That he supposes was first time he was advised of Carlisle dates. (R. 3798.)

In her first testimony at Sapulpa in October, 1914, Minnie stated child born immediately after leaving the Staffords (R. 3798). Witness first heard of Peterkin child before this from Peterkin in Boston in August, 1914, and had wired something about Thomas being a girl (R. 3799). The Tulsa testimony was after Sadie James had been employed (R. 3800). The first time he heard of Granny Letcher was after Sadie had been employed. Admits that finding out about Peterkin baby had something to do with Minnie's changing of date as to birth of child in her testimony at Tulsa. She has always testified that she first went to Hydes, then to Grodevants, and then to Staffords; then she put Tommy back before Staffords and at Hydes; after Tulsa, the next testimony was at receivership hearing when she mentioned Robert Lee Peterkin (R. 3800, 3801). Witness wired Stafford because Josey and Rice had been informed of this Peterkin child and wanted further effort made to secure facts. Had previously communicated with Stafford in July, 1914, warning him not to disclose any information to any one; didn't want Gypsy Oil Co. to get information (R. 3802–03); also warned Peterkin not to disclose information to Rosser (R. 3804–05).

It was necessary that child's birth be placed at least ten or eleven months prior to the Peterkin child, hence the change was made between Sapulpa and Tulsa testimony. (R. 3805.)

In Tulsa deposition taken at Rice & Lyon's office, Minnie put Thomas' birth anywhere within the 2½ years she roomed around Leavenworth and fixed it at Granny Letcher's; the next hearing was the receivership and they then had Peterkin information and Carlisle date and realized that Thomas if born before Peterkin couldn't have been born earlier than August, 1885, and that he couldn't have been born after Robert Lee Peterkin, who was born in July, 1886, because they knew of Minnie's Fort Logan history (R. 3806); therefore it was necessary to fix birth of Thomas between middle of 1884 and middle of 1886. So that Minnie testified at receivership hearing that Thomas was not born at Hyde's and then she went to Grodevant's for about a year and Thomas was born within that year. The Grodevant expense book was found before Minnie's deposition was taken before Mr. Penick.

Q. Did there exist in your mind at the time Minnie's deposition was taken at Seattle before Mr. Penick any reason for changing her testimony from the testimony she had given at the receivership hearing?

A. Well, we knew the facts to be different. There was no reason in my mind for changing her testimony. (R. 3807.)

Referring to Montgomery's visit, witness states that he told Minnie that Montgomery's object was to get statement adverse to her interest so that land could revert to Creek Nation. The thing that rankled most so far as Minnie was concerned was that Thomas was claimed to be a negro child. This was indicated from testimony given by Crilley which

Montgomery read to Minnie. (R. 3814–18.) Admits it was clearly understood by Minnie before signing confession that if she signed it would take land from her; Minnie was in good humor not two minutes before she signed. (R. 3818–19.)

Witness explains his visit to Minnie, the day after confession was signed; that he felt that the confession was not true and he wanted to talk it over with McNab and Minnie. Admits that confession of Minnie would have cleared up the discrepancies in her testimony and would have accounted for all the various suspicions which had been raised in his mind since the beginning of the suit. (R. 3820.)

By agreement, Hanford for defendants Page et al. reads certain questions and answers from deposition of Elizabeth Dillman given in the State case at Leavenworth in October, 1914, with understanding that she would admit, if on the stand, that she had testified as the deposition reads, as follows:

Became acquainted with Minnie Atkins 21 years ago at Fort Logan, Colorado; when witness first met her Minnie had come from Leavenworth; didn't know her there; was told she came from Leavenworth. (R. 4481–82.)

Capt. Alexander J. McNab:

Acted for a time as trustee for Minnie Atkins relative land in controversy; saw Sadie James on one occasion only when she came to Minnie's house at Fort Lawton, when detectives were following her; at that time witness persuaded Minnie not to do anything in the way of signing away land, and arranged to have Hanford act as her attorney; didn't see Sadie James after that to have any conversation with her; she never told witness that Minnie was not telling the truth; only statement she made about Thomas Atkins was that Minnie was his mother; that she had known Thomas and had seen him long after Minnie had. Minnie stated to witness that Sadie claimed to know her, but that she didn't remember her.

Betty Mann came to see him, but he did not discuss case with her. Bartlett came and asked that his company be afforded a chance to bid on the lease and that witness wire Hanford to see Gypsy Oil Co. before making lease. Witness signed a telegram to Hanford. Bartlett stated he had given lease to Gypsy and was there endeavoring to make title good.

Subsequently Miss Alice Robertson came to see him and wanted to talk to Minnie to see if she could identify her as the Minnie Atkins she had taught in Oklahoma. She identified Minnie as such. Hanford was present.

Lease of land in controversy was made by him, as trustee of Minnie, to Gem Oil Co., consideration $10,000; $5,000 was devoted to expense, incident to case, including $2,000 turned over to witness as trustee.

Minnie didn't get the other $5,000 until later, as payment on the second check was withheld because Gem Oil Co. not satisfied of Minnie's identity. (R. 3832–39.)

Cross-examination:

When Minnie first came to him regarding this matter, witness understood Sadie James had been to see her, but she wasn't under Sadie's influence; witness had no knowledge of any claim that there had never been a Thomas Atkins (R. 3839–40); only question was whether Minnie was the mother (R. 3841).

The first time he heard of the case was after Sadie had talked to Minnie; he based his conclusion that Minnie was the mother of Thomas Atkins upon statements made by Minnie and Sadie James. (R. 3846.)

Minnie was not under guard at any time; she did, however, stay at Sergeant Everlynn's house to get away from people who were annoying her—this after arrangements had been made for Hanford to go to Oklahoma with Long. (R. 3848–49.)

Denies that Miss Robertson, when she had interview with Minnie, was interfered with or that Minnie was told not to answer certain questions. (R. 3850.)

Mrs. Catherine Sisk McComb:

Wife of Lt. J. G. McComb; knows Minnie; latter came to her for advice in regard to property involved in this case. Minnie told her she had had five children; doesn't remember stating to Hanford and others that Minnie had five children; it was after Hanford was retained in case that Minnie told her of having five children. Minnie told her of Sadie James being there and she had told her of the allotment and witness understood Sadie had brought Minnie good news. (R. 3852–58.)

Eugenola Hunt:

Stenographer for Dennis Jones; was present in Jones's office in spring of 1914 when Sadie James came to see Jones; Sadie asked Jones and Rube Smith about boy named Thomas Atkins born at Granny Letcher's; asked if they knew the old residents there in Leavenworth and the location of different people who could remember when Granny lived on the street; said she wanted to get these people to prove when Tommy was born; next time she came she had Betty Mann with her; didn't say anything about Tommy Atkins case; wanted Dennis to sign some papers but he refused because they were made out in Jackson County, Missouri, and he was a notary in Leavenworth County, Kansas. (R. 3865–67.)

Cross-examination:

Is a niece of Dennis Jones. Bettie brought the paper for Dennis to sign as notary (R. 3868); thinks Rube Smith was in office first time Betty and Sadie came. When Sadie was in Leavenworth she would come into Dennis's office. (R. 3870.)

Grant Foreman:

Attorney at law, Muskogee, Oklahoma, in 1903, 1904, 1905; he and John R. Thomas had offices adjoining office of principal chief of Creek Nation; his firm had access to records in office of principal chief; witness's firm represented Chaney Trent in relation to her application for enrollment; shown

Govt. Ex. A-15, R. 4660 (record of delivery of deeds of allotted lands); states he doesn't know anything regarding notation "Held for investigation," etc.

Cross-examination:

Learned in connection with Trent case that Dick Atkins, father of Chaney Trent, had a son Thomas Atkins. Witness's firm endeavored to obtain enrollment for Thomas Atkins. (R. 3873.)

CHARLES PAGE:

Owned a half interest in Gem Oil Co. Remembers incident of company getting lease from Minnie Atkins of certain property; didn't give it much attention; Long and witness's lawyers looked after it almost entirely; Josey looked; after it a little; $10,000 was consideration for lease; gave two checks of $5,000 each; paid first check, but withheld second because they wanted Minnie identified a little better; didn't pay second check when due because Minnie had told them things which upon checking up they found not true, so Minnie was brought from Seattle to Kansas City in order to confront her with some of the Leavenworth people, they having learned in meantime that child (Tommy) was born at Granny Letcher's; witness and Josey went to Kansas City; took Minnie to a lawyer's office to secure statement from her and have her meet these people to see if it would bring it out of her; thought they got it at that time; after getting her statement admitting she had baby at Granny's, witness didn't pay much attention to the matter and they paid the $5,000.

Was endeavoring to establish identity of Minnie and to ascertain whether Tommy was alive or dead; first heard of claim that Tommy never existed when he heard of Minnie's confession at Seattle; neither Sadie James nor Betty Mann told witness that Thomas Atkins was a myth, so far as he can recall.

Heard that suit was to be filed, sent telegrams to Commissioner of Indian Affairs at about time Government brought suit, in which he asked opportunity to be heard before suit was filed, and expressed willingness to present any information desired. (R. 3876–80.)

Cross-examination:

Can't remember when his attention was first called to the land in controversy unless it was time when Long brought in telegram from Betty Mann (signed Bill Jones) and told him the purport of it; didn't do anything about it until second telegram came from Betty; witness then agreed to go in with them and that Gem Oil Co. should attempt to get lease from Minnie; sent Long to Seattle for that purpose; Long brought Hanford back; doesn't remember that Long and Hanford had breakfast with him at his house, but supposed they did, inasmuch as Hanford said so. (R. 3882–83.)

Witness is man that got the lease from Hanford. Doesn't know, but no doubt was with Hanford practically all day; thinks he made the deed that day; agreed what they were to pay, provided Hanford accepted; agreed on $10,000, and witness felt he had it pretty well along that day.

At this time knew of litigation pending wherein Nancy claimed to be mother of Thomas Atkins and to be his heir, and that Gypsy Oil Co. was in possession of the land and claiming the title under a forged deed. (R. 3884.)

Long had the signature of Minnie on a slip of paper and they compared it with the roll when she drew her grass money in 1895 and believed it the signature of the same person. Long told witness that he had made some inquiries of Minnie while in Seattle. (R. 3885.)

They wanted Long to keep Hanford away from others who might run up the price for the lease. Long's duty "was to keep Hanford kiting around the country" so they could get the lease. (R. 3886.)

Witness kept up to date on this matter until second $5,000; was paid after that didn't pay much attention to it because he was convinced there was a Tommy. Paid that money July 29, 1914, after Minnie had made statement at Kansas City and had been seen by and talked with some Leavenworth people. Rice told witness there was no question that they were all right. (R. 3888.) He had wanted to defer payment, second $5,000, until he was positive Minnie was identified by some of the Leavenworth witnesses. Asked if he didn't testify at receivership hearing that money was paid after she had given her deposition at Tulsa, he admits that he did and that that testimony was correct. (R. 3897-98.)

Before Minnie testified at Sapulpa, witness had her at his house and had a number of persons come to identify her. (R. 3891.) He was satisfied of her identity, but when she testified at Sapulpa about the child being born at the Sisters' Hospital, and when Long hurried to hospital and found out that she had not been there, it disgusted him. Reason they had Long go to check hospital records was they didn't know whether Tommy was dead or alive—so Long went to check up her story. Asked why he didn't send to check records before, states that he doesn't think they knew about hospital before. (R. 3892.)

Doesn't recall when was the first time he heard the name Peterkin; Hanford went to Boston to interview Peterkin and reported to witness what Peterkin had told him. Witness insisted on Josey interviewing Peterkin because he wasn't satisfied with explanation he had gotten from Hanford. Remembers that he reported that Peterkin had said that Minnie had a child in Leavenworth. (R. 3894-95.)

At that time witness knew Dennis Jones was working for Bartlett and witness wanted to employ him. (R. 3894.)

About this time Sadie James came in and was brought to him by Long; made engagement to meet her at the park.

Q. Why was it that you didn't trade with her or talk with her in your office instead of waiting until that night at your park?

A. Why, because possibly I was busy, or possibly it was a better time to sit down and talk. It was in the summer time, it was warm, and there might be lots of reasons in regard to that. Maybe I wanted to say lots of things to her and didn't have time up there. I couldn't tell what was going to run through my mind at that time.

Sadie gave witness to understand that she could prove that Tommy was dead and buried, and he told her if she could do that she had a job right then. (R. 3896.)

Denies that he stated at receivership hearing that he knew Sadie's reputation at this time. Upon being confronted by testimony given on that hearing, he admits that his testimony then given is correct. In that he stated that he without questioning her knew of her character prior to time Long brought her in to him. (R. 3897.)

On the same day that Minnie testified at Tulsa, witness took a deed from her to this land. (Govt. Ex. A-63, R. 4744-48.) In this deed, dated October 22, 1914, Minnie conveyed all mineral rights in the land and also her royalty rights under the lease heretofore given by her (McNab lease); she warranted the title; in consideration of the deed Page agreed to pay $25 per month until the right of Minnie as against Nancy was established; not to exceed $10,000 to be paid; then $200 per month for five years, and then $100 per month until death of Minnie. If Minnie died before the $10,000 is fully paid, then to her heirs shall be paid the remaining sum to make up the $10,000.

There was a condition that payments to Minnie should cease if Thomas Atkins, the son of Minnie, or the rightful heirs of Thomas should establish claim and title to the land. There was also a provision that should any suit be brought by United States, the Creek Nation, or Thomas Atkins or those claiming under him, then payments should be suspended until final judgment.

Asked why provision was put into contract relative Thomas Atkins or his heirs establishing title, witness is unable to state reason therefor. (R. 3898-99.)

MINNIE FOLK:

Born in the Creek country; father's name Thomas Atkins, mother Mary Jane Atkins; Lee Atkins is her brother, Nancy Atkins her sister; Lee older, Nancy younger, than witness; went to Carlisle Indian School; Betty Mann went with her to Carlisle; was "farmed out" for a while to family named Penrose near Philadelphia; went back to Carlisle and later went to Leavenworth as cook for George H. Hyde. (R. 3910.) While at Hyde's became pregnant; can not recall last name of father of child; first name was Lee; he was from Fort Leavenworth and was a coachman to some general; while pregnant witness went to work at Grodevants at Fort Leavenworth; Lee got her the place; worked at Grodevants as long as she could and then left Grodevants and went to a colored woman named Granny Letcher, where child was born; named it Tommy Atkins after witness's father; stayed about three weeks at Granny's after child was born, then returned to Grodevants; came back every night from work to see child. Tommy was two or three years old when she left him and went to Fort Logan; had five children all told; Tommy was first one, then Robert Lee Peterkin, then Alice, Charlie, and Harvey.

Once wrote her uncle, John Davis, asking him to send some money for Tommy; no answer received; later at Fort Logan wrote again and he sent some money. (R. 3911-12.)

Witness went to the 1895 Creek payment and drew money for herself, Charlie, Harvey, and Thomas—about $57; doesn't know who got Nancy's and Ed Schrimpsher's money; while in Oklahoma on that trip, her brother Lee was shot and witness went to Checotah and stayed with him until his death; returned to Fort Logan with John Couch; when they arrived at Kansas City she remained in station; didn't see Sadie James on that trip. (R. 3913.)

Never had any talk with Sadie about robbing the Government of some money; never told Sadie witness had put up a job on Government and was trying to get away.

Sadie James was the first person who came to her at Seattle about this claim of Thomas. On the occasion of her first visit to her there, Sadie was excited; witness told Sadie she did not know her. Invited

Sadie into the house, and "she talked and wanted to know about my children." Told her she had had Tommy, but he was dead. Sadie said "that is all right we will make a Tommy"; told witness she was working for Mr. Bartlett and the Dawes Commission, Mr. Cook, and mentioned four men to her—can't remember who. Witness told her that she (Sadie) couldn't make a Tommy because he was dead. Sadie said "we are going to make a Tommy because I am working for the government now." (R. 3914.)

Remembers woman at Seattle by name of Mrs. DeLaval; met her at a dressmaker's; when witness's husband was sick and in hospital, Mrs. DeLaval came to witness's house and latter asked her to stay with her overnight; told Mrs. McComb that same day that Mrs. DeLaval was going to stay with her that night, and Mrs. McComb told witness that Mrs. DeLaval was "up to something." Mrs. DeLaval was at witness's house three or four times; didn't know dictagraph was in her house. (R. 3914–15.)

Remembers Montgomery's coming there and of signing her confession; asserts that she was intimidated when she signed it; nobody persuaded her to retract; she took it back because "I knew I was in the wrong." (R. 3916.)

The reason she testified to having Tommy at sisters' hospital was because she didn't want anybody to know she had had him at Granny Letcher's.

She tells now for the first time who was father of Tommy, because it was charged that the father was a colored man.

Walter Banks, Sam Nash, and Jim Mayo were at Granny's when witness was there.

Witness sometimes went around with a woman—a fortune teller—used to visit Lange's drug store with her; remembers purchasing a pocketbook there; she thinks she was pregnant then. (R. 3917–18.)

When she left Granny's witness asked latter to keep Tommy because she couldn't get work with him.

After she went to Seattle, she kept secret her past life, didn't want anyone there to know of it; didn't write to anybody in Oklahoma;

Never knew there was such a thing as the Dawes Commission until this case came up. (R. 3918–19.)

Cross-examination:

Was at Hydes about two or three weeks before she became acquainted with Lee—but she had seen him on the streets (R. 3920).

This is fifth time she has told her story in court. First time was in Sapulpa in July, 1914, in District Court (state court); next gave deposition in October, 1914, in Rice & Lyons office in Tulsa, to be used in state court of Creek County at Sapulpa; then in United States District Court at receivership hearing in this case; then in deposition taken at Seattle by Examiner Penick for use in this court; finally the present testimony. (R. 3921.)

Out of court, made statements as follows:

(1) At Seattle for Long and Hanford;

(2) At Kansas City in hotel with Page, Rice, Long, and Hanford present;

(3) Confession given when Montgomery saw her.

In all these statements and each time she testified no one talked to her about case who she did not think was friendly to her interests, except Montgomery. (R. 3922.)

Had never been to Leavenworth until she left Carlisle. (R. 3922.) Went with Lee ("ran around with him") until she went out to Fort Leavenworth; knew his last name at that time, but can't recall it now; she and Lee were sweethearts—he was her "steady"—until she went to the Fort, which is about three miles from Leavenworth; would go out with him frequently; in this time she never kept company with negro men and never would go to public places with negro men as her escort; has no negro blood that she knows of; can't speak Indian language sufficiently to carry on conversation; never kept company with negro men "up there" (Leavenworth); never had any relatives of negro blood that she knows of. Thinks Lee was coachman for Col. Blunt at the Fort, but knows it was for some Colonel.

Worked for Hyde about three or four months; knew other young men around town, but kept company only with Lee who came to see her every night. (R. 3923–24.)

Went directly from Hyde's to Grodevant's at the Fort; didn't stay in town (Leavenworth) any part of the time; didn't have any women associates in Leavenworth; doesn't recall running errands for any woman there, if she did she doesn't remember (R. 3924–25). Quit Lee about two months after she went to Grodevants because she saw some soldiers she liked better. (R. 3926.)

Next went with soldier named Oliver; can't remember his given name; kept company with him a couple of weeks; doesn't remember who her next sweetheart was; didn't take up with Peterkin until she was working for Stafford; then says she doesn't remember just when it was, but it must have been about a year after she quit Oliver and after she quit working for Staffords. Had Robert Lee Peterkin by him. (R. 3926-27.)

It was over ten years since she left Fort Logan, Colorado, when she went to Seattle; during that period she had never heard from Fort Logan. (R. 3928.)

Denies having known Sadie James prior to latter's visit to her in Seattle; denies having known her at Leavenworth and when she worked across the street from Hydes. Denies that she testified at Sapulpa in July, 1914, that she knew Sadie when the latter lived on the corner of the street from Hydes. (R. 3928-29.)

Learned from Sadie at time of her visit at Seattle that she was working for Bartlett and that he would pay witness $4,000 for the land. Sadie said they would make a Tommy; would send to New York or some place and get a Tommy. Sadie told witness she had seen Mary Hamilton in Denver, who had told her that Tommy was buried at Fort Logan; witness told Sadie boy not buried there, but that he died in Leavenworth. Witness told Long to see Mary Hamilton. (R. 3930–31.)

Sadie told witness not to deal with anyone except Bartlett and her; witness declared she would deal with person she knew she was right with; that she had a Tommy, and that it didn't look right to her the way Sadie was going on, not wanting her to have anything to do with Long. (R. 3931.)

Sadie said that they would make a Tommy because witness told her that Tommy was dead (R. 3933); witness understood at the time that Tommy would have to be dead in order for her to get land (R. 3934).

Witness agreed to sell the land (R. 3934); Sadie returned the next day and told witness she couldn't get into communication with Bartlett (R. 3935). This was before Long came. (R. 3937.)

It was understood between witness and Sadie that former was to tell the people when they came that she had a Tommy Atkins. (R. 3936.)

Sadie first came on a Monday and was there about three days before Long came. (R. 3936.) When Long came Sadie didn't come in, she was walking up and down the sidewalk with the detectives; had not known Long before or any of the people he was representing. Capt. McNab and possibly Hanford were there (R. 3937); Long asked her if she was Minnie Atkins and witness said she was; that was all that Long asked and he didn't talk with her any more; talked with McNab. Sadie didn't come to see her after Long had been there; witness went up to where

Sadie was on the sidewalk and the latter asked who was in the house; when told it was Long she told witness not to have any dealings with him, that she wanted her to deal with Bartlett; witness said she was going to deal with man that was right with her; thought Long was that man, although he had only said to her "Are you Minnie Atkins?" (R. 3938-39.)

The Sunday after Long had been there Sadie came and stayed two hours with witness and talked about making the deal, urging her not to trade with Long but with Bartlett; told witness Betty Mann was in town helping her to locate witness, that both were working for Bartlett. (R. 3939.) Thinks Long mentioned Betty's name in reference to telling how he located witness.

Hanford and McNab saw her between time Long was there and the Sunday Sadie was there; had not met Hanford before; witness didn't have any lawyer, because at that time witness wanted to deal with Bartlett; this was after Long had been to see her. (R. 3940.)

Hanford told her he was going to Tulsa with Long to look after her land and see she wasn't robbed out of it. Upon his return he did not tell witness how much he had been offered for it, nor did she ask him. Hanford said it was pretty valuable land; doesn't remember now what Hanford told her about his trip to Tulsa. (R. 3940-41.)

Long and Hanford interviewed witness to get the details about Thomas Atkins; "didn't exactly tell him (Long) all that was the truth because I didn't want anybody to know about my business"; didn't want to tell him where child was born; wanted to conceal everything if she could; did not want to conceal at that time the season of the year when Tommy was born and told him Tommy was born in the summer time. (R. 3941.)

Didn't want them to know how she got him but it didn't make any difference to her at that time whether she got Tommy at Hydes or Grodevants or Staffords or where she got him, just so they didn't know where she got him. Denies that she told Long that she had to quit Staffords because she was pregnant with Tommy; didn't tell him that last time she heard from Tommy was in 1899 when he was sick. Did tell him that Tommy was born in 1886 or 1887 at the Sisters Hospital, but he wasn't, in fact, born at the hospital—"I just said that to him." (R. 3942.) Did tell him what she thought was the truth about the year when Tommy was born.

Long told her that if Tommy was dead, she would own the land.

Didn't tell Long that there was a woman in Denver who would remember Tommy's custodian and that Tommy died in 1900 or 1901—doesn't know when Tommy died. (R. 3943.)

Told Long names of people in Leavenworth she knew, but can not tell whether she told him at that time at Seattle or in Leavenworth when she went there later; also told them that she used to go to Granny's. (R. 3944–45.)

Knew Granny well; doesn't know whether she could read or write, but got a letter from her telling her Tommy was dead.

Told Long she didn't know with whom she left her child because she didn't want to tell any of them where she had left him. Told Long, however, that she gave birth to Tommy at Granny's. (R. 3945.) Asked why, if she had told that to Long, she had stated on the stand at Sapulpa that Tommy was born at Sisters Hospital, answers because she wanted to hide it. Long was mistaken if he telegraphed his company that she didn't remember name, etc., of woman with whom she had left Tommy. (R. 3946.)

Told Long and several others about all the children she had had. Is questioned regarding her testimony at Sapulpa, where she stated that she was the mother of Thomas, Alice, Harvey, and Charlie, and that she never gave birth to another child; says she doesn't remember the question and answer there given; there did not exist in her mind then any reason why she should conceal the birth of any child she had had (R. 3946); she wanted to answer truthfully. Didn't tell Long about Robert Lee Peterkin—can give no reason for not doing so; didn't tell Hanford about him either; doesn't remember month or year Robert Lee was born; was buried in Leavenworth.

Now states that she didn't tell Long that Tommy was buried at Leavenworth; now says that she did tell Hanford and Long on their second visit at Seattle that she didn't remember name or description of woman with whom Tommy was left; told them he was left with colored woman, but didn't tell them who; was mistaken when she testified previously that she did give name.

States now she didn't leave Staffords to have Tommy. Admits that at Sapulpa she testified that she went from Carlisle School to Hydes and worked there three months; then worked at Ft. Leavenworth for Grodevant for 1½ years; then at Staffords for one year, leaving Staffords because she was with a baby by name of Tommy Atkins who was born at the Sisters Hospital in Leavenworth.

Admits that her Sapulpa testimony on this point is the same as what she told Long (R. 3948–49). Admits that she did have Robert Lee Peterkin immediately after leaving Staffords.

Reason why she stated she had given birth to Tommy at Sisters Hospital was because she had once been there as a patient. When she testified at Sapulpa about having Tommy at hospital she knew it was false, but never had told any other story (R. 3949–50).

Before giving the testimony at Sapulpa, she had never told anybody that this child Tommy was born at Granny Letcher's; she was concealing from everybody the place of his birth. (R. 3950.)

After Sapulpa testimony, went to Leavenworth with Hanford who looked up records of Sisters Hospital. Hanford told her he was going there to see if she had told the truth; doesn't remember when he told her that; asked why she didn't tell him she hadn't had child there, says "I just didn't tell him." (R. 3951.)

After she came back to Tulsa from Sapulpa, witness gave Hanford some information about Peterkin—told him about Peterkin being her sweetheart, doesn't remember what else (R. 3952). When he returned from interviewing Peterkin, Hanford asked witness why she had told him that Peterkin was Tommy's father; she told him "I just said it to be saying." Witness had told Hanford that at Tulsa; told it just to stall him off. (R. 3953.)

When she went to Leavenworth with Hanford at time he went to look at hospital records, he drove witness around so she could show where Granny lived; had told him about Granny after they had been to the hospital. (R. 3953.)

When she signed lease she didn't get her money right away, the reason she thinks was because she "didn't tell right out everything"; that was before she had told any story in court. (R. 3955.)

When Hanford returned from Oklahoma he told witness he had got $10,000 for the lease; witness asked for her money, and he said he would give it to her, but didn't say when.

Q. But he didn't give it to you at that time; you hadn't told the story, is that it?

A. I guess that is it.

Q. They were waiting for you to tell your story before they gave you any money; that is a fact, isn't it?

A. Yes. (R. 3956.)

Long never got any information from witness upon which to predicate statements that father of this boy was a negro. Witness never cohabited with negro in her life. Witness would never refer to negress as a "lady."

Attention is then called to her testimony at Sapulpa, in which she stated that after she left the Sisters hospital she took Tommy to a lady in Leavenworth to care for him by the day and she went to work, always returning to him after work, and in which she constantly referred to the person with whom she left Tommy as a "lady." (R. [illegible].)

Can't say if Granny Letcher was married in [illegible]; there were three children there, Walter Banks, Sam Nash, and Jim Mayo.

Her attention is then drawn to her testimony at Sapulpa wherein she stated that one with whom she left Tommy had a husband and did not have any children. Witness states she does not remember saying that. (R. [illegible].)

Asked if, on trip with Hanford from Seattle to Kansas City, Hanford had accused her of telling lies at Sapulpa and that she would have to straighten it up and change that story; denies any such occurrence. (R. [illegible].)

Hanford told her reason he desired her to make trip to Leavenworth was to have her tell him the exact place where she had Tommy. Long took her around and she met people there—they knew her just as soon as they saw her. Then they went to Kansas City and had witness make statement (Long, Hanford, Page, Josey, and Rice present) when they asked witness whom she remembered at Leavenworth, the only ones she could mention without suggestion was Mary Hamilton and Grandma Spain.

Q. And they would suggest to you, why, you knew Rube Smith, and then you would say, yes, is that right?

A. Yes; I knew him because he used to hang around Letcher's all the time.

Witness claimed to know Crilly, but admits that at Kansas City she said in her statement that she couldn't think of name of the livery stable near Granny's. (R. 3963.)

Witness is asked about testimony given before Examiner Penick, wherein she stated that she and Ida Foster were running around together at the time Tommy was conceived, and her statement in Kansas City wherein she said that Ida Foster was the girl Mr. Smith said she went around with; that she might have but didn't remember and didn't remember her then.

Asked if it wasn't a fact that Mary Smith didn't recognize her at Leavenworth, witness states that she (Mary) said she did. Is then confronted with her statement at Kansas City where she stated that Mary failed to recognize her. (R. 3963–65.)

Witness, in answer to question, says nothing happened between the statement in Kansas City and the testimony later that made her remember Ida better. (R. 3965.)

Referred to statement at Kansas City wherein she said that she didn't know much about Rube Smith. (R. 3965.)

Witness's attention called to fact that she had told Long that child was born in summer time, and at Kansas City said it was in winter; in deposition before Penick she stated it was getting summer but cold yet. Now says it was in the summer, towards winter but still in the summer. (R. 3966–67.)

Witness nursed Tommy at the breast when she was in Leavenworth as long as she was around there—about six months. Doesn't know whether she had relations with men while nursing Tommy; says she doesn't remember averring in the Kansas City statement that she did not. (R. 3967.)

Admits that at Kansas City and in deposition at Rice & Lyons office October, 1914, she stated that first child was boy, Thomas Atkins; second child, a girl, Alice, and that Alice was born at Denver, Colorado. (R. 3968.)

Witness is referred to statement made at Kansas City after Sapulpa hearing, when she was asked why she testified that she left Staffords and went to Sisters Hospital to have a baby, and at which time she said she didn't know why she made such a statement "You know how they get at you"—"I didn't want them to know right out" what kind of a place Granny's was. At that time (Kansas City) this comment was made. Q. Well, that is what you must say because it is difficult to explain that testimony, and I want you to tell the reason why you testified that way at Sapulpa. (R. 3968.)

Bought trinkets, beads, breastpins, etc., for herself when in Leavenworth in 1884 but cannot state where she bought them. (R. 3969.)

Always knew who the father of Tommy was, but this is the first time she has ever named him. Denies that at Kansas City certain stated questions were asked and answers given to the effect that after she left Hydes she got Tommy, that she was then "around town"; had no particular sweetheart, didn't want any; about two men were going with her particularly when she left Hydes but she didn't remember their names. (R. 3970.)

Witness states that she told them at Kansas City that Mary Hamilton knew nothing about Tommy, but denies she told Long at Seattle previous to that that Mary could tell him where and with whom she left him.

Doesn't remember that she stated at Kansas City that up to the time she made first trip back to Oklahoma (1895) she had not received any letter from anybody about Tommy.

Attention was called to deposition at Seattle wherein she said the letter telling her Tommy was dead was one from her sister's husband enclosing deed for her to sign. Letter was burned later. (R. 3971.)

After making that statement at Kansas City, she refreshed her recollection and then told them before that statement was finished that she received a letter in Detroit, Michigan, from a friend stating Tommy was dead. (R. 3972–73.)

Was in Oklahoma about a year when she went there in 1895; testified at Sapulpa that Tommy was about one or one and a half years old when she left Leavenworth (R. 3973); left Leavenworth in early part of 1888; stated at receivership hearing Tommy was about two years old when she left Leavenworth, and now states that he was two or three years old. Explains discrepancies by saying that she studied it out more and more. Admits that she has been talked to about it. (R. 3974.)

States that for about three weeks before baby was born she didn't work; doesn't remember that she stated at Kansas City that it was two or three months, but admits that she testified it was two months, at Seattle. Doesn't remember where she was staying during those two months—"down to Granny's sometimes and around." Was in bed about two weeks, when confined; nursed child for about six months. (R. 3975.)

When she wasn't there they had a bottle for him. Admits this is first time she has sworn about the bottle and that at Kansas City and at Seattle she said she nursed child at the breast.

Asked if during two months before birth of child she didn't stay at Mrs. Edwards, witness states "I didn't stay there, I was just in and out." (R. 3976.)

Relates incidents occurring at Leavenworth when attempt was made to have her identify Henry

Carter as Tommy. They wanted to frame up a colored child. She wouldn't let them bring him to see her. Had a fuss with them and was so mad and excited she became ill. Long told her somebody was trying to frame up a colored boy on her. (R. 3977.)

Went to hospital and wouldn't give her deposition at Leavenworth because they brought that nigger story upon her.

Hanford came to see her and gave her the check for $5,000 which she later put on time deposit in bank at Tulsa; left it there on deposit about four months. Long suggested that she put money in that bank. (R. 3979.)

After paying her the money, they took witness to Tulsa and later to Page's home—nurse came with her—witness paid none of the expenses of nurse. (R. 3978.)

Reference is made to testimony given before Examiner Penick at Seattle that witness was carrying Tommy when at Grodevants, and to receivership hearing where she swore she had him before she went to Grodevants. (Denies she gave that testimony in receivership hearing but admits she might have made same statement in deposition at Tulsa.) Nothing happened to refresh her recollection; "I just knew all the time." (R. 3980–81.)

Didn't sleep at Granny's for a period of a year and denies she testified to that effect in receivership hearing. (R. 3981.)

Dr. McCormick attended her at childbirth. Admits she testified at Sapulpa that she didn't know who the doctor was (R. 3981). Granny suggested him—that was first witness had heard of him—thinks he came in the evening. (R. 3982.)

It was a little over three weeks after Tommy came when she went back to Fort and to work at Grodevants; went down to see Tommy every night from Fort in a bus. Would leave Grodevants as soon as her work was done, about half past 7 or 8 o'clock, depending on time Frank Grodevant would get there, as he was always late and didn't eat with family. She had to wait on him. Would stay with Tommy until last bus left for Fort about 12.30. Can't say how long she continued going up and down that way. Would nurse baby when she made those trips. Bus fare 10 cents each way.

Denies that she stayed at Granny's a year, although she so stated in statement in Kansas City (R. 3982–83). Also admits that in Tulsa deposition she said that she stayed in Leavenworth a year after Tommy was born and then went to the post. (R. 3983.)

States that she doesn't know who went for doctor or that he got any pay (R. 3984), although she admits stating in Kansas City that Rube Smith went for doctor, and she got the money from him to pay doctor; says she was only guessing at that. Never went to Dr. McCormick's office on any matter. (R. 3985.)

Last time she saw Tommy was morning of the day the evening of which she left for Fort Logan; he was playing around house (Granny's). Thinks Tommy could say a few words then. (R. 3986–87.)

Gave deed to Page on day she gave her deposition in Tulsa, "because I was in the right" (R. 3987); didn't advise with anyone before signing it; can't explain why provisions were put into it regarding possibility of Thomas Atkins or his rightful heirs successfully maintaining title to land, and that upon filing of suit by United States, Creek Nation, etc., payments provided for should stop. Didn't ask anybody why they were put in there. (R. 3988.)

Didn't meet Peterkin until she was working for Staffords. Was in Leavenworth pretty near four years; worked for Hyde three months; Grodevants, 1½ years; Staffords, about a year; then for a rich Jew; doesn't know how long she worked for him; when she left him she went to Denver (Fort Logan). (R. 3988–89.)

Worked all day at Hydes and Grodevants and Staffords, except would have every afternoon off at Staffords; would get through half past one or 2 p. m. and go down town, returning at half past four or 5 p. m. to prepare supper. (R. 3990.)

While at Fort didn't have breast pump; relieved her breasts during day by pumping them with her hands. (R. 3991.)

States she does not remember testifying at Sapulpa that she hadn't named Tommy Atkins at time 1895 payment and that she had her uncle put him on the roll as Tommy Atkins; says now she doesn't know whether her uncle put him on or not; doesn't know who put him on. Admits, however, that in her Seattle testimony she testified substantially the same as in her Sapulpa testimony on this point. (R. 3993.)

(It is agreed between counsel that questions and answers read to witness as testimony taken in either Sapulpa hearing, Tulsa deposition, receivership hearing, deposition before Penick (Seattle), and in statement made in Kansas City, will be admitted in evidence as being such testimony or statement. (R. 3994–95.)

Had Tommy put on 1895 Creek tribal roll as Thomas Atkins—that was not my name; had not named Tommy Atkins, and her uncle, John Davis, put him on as Tommy Atkins. (R. 3997.)

At the time she drew the money on the 1895 pay roll she had had 5 children—Thomas, Harvey, Charlie, Mabel, or Alice, who had died, and Robert Lee Peterkin, who lived a week or ten days and whom she called a premature birth (R. 4004–05); went from Carlisle to Hydes at Leavenworth and stayed there 3 months or a little over; then to Grodevants at the Fort where she was for 2 or 3 months; then to Staffords; got Tommy at Hydes (R. 4008–09).

Knew lots of men at Leavenworth; sometimes went around with Crilly, who runs the livery stable; can't remember name of others; knows who father of Tommy was; won't tell who. (R. 4010-11.) Met men at a hotel (white hotel), name of which she does not recall, nor the proprietor of it; also at Granny Letcher's; never consorted with negro men. (R. 4012.)

Was in bed about two weeks at the time she gave birth to Tommy; can't tell the name of the doctor who attended her; Mrs. Witt washed and dressed child (R. 4013). Didn't run around much with Ida Foster in Leavenworth, but went with her more than with anybody else (R. 4018). When at Hydes didn't stay there all the time, sometimes would go to a hotel and to Granny's and stay all night and carouse with men (R. 4019).

Had Tommy when she was working for Hyde; quit work there to have him (R. 4020); then says she gave birth to him after she left Grodevants, where she worked up to within 2 months of his birth; after Tommy was born she staid around Leavenworth for about a year so she could go to Granny's and nurse him; Tommy was about 2 years old when she left Leavenworth for Ft. Logan; left Tommy with Granny; didn't regard it as any humiliation to associate with Granny (R. 4021); didn't send Granny any money for Tommy's support; didn't have to send (R. 4022).

Tommy was born on Seneca Street; it was between warm and cold—getting summer but still cold; knew Granny when she lived on Cherokee

Street; before she was on Seneca "we" (girls) used to go there. (R. 4035.)

Granny's house on Seneca Street was good-sized house, painted white; four rooms down stairs, two upstairs; porch in front running around the side; Thomas was born in one of the upstairs rooms. (R. 4036–37.)

Didn't work steady for Grodevant or for Stafford; doesn't remember how long a time she would be away from Grodevants or Staffords. (R. 4039.)

Letter telling that Thomas was dead and inclosing deed for her to sign was received just before she went to Fort Lawton—Seattle. (R. 4039.)

Didn't have a child named Nancy born at post hospital at Fort Logan, Colorado; didn't die at the hospital. It was Alice who died there at post but not at the hospital; buried in post cemetery. (R. 4041.)

Cross-examination:

Witness is asked concerning statement made in Kansas City, and, to shorten examination, it was agreed that Kansas City statement be admitted in evidence as what she stated then. (R. 4043.)

(The statement is in record, pages 4044–84; was taken at office of George William Snyder, at Kansas City, Missouri, September 29 and 30, 1914. Present: Messrs. Rice, Long, Hanford, and Josey.)

In that she made the following statement:

Sarah Crowell (Betty Mann) was one of the girls who went to Carlisle with her from Oklahoma. Has not seen her since. (R. 4047.) Women she knew at Leavenworth were Mary Hamilton and Grandma Spain. (R. 4050.)

Was at Hydes three months—when she went from there was "knocking around and stayed a good deal at Grandma Letcher's"; worked for a few weeks at a rich Jew's before she went to Letcher's. Granny lived on Seneca Street; there was a livery stable near the place; can't think of name. Q. Was it Crilly? A. Some such name as that. There was a grocery store in the neighborhood run by Rube Smith. (R. 4051.)

Couldn't say how many rooms in house (Granny's). (R. 4052.)

Doesn't place Ida Foster; might have gone around with her, but doesn't remember.

Remembers Bill Grape, who brought coal and wood to Granny's; doesn't know much about Rube Smith; Granny used to get groceries there; sometimes witness would go and get them (at Rube's). Granny had two boys at her house, Sam Nash, a one-armed boy, and Walter (Banks. R. 4053.)

Was at Granny's, off and on, about three months before child born; got with the child after she left Hydes; when she left Hydes she had no particular sweetheart or lover—didn't want any—was just around—two men going with her; doesn't remember their names.

Doesn't remember name of doctor who attended her at birth—Rube Smith went for him. (R. 4054.)

Borrowed the money from Rube Smith to pay the doctor. Tommy born in winter of 1885.

During time she was carrying child she would go to Letcher's, "off and on," most of her time. (R. 4055.) Will not tell name of father of Thomas. (R. 4057.)

Stayed around in Leavenworth about a year after Tommy was born. During time she was nursing Tommy no man came to see her. (R. 4057.)

Rube Smith saw Tommy around house while witness was at Granny's—he came to deliver groceries—Rube never saw witness in bed with child. (R. 4058.) Now remembers doctor's name as John McCormick. (R. 4059.) First worked for Grodevant at the fort, then for Stafford. Peterkin went with her when she worked for Stafford. Harrison was her steady company at Fort Logan; went with Peterkin from Leavenworth to Fort Logan. (R. 4060.)

Second child, Alice (Mabel), was born at Logan; lived about a year; then she went with Harrison after Peterkin was ordered to Texas. Went back to Territory (Oklahoma) because her brother wrote for her to come, he wanted to see her. She hadn't written to him. He didn't say anything in letter about Creek payment—she found out about that after she got there. (R. 4060-61.)

Met Sam Brown at the payment at Okmulgee; never saw him before that; supposed her brother told Sam who she was. (R. 4064.) Did not tell her uncle, John Davis, about Tommy. (R. 4065.)

Sam Brown had never seen her children; she just told him what children she had; he didn't ask many questions. (R. 4066.)

Never wrote any letters to anybody in Oklahoma about Tommy; got a letter while in Detroit, Michigan, saying Tommy was dead; before that, received letter asking her to send some money to take care of Tommy; doesn't know from whom letters were. (R. 4072.)

Didn't work at Stafford's before Tommy was born. (R. 4073.) Admits testifying at Sapulpa that she left Stafford's to have a baby, Thomas Atkins, and went to Sisters Hospital; says that wasn't true; didn't "want them to know about Granny Letcher's." (R. 4074.)

Now states that when she went to Muskogee she told her uncle John Davis about Tommy and Alice—told him she had left Tommy in Leavenworth, but didn't mention the place. (R. 4075.)

First she knew of allotment to Tommy and that land was valuable was when Sadie James told her when she was in Seattle. (R. 4080.)

First letter asking for money she got while at Detroit (Fort Wayne), and was, she thinks, from Granny Letcher. About a year later received a letter that Granny was dead. A year after the second letter she received another stating Tommy was dead. Then says first letter was from Granny and second announced death of Tommy. (R. 4081.) It was about a year before ([illegible]) she left Fort Wayne for Vancouver that she heard Tommy was dead. (R. [illegible].)

When she went to Muskogee from Fort Logan, she didn't go to Leavenworth to see Tommy because she promised herself she wouldn't go back there because of rough character of the house. (R. [illegible].)

Testimony of Minnie Atkins before court in comment.

Cross-examination:

Never told her people in Oklahoma about Tommy, because she didn't want them to know. (R. [illegible].)

Harry B. Folk:

Husband of Minnie Folk (Atkins); Minnie received a letter at Fort Harrison, Montana; she did not tell witness what it contained; looked over her shoulder saw papers which appeared to witness like a surveyor's map.

Was at Spokane on June 26, 1914, on temporary duty with 14th Inf. Band; Long and Hanford came to see him with regard to the land in controversy; had a conference with them at which Lt. Winton, Capt. Wright and Maj. Stokes were present; was satisfied with arrangement made. (R. [illegible].)

George Kinney:

Employed by Page and Posey in drilling wells on Thomas Atkins' allotment; has statement showing expenditures made prior to bringing of suit. [Court ruled that that statement may be offered when Curtis

the bookkeeper is put on stand, he having prepared it.]

Built five steel tanks on land in winter 1914–15; cost about $14,500 apiece. (R. 4158–60.)

Cross-examination:

Witness drilled first well on that land that was drilled for Page, "spudded" in November 3, 1914, completed January 15, 1915; when first moved onto land there was a producing well on it of the Gypsy Oil Co. Mr. Page ordered him to move the rig onto the land. (R. 4160–61.)

Redirect:

Cost about $10,000 to drill each well. (R. 4161.)

Recross-examination:

Steel tanks were not put on this property. (R. 4162.)

E. O. Curtis:

Auditor for Page; has book which treats of Tommy Atkins lease; has statement prepared from books showing detailed account of expenditures commencing in August, 1914, and ending January, 1915.

[Statement is received in evidence (Def.) Minnie Atkins, Ex. B–22 and 23. R. 4950–58.] (R. 4169.)

Cross-examination:

This testimony is on the matter of expenditures made by Page and others (Gem Oil Co.) on the lease covering the Atkins allotment, how they were kept on the books, etc.; the purpose of this testimony and the other given by this witness is to show good faith on part of Page et al., and upon the part of the Government in its cross-examination to show that but little actual money was paid out, although contracts were entered into until production was had; that is, that liabilities were met out of proceeds of production. (R. 4170–74.)

Deposition of MIKE STANTON, a witness produced by the Government, is offered in evidence by Minnie Atkins et al.:

Has lived in Leavenworth and Ft. Leavenworth 57 years; moved from Fort last time in 1886; knew Indian Minnie while at the Fort; first saw her on corner Shawnee and Main Streets in 1867 or '68; saw her again at Fort in 1869 on one of the corners; saw her for about a year; was working on grading of Fort extension and saw her with a "baby buggy"; she was working for some officer. Last saw her in 1870.

Knew Indian Mary at the reservation; had been told to have her run off reservation if she came around there; last saw her about 1880; Indian Mary was found dead in a ditch about 1888. (R. 4175–77.)

CHENEY TRENT:

Lives ten miles west of Wagoner, Oklahoma; is Creek citizen; father's name Dick Atkins; grandfather's name Thomas Atkins; he is dead; had a brother, Thomas Atkins, who died the year the filing commenced, aged 13 years; brother lived about a mile from her with her father; saw him every day or two up till his death.

Nancy Atkins visited her father's house three or four times a year; Nancy then living in Wagoner; Thomas often in Wagoner with Nancy; he would go there driving wagon for his father, who furnished wood to town.

Judge John R. Thomas and his partner, Grant Foreman, represented witness in matter of her enrollment. (R 4179–81).

Cross-examination:

Thomas Atkins was half brother; same father as witness. (R. 4181.)

Witness often went to Wagoner on wagon with her father, would see Nancy at hotel and at Aunt Betsy Birney's; never saw any children with her at hotel; sometimes would see her on the street. (R. 4185.) Brother Thomas would be along on these trips—father ran two wagons, Thomas would drive one. Thomas was about 11 years old when witness first knew of Nancy being at Wagoner. (R. 4186.)

None of the members of her family were enrolled as Euchees; they drew their payments in Arkansas Town, a colored town. (R. 4188–89.)

Mary A. Smith, witness for Henry Carter:

Saw Minnie a couple of years ago—recognized her positively and Minnie recognized her—but not until witness had had a talk with her. (R. 4201–05.)

Cross-examination by Mr. Stuart:

Long was with Minnie when witness saw and recognized her two years ago; Granny Letcher had told her baby was dead; scar was pink at first, then turned white. (R. 4205–06.)

Cross-examination by Government:

Sadie James first called this matter to witness's attention; about a month after that Mr. Josey talked with her; then not very long until Long talked with her—these talked to her before she saw Minnie. (R. 4206–07.)

Saw Minnie but once at Granny's previous to birth of child; saw her maybe once every two weeks thereafter; supposed she was staying there; saw her there two months altogether; doesn't know where in town Minnie worked after child was born and before going to Fort. (R. 4209.)

Denies that after testifying in Leavenworth she told Mr. Allen and Mr. Cook (government representatives), when they came to her house in 1915, that the woman she saw at Granny Letcher's couldn't be the same Indian Minnie she saw later; and denies that she told them that Long suggested to her not to say anything about scar on boy's back; insists that she testified about scar at Leavenworth. (R. 4210.)

Granny lived on Seneca Street some 2 or 3 years when witness saw Minnie there, so witness testified in 1914; doesn't know how long now. (R. 4210.)

Denies that she stated in testimony at Leavenworth in 1914 that when Tommy was 4 or 5 years old he looked more like a colored boy than he did an Indian. [It is admitted by counsel that questions and answers read to witness as her testimony on point at

Leavenworth are correctly read by examining counsel. R. 4212–13.] Admits that she talked to Long shortly before she testified at Leavenworth. (R. 4213.)

Explains her Leavenworth testimony to the effect that she lived next door to Granny Letcher by saying that it was not at the time of birth of child but years later. (R. 4214.)

Admits telling Government representatives (Allen and Cook) that the boy she saw with a woman at Granny's is now called Henry Carter. (R. 4215.)

At meeting when witness and Minnie recognized each other Long introduced them; "said this is Mrs. Smith and this is Minnie." (R. 4216.)

Henry Carter stands up in rear of court room. Witness states she is positively sure he is the boy she saw at Granny's. Last saw him when he was 13 years old; knew of some one coming in from country and taking boy out. (R. 4217.)

Her boy, "Snipe" Smith, two years older than Tommy, never played with latter—lived too far away—she didn't allow her boy to play in the streets; he was too young. (R. 4217–18.)

Tommy left Granny's when four or five years old. Saw him when 13 years on street. (R. 4218.)

Cross-examination:

Is positive that she told about scar in testimony at Leavenworth. (R. 4221.)

ANDERSON CHILDERS:

Lives northwest of Wagoner, Oklahoma; a Creek citizen; lived in and around Wagoner 25 years; knows

Nancy Atkins; has seen Minnie Atkins; Nancy and Minnie are sisters; Nancy Atkins first moved to Wagoner about 1891 or 1892; witness would see her there average of once a week; knew Dick Atkins and his son Thomas Atkins, whose mother was Sallie Atkins; would see Dick and Thomas in Wagoner at frequent intervals; Thomas was five or six years old when witness first saw him in about 1890; Thomas died about 1898; saw this Thomas Atkins in Wagoner with Nancy Atkins twice at Davis & Jones store; Thomas then 7 or 8 years old; saw Nancy in Wagoner with Minnie's children, Charlie and Harvey; saw these two frequently about the same time he saw Thomas there about 1892 or '93; saw Thomas continuously in and around Wagoner with his father until his death. (R. 4291–93.)

Cross-examination:

Knew Dick Atkins' family well; there was a Mary Atkins (Wilson); Nancy Atkins (now Tabor); Susie Atkins and Thomas Atkins; Thomas was about 12 or 13 when he died (R. 4294). [Govt. Ex. A–114 (R. 4836–38) is received in evidence, being copy of letter of Acting Commissioner of Indian Affairs to Secretary of the Interior relative enrollment of certain members of Richard Atkins' family, and Secretary of Interior's letter to Commissioner to Five Civilized Tribes, approving his decision.]

Knew Richard Atkins, father of Cheney Trent; familiar with contest brought against enrollment of his family wherein it was contended that he was not the original Dick Atkins. (R. 4296.)

C. LIPSCOMB:

Had a talk few days ago with Malcolm, in which latter stated that he had a chance to make $500 as a witness in this case, but it was too risky. (R. 4612.)

Cross-examination:

Malcolm didn't say who was making that proposition to him (R. 4612); never told anything about conversation to anyone until Long called him up and asked him about it (R. 4614).

F. K. TAYLOR:

Has been connected with police force of Leavenworth in different capacities; testifies as to practice in making arrests upon request of sheriff, that if arrest were made and prisoner put in city jail, the arrest would not be docketed on the regular police court docket. (R. 4616–18.)

Cross-examination:

It might be recorded on police blotter; has not made any search through dockets for name Thomas Atkins. (R. 4618.)

WILLIAM A. DODGE:

On police force of Leavenworth since February 4, 1897; knows Pat De Laney, who went on police force for second time in February 8, 1897; prepared, as day sergeant and captain, docket sent to police court for cases to come up before that court.

If, when preparing docket, a case was presented where complaint had issued from justice court and been turned over to sheriff, and the chief of police had given order to pick up the man and he had been arrested and put in jail to be held for sheriff, he would not put that down on docket. (R. 4620.)

Knew a boy in Leavenworth known as Tommy Atkins, son of Indian Minnie, and knew Tommy York. (R. 4620-21.)

Knew Tommy York since he was a baby; knew Tommy Atkins about two or three years. (R. 4623.)

Cross-examination:

Doesn't know where Tommy Atkins came from or went to; understood he was Indian Minnie's boy; didn't know her personally. (R. 4623.)

Requested by Pomp Graham and Mr. Bonds to testify; is to be paid whatever is reasonable and expenses for being witness. (R. 4625.)

Looked through records at police headquarters; couldn't find anything relating to Thomas Atkins. (R. 4626.)

Knew Tommy Atkins in '96 or '97; was about 11 or 12 years old. (R. 4628.)

[Police records showing arrest and conviction of Tommy York in city court of Leavenworth is admitted in evidence. R. 4632.]

[Frank B. Long and Charles Page (For Minnie Atkins et al.) both state that they never talked with Malcolm about case or promised him money or anything in this case; nor did they offer money or make any promise to Mrs. Cobb to testify in case. R. 4633-35.]

For Nancy Atkins.

R. F. Davis:

Testified that he lived in Wagoner, Okla., in 1888 or 1889; knew Nancy Atkins; noticed her being in family way; saw her later with baby and remembers Nancy bringing him with her to witness's grocery store. (R. 1202–07.)

J. E. Newberry:

Lived in Wagoner, Okla., since March 27, 1890; boarded for first two years at Barnard Hotel; knew Nancy Atkins; she was around hotel working; in summer of 1890 he noticed her in family way; relates conversation had with Dr. Bryant about 4 or 5 months after witness first noticed Nancy in this condition. Dr. said witness ought to go and "see your kid." Witness asked, "What kid"? Dr. replied "Old Nancy's"; saw Nancy about a month after this; she showed no signs of pregnancy. Was delivering furniture at Mrs. Walker's, who asked him if he wanted to see Nancy's baby; didn't see the baby. (R. 2418–27.)

Charles Bailey:

Lived at Wagoner from 1888 to 1907; knew Nancy Atkins when latter first came to Wagoner; she worked at the section house; afterwards lived with colored woman named Birney; saw her in pregnant condition either in 1889 or '90; child was born to Nancy in a tent near Davis & Jones yards; was told of it by colored woman; later Nancy was moved to Betsey Birney's (so witness was told); saw Nancy there quite often; didn't see child until it was about one month old; saw it frequently thereafter for 4 or 5 years; missed it; afterwards was told it was dead; child was called Tommy Atkins; it was a boy; knew Minnie Atkins and two children of hers, Charlie and Harvey Harrison; first saw them in 1895 or '96; witness kept Charlie at his house until he was 22 years old; witness was appointed his guardian; he was 4 or 5 years old when he came to witness's home; had some correspondence with Minnie; saw her in 1895; Minnie never mentioned having a child named Thomas Atkins; the Tommy Atkins he knew was living at Betsey Birney's. (R. 2227–34.)

Cross-examination:

Saw the child in the yard or on the porch of Birney's house; Nancy or Betsey had it in their arms; doesn't know whether baby was Nancy's or Betsey's or Betsey's grandchild; so far as witness knew Nancy had but one child. (R. 2437–38.)

James E. Long:

Lived in Wagoner from 1896 to "last year"; knew Nancy Atkins; she had a mulatto-looking boy—six—seven years old; saw him around there for about 4 or 5 years; saw boy with Nancy and Maggie Martin, this in 1897 and '98; boy was called Tom; witness contributed to fund for his burial in 1901 or 1902. (R. 2245–47.)

Cross-examination:

No personal knowledge whether Nancy ever had a child. Nancy associated with negroes and Indians

(R. 2248); never knew of Nancy living with Betsey Birney during '97 and '98 (R. 2456); was convicted of embezzlement when sheriff; new trial ordered; dismissed; county commissioners recommended his removal; he resigned (R. 2256–57).

Richard Birney:

Lived in Wagoner along about 1894; knew Nancy Atkins; she had a child—it was a little bit of a thing when witness first saw it (witness was a little fellow then)—it was brought to his mother's house; saw child a good deal until witness went away from home; pretty good-sized child then; boy called Tommy Atkins; Nancy had him in her arms when he was brought to Birney's house. (R. 2457–59.)

Cross-examination:

Was about 12 years old when child brought to his mother's; had seen Nancy before when he was a little tad about 3 or 4; was 12 in 1890 [Nancy didn't go to Wagoner until 1890] (R. 2460–61); was sentenced to Leavenworth for larceny (R. 2461). This baby was left in his mother's care while Nancy was in the penitentiary (R. 2463).

Stated in testimony in Bartlett v. Nancy Atkins (state court) that child was born in a tent.

Is asked about affidavit executed by him making similar statement; doesn't remember signing. (R. 2464.)

Nolan Williams:

Became acquainted with Nancy Atkins along in the '90's; knows there was a child with her that she said was hers—was a year or so old when he first saw it; Nancy said its name was Tommy; saw boy for about three years, was between Indian and mulatto. (R. 2465–2468.)

Cross-examination:

Didn't get information about child from Nancy, but from old man Birney (R. 2469); won't be certain he saw Nancy but the one time with the child (R. 2471). Only recollection that witness now has is that some time in the past he was coming out of Wagoner and saw a child with Betsey and Nancy, and Nancy said it was her boy, and old man Birney told witness it was Nancy's boy. (R. 2472.)

John T. Beard:

First saw Nancy Atkins in Wagoner in latter part of 1889 or '90; she appeared to be pregnant; this was before she was sent to the "pen"; saw her later, carrying the child in her arms and saw the child when it was walking; child 2 or 3 months old when he first saw it; Nancy said it was her child, called it Tommy. Saw boy in 1897–98 when he looked like he was 7 or 8 years old; he would often come with Nancy to store where witness employed; last saw child in 1898 or '99; remembers contribution taken up to bury child in 1901 or '02; child known as Tommy—Tommy Atkins (R. 2474–78); never knew Minnie.

On cross-examination is asked about testimony given in State court case where he testified that he had seen Minnie Atkins in 1890 at Wagoner. (R. 2484.)

M. I. Sullivan.

First became acquainted with Nancy Atkins in 1892 at Wagoner; she had a child two or three years old; said it was hers; Nancy was at witness's place of business at the time; saw the child probably every week; was acquainted with child from 1890–'95. (R. 2486–88.)

Cross-examination:

Nancy associated with colored people mostly (R. 2490).

A. Grant Wasson:

First acquainted with Nancy Atkins in 1889 at Wagoner; remembers she had a child that she claimed was hers, named Tommy; was about 2 years old when witness first saw it in 1890; saw child around there afterwards until 1895 or '96; was 4 or 5 when last saw him; looked like mixed between Indian, nigger, and white. (R. 2493–95.)

Andrew Jackson:

Knew Nancy Atkins; first saw her in Wagoner in 1892; knew she had a child, boy; he was 3 or 4 years old then; was riding out of town and nearly ran over child; asked Nancy if it was her child and she said yes; told her she had better keep him out of the road; thinks he saw child around the store occasionally. (R. 2500–02.)

John Ford:

saw the child two or three days after birth at Betsey Birney's; Nancy was in bed with it; was at Betsey's gambling nearly every night; would see child frequently; was yellow color, Indian look; last time witness saw child he appeared 8 or 9 years old; that was in 1899; gave 25¢ toward defraying funeral expenses for child; told him Tommy Atkins was dead; didn't see funeral procession; didn't know where they buried him; didn't know of Nancy having any other children. (R. 2505–08.)

J. L. Dyer:

Knew Nancy Atkins first in winter of 1890; she was pregnant in '90 or '91, soon after he went to live in that vicinity; remembers seeing her on street with a child after he had missed her a few months or more off the streets; had child before she went to the "pen"; child about 3 months old when he saw it; child was called Tommy; saw it around there until it was 9 or 10 years old; heard that it died; in 1901 last time he saw it. (R. 2519–21.)

Cross-examination:

Was convicted of "being constructively present at a robbery." (R. 2521.) Got new trial and got off at that trial.

Jasper Newton Skrimpsher:

Knew Nancy Atkins, who was related to witness's wife; doesn't know of her having child only what she told him; she had boy running around there 6 or 7 years old, which she said was her's, named Tommy Atkins; witness ran butcher and merchandising store;

Nancy traded there, sometimes sent boy to shop for meat, etc.; boy 8 years old when witness last saw him; doesn't know what became of him; he looked like half-blood Indian. (R. 2523–25.)

Cross-examination:

Saw him only about a year (R. 2526); saw boy about '91 and '92; he was about 7 years old then. (R. 2527.)

Foil M. Brady:

First acquainted with Nancy Atkins along about 1890; she was employed at McNally restaurant; went there on one occasion to get his boy, he was playing there with boy about 2 or 3 years old; Nancy came out and witness asked if it was her boy and she said yes; name, Tommy Atkins; month later was in town and asked about boy and Nancy told him he had died; never saw child after that; he died before Indian payment. (R. 2527–29.)

Kirk Turnbo:

Knew Nancy Atkins in Wagoner in about 1891 or '92; came in to have horses shod and saw Nancy; she was calling for "this boy," asked, "Have you seen anything of my boy Tommy"; saw the boy once in a while after that; last time he saw him boy was about 10 or 11 years old; (about 1902) thinks he contributed to fund to bury Tommy. (R. 2529–31.)

Cross-examination:

Was deputy U. S. marshal under Judge Stuart when he first saw the boy, 1892. (R. 2535.)

WALTER POSEY:

First saw Nancy Atkins in 1891 or '92 at Wagoner; saw a child with her; she said it was hers; saw it a few times with her, mostly with old man Birney; it stayed around there with the Birney children; it was 4 or 5 years old; last saw it about 1900 or '01; appeared to be about 10 years old; was called Tommy Atkins. (R. 2537-39.)

Saw child with her whom she called Tommy; it was about 2 or 3 years old when witness first saw it; saw it a time or two. (R. 2539-41.)

Cross-examination:

Mr. White asked him if he knew about Tommy, and then "they" prepared an affidavit and witness signed it (R. 2543); saw the boy with McNally's boy before he saw it with Nancy; saw Nancy frequently for 3 or 4 years before he saw her with boy (R. 2544); didn't have the boy with her then; it was about 1895 or '96 when he saw the boy. (R. 2545.)

THOMAS BREWER:

Acquainted with Nancy Atkins; never saw her pregnant; knew she had a child; saw him with Nancy several times; was a good, big kid; talked, went around everywhere; mixed blood, wasn't white and wasn't nigger; went by name of Tommy Atkins;

died about 1901; boy came to witness's house for milk. (R. 2545–48.)

Cross-examination:

Boy was about 6 or 7 when he died (R. 2550); Nancy was living in Wagoner then (R. 2551); didn't know boy until witness moved to Wagoner in 1899 or 1900. (R. 2553–54.)

FRANK ENGLES:

Went to Wagoner in December, 1890; knew Nancy Atkins about six months after that; she had a small kid with her; saw her carrying it in her arms and also leading it around; child about one year old; saw him for 5 or 6 years; last saw it in 1900; looked like an Indian child; never heard Nancy say whose child it was. (R. 2557–61.)

Cross-examination:

W. A. MCELROY:

Lived near Wagoner 1889–1901; was about Wagoner a good deal; saw Nancy in Wagoner about 1890; she had a child behind Davis & Jones' store—a collection was taken up for her (witness doesn't know about child except that collection was taken); saw child with Nancy afterwards; witness in town every six months for several years and saw child around town nearly every time he was there; 7 or 8 years old when witness last saw it; name of child always understood to be Tommy Atkins. (R. 2567–69.)

Cross-examination:

First learned child's name in 1896, 7, or 8 (R. 2570); the child lived at Betsey Birney's; last saw child in 1899; couldn't say whether when collection was taken up child was dead; it was said Nancy had given birth to child and was in bad condition (R. 2573); child appeared to be Indian and white (R. 2574).

J. M. Preston:

First knew Nancy Atkins in 1894 or '95 at Wagoner; she had a child about 5–7 years old, light complexion, molasses hair; child called Tommy; Nancy told him it was her child; saw the child around there about a week; never saw him after that. (R. 2575–77.)

Cross-examination:

Asked about affidavit he made in 1914; looked it over a few days before; stated therein that child was 4 or 5 years old, now still says it was 4–5 years old. (R. 2580-81.)

D. W. Best:

Became acquainted with Nancy Atkins during 1895; she had a child (supposed to be hers), swarthy little fellow, not white, was between 4 and 5 years old when witness first saw him; continued to see child until in 1898 or 1900; was about 9–11 years old when witness last saw him. (R. 2582–84.)

Cross-examination:

Was at blacksmith shop when he first saw child; blacksmith said, "There comes Nancy Atkins and Tom." (R. 2585.)

T. J. Way:

Knew Tom Holden and Katie Holden; was at their place frequently; Charlie and Harvey Atkins and Tommy Atkins lived with them; Mrs. Holden was sister to Minnie and Nancy Atkins; Holdens said that Charlie and Harvey were Minnie's children; saw Nancy Atkins at Holdens at one time; had conversation with Nancy and the Holdens with reference to Tommy; they said he was Nancy's child. This was in 1899 or 1900; after Tommy had been at Holdens some time Nancy came and took him away, so Mrs. Holden told him. (R. 2591–95.)

Cross-examination:

Child appeared to be not more than a half-blood Indian. Age then 6–8 years (R. 2601); Harvey and Charlie were at Holden's continuously until he died, in 1900 (2605–06).

W. C. Smith:

Kept drug store at Wagoner; Nancy kept coming around the store, had a little yellow headed kid about 3 or 4 years old with her; asked porter who Nancy was and was told "Nancy Atkins and her kid"; saw Nancy and child off and on for about 3 years, on the streets generally; saw child last in 1901, 02, or 03; child, sallow complexioned. (R. 2607–09.)

Cross-examination:

Last time saw child he was 3 or 4 or 5 years old; was walking by himself. (R. 2609.)

Bob Delozier:

Lived in Wagoner 20 years ago; knew Nancy Atkins in Wagoner for about ten years; got acquainted with her about two years after he went to Wagoner; she had a child when she was living in a tent back of Betsey Birney's house; witness was sent there with some grub for Nancy; saw her in the tent; saw a child lying there in bed; Nancy was in a condition of pregnancy a few months before; saw child for about nine years after it was born; saw it with Nancy often; child died—buried out northeast of Wagoner where graveyard now is—helped dig grave; was there when child buried; Monday Barnett, negro preacher, conducted ceremony of burial; doesn't recall if Nancy at burial; first morning witness went to tent (when baby born) he helped move Nancy out of tent into Betsey Birney's house; Nancy was arrested about three months after birth of child; saw child from that time until it died; Betsey first took care of it and then it lived different places among colored people; boy called Tommy, Tommy Atkins. (R. 2611–15.)

Cross-examination:

Has served three penitentiary sentences for forgery. (R. 2617–18.) Went to "pen" some time after child's death, maybe a year later. (R. 2623.)

Samuel McHenry:

Has lived in Wagoner since 1898; Baptist missionary preacher; attended burial of boy "they" said was Nancy Atkins's; thinks Nancy was present; fixes date as 1901; witness officiated at the grave. (R. 2626–27.)

Cross-examination:

Never heard of Nancy having a boy by name of Tommy until time of funeral. (R. 2637.)

Ellis Childers:

Three-quarter Creek Indian; three times speaker of House of Warriors, Creek Council; treasurer Creek Nation one term; was district attorney during Creek courts; went to school at Carlisle with Minnie Atkins; known Minnie and Nancy Atkins since childhood—about 30–40 years; they belong to Euchee Town band, part of Creek Tribe; knew mother of Minnie and Nancy; knew of their father, Thomas Atkins, who was captain of the Light Horsemen several years; he was of Coweta Town, mother was a Euchee; according to Creek usages the children of the marriage followed the mother because she was Euchee and father was not. (R. 2637–39.)

Was at Carlisle January, 1880–June, 1884; spent life in Creek Nation except when at school; judges Nancy to be 41 or 42 years old, Minnie 57 (R. 2639); intermarriages between Atkins and Childers families; knew Nancy in Wagoner; at time of pasture payment in 1890 (Oct. 1st) one Sam Childers told witness Nancy had had baby and was in destitute condition; subscription was circulated and some of the women went to see Nancy and reported that they had secured Betsey Birney to care for her; shortly after, within ten days, went to see Betsey Birney and while there saw Nancy and the child (R. 2640–41); saw a child with Nancy about a year later; couldn't say if same child, learned later it went by name of Tommy Atkins; last time saw child it was 1½ to 2 years old; saw him with Nancy and the others that lived there, around Davis & Jones's store (R. 2642–43); saw Nancy in 1890 several times; she was pregnant; never saw her pregnant more than the one time; birth of child was before Nancy sent to "pen." Describes method by which 1895 roll was made up (R. 2645–47) at extraordinary session of council in May, 1895. At that time knew Nancy had a child, but can't recall whether he knew the boy's name was Tommy Atkins. (R. 2647.) Knew then that Minnie had two boys, didn't know their names then; never knew of her having other children; understanding in Atkins family in 1895 was that Minnie had two children.

Sam Brown called witness out of the house and asked him to come into committee room to verify three families of Euchees that lived in witness's section; the Atkins family was one of the three; was the reputation in Atkins family that time that Nancy had one boy. (R. 2648–49.)

The 1895 roll was made from rolls made up by Town Kings; these were examined by the council committee and, if approved, it endorsed it and passed it on to the council (R. 2652, 2653); names paragraphed and numbered separately represented families (R. 2654); identifies names of Atkins family on 1895 roll (R. 2655) and is asked concerning notation "error" on 1890 roll.

ment, and he told Hammett that he didn't believe this child entitled to enrollment, but if anybody's child it was Nancy's. Didn't know how long Nancy's child lived, but understood it died very shortly after it was born. Did not at any time know any Creek child born to Minnie or Nancy Atkins named Thomas Atkins.

Witness admits testifying thus. (R. 2668–71.)

Witness admits that he gave Government representative names of persons to be interviewed who could testify of birth and death of Nancy's child and accompanied agent to secure statements. Was in pay of Creek Nation at time. (R. 2671–74.)

Thomas Atkins, son of Richard Atkins, lived about 8 miles from Wagoner; he died about time land office opened; must have been about 12 years old when he died. Richard Atkins's family were cousins of Minnie and Nancy (R. 2674). Witness's attention first called to Thomas Atkins's name on roll by Harjo, but he paid little attention to it and didn't give a satisfactory answer (R. 2675). Nancy Atkins was taken to witness's house by Jim White; she stayed there three weeks.

Q. Then you told me, didn't you, that you believed that if you could get Nancy away from that crowd that she would tell the truth about this boy; is that a fact?

A. I may have; I don't recollect.

* * * * *

Q. Didn't you say if you could get her away from that crowd you could get her to tell the truth?

A. You said it and I sanctioned it. You asked me if I didn't think so, and I said yes." (R. 2676.)

(See R. 2692 relative to name Thomas appearing with names of Richard Atkins's family; also R. 2694.)

NANCY ATKINS:

Lived in Creek Nation all her life (45 years); doesn't remember the year she went to Wagoner; Barnard Hotel first place she worked there; was pregnant when she went to Wagoner; child born in September at Elnora Williams's house; was a boy, died spring of 1900; would have child with her often; had to have somebody care for him while she worked, would send him to Betsey Birney's; never gave birth to another child; was at burial of child; MacHenry and E. J. White were also present; child was 3 or 4 months old when she went to "pen"; served 6½ months in "pen"; upon return to Wagoner went to Betsey Birney's and found child there. (R. 2697–2700.)

Relates how prior to trial of case against H. U. Barlett and Gypsy Oil Co. brought by herself she was visited by Bartlett's son, Betty Mann, and others and taken to Sapulpa, and after being there a few days went to office of Lytle; Bartlett's son also there; they wanted her to say child was a girl; told her by claiming it to be a boy she was fixing to go to the "pen"; Betty Mann had told her Bartlett child would give her $2,000 if she would deny the (R. 2700–03); never got the $2,000. Statement she made that day in Lytle's office was false. In trial at Sapulpa she took back what she said in that statement and testified that child was a boy and lived several years; that was the truth (R. 2704).

Since trial of that case, Sadie James endeavored to get witness to go with her to see Minnie Atkins; Sadie offered Joe Byrd $50 to persuade witness to go. Sadie went so far as to say to Joe Byrd that she wanted to get witness to Kansas City and there wouldn't be any more Nancy (this last not in presence of Nancy; she was told of it R. 2704–05); Sadie arranged to take witness with her, but witness had J. B. White called on phone and when informed of attempt to take witness away he came out and took her to Ellis Childers' (R. 2706). This was latter part of September. She stayed at Childers' until December. Her guardian, Harjo, also tried to get her away; she was at Coffeyville with Harjo and his family on their way to Portland, Oregon; made a statement to some lawyers there; Harjo told witness Bartlett offered him $500 if he could get her to deny child. This was before testimony at Sapulpa. Had interview with Bartlett and made statement a few days later; after making statement in Lytle's office, they wanted witnesses to prove child was girl; witness told what witnesses to secure; went with Bartlett, Betty Mann, and others to see witnesses; relates how witnesses were "coached" to say child was girl (R. 2706–09); witness was doing this to get out of case entirely (R. 2709).

Now states child was boy and she named it Tommy (R. 2709); died in spring of 1900; he was 8 or 9; had Minnie's two boys for two or three months (R. 2710); Tommy was puny child; had light hair when young; grew darker as he grew older (R. 2712).

Cross-examination:

Sadie was representing Page; witness was induced to give false deposition through fear of going to "pen" (R. 2712); admits she swore at Sapulpa that child was girl and born dead (R. 2713); Betty Mann told her if she so swore she would get $2,000. Attention called to affidavit made in district court, Sapulpa, opposition to new trial when she stated that Harjo came to her at Coffeyville and informed her that Bartlett desired statement that Minnie Atkins was mother of Tommy and that Nancy wasn't; Harjo told her Bartlett was willing to give her $500 to make such a statement (R. 2714); Bartlett never offered her any money—offer made by Harjo. When she gave deposition in MacDougal & Lytle's office her two lawyers were present and cross-examined her at length (R. 2715). Ellis Childers told her that she would get into trouble if she didn't change testimony and swear child was boy (R. 2719–20); admits she stuck to story about child being girl and born dead from July, 1913, to Feb. 9, 1914 (R. 2720).

Witness filed an allotment for herself, but not for child (R. 2725); Harjo was the first one to suggest that witness was entitled to the land in controversy; witness, at Harjo's instance, signed lease to Hammett for $50 (R. 2726). Bartlett was the next to talk to her about land; wanted her to swear her child was girl and that Tommy Atkins belonged to Minnie. Witness told him she was willing—wanted to get out of case (R. 2727–28). Harjo was to get the $500 for this (R. 2728). Made same statement in Lytle's office; her lawyer was present and cross-examined her; she stuck to story that child was girl, born dead (R. 2730); witness's uncle, Wm. Robinson, looked after enrollment of witness; he agreed to get them all on the roll; didn't file for boy because wasn't sure he was entitled to it, being dead when selections made; left that to Robinson (R. 2736–37); didn't ask commissioners about that (R. 2743).

Bob Delozier did not bring her her meals when she was confined. (R. 2740. Note: Delozier testifies that he did.) Child born at Elnora Williams's and not in a tent (R. 2740); was in bed there three weeks, and it was a month before she was "stirring around" (R. 2741).

Blanche Yarboro:

Lives at Nowata, Okla.; knows Nancy Atkins; remembers Sadie James coming to her house a year or two ago; Sadie said she was there to see guardian of Nancy; said there was money to be paid to Nancy; Nancy came in while Sadie was there; Sadie phoned to Page at Tulsa; she wanted Page to meet her that night; said "the party" will be ready to go. Nancy did not leave town, for witness put her away so that no one could take her away; telephoned to Mr. White; he came that night and took Nancy away in the morning. (R. 2744–45.)

Cross-examination:

Identifies Govt. Ex. A–107 (R. 4829) as bill rendered by telephone company for call to Page by Sadie; shows call by Whitaker to Tulsa on Sept. 25, 1914; Sadie put call in under name of Whitaker. (R. 2745–46.)

J. B. White:

Lived at Coweta, Okla., since 1901; deputy clerk of county court; lived Wagoner beginning spring of 1895; knew Nancy Atkins at Wagoner; saw her frequently; she stayed a good deal at Betsey Birney's; saw boy in 1896 with Nancy and playing on the streets; Nancy said it was her boy; was about 5 or 6 years old; looked to have Indian in him; saw child up to 1900; first heard of this Tommy Atkins matter in 1913; oil development in locality was then about 5 to 7 miles from land in controversy; had many inquiries made of him regarding Tommy Atkins; then went looking into it himself. Located Nancy; saw Harjo, her guardian, and asked for lease; secured lease from Harjo and had it approved by county court; talked over lease with Nancy in presence of Harjo; after taking lease, filed suit against Bartlett and Gypsy Oil Co.; latter in possession under lease from Bartlett. Suit was in name of Nancy Atkins, by her guardian Harjo, v. Bartlett and others, filed July 23, 1913. After approval of lease, did not see Nancy until she gave deposition in that case on February 9, 1914, in McDougal & Lytle's office; after that he sent Ellis Childers after Nancy; had no conversation with her until after trial was over. Was phoned to by Mrs. Yarboro to come to Nowata; found Nancy there; she asked him to take her away; witness sent her to Ellis Childers; Nancy was later brought to Mr. Allen's office (representative of Government); witness went to Wagoner to look up witnesses after he took lease; Ellis Childers assisted him. (R. 2747–59.)

Cross-examination:

Knew the Birney children; probably has seen Joe Birney with Nancy; Nancy never had a white child with her; boy Tommy claimed was light colored; could tell by looking he had negro blood. (R. 2759–60); remembers Thomas Atkins in Dick Atkins's family; never saw Nancy with this Thomas—he was mulatto; this child of Nancy's was called Thomas (R. 2761).

Witness and his associates furnished the money upon which this case has been carried on (R. 2766). Sent Ellis Childers to see Nancy after she gave deposition at Lytle's office because he was convinced she had told falsehood about not having boy child (R. 2766); kept Nancy concealed and was going to spring her as a surprise at trial at Sapulpa (R. 2768); didn't know what she would testify to.

Remembers getting 25 or 26 affidavits to be attached to answer to motion for new trial in Atkins-Bartlett case (R. 2768); never had testified before that he knew anything about Nancy and her child (R. 2769).

Testimony of Nancy Atkins given at trial Atkins v. Bartlett in state court at Sapulpa is introduced as follows:

Gave birth to a child.

Q. "What kind of a child was it?"

A. "Supposed to be a boy, I guess."

Lived to be 10 years old; admits testifying in deposition Lytle's office previously that she had a girl child which was born dead and that this was only child born to her (R. 2775); says what she testified to then was false; now places birthplace at Birney's and not at Williams's house; testified falsely because told there was big money in it for her; thought she ought to get some of it (R. 2776); told Bartlett that child was girl because Harjo got her to do so (R. 2777); was promised pay for affidavit given at Coffeyville; had been told she would go to the penitentiary if she didn't change her testimony (R. 2780). Betty Mann also told her there was big money in it for her if she would deny the child (R. 2782).

Deposition of Nancy Atkins given at Lytle's office February 9, 1914.

Had a female child born to her; born dead; no other child born to her; living at Wagoner when child born; child born at Mrs. Williams' (R. 2785); doesn't know anything about Thomas Atkins (R. 2786); made up her mind last July to testify child was girl; told Harjo, Hammett, and Bill Robinson; they wanted her to "swear child was a boy, this Thomas Atkins that they are bringing up, and I knew that was none of mine"; that was first time she had ever heard of Thomas Atkins (R. 2787); only Thomas Atkins she knows was Billy Atkins' child, who lived at Coweta; doesn't know who enrolled Thomas Atkins. Mrs. Robinson, Robinson's wife, enrolled Nancy (R. 2788). Knew Harjo as her guardian was executing lease to Thomas Atkins' allotment; witness told him that she did not have anything to do with it because the child wasn't hers. (R. 2790.)

Denies on cross-examination that she told White, who was negotiating for lease, that she was mother of Thomas Atkins and that he lived to be 10 or 12 years old. (R. 2792.)

R. C. Allen:

Employed Ellis Childers; sent him after Nancy Atkins; she didn't come at that time; Mr. Maxey telephoned witness he would produce Nancy if witness wanted to talk to her; later Mr. Maxey, Judge Rosser, and Nancy Atkins came to witness' office; witness interrogated her and had questions and her answers taken down; after interrogation finished witness asked that Nancy be permitted to talk with Ellis Childers alone in another room; after Childers came out, witness stated that he didn't care to question her further. (R. 2794.)

Cross-examination:

Knew at time he employed Childers that he had been employed by White. (R. 2795.)

J. K. McClaren:

Lived in Wagoner from 1885 to 1891; was about 17–19 years old in '91; last two or three years before leaving there worked in Davis & Jones' store in winter time and on ranch in summer time; worked winters '89–'90 and '90–'91 at store; knew Nancy Atkins from 1887 to 1891; she lived in a tent in the back part of company's lumberyard at one time; stayed with negroes named Birney and negroes named Williams—several places; she worked at Bernard Hotel some of the time; she had a child; most distinct recollection of it was about 1890 or '91; there was a little child about 1½ years old, couldn't talk; can't say whether boy or girl; Nancy left it when she went out to work, but witness saw her at store many times with child; would see it also with Birney children and on the street; looked like a mixed-blood. (R. 4406–09.)

Cross-examination:

Was in Wagoner when child was born, but doesn't remember when he first saw it; doesn't recall seeing Nancy in a family way (R. 4412); doesn't know of Nancy's going to the "pen" in 1890 (R. 4413); doesn't know child was Nancy's except that she claimed it. (R. 4414).

J. H. ANDERSON:

Made Wagoner his home from 1883; went to Coweta in '92; knew Nancy Atkins; he hadn't been in Wagoner long before he saw her there; doesn't remember seeing her in a pregnant condition; saw her leading a child once which she said was hers; that was about 1890, child then 3 or 4 months old; saw child after that; remembers Nancy going to the "pen." Betsey Birney took the child while Nancy was gone; saw child with Nancy when she returned. Returned to Wagoner in 1903; saw Nancy, but not the child; Nancy told him it was dead; never knew name of child.

Knows Dick Atkins's family; Thomas Atkins in Dick's family is not the child he knew as Nancy's; Dick's Thomas was five or six years older than Nancy's. (R. 4414–17.)

Cross-examination:

Child 2 or 3 years old when he last saw it. (R. 4417.)

M. J. Phillipi:

Was in newspaper business in Wagoner beginning 1892; knew woman there named Nancy Atkins; she had a child; saw child occasionally; saw it there for two or three years; looked like it had negro and Indian blood—some white; last time saw child about 1894 or '95; it was about 4 years old. (R. 4419–20.)

Cross-examination:

Had been in Wagoner about a year when he first noticed child, then about three years old (R. 4420); doesn't know whose child it was of his own knowledge; saw Nancy with Dick Birney's children; child was called Tommy (R. 4421). Left Wagoner in 1906 (R. 4422).

Lizzie M. Miller:

Lived in Wagoner for fifteen years from December, 1897; knew Nancy Atkins there; got acquainted with her in 1898; she was staying at Birney's; she had a child, called him Tommy; witness rented to Birney house in which latter lived; was at Birney's frequently; Nancy and the child there; remembers when child was sick and of its death; was there the day child was buried; was 7 or 8 years old when she last saw him in 1899. (R. 4422–24.)

J. B. White:

Had a conversation with Henry Anderson in Wagoner when witness was investigating this case; Anderson told him that he knew Nancy had a child and it was a boy and was named Tommy; that child lived to be quite a big boy; when affidavit to this effect was prepared Anderson said he wanted one hundred dollars for himself and one hundred dollars for one Phillips, whom he had procured for witness; told witness if they gave affidavits they had to have $100 down and $300 after case decided; witness refused to pay anything except for the day's work; never told Anderson he wanted him to testify that the boy lived and that Anderson said "no." (R. 4555–56.)

AUGUSTUS A. DAVIS:

Has resided in Wagoner, Oklahoma, since 1893; until seven years ago was in secondhand business; knew a boy at Charlie Bailey's home out on the farm near Wagoner, the boy was an Indian; first saw boy there in 1895 or '96; knew Nancy Atkins at Wagoner; saw a boy with her once when a man named Snow and she came into his store, boy was with her; Nancy said "this is my boy, I want to get him a pair of shoes"; had seen boy two or three times before; boy had been in witness's store with couple of colored boys. On occasion when Nancy had him at store Nancy called boy "Tommy" and then told witness his name was Tommy Atkins; boy was sandy complexioned—witness called him "a red-headed nigger"; thinks boy was of white and Cherokee blood; couldn't see any negro about him; the boy at Charlie Bailey's and the boy with Nancy were different boys. (R. 4593–97.)

Cross-examination:

Denies he said the boy looked like a red-headed nigger; he was dark and dirty; never saw him but once with Nancy; never had seen Nancy until the time Snow brought her into store; had heard of her. (R. 4597–98.)

For Henry Carter.

T. W. Bell:

Lawyer, practicing in Leavenworth for past thirty years; one of the attorneys representing defendant Henry Carter. Knows George Crilly of Leavenworth; had a conversation with him in presence of Coody Johnson and R. E. Martin, in witness's office in Leavenworth latter part of 1915; Crilly stated that his judgment was that defendant Carter was the boy known as Commodore; that he (Crilly) had told Clarence Turner he was and that he had not made up his mind he was not the boy; that he had talked to Carter about things that happened when he was a boy and Carter seemed to have a recollection of them and convinced him more than ever that Carter was the boy he had known as Commodore.

Knows Dennis Jones; Dennis, in conversation with witness in state district court room in Leavenworth in spring of 1915, told him that he (Jones) wouldn't say that Carter was not the boy Tommy Atkins that he saw at Granny Letcher's.

Dennis Jones also stated to witness, in Federal court room in Leavenworth in spring of 1916 that if he (Jones) had been permitted to have gone ahead he would have found the real Thomas Atkins and "for you folks—speaking to witness—to go ahead as you are; you are on the right track." In that conversation Jones also said that witness had taken up Carter where he dropped off and were wise in doing so.

In 1916, shortly after depositions in this case had been taken by Examiner Penick, Dennis stated that he was unable to say that Carter was not the Thomas Atkins that was at Granny Letcher's.. (R. 4346–47.)

HENRY THOMAS CARTER:

Is the defendant Henry Thomas Carter in this case. First place he remembers living was Mrs. Letcher's, on Seneca Street, Leavenworth; she was a negro; did not know her as Granny Letcher; Sam Nash, Walter Banks, Jim Mayo, and Hattie Nash were other members of the family there; Jim was largest of the boys, Walter next, and Sam next; Sam was larger than witness; remembers Crilly's barn across the street; played around on the street and over at Crilly's barn and around the house there; Crilly had a one-armed man, Tom Dailey, around the barn. Witness was called Tommy and Commodore when at Mrs. Letcher's; when a little fellow, Henry Carter took him to his farm and he was raised there. For a short time after leaving Letcher's, came back every couple of weeks to Leavenworth with Carter; then started to school; didn't go back to Leavenworth again after starting school until he was 10 or 12 or 14 years old; went then to Mrs. Yoakum's; saw Mrs. Letcher once on those trips—at Mrs. Yoakum's; Miss Anna Davis, Miss Mamie Byron, Miss Denny, Mr. Hall, Mr. Kelsey, were his teachers while at school; didn't tell these teachers his age—he didn't know it. (R. 4348.)

First saw Adas Wright short time after he was taken to Carter's; she and her husband and a child came to visit the Carters; had seen her off and on since.

Lived in the Carter family until Carter's death. Tommy Carter, Susie Carter, and Viola Carter lived in the Carter family at this time. First saw Viola at Carter home, but doesn't remember whether she was there when he went there—she was there shortly afterwards. Asked old man Carter several times who his parents were and he told witness his mother was an Indian woman; "he says you are my boy now"; never told him more than that, nor the name of his mother. After Carter's death witness went to Leavenworth, where he stayed two weeks. Tried to enlist in Army, but was refused because looked too young—not 21; went back to Carter farm; stayed there short time and went to Indian Territory to see if he could find some trace of his mother; stayed something more than a year; married there under the name of Kessinger; used that name because his friends around Carter place told him they wouldn't go by that name, it was a nigger name—that was only reason for changing. Gave his age as 24 when he applied for marriage license, didn't really know his age.

Witness then details his movements for number of years, during which he oscillated between Indian Territory and Leavenworth; trips to Territory were usually for purpose of finding his mother or something about her.

First heard of Tommy Atkins matter three years ago. A government man from Washington, D. C., first interviewed him; next to see him was Long; gave him some information he had given Government man; Crilly was with Long; about two weeks later at Long's invitation went to see him at National Hotel, Leavenworth; Dennis Jones, Rube Smith, Sam Nash, and Mr. Josey were there; Dennis, Sam, and Rube identified him as the boy they were looking for. Sam Nash referred to birthmark and witness showed it; witness had a little boot he wore when he left Letcher's and Sam Nash told him that he had bought it for witness; Dennis Jones told Long, "You have the right boy."

Signed the lease at that time to Gem Oil Co. Dennis Jones took the acknowledgment. Govt. Ex. A. 66. (R. 4752.)

At Carter place witness was called Tommy H. and Commodore; never was recognized by the Carter family as related to them; no relation that he knew of to Viola; doesn't know where Viola came from; never heard old man Carter say where she came from; witness and Viola went to school together. (R. 4348–60.)

Cross-examination:

Doesn't remember incident of smoking Van Tyle's pipe at latter's barn; doesn't remember pointing finger at fruit on trees in Granny's yard or getting after boys for pointing at it. Crilly asked him about that recently. (R. 4360.)

When Crilly and Long first interviewed him witness was putting in a furnace in a cellar; Crilly called him out and introduced him to Long, who said "anybody could see he is part Indian" and that witness was the boy he wanted. It was some time after this that he signed lease to the Gem Oil Co.; he saw Long and Crilly several times before he signed it. (R. 4361.)

Has known Crilly nearly all his life; doesn't remember of Crilly seeing him from time he was a little boy until last two or three years. Witness had signed the papers when Crilly talked to him about fruit-tree episode. Another time when Long talked with witness, Rube Smoth was with Long, and when Long again said witness was right boy Rube agreed with him.

Long went out and made investigation in vicinity of Carter place before he took conveyances from witness. (R. 4362–63.)

Talked with Dennis Jones at his office quite a while before signing lease; Long took witness there—Rube Smith was present also; Dennis said, "Mr. Long, we have got the right boy." (R. 4364.)

Took a lease and then a deed from him. (R 4365.)

Whenever Long came to Leavenworth he would come to see witness and tell him they were working awfully hard to get everything in shape for him. (R. 4366.)

Never wrote Bagley letter dated Oct. 17, 1914, stating what his address was and that his mother was sick in the hospital. Saw Minnie Folk at a distance in fall of 1914. Never went to hotel to see her while she was there. (R. 4366.)

At the time Minnie was there witness still believed they were trying to establish his claim to this land. (R. 4367.)

Recalled:

When married the first time, in 1904, gave his age as 24; when married second time, in 1908, gave age as 28; gave age as 24 because wife was 22 and he "wanted to be a man"; gave age second time as 28 because he had given as 24 when first married; never really knew his age. (R. 4457–58.)

C. W. TURNER:

In hardware business at Muskogee; met George Crilly "here" a couple of years ago; had a conversation with Crilly at the time of the receivership hearing in this case; Crilly stated that it seemed like they didn't want him to tell all he knew; that he wanted to tell up to a certain point and that if he were in Leavenworth he could place his hands on the real Thomas Atkins, who was there, going under the name of Henry Carter. (R. 4367–68.)

Cross-examination:

After Crilly talked to him and had gone back home witness wired him and telephoned him with a view to having him secure a lease for him from Henry. (R. 4370.)

For Government in rebuttal.

T. W. BELL:

In a conversation at his office with Mrs. Mattie Cobb, who testified on behalf of Page at Leavenworth in February, 1916, before Examiner Penick, she stated to witness in substance that the child she saw and dressed at Granny Letcher's had a scar on his back and that Mr. Page had told her that if she wouldn't tell that he would make her comfortable for life. Further stated that she would be willing to testify for witness as to that scar if he would make a substantial financial arrangement with her. At the same time and place she said to witness that she had told Lee Bond in his offices about the scar; that he threw up his hands and said, "My God, I thought you were my friend." She also told witness that Mr. Page had gone over her testimony with her and told her that he wanted her to testify to the birth of the child at Granny Letcher's and nothing else and that he would make her comfortable for life. At that same time she further stated that Long had told her that if she would testify right he would pay her for it.

Two or three days thereafter, witness had a conversation with Mrs. Cobb at the Federal Hotel at Kansas City, wherein Mrs. Cobb stated in substance the same things she said at Leavenworth. This was 30 to 60 days before she testified at Leavenworth and while depositions were being taken at Kansas City. She further stated then that she would be willing to testify for witness but before doing so wanted to see the big man with the money, referring to Mr. Blakeney. Witness told her that he was not paying anything for evidence; witness's stenographer, Mr. Morton, was present at the conversation at Leavenworth, as was Mrs. Cobb's daughter. Same persons present at Kansas City, except that witness is not sure that Morton was there all the time; Morton had brought Mrs. Cobb and her daughter to Kansas City at witness's request, as he expected to take their depositions there.

Mrs. Letcher was black. (R. 4433-35.)

Cross-Examination:

Witness was present at time Mrs. Cobb was asked about these incidents; was representing Henry Carter. Witness had sent for her to come to his office when she told him these things. Told Bond that Mrs. Cobb had told him a story which he believed but didn't tell Bond about her saying child had a scar. (R. 4435–36.)

Witness, after Leavenworth conversation, had Mrs. Cobb brought over to Kansas City to testify for him, but when she came there she demanded $500 (R. 4437); he therefore didn't put her on stand as she told him she wouldn't testify (R. 4439); at Kansas City conversation Mrs. Tittle, Mrs. Cobb's daughter, was in an adjoining room in the hotel talking with Mr. Martin (R. 4440).

Redirect:

Witness knew Mrs. Cobb previously; he had represented her brother's family in cases. (R. 4441.)

R. E. MARTIN:

Witness and T. W. Bell are interested in lease on property given by Henry Carter; Mr. Bell, Mr. Blackeney, and Mr. Johnson represented the Henry Carter interests at taking of depositions before Examiner Penick at Kansas City and Leavenworth; was present in office of Mr. Bell in Leavenworth a short time before Mrs. Cobb testified at Leavenworth, at which time Mrs. Cobb had a conversation with witness, Mr. Bell and others; Mrs. Cobb stated in substance that Page had told her if she would testify to the birth of Thomas Atkins at the home of Granny Letcher, and nothing more, he would make her comfortable for life; doesn't remember her making statement that Long had told her if she would testify she would be well paid for it; nor does he remember her making statement that Page had said to her that he didn't want her to remember anything about a scar on this boy's back and if she would remember right he would take care of her for the balance of her life; witness didn't hear all of the conversation at that time; he was in and out of the hall but was in there part of the time Mrs. Cobb was doing this talking.

Was at Federal Hotel in Kansas City when Mrs. Cobb was in a room opposite, but didn't hear her statement there; was present there when Mrs. Cobb said she wanted to see the big white man that was interested in the case. She did say she was willing to testify for them but before doing so they would have to make a substantial financial arrangement with her (R. 4442–44).

Cross-examination:

George Crilly told witness about the scar (R. 4446).

Benjamin B. Blakeney:

Attorney at law, one of the attorneys representing the Henry Carter interest; had a conversation with Mrs. Cobb at Federal Hotel, Kansas City, in February, 1916, just before she testified at Leavenworth, wherein she stated that she knew about this boy (Thomas Atkins); that she dressed him when he was a little baby; that he had a birthmark on his back, and he was afterwards taken to the country by Henry Carter; that Carter would return with him frequently and permit him to visit around there. (R. 4446–48.)

Cross-examination:

Thinks Martin was in the room during conversation; Bell was not there; Bell met him as he went up to see Mrs. Cobb and her daughter and told him they wanted to see him (witness); Mrs. Cobb didn't say anything about Page or Long "buying" her. (R. 4449.)

Redirect:

Witness had avoided seeing Mrs. Cobb for awhile; he is the so-called big white man referred to. (R. 4450.)

Recross-examination:

Every time Mrs. Cobb would meet Johnson or Bell, she would tell them she didn't want to talk to them, she wanted to talk to the big white man that had the money, and "as I didn't have it I avoided her." (R. 4450.)

Frank Kersten:

City detective, Leavenworth; searched police records to ascertain whether in the '90's a person by name of Thomas Atkins was arrested or tried; found no record; looked from 1890–1901; finds record of Tommy York (R. 4455–57).

Elizabeth Dillman:

Knows Minnie Atkins; knew her well at Fort Wayne and Fort Lawton; knew Minnie by sight only when at Fort Leavenworth in 1885; Minnie was employed by Grodevant; Minnie going down town from Grodevant's would pass by where witness lived; recalls seeing Minnie at Decoration Day service at

Post in 1885; she did not show any evidence of being in a family way; would see Minnie occasionally around the Post; never saw her when she appeared in a family way; did not know of her working for Stafford; she would not pass witness's residence in going from Stafford's to town (R. 4462–64).

DR. FINIS W. EWING:

Physician; states his education and experience; details three stages of labor in childbirth.

At passage of the child there is some laceration in the cervix; sometimes lacerations are caused by abortion or early miscarriage; when these lacerations heal, a scar tissue is left; it would not be possible in making an examination of the cervix during labor to determine from a simple manual examination whether scar tissue was from a former pregnancy or from some other cause prior to present labor; after dilatation has begun it would be impossible to make such a diagnosis; purpose of digital examination at time of labor is to determine whether presentation is normal and if bony parts of mother are sufficient in size to permit transmission of the foetus. In making that examination witness never did so to ascertain whether there was evidences of previous laceration; the fact of previous birth is ascertained by questioning patient.

If called to attend a case of childbirth where woman in intense pain, a normal woman, and a normal presentation, the pains having been in progress for about an hour, and no dilatation of the cervix was found, his judgment would be that woman was a prima para (a woman giving birth to first child); to determine accurately whether lacerations are result of a previous birth, an examination by eye with a speculum is necessary, and disease could produce scar tissue which would readily deceive any examiner—might deceive the eye.

Assuming that woman is 5 ft. 6 in. tall, weighs 135–150 lbs., is not well groomed; witness' opinion is she could not successfully conceal pregnancy from a casual observer at six months; it would not be possible to conceal it during 7th, 8th, and 9th months.

During the first three or four months a baby nurses from ten to twelve times a day; where a mother was away from the baby except for one nursing during the day, it would be necessary for her to expel the milk from her breast at each period at which the baby would normally nurse; it would require about 15 minutes to empty the breast by manual manipulation without use of breast pump.

Theoretically the shortest interval that can occur between birth of one child and that of another by same woman is about ten months.

The general rule of lactation is the absence of ovalation, and absence of ovalation prevents conception. In ordinary cases (there are exceptions) during the time a woman is nursing a baby she does not become pregnant again. (R. 4469–77.)

Charles R. Warren:

Born in Leavenworth in 1890, lived there all his life; born at 202 Seneca Street, moved to 201 Shawnee, lives now at 305 Seneca; when 6 or 7 years old played with Alva Adams, Ray Adams, Conrad boys, Endres boys—Earnest is one—some colored boys named Clay; most of the boys lived around there—Seneca to Cherokee, 2d and Olive, Second and Market; remembers stealing rides on wagon driven by one Higgins; knew Tommy York; played around that community until 1903; played around Crilly's barn on Seneca between 2d and 3d Streets; played around Van Tyle's barn; never played with a boy that was or looked like an Indian; did not know any boy named Tommy Atkins, Indian Tommy, Commodore, Tommodore, or nicknamed Trailer; played war; run, sheep, run.

Remembers a stone house on opposite side of street from Crilly's barn; it was a couple of lots from Van Tyle's barn, closer to 3d than to 2nd; remembers Sam Nash lived in that neighborhood. (R. 4515–20.)

Fred S. Cook:

While in employ of government was detailed to investigate the Atkins case. Had a conversation in March, 1915, with Dr. Carpenter in San Diego, at which Mr. Allen (of counsel for Government) was present, wherein the Dr. stated he had attended Minnie Peterkin (Atkins) at the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin at the Wood home; that so far as he (Dr.) could remember, this was her first child, but his records in Leavenworth would show; no suggestion or intimation given Dr. by either Allen or witness that they wanted the doctor to testify that it was a first child or that such was their belief.

Remembers a conversation he and Allen had with Mary Smith at her home in Leavenworth during the winter of 1914–15, wherein she stated in substance that the woman she saw with a child at the home of Granny Letcher during the 80's was not the woman she afterwards saw and knew as Minnie Atkins or Minnie Folk. She also said that Henry Carter, defendant in this case, is the boy she saw there at Granny Letcher's.

Recalls conversation with Sam Nash on streets of Leavenworth same day they interviewed Mary Smith, in which Sam stated that Granny Letcher rented the house at 217 Seneca Street from Mr. Dassler—first rented it from Dassler. (R. 4522–25.)

Prior to the time Ellis Childers went to Nowata witness heard a conversation Mr. Allen had with him with reference to going to see Nancy Atkins, at which Childers said that if Mr. Allen or witness would go with him, Nancy Atkins would tell them she never had a child named Thomas Atkins.

Witness's memory is refreshed by reference to a report made by him of his work on this case, and he states that Mary Smith at the time he and Mr. Allen interviewed her said in substance that she was advised not to state on the witness stand at Leavenworth in 1914 in the Atkins case that the Tommy Atkins she was testifying about was Henry Carter. (R. 4535–36.)

Cross-examination:

Long, for the Page interests, complained to witness about activity of Pinkerton interest and Sadie James in the case; Mr. Long then told witness and Mr. Linnen, Chief Inspector of the Indian Service, that he would turn over everything of evidence he had and after an examination if they were satisfied he was wrong he (Long) would quit (R. 4526-27).

Redirect:

Witness was not then assigned to case when Long made proposition; witness told Mr. Allen what Long had said and Allen assigned him to case immediately. Long didn't turn over the information to him because witness wouldn't "collaborate" with him (Long).

Witness went to Leavenworth to investigate and on several occasions was followed around there by men. (R. 4527.)

CHARLES HARRISON:

Son of Minnie Atkins and brother of Harvey Harrison. Born at Fort Logan, Colorado; doesn't remember when he came to Indian Territory; mother gave him and his brother to Kate Holden, near where town of Haskell now is; they stayed there one summer and one winter, then were taken to Wagoner to Nancy Atkins, where they stayed about four weeks; no other boy at Kate Holden's while they were there—no boy named Thomas Atkins.

Knows Tom Way; when witness was a kid used to come over to Holden's and would play with witness; witness opened gates for him and Way gave him 25 cents quite a number of times for doing that.

When they were with Nancy Atkins, she was not caring for any other boy; witness knew no boy around Wagoner named Thomas Atkins;

Never knew anything of a brother named Thomas; mother never wrote to him prior to four years ago (R. 4528–30).

Cross-examination:

Was about 8 years old when mother took him to Kate Holden's (R. 4530.) Never heard of Nancy having a boy named Tommy or any boy (R. 4531).

JOHN HUTCHINGS WHITE:

Physician and surgeon. Details the three stages of labor in childbirth and explains how condition of female organs differ in a multipara and primapara. Birth of child results usually in lacerations of the cervix which when they heal form scar tissue.

The first matter for which physician makes an examination in case of childbirth is to determine position of the child and size of the pelvis; when cervix is dilated it is impossible to determine by digital examination the presence of lacerations; dilation occurs in first stage of pregnancy; dilation occurs more rapidly in multipara than in primapara; if large strong woman had been in labor for an hour and digital examination disclosed no dilation of the cervix, it would indicate a primapara; if at that stage of labor, indications of notches in the cervix were found, would not say on that one fact alone that there had been a previous pregnancy, although that is a condition that would arise from a previous birth.

In witness's experience, generally one year is shortest time between birth of one child and a succeeding child to same woman.

In a normal healthy woman it would take 15 or 20 minutes manipulation to remove milk from the breast, without breast pump. It would require three to five milkings of the breast to relieve when child nursed only once a day, during period when child three weeks on up to 4th, 5th, or 6th month. (R. 4538–44).

FRANK L. MONTGOMERY:

On the occasion when Minnie Atkins made her statement or confession to witness at the quarters of Capt. McNab at Fort Lawton, Seattle, Washington, witness did not make the direct assertion to Minnie that she was not the mother of Thomas Atkins, nor anything like it.

On the day following the signing of the confession he went to Minnie's house at request of Hanford; that was when Minnie retracted.

At the hotel that same day when Hanford came in witness introduced Hanford to Buell and Robinson, stating that Buell was representing the Quinton Garrett side of the case; that Robinson belonged to Secret Service, and that Robinson was working with Buell, and that they had no authority from the Government, but that witness was the sole representative of the Government in that meeting—this was in the afternoon.

In the evening went to Minnie's house, departing from hotel as soon as meeting was over; trip to Minnie's was at suggestion of Buell, perhaps; had communicated with McNab after Minnie's repudiation of her confession. McNab had agreed to meet witness there at 5 o'clock; Hanford went with witness; McNab was not at Minnie's; witness made effort to get him but was not successful.

Upon going into house there was a little abuse on part of Minnie of witness for having Robinson out the previous morning; witness showed Minnie's husband copy of telegram authorizing him to grant immunity to Minnie; this was practically all that transpired at the house; there was a good deal of conversation between Sadie James, Hanford, and Minnie, but witness didn't give it any particular attention.

Witness then went to see Col. Wilson—had a letter from War Department which he desired to present. It was dark; when witness arrived at Col. Wilson's Hanford was there; he was not on porch, because he was in the house when witness got there; was not expecting to see Hanford there; met Col. Wilson formally and at suggestion of Hanford went into sitting room and talked with Mrs. Wilson and her daughter until Hanford had had an audience with Col. Wilson; then presented his compliments to Col. Wilson and told him what he had done there.

Was instructed by Washington office and by Mr. Allen that Buell and Robinson would accompany him and cooperate with him. (R. 4545–52.)

Govt. Ex. A–15 (R. 4660) is admitted in evidence, being certified copy of page 16 of Creek delivery book (index and record of delivery of deeds for allotted lands) containing entries relating to the Thomas Atkins family. (R. 4552.)

C. B. Malcolm:

Was introduced to Long in Tulsa by one Fox through instrumentality of Huck Rogers; told Long he thought he could be of some assistance in finding parties in Atkins case; Long told him to see what he could find and report back; saw Long later at office and told him he had found out nothing about Minnie or Tommy Atkins; Long told him not to mind about Tommy—that he supposed he died before the war—to go ahead and see if he could find Minnie; this conversation was about March, 1914; had conversation with Page first in April, 1914; witness went to office to see Long to tell him he couldn't find out anything about Minnie; in Long's absence saw Page, who asked him to find a child in that country who had been dead a good while and nobody knew much about; witness found one, reported, and Page not satisfied; found another named Atkins, reported to Page, who told him not to bother any more as he (Page) had a live Tommy, who was able to take care of himself.

Page had told witness that if he found a dead child that would suit, he (witness) would be taken care of; was paid $200 in all for his services and expenses. (R. 4559-69.)

Recalled:

Last talked to Long in 1914, summer or fall; had a talk a few days ago with Mr. Lipscomb, a banker; denies that he stated to Lipscomb that he had a chance to make $500 to swear in this case, but it was too risky. (R. 4607–08.)

Redirect:

The matter of making any money out of his testimony was not spoken of at all in this conversation. (R. 4608.) Matter of getting money for testifying has not been discussed with anyone; no one has offered him any money to testify. (R. 4609.)

C. H. (Hook) Rogers:

Was associated with Betty Mann in investigation regarding Tommy Atkins allotment; made first trip to Leavenworth about matter in January, 1914, with Betty; went to city physician and ascertained that Minnie had had a child named Robert Lee Peterkin; made inquiries at fort in endeavor to locate Peterkin; they went to number of places in Leavenworth to find out about Minnie, but were unsuccessful; found out that Minnie did not give birth to a child at the hospital in Leavenworth; later, had dealings with Long who agreed to give witness a quarter interest in the allotment if he found Minnie Atkins; first conversation with Long was in March or April, 1914; witness told Long at that time what he and Betty had found about the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin and about Minnie being in hospital but not for childbirth.

Witness brought Betty Mann and Long together in this case; witness told Long he had a party (Betty) who had Minnie located—that was time Long offered the one-quarter interest; witness told Long Betty was working then for Bartlett; Long wanted to know if witness could get her to turn the deal to him if she found Minnie; witness said he could. (R. 4579–84.)

Cross-examination:

Admits signing receipt for $50 in full for services. (R. 4586.)

Redirect:

Long knew witness and Betty were very friendly; receipt was prepared by a clerk in office of Gem Oil Co. and presented to witness for signature; Long witnessed signature; up to time Long went to Seattle relations between witness and Long had been very friendly. (R. 4587.)

D. G. Elliott:

Attorney; had business transactions with Page relating to Sand Springs Machine Company from February or March, until September, 1914; had a conversation in summer of 1915 with Page at latter's office relative Thomas Atkins case; witness told Page Mr. Wrightsman was in the deal, and he asked Page if he would buy Wrightsman out or sell out to him; Page said he understood Trueman Nixon had a Tommy Atkins and that he (Page) had one of his own and could win with the Tommy he had; said "He wouldn't give a damn cent to sell out or buy out." (R. 4587–90.)

Mitchell Wadsworth:

Son of Kate Holden; Minnie and Nancy Atkins are related to him; in 1899 received a letter from Minnie Atkins from Detroit, Michigan, in which she asked witness to file for her and Harvey and Charlie (Harrison); he applied to commission and Commissioner Bixby wouldn't let him file; didn't have letter from Minnie, had hung the coat, in pocket of which letter was, in Davis & Jones's store; somebody had taken coat, and letter was lost; told his stepfather that he (witness) could not file for "them" and that he (stepfather) might have to file for them or get in touch with them.

Up to 1898 Charlie and Harvey were kept at his mother's, Kate Holden's, from the time Minnie Atkins turned them over to her; Indian boy named Edmund Bear stayed there; no Indian boy named Tommy Atkins ever stayed there.

Has known Nancy Atkins ever since they were little children; saw her off and on when she was at Wagoner; never knew of child there with her named Thomas Atkins; never heard of any Thomas Atkins in the Nancy Atkins family. (R. 4598–4600.)

Cross-examination:

In the letter Minnie did not mention Tommy Atkins. (R. 4600.)

W. P. Z. GERMAN:

Had conversation in Leavenworth in 1916, just before taking depositions there in this case, with Dick Nichols, in National Hotel, in presence of Mr. Allen and Mr. Bagley, wherein Nichols stated in substance that Rube Smith said to him, in reference to his testimony in 1914 in State case, that he (Rube) had been over testimony of several other witnesses and Rube told Nichols he might just as well make some money out of this, everybody else is making money and that he (Nichols) went on the stand and testified to what the others did; that they paid him five dollars and promised him more money and a trip to Oklahoma. Nichols repeatedly stated in that conversation that he didn't know Minnie Atkins (R. 4638); Nichols talked freely and voluntarily; no one told him he would go to the "pen" if he didn't change his testimony from that given in 1914 (R. 4639).

R. C. ALLEN:

Testified to same conversation with Nichols just related by Mr. German and corroborates German. (R. 4640–41.)

Cross-examination:

In conduct of case, Buell and Bartlett have reported to him names of witnesses whom Government representatives have subsequently investigated; information furnished voluntarily, Government representatives did not ask it. (R. 4642.)

Redirect:

McMillian and Cook made investigations; were employed by Interior Department, Bruff by Department of Justice, who has been working on case since May, 1916.

When he filed this suit witness had not heard of Quinton Garrett interest; afterwards, as soon as Garrett filed, witness went to Congress and sought and ultimately secured legislation withdrawing this land from allotment; this legislation provided payment of $800 to Garrett in lieu of allotment; was vigorously opposed by counsel for Garrett. (R. 4643-44.)

R. O. Larkin:

Lives in Platte County, Missouri; his father owned a slave, Mary Ann Larkin, who cared for him when he was a child; she married Billy Mayo, who went by name of Hunt also; afterwards, so he understands, married a Letcher; knew her when she was in Leavenworth; she moved there in 1862 or '63; witness went to Leavenworth to do marketing; saw her several times; she lived on Cherokee Street, also on Seneca Street; she was very dark complexioned—a "slick black"; was a witness for her in 1884 to prove her marriage to Mayo when she was seeking a pension; remembers her son Jim Mayo and a one-armed boy, Sammy; never knew a boy around her house named Tommy nor an Indian boy nor a boy called Indian Tommy. (R. 4376-78.)

Cross-examination:

It was in 1884 or '85 when witness saw her on Seneca Street; remembers it because after Cleveland took office in '85 woman was appointed as postmistress at Platte City. (R. 4380.)

Ernest Endres:

Was reared in Leavenworth, born at 220 Cherokee Street, 1887; moved to 215 Delaware Street, one block north, year or two after; lived there until 23 years of age; played when a boy around Seneca Street and other streets in vicinity with Alva Adams, Tommy York, Willie Warren, Robbie Conradt, Ed Baker, also Swipe Smith; did not know boy there at any time by name Tommy Atkins nor Indian Tommy or any Indian boy. (R. 4382–84.)

FLOYD HUNT:

Lived in Leavenworth; in 1897, 1898, was living there at 210 Olive Street; was about eight years old then; played with Lee and Charlie Warren, Earnest Enders, Cutter Collins, Carl Sheets, Swipe Smith, Alva Adams; boys referred to mostly lived between Seneca and Spruce, 5th and 2nd. No boy in their crowd that was an Indian, nor one that looked like one; Tommy York was only negro boy; no other boy named Tommy; never had any boy in that crowd called Indian Tommy or Commodore; never heard any boy called "Trailer"; never heard of a boy named Tommy Atkins playing with that crowd. (R. 4386–89.)

Cross-examination:

Knew another Tommy—Tommy Owens; never ran with him (R. 4391); never played in Seneca Street neighborhood.

Redirect:

No place on Seneca Street to play baseball. (R. 4391.)

[Def. Ex. B–24, R. 4958, map of Leavenworth (streets, alleys, etc.) introduced in evidence and used in witness Hunt's cross-examination. R. 4389–91.]

W. D. WARREN.

From 1894 to '98, when he was eight years old and up, played in vicinity of Seneca Street and around

Crilly's barn and Van Tuyl's barn; played with Alva Adams, Baker, Floyd Hunt, Earnest Endres, Tommy Owens, Tommy York, Swipe Smith, and other boys; lived at 220 Cherokee Street that time; never played with boy named Tommy Atkins, nor any colored boy named Tommy except Tommy York; never knew boy called Commodore, nor "Trailer," nor any boy that looked like an Indian; played with Crilly boys, Elof and Arthur; knew Granny Letcher; never knew or played with any boys at Granny's. (R. 4392-96.)

Cross-examination:

Boys he played with lived in the neighborhood of Main and 4th Streets and Seneca. (R. 4396.)

Ananias Atkins:

Son of Dick Atkins; had a brother Thomas Atkins; he is older than Thomas, who died in 1898 at age of 13; was living near Wagoner when he died; Thomas often went to Wagoner with his father; hauled wood; they traded at Davis & Jones's store in Wagoner; mother's name Sallie Atkins; both witness and Thomas born in Missouri, went to Indian Territory when witness about 8 or 9 years old; Thomas could walk and talk at that time; has known Nancy Atkins; is his aunt; Thomas sometimes stayed at Wagoner for two or three days at a time when some member of the family went over there. (R. 4398-01.)

Mary Wilson:

Daughter of Richard and Sallie Atkins; father dead; mother living, "in Canada, they say"; had a brother Thomas Atkins, born in Missouri; Thomas, when working out near Wagoner, hauled wood to Wagoner; he was 13 years old when he died. (R. 4401.)

It is agreed by counsel that when witnesses have been examined as to testimony previously given and have denied that they testified as the stenographic transcript records them as testifying, it will be understood that the stenographers' transcript shows that they so testified. (R. 4404–05.)

The Government agrees that the Dick Atkins family were enrolled on the 1890 and 1895 Creek rolls on the Arkansas Colored Town pay roll and not on the Euchee Town, and those surviving on April 1, 1899, have been enrolled and allotted by the commission as from Arkansas Town, and that those who died before April 1, 1899, have been so adjudged by the commission and the Secretary of the Interior. (R. 4405–06.)

F. B. Fite (sur-rebuttal.)

Physician and surgeon. Tells purpose of examination made in case of childbirth; lacerations in first childbirth are of more frequent occurrence than in subsequent labor; if called to attend young woman in labor and digital examination disclosed notches in cervix he would conclude woman had given birth before. (R. 4647–48.)

If no one else around to make inquiry of, would ask patient as to any previous labor; mere fact that finger detects certain notches upon cervix and no other symptoms, would not lead him to make positive diagnosis of a previous labor. (R. 4649–51.)

J. W. Ruble:

Moved to Wagoner in December 1896, lived there since; knows Nancy Atkins, knew her in 1896 or 1897; doesn't recall seeing her since; child five or six years old was around with her; witness was drug clerk there; child would come to store with Nancy; never heard what his name was; boy was not Charlie or Harvey Harrison, with both of whom he was acquainted; child looked like Caucasian and Indian; no indication of other blood. (R. 4427–29.)

Cross-examination:

Saw Nancy and child for period of less than a year; didn't see child after Nancy left; never saw Harvey Harrison until recent years. (R. 4430.)

Sid Johnson (rebuttal):

The effect of this testimony is that Lee Atkins (brother of Minnie Atkins) was killed in November, 1894. Witness relates circumstances under which he heard of the shooting of Lee. (R. 4430–32.)

APPEAL FROM THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE EIGHTH CIRCUIT

BRIEF ON BEHALF OF APPELLEES.

THE ISSUES.

Beginning on page 1 of the brief filed in behalf of Nancy Atkins, and for many pages following, there is a statement of facts which we think is not accurate, but in view of the undisputed facts in this case we deem it unnecessary to review in detail and modify the statements so made in such brief.

The Government of the United States originally instituted this suit. The purpose of the Government's bill was set to aside the patent to Thomas Atkins, No. 7913. The Government, after various allegations, finally settled upon the nonexistence of Thomas Atkins as the basis of its attack. It claimed in its bill that Thomas Atkins who was enrolled by the Dawes Commission as the son of Minnie Atkins, was a myth; that he never, in fact, lived, and that for that reason the judgment of the Dawes Commission enrolling him was void, on the theory that a patent to a fictitious person could not be permitted to stand. The Government when it brought this suit made Minnie Atkins a party defendant, among others, and made Nancy Atkins also a party defendant, asserting in its bill that Nancy was claiming some interest in some way in the property covered by the patent.

The case was tried out and the Government was defeated, both on law and facts. Judge Campbell, the trial judge took up the question as to who was the mother of Thomas Atkins enrolled. The trial judge held, after months of examination of the very voluminous record in this cause, that Minnie Atkins was the mother of Thomas Atkins enrolled, and held that it was doubtful whether Nancy Atkins ever had a son at all and decided that Nancy was not the mother of the Thomas Atkins in question and rendered judgment against Nancy.

This case went to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit. That court fully examined the record passed upon by Judge Campbell; affirmed the judgment of Judge Campbell in toto and held that Minnie was the mother of the Thomas Atkins in question and that Nancy had no claim, by virtue of parentage of said Thomas Atkins, to the property in controversy. So that we start out with the fixed fact that two courts of competent jurisdiction have passed upon the questions of fact which Nancy Atkins now asks this court to review. It has become, as we understand it, the settled doctrine and practice of this high court never to change or modify judgments on the facts of a case, when those judgments have been rendered by two courts passing upon the same question and reaching the same result.

The Circuit Court of Appeals is, as we understand it, in a sense, an arm of this Honorable Court, and when that Court in reviewing the judgment of a trial court on questions of fact has reached the same conclusion as the court below, it is practically conclusive of that question of fact.

Counsel for Nancy Atkins recognize the force of this rule but seek to meet it and avoid it by asserting that there was no testimony before the trial court establishing Minnie Atkins as the mother of Thomas and a vast array of testimony in favor of Nancy establishing her parentage of said Thomas Atkins. This bold and unqualified assertion for Nancy, necessarily assumes that the trial court and the Circuit Court of Appeals have reached a conclusion in favor of Minnie Atkins as the mother of Thomas Atkins without any material evidence upon which to base that conclusion. We indulge the belief that this bold statement will find little sympathy in this court because this is a case of conflicting facts covering a large area. Both the trial court and the Court of Appeals reconcile this conflict and adjudge Minnie to be the mother of Thomas Atkins.

It seems to us that this rule of decision and practice adopted by this Honorable Court is not only eminently wise, but ought to be adhered to, strictly. Primarily, this court passes upon the law of a case and seldom enters into an extended consideration of the evidence, when the result of that evidence has been foreclosed by the opinions of two courts having jurisdiction of the case. Of course, in an equity case, this court may examine the record to see if justice has been done. But we understand the rule to be that this court approaches that record, where it has been decided by two courts, with every presumption in favor of the correctness of the conclusions reached by such courts upon such evidence.

To state the case in another way, the judgment of the two courts upon the evidence in a given cause must be clearly and palpably erroneous before this Court will reverse their judgments.

We think it is unnecessary to cite the many opinions of this Court sustaining this doctrine. In the cases of Washington Security Company v. The United States, 234 U. S. 76; Gilsom v. The United States, 234 U. S. 380; Baker v. Schofield, 234 U. S. 114, and the many cases cited therein, this matter is thoroughly examined and the rule is announced positively, and without equivocation.

The record in this case covers many thousands of pages. It contains the evidence, as shown by the record, taken in many of the states of the Union. Both depositions and oral testimony were used, there being scores and scores of witnesses testifying in person before the trial judge. The conflict in the evidence really was as between the Government and Minnie Atkins as to whether her son Thomas ever lived. But we assert that there was no practical conflict in the evidence as to Nancy Atkins. The evidence is overwhelming and compulsive as against her claim.

Nancy Atkins was a sister of Minnie Atkins and was induced to set up a claim as the parent of Thomas Atkins, number 7913 on the Dawes Commission Roll. We believe if this Court goes into the evidence in this case it will conclude, without hesitation, that Nancy's claim is fraudulent and that her conduct and testimony show it to be fraudulent, and we are sure the Court will further find that she never had a son; that she never had but one child and that was a girl child, still-born.

The counsel for Nancy Atkins have undertaken to state the testimony for Nancy and against Minnie, but have not stated the testimony against Nancy. We apprehend that this Court will, at the outset, determine Nancy's case on its own strength and not on the weakness of others. In other words, Nancy Atkins appeared in the trial court claiming to be the mother of Thomas Atkins and known as a citizen of the Creek Nation. It was incumbent upon Nancy Atkins to prove this fact,—to convince the court that she was the mother of Thomas Atkins. She failed either to convince the lower court or the Circuit Court of Appeals of that fact.

We therefore beg leave to submit to the Court what we believe to be a fair and succinct statement of the testimony for and against Nancy Atkins.

The Evidence On Behalf Of Nancy Atkins.

R. F. Davis (Rec. p. 1202):

Engaged in the wholesale grocery business in Muskogee; lived in Wagoner from 1888 or 1889 until he moved to Muskogee; was connected with the Davis and Jones Mercantile Company; first became acquainted with Nancy Atkins when he went to Wagoner; testified that she was frequently around witness' store; remembers of her being in a pregnant condition; that some time afterwards he saw her around the store with a boy that was large enough to walk that he supposed was her child. On cross-examination testified that he never knew of Nancy Atkins being in a family way but once; never heard the name of the child called until recently in discussing the present litigation; didn't know whose child it was that he saw with Nancy.

J. E. Newberry (Rec. p. 2418):

Sixty-five years of age; resided in Wagoner, Oklahoma, since March 27, 1890; lived at Barnard hotel when he first went to Wagoner; Nancy Atkins was working in the kitchen of the hotel at that time and appeared to be in a family way; did not know anything of her having a child except what was told him.

Next saw Nancy Atkins about a month later when he was delivering some furniture to a woman by the name of Walker, and Mrs. Walker asked him, "Do you want to see Nancy's baby?" and he went in the house and saw Nancy in bed and recognized her; this was in September, 1890. On cross-examination was asked:

"Mr. Newberry, did you know a little boy around Wagoner that you saw with Nancy Atkins?" and he answered:

"I couldn't say that I ever saw him with her."

Describes a boy as some five or six years old he saw around Betsey Birney's, but never knew what the boy was called; saw Nancy Atkins around Betsey Birney's quite often.

CHARLES BAILEY (Rec. p. 2427):

Fifty-eight years old; resides in Sand Springs, Oklahoma; lived in Wagoner from 1888 to 1907. Knew Nancy Atkins when she was going to school at the old Tullahassee Mission and was afterwards acquainted with her when she moved to Wagoner in 1888; Nancy first worked at the Section house and afterwards lived with Betsey Birney; witness, at this time, was working for the Davis and Jones Mercantile Company. Testified that she was in a pregnant condition but is not positive whether it was in 1889 or 1890; knew that she had a child and in reply to the question as to when it was born answered: "It was born just back of the Davis and Jones mercantile house, over in what was the prairie; that there was no street or anything there at the time—there was just prairie up to Davis and Jones' yard and gin and this tent was just west of that a little ways." Did not see Nancy or the baby at the time of the birth, and information was conveyed to him by an Indian girl who came into the Davis and Jones store; saw Nancy about a week afterwards when she was carried from the tent to Betsey Birney's house; saw her subsequently a number of times at Betsey Birney's house; never saw the child until it was probably a month or two old when he saw it at Betsey Birney's house; don't remember whether the child was with Betsey Birney or Nancy Atkins; continued to see the child around Betsey Birney's for four or five years; heard that the child died; that the child was a boy called Tommy Atkins. Knew Minnie Atkins, a sister of Nancy Atkins, and knew her two boys, Charley Harrison and Harvey Harrison; that Charley Harrison was brought to his home in 1895 or 1896 and stayed there until he was about twenty-two years old—something like five or six years; that he had some correspondence with Minnie Atkins and that she never mentioned a child by the name of Tommy Atkins. The last time he remembered seeing the boy Tommy Atkins around Wagoner was three or four years before he filed for Charley Harrison and the boy was then living with Betsey Birney.

On cross-examination he was confronted with his testimony in the case in the state court when he stated that he only knew of Nancy Atkins having a child from what he was told, but that he saw a child with her who must have been a year or two old the first time he saw it.

Further examined, he says he didn't know whether the child he saw at Betsey Birney's was one, two or four months old; afterwards remembered seeing a boy around the streets of Wagoner called Tommy Atkins, until he was five or six years of age; admits that he never went to see the child that he heard was born to Nancy Atkins in the tent back of Betsey Birney's house and in reply to the direct question:

"You don't know whether that was Nancy's baby, or Betsey Birney's child or Betsey Birney's grandchild?" he answered: "No, I don't know."

James E. Long (Rec. p. 2445):

Fifty-four years of age, resides at Chelsea, lived in Wagoner County from 1896 until 1916; knew Nancy Atkins with whom he became acquainted about a year after moving to Wagoner; knew that she had a child that was a mulatto looking boy about five or six years of age when he first became acquainted with him; continued to see him about Wagoner with Nancy Atkins and another woman named Maggie Martin for four or five years; he was City Marshal of Wagoner from April, 1897 to 1898; heard that the child died in 1901 or 1902.

On cross-examination stated that be knew Nancy Atkins very well and she was a police character and had often been in his charge; never had any personal knowledge of Nancy Atkins having a child; knew that she was living in 1897 on Church street in the negro part of town; that there were two women lived in the house—Nancy Atkins and Maggie Martin; that Maggie Martin had two children, both girls, and witness saw the boy running around the neighborhood with these two girls; that in his opinion the boy was a mulatto; that the boy was about six or seven years of age, but he did not personally know whose child it was; continued to see Nancy around Wagoner from the time he was City Marshal in 1897 until 1901 or 1902. Asked where he heard the name "Tommy Atkins", he said he heard Nancy call the mulatto boy Tommy; never heard of Nancy ever having any other children. Admits that he was convicted for embezzlement while occupying the office of Sheriff of Wagoner County in 1913.

RICHARD BIRNEY (Rec. p. 2457):

Lived in Wagoner when a child and until about 1894 and knew Nancy Atkins; knew that she had a child at his mother's house; he was just a kid when the child was brought to his mother's house and don't know how old it was; that he saw the child every day for some time and that it was a pretty good sized child the last time he saw it. He testified specifically as follows:

"Q. Now what was this boy called?

A. Tommy Atkins was what they called him when he was there.

Q. Did you ever see him with his mother?

A. Yes, sir. I saw him when they brought him there.

Q. How did she bring him there?

A. Why, they hauled him there in a wagon when they brought him there.

Q. Well, was he large enough to walk?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did she have it in arms?

A. Yes, sir; that is the way that she brought it there."

On cross-examination testified that they brought Nancy in a wagon from up on the hill about three-quarters of a mile from his mother's house; saw Nancy carried from the wagon into the house; she was on a cot and that his mother carried the baby into the house. That at the time of this occurrence he was about twelve years of age; witness gives his present age as thirty-nine; never heard of Nancy's baby being born in a tent near his mother's nor at Elnora Williams.

Witness admits to having served a term in the penitentiary on the charge of larceny.

NOLAN WILLIAMS (Rec. p. 2465):

Lived in and around Wagoner for twenty-four years. Became acquainted with Nancy Atkins some time in the nineties when he was trading at Davis and Jones' store. Was asked the direct question:

"Do you know whether Nancy had a child or not?" and replied:

"Well, I know there was a child with her that she said was hers; I don't know whether she had any or not."

First saw the child with Nancy Atkins when the child was about a year old; continued to see him after that for a year or two; the child appeared to him to be between an Indian and mulatto; witness, during a good deal of the time he knew Nancy Atkins, lived in the country and was in Wagoner on business or to trade; he got information that it was Nancy's child from old man Birney; never heard of the child dying.

On cross-examination, witness admits that he never did live in Wagoner at the time of the occurrences referred to but lived twenty-five miles west of Wagoner in the Choska bottoms and went to Wagoner to trade and that the only definite recollection he had with reference to the child was that one time when coming out of Wagoner, he saw the boy with Betsey Birney and Nancy Atkins and that Nancy told him it was her boy and that old man Birney also told him it was Nancy's boy.

JOHN T. BEARD (Rec. p. 2475):

Fifty-eight years old, lives in Wagoner; lived there for thirty years with the exception of part of years 1915 and 1916; formerly engaged in the hardware business, but when he first went to Wagoner, August 4, 1887, was working for the Iron Mountain railroad; knew Nancy Atkins; first became acquainted with her in the latter part of 1889 or 1890; that she was on the streets of Wagoner and people were talking about her, about the way she looked and her condition; remembers her being sent to the penitentiary and never knew of her giving birth to a child; did, however, observe that she was in a pregnant condition and often saw her after that time carrying a child which was about two or three months old the first time he saw it; that Nancy told him it was her child and that she had called it Tommy; that he continued to see the child around

Wagoner until about 1897 or 1898, when he appeared to be seven or eight years old—a pretty good sized boy; that he saw him around Schrimpsher's store; remembers seeing the child in 1898 or 1899 and heard a report that he was dead. Never knew Minnie Atkins; that Nancy Atkins, at the time he saw her with the child, stayed with some negroes by the name of Birney back of the Davis and Jones' store; that the child was a mulatto and remembers contributing to the funeral expenses of the boy in 1901 or 1902.

M. I. Sullivan (Rec. p. 2486):

Fifty-three years old; lived in Wagoner since 1892; stayed there until 1895 and was gone for five years, returning in 1900. Knew Nancy Atkins, first becoming acquainted with her in 1902; knew that she had a child—when the court interrupted him and asked:

"Q. Do you know whether she had a child?

A. I know what she said; she said he was hers."

When he first saw the child it was toddling around; witness at the time was engaged in the retail mercantile business and Nancy often came in the store with the child; don't remember the name of the child or what Nancy called it; don't remember ever seeing the child after he came back to Wagoner in 1900.

On cross-examination testified that Nancy Atkins associated almost exclusively with negroes and that she was a town character. Witness had no recollection of Nancy's being arrested or sent to the penitentiary.

A. Grant Wasson (Rec. p. 2493):

Fifty-three years of age, lived in the neighborhood of Wagoner for twenty-nine years and was living in the town of Wagoner in 1889 and 1890; first became acquainted with Nancy Atkins in 1889; had no recollection of ever seeing her in a pregnant condition but remembers her being with a child that she called Tommy and that she claimed was hers; that the child was about two years old when he first saw it; the child was then playing with some negro children near the Davis and Jones' store; remembers seeing the child around Wagoner up until 1895 or 1896 when he moved away from the town; but to the best of his recollection the child was a good sized boy about four or five years old when he last saw him; had the appearance of being mixed between an Indian, a negro and a white; does not remember seeing him after 1895 or 1896 and does not know or remember hearing whether he died.

On cross-examination, fixes the time that he first saw Nancy as 1889 by reason of the fact that he came from Baker City, Oregon, in 1888 and that it was the next year that he saw Nancy, only had one conversation with her when he saw the boy playing with negro children and asked Nancy if they were her children and she said, "None of them—only Tommy, this little boy."

ANDREW JACKSON (Rec. p. 2500):

Fifty-one years of age, lived in the neighborhood of Wagoner for forty-seven years; was not living in Wagoner in 1888, 1889 or 1890; did not move into the town until 1902; knew Nancy Atkins and first remembers seeing her around Wagoner in 1892 and '93; never had any real acquaintance with her but would pass her on the streets; remembers her having a boy with her who was about three or four years old and wearing dresses the first time he saw the boy; that this was one time when he was leaving the Davis and Jones' store and after passing the blacksmith shop came across a kid out in the road playing and asked Nancy, "Is this your kid?" and she said, "Yes", and witness replied "You had better keep him out of the road or he will get run over." Witness is very vague and indefinite about ever seeing the child after this occurrence. Remembers contributing to a collection taken up in 1902 or 1903 to bury somebody, but don't remember who it was. On cross-examination fixes the time of the incident of seeing Nancy with the child as the spring of 1892 or 1893 and as occurring a little northwest of the Davis and Jones' store.

JOHN FORD (Rec. p. 2505):

Fifty years of age and came to Wagoner in 1887, when the Iron Mountain railroad was building through Wagoner; stayed there twenty or twenty-five years; knew Nancy Atkins; first became acquainted with her in 1888; saw her in a pregnant condition, to the best of his knowledge, in 1889; remembers that she had a child born to her in a tent back of the Davis and Jones' store. Saw the child two or three days after it was born at Betsey Birney's; that the child was in bed with Nancy; saw the child mighty near every day and night for a considerable time afterwards, as it was his custom to go to Betsey Birney's to gamble; supposed he must have seen the child around Birney's for a year after it was born; child had the appearance of an Indian; remembers seeing him after that around Wagoner; the child appeared to be eight or nine years old the last time he saw him about 1899; heard that he was dead and gave twenty-five cents, which he understood was to help bury Tommy Atkins.

On cross-examination, fixes the time he went to Wagoner by his marriage, which occurred November 4th, 1887, and then weakens and is unable to say whether he was married in 1886 or 1887; gives the names of George Yates, John Ross, Tom Mayberry and Anthony Mayberry as the other negroes who used to shoot craps with him at Birney's; that they usually gambled in the north front room of the house; describes the house as a "little old piece of a house—cabin—house built that way with another 'L' on it and we would be in this room there and Nancy would be in this room back this way"; that Nancy first lived in a tent and afterwards moved in to the back of the house; saw Nancy living in the tent before she moved into the house and the baby was nursing at Nancy's breast when he first saw it; that the weather was cool when Nancy was moved from the tent to the Birney house. Further cross-examined, testified that he saw the baby laying in bed with Nancy at Betsey Birney's house; that John Galley, Tom Mayberry and Anthony Mayberry were often there with him. This witness admits that he has been in jail two or three times for fighting or minor violations of law, but was never sentenced to the penitentiary.

J. L. Dyer (Rec. p. 2519):

Fifty-eight years of age; lived in the neighborhood of Wagoner since December, 1889; never lived in the town, but about three and one-half or four miles out of town; first knew Nancy Atkins in the winter of 1890 shortly after he moved to that neighborhood; saw her on the streets of Wagoner with a child and then missed her for a few months; remembers her being sent to the penitentiary and that she was gone eight or nine months; saw her with the child in Wagoner before she went to the penitentiary; that the child was about three or four months old when he first saw it; that he continued to see the child around Wagoner until it was nine or ten years old and that it was called Tommy; heard that the child was dead; would be in Wagoner two or three times a week and remembers noticing the child around Schrimpsher's butcher shop; admits, on cross-examination, that he is the Jim Dyer who was convicted for constructively being present at the Blackstone train robbery; that he was about thirty-one or thirty-two years old when he first met Nancy Atkins and at that time he was pretty wild and frequented the gambling shops of Wagoner where he would often see Nancy; that Nancy was carrying the child when he first saw it and that she was living at the Birney house.

JASPER NEWTON SCHRIMPSHER (Rec. p. 2523):

Seventy years of age and went to Wagoner in 1890 and lived there until about twelve years ago; knew Nancy Atkins who was related to witness' first wife; never remembers her being in a pregnant condition; that she had a boy running around town with her that she called Tommy Atkins and said was her boy; that the boy was six or seven years old and that at the time he was running a butcher shop and merchandise store and Nancy would come in the store with the boy and one day she said: "If I send this little boy up here, why let him have it and I will pay you"; that the boy was about eight years old the last time he saw him and he does not know what became of him; describes the boy's appearance as being about half white and half Indian. On cross-examination admits knowing the other members of the Atkins family, Minnie and Lee, and that the boy he saw in Wagoner was about six or seven years old the last time he saw him; that he was not particularly concerned with Nancy or her child—had no personal knowledge that it was Nancy's child.

FOIL M. BRADY (Rec. p. 2527):

Commonly called Bill Brady, sixty-one years of age, and lived in the neighborhood of Wagoner since 1881; knew Nancy Atkins; first became acquainted with her in 1889; fixes the time as being shortly before the $29.00 payment in 1890 when he saw her around McAnally's hotel where she was a dish-washer and there was a little boy about two or three years old crawling around the room and witness asked Nancy if it was her boy and she said, "Yes", and that his name was Tommy Atkins; that he was back in Wagoner about a month later at the Brown hotel and saw Nancy and asked her how her boy was getting along and she told him the boy died; that this conversation was before the $29.00 payment. On cross-examination fixes the $29.00 payment as 1891 or 1892; reiterates that the child was two or three years old when he first saw it and that Nancy told him it was dead about a month later and is positive that this all occurred before the $29.00 payment.

Kirk Turnbo (Rec. p. 2529):

Lived in the vicinity of Wagoner since 1892 with the exception of four years he was in Texas in 1906 to 1911; first became acquainted with Nancy Atkins shortly after he came to Wagoner; that he was employed on J. W. Gibson's ranch and one day when he was having some horses shod in Wagoner saw Nancy on the street hollering for a boy; that he heard her inquire, "Have you seen anything of my boy, Tommy?"; thinks that at the time she was living at Betsey Birney's and the boy was about ten or eleven years old when he last saw him; that he was a small, weazened looking child; remembers them taking up a collection to bury a child whom he was told was old Nancy's boy, Tommy Atkins.

On cross-examination, said that he just happened to know Nancy as a character around Wagoner; did not know the child was her boy but saw the child with her and supposed it was her child; that the matter of Nancy's child had been one of discussion around Wagoner for the last three years and that he had been asked about it a number of times; had heard different stories by different parties. Fixes the time that he first saw the boy as 1892 when he was a small, toddling child about a year old; that he was appointed Deputy U. S. Marshal in 1892 and then corrects it to 1893; he was further cross-examined with reference to his employment and discharge as a deputy marshal.

WALTER POSEY (Rec. p. 2537):

Fifty-seven years of age; lived in the neighborhood of Wagoner since 1891; first became acquainted with Nancy Atkins in 1891 or 1892; saw her in Wagoner with a child that she said was hers; the first time he saw the child was at the Davis and Jones' store; afterwards saw it playing around with the Birney children; thinks the last time he saw the child was in 1900 or 1901, when he was about ten years of age; heard that he was dead and never knew what became of him; only remembers seeing the child a few times with Nancy Atkins and that the child was called Tommy Atkins. On cross-examination, says the boy was about four or five years old the first time he saw him; that was in 1891 or 1892, but that he might be mistaken about the dates.

George Williford (Rec. p. 2539):

Fifty-five years of age, lived in Wagoner for thirty years; first became acquainted with Nancy Atkins at the McAnally hotel about twenty-two or twenty-three years ago; remembers seeing her in a pregnant condition and remembers her being sent to the penitentiary; that she was pregnant before being sent to the penitentiary; never personally knew of her having a child; saw a child with her between two or three years old that she called Tommy; saw it once or twice in town with Nancy; don't remember seeing the child after it was two or three years of age and never knew what became of it. On cross-examination cannot fix year he first met Nancy Atkins but insists it was twenty-two or twenty-three years ago; does not remember any of the Birney children; that Nancy never talked to him directly about the child; that he saw the child with her and thinks it was about two or three years old when he heard she went to the penitentiary.

Thomas Brewer (Rec. p. 2545):

Forty-five years of age; lived in Wagoner for about five years; lived there about 1899 or 1900; knew Nancy Atkins long before he moved to Wagoner; that he lived in the country but did his trading in Wagoner at the Davis and Jones' store; had been trading in Wagoner ever since there had been any settlement there; first remembers Nancy Atkins a year or two before he moved to Wagoner; never saw her in a pregnant condition; remembers a child that he was told was Nancy Atkins' kid; that he was a good-sized boy running around and talking when he first remembers him; that he played with the nigger children around Wagoner; saw him with Nancy a number of times; saw him around the Davis and Jones' store; that he appeared to be a molasses colored kid, part Indian, "wasn't white and wasn't nigger"; that the boy was known as Tommy Atkins and that he heard the boy was dead along about 1901 or 1902, but didn't pay much attention to it; that witness was feeding a number of cattle in Wagoner and the boy would come to his place to get milk. On cross-examination said he was living in Wagoner when the boy died and had been there two or three years—he never paid any attention to the boy—just remembers seeing him around Wagoner; that he often passed the Birney house where Nancy was living and would see the boy playing there with negro children; that Nancy was living at the Birney house when the boy died; just heard that Tommy Atkins was dead—didn't pay any more attention to it; don't know whether she lived in the house or not—just saw her around there; that the boy was pretty well grown when he first saw him—appeared to be about four or five years old, and that was when he first moved to Wagoner in 1900; not positive whether it was 1899 or 1900.

Frank Engles (Rec. p. 2557):

Fifty-five years of age; moved with his family to Wagoner in January, 1891; prior to that time had lived at Pryor Creek; and used to haul lumber from Wagoner to Pryor Creek; came to Wagoner himself in December, 1890, and moved his family there in January of the next year; knew Nancy Atkins; thinks he first saw her five or six months after he moved to Wagoner; never remembers seeing her in a pregnant condition; saw Nancy with a boy; saw her carrying a boy in her arms and leading it around; the boy seemed to be about a year old—just beginning to walk when he first saw the child; was a dirty looking kid, in awful shape, filthy and ragged; often did repair work around the Brown hotel and Nancy Atkins was living in a little servant's house behind the hotel a great deal of the time; that she did laundry work and scrubbing a great deal of the time; that he would see the child there with her and that he afterwards opened a butcher shop up town and that Nancy would come in the shop and bring the kid with her; that Nancy was a pitiful character and he helped her at times; never knew what became of the child; saw it around Wagoner until it was five or six years old; left Wagoner in the latter part of 1900 or early part of 1901 and moved to Sapulpa. Upon being examined by the Court, says that the first work he did at the Brown hotel was in 1892 and that he did work there from 1892 up to 1899, and, in fact, until he left Wagoner; says that he remembers seeing Nancy around the kitchen and dining room and saw the boy around with Nancy and saw them eating together.

W. A. McElroy (Rec. p. 2567):

Forty-nine years of age; lived near Coweta, west of Wagoner from 1889 to 1901; was in the cattle business; went to Wagoner a good deal; knew Nancy Atkins; first remembers seeing her about 1890; never remembers seeing her in a pregnant condition; but heard the report that she had a child; heard this child was born back of the Davis and Jones' store and they took up a collection to take care of Nancy and the child; that this collection was taken up in the Davis and Jones store, and that he afterwards saw Nancy with the child and she said it was her child—her son; said he never talked to her about it; that he just understood it was her son; that he continued to see the child with Nancy around the Davis and Jones' store until he left that neighborhood in 1901; that the last time he saw the child he would take it to be a boy about seven or eight years of age; never heard what became of the child; generally understood the child was named Tommy Atkins, at least, that's what they called the child around Betsey Birney's; would go to Betsey Birney's to round up negroes he had working for him who would come into Wagoner. On cross-examination, witness said he never paid much attention to Nancy and don't remember whether the time he contributed at Davis and Jones' store was to bury Nancy's baby or not—just heard that she was in a destitute condition; that he would go to Betsey Birney's in 1896, '97 and '98 to round up the boys that worked on his ranch and had no recollection of seeing the child prior to the time he first saw him at Betsey Birney's house; that the child appeared to him to be part Indian and part white; had tolerable light hair and was about seven or eight years old.

J. M. Preston (Rec. p. 2575):

Fifty-four years old; lived in Wagoner for twenty-three years; first went there in 1893 or 1894; witness is a building contractor; knew Nancy Atkins; first became acquainted with her in 1894 or 1895; saw her with a child in the Davis and Jones' camp yard; the boy then appeared to be five or seven years old, medium height and molasses colored hair, a little wavy; Nancy called him Tommy and he talked to Nancy about the child and she said it was her child; asked her who was his daddy and she said, "Well, you might know", or something to that effect—"anyhow, he was a white man's child"; that this occurred in 1894 or 1895; that he was working in a lumber yard that used a part of the Davis and Jones' camp yard. On cross-examination says he worked in the lumber yard for about a week and never remembers seeing the boy except the time he worked there, but then saw him, he thinks, every day.

D. W. Best (Rec. p. 2582):

Sixty-six years of age; lived in Wagoner since 1895; became acquainted with Nancy Atkins shortly after he moved there—probably in 1895; saw her with a child that he supposed was hers—a little fellow, "don't know whether you'd call him mulatto, nigger, part Indian or what he was—anyway, he was not a white child"; judged he was about four or five years old when he first saw him and that was on Cherokee street in front of John Easton's blacksmith shop; remembers seeing the boy up until 1898 or maybe 1900; never knew what became of him, but was told that he died; thinks this was in 1899; last remembers the boy when he appeared to be nine or eleven years old. On cross-examination details incident of first time he saw Nancy Atkins at Easton's blacksmith shop.

T. J. WAY (Rec. p. 2591):

Postmaster at Haskell; lived in the neighborhood of Haskell thirty-six years; in the cattle and farming business; knew Tom Holden and his wife, Kate Holden; they lived about three-quarters of a mile from his place north of Haskell; often went to the Holden place; remembers of children being there other than the Holden children; says that the children were Charley Atkins and Harvey Atkins and Tommy Atkins; that Charley Atkins and Harvey Atkins came there first and that Tom and Kate Holden told him them were Minnie Atkins' children; that Tommy Atkins was there later; that he saw Nancy Atkins at Holden's at one time—possibly at different times—and that the Holdens said Tommy was Nancy Atkins' child; fixes the time of this occurrence as 1899 or 1900; relates the circumstances of Tommy coming to Holden's; that Tom Holden had come over and borrowed witness' buggy and said he wanted to go to Wagoner to get little Tommy and witness asked him who it was and Holden said it was Nancy Atkins' child; that it was his understanding from Holden that it was Nancy Atkins' child and that she wasn't taking care of the child and that witness let Holden have the buggy and he went over to Wagoner and brought the boy home; that witness was over at Holden's a few days later and Holden told him all about the boy; that Kate Holden told him the same thing; that he later talked to them at different times; that after the boy Tommy had been around Holden's for quite a while Nancy Atkins came to Holden's; Tom Holden introduced witness to Nancy Atkins as being "Tommy's mother"; that Nancy stayed at Holden's for a few days and then went away; that Kate Holden afterwards told witness that Nancy had come over to take the boy; that they wanted to keep him; that Nancy wouldn't take care of him, and possibly a month later Nancy came back and took the boy Tommy away with her. Witness was examined by the Court and fixed the birth of his first child in July, 1898. Said that Charley and Harvey were continuously at Holden's for a couple or three years. On cross-examination witness stated that the boy Tommy had been at Holden's two or three months before Nancy came and she stayed three or four days—might have been eight or ten; that she did not take the boy with her as the Holdens insisted on keeping him; that the boy Tommy appeared to be about the same age as Harvey—perhaps Charley was a little older; described the boy Tommy as an Indian boy, dark but not black hair, and that he appeared to him to be about a half-breed Indian. On being questioned by the Court witness said the boy must have been seven or eight years old; appeared to be intelligent but did not look anything like the other two boys, Harvey and Charley; the boy Tommy was about the some age as Harvey and that Charley was older; describes the Nancy Atkins that he saw at Holden's as being pigeon-toed and cross-eyes; never knew Nancy until she came to Tom Holden's—never saw her before that he remembers; never heard of her and never heard of her having a child. During the cross-examination of this witness Nancy Atkins came into the court room and the witness identified her as the woman he saw at Tom Holden's.

W. C. SMITH (Rec. p. 2607):

Commonly known as Bill Smith; fifty-nine years of age; went to Wagoner in 1898 and lived there nineteen years; was engaged in the drug business; first saw Nancy Atkins one day in his store; she had a yellow headed kid, probably four or five years old with her; asked Henry Anderson, his negro porter, who the woman was and he said Nancy Atkins; Anderson told him the boy was Nancy's kid and that she associated with negroes; saw her and the child on the streets and in his store for two or three years off and on; also saw the boy with an old negro named Snow; thinks the last time he saw the boy was in 1901, 1902 or 1903—don't remember just what year; witness opened his drug store in 1899. On cross-examination says the boy was three, four or five years old the last time he saw him; said he was walking but knows that he could not have been as old as seven years; positive that he must have been about three, four or five years of age. Witness admits having been convicted of selling whiskey and also to having been arrested for fighting.

Bob DeLozier (Rec. p. 2611):

Negro, fifty-five years of age; lived in Wagoner for twenty years; went to Wagoner at the time the Iron Mountain railroad was being built from Fort Smith and became acquainted with Nancy Atkins about the second year he was there; she was living in a tent back of Betsey Birney's house and she had a child born to her while living in that tent. That he saw the child the morning after it was born; that he was living with Bob Childers at the time and Childers' wife sent him down to the tent to take some grub to Nancy, and that he went into the tent, saw Nancy laying on the bed and the child laying there with her; that he didn't talk to her—told her that he had some grub Mrs. Childers had sent her and he saw the child after that at different times around Wagoner for nine years—saw it with Nancy Atkins and that the child died when it was between nine and ten years old, and was buried northeast of Wagoner; that he helped dig the grave; that there were several men present at the time the child was buried; could not remember their names; that an old darky named Monday Barnett conducted the burial ceremony; Nancy was not at the burial; after the child was born to Nancy he helped move her into Betsey Birney's house from the tent; that she was in bed in the Birney house about two weeks; remembers Nancy being arrested and taken to Fort Smith; thinks this was about three months after the child was born; after Nancy was arrested Betsey Birney took care of the child for a while and it lived first one place and another with negroes; after Nancy came back from the penitentiary saw the child with her around the McAnally hotel when Nancy was working in the laundry; that the boy was called Tommy Atkins. On cross-examination, witness said the boy was buried in a coffin made in a lumber yard; don't remember what kind of clothes he had on when they buried him; unable to fix the time of the burial; unable to tell anything that happened in 1900, 1901 or 1902; cannot definitely fix the date of the birth of Nancy's child, but knew him from the time he was born until he died; also talked with him and saw him around town and denies that anyone talked to him about his testimony and when advised by the Court that it would be proper for him to answer such a question still denied that he had talked about his testimony. Admits that he served three penitentiary sentences, one in Oklahoma, two years for forgery; one in Ohio for a year and a day for forgery and one in Detroit for a year and a day; also admits being in the U. S. jail for four months; says he don't remember what it was he took to Nancy but thinks it was some soup and that Nancy was moved to the Birney house the next day after the child was born; that they carried her on a cot; asked about the Birney children says he knew Henry and Dick Birney; that he went to the Birney house often to shoot craps; thinks Nancy was abed a couple of weeks before she got up and was walking around; that she then went back to the McAnally's hotel to work and that the child stayed at Birney's; afterwards lived first one place and then another—at the Wilhams' and also at Mandy Barnett's; don't know at whose house child died; last time he remembers seeing the boy Nancy was working in the laundry at McAnally's and the boy was at Betsey Birney's; that he guessed that he must have been in the penitentiary part of the time the boy was living in Wagoner but knows that he was there when he died; was questioned as to his testimony in the state case at Sapulpa. (Prison records of Bob Lozier introduced in evidence; Forth Smith jail, December 20, 1893, to April 18, 1894, larceny; U. S. penitentiary, Brooklyn, N. Y., April 20, 1894, to July 29, 1896, larceny; U. S. Jail Muskogee, I. T., June 12, 1898 to December 24, 1898, for introducing and selling liquor; U. S. Jail Muskogee, I. T., May 7, 1900, to November 4, 1900, larceny; U. S. penitentiary, Columbus, Ohio, November 5, 1900, to November 25, 1904, larceny).

Samuel McHenry (Rec. p. 2626):

Seventy-eight years old, negro, missionary Baptist preacher; lived in and around Wagoner since he went there in 1898; to, to four or five years ago; in 1901 or 1902 conducted the funeral of Nancy Atkins' boy; was asked to conduct the services by Monday Barnett; funeral was held in the house—don't know whose house—and he went to the cemetery and Monday Barnett, Bob DeLozier and E. G. White were there; thinks Bob DeLozier dug the grave; is undecided as to Nancy Atkins being at the burial. Witness is positive that this burial was in 1901 or 1902 but unable to fix the date by any other event.

On cross-examination says he did not know whose child was being buried—that "they said it was Nancy's boy"; knew Nancy Atkins but is uncertain about her being at the burial; Nancy never talked to her about the child being hers; Monday Barnett told him it was Nancy's child; didn't know who was in the box that they buried; only knew it was Nancy's child from what people told him.

Ellis Childers (Rec. p. 2637, recalled, 2649; recalled, 2685):

Fifty-one years of age; Creek citizen; three times speaker of the Creek House of Warriors; served a term as treasurer of the Creek Nation; also occupied the office of Creek National Attorney before the tribal courts; educated at Carlisle Indian School; knew both Minnie Atkins and Nancy Atkins; had known them for forty years and that they were members of Euchee Town; that Euchee Town was a political subdivision of the Creek Tribe; knew the father and mother of Minnie Atkins and Nancy Atkins; that Thomas Atkins was their father and that he was prominent in the Creek Nation, being captain of the Light Horsemen for a number of years; that Thomas Atkins, the father of Minnie Atkins and Nancy

Atkins, belonged to Coweta Town; that his wife, the mother of Minnie Atkins and Nancy Atkins, was a Euchee; that witness was at Carlisle Indian school from January, 1880, to June, 1884, and has since resided in what is now Wagoner County, Oklahoma. Gave it as his best judgment that Nancy Atkins was about fifty-one years old at the time of the trial and that Minnie Atkins was quite a good sized girl when he was at Carlisle school—a good deal larger girl than witness was a boy; that he is no blood relation to either Nancy Atkins or Minnie Atkins, but has known them intimately all his life; that he knew Nancy Atkins when she was living in Wagoner, but did not personally know of her giving birth to a child, although he did hear of it; that there was a pasture payment being made near Wagoner, October 8th, 1890; that he was there and that Saus Childers came to him and said that Nancy Atkins was very sick; that she had a baby in a tent and was going to die unless she was taken care of and that he wrote out a subscription paper asking for donations to help Nancy Atkins and that he headed this subscription list with $5.00 and that Saus Childers also gave $5.00 and that Saus Childers collected about $70.00 which was turned over to witness' mother and some other Indian women to take care of Nancy; that the women came back and reported that they had gotten Nancy cleaned up and some fresh clothes and moved her into Betsey Birney's house and paid Betsey Birney to take care of her; that shortly thereafter he went to the Birney house to make settlement with Betsey Birney for some pasture land that witness was renting, and while there saw Nancy Atkins and her child; witness fixed this occurrence as not more than ten days after he contributed the $5.00 at the pasture payment; that on the occasion of his visit to the Birney house he talked with Nancy Atkins; that he saw Nancy Atkins about a year afterwards with the child—didn't ask whose child it was, but thought that it was hers—didn't pay much attention to the child at the time but afterwards learned that it was named Tommy Atkins; thought the child was about a year or a year and a half old the last time he saw it in Wagoner with Nancy; remembered seeing them both around the Davis and Jones' store; fixed the date of the pasture payment definitely as October, but was uncertain whether it was 1889 or 1890; saw Nancy Atkins before the pasture payment and noticed that she was in a pregnant condition; remembered Nancy being sent to the penitentiary after the birth of her child.

That he was a member of the Creek National Council in 1895 and was present at the session of the Council at Okmulgee in May of that year; that during that year there was approved by the council a roll of Creek citizens for the purpose of making a per capita distribution of $200,000 of the funds of the Creek Nation; that each of the several towns prepared its own roll; that these rolls were submitted to the Council and were referred to a committee for investigation; that on the report of this committee the Council acted and that the authenticated roll of 1895 was the roll of the several towns submitted by the town officers, favorably reported by the committee and approved by the Council; that there were forty-seven separate towns in the Creek Nation and there were forty-seven different rolls approved by the Council in May, 1895; that at the time the committee of the Council was considering the Euchee Town roll in May, 1895, he knew that Nancy Atkins had a boy child and that Minnie Atkins had two boys; that he did not then remember the names of the children of either Minnie Atkins or Nancy Atkins; that at the time he knew Ed Schrimpsher, a first cousin of Minnie and Nancy Atkins; also knew Kate Holden and John Davis; that when the committee of the Council was considering the Euchee Town roll, Samuel W. Brown, Town King of Euchee Town, asked witness to come to the committee room to help him verify three families of Euchees that lived in witness' section of the Creek Nation; that these three families, concerning whom Brown made inquiry were those of Jim Childers, William Childers and the Atkins family. Witness was presented the book of Sam Brown (defendant's exhibit B-1), containing the original entries of the names of the Atkins family, purported to have been furnished Brown by John Davis, and identified Minnie Atkins as the principal defendant in this case, Charley Atkins as evidently intended for Charley Harrison, one of Minnie Atkins' children; that he did not know any person by the name of Susan Atkins, and being asked as to Thomas Atkins, replied: "Unless it was intended for this Thomas Atkins that we are talking about; that is the only one I know".

"Q. You are referring to Nancy Atkins, the--

A. Yes, sir.

* * * * * * * * *

"Q. Whom do you identify as Thomas Atkins?

A. Nancy's child" (Rec. p. 2650).

The witness was then presented the original of the Government's exhibit "A-2", being the 1895 payment roll of Euchee Town, and identified the same as the original receipt roll upon which the payment was made, at Okmulgee, in September, 1895; that he was present at the payment; that Sam Brown, Town King of Euchee Town, was also there; that Napoleon B. Moore, the National Treasurer of the Creek Nation was the paymaster; that Cornelius Carr was there in the capacity of a clerk and that Sam McCurtain was the official caller; and that witness, in company with Timmie Fife, was sitting at the paymasters' table when Minnie Atkins drew her money; that he personally saw her draw for the Atkins family, and that Mr. Moore objected to her drawing for the whole family and said that he didn't want to be responsible for paying it all to Minnie; that Minnie signed the roll, Moore paid the money to Brown and Brown turned the money over to Minnie. He identified the roll as being in the handwriting of Jim Lynch and the red ink notations as the handwriting of Mrs. Moore, the wife of the paymaster."

The witness was first cross-examined by R. C. Allen, National Attorney for the Creek Nation, and was interrogated in reference to his activity in procuring the admission to citizenship of the Richard Atkins family and testified that he knew a Thomas Atkins, the son of Dick Atkins, around Wagoner. He was then confronted with and examined in reference to a sworn statement made by him on February 26th, 1916, before Fred S. Cook, Special United States Indian agent, wherein he stated, under oath, that when he went to Betsey Birney's after he heard that Nancy had a child, he saw Nancy in bed but did not see any child and that he never heard of her having any child except the one born at Wagoner at the time of the pasture payment in 1889 or 1890; that in this statement that he made to Cook, he was asked:

> "Q. Did you ever know or hear of Nancy ever having any child or claiming any child by the name of Thomas Atkins?
> A. I never heard of her having a child by that name or any other name; I knew she had one child, but my understanding was that they never had named the child. It never had a name until this matter came up."

And again,

> "Q. How long did Nancy's child live?
> A. I really don't know, but my understanding is that the child died very shortly after it was born" (Rec. p. 2671).

Witness admitted that the questions above quoted were asked him by Fred S. Cook and that he made the answers as read to him by Allen. That subsequently he went to Wagoner with A. G. McMillan, a Government agent, and pointed out to McMillan and introduced McMillan to the witnesses in Wagoner who were able to testify that Nancy's child was born dead.

On cross-examination by Judge Stuart, counsel for Minnie Folk and Page, he was interrogated as to his statement of February 26th, 1916, and answered as follows.

"Q. Ellis, you understood and believed that the child which Nancy is alleged to have had in 1890 died shortly after its birth?

A. I couldn't say whether it died right away, I don't know.

Q. Died very shortly after its birth?

A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you say so in this statement?

A. I must have.

Q. Well, did you tell the truth when you said it?

A. I never did know when the child died. No, I couldn't say shortly or longly.

Q. Did you tell the truth when you made this statement?

A. I never did know when the child died.

Q. You answer my question; did you tell the truth when you made this or not?

A. Well, I did, of course, try to" (Rec. p. 2677).

On further cross-examination by Judge Stuart in reference to his testifying before the citizenship committee of the Creek Council in 1895, he testified as follows:

"Q. Now, as a matter of fact, when you went before that committee you knew that Sam Brown had made up this Euchee Town roll?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew that Sam Brown was a Euchee King?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew that you were not a member of the Euchee Town?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't know anything about the members of the Euchee Town except those in your vicinity?

A. Didn't pretend to.

Q. So, when you came in there and they put the matter to you, you simply said 'I don't know any Tommy Atkins', didn't you?

A. I don't think I said it.

Q. Didn't even say that much?

A. I don't know whether I said that much.

Q. Ellis, did you testify at all before that committee?

A. I just made a statement.

Q. What statement?

A. I asked what families they have got and they explained and I just simply said yes.

Q. That is all they asked?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you do know that the roll of Euchee Town, as prepared by Sam Brown, was adopted by the council, don't you?

A. I couldn't say that. I knew the Sam Brown roll as approved by the committee was adopted by the council.

Q. But you knew if the Sam Brown roll was endorsed by the committee then the Sam Brown roll was adopted by the council?

A. Why, certainly" (Rec. p. 2679).

He also testified on cross-examination that he had known J. B. White quite a while; that White had brought Nancy Atkins to his house and that she had remained there three weeks.

NANCY ATKINS (Rec. p. 2697; deposition deposition 2775-2785):

Forty-five years of age and born on Elk Creek in the Creek Nation and lived in the Creek Nation all her life; went to Wagoner to live but is unable to fix the year, and got a job laundering at either the McAnally or Barnard hotel; was in a pregnant condition when she went to Wagoner and worked at the laundry until she was sick; before going to Wagoner had lived in Muskogee with her aunt Cherokee Robinson and the reason that she left her aunt's home was because she was in a family way and did not want to bring disgrace on the family. In the fall, after she went to Wagoner, she gave birth in the month of September, to a child; that the child was born at Elnora Williams' house and was a boy and that he lived until the spring of 1900 in and around Wagoner; that after the Brown hotel was built she went to work for Mrs. J. R. Brown and would often take her child to the Brown hotel; that she only had one child and that she often left this child with Betsey Birney; that she was present at the burial of the child and old man McHenry and E. J. White were there; that the child was born before she was arrested and taken to Fort Smith; that from Fort Smith she was sent to Detroit,Michigan,where she served a six and a half months and then came back to Wagoner and went to Williams' restaurant and that Mrs. Williams met her and they went to Betsey Birney's house where they found the boy; witness admits that she is the plaintiff in the suit against H. U. Bartlett and the Gypsy Oil Company, pending in the state courts, and that she testified in the state court case at Sapulpa; that prior to her testimony on the stand in open court she gave her deposition in the office of McDougal and Lytle's office with Betty Mann and Edward Bartlett, the son of H. U. Bartlett; that Betty Mann and Bartlett had come to Coody's Bluff in February for the purpose of having her go to Sapulpa; that on the way to Sapulpa they stopped at Mrs. Albright's where they met Charley Rogers and that Rogers began questioning her about Minnie Atkins; that they got to Sapulpa about eight o'clock that night, which was Thursday, and she stayed there until Monday morning, when she went to McDougal and Lytle's office with the brother of Betty Mann; that at McDougal and Lytle's office she met Bartlett's son and Lytle questioned her and said that they wanted her child to be a girl and if she said the child was a boy she would get in the penitentiary; that this conversation only occupied a few minutes and she went out and that Betty Mann told her that they were to get $2,000.00 for proving that the child was a girl and that if she said it was a boy that they had it framed for her to go to the penitentiary; that the same afternoon at two o'clock they went back to McDougal and Lytle's office; that H. U. Bartlett and his two sons were there; that Betty Mann was in an adjoining room; that Mr. Lytle was there and N. B. Maxey and Mr. Gresham, her attorneys' were present when she was examined; that she was asked why she answered the question at that time as to her child being a girl and replied, "Well, I was just taking them at their word; it was like this; I wouldn't rather have got anything that way than go to the penitentiary and I would rather do without it if I thought I was going to be put in the pen because I have been there once and I know what it is and I thought I would let them have it"; that the statement in Lytle's office at the time of the giving of her deposition was false; that it was made by reason of her intimidation; that she afterwards testified on the stand in open court at Sapulpa and contradicted what she had said in her deposition in McDougal and Lytle's office; that at the time she testified in open court she said her child was a boy and lived seven years; that the latter statement was true and that the statement made in the deposition in McDougal and Lytle's office was false; that after her testimony in the state case Sadie James came to her at Nowata and wanted her to go with her to see her sister, Minnie Atkins; that witness told her she did not want to go with her but that Sadie James offered Joe Byrd $50.00 if he would persuade her to go with Sadie James and that Mrs. Byrd's sister was offered $25.00 to go as far as Kansas City with them; that Sadie James again talked to her about going to see her sister, Minnie, but she feared they were trying to kidnap her and that she went to Mrs. Yarboro's house and told her what Sadie James was attempting to do and asked Mrs. Yarboro to ring up J. B. White at Coweta and have him come and get her. That Mrs. Yarboro locked her up until White came Saturday evening and that Sunday morning she left with White and went to the home of Ellis Childers, where she stayed until December. While she is not positive, she thinks it was Friday, September 26th, that Sadie James came to see her at Nowata and that it was Sunday, the 28th, that she left with White. That prior to that time her guardian, Micco T. Harjo, tried to get her away and that they got as far as Coffeyville, Kansas; supposed to be on their way to Portland, Oregon, and while they were in Coffeyville

Henry McGraw (representing the Gypsy Oil Company) had her make a statement about her child; that this statement was made before she gave her deposition at Sapulpa in McDougal and Lytle's office; that while she and Micco Harjo were in Coffeyville, Bartlett also came there; that Harjo brought him to the house where they were stopping; that Harjo said to her that he could get $500.00 if she would do what he wanted her to do—that is, that Bartlett had offered him $500.00, if she would deny the child and that Harjo advised that they take the $500.00 and have nothing more to do with the suit and get out of the state; that Harjo afterwards brought Bartlett in to see her and Bartlett talked to her and she said, "Oh, well, it is immaterial to me; if you all can make it that way I will turn it over to you and I will get clear out of it because I haven't got enough money to spend on it"; that Bartlett then gave Harjo $10.00 expenses and that Harjo was to take her to Tulsa the next Monday. She later corrects this to make the town Claremore instead of Tulsa. That after Bartlett was gone McGraw came back and asked her questions which she answered; that she never received $500.00 or any part of it from Bartlett; does not know whether Harjo received it or not;

that after she gave her deposition at Sapulpa in McDougal and Lytle's office, she furnished Lytle with the name of Eliza Barnett or Eliza Sterling, as a witness at Wagoner by whom they could prove that her child was a girl; that she then, in company with Harvey Harrison, her nephew; H. U. Bartlett and Betty Mann, drove to Wagoner and first went to see Eliza Sterling; that she had not seen Eliza Sterling for a number of years; that Eliza Sterling recognized her; that she asked Eliza Sterling if her baby was a boy or a girl and that Eliza Sterling said, "Nancy, your child was a boy"; that Betty Mann then turned to Eliza Sterling and said, "You know it was a girl"; that witness then said to Eliza Sterling, "They want you to swear it was a girl, now remember that"; that they next went to see Angeline Moody and practically the same conversation took place and Angeline Moody stammered around for a while and then said, "I believe it was a boy", and that Betty Mann then ran in to her (Angeline Moody) and said it was a girl, and Angeline Moody then said, "Well, I believe it was". That H. U. Bartlett then gave Eliza $10.00 as expense money to come to the trial at Sapulpa and testify and the next morning Betty Mann came on the train with her to Claremore to see that she got on the train for Nowata; that after getting these witnesses to the effect that her child was a girl, Bartlett and Betty Mann did not expect her to go to Sapulpa but that she did go to the trial and changed her testimony.

After this recital as to the Sapulpa procedure, she was asked:

"Q. Just tell the court what the truth is about this child.

A. Well, I will just tell the court.

The Court: Now, look at me and talk loud.

A. Judge, your Honor, I can't look at you, can't tell when I am looking at you on account of the cataract in my eye.

The Court: All right, look at me anyhow.

A. This child. Now, my child was a boy, sure enough.

The Court: Yes, now look at me.

A. I named it Tommy, but at the time I didn't know there was so many Tommys, so many boys in the Atkins family named Tommy I wouldn't never named him. I would much rather named him after my brother, but after Minnie had one named Lee, I just called mine Tommy, but the child really is a boy, honest. Of course, I ain't talking."

That the boy lived until the spring of 1900 and that he was about eight years of age or coming nine at the time of his death; that Minnie Atkins' two children, Charley and Harvey Harrison, were with her in Wagoner for two or three months until Charley Bailey took one of them and Jim Childers the other; that Minnie brought the children with her from Colorado and left them at Kate Holden's and that she saw the boys at Kate Holden's before they were brought into Wagoner; that her boy was not at Kate Holden's at the time but that after she went to Nowata Tom Holden took her boy Tommy out to his place; that when she came back to Wagoner she went out to Holden's and Minnie's two boys and her Tommy were there; that she did not see Tom Way at the Holden's house, but met him on the way to Coweta; that she left her boy Tommy at Tom Holden's and that Kate Holden was to bring him to Wagoner and leave him at Betsey Birney's; that she did not see her boy again for a year, when she saw him in Wagoner at Betsey Birney's; she described the boy as being about her color and that his hair was black and straight, like that of the witness, and that he was small for his age.

Witness was first cross-examined by R. C. Allen, Creek National Attorney, and said that

Sadie James, representing Charlie Page, tried to kidnap her in September, 1914; this was the time she had the conversation with Sadie James at Mrs. Yarboro's house. Admits that she testified in her deposition at Sapulpa that the only child she ever had was a girl child born dead; that she so testified because Betty Mann said she would get $2,000.00. She was also asked about the $500 to be paid by Bartlett at Coffeyville and said she didn't know whether she was to get any of the money; said that Bartlett had himself never offered her a cent but that her information that the money was to be paid came through her guardian, Micco Harjo, and Betty Mann; that she had Micco T. Harjo appointed her guardian when she sold her homestead and after he had left the state she had Ridgeway, her present guardian, a negro, appointed. Admits that her lawyers, Maxey and Gresham, were present at McDougal and Lytle's office when she testified her child was a girl, born dead; that they cross-examined her at length and she stuck to her original assertion; that after she had made the deposition at McDougal and Lytle's office she was taken back to Sapulpa by Ellis Childers who said that Judge Stanfield had sent for her to come to the court house, that when she got to Sapulpa she talked with J. B. White and afterwards went on the witness stand, in open court, and changed her testimony. Allen read from her testimony in the state case as follows:

"Q. Have you ever been married?

A. No, sir.

Q. Ever given birth to a child?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What kind of a child was it?

By the Court: Boy or girl?

A. Supposed to be a boy, I guess."

Witness then details the sending of Charley and Harvey Harrison to her at Wagoner; that she was in Nowata when Ellis Childers came for her to go to Sapulpa to the trial; that Ellis told her they wanted her at Sapulpa; that she had told Bartlett the child was a girl and Ellis said, "You want to go and fix that because you might get into trouble" and she went with him to Sapulpa and went to the St. James hotel where she met J. B. White; that she had stuck to her story about her baby being a girl child; born dead, from July, 1913, until after February 9, 1914; that Angeline Moody hesitated quite a while before she could remember whether her baby was a boy or girl; that Betty Mann and Bartlett and the witness, when they were in Wagoner, also tried to get Henry Kidd as a witness to go to Sapulpa but that Henry Kidd told them that he didn't know anything but that she did have a child; that Betty Mann then asked Kidd if it was a boy or a girl and Kidd said he didn't exactly know; that Betty Mann then said to Kidd that it was a girl child, born dead, and that Kidd agreed to go to Sapulpa and swear to that; she admits that she lived among negroes in and around Wagoner and that her child was born at Elnora Mayshack's (Elnora Williams'); that she knew Joe Birney and all Birney children, Charley, Dick and Coleetha, the youngest of the girls, and Joe, the youngest of the boys; that Joe Birney was about four years old to the best of her recollection when her baby was born; that at the time her child was born, Aunt Mandy, Mrs. Williams and old man Williams were in the house; Williams was running a restaurant down stairs; that she was in a room upstairs in bed; that Aunt Mandy is now dead and old Man Williams is dead, and that the only living person who was present at the birth of the child was Elnora Williams, now Elnora Mayshack, who resided in Portland, Oregon. Witness re-asserts that when she went to Kate Holden's that her boy Tommy was there in addition to Minnie's boys' Harvey and Charley.

Cross-examined by Judge Stuart of counsel for Chas. Page, says she was first talked to in reference to the land in suit by her guardian, Micco Harjo; that Micco Harjo was appointed her guardian when she sold her homestead in 1912; that the homestead was sold through the Indian Agent; she had Harjo appointed guardian so that he could draw money for her; that the first time Harjo ever talked to her about this case he said he had seen the rolls at Muskogee and that Tommy Atkins was enrolled "and he first asked me did I have any children and I told him yes, I am the mother of a child" and he asked me what it was and I told him and he said "Did you ever get his allotment?" and I said I didn't know because uncle enrolled him and if he filed some of my kinfolks, filed him because I didn't file only for myself; that is what I told him; and he said, "Well, he is down there and it must be yours" and I said "well, you have got to prove it then if it is mine". Here the Court interrupted the witness with the interrogatory: "You said what?" Witness continuing: "I told him, well if it is mine you will have to prove it; I said I am the mother of a child and his name was Tommy but whether he was enrolled or not I don't know because uncle enrolled us—was to enroll us— and I only filed for myself"; that she never told Robinson to file for her child but that she did file for her own allotment; that after this first conversation with Harjo he came again to her and said he had a chance to give a lease on the land but that Minnie Atkins was claiming it but that Harjo advised her that she could make as good a lease as Minnie and Ellis Hammett came to Nowata and gave her $50.00 for a lease that she executed; that Micco T. Harjo, her former guardian, was the first person who ever suggested to her that she might have any interest in the property in suit; that Micco T. Harjo is now in Portland, Oregon; that he left Oklahoma because he was scared of getting into trouble; that the next person talked to her about the land was Bartlett; and that Harjo brought Bartlett to her at Coffeyville and that Bartlett wanted witness to say that Tommy wasn't her child and that the child was a girl; that she was willing to go ahead with the "frameup" and that Mike told her that Bartlett would give him $500.00 but that he must be sure to take her (Nancy) out of Oklahoma and Kansas and get clean away; that it was witness' understanding that they were to go to Portland, Oregon; that at the time she made the affidavit for McGraw, Micco T. Harjo and Mrs. Renfro and Mrs. Renfro's daughter were present and that she told McGraw that her child was a girl child, born dead; that McGraw asked her if she was telling the truth and she told him "yes"; witness said she didn't care much what she said at the time because she had made up her mind that she was coming back to Oklahoma; this was in Coffeyville in July, 1913. Admits that she stuck to the statement that her child was a girl child, born dead when cross-examined by Maxey at the time her deposition was taken at McDougal and Lytle's office in Sapulpa in February, 1914; that when Ellis Childers came to her at Nowata he said that the court wanted her at Sapulpa; that when she went on the stand she didn't know what lawyer had her put on the stand; that Judge Stanfield asked her whether her child was a boy or girl; that after she answered the question and told the court that her child was a boy and lived to be about ten years old Lytle got mad and walked up and down in front of her; that she never said a word to any of her lawyers about changing her testimony before she went on the stand in Sapulpa. Admits that she was looking for a place to have her child when she went to Wagoner and knew Elnora Williams before she went there and her associates in Wagoner were all negroes; that Elnora Williams took care of her at the birth of her child; that Aunt Mandy was the mid-wife. When pinned down admits the only other persons who came to see her while she was confined were Mrs. Williams and Aunt Mandy; that Ellis Childers came to see her when the baby was about three weeks old and that the baby was in bed with her when Ellis came to see her; she specifically testifies as follows:

"Q. Now, listen, don't you know that that little child was born dead and it was taken out there and buried?

A. Oh, no, I ain't going to testify to no— I ain't going to brace those niggers' lies up that way.

Q. You think all those niggers have lied?

A. They have absolutely lied on me because they swore my liberty away from me twice right there in Wagoner. That is the reason I say I will not brace their lies up.

Q. What niggers?

A. Henry Anderson and all of them.

Q. Did Angeline Moody swear your liberty away?

A. I don't know whether Angeline was on the case.

Q. Did Elnora Williams?

A. No, she was for me.

Q. Did any other person besides Henry Anderson and some other niggers swear your liberty away?

A. All the niggers swore against me.

Q. Have you any reason to think why they should come here and swear a lie against you?

A. Well, I guess they have been offered money to swear a lie.

Q. You think they have been offered money by the Government?

A. I honestly and truly believe it."

On re-direct examination she said it was her understanding that her uncle William Robinson was going to look after the filing of her Tommy; that she filed on her own allotment June 6th, 1901, and that her boy was dead at that time, having died in the spring of 1900.

On cross-examination by Mr. Hanford, counsel for Minnie Folk, says she named her boy when he was two or three weeks old and that she learned that Minnie's boy was named Lee because Minnie had written her from Fort Logan, Colorado; that she kept Charley and Harvey Harrison at Lizzie Woodward's when they were in Wagoner and that she thinks the boys were there twelve months as near as she can get at it; that Charley Bailey took Charley Harrison away first and that Jim Childers afterward took Harvey; denies that she ever lived in a tent back of the Davis and Jones' store or that her baby was born in a tent; insists that her baby was born in Elnora Williams' house; denies that Bob DeLozier same to see her or ever brought her any meals; says that Elnora Williams brought her meals and looked after her when she gave birth to her child; denies that she ever lived at Betsey Birney's but admits going there frequently; said Betsey Birney kept her child while she was working at hotels and restaurants. On examination by the Court sticks to the story that her child was born at Elnora Williams' house and that she was in bed three weeks or a month before she was able to get up and around.

The Court asked the witness the following questions in reference to her having applied for an allotment for her dead brother Lee:

"Q. You asked about Brother Lee, did you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they said he died before enrollment?

A. Been dead too long.

Q. Your boy died after enrollment, didn't he?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew he died after enrollment?

A. But brother died before enrollment.

Q. You asked about brother and they told you he died before enrollment and couldn't be enrolled?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you say anything to them about your boy?

A. No, Uncle John was in there and I called on Uncle John to see if he could find out whether I could file for brother or not, and he was mad at me and wouldn't say anything in my favor."

Mrs. Blanche Yarboro (Rec. p. 2744):

Resides at Nowata; relates incident of Sadie James and Nancy Atkins coming to her house in September, 1914; of the witness locking Nancy up over night; of her telephoning to J. B. White and of White coming to Nowata the next day and taking Nancy away with him.

J. B. White (Rec. p. 2747):

Lives at Coweta, Oklahoma, and is one of the defendants in this action, being interested in an oil and gas mining lease from Nancy Atkins; became acquainted with Nancy Atkins at Wagoner in 1895 when he was employed as a collector in the Davis and Jones' store, but knew her a couple of years prior thereto when he traded in Wagoner; saw her frequently after 1895; saw her with a boy around Wagoner after 1896; that Nancy told him it was her boy; that the boy appeared to be about five or six years old; that he continued to see the boy around Wagoner until about 1900; that he first became interested in the Tommy Atkins allotment in 1913 when the oil development was approaching that locality; that he had several inquiries from parties interested in securing a lease asking if he knew Tommy Atkins; that he made some inquiries; that he went to Nowata and had a conversation with Micco T. Harjo, the guardian of Nancy Atkins; that Harjo told him other parties had been to see him about a lease; that he saw Nancy on several occasions while at Nowata and talked with her freely in the presence of her guardian; that he was present at the time of the taking of Nancy's deposition in McDougal and Lytle's office at Sapulpa, February 9, 1914; that after she left Sapulpa he had no further conversation with her until she returned to Sapulpa, three days before the trial on February 26th, 1914; that he sent Ellis Childers to Nowata to bring her to Sapulpa to have her present at the trial but that he had never attempted to influence Nancy Atkins or any witness in the case to testify except as to the facts.

On cross-examination witness admitted that he often saw Tommy Atkins, the son of Dick Atkins, around the Davis and Jones' store in Wagoner; that he was a mulatto boy; that when he first became interested in the Tommy Atkins property he procured a copy of the census card showing Minnie Atkins as the mother of Tommy Atkins and that he made inquiries with reference to Minnie Atkins and could not ascertain her whereabouts. He admitted that he put Nancy Atkins on the stand at the trial at Sapulpa in February, 1914, and that he kept her concealed in Sapulpa several days before she was put on the stand. At the conclusion of the witness' testimony (Rec. p. 1544), Nancy Atkins' testimony in full at the trial in the State Court at Sapulpa, February 26th, 1914, and her deposition given at McDougal and Lytle's office February 9, 1914, were introduced in evidence.

J. K. McClaren (Rec. p. 4406):

Resided in Wagoner from 1885 to 1891 and was acquainted with Nancy Atkins from about 1887 until he left there in 1891; that in the winter time he worked in the Davis and Jones' store and in the summer on a ranch; that the last two years he was in Wagoner Nancy Atkins lived in a tent back of the Davis and Jones' store and also stayed with some negroes named Birney and Williams and that a part of the time Nancy was employed as a laundress and dishwasher at the Barnard hotel; that about 1890 or 1891 Nancy had a child with her which witness was unable to identify as a boy or a girl, about one year of age; that he often saw the child with her around the Birney children. On cross-examination witness testified that he was born in 1874 and was about seventeen years old in 1891; that he never saw Nancy in a family way and never personally knew of her giving birth to any child.

J. H. Anderson (Rec. p. 4414):

Fifty-five years of age and lived six miles east of Wagoner; lived in the neighborhood of Wagoner since 1883; knew Nancy Atkins when he was living in Wagoner about 1890; on one occasion saw her leading a child that she said was hers; that the child appeared to witness to be about three or four months old at the time; remembered the circumstance of Nancy going to the penitentiary and that Betsey Birney took care of the child while Nancy was away; that after she returned saw Nancy and the child around Wagoner; that the child appeared to him to be mixed a little with white, Indian and colored blood; that he never heard the name of Nancy's child—never paid enough attention to it to inquire its name. On cross-examination testified that the only Tommy Atkins he ever knew in and around Wagoner was a son of Dick Atkins, an Indian who lived near Coweta who was a son of Billy Atkins, and an Indian living near Tahlequah whose father's name was Sam Atkins.

M. J. Phillipi (Rec. p. 4419):

Fifty-four years of age; white man; went to Wagoner October 1st, 1892; established the Wagoner Record; knew Nancy Atkins and saw her around town with a child who looked to be three or four years old; the child was a rather dark, peculiar looking child with stringy hair; last time witness remembered seeing the child was in 1894 or 1895 when it was about four years old. On cross-examination witness testified that he did not know whose child it was—had seen it with Nancy Atkins—seen it playing with the Birney children.

LIZZIE M. MILLER (Rec. p. 4422):

Fifty-two years of age; first became acquainted with Nancy at Wagoner in 1897 or 1898; that at that time she was living at Betsey Birney's; that Nancy had a child with her there that she claimed to be hers; that Nancy called the child Tommy; that he was a scrubby looking boy, kind of mixture of Indian and mulatto and was about seven or eight years old last time witness saw him just before he died in 1890. On cross-examination admitted that she only assumed the child was Nancy's. Asked as to whether Nancy ever had any other child with her, witness replied: "Well, I don't remember any of them but Tommy. He used to come down with Betsey's boys to bring the kindling".

J. W. RUBLE (Rec. p. 4427):

Forty-two years of age; sheriff of Wagoner County; came to Wagoner in December, 1896; knew Charley Harrison when he was living with Charley Bailey near Wagoner; also knew Harvey Harrison, his brother; knew Cheney Trent and the members of the Dick Atkins family; knew Nancy Atkins and became acquainted with her in 1896 or 1897; did not remember of seeing her after 1897 when he thought she left Wagoner; saw her around Wagoner with a boy about five or six years old—supposed the boy to be Nancy Atkins' boy; that the boy was a sandy haired, freckled faced, dirty child who played mostly with negroes: never heard its name. On cross-examination witness testified that he came to Wagoner from Harrison, Arkansas; never heard of any of the Atkins family prior to that time and that his acquaintance with Nancy could not have extended over a year.

SID JOHNSON (Rec. p. 4430):

Forty-five years of age; special agent of the M. & G. O. railroad and a peace officer for twenty-five years; special officer for twenty-five years; special officer in the employ of the M. K. & T. in 1894; testified that he knew Lee Atkins who lived at Checotah, Indian Territory, and that he was killed by Amos McIntosh in November, 1894.

AUGUSTUS A. DAVIS (Rec. p. 4593):

Resided at Wagoner since 1893; testified as to Charley Harrison being at Charley Bailey's house in 1895 and 1896; knew Nancy Atkins; saw her at one time with a boy come into his shoe shop and that Nancy told witness that it was her boy; that at a later date the boy was playing around his shop with some negro children and picked up something on the counter and one of the negro boys said "You had better let that alone", and called him Tommy and witness asked him "Tommy how much" and the boy replied "Tommy Atkins" and that the boy he saw with Nancy Atkins and around his shop was not Charley Harrison.

The Evidence Against Nancy Atkins.

ELNORA MAYSHACK (Elnora Williams)

(Rec. p. 2163):

Resident of Portland, Oregon, forty-eight years old; at the time of the 1890 Creek payment was living at Wagoner; that Nancy Atkins had been living with her about six months prior to that payment at her home between the Davis and Jones' store and Kidd's blacksmith shop; that while Nancy was living with her she was sick and about to give birth to a child; that witness did not have a room at her house in which to take care of her and that a tent was rented for her located between the two railroad tracks, and that in this tent Nancy gave birth to a child; that it was born in the morning and died in the afternoon of the same day. Witness was unable to fix the exact time of the birth of the child but testified that Nancy had received one Creek payment before the baby was born and another after it was born; that there were four persons present at the birth of the child; that she knew Nancy in and around Wagoner for about four years after the birth of the child and that Nancy lived with her and followed her around during that length of time; never knew of her having but one baby and never knew of any boy living with Nancy when she knew her.

In considering the testimony given by Elnora Mayshack, formerly Williams, as above abridged, who was in attendance upon Nancy at the time of the birth of her child in Wagoner, particular attention should be given to the following portions of the testimony of Nancy Atkins in which she herself states that she lived in the Williams home; that her baby was born at the Williams home and the Williams woman was there. Nancy testified (Rec. p. 2698):

> "A. Now, I am not sure whether it was at the McAnally's or the Bernard, but I think it was the Bernard hotel the first place that I worked.

Q. Where was it (meaning the baby) born, where were you living at the time it was born?

A. Why, I wasn't just to say living; I was working at the Bernard hotel.

Q. Yes, I know, but whereabouts in the town was this child born, what house or place?

A. Elnora Williams' house."

(Rec. p. 2700) Nancy Atkins testified as follows:

"Q. How soon after that did you see— I will ask you first, did you see the child after you got back there?

A. After I went from the train I went to old man Williams' restaurant, and it had rained and the streets were muddy, and I made it over there and Mrs. Williams come to meet me half way. I got there and talked quite a while and said, 'Well, I will go on out to Betsey's'."

Nancy testified as to her return from Detroit, where she had served a term in the penitentiary. Elnora Williams testified that Nancy had come to her house after she was released from prison but that there was no child there that belonged to her. Under cross-examination by Mr. Allen, representing the Government and the Creek Nation (Rec. p. 2713), Nancy Atkins testified as follows:

"Q. Now, Nancy, did you mean to say that that child that was born at Elnora Williams' was not born dead?

A. Why sure. I say my child was not born dead.

Q. If that Elnora Williams says that child was born dead or died the day it was born, she is mistaken?

A. Yes, she would be mistaken.

Q. You say it was born at Elnora Williams' place?

A. Yes."

Again at p. 2722 of the record, Nancy Atkins testified that she stayed at Elnora Williams' during her sickness and that the child was born there.

Again on page 2734, Nancy Atkins testified that when she was sick in childbirth Elnora Williams brought her meals to her and saw that her washing was done and took care of her. Again on p. 2741, in response to inquiries by Judge Campbell, Nancy Atkins testified:

"By the Court: Let me see if I understand you, Nancy, when I am asking you these questions I just want the truth, I am not trying to worry you at all. I understand then that you had your baby at this Mrs. Williams' house in one of those rooms?

A. Yes, sir.

By the Court: And that you stayed there with your baby, until you got well and got up and able to go to work again?

A. Yes, until I was able to go to work again.

Q. Well, tell the Court about how long that was.

A. Well, I was down about, say, three weeks, then I got up—about a month before I got stirring around.

Q. During all that time you were at Mrs. Williams' house?

A. Yes, right where I was confined at."

MICCO HARJO (Rec. p. 2168):

Resident of Portland, Oregon; lived at Nowata, Oklahoma, prior to removing to Oregon; in 1912 Nancy Atkins was living at his house near Nowata and he was instrumental, in that year, in having her adjudged an incompetent and was appointed her guardian by the County Court of Nowata County; that he was first approached by Claude Weldon, of Wagoner, who was desirous of securing a lease from witness as Nancy's guardian, on the Thomas Atkins allotment; that after the conversation with Welden he talked with Nancy and she first told him that her child was a girl and afterwards said it was a boy; that subsequently Ellis Hammett and Ellis Childers talked to him about securing a lease and that Nancy did execute an oil and gas lease to Ellis

Hammett; and after the execution of the lease to Hammett, J. B. White came to witness and advised him the Hammett lease was no good and that he (White) wanted a lease from witness as Nancy's guardian; that White said in his conversation:

> "Now, you can make this lease and I will bear all expenses and I can absolutely prove it was Nancy's child; I want to go down and talk to Nancy again. Can't I talk to her?"

That White then had a conversation with Nancy. Witness testified that after the execution of these leases:

> "I talked to her (Nancy) and you know she was a habitual drunkard. She got drunk one day and she cussed me out about it and she told me the child was a girl and she wouldn't have anything to do with it, and then she turned around and told me it was a boy."

The witness specifically testified as follows:

"Q. When you first talked to Nancy Atkins about this child, when she told you it was a girl, did she say anything in reference to how long the child lived?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did she say?

A. She told me the child was born dead.

Q. Did she tell you where it was born?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where?

A. At Wagoner in a tent.

Q. Where, how is that? Where with reference to what place in the city?

A. Well, she said across the railroad there in some tent.

Q. Where did she say it was buried?

A. Well, she said Monday Barney (Barnett) buried the child out there some place.

Q. Did she ever undertake to tell you—did she ever tell you at any subsequent time anything about the time of the death of the child?

A. Yes, about the time of the death of the child, she couldn't remember, she said how long it had been only by the railroad coming to Wagoner.

Q. I mean this, did she always tell you that the child died in infancy?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did she say it died, did she say?

A. Well, she told me it was about the time that the railroad was coming to Wagoner, or something like that."

On cross-examination by Mr. Hanford, counsel for Minnie Folk, witness testified that Nancy told him that if she could find one Elnora Williams who was with her at the birth of her child, that she (Elnora Williams) would know all of the facts (witness identified Elnora Mayshack, whose deposition is given above, as Elnora Williams).

ELIZA STERLING (Rec. p. 2179):

Forty-five years of age; lived in Wagoner for twenty-nine years; came there when the Iron Mountain railroad was building to Coffeyville; daughter of Mandy Barnett, who is dead; knew Nancy Atkins before she moved to Wagoner when she lived near Clarksville, between the Arkansas and Verdigris rivers; was present at Elnora Williams' house in Wagoner when Nancy gave birth to a child; witness had been in Wagoner about a year at that time; the child was a girl, born dead; Elnora Williams' house was west of the railroad tracks some little distance from the crossing of the Katy and Iron Mountain railroads, near the Davis and Jones' store; Elnora Williams' house was a story and a half house and Nancy's baby was born upstairs; knew of her going to the penitentiary; Nancy stayed with witness part of the time she stayed in Wagoner; witness' house was south of Elnora Williams', some five or six blocks; Nancy also worked at the Barnard hotel and stayed in the servants' room back of the hotel; that she associated almost entirely with negroes; on cross-examination, testified she was eighteen or nineteen years old when Nancy's baby was born and gives the names of Betsey Birney, Maudie Vann, Patsy Overton, Henry Anderson and Grant Tucker as negroes, who were living in Wagoner at the same time; witness also testified in the State Court case at Sapulpa. On direct examination she stated that the child was born in the fall of 1889, but when confronted with her testimony at Sapulpa, corrected the year to 1890. On re-direct examination, did not know any boy in Wagoner called Thomas Atkins; knew Minnie Atkins' children, Charley and Harvey Harrison; Nancy kept these two children for a while in Wagoner; that Betsey Birney had a boy named Joe; he was about three or four years old when Nancy was sent to the penitentiary and he was often with Nancy; judged Nancy to be about her age when the child was born. Witness knows nothing of the burial of the child. (Nancy Atkins was in the court room during the examination of the witness and was identified as the Nancy Atkins who had the baby at Elnora Williams' house).

Angeline Moody (Rec. p. 2190):

Seventy-two years of age; lived in Wagoner for twenty years; was living there when the Iron Mountain railroad was building; knew both Nancy and Minnie Atkins; knew their parents Thomas Atkins and Mary Jane Atkins; has known Nancy Atkins all of her life; was present at Elnora Williams' house when Nancy Atkins gave birth to a child; that this was before Nancy went to the penitentiary; that the day the child was born witness was passing Elnora Williams' house and Elnora Williams told her Nancy was sick; that she started in the house and Mandy Barnett met her at the door and told her to come in and help her; that Mandy Barnett acted as mid-wife at the birth of the child and that the child was born dead and was buried in the yard of Elnora Williams' house; that she saw Nancy frequently after she came back from the penitentiary until she moved to Nowata; never knew of her being in a family way except the time she gave birth to the child at Elnora Williams'; that the child was a girl child. On cross-examination details occasion of Betty Mann coming to her to testify at the State trial at Sapulpa.

HENRY ANDERSON (Rec. p. 2196):

Born in 1848; went to Wagoner to live about twenty-eight years ago; was a "straw boss" with a gang of laborers working on the construction of the Iron Mountain railroad; got acquainted with Nancy Atkins when he first went to Wagoner; that Nancy was in a family way when he first met her: that one of his helpers, Ellis Harris, had laid off one morning and was staying at Betsey Birney's; that witness went to look for Harris and found him digging a hole back of the closet near Elnora Williams' house; witness asked what he was doing and Harris replied that Nancy had a baby that night and that he was digging a whole and was going to put in down there. That there was a little box on the ground; that the top was not nailed on and that witness took of the top and looked in the box and there was a newborn dead baby in the box; that witness lived in a tent north of Williams' eating house near the Birney place and would see Nancy half a dozen times a day around that neighborhood before she gave birth to the child. That she was in a pronounced family way; saw her frequently after Ellis Harris buried the box in Elnora William's yard; never saw her in a family way after that; continued to see her for five or six years; knew of her being sent to the penitentiary and was a witness against her in that case; never knew a boy named Tommy Atkins who lived in Wagoner; knew a Tommy Atkins, the son of Dick Atkins, who lived about ten miles northwest of Wagoner; that this Tommy Atkins, as far as he knew, was no relation to Nancy Atkins. On cross-examination, thought Nancy's child was born in the spring; only saw Nancy for a few months before the child was born; never saw Nancy in anybody's house, but saw her in a tent and understood she stayed in a tent. Did not see anybody helping Harris dig the hole; when he talked to Harris about digging the hole, it was about half past seven in the morning; that the Thomas Atkins he knew northwest of Wagoner was a brother to Cheney Trent. (Nancy Atkins was in the court room during the examination of this witness and was identified by him as the Nancy Atkins he knew in Wagoner).

Dora Smith (Rec. p. 2208):

Lived in Wagoner 18 or 19 years and thinks she first went there in 1894 or 1895; knew Nancy Atkins before she went to Wagoner; knew her around Muskogee; visited with her and talked with her a great deal when they both lived in Wagoner; knew of her having two little boys with her that she stated were her sister Minnie's children; thinks one of them was called Lee; that Nancy told her she had been the mother of one child and that it was born dead; never saw any other children that Nancy kept in Wagoner with her with the exception of the two boys she said were Minnie's children. On cross-examination testified that Nancy Atkins left Wagoner before she did and thinks she went to Nowata.

PATSY MILLER (Patsy Overton) (Rec. p. 2211):

Lived in Wagoner about twenty-eight or twenty-nine years and moved there December 29th, 1887; fixes the date by her marriage to Overton, which occurred December 28th, 1887, and went to Wagoner the next day with her husband; knew Nancy Atkins a few years before her marriage when she was living in the bottom between the Verdigris and Arkansas rivers; Nancy Atkins was not living in Wagoner when witness first moved there, but came there later; knew Mandy Barnett and that she is dead; that Mandy Barnett was a mid-wife; knew Elnora Williams and lived with her on the west side of the railroad track; knew Betsey Birney; that when Nancy Atkins first came to Wagoner she was in a pronounced family way; that Mandy Barnett told the witness one morning that Nancy Atkins was very sick the night before and that she was afraid she was going to have bad luck with her as Nancy had had a baby that had died; that it was her understanding it was a boy baby; that Mandy Barnett told her that they had buried the baby; that she knew of Nancy Atkins going to the penitentiary after she had the baby; after coming back from the penitentiary she stayed around Wagoner for six or seven years; that she never knew of her being in a family way but the one time; that she would see her two or three times a week; knew her when she was working at the Barnard hotel; saw two children with her and asked who they were and Nancy told her that they were her sister's boys and that her sister's name was Minnie; never saw her with any other boys. On cross-examination, stated she had been in Wagoner perhaps two or three years before Nancy moved there; that she was not present at the birth of Nancy's child; that she saw Nancy in a family way around Wagoner for two or three months before she had the conversation with Mandy Barnett; witness did not associate much with the Birney and Elnora Williams people as they were rough characters and her husband objected to her associating with them.

HENRY KIDD (Rec. p. 2220):

Sixty-six years of age; lived in Wagoner twenty-two or twenty-three years; thinks he moved there in the fall of 1892; knows Nancy Atkins; did not know her when she went to the penitentiary; that Nancy Atkins and Betty Mann came to witness on the streets of Wagoner a few years ago and Nancy in the presence of witness told Betty Mann that she never had but one child and her child was born dead; knew a Thomas Atkins around Wagoner, who was the son of Dick Atkins; often saw him hauling wood; that Thomas Atkins hauled wood to witness' place; that this Thomas Atkins was a brother of Cheney Trent; that he died when he was twelve or thirteen years old. On cross-examination, stated Nancy had been to the penitentiary and had come back the year before he moved to Wagoner and that when he first knew her she was staying at old man Williams'; that witness boarded with Williams; not certain whether Nancy lived with Williams or in a tent; saw her around Williams' place.

LULA SMITH (Rec. p. 2223):

Thirty-eight years of age; went to Wagoner in 1891; knew Nancy Atkins; first knew her when she went to Wagoner; witness worked at Barnard hotel about four years and waited on table at Barnard hotel and Nancy Atkins often talked to her; said that she had one child; that it was born dead or died soon afterwards; witness did not associate with Nancy; just saw her around the hotel and after witness left the Barnard hotel she worked at the railroad eating house and would frequently see Nancy; saw her every day or two; never saw her nor knew of her being in a family way; never heard of a boy around Wagoner named Thomas Atkins. On cross-examination, stated that she was about thirteen years of age when she went to Wagoner and that Nancy Atkins was older than witness; that witness waited on table and Nancy Atkins worked in the laundry; does not know what year it was Nancy left Wagoner: that Nancy volunteered the information about her having the baby; that Nancy told her about getting into trouble and being sent to the penitentiary.

MARTHA HARDRIDGE (Rec. p. 2233):

Forty-four years of age; lived in Wagoner since 1891; knew Nancy Atkins; first knew her at the Barnard hotel; roomed with her when they worked together at the hotel for eleven months; that Nancy had told her she had given birth to one child that was born dead; knew the Birneys and Joe Birney; often saw Joe Birney with Nancy Atkins and that Joe would come to the hotel with Nancy Atkins; never knew any person by the name of Thomas Atkins. On cross-examination, described Joe Birney as a brown-skinned, little boy, but not a baby, in 1891.

PATSY JENKINS (Rec. p. 2235):

Lived north of Wagoner; never did live in the town of Wagoner; first saw Nancy Atkins in Wagoner when there was only one store there; about twenty-one years ago Nancy came to her house in the winter time and stayed with some renters a while and later stayed with witness; that she brought two children to witness' house, the oldest one was a boy named Charley and the youngest one a boy named Harvey; doesn't know where she got the boys; never saw Nancy with any boys except the two she brought to her house; Nancy told her she had been the mother of one child and that it was a girl child and born dead; that this conversation took place when Nancy was staying at witness' home; never saw much of Nancy after that. On cross-examination, stated that she was not well acquainted with Nancy Atkins and only knew her when she would see her. That it was a long time after she first saw Nancy that she came to her house and brought the two boys; that Nancy told her that the boys belonged to her sister Minnie; that both boys were old enough to walk around; that the oldest one looked to be about six years old, that witness' house is in the Cherokee Nation about thirteen miles north of Wagoner.

SARAH COATS (Rec. p. 2241):

Became acquainted with Nancy Atkins in 1891; when she was working at the Barnard hotel in Wagoner; witness was working at the McAnally hotel at the same time; that there was just a fence between the two hotels; saw Nancy Atkins every day and often talked with her; witness lived in Wagoner until 1895 or 1896; knew Nancy Atkins before she went to the penitentiary; saw her frequently until witness left Wagoner in 1896; that Nancy's associates were negroes; never knew a Thomas Atkins.

CHENEY TRENT (Rec. p. 4179):

Lives west of Wagoner in Wagoner County; a citizen of the Creek Nation; daughter of Dick Atkins; claims to be a granddaughter of old Thomas Atkins; John R. Thomas represented her in her application for enrollment; that she had a half brother named Thomas Atkins who died when he was thirteen years of age, the year the filing commenced; that he lived with her father; that she saw her brother, Thomas Atkins, at her father's until he died; that she often saw her brother, Thomas Atkins, in and around Wagoner with Nancy; that her brother made frequent trips to Wagoner. On cross-examination testified that her father and Nancy often drank together and that Nancy came to her father's house to get whiskey and that on these occasions Thomas Atkins was with them; that Nancy lived at a hotel part of the time she was in Wagoner; knew Betsey Birney; saw Nancy in Wagoner with her brother frequently.

ANDERSON CHILDERS (Rec. p. 4291):

Citizen of the Creek Nation; has lived in and around Wagoner for twenty-five years; knows Minnie Atkins and Nancy Atkins; that Nancy Atkins moved to Wagoner about 1891 or 1892; saw her on an average of once a week after she moved there; knew Dick Atkins and his son, Thomas Atkins; that Dick Atkins and Sallie Atkins were the mother and father of this Thomas; that Thomas Atkins died in 1898; that he frequently saw Thomas Atkins, the son of Dick and Sallie Atkins, in and around Wagoner with Nancy Atkins; that they were around the Davis and Jones' store; that at the time Thomas Atkins was about seven or eight years old; that he frequently saw Nancy in and around Wagoner with Minnie Atkins' two children.

At the conclusion of the testimony of this witness the Government offered exhibits "A-113" and "A-114", the testimony of Sallie Atkins, the mother of Thomas Atkins, in reference to the application to the Dawes Commission for the enrollment of Thomas Atkins, and certified copy of departmental letter of December 8, 1905, relating to the enrollment of the Dick Atkins family.

T. HOWARD MORTON (Rec. p. 4298):

Went to Wagoner in 1891 and was employed by the Davis and Jones' Mercantile Company and continued in the employ of Davis and Jones until 1902 or 1903; became acquainted with Nancy Atkins when he first went to Wagoner; never knew of her having a boy named Thomas Atkins; did know a Thomas Atkins, a son of Richard Atkins and a half-brother of Cheney Trent, who lived about ten miles northwest of Wagoner and frequently saw him about the Davis and Jones' store; that Thomas Atkins often hauled wood to witness' house.

JIM CHILDERS (Rec. p. 4300):

Forty-three years old; left Wagoner in 1912; was raised in and around there; brother of Ellis Childers; knew the Dick Atkins family; knew Nancy Atkins first in 1890; knew Nancy Atkins about the time she was in the family way; knew Betsey Birney, Elnora Williams and Mandy Barnett; all of these people moved into Wagoner about the time the Iron Mountain railroad was built; at the time he knew Nancy Atkins to be in a family way she was living with the Birneys'; that this condition disappeared and that he saw her after that every two or three months up until along in 1894; that he talked with Nancy frequently; that during this time Thomas Atkins, the son of Dick Atkins, was around Wagoner with Nancy; that Thomas Atkins often stayed with her; that he was four or five years old; that this was the only Thomas Atkins he ever knew in Wagoner; knew the Birney children and Minnie Atkins' two boys who frequently stayed with Nancy; that witness kept Harvey Harrison at his home for a long time; that Charley Bailey took Lee Harrison to raise; that at the time witness got Harvey from Nancy, she was living at Eliza Barnett's; that at this time Harvey was four or five years old; that witness kept him until 1898 and then turned him over to Kate Holden; that the Birney children played around with Nancy.

ANANIAS ATKINS (Rec. p. 4938):

Colored; son of Dick Atkins and a brother of Thomas Atkins, son of Dick Atkins, testified that he and Thomas Atkins were born in Missouri and that he was some older than Thomas; that Thomas died in the fall of 1898 at their home ten miles northwest of Wagoner; that his brother Thomas frequently went to Wagoner and would be around the Davis and Jones' store; that Thomas Atkins worked around Wagoner and hauled wood to and from his father's farm; that when Thomas died he was thirteen years, three months and some days old; that his father always told him Nancy Atkins was his aunt. On cross-examination witness testified that his brother Thomas would stay two or three days at a time in Wagoner.

MARY WILSON (Rec. p. 4401):

Colored; daughter of Dick Atkins; testified that she had a brother named Thomas, born in Missouri, and that he come to the Indian Territory with the family; that Thomas hauled wood between Wagoner and her father's farm; that he died when he was about thirteen years old; that he died in 1898.

Charles Harrison (Rec. p. 4528):

Son of Minnie Atkins and brother of Harvey Harrison; twenty-seven years of age; testified that his mother brought him and Harvey to the Indian Territory and gave them to his aunt, Kate Holden, who lived on the Arkansas river across from Choska, near where the town of Haskell is now located; that he stayed there one summer and one winter and was then taken by his aunt Nancy to Wagoner; that at the time he and Harvey stayed with his Aunt Kate there were no other boys there and there never was a boy there by the name of Thomas Atkins; that he knew Tom Way, a cattle man, who frequently came to his aunt Kate's; that he often opened the gates for Way and Way sometimes gave him a quarter; that he did not remember having a brother named Thomas; that when his aunt took care of him and Harvey there were no other boys with her; that at the time he and his brother lived with Nancy she was staying with some negroes in Wagoner; that he went over to the Davis and Jones' store with her; that he never knew of his aunt Nancy having a boy of her own.

Analysis of the Nancy Testimony, Pro and Con.

We have endeavored to make a concise resume of all the testimony in this case in favor of Nancy Atkins and against Nancy Atkins, both in chief and in rebuttal. Now when we begin to consider this testimony and what it establishes we must keep in mind, of course, the burden which Nancy assumed in this regard. What must be the probative force of her evidence under the adjudication? Justice Van Devanter in the case of Ross v. Stewart (277 U. S. 530, 57 L. ed. 629), in speaking of this matter, said:

> "All reasonable presumptions must be indulged in support of the action of the officers to whom law entrusted the proceedings resulting in the patent, and unless it clearly appears that they committed some material error of law, or that misrepresentation and fraud were practiced upon them, or that they themselves were chargeable with fraululent practices, and that, as a result, the patent was issued to the defendant when it should have been issued to the plaintiff, their action must stand."
> And cases cited.

Here is a patent issued by the United States Government and that patent was the result of certain action on the part of the Dawes Commission, which was approved by the Secretary of the Interior. This action of the Dawes Commission is sought to be impeached for mistake, although, as shown above, Nancy Atkins' pleadings do not justisfy any such attack. Inasmuch as this judgment of the Dawes Commission, as far as Nancy Atkins is concerned, is being attacked for mistake, it is an effort to set aside the proceedings which resulted in the patent to the extent that those proceedings were erroneous in that a mistake was made against Nancy Atkins as mother of the Tommy actually enrolled.

How can it be said, in the face of the testimony we have just quoted both for and against the Nancy Atkins claim, that it clearly appears from such evidence that Nancy Atkins ever had a boy by the name of Thomas Atkins? The most singular and impressive incident in Nancy's case is that when she was asserting her right to an allotment she made written application to the Dawes Commission to have her sister Minnie Atkins enrolled. It is conceded that at the very time she applied for enrollment and allotment for her absent sister, if her testimony is to be believed, that she had by her side this alleged infant boy of hers, Thomas Atkins. Nancy Atkins knew that she was entitled to an allotment; she thought Minnie was, although she was not sure whether Minnie was alive or dead, and until informed to the contrary by the Dawes Commission, she thought her brother Lee was. She knew these things, she knew that her alleged child, Thomas, if he was living at that time, as claimed by her, was certainly entitled to an allotment. How can her silence as a mother be explained in this case? How can the Court escape the force of this undisputed fact in this case?

It further appears from the evidence above cited and briefed, that Nancy Atkins went to Wagoner about 1889 or 1890, and that she there soon afterwards gave birth to a child. As has been said before in this brief, she made her home with the colored people and it appears that she lived for months and months with Elnora Williams. Nancy Atkins in her testimony declares that she had this baby at Elnora Williams' (now Elnora Mayshack) house. The testimony of Elnora Mayshack was taken by the Government in Portland, Oregon, and we now say at the outset of this branch of the argument that it is fair to assume, in the absence of proof, that the Government endeavored to get the truth out of these witnesses and that their statements were not influenced in any way by the defendants, Page or Minnie Folk.

Elnora Mayshack, a witness for the Government, strongly testified that she knew Nancy Atkins well, that Nancy Atkins had lived with her for a long time, that she came to her place to have this baby, that she was present when the baby was born, and that it died very soon afterwards.

Right in this connection we wish to state to the Court a significant fact as appearing in the testimony of Henry Anderson. It seems that Henry Anderson was a foreman or "straw boss" of a railroad gang and had a man working for him by the name of Ellis Harris. Ellis Harris did not show up for work on a certain morning and Henry Anderson went to see why he had not come to work. He found Ellis Harris behind Elnora Williams' house. He found him digging a hole in the ground and he found him with a little box. Ellis Harris when questioned said he had a baby in that box, that it was Nancy Atkins' baby and that he was going to bury it. Henry Anderson opened the box and looked at the dead infant. Now the testimony of Anderson is to a concrete fact about which he could not be mistaken unless he was a clean-cut perjurer. The Government summoned Henry Anderson as a witness in this case. It is not shown that he had any interest, that he had any antagonism toward Nancy Atkins, or that there was any impelling motive upon him to tell other than the truth.

Now, all the witnesses swear that this child was practically born dead, that is, all the witnesses who are now living and who were present at the birth of the child, and when you supplement this with the testimony of Henry Anderson that he saw the dead child, saw it in a box and that it was being placed in a hole behind Elnora Williams' house and that the man who had the child said it was Nancy's dead child, there is no escape from the conclusion that Nancy's child was born dead, or practically dead.

It will be remembered also by the Court, and we are not going to discuss in detail every phase of this testimony, that when Nancy Atkins gave her statement or deposition at McDougal and Lytle's office in Sapulpa, February 9th, 1914, she stated that she had had but one child, that it was a girl child and born dead. She cited Attorney Lytle to Eliza Sterling as the only witness living in Wagoner who really knew all about the child and later on we will show to the Court that Ellis Childers did the same thing.

When Eliza Sterling was found, she was summoned by the Government as a witness in this case, and this Eliza Sterling the woman who was named by Nancy Atkins as the one who could give the exact truth about her child testified that she was present at its birth and that the child was born dead. Why was it, if Nancy was not telling the truth when she gave her deposition in McDougal and Lytle's office, that she should refer them to a witness who would, and who actually did upon the stand, substantiate the statement that Nancy made in her deposition at that office?

Other witnesses, one after the other, who knew Nancy Atkins, testified that Nancy said this child was born dead, that Nancy never claimed that she had but one child, that she was never seen pregnant at Wagoner but once and that was in the year 1889 or 1890, and they all, with one accord, say that she never thereafter had any child and they all agree, either from what Nancy said or from what they saw, that this child was a girl child and was born dead. Their testimony is consistent with the statement which Nancy made to Mr. McGraw at Coffeyville, Kan., on July 26th, 1913, and their testimony is consistent with the testimony which Nancy gave in her deposition at Sapulpa, Okla.

Right here we beg the Court to notice why it was that Nancy changed her testimony when she got on the stand at Sapulpa, February 26, 1914. We now go to the deposition of Micco Harjo, who was Nancy's guardian, and whose testimony was taken by the Government at Portland, Oregon. Micco Harjo admitted that he had Nancy at his house when J. B. White came to see her in 1913. Harjo said he had talked with J. B. White and that after Nancy's talk with White she, for the first time stated to him that her child was a boy child and that it was the Thomas Atkins enrolled by the Dawes Commission. He testified that White said to him, "I can absolutely prove that the boy enrolled by the Dawes Commission was Nancy's child". Harjo says that some time after that Nancy got drunk and cursed him out and told him that the child was a girl and that she wouldn't have anything to do with it.

The Government called special attention to these matters, and Harjo said that the first time he ever talked with Nancy about her child she told him it was born dead and born in Wagoner. On cross-examination by Mr. Hanford, counsel for Minnie Folk, he stated that Nancy told him about Elnora Williams, who was present at the time her baby was born and that Nancy told him and continued to tell him that if she could find Elnora Williams she could establish her claim, that she, Elnora Williams, was with her when the child was born and knew the facts.

For some reason—which the Court will find, and we apprehend it is not very difficult to discover—Nancy changed her testimony when she got upon the stand at Sapulpa, and for the first time claimed that her child was a boy. Now this case is so full of contradictions by both Nancy and Minnie that we will not burden the Court by attempting to reconcile the contradictions in favor of either, but we do say that insofar as we have presented this matter to the Court in this brief, it is perfectly clear that Nancy cited those who made inquiries both to Elnora Williams and Eliza Sterling as the people who knew all about the circumstances of her baby's birth, and these witnesses, whenever and wherever found by the Government, have testified against Nancy and have disclosed positively and unequivocally that Nancy's statement that it was a boy child or that it lived for years after its birth is false.

Certain witnesses were introduced by Nancy Atkins, some of them reputable men and some of them very disreputable. Some honest men got on the stand and swore that they had seen Nancy Atkins with a child time and again in Wagoner, and that she called it Tommy and that it was anywhere from eight or nine to eleven or twelve years of age when they saw it. We think that this matter has been clarified and made as plain as evidence can make a matter twenty-five years ago. It seems that there was a boy by the name of Thomas Atkins, who was the son of Richard Atkins, and that he lived near Wagoner. The witnesses stated that this boy hauled wood from his father's place northwest of Wagoner. Cheney Trent, an Indian woman, testified that this Thomas Atkins, of whom we have just spoken, was her half-brother, that he did frequently go to Wagoner and that Nancy Atkins was his aunt, or claimed to be his aunt, and that this brother of hers,—Thomas Atkins—was frequently with Nancy in Wagoner, that he frequently stayed with her and went about the streets with her; that Nancy would frequently come to her father's house and would go back with her folks to Wagoner. It is easy, therefore, to explain the confusion into which the case has fallen at this point and to reconcile the statements of the reputable witnesses produced by Nancy. Nancy did have a boy with her by the name of Tommy Atkins. She was frequently with him. She claimed that he was her nephew, and if any boy was seen with her whose name was Thomas Atkins this, of necessity, was the boy, because when you take into consideration the fact that the witnesses who were actually with her when she was confined testified that her child was born dead, and when you compare this with the further fact that there was a Thomas Atkins frequently with her in Wagoner who was the son of Richard Atkins, you have at one and the same time broken down her claim that she had a son by the name of Thomas Atkins who lived to be twelve or thirteen years of age, and reconciled the statements of her reputable witnesses with the actual facts in this case. Is it not reasonable to conclude that this Thomas Atkins, the son of Richard Atkins, was the boy that Tom Way saw with Charley and Harvey Harrison at Tom Holden's?

Much stress is laid by learned counsel on the testimony of T. J. Way, but in opposition to this, among other things, we call particular attention to the testimony of Mitchell Wadsworth, who is a nephew of Minnie and Nancy Atkins and the son of Kate Holden, with whom Minnie Atkins left her two children. Counsel for Nancy Atkins, in their brief, laid great stress on the assertion of T. J. Way, to the effect that he saw Nancy's son Thomas Atkins at the home of her aunt, Kate Holden. Mitchell Wadsworth was placed on the stand by the Government (Rec. p. 4599). He testified as follows:

> "Q. During the '90's, up to 1902 or 1903, did you know who lived in the home of your mother, Kate Holden?
> A. Why, up to 1898, Charley and Harvey was kept there from the time Minnie Atkins turned them over to my mother until 1898, and then they was taken away, but there wasn't but one Indian boy by the name of Edmund Bear that stayed there.
> Q. Was there any Indian boy by the name of Tommy Atkins ever stayed there?
> A. No, never was. I don't guess there ever was a Thomas Atkins stayed all night at that house.
> Q. How long did Edmund Bear stay at your mother's home?
> A. About six years."

Another mysterious thing in this case, and one which shows which way the wind blows, is Ellis Childers' connection with Nancy's case. The Court will remember Nancy Atkins testified that Ellis Childers came to Nowata after her in February, 1914; that he came out in a buggy, went with her to get some clothes, and that Nancy thereafter appeared at Sapulpa and that Ellis was also at Sapulpa. Ellis Childers went on this errand and brought Nancy to Sapulpa at the instance of J. B. White, and strange to say she, for the first time, changed her testimony when she got to Sapulpa and this change was made after a conversation with Ellis. Can the Court have any doubt that Ellis Childers went there for the purpose of inducing this woman to swear in behalf of White, and can the Court doubt for a moment that Elllis Childers, by words and promises, induced this woman to change her testimony and swear a lie in the court at Sapulpa?

But Ellis Childers was afterwards employed by the United States Government. Ellis made a statement to the Government through R. C. Allen and Fred S. Cook, the Government's officers, and swore to it. In this statement Ellis made the positive assertion that he understood that Nancy had one child born about 1889 or 1890, and that his information was that the child was born dead. He further stated in the affidavit to these officers that he had never heard that Nancy had a boy and had never seen her with a boy by the name of Thomas Atkins.

The Government then induced Ellis to go with A. G. McMillan, a Government officer, to Wagoner and obtain the witnesses who tell the truth about this transaction. Ellis pointed out the witnesses, Eliza Sterling, Angeline Moody and others to this officer, and their statements were taken and in each and every instance these witnesses, pointed out by Ellis to McMillan, and some of whom were introduced to McMillan by Ellis, testified unequivocally that Nancy Atkins had one child in Wagoner and that it was born dead. Now what a sad condition of perjury we meet with here.

Ellis Childers actually induced Nancy Atkins to swear in court at Sapulpa that her child was a boy and lived to be eleven or twelve years of age, and yet afterwards, when he went into the employ of the Government, he pointed out witnesses to the Government's agent and assisted in procuring testimony in behalf of the Government, and these witnesses and the testimony procured by Ellis at the instance of the Government absolutely contradicted the testimony of Nancy Atkins in the court at Sapulpa. In the one case, at Sapulpa, inducements were held out to Nancy Atkins to change her statement made to Mr. McGraw at Coffeyville and to change her statement in her deposition taken in McDougal and Lytle's office. In the other case no inducements whatever were held out to the witnesses summoned by the Government, but they stated, both in statements to the Government officers and upon the stand in this case, facts in direct conflict with Nancy Atkins' testimony at Sapulpa which Ellis Childers undoubtedly induced her to give. Is it necessary to discuss this evidence further? Is it necessary to urge before this Honorable Court that Nancy Atkins has not only signally failed to show that she had a child by the name of Thomas, but that she has failed to show that she had a child at all who was a boy child and who lived? It seems to us that Nancy has not only failed to show clearly that she had a child by the name of Thomas, but that she has failed, by any reputable evidence, to show that fact at all. We, therefore, with reference to the claim of Nancy Atkins, confidently assert that she has not introduced a line of testimony showing that the Dawes Commission ever actually enrolled Thomas Atkins as her son or actually intended so to enroll him. She has failed absolutely to establish any mistakes on the part of the Dawes Commission, although her pleadings did not justify her attempt, and she has absolutely failed to show that the Dawes Commission, at any place or at any time, considered her relationship to the Thomas Atkins actually enrolled, or that the members of said Commission or any person connected with the Commission had in their minds at the time they made out the census card and pronounced judgment in favor of Thomas Atkins, any idea or suggestion from anybody that the child Thomas Atkins with whom they were dealing was in any way related to Nancy Atkins, and she has signally failed, in our judgment to establish that she had a son by the name of Thomas Atkins. She failed to convince the mind of the trial court in this last contention and, therefore, it comes to pass that she has failed to make out her claim.

That being true, we feel great hesitation in balancing the evidence between the claim of Minnie Atkins and Nancy Atkins as given in this case and attempting to find where a preponderance of the evidence lies and we should not do so and should not burden this Court with any statement of the evidence for and against Minnie Atkins were it not for the fact that the claim of Minnie Atkins being the mother of Thomas Atkins is attacked.

Some point is endeavored to be made with reference to the result of a certain case known as Bartlett v. Atkins, 169 Pac. 1076. We cannot understand how and in what way the decision in this case can have any bearing upon this cause. That suit was a controversy between Bartlett and Nancy Atkins. Minnie Atkins was not a party to it and was not in the country at the time. Page, the lessee of Minnie Atkins, was not a party to it and had no connection with, or relation to it any way. Of course the judgment in that case was not binding upon Minnie Atkins or upon Page, her lessee. The Supreme Court of Oklahoma was particular to say that the judgment which Nancy obtained against Bartlett in that case was binding as to the parties to that suit, and absolutely against no one else.

We have already demonstrated, we think, to the satisfaction of this Court, that the claim of Nancy Atkins is utterly untenable as against the claim of Minnie and her lessee. The Court below had the judgment in this case of Bartlett v. Atkins in evidence before it, had all the evidence from every source that could be garnered, and decided that Nancy's case was not made out, and found against her.

We, therefore, submit to this Honorable Court that a comparison of the evidence for Nancy and against Nancy shows a clear preponderance, to say the least of it, against her claim. We believe we are justified in stating, with all due respect to the Court, that the claim of Nancy Atkins is destroyed by her own conduct and her own testimony. Indeed the trial court seems to have had no difficulty whatever in reaching the conclusion that the claim of Nancy Atkins was fabricated, and this independent of the testimony in favor of Minnie.

We do not wish to consume further time in discussing the testimony in this record. We are content with the judgments of two courts upon this question of fact and we do not believe it possible for any trained mind to reach any other conclusion as to Nancy's claim than that reached by the United States District Court and by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

The Government has appealed in this case and is attacking the claim of Minnie Atkins to the allotment of Thomas Atkins on the ground that said Thomas Atkins named on the roll never existed. Of course, if the Tommy Atkins so named never existed, he could have been the son neither of Minnie nor Nancy.

We assume that the Government will also answer the brief of counsel for Nancy and will thoroughly elaborate the weakness of our claim. The whole record is not available to us in writing this brief and we are compelled to refer to the pages of the record referred to in our brief before the Circuit Court of Appeals, assuming that the pages of the record will be the same in this Honorable Court. But with the apprehension that we may be tedious we recapitulate:

CONCLUSION.

We think there can be but one conclusion in this cause when measured by the adjudicated cases, and that is that the rolls of the Tribe, together with the evidence in support of said rolls, are practically conclusive of this controversy. What is known as the Thlocco case reported as U. S. v. Bessie Wildcat, was the first expression by the Supreme Court of the United States as to the binding force and character of the judgments of the Dawes Commission and of the force and effect of the rolls of the Tribe as evidence. It will be remembered that in that case the Court declared that the Dawes Commission was expected to make mistakes; that the immense volume of work before it induced mistakes, but that their judgments whether perfectly correct or not, must be assumed to be correct and impervious to collateral attack. The doctrine announced in the Thlocco case was not new because the Circuit Court of Appeals, 8th Circuit, more than twenty years ago announced and continued to announce prior to the decision by the Supreme Court in the Thlocco case that the Dawes Commission was a judicial body and that its judgments were entitled to the same faith and credit as judgments of any court of competent jurisdiction. The Thlocco case approved the original opinions of the 8th Circuit and held that the proceedings of the Dawes Commission were in no sense ex parte. The Courts declared that the presence of the Creek council when the Dawes Commission was enrolling, the presence of the attorney for the Creek people whose duty it was to watch the rolls and help purge them, made the whole transaction a judicial trial; made the judgment after such trial a muniment of title in favor of the party who was actually enrolled by the Commission.

Let us now consider what the Dawes Commission had to do when it came to the name of Thomas Atkins on the roll. The Commission took the roll of 1890 and examined it; it took the roll of 1895 and examined it, and above all, took the corrected roll; that is, the exact roll known as the Creek payroll, and examined it. On these rolls, the Commission found the name of Thomas Atkins, and the Commission found that name accredited to the family of Minnie Atkins and found that Thomas Atkins accredited to Minnie as his mother. On the face of the rolls, the Thomas Atkins whom the Commission was examining was the son of Minnie Atkins; with these rolls before it and with the duty resting upon the Commission to determine if the rolls spoke the truth, the Commission took the evidence outside of the rolls and found that the Thomas Atkins on these rolls was, in fact, the son of Minnie Atkins. The Dawes Commission did this in order to assure itself that these rolls, as to this particular Thomas Atkins, spoke the truth, and the Commissioner found that the rolls did speak the truth because the evidence that the Commission took accorded in all things with the faces of the rolls. Now we contend that these rolls, if they showed on their faces that the Thomas Atkins on these rolls was the son of Minnie Atkins, are at least presumptive evidence in favor of Minnie Atkins against the world, and they must be broken down by clear and substantial proof. To state the matter in another way, the first thing the Dawes Commission did when it came to this particular Thomas Atkins, was to examine the rolls of the tribe; that examination showed beyond a doubt, that the rolls of the tribe on their faces disclosed the particular Thomas Atkins which the Dawes Commission was considering, to be the son of Minnie Atkins. This being true, the Dawes Commission then followed up this examination of the rolls by taking evidence entraneous to the rolls and concluded that the rolls were correct and they denominated this particular Thomas Atkins as the son of Minnie. We say that these rolls therefore are, if not conclusive, presumptively correct and we start out, therefore, with this much in our favor.

As we have shown in the earlier part of this brief, no evidence was taken by the tribe or by the Dawes Commission as to Nancy being the mother of this particular Thomas. The Dawes Commission was seeking to find and identify the particular Thomas Atkins named on the rolls as the son of Minnie. It examined, it called witnesses, it pursued every avenue open to it, and finally determined that the Thomas Atkins named on the rolls as the son of Minnie Atkins and who was actually being considered by them, was in fact the son of Minnie.

We therefore recur to the original question, who was the Thomas Atkins No. 7913 actually enrolled and intended to be enrolled by the Dawes Commission? The rolls on their faces declare that he was the son of Minnie Atkins. These rolls were prepared and approved by the Creek people, who, of course, had a deep and abiding interest in making correct rolls. The evidence taken by the Commission absolutely corresponded with the notations on the roll. This being true, how can it be contended that one Thomas Atkins, the alleged son of Nancy Atkins, was the one enrolled by the Dawes Commission? We confess that it is beyond our comprehension to imagine a case where a tribunal, having examined the right of a certain person to certain benefits under existing law and having rendered judgment with reference to that particular person whose rights they were examining, could have made a mistake against some other person who was not in contemplation and not considered when the tribunal rendered its judgment. The Dawes Commission did exactly what it intended to do. It found Thomas Atkins on the rolls as the son of Minnie. It took evidence which sustained the roll and it therefore enrolled Thomas Atkins, the son of Minnie. Before we conclude here we desire to call attention of the Court to the specific findings of Judge Campbell, the trial judge, which can be found on pages 140, 149 and 150 of the record. The learned trial judge found that the Dawes Commission in acting in this particular case did not act arbitrarily and without evidence, but had before it substantial evidence as to the right of Thomas Atkins to enrollment and as to his being the son of Minnie Atkins. In this first finding, which we have just quoted substantially, the learned judge declared that not only did the Dawes Commission have a trial and hearing upon this matter, but had a trial and hearing as to the identity of the particular Thomas Atkins under consideration and had evidence as to his being the son of Minnie. In the next finding the trial judge found that the Thomas Atkins enrolled as No. 7913 on the final roll of the Creek Indians was the son of the defendant, Minnie Folk, nee Atkins. The trial judge found this separate, independent fact from an examination of all the evidence in this case and after argument of counsel. The Court further found that the Thomas Atkins appearing on the 1895 authenticated roll of Creek Indians and later on the roll of Creek Indians as compiled by the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes opposite No. 7913 and approved by the Secretary of the Interior was in fact the illegitimate child of the said Minnie Folk, nee Atkins. And the Court in this particular finding said further that the said Thomas Atkins so enrolled was not the son of Nancy Atkins. Here the Court distinctly declared that from all evidence in the case, the Thomas Atkins now under consideration was the son of Minnie and not the son of Nancy. And the Court further found specially, as he did in other findings, that Minnie Fold, nee Atkins was the sole heir of that Thomas Atkins, and inherited the property now in controversy.

We beg to say that these findings show on their faces an exhaustive consideration of all the evidence by the trial court, and such findings carry with them great weight and cannot be easily overturned, and these findings were in all things sustained by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

On page 144 of the record we quote from the memorandum opinion of Judge Campbell which again reinforces our position as to the care with which he considered this case:

> "Time and space will not be taken to refer to nor analyze in detail, but after a most careful examination of all the evidence the Court finds that Minnie Atkins had an illegitimate male child born to her during the early part of June, 1885 at the home of a colored woman known as Granny Letcher in the City of Leavenworth, Kansas, and that she named this child Thomas Atkins."

Here ~~Nowhere~~ is a specific finding by the trial court not only that Minnie was the mother of this particular Thomas Atkins, but ~~is~~ a finding as to the date of his birth and as to the place where he was born. On page 145 the trial court said this:

> "The court further finds that prior to the compilation of the tribal roll now known as the 1895 authenticated roll of the Creek Tribe of Indians, Minnie Atkins had conveyed information to certain of her relatives in the Indian Territory of the fact of the birth of Thomas Atkins, which information was eventually imparted to the tribal authorities compiling the roll and that the name Thomas Atkins appearing at 213 of Euchee Town on the 1895 authenticated tribal roll was placed on said roll by the tribal authorities compiling the roll as the child of the defendant, Minnie Atkins, pursuant to > such information. The Court finds that the Thomas Atkins appearing on the 1895 authenticated tribal roll and later on the Dawes Commission roll is in fact the illegitimate child of said Minnie Atkins, born, as aforesaid, in the City of Leavenworth, Kansas, in the early part of June, 1895, and is not the child of Nancy Atkins."

We do not feel it necessary to pursue this argument further. Every fact and circumstance of this case, outside of the rolls, shows that the Thomas Atkins enrolled by the Dawes Commission was the son of Minnie Atkins. The rolls show the same thing, we believe, conclusively, and these rolls are taken and considered as having the very highest probative force. Every fact and circumstance, we truly believe, of this case show that Nancy Atkins never had a son; that she had a girl child born practically dead; that her case is a pure fabrication from beginning to end, and the two courts below held it to be so, and we believe that no fair consideration of this evidence can find any ground upon which the claim of Nancy Atkins can stand in a court of equity.

The learned judge who tried this case below patiently read and considered the deposition evidence in this case; he patiently heard and considered the oral evidence given in this case. It was voluminous; it required a great amount of care and attention. He solemnly adjudged that the claim of Minnie Atkins as to the birth and parentage of Thomas Atkins enrolled by the Dawes Commission was true. He held that the claim of Nancy Atkins was untrue, and this finding was affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals, 8th Circuit.

We contend that there is nothing here which calls for any change or modification of the decree of the Honorable Trial Judge. We respectfully submit that this case ought to be affirmed.

The Court will keep in mind that while Nancy Atkins has appealed from the judgment of the court below, the Government has also appealed. We have filed in this court a more elaborate analysis of the evidence as to the existence of Thomas Atkins as the son of Minnie Atkins and we beg that the Court will consider this brief against the Government in connection with the brief herein filed against the claim of Nancy Atkins.

Respectfully submitted,

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER TERM, 1922.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Appellant, v. MINNIE ATKINS ET AL.	No. 45.
NANCY ATKINS, H. A. RIDGWAY, Guardian of Nancy Atkins, et al., Appellants, v. THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, MINNIE FOLK, nee Atkins, et al.	No. 46.

BRIEF ON BEHALF OF MINNIE FOLK (nee Atkins), CHAS. PAGE ET AL.

History and Statement of the Case

This litigation was commenced more than eight years ago. The Government brought suit in the U. S. Court for the Eastern District of Oklahoma, to set aside a patent to one Thomas Atkins, No. 7913. The original bill filed by the Government charged specific acts of fraud against Minnie Atkins but these allegations of fraud were all abandoned in the amended answer and the Government prosecuted the case on but two theories. First, that Thomas Atkins was a myth, second, that being a myth, the judgment of the Dawes Commission in enrolling him, should be set aside, simply and purely by reason of the allegation that he was a myth and proof of same. This appeal is prosecuted from a judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit, affirming the judgment of Judge Campbell of the U. S. Court for the Eastern District of Oklahoma, which declared that Thomas Atkins was in fact the son of Minnie Atkins, was not a myth and was lawfully enrolled.

In order that we may get the exact contention of the Government here, in the Circuit Court of Appeals and in the Trial Court, we call attention to this case reported in Federal Reporter, Volume 268, Page 927. The Circuit Court of Appeals at this page, declares that the Government abandoned its contention that the Dawes Commission acted arbitrarily and without evidence and proceeded to try its case upon the naked proposition, that Thomas Atkins never existed and therefore the Judgment of the Dawes Commission should be set aside.

The learned Judge who rendered the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals, reviews the contention of the Government and stated in a nut shell the contention there and the contention here is, that the Government may, by making the mere allegation that a person enrolled by the Dawes Commission never existed, reopen a solemn judgment of the Dawes Commission and defeat that judgment by proof that the enrolled person never existed.

We challenge the correctness of this proposition here. We challenged it in the Trial Court and in the Circuit Court of Appeals. Both Courts held that the Judgment of the Dawes Commission could not be reopened, as to Thomas Atkins and the case retried by the U. S. Court upon a mere allegation that the Dawes Commission made a mistake. Those Courts held some ground of equity must be invoked as a basis to set aside the judgment of the Dawes Commission.

The Courts held that the finding of the Dawes Commission was in every instance a judgment and that those findings could never be set aside except for clear mistake of law, fraud or gross mistake of facts. None of these allegations were made in the Government's amended bill in this case. The Government simply took and now takes the high ground that the Dawes Commission was an Ex Parte body, that its judgments were Ex Parte and therefore open to collateral attack.

We cannot understand with what propriety the Government can now urge this contention. For more than twenty years it has been held by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit, which has had jurisdiction over Indian Controversies in the Five Civilized Tribes, that the Dawes Commission was a Judicial body, having all the functions and elements of a Court, and that its judgments could not be attacked except in the same way that judgments of courts of competent jurisdiction could be attacked.

This line of authority was started with the case of Kimberlin v. Commission, 44 C. C. A. 109 and 114 Fed. 662, and has been held continuously without modification or dissent by the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Eighth Circuit, since that hearing. The Circuit Court of Appeals in this very case on Page 928, Federal Reporter 268, passed upon this question. We quote:

> "We say this because there can no longer be reasonable insistence that the proceedings before the Dawes Commission were Ex Parte. Those proceedings were adversary in their nature and the adjudication of the Commission on who should be enrolled as citizens and freedmen of the Five Civilized Tribes, what land should be allotted each and in what way and of every issue of law and fact necessary for > it to determine, in order to decide such questions, is conclusive and impervious to collateral attack."

The Circuit Court of Appeals cited among other cases the case of the U. S. v. Wild Cat, 244 U. S. 111. This decision of the Supreme Court of the U. S. was delivered by Justice Day and that case holds without any doubt that the proceedings of the Dawes Commission were Adversary and not Ex Parte and that the judgments of that Commission had all the force and effect of a court judgment. The effort of the distinguished Counsel for the Government is directed against this decision of this Honorable Court and many other decisions. Counsel for the Government commencing on Page 5, of brief, and for several pages thereafter, makes a broad contention that proceedings of the Dawes Commission were not Adversary but Ex Parte and boldly asks this Court to over-rule not only decisions of the Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit upon this very question covering a period of more than twenty years, but also to over-rule its decision in the Wild Cat case. Learned Counsel for the Government recognize that there is no possible way by which they can succeed in this cause except by the establishment of two propositions. First, that the action of the Dawes Commission was Ex Parte, and second, that such action being Ex Parte findings of the Commission are subject to collateral attack.

We feel that we should not consume the time of the Court in answering these propositions. The proposition of law so announced as we have already said, has already been foreclosed by this Court in the Wild Cat case in Volume 244, U. S. Supreme Court, Page 111, as cited above.

Judge Sanborn of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit in reviewing this very case, Federal Reporter 233, Page 177, has discussed these matters fully. He has shown in that opinion the incidents and elements which made the findings of the Dawes Commission a judgment of the Court. The proposition was thought to be settled by the Profession in this jurisdiction and forever foreclosed by the opinion of Justice Day in the Wild Cat case, supra.

We apprehend that this Court will hesitate long before it will over-rule this long line of decisions and hold now for the first time that the act of the Dawes Commission was Ex Parte and not Adversary.

Judge Campbell who tried the case in the Court below held that, in as much as the findings of the Dawes Commission constituted a judgment and in as much as its proceedings were Adversary and not Ex Parte, that the judgment of the Dawes Commission, could not be reopened by the Government upon the mere allegation that the person enrolled by the Dawes Commission never existed. It was the duty of the Dawes Commission to ascertain whether the said person found on the Creek Rolls was entitled to enrollment and one of the facts to be found by the Dawes Commission, was whether the Creek Indian whose enrollment was being considered, was living on April 1st, 1899. The Dawes Commission in this case held that Thomas Atkins was a living person on April 1st, 1899, that he was the son of Minnie Atkins, a Creek Indian, and therefore entitled to enrollment.

Our claim is that this judgment of the Dawes Commission which was approved by the Secretary of the Interior is not open to collateral attack, that the effort of the Government in this case is a purely collateral attack upon the judgment of the Dawes Commission.

In answer therefore to this startling proposition asserted by the Counsel for the Government, we state the following proposition, which we believe to be not only correct but in line with the decisions of this Court and the Circuit Court of Appeals.

The finding of the Dawes Commission that Thomas Atkins lived after April 1st, 1899, was a finding of fact that he was not a myth and this finding of the Dawes Commission cannot be impeached or re-examined upon the mere allegation that Thomas Atkins was actually a myth.

We have long thought that this contention has been set at rest both by the repeated decisions of 8th Circuit and by the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States. More than twenty years ago the 8th Circuit defined the nature and character of the powers conferred upon the Dawes Commission by the Congress of the United States, and no clearer statement of it has yet been made by any court than found in the case of Kimberlin v. Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, 114 Fed. 662. We quote briefly from this case, because it has been affirmed and reaffirmed time and again by the 8th Circuit, and the doctrines therein laid down have been expressly approved by the Supreme Court of the United States. The Court in that case said:

> "Under these acts of Congress the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes is a special tribunal vested with judicial power to hear and determine the claims of all applicants to citizenship in the Five Tribes, and the enrollment or refusal to enroll the applicant in each particular case constitutes its judgment in that case. In the case before us the tribunal has heard and determined the case of the plaintiffs. Whether its decision was right or wrong is immaterial in this Court, and this question will not be considered. Congress saw fit to entrust to the judicial discretion of the Commission its determnation of the application of the plaintiffs in error, and of every question of law and fact which that decision involved."

The doctrine of this case had been imbedded in the judicial decisions of the 8th Circuit for years before it was examined by the Supreme Court of the United States in what is known as the Thlocco case, United States v. Wildcat et al., 244 U. S. 111 (61 L. Ed. 1024).

Mr. Justice Day, delivering the unanimous opinion of the Court in that case held that the action of the Dawes Commission with reference to enrolling Indians of the Five Tribes was judicial in its character; that it was in no sense an ex parte proceeding, but was an adversary proceeding; that the Creek people had a right to appear, and did appear, before that tribunal and protest the right of applicant for citizenship.

The Supreme Court held also, in the Wildcat or Thlocco case, that it was not surprising that the Dawes Commission made some mistakes, considering the vast amount of work before it, and that those mistakes either of law or of fact could never be re-examined and reconsidered by a court of equity, except upon some well known ground of equity jurisprudence, to-wit, mistakes of law, gross mistake of fact, or fraud. And this Court held that unless one of these well known grounds of equity was invoked for the purpose of attacking the judgment of the Dawes Commission, that judgment was impervious to attack.

The Dawes Commission found, as did Judge Campbell, the trial judge (and we shall quote at length from his opinion hereafter) that Thomas Atkins was actually living on and after April 1st, 1899, and therefore was entitled to enrollment. What difference can there be between an Indian who died prior to April 1st, 1899, and an Indian who never existed at all? Clearly an Indian who died prior to April 1st, 1899, was just in the same position as a person who actually had never existed, because he was cut down by that arbitrary date by virtue of the Creek Agreement and the federal statutes.

Now, the Dawes Commission, as said by Judge Campbell, who tried this case, had ample evidence before it, even outside of the rolls of the Tribe, that Thomas Atkins was the son of Minnie Atkins and therefore enrolled him as such; and held that same Thomas Atkins, the son of Minnie Atkins, was a living breathing being on and after April 1st, 1899. This was a finding by the Dawes Commission, necessarily, that Thomas Atkins was not a myth and the sole inquiry for this Court now to enter upon is whether or not there was any substantial evidence before the Dawes Commission which justified the judgment of the Dawes Commission as to Thomas Atkins. This identical proposition was announced in the Circuit Court of Appeals in what is known as the Hawkins case, U. S. v. Hawkins, found in the Federal Reporter, Vol. 217, at page 11. The Court there said:

> "We are of the opinion that as Chester Hawkins never had any existence so far as being entitled to an allotment of land is concerned, and having died before April 1st, 1899, he was, as far as being an applicant for a patent to the land in controversy is concerned a myth."

Here the Court, in an opinion which was unanimous, declared that an Indian who died prior to April 1st, 1899, was in the same position as an Indian who never existed at all. If, therefore, these proceedings of the Dawes Commission were not ex parte, but were strictly adversary, and binding, as Mr. Justice Day said in the Thlocco case, upon all parties in interest, then the Dawes Commission has, from reliable and substantial evidence before it, foreclosed the government and foreclosed all other parties in interest, because the Dawes Commission definitely held that Thomas Atkins was not a myth, when it held that he was living on April 1st, 1899, and therefore entitled to enrollment. To state the proposition in another way:

The action of the Dawes Commission as to the right of an applicant to enrollment on evidence taken by such Commission is a judgment, and that judgment is conclusive, as has been held time and again by the 8th Circuit Court, as to all matters which were necessary to be found by the Dawes Commission in order to give the particular Indian the right to enrollment as a citizen and member of the Tribe. So that it makes no difference in this case whether Thomas Atkins was really a myth or not, and whether upon an independent and new investigation he could be shown to be a myth; because inasmuch as the Dawes Commission has already passed upon and decided that particular question of fact, there is no way by which the finding as to that fact can now be re-examined, except upon certain equitable principles which are not invoked in this case. As we understand the brief for the government, they are now making the naked contention that by alleging that Thomas Atkins was a myth, they had the right to reopen the judgment of the Dawes Commission and re-examine that question. Our answer is that they fail at the outset, not only because the courts which have examined it have held against their contention, but because upon reason and authority, neither the trial court nor this Court can put itself in the situation of the Dawes Commission, acting as a judicial body, and redetermine questions of fact which that Commission was compelled to investigate and answer before it could admit the Indian citizen to enrollment.

We feel that this ought to end this controversy now, so far as the government is concerned. There is no allegation on the part of the government here, and no proof, that any fraud was ever practiced by Minnie Atkins or anyone for her, upon the Dawes Commission; there is no allegation here which would justify this Court in holding that one of the great principles of equity jurisprudence had been successfully invoked and alleged by the government here to justify the reopening of the judgment of the Dawes Commission.

We beg at this point to call the attention of this Court to the specific findings of the trial judge, upon the action of the Dawes Commission with reference to the enrollment of Thomas Atkins. On page 148 of the record the trial judge used this language:

"The Court further finds that the Dawes Commission, in enrolling Thomas Atkins as aforesaid, did not act arbitrarily, and without evidence, but had before it substantial evidence as to the right of Thomas Atkins to enrollment, and as to his being the son of Minnie Atkins."

Again the court said:

"We further find that the Thomas Atkins enrolled as No. 7913 on the final roll of Creek Indians is the son of the defendant, Minnie Folk, nee Atkins."

At the bottom of page 147 of the record the Court found as a matter of law that the "evidence offered by the complainant, the government, in support of the contention that Thomas Atkins was and is a mythical person, is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial," and that "the government was precluded by the judgment of the Dawes Commission from a retrial of the question as to the existence or non-existence of Thomas Atkins."

The trial court evidently took the view which we are now asserting to the court: that the government had no right, upon the allegation that Thomas Atkins was a myth, to retry that question, because it appeared from the record and from the evidence taken by the Dawes Commission that the Dawes Commission had already tried that identical question of fact, and had found that Thomas Atkins was not a myth but a living person on April 1st, 1899. It seems clear to us, therefore, that this case, as to the government, must end here. The judgment of the Dawes Commission is found by the trial court not to have been arbitrary, but to have been based upon reliable and substantial evidence.

The court below, however, while it ruled that the government could not make the attack upon the judgment of the Dawes Commission on the mere allegation of a myth, yet permitted the government to introduce all the testimony, written and oral, which it desired to introduce on the question of myth, and when the trial court came to announce its final judgment or decree, it said, first, that the government had no right upon the mere allegation that Thomas Atkins was a myth to retry that question already tried by the Dawes Commission; but found even if the government could do so that Thomas Atkins was not a myth but was living on April 1st, 1899, and was in fact the son of Minnie Atkins.

We do not feel, however, that we ought to be compelled, nor do we feel that this Court ought to be compelled, to go through this large record to determine whether Thomas Atkins actually ever existed or not, when the decisions of the Circuit Court and of the Supreme Court of the United States are so clear and compulsive upon this question, to-wit: that no material fact necessary to be found by the Dawes Comcan be re-examined or reconsidered by another court upon a simple allegation that the Dawes Commission made a mistake in its findings. The Supreme Court of the United States in the Wildcat case, above cited, declared that the Dawes Commission was expected to make some mistakes, and naturally would make some mistakes; but also, in the same breath, declared that these mistakes were not open to inquiry, unless they were so gross as to shock the conscience of a court of equity. Judge Campbell, the trial judge, in his supplemental memorandum opinion, on page 143 of the record, declared that he had patiently and carefully examined every line of evidence, both written and oral, in this case, and that his judgment was convinced that the attack of the government on this patent on the ground that Thomas Atkins was a mythical person was not sustained, but was overwhelmed by the preponderance of evidence in favor of the existence of Thomas Atkins as the son of Minnie Atkins.

We, therefore, confidently assert that the government has no case here on the law, and contend that the government is shut out by repeated adjudications of the 8th Circuit and this Court, and that no proper legal attack has been made by the government upon the judgment of the Dawes Commission in this particular case, because the government is here boldly asking this Court to re-examine and determine the correctness of the judgment of the Dawes Commission as to the vital facts necessary to be found by it, on the mere allegation that the Dawes Commission was mistaken. We hold that this position of the government is untenable, and we invoke the judgment of this Court upon this preliminary question as ending and disposing of this case finally.

Both the question as to the fraud alleged in this case by the government in procuring this patent, and the question as to whether the government had the right, under the naked allegation, that

Thomas Atkins was a myth, to reopen and retry the whole case tried by the Dawes Commission, were exhaustively considered by the trial judge, in a written opinion filed in this case on the first day of December, 1917, and found on page 130 of the transcript. This opinion is so carefully considered, and the authorities so thoroughly examined, that we feel we can add nothing either to its clarity or to its reasoning. We therefore commend it to the Court, as sustaining in every way the proposition already asserted in this brief. We may add, however, in our own way, to this opinion these suggestions:

The case of United States v. Throckmorton, 98 U. S. 161, which this Court well knows, declared the rule to be that where a decree had been rendered by a judicial tribunal, and where the action of the tribunal was, in no sense ex parte but thoroughly adversary, no evidence could be received to set aside the judgment of the court on the ground that perjury had been committed or false documents had been used in evidence. This upon the theory that the evidence so offered touched the very question decided by the Court which rendered the decree.

We apprehend the distinction to be this: That where the action of the tribunal is ex parte, and all parties in interest have not had an opportunity to be heard, the action of the court or tribunal may be attacked probably for perjury and for the use of false instruments as evidence; but, where the tribunal acted, not ex parte but with all the parties before it, with an opportunity to be heard, then the question as to whether perjury or false instruments were used in the hearing cannot be reopened and reconsidered.

It is hardly necessary to argue this question of fraud as alleged, because the government, in i brief which it has furnished us, has abandoned the position that there is any proof of fraud, such as would justify the reopening of this case. The government is now standing simply and distinctly, upon two propositions, named in its brief:

First. That Thomas Atkins was a myth, and that this allegation alone authorizes the reopening of the case; and,

Second. That, if he was a myth, the patent is void.

With reference to the myth question, the learned trial judge, beginning on the bottom of page 141 of the transcript, uses this language:

> "It is true that if it were conceded and not an issue in this case that the Thomas Atkins who appears upon the roll, never in fact existed, it would follow that the patent made in his name is a nullity and did not divest the title from the Creek Tribe, for, of course, there must exist in every grant, the grantor and the grantee. It is charged in this case that the grantee never existed, but far from being conceded, that charge is denied, and an issue is framed on that question. It is first involved, as we have seen, in the charge of fraud, but the fraud charged is not such as justifies this Court in retrying the questions of fact conclusively determined by the Dawes Commission. Therefore, if this issue may be tried in this case it must be because it was not a necessary issue of fact before the Commission or because nothwithstanding it may have been one of the questions of fact necessarily decided by the Commission, it is of such a nature as could not have been conclusively decided as against a retrial of the same issue between the same parties or their privies in this case. It was necessary that the Dawes Commission should find that the Thomas Atkins enrolled by it was alive April 1, 1899, before it could adjudge him entitled to enrollment, and that it did so find is conclusively presumed from the fact that it enrolled him. This finding is presumed to have been upon evidence until the contrary is clearly and convincingly established. Not only does the record fail to establish that such finding was without evidence, but on the contrary, is strongly to the effect that there was such evidence. Of course, a finding that he was living April 1, 1899, is a finding that he > was not a fictitious or mythical being. Therefore, the question of the very existence of Thomas Atkins was necessarily considered and determined by the Commission. It is not perceived on what theory this necessary issue of fact, once determined by the Commission, is any less conclusively determined, than is the question of Creek blood or residence in the tribe. As said in the Thlocco case, a correct determination or conclusion was not necessary to the binding character of the decision, and even though now it should be most conclusively and convincingly shown that Thomas Atkins is a myth, it cannot avail the plaintiff, for that is not a question which this Court can retry."

We have been at some pains to stress the proposition which we have been discussing, because we are convinced from our examination of the decisions of this Honorable Court, and of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals, that it concludes the government's case, and makes it unnecessary to consider any other feature.

In conclusion, we beg to add that suggestion is made that this fact of existence of Atkins is jurisdictional, and we gather from the argument upon such suggestion, that all that is necessary to make a good bill of complaint in a case of this character, is to allege either that the applicant to whom patent issued was a myth or that he died prior to April 1, 1899. If the contention of appellant is true, all that the government needs to do in its bill of complaint, ten, twenty, thirty or fifty years after patent is issued, in order to cancel the patent, is to allege that the applicant whose case is being considered, died prior to April 1, 1899, because if its contention is true and this action is jurisdictional to the extent claimed, every judgment rendered by the Dawes Commission upon evidence is void, if it shall subsequently appear that the applicant was a myth, or, if not a myth, died prior to April 1, 1899. This statement, it appears to us, is not only extraordinary, but paradoxical. If the Dawes Commission was empowered to determine these very questions of fact, and did determine those very questions of fact, then its judgments amount to nothing, and are without effect to sustain a single Indian title, if in years after, it can be shown that the Dawes Commission was simply mistaken about the facts.

The next proposition, of course, if the Court shall not agree with the contention we have just made, is purely one of fact and may be stated as follows:

Thomas Atkins, who was enrolled by the Dawes Commission and who appears upon the Creek rolls as a citizen of said tribe, was not a myth, but actually existed and was living April 1, 1899, and was in fact the son of Minnie Atkins, and enrolled as such by the Dawes Commission.

Before we go to a brief discussion of the facts in this case, we beg to say that under decisions of this Court, the Government is foreclosed on the facts. Three courts have decided this very question of fact against the Government. This Court has repeatedly held that where two lower courts have passed in the same way upon the same question of fact, this Court will not review that question of fact.

We think it unnecessary to cite the many opinions of this Court sustaining this doctrine. The matter has been thoroughly examined and determined in the following cases:

—Washington Security Co. v. U. S., 234 U. S. 76;

—Gilson v. U. S., 234 U. S. 380;
—Baker v. Schoffield, ~~234~~ 243 U. S. 114, and many cases cited therein.

The facts of this case have been determined by the Circuit Court of Appeals, as shown by the opinion of that court in this case, 233 Federal, Page 178. In that case Judge Sanborn held that the rolls of the Creek Tribe alone showed Thomas Atkins to be the son of Minnie Atkins and that he was living after April 1st, 1899.

Judge Campbell as we shall show hereafter, held specifically that Thomas Atkins was not a myth and was the son of Minnie Atkins and the Circuit Court of Appeals in this very case reviewed that judgment of Judge Campbell and held that Judge Campbell's finding of fact, that Thomas Atkins was not a myth, was fully sustained by the record evidence.

We confidently assert, therefore, that where three courts have passed on a question of fact, this Court will not again review that question of fact, but even though this be true, we shall briefly discuss the facts in the case.

As said before, the trial court, although holding that the government could not reopen this case on the allegations of its bill, nevertheless permitted the government to introduce any and all evidence that it desired with reference to the existence or non-existence of Thomas Atkins, and after thousands of pages of testimony had been taken, and hundreds of witnesses had been examined, the Court held every question of fact in favor of the appellees in this cause. The trial court, in its memorandum opinion and its supplemental memorandum opinion, above cited, discussed this question of fact fully, and when it rendered its decree found specifically what the facts were in this case; and made a special finding as to every material question of fact. These special findings appear on pages 148, 149 and 150 of the transcript.

This Court will notice that the trial judge was careful to take up every issue of fact and dispose of it in this decree. He found that Thomas Atkins enrolled as No. 7913, on the final rolls of the Creek Indians, was the son of Minnie Atkins. He found that said Thomas Atkins appearing on the 1895 authenticated rolls and later on the roll of Indians compiled by the Dawes Cmmission, and approved by the Secretary of the Interior, was the illegitimate child of Minnie Atkins, and not the son on Nancy Atkins. He further found that Thomas Atkins had departed this life without issue and that Minnie Atkins was his sole heir; and, in the memorandum opinion, which we have just cited, he found that this same Thomas Atkins was born in Leavenworth, Kansas, at the house of Granny Letcher, an old colored woman, and was born to Minnie Atkins at that place. He further specifically found the date of his birth. So that when we begin to consider this case, we must start out with the presumption that the finding of the trial court upon these issues of fact was correct; and the only inquiry, in our judgment, which this Honorable Court can indulge as to the judgment or decree of the trial court is for the purpose of ascertaining whether there was substantial evidence in this case to support the findings of the trial curt.

The history of this case and the manner in which it has been prosecuted by the government, to our minds, shows two things:

First. That the government spares neither time nor money in its investigation of this class of cases; and,

Second. That notwithstanding it has made every effort both in fact and law, to upset the judgment of the Dawes Commission with reference to the right of Thomas Atkins, it has signally failed.

Minnie Atkins was an uneducated, wild and untamed Creek girl. She was sent by her people to Carlisle School to be educated and prepared for life. She was unruly, and seems to have inherited all of the wandering traits of the Indian. She was first farmed out by the Carlisle School to Mr. Penrose of Pennsylvania, and, after staying there for some time, was finally farmed to Banker Hyde of Leavenworth, Kansas. At that time Leavenworth was a soldier's home, and a new town, full of adventurous characters. Minnie Atkins was a comely woman, and seems to have been unusually attractive to the male sex. Without guidance, without parental protection, and without the protection of her tribe, she was left at this soldier's town, and, of course, she went astray. She was not a girl of the town in the ordinary sense, but she was a woman who liked men's society, easily flattered, and led astray, and it was not long after she went to the Hyde home before she became pregnant. And thereafter, wandering from place to place, she had one illegitimate child after another.

She was, it seems, a good cook, and much in demand at the forts by the families of soldiers. She went from one fort to another. She did not know that oil had been discovered upon the allotment of her child, Thomas, until long years after the allotment. Every man in the oil business became interested at once, when this oil was found, and became active, sedulous and fervent in finding out where Thomas Atkins was, if he was living, and if not, who were his heirs.

This woman, Minnie Atkins, was badgered and threatened and intimidated from every angle, and it is only a wonder that she kept her mind at all. The manner in which she was besieged, the advantage taken of her, will be discussed later under the facts of this case. Sufficient to say, as said by Judge Sanborn in the opinion on the receivership hearing in this cause, she was subjected to every sort of indignity and pressure. Notwithstanding all this, when she appeared before the Honorable Ralph E. Campbell, United States Judge who tried this cause, he believed her story, and believed the men who corroborated her story and entered a decree in her behalf.

We, therefore, with this preliminary statement, now go to the facts of this case. We propose to make a brief summary of the facts in favor of the claim of Minnie Atkins, and a brief summary of the facts relied upon to break down her claim; and, after making these summaries of both contentions, we shall then endeavor to analyze the testimony, and see where the truth is in this case.

However, before we take up the evidence actually taken before the trial court, we desire to consider first the rolls and their effect.

WHAT THE ROLLS SHOW AND THEIR LEGAL EFFECT

It is alleged by the Government in this case that the roll of 1890, and especially the roll of 1895 and the pay roll of the Creek Tribe for 1895, were material evidence before the Dawes Commission and were used by such Commission as evidence, so that it becomes necessary at the outset to determine what these rolls actually showed, because they are a part of the evidence upon which the Dawes Commission made and predicated its census card and its final judgment.

In order to show the Court actually what was said by the Government with reference to this pay roll, on page 6 of the printed record, near the bottom, the government in the Amended Bill of Complaint uses this language:

> "The said Commission when engaged in the work of listing for enrollment the names of citizens of said Tribe, used as material evi> dence on the question of citizenship or membership in the Tribe, certain roll or rolls of the citizens of said Tribe of Indians which had been made up for Tribal per capita payment purposes by the tribal officers and authorities prior to the date of the work of the enrollment which was being done by said Commission and which were treated and denominated as authenticated Tribal rolls, among which was the roll of Creek citizens made up in the year 1895, and commonly called the 1895 authenticated roll, and particularly did said Commission use and rely upon said 1895 roll, that the name of Thomas Atkins appeared upon said 1895 pay roll in the family appearing thereon, headed by the name Minnie Atkins, and thereby said roll showed upon its face that Thomas Atkins was in 1895 a living member and citizen of said Tribe."

The roll of 1890 shows Minnie Atkins as a citizen of the Creek Tribe of Indians. It also shows Eddie Schrimsher a member of the same Atkins group, or family, and Nancy Atkins, as members of the Creek Tribe of Indians, and right opposite the name of Minnie Atkins are the words, "Thos. & Mary, 2 children."

The roll of 1895 groups this particular Atkins family and shows the name of Ed Schrimsher, the name of Minnie Atkins, followed by four others, and then opposite No. 215 appears the name of Nancy Atkins, without children, and then comes No. 216, showing the name of John Davis, who is admitted to have been a member of this family.

Now, let us examine, for a moment, these two rolls, and assume, for the sake of argument, that the Dawes Commission largely relied upon these rolls in preparing and making out the census card which was the basis of its judgment. If the Dawes Commission had relied entirely upon the roll of 1890, it could have reached no other conclusion than that Thomas Atkins was the son of Minnie Atkins, because he was given on such roll by name and terms as the child of Minnie Atkins. If the Commission had relied exclusively upon the authenticated roll of 1895, the Commission would have necessarily found that Thomas Atkins was the son of Minnie Atkins.

In the opinion in the receivership branch of this case, Federal Reporter, Volume 233, page 188, Judge Sanborn uses this language:

> "The Act of March 1, 1901 (31 Stat. 869), provided that all citizens who were living on the 1st day of April, 1899, entitled to be enrolled under the Act of June 28, 1898, should be placed upon the rolls. The Act of June 28, 1898, was not simply an Act of Congress. It embodied and ratified the agreement between the Creek Nation and the United States, which was shortly after ratified by the Creek Nation, that the Dawes Commission should make the final roll of the latter's citizens; that for that purpose the Commission should have access to all its rolls and records, and that it might take a census of the nation or adopt any other means by the Commission deemed necessary to enable them to make such rolls.

> Among the rolls and records of the Creek Tribe, duly authenticated by the approval of the Creek Council, was a roll of citizens made by the tribe in 1890, another made in 1895, the pay roll of that nation for the year 1895, upon which a per capita payment was made of the citizens of the tribe. On the roll of 1890 appeared 'Minnie Atkins (Thos. and Mary, 2 children)'. On the roll of 1895 appeared the names of Minnie Atkins and Thomas Atkins for a payment to herself and also for a payment of a like amount to her as the per capita payment due to her son, Thomas Atkins."
> —Folk et al. v. United States et al., 233 Fed. Rep., page 188.

It is clear from this statement that Judge Sanborn, who had just quoted from the Act of June 28, 1898, the provision that the Commission should make such rolls descriptive of the parties thereon so that they might thereby be identified, found no difficulty in determining what the Creek roll of 1890, what the roll of 1895, and what the pay roll of 1895 meant with reference to the parentage of Thomas Atkins. Judge Sanborn was clearly of the opinion that the roll of 1890 identified Thomas Atkins as the son of Minnie Atkins, and that the roll of 1895 made a like identification, and that, when this was followed by the payment by the tribe to Minnie Atkins of Thomas Atkins' money on the ground that Minnie Atkins was the mother of Thomas Atkins, it, insofar as the rolls were concerned, settled the matter as to the parentage of Thomas Atkins and as to his existence.

The learned judge in that opinion unreservedly declared that the rolls themselves were material evidence and that they were sufficient upon which to predicate a judgment. So, recurring to the suggestion above made, if the rolls themselves were relied upon and no other evidence was taken, the Dawes Commission, in making out its census card enrolling Thomas Atkins as the son of Minnie Atkins, could not have intended to enroll him as the son of any other person but Minnie Atkins. But additional evidence was taken in this case, according to the testimony of Tams Bixby, P. B. Hopkins and Edward Merrick. No judgment of the Dawes Commission was made final until full investigation was had, and no man, woman or child was ever enrolled in the Creek Tribe upon identification from the rolls alone, but in every case the rolls were backed up and supported by evidence extraneous to the rolls themselves (see testimony of Tams Bixby, Chairman of Commission, Rec., p. 266).

We now come to the evidence outside of the rolls actually taken before the Dawes Commission. The witness Merrick deliberately testifies that he did take testimony outside of the rolls as to Thomas Atkins, and that that evidence convinced him and the Commission that Thomas Atkins was the son of Minnie Atkins, and that by and through such evidence he made the notation on the census card that Thomas Atkins was the son of Minnie Atkins, and that his father was a white man.

We ask here that the Court mark the language of the witness Merrick, because, under the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Thlocco case (United States v. Wildcat et al., 244 U. S. 111, 37 Sup. Ct. Rep. 561, 61 L. Ed. 1024) it concludes this controversy. Merrick was asked the following questions and the following answers were returned:

> "Q. I understand that you put Thomas Atkins' name on there?
> A. Yes, sir.
> Q. And you put Minnie Atkins as the mother of Tommy?
> A. That was the information given.
> Q. From that information, you intended to put Thomas Atkins up to the Dawes Commission as the son of Minnie?
> A. That was the conclusion we arrived at from the information the Commission had, that Thomas Atkins was the son of Minnie" (Rec., p. 3479).

The Creek roll of Indians shows that there were four persons by the name of Thomas Atkins in the Creek Tribe placed on the final roll. The Dawes Commission, of course, as a matter of law, enrolled the one which it intended to enroll, and it did this upon the evidence before it. If the evidence before it failed to sustain the particular case which the Commission was considering, and it took no evidence except with reference to this particular case, then it cannot be said that the Dawes Commission actually enrolled the person not in contemplation by the Commission, not covered by the evidence before it, and not in fact intended to be enrolled by the Commission.

To state the matter in another way, and it is so clear and apparently axiomatic to us that we hesitate to prolong this branch of the discussion: The Dawes Commission had a certain duty to perform, and that duty was to find the names of those Indians who were entitled to enrollment in the Creek Tribe as citizens, and they had a substantial duty to define and describe, in every way possible, the particular citizen, so that he could, in the future, be identified and not mixed or confused with any other citizen of the same name.

When the Dawes Commission took up the roll of 1890 they found a Thomas Atkins opposite the name of Minnie Atkins, and described, as Judge Sanborn says, as her child. When the Dawes Commission took up the roll of 1895, it found Thomas Atkins, together with other names, admittedly the children of Minnie, after the name of Minnie Atkins and before the name of Nancy Atkins. When the Dawes Commission came to make out the Thomas Atkins census card and came to consider these rolls as evidence upon which it would base the census card it was dealing, and dealing alone, with a Thomas Atkins named on the rolls as the son of Minnie Atkins and as the son of no other person; so that when it took evidence outside of the rolls to sustain the statement on the face of the rolls, it took no evidence whatever except evidence going to show that the Thomas Atkins whom it was enrolling was what he appeared to be on the rolls—the son of Minnie Atkins. This being true, it conclusively follows that the Dawes Commission, by virtue of the rolls themselves and by virtue of evidence which was entirely consistent with the face of the rolls, intended and did actually enroll this certain Thomas Atkins whose name appears upon the rolls as the son of Minnie Atkins, and in doing so, found, of course, that he was a living being on April 1, 1899.

The witness Merrick (Rec., pp. 3455 and 3479) testifies that he took evidence outside of the rolls to establish the fact that Minnie Atkins was the mother of the Thomas Atkins whom the Commission was actually enrolling, and Merrick says that the Commission intended to enroll the particular Thomas Atkins as the son of Minnie Atkins. But this is by no means all. The clinching circumstances in this case as to the intention of the Dawes Commission is found by an examination of the pay roll which Merrick says was actually before the Commission, and was the main roll upon which the Dawes Commission relied as to Creek citizenship. This pay roll of 1895, which was a copy of the authenticated roll of 1895, offers some startling suggestions which can never be met by the Government in this case. The pay roll starts out with Ed Schrimsher, and then follows the name "Minnie" written over the name "Mamie" Atkins. A little lower down, the name "Alice" is written over the name "Susan," and a little lower down the name "Harvey" is written over the name "Mary." These names, which were written over the original names, were written in red ink, and the red ink names were identfiied as being in the handwriting of Mrs. Moore, wife of Napoleon B. Moore, National Treasurer of the Creek Nation and paymaster of the 1895 payment. This roll also shows the signature of Minnie Atkins, and shows her as drawing for herself and three children, among these being Thomas Atkins. The question which naturally presents itself at once is, why were these names changed and upon what evidence or information were the changes made? They were changed and corrected by the Creek Tribe in the last authenticated roll, this pay roll. It is undisputed that Minnie Atkins was personally present at the payment under this roll, that she was there in the presence of Sam Brown, who was the Town King of Euchee Town, and Ellis Childers, one of the witnesses in this case.

Minnie Atkins testified (Rec., p. 3913) as to what occurred when she went up to draw her money. She said:

> "A. Well, when I went out there I went in where they were going to pay. There was some man sitting there, but I don't know who he was, and I says 'Well, let me see the books.' He just shoved the book over to me and I looked and there was five of us on the book to draw, and that was myself and Tommy, Charley and Harvey and Alice. 'Well,,' I say, 'Alice is dead and I could not draw for her.' Well, he gave me money for four of us, that was Charley, Harvey, myself and Thomas. It was about fifty-seven dollars, I think."

She, of course, could not draw for her dead child, and was so advised, and then it was that a bracket in red ink was placed opposite the names of Alice and Thomas and the notation made "error of one." If, as a fact, Minnie Atkins did not draw for Alice but only drew for herself and three children, then Alice was the name eliminated by the Tribal authorities, and Alice was the error intended to be indicated on the pay roll. So when the Dawes Commission with this pay roll in its possession and endeavoring to fix the citizenship and identity of this particular Thomas Atkins found that Minnie had been upon the ground, that she had actually drawn money for this particular Tommy, and Ellis Childers and Sam Brown were there, both seeing and hearing her claim this money for Thomas as her child, and there was no protest and no suggestion that any other person was the mother of this particular Thomas Atkins, or that Thomas Atkins was a myth, it was compelled to enroll the Thomas who was the son of Minnie Atkins as a living, existing Thomas Atkins.

With this pay roll before it, how could the Commission conclude otherwise than that Minnie Atkins was the mother of Thomas Atkins, No. 213, on the pay roll, and intend t o enroll any other Thomas? When you compare the notations on the pay roll, which are not disputed, with the evidence actually received by the Commission, outside of the pay roll, and which Merrick says referred only to Minnie Atkins as the mother of Thomas Atkins as a matter of identity then it follows as the night follows day, that the Dawes Commission intended to enroll the Thomas Atkins in question as the son of Minnie Atkins and intended to enroll no other Thomas Atkins and did so enroll him.

But it is said that a mistake was made on the census card by the Commission when measured by the proof of Minnie Atkins herself as to the age of Thomas Atkins, and that a mistake was made as to his blood. This may be true, and yet it can in no sense affect the question now under consideration, because, as Justice Day said, the Commission was expected to make mistakes, and did make mistakes, but that the judgment of the Commission was still binding, notwithstanding these mistakes, until it was attacked in the manner provided by law.

Justice Day in the Wildcat case used this language:

> "A correct conclusion was not necessary to the finality and binding character of its decision. It may be that the Commission in acting upon many cases before it made mistakes which are now impossible of correction. This might easily be so, for the Commission passed upon the rights of thousands claiming membership in the tribe and ascertained the rights of others who did not appear before it, upon the merits of whose standing the Commission had to pass with the best information which it could obtain. When the commission proceeded in good faith to determine the matter and to act upon information before it, not arbitrarily, but according to its best judgment, we think it was the intention of the Act that the matter, upon the approval of the Secretary, should be finally concluded and the rights of the parties forever settled, subject to such attacks as could be successfully made upon judgments of this character for fraud or mistake."

Again, let us take the Creek census roll of 1890 in relation to Euchee Town, Muskogee Nation. This roll is found as the second exhibit roll between pages 4706 and 4707 of the transcript of the record.

We suggest to the Court before we consider this roll, that the photostatic copy is not complete, certain entries with reference to the Atkins family being blurred and illegible. We think learned counsel, however, will agree that we make a correct statement of the blurred and illegible portions in the suggestions that we shall make with reference to this roll. Commencing near the bottom of the roll, where the number 507 appears in the center, we come to the Atkins family now under consideration. No. 1 of that family appears to be blurred and indistinct in the record copy. The name Eddie Scrimsher, blurred, is opposite No. 1. The name Fred Bowers, blurred, is opposite No. 2. These men were cousins of Minnie and Nancy, coming from the same family and blood. After these follow the name of Mamie Atkins, Nancy Atkins and Lee Atkins. Other faded spots will be noticed on record copy; right opposite the name Mamie Atkins, and in brackets, appear the words "Thomas and Mary, 2 children." Right opposite the name of Lee Atkins appear the words "Died prior to April 1st, 1899," and following this was the notation, "Gen. Porter says he died six or seven years ago." We call attention to these faded spots on the record copy, because they are necessary to a correct examination of this particular 1890 roll, and we are quite sure that counsel will agree with us that we have correctly restored the faded spots. This roll, therefore, shows that in 1890, prior to the alleged birth of the child of Nancy Atkins, Mamie Atkins (who was Minnie Atkins) and shown by later rolls to be Minnie Atkins, was credited with two children, Thomas and Mary. This census roll is also the authenticated roll of 1890 of the Creek Tribe. This roll was prepared by Noah Gregory, town king of Euchee Town, with the assistance of Sam Brown, his clerk, who afterwards himself became town king of Euchee Town (see Record, page 233).

We now come to the 1895 census roll of Euchee Town. It will be remembered by the Court that in 1890, on the roll of that date,Minnie Atkins was credited with two children. Five years afterwards, when the census roll of 1895 was made by the Creeks (to be found as the third roll in the record, between the pages 4706 and 4707), Minnie 'Atkins or Mamie Atkins is credited with four children. The authenticated Creek tribal roll of 1895, appearing as the first roll after page 4706 of the record, agrees with the census roll of the same year, and gives Minnie Atkins' four children, and her children were put between her name on the roll and Nancy, her sister, who appears as No. 5. There was evidently some mistake made as to the names of Minnie's children, so that when we come to the pay roll of 1895, which all officers testify was the main roll upon which they relied and the roll upon which money was paid out to members of the Creek tribe, the whole matter has been fully examined and certain corrections have been made. We find on this pay roll, which is the second roll after page 4652 of the record, the Atkins family given as the second family on that roll. First appears, Eddie Schrimsher, a cousin of Minnie and Nancy. At No. 2 Mamie is scratched and the word Minnie is entered. No. 4 the name of Alice is written over Susie; Thomas, as No. 5, appears as he did in the roll of 1890. Harvey is written over Mary. Here the Creek tribe ascertained the exact names of Minnie's children. Minnie had been absent from the territory and it was difficult to procure their exact names, but the pay roll was the corrected roll and the true roll, and the pay roll represents the exact truth in this case. By an examination of that roll it will be seen that a line is drawn from the name Ed Schrimsher to the right, and the word S. W. Brown is written. This means, as shown by the evidence, that S. W. Brown (better known as Sam Brown) drew Ed Schrimsher's money for him. You will see that there is a diagonal line running from $57.60 right after the name of Sam Brown, and immediately to the left of the name Minnie Atkins down to the name Harvey Atkins, which is No. 6 in the Atkins family. This means that Minnie Atkins drew pay for four people, that is, drew four times $14.40, the amount due one, which amounts in all to $57.60, and drew for three people on the roll between her name and Nancy's name, which appears as No. 7. She drew for herself, which was one; Charley, was two; Thomas, was three, and Harvey, was four. She found Alice's name on the roll when she drew this money, according to the evidence, and right opposite the names of Alice and Thomas on the roll, in brackets, are the words "Error of one." Minnie testified, as we have already shown, that when she found Alice's name there she told them that Alice was dead and asked if she could draw for Alice. They told her that she could not. It therefore clearly appears from this pay roll of 1895 that Minnie's children were correctly named, as they are now named in all the evidence in this case by all witnesses. These names cannot have been manufactured for the occasion, because in 1895 there was no reason why the true names of Minnie's children should not have been given. They were correctly given, and Thomas appears in that pay roll as No. 5, having already, as we have shown, appeared in the roll of 1890 and the authenticated roll of 1895, as the son of Minnie.

Another peculiar feature of the pay roll of 1895, and which we think is the most conclusive and impressive suggestion that can be made with reference to it, is the change of names and the substitution of the correct names of Minnie's children. Now this record shows, and the Court, we hope, will keep in mind that it is undisputed that Minnie, who is shown by the record to have recently died; has two living children, and had them at the time of this trial, named respectively Harvey and Charley.

When the pay roll of 1895 was finally corrected, and the proof shows that it was corrected to meet the exact truth, not only in this but in many other instances and many other families, we find Charley put down as one of the children of Minnie; we find the name of Mary changed and over that written the name of Harvey. We therefore find in this finished pay roll the names of Charley and Harvey as two of Minnie's children.

Now, there can be no dispute, because it is admitted, that Harvey and Charley were Minnie's children and got their allotments. If there is no dispute about the fact that Harvey and Charley were Minnie's children, and that the name Mary was changed to Harvey on the roll, then it conclusively appears that the pay roll actually contained two children of Minnie whose identities are absolutely unquestioned. This one fact demonstrates that information had came to the tribal authorities of the Creek Nation that Minnie had a son by the name of Charley which is undisputed; that she had a son by the name of Harvey which is undisputed, and that she had a son by the name of Thomas, and that she drew for these three children. It is fair to assume that when the Creek people made the final pay roll and adopted it, that they were just as particular in identifying Thomas as a son of Minnie as they were in identifying Charley and Harvey. It is admitted that they made no mistake in identifying Thomas as one of the children of Minnie. In other words, the pay roll represents the true and correct roll; it is the roll upon which the Creek people relied, and according to Merrick's testimony, the roll upon which the Dawes Commission relied. Confessedly, the two children on that roll who were found to be the children of Minnie are the children of Minnie. Therefore, it would seem to follow irresistibly that the same patience and the same caution and the same vigilance which made them hunt out and put Charley and Harvey in the place of Susan and Mary, made them identify Thomas as one of her children. We strenuously urge that no other conclusion can be drawn from this roll.

The pay roll above considered does not show specifically the blood of Minnie's children, nor their ages, but does show her parentage of Thomas Atkins.. We now come to the census card prepared by the Dawes Commission, opposite page 4652 of the record. This census card gives the name of Thomas Atkins with his correct number. It gives him as 10 years of age, sex male. As shown on the Tribal roll of 1895, Euchee Town, it gives his number as 213, which corresponds to the number on the pay roll, opposite the name of Thomas Atkins. His father is given as a white man and his mother is given as Minnie Atkins, who is shown on the 1895 Euchee roll. In the body of this census card and near the middle appear these words: "No. 1 (that is, Thomas Atkins) on 1895 authenticated roll No.

213 as Thos. Atkins." This notation on the center of the card shows that the Dawes Commission was declaring and holding that the Thomas Atkins appearing on this census card was the same Thomas Atkins called Thos. Atkins on the 1895 authenticated Creek roll, thus establishing that the Thomas Akins on the census card now considered, named as son of Minnie Atkins, was the same Thomas Atkins named as son of Minnie Atkins on the 1895 roll. It is true that the age on the census card is given as 10 years and that he is given as a half-blood. These mistakes were made time and again, both as to blood and age, and they are not substantially material in determining the identity of the person actually enrolled.

The Evidence on Behalf of Minnie Atkins.

EMILY RIPLEY (Rec., p. 2797):

Went to Leavenworth in 1878 with her husband, who was in the employ of the Government as chief clerk of the military prison; knew Mrs. Lettie Grodevant, with whom she was on intimate terms and who was a near neighbor; was a frequent visitor to Mrs. Grodevant's home; saw Minnie Atkins there when she was in a pregnant condition and spoke to Mrs. Grodevant about it; fixed the year definitely as 1885 by reason of the fact that in that year she gave birth to one child and lost another; one child was born in January, 1885, and the other child died in August, 1885; definitely fixes the time that she saw Minnie Atkins in a pregnant condition, between the date of the birth of her child and the date of the death of her child in August, 1885; never saw Minnie Atkins after the death of her child in August, 1885.

CORNELIA HYDE COLLINS (Rec., p. 2826):

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Hyde; was born in Leavenworth in 1870; left there in 1888, going to Honolulu in the Hawaiian Islands, and remained there until 1897, and has since resided at Pittsfield, Mass.; knew Minnie Atkins when she worked for her father and mother, and remembers seeing a soldier on several occasions hanging around the back door of the house with Minnie; saw Minnie after she left the employ of her father and mother on Choctaw street, in Leavenworth, and was shocked to see her in a pregnant condition, and then realized why she had left the employ of her father and mother. That the occasion when she saw Minnie on Coctaw street was about two months after she left the Hyde home.

MRS. JOHN B. SHEEHAN (Rec., p. 2835):

Resides in Washington, D. C.; her husband is employed in the General Land Office; her maiden name was Maggie or Margaret Curry; lived in Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1884 and 1885 in the suburb called Bluntville near the Government reservation; was well acquainted with Mrs. Herbert Grodevant and often assisted Mrs. Grodevant in connection with her household duties. Did not know Minnie Atkins or remember of any Indian girl ever having worked for Mrs. Grodevant.

Also testified that Mrs. Grodevant was often assisted in her home by trusties in the military prison and that she worked for Mrs. Grodevant in the summer of 1885 for about three weeks. That this employment was soon after the close of school, because she remembers a dress she was particularly proud of at that time.

David Atchison (Rec., p. 2842):

A resident of Leavenworth, Kansas, for sixty years; was 75 years of age on the 22nd day of February, 1917; was engaged in the wood, coal, ice and feed business in Leavenworth in the eighties; knew Minnie Atkins in the late fall of 1885 by the name of "Indian Minnie", when she would come to his wood and coal yard to buy coal for Granny Letcher, and that often, on those occasions, she had a baby in her arms; that Granny Letcher lived on Seneca Street, between Second and Third Street in a frame building built by a German named Dotter. Fixes the time definitely by the Leavenworth real estate boom of 1885.

L. B. Bell (Rec., p. 2859):

In the employ of the Sheffield Car & Equipment Co., Kansas City; went to Leavenworth, Kansas in 1884, and fixes the date by reason of his marriage in the fall of 1883 and going to Leavenworth in the fall of the next year to work for a transfer company; knew a woman generally called "Indian Minnie," who lived at Granny Letcher's place on Seneca Street, between Second and Third Streets; drove her in his hack from the above location to Fort Leavenworth; remembers an Indian boy at Granny Letcher's who was probably two years old when he first knew him; that he went by the nickname of "Commodore", but that he was usually called Tommy Atkins; remembers him until he was about six or seven years of age.

Mrs. Lucinda R. Riley (Rec., p. 2870):

Maiden name was Lucinda A. Schiller; was born and raised in Leavenworth, Kansas, in a house owned by her mother at 326 Choctaw Street, and they lived in the house until the spring of 1885, when a woman by the name of Lillie White took the house; thinks the month that they moved out was April, 1885.

Mrs. John Welch (Rec., p. 2877):

Has resided in Leavenworth, Kansas ever since she was a small child, and her father used to work at Crilley's barn and she carried his meals to him twice a day, and in doing so she passed Mrs. Letcher's house on Seneca Street and often saw a boy called Tommy Atkins around that house; that he was dark skinned and had dark hair and dark eyes and looked very much like an Indian.

PHILLIP TUCKER (Rec., p. 2890):

Engaged in the livery business in Kansas City, Mo., and formerly lived in Leavenworth; resided in Leavenworth for thirty years and worked at the livery barns of Crilley and Cranston, Van Tyle and Geo. Waller; was working for Crilley and Cranston when they were burned out; worked in the block where Crilley's and Tyle's barns were for about eighteen years; knew Granny Letcher, who lived on Seneca Street, between Second and Third Streets; knew an Indian girl who went by the name of Indian Minnie; remembers seeing her around Granny Letcher's for a year or more; knew of her giving birth to a child at Granny Letcher's; afterwards saw her nursing the child on Mrs. Letcher's porch; saw her subsequently carrying a child around in her arms and remembers him after he grew up and got to playing about the yard and on the sidewalk. The boy was called Tommy and had a nickname, "Commodore", and was brown skinned, black haired and chunky; remembers him as a boy of about five or five and a half years old at the time of the burning of Crilley's barn in 1890.

Ina Massie McCormick (Rec., p. 2905):

Wife of Dr. John A. McCormick, who practiced medicine in Leavenworth for a great many years; remembers her husband telling her that he had attended an Indian girl at a colored woman's house.

Alexander Ford (Rec., p. 2913): .

Born May 15, 1842; came to Leavenworth in 1875 or 1876 and worked for Dave Atchison about nine years; worked for him in 1885; was Atchison's foreman in hauling wood from the Missouri side of the river; when the weather was bad and the roads impassable, stayed around the wool yard and split wood and attended to the horses; knew an Indian girl generally called "Indian Minnie"; recollects the first time he saw her, when she came to Atchison's wood yard with a basket after chips and that she had a "papoose" baby with her that looked like an Indian; saw her two or three times around the wood yard and once at Mrs. Letcher's house.

William D. Ford (Rec., p. 2926):

Coal miner, 51 years of age; lives at Lockston, Mo.; lived in Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1885, and off and on worked at Dave Atchison's wood and coal yard; in the summer time was employed in the coal mines and worked around Atchison's in the fall and winter when the weather was cold; remembers a woman around Atchison's that they called "Indian Minnie", and that she always had a baby in her arms. Was born in 1865, and thinks he was between twenty-one and twenty-two when he saw the woman and baby around the woodyard.

JOHN F. RODERICK (Rec., p. 2937):

Was born in 1839 and is employed in the Soldiers Home at Leavenworth; has charge of the trash wagon there; served three years and one month in the army during the civil war; came to Leavenworth in 1877 and left there in 1886; fixes the date by a cyclone that blew down the girls' school and killed seven or eight girls. Went to Kansas City, Mo., to live about July 5th or 6th, 1886; had a business arrangement with Crilley and Cranston's livery barn and organized a company under the name of Roderick, Crilley & Cranston who had a contract for hauling between the City of Leavenworth and Fort Leavenworth , which expired July 1, 1885. After the expiration of the contract went to Fort Riley in the teaming business for himself and from there moved to Kansas City; knew a girl called "Indian Minnie", and saw her for he first time at Fifth and Shawnee Streets waiting for a bus to go to Fort Leavenworth; saw her a number of times after that; knew the old fortune teller, Mollie Peters, who lived at the corner of Third and Seneca Streets; about the last of June or the first of July of the year that his contract between the city and the fort expired he went with

Mollie Peters to Granny Letcher's house and saw the woman called "Indian Minnie" lying on a bed with a new born baby by her side, and he took the baby in his arms and carried it across the street to Mollie Peters' house; corrects his statement as to the woman he saw with the baby being "Indian Minnie" instead of "Indian Mary."

A. L. Johnson (Rec., p. 2960):

Seventy-two years of age, a retired physician and surgeon residing at St. Helena, California; formerly lived at Leavenworth, Kansas, where he resided about eighteen years and lived there during the eighties. Knew a woman by the name of Mattie Edwards whom he attended at the birth of a girl; that Mrs. Edwards lived on Seneca Street, between Second and Third Streets; that on the second day after Mrs. Edward's confinement he called at the house to see her, and a woman came in and went out again; that Mrs. Edwards said, "You may have a case there." He did not learn the name of the woman and did not see her again until she came to his daughter's house in St. Helena, California, and that he identified her (Minnie Folk, nee Atkins) as the woman that he saw at the house on Seneca Street when he was attending Mrs. Edwards.

Dr. C. R. Carpenter (Rec., p. 2997):

Sixty years of age and practicing physician at San Diego, California, and practiced his profession in Leavenworth, Kansas, for thirty years; was requested by a man by the name of Peterkin to attend a woman in confinement in Leavenworth in July, 1886; that Peterkin was a soldier stationed at Leavenworth, went with him to the house where the woman was and attended her at the birth of her child; expresses the opinion that she had previously given birth to a child. The remainder of his testimony is largely of an expert nature, particlarly cross examination.

MILTON WEBSTER (Rec., p.3030):

Fifty-one years of age and in the express business in Kansas City, Kansas; lived in Leavenworth in the eighties and knew an Indian girl called "Minnie." Remembers seeing her about 1885 or 1886 at Granny Letcher's on Seneca Street, between Second and Third Streets; remembers seeing her on the 30th day of May, 1885, when she was in a family way and about ready to go to bed; afterwards saw her with a baby boy some four or five weeks old; asked her whose child it was, and she said it was hers. Remembers the child until it was eleven or twelve months old crawling around; that he left Leavenworth in 1887 and never saw the child or the woman afterwards; that the child appeared to him to be part Indian; fixes the date of May 30, 1885, by the fact of that being Decoration Day and the year as being the time that Broaddus shot Jobson.

ADOLF LANGE (Rec., p. 3047):

A druggist and pharmacist, who has resided continuously in Leavenworth, Kansas, since April, 1866; was in the Civil war and mustered out May 2, 1865; when he first came to Leavenworth in 1866 was employed in the store he now owns; that he bought the store in 1880; in 1884 and 1885 lived over his store at the corner of Fourth and Shawnee Streets in Leavenworth; knew an Indian woman called "Indian Minnie" about that time; saw her very frequently in the neighborhood; knew the old fortune teller, Mollie Peters, and that Mollie Peters and Indian Minnie often came into his store; that in June, 1884, he left Leavenworth on a visit to his former home in Saxony; that he went to New York and sailed on the steamship "Servia," and while in Europe visited a number of continental cities and kept a memorandum book of his European trip from which he testified; he also made an offer to the Court of his receipted hotel bills and the passenger list of the steamer on which he sailed; that he returned to Leavenworth in the later part of September, 1884; and remembers seeing Indian Minnie in a pregnant condition in his store in 1885, in the late spring or summer after his return from Europe; fixes the time of the year by the fact that the weather was warm and his store door was open and the woman was thinly dressed and he could plainly see her physical condition. Recites an incident of two small pocket-books, one of which he sold to Indian Minnie and the other he still retains. He also fixes the time that she was in his store by other details.

A. W. Hopkins (Rec., p. 3067):

Witness is an intelligent negro, forty years of age, and is Grand Secretary of the Knights and Daughters of Tabor; testifies that he has been connected with this organization since 1883; that at the meeting of the Grand Temple and Tabernacle in Memphis, Tennessee, in 1884, he was the delegate from Leavenworth and acted in the capacity of outside sentinel at that convention; that the inside sentinel was a large Indian woman, mixed blood, big and tall, with whom he became acquainted and who questioned him about persons living in Leavenworth; asked him if he knew an Indian woman there named Minnie Atkins and he told her he did not; said her name was Jane Anderson and asked when he returned to Leavenworth to look up Minnie Atkins; that when he returned to Leavenworth he was ill for some time but after Christmas made some inquiries and ascertained that Minnie Atkins was at Granny Letcher's and that he went there to see her in the spring of 1885 and delivered the message that Jane Anderson had given him at Memphis. That he saw her twice at Granny Letcher's and both times she was sitting down and saw her again in the summer when she had a baby in her arms; that she was on the street with Granny Letcher; that there was a veil over the baby's face, and he asked whose baby it was and she said it was hers; saw her again afterwards in the neighborhood of Fourth and Shawnee Streets when she had a baby by the hand.

W. P. GEMPEL (Rec., p. 3096):

Bookkeeper, Leavenworth Water Works Company; identifying witness of a contract for the installation of water at 215 Cherokee Street, made October 23, 1885.

MAX A. HARRIS (Rec., p. 3096):

Traveling salesman for a wholesale liquor house at Kansas City, Mo., lived in Leavenworth for a number of years and formerly ran a saloon at 215 Cherokee Street; when he leased the property it was in bad shape, no water had been installed, and he made a contract with the water works company to install the water in October, 1885.

LIZZY KAZEY (Rec., p. 3098):

Fifty-seven years of age, lived in Leavenworth since 1872; this witness is a negress and often went to the house of Granny Letcher when she lived on Cherokee Street and afterwards when she lived on Seneca Street, between Second and Third Streets; remembers seeing an Indian girl at the house on Seneca Street called Minnie Atkins—saw her there twice; unable to fix the time; that she had one child that in her opinion was two years old and it was called Tommy Atkins.

FRANK HEIS (Rec., p. 3110)

Seventy years of age; lived in Leavenworth, Kansas, continuously since 1868 and has been engaged in the marble, stone and granite business since 1873; in the early eighties was in partnership with one F. S. Burdett, and they had a five year contract for stone cutting at the Lansing prison which expired in 1884; that about the time of the expiration of the contract he and his partner began negotiations for the Schiller property on Choctaw Street; that these negotiations continued with Mrs. Schiller until the spring of 1885; that the negotiations with Mrs. Schiller failed and Mrs. Schiller moved out of the house and that Lillie White moved in and that Lillie White stayed in the house from the early spring of 1885 until some time in 1886.

PATRICK DELANEY (Rec., p. 3117):

An Irish policeman and fireman and has served in the police and fire departments of both Leavenworth and Kansas City, Missouri; fifty-three years of age, and lived in Leavenworth all of his life until twelve years ago; now employed as night watchman at the Kansas City Stock Yards; was on the police force in Leavenworth in 1894, was then off for about two years, went back in 1896, and was on the force in 1896, 1897 and 1898; went to the fire department in 1898 and was for three years Chief of the Leavenworth fire department. Knew a woman named Granny Letcher who lived on Seneca Street between Second and Third Streets, in Leavenworth, when he was on the police force in 1896 and 1897. Knew a boy around that neighborhood called Tommy Atkins who lived at Granny Letcher's and arrested him in either 1896 or 1897; that he was a tall, straight-haired boy, not fleshy, but a good sized boy, apparently about twelve years of age; very mischievous. That he arrested him on orders from the police chief and did not know what disposition was made of the charge against him; never knew a woman called "Indian Minnie," and knew nothing about the boy's parentage.

W. K. Cowling (Rec., p. 3131):

Fifty-seven years of age and resided at Leavenworth, Kansas, and a stone mason; worked for the firm of Burdett and Heis in the spring of 1885 on Choctaw Street; that next to Burdett and Heis' stone yard there was a house belonging to a Mrs. Schiller; that it was occupied as a sporting house by a woman named Lillie White, who moved into the house in the spring of 1885, about the time witness went to work for Burdett and Heis.

James M. Allen (Rec., p. 3139):

Born in Leavenworth, in 1852, and engaged most of his life in the railroad business as general agent of the Rock Island Railroad at Leavenworth; was superintendent and ticket agent at the Union Depot at Leavenworth in 1884 and 1885; knew a girl by the name of Indian Minnie in those days and saw her several times in a house run by Granny Letcher across the street from the Seneca House. Saw her with a baby in her arms two or three times at Granny Letcher's. The child, in his judgment, was about three or four months old. Does not definitely fix the year other than 1884 or 1885, but that it could not have been as late as 1886, as in that year he was not on the streets looking for passenger business as he had been in previous years and that he was on the road traveling most of the time.

Mattie E. Cobb (Rec., p. 3163):

Was a resident of Leavenworth, Kansas, for fourteen years and resided on Seneca street in the old Seneca House in 1885; her name at that time was Edwards and on April 20, 1885, she had a daughter born to her named Grace Edwards, who, at the time of her deposition, was residing in St. Louis, Mo.; knew "Indian Minnie," and she waited on her four days just before the birth of her child, Grace Edwards, and was at that time in a pregnant condition. That thereafter, about the last of May or the first of June, Indian Minnie had a child which was born at Grandmother Letcher's place; that she saw Indian Minnie and the baby several times during the five or six months after the child was born, did not know what became of Indian Minnie after that time; knew that Indian Minnie went back and forth between Leavenworth and the Fort.

Richard Nichols (Rec., p. 3254):

A negro, fifty-six years of age, and lives in Leavenworth, Kansas. This witness was called by the Government for the purpose of impeaching his deposition of October 7, 1914, in the case pending in the state court, but was offered by counsel for Minnie Atkins. The deposition contains no material evidence as to the facts in this case.

Charlie Anderson (Rec., p. 3273):

Fifty-seven years of age, resides in Leavenworth, Kansas; this witness was subpoenaed on behalf of the Government but his deposition was offered by counsel for Minnie Atkins; it was undoubtedly taken for the purpose of impeaching his testimony of October 7, 1914.

There is little in this testimony bearing upon the question at issue.

Theresa Swoboda (Rec., p. 3286):

Assistant bookkeeper and stenographer and in charge of the files of the Leavenworth Times; identifies copies of the issues of the Leavenworth Times of Wednesday, May 12, and of May 13th, 1886, introduced for the purpose of establishing the date of a cyclone and wind storm at Leavenworth in which thirty people were killed.

THOMAS HIGGINS (Rec., p. 3292):

Thirty-six years of age, a white man, born in Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1881, and lived there until he removed to Kansas City, Missouri, in 1905; went to work for McNally who ran a transfer line—went to work for him in 1896 or 1897—and worked for him off and on until about 1900; drove a one-horse delivery wagon for McNally until he was large enough to handle a team; knew a boy by the name of Thomas Atkins about eleven or twelve years of age who played in the alleys around Seneca and Third streets in Leavenworth at that time; that the boys called him "Texas Tommy" or something like that; does not remember seeing him after he left McNally's employ.

ALVA ADAMS (Rec., p. 3302):

Thirty-one years of age and resides at 2008 Bellevue Avenue, Kansas City, Mo., an intelligent well informed white man born in Leavenworth, Kansas, March 17, 1886, and resided there until 1898 or 1899; distinctly remembers Granny Letcher's place on Seneca street; between Second and Third streets, and when a boy about ten years of age often played in that neighborhood; knew a boy with whom he often played by the name of Thomas Atkins and saw him for the last time about 1897 or 1898; witness was arrested about that time for a petty theft and served a short sentence in the county jail and then left Leavenworth. The boys in the neighborhood often played a game of war and referred to Tommy Atkins as "Indian Tommy" and he was also called "Trailer."' The Government cross examination of this witness only tended to strengthen his direct examination, as his answers to questions of detail as to his former life were direct and convincing.

ELOF A. CRILLEY (Rec., p. 3319):

Was born in Leavenworth, Kansas, March 20, 1880, and lived there until 1889; was away about one year and then returned to Leavenworth; his father was Geo. Crilley, who ran the livery barn; identifies the Letcher house, yard and surrounding; knew a boy that lived there by the name of Tommy, who was about six or seven years old when he first knew him in 1891 or 1892; also identified Walter Banks and Jim Mayo and Sam Nash as boys who lived at Granny Letcher's.

GEORGE CRILLEY (Rec., p. 3332):

Lives at Leavenworth and has lived there since June, 1870, and had engaged in the livery business most of the time. Started in business for himself July 24, 1878; March 15, 1880, went into business with Cranston and the business was conducted under the name of Crilley and Cranston for about twelve years; was also associated with a man named Roderick under the firm name of Roderick, Crilley and Cranston, who had a contract for hauling between Leavenworth and the Fort. The Crilley and Cranston barn was located during the eighties at 220-222 and 224 Seneca street, on the north side of the street; Granny Letcher lived right across the street in what was known as the Dotter property, which was a one time occupied by a woman who ran a sporting house, by the name of Lillie White. Granny Letcher moved into the house after Lillie White left. Granny Letcher moved into the house some time in 1885; witness is not positive of the exact time of the year; knew a girl named Indian Minnie about 1885 and often saw her around Granny Letchers's place; in July or August, 1885, or it may have been later in the year, saw Indian Minnie with a child, dressing and undressing it, o the back porch of Granny Letcher's house; often saw the boy as he was growing up and remembers him until he was six or seven years of age. Witness nicknamed him "Commodore"; fixed the date of the burning of the Crilley and Cranston livery barn as the morning of April 11th, 1890.

The cross examination of this witness, which occupied a great deal of time, was devoted largely to when Lillie White moved into and out of the Dotter house.

Dennis Jones (Rec., pp. 3372-3395-3434):

A negro lawyer, of Leavenworth, Kansas, sixty years of age, and has resided in Leavenworth since 1863. Was admitted to the practice of law in Kansas in 1892. From 1880 and up through the years 1885-86-87 was employed as a porter at the Continental hotel and as a special on the police force; was first employed on the police force as a special in 1884; was also employed as a special some time during the year 1885; knew Granny Letcher; knew her when she lived at 215 Cherokee street, and remembers when she moved from Cherokee street to the Dotter house on Seneca street, between Second and Third streets; knew the members of her family, her son, Jim Mayo, Sam Nash and Walter Banks; also remembers Indian Minnie and a boy called Tommy who was often around Granny Letcher's. This boy was enough Indian for a person observing to know that he was part Indian and part white; he had no characteristics or appearance of a negro; first remembers seeing Indian Minnie at Mrs. Letcher's on Cherokee street in the winter of 1884; knew her better in the spring of 1885 after Granny Letcher had moved from Cherokee street to Seneca street and saw her at Granny Letcher's in May, 1885, when she was in a family way, and afterwards heard that she gave birth to a child at Granny Letcher's; did not see the child himself for several months, but then did see Indian Minnie with a child in her arms; remembers the child as it grew up, and when he last saw the boy he was twelve or thirteen years old—may not have been quite that old but was quite a chunky boy. Saw Indian Minnie numerous times until about 1886 or 1887, when he lost track of her; identifies Minnie Folk, the defendant in this case, as the woman he knew as Indian Minnie, in Leavenworth, in 1884 and 1885.

The cross examination of this witness consumed all of the court's attention for one day and was directed to his relation, during the past few years, with the Gypsy Oil Company, Sadie James, Chas. Page, Betty Mann and Frank Long.

During the examination of this witness defendants' Exhibits "B-7", "B-8" and "B-9" were introduced, being a contract between Dennis Jones and the Gypsy Oil Company and correspondence between Dennis Jones and officers of the Gypsy Company.

JOHN COUCH (Rec., p. 3480):

Knew Minnie Atkins when she came to Muskogee some time about 1895; became intimate with her and took a trip with her from Muskogee, Indian Territory, to Denver, Colorado, in 1897; went through Kansas City, and they were in the old

Union station at Kansas City for about two hours before taking a train to Denver; was with Minnie during the time they were in Kansas City and never saw Sadie James; that Minnie remained in the station and that witness was not out of her presence to exceed thirty minutes when he went across Union avenue to a barber shop. This trip was in August, 1897, and after reaching Denver he went with Minnie to Fort Logan where she stayed for some time.

F. B. Long (Rec., p. 3497):

Agent of the defendant, Chas. Page, and instrumental in securing the oil and gas lease from Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, in June, 1914. Testified in detail as to his activity in behalf of his principal, his visit to Minnie Folk at Seattle in 1914 and his connection with Betty Mann and Sadie James, his investigation of the Henry Carter claim and his efforts to secure reliable information in connection with the identity of the enrolled and allotted Thomas Atkins.

Edward C. Funk (Rec., p. 3653):

An employee in the office of the Superintendent of the Five Civilized Tribes; was called as a witness for the purpose of identifying the handwriting of certain notations on the Thomas Atkins census card.

J. C. Kennedy (Rec., p. 3567):

An employee in the office of the Superintendent of the Five Civilized Tribes; called for the purpose of identifying the handwriting of certain notations on the Thomas Atkins census card.

W. H. Angell (Rec., p. 3659):

Employee in the office of the Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes; called as a witness for the purpose of identifying the letter press copy of a letter from the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes transmitting to the Secretary of the Interior the partial roll of Creek Indians containing the name of Thomas Atkins.

(Note: It was admitted by counsel for the Government that the original letter, or judgment, of the Dawes Commission finding Thomas Atkins entitled to enróllment was signed by Tams Bixby as well as other members of the Dawes Commission.) (Rec., p. 3689.)

Thomas E. Kirkbride (Rec., p. 3661):

Introduced as a witness by the defendants Folk and Page to refute statements made by Betty Mann in reference to an alleged conspiracy.

D. M. Hodge (Rec., p. 3663):

Member of the Creek Council in 1895; testified as to proceedings of the Creek Council in the preparation of the 1895 pay roll; also as to the Dawes Commission proceedings at Okmulgee in May, 1901.

R. A. JOSEY (Rec., p. 3666):

Formerly stockholder and officer of the Gem Oil Company, and interested with the defendant, Chas. Page, in the oil and gas lease of June, 1914, from the defendant, Minnie Folk; testified as to his relations with the defendant, Chas. Page, and transactions with F. B. Long in reference to the oil and gas lease.

BEN COUCH (Rec., p. 3678):

Brother of the witness John Couch; first became acquainted with Minnie Atkins in 1894 or 1895; corroborative of the testimony of his brother, John Couch, as to when Minnie Atkins left Indian Territory.

SAMUEL W. BROWN (Rec., p. 3682):

Town King of Euchee Town in 1895; testified as to being present at the 1895 payment and as to Minnie Atkins drawing for herself and three children and as to witness drawing the payment for Ed. Schrimpser and Nancy Atkins. Never heard of Nancy Atkins having a boy by the name of Tommy. On cross examination was interrogated as to his testimony in the state court case at Sapulpa in 1914 and as to payment to Minnie Atkins of the 1895 payment for E. Schrimpser and Nancy Atkins.

Edward C. Hanford (Rec., p. 3026-3689-3737-3820):

One of the defendants, and counsel for the defendant, Minnie Folk nee Atkins. Had no personal knowledge of the facts in reference to the birth of a Thomas Atkins to either Minnie Atkins or Nancy Atkins; first became connected with the litigation in June, 1914, through Captain Alexander J. McNabb at Fort Lawton, Seattle; testified in detail as to incidents in connection with business transactions with the defendant, Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, and Page and Long. He was cross examined at great length, especially in connection with the visit of Frank L. Montgomery, Government agent, to Minnie Folk in December, 1914, and Minnie Folk's alleged confession.

J. H. Wendorff (Rec., p. 3734-3736):

Stance Meyers (Rec., p. 3735-3769):

O. B. Taylor, Jr. (Rec., p. 3736-3770):

These three witnesses were residents of Leavenworth, Kansas, being the District Judge of Leavenworth County, member of the State Board of Control of Kansas, and cashier of the First National Bank of Leavenworth, respectively. They testified to having been personally well acquainted with Dennis Jones, a Leavenworth attorney, for from twenty-five to thirty years, and that he bore a good reputation for truth and veracity.

Alexander J. McNabb, Jr. (Rec., p. 3832):

Captain in the United States Army, stationed at Fort Lawton, Seattle, Washington, and trustee of the defendant, Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, under the trust deed of June, 1914. The testimony of this witness is confined to his transactions with parties desiring to secure a deed or lease from Minnie Folk and to the various visits of parties to him and Mrs. Folk.

Catherine Sisk McComb (Rec., p. 3852):

Wife of Lieutenant J. G. McComb of the United States Army stationed at Fort Lawton, Seattle, Washington; testified that the defendant Minnie Folk was at various times in her employ as a domestic at Fort Lawton; that after parties first began coming to Minnie Folk to secure a deed or lease from her in 1914, she (Minnie Folk) came to witness for advice and told witness of her previous life and that Minnie Folk confided to her in these conversations that she had been the mother of five children before her marriage to her husband, Harry B. Folk, and that her first child was named Tommy and was born at Leavenworth, Kansas.

Eugenola Hunt (Rec., p. 3865):

Stenographer in the law office of Dennis Jones, at Leavenworth; testified as to conversation had between Dennis Jones, Sadie James and Betty Mann at Dennis Jones' office in the months of March, April and May, 1914.

GRANT FOREMAN (Rec., p. 3870):

Attorney at law, Muskogee, Oklahoma; former law partner of Judge John R. Thomas in 1903, 1904 and 1905. Offered as a witness by the defendants, Folk and Page, for the purpose of identifying the Thomas Atkikns referred to by Judge John R. Thomas as being a relative of Cheney Trent, as noted upon the deed delivery record in the office of the Principal Chief of the Creek Nation.

CHAS. PAGE (Rec., pp. 3876-3897):

One of the defendants in this case and the present owner and holder of the oil and gas mining lease of June, 1914, from the defendant, Minnie Folk. Testified as to his interest in securing the lease and as to development of the property and his good faith; that he had delegated most of the details in connecction with the lease to his agent, F. B. Long; also testified as to his former joint ownership of the lease with R. A. Josey and his purchase of Mr. Josey's interest. On cross examination was interrogated as to his transaction with Sadie James and Betty Mann.

MINNIE FOLK (NEE ATKINS) (Rec., p. 3910):

Principal defendant in this action; testified that she was born on Elk Creek in the Creek Nation, Indian Territory, and that she is the daughter of Thomas Atkins and Mary Jane Atkins; that she had one brother, Lee Atkins, who is now dead, and a sister, Nancy Atkins, who is now living; that she went to school at Tallahassee mission, north of Muskogee, and that she was taken from there to the Carlisle School in Pennsylvania with Betty Crowell (now Betty Mann) and a number of other Indians; that she was sent from Carlisle to Leavenworth, Kansas, as a domestic in the household of a banker named George H. Hyde; that she was never in a pregnant condition before going to Leavenworth; that while working at Hydes' she became intimate with a man named Lee who was the coachman of one of the officers at Fort Leavenworth; that while employed at the Hydes' she became pregnant and that Lee got her a place near the Fort in the home of Herbert Grodevant; that she worked at the Grodevant's as long as she could, endeavoring to hide her condition, and went to Granny Letcher's house in order to have the child; that she was sick at Granny Letcher's house about two or three weeks; that the child was born to her there; that she named the child Tommy Atkins after her father and that as soon as she was able she went back to the Grodevant house and resumed her work as a domestic; that it was her custom to come down from the Fort to the City of Leavenworth every night and go to Granny Letcher's to look after her child; that she made an arrangement with Granny Letcher to give all she possibly could afford to the support of the child, but that Granny Letcher advised her that she would take care of it anyhow. Witness then detailed her subsequent life—the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin in Leavenworth; the birth of Alice Peterkin; the birth of Charley Harrison and the birth of Harvey Harrison; testified that these were all the children she ever had and that Tommy Atkins, born at Granny Letcher's house was the first child. She testified as to being present at the 1895 payment at Okmulgee in September of that year; that when she went to the paymaster's table and "There was some man sitting there, but I don't know who he was. I says, 'let me see the books,' and he just shoved the book over to me and I looked and there was five of us on the book to draw and that was myself and Tommy and Harvey and Charley and Alice. 'Well,' I say, 'Alice is dead. I couldn't draw for her.' Well, he give me the money for the four of us. That was Charley, Harvey, myself and Thomas. It was about $57.00 I think."

She further testified as to her return to Fort Logan after the 1895 payment and as to John Couch going with her and as to their remaining in Kansas City but a few hours.

The remainder of her direct examination was devoted to a recital of the various visits of Government officers, detectives and parties seeking to secure a deed or lease from her to the land in controversy; of her desire to withhold from her husband the history of her past life and of the indignities and humiliations to which she was subjected.

She was cross-examined at great length and particularly as to her conflicting statements made at previous times in reference to the birth of her children and, for the purpose of impeaching her testimony; counsel for the government and for the defendant Nancy Atkins examined her at length and introduced in evidence her testimony given at Sapulpa in July, 1914; her deposition at Rice and Lyons' office in Tulsa in October, 1914, a sworn statement made by her in response to interrogatories at Kansas City, Missouri, in September, 1914; her testimony at the receivership hearing at Muskogee on March 3d, 1915, and her deposition at Seattle, Washington, in January, 1916. She was also further cross-examined in connection with the alleged confession made by her to Frank L. Montgomery, the Government agent, at Seattle, Washington, December 17, 1914.

George Kinney (Rec., p. 4158):

An employe of the defendant, Chas. Page, and in charge of operations upon the property in controversy since November, 1914. Testified as to the construction of tankage and expenditures in connection with the development of the lease.

Harry B. Folk (Rec., p. 4163):

Husband of the defendant, Minnie Folk, married to her March 31st, 1907; introduced on behalf of the defendants, Folk and Page, as a witness to conversations had between Minnie Folk and various parties in his presence. Upon the complainant objecting to his testifying in behalf of his wife, he was excused.

E. O. Curtis (Rec., p.4169):

Auditor in the employ of the defendant Chas. Page; testified as to the expenditures in connection with the development of the leased property and the marketing of the oil produced therefrom. He also testified from the books and records of his employer as to detailed expenditures in connection with the lease. (During this witness' testimony, defendants' Exhibits "B-21," check for $500.00 from the Gem Oil Company to Minnie Folk. "B-22," financial statements of the Atkins lease to December 17, 1914, and to January 18, 1915, were introduced).

Mike Stanton (Rec., p. 4175):

This was a witness produced on behalf of the complainant but his deposition was offered in evidence by counsel for the defendants Folk and Page. He testified that he lived in and around Leavenworth, Kansas, for fifty-seven years and moved from town out to the fort in 1869 or 1870 and before moving there knew two women around Leavenworth, one called "Indian Mary" and the other called "Indian Minnie"; that after he moved to the reservation in 1870 he saw Indian Minnie around the Fort and understood she was employed there; that when he first became acquainted with Indian Minnie, 1868, she was 17 or 18 years old.

THOMAS HUMPHREY (Rec., p. 4458):

Formerly an employe in the office of the Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes; identified defendants' Exhibit "B-25" as a certified copy of the Thomas Atkins census card issued by him April 2, 1912, as a correct copy of the original then on file.

ROBERT L. BAUGH (Rec., p. 4553):

Went to work in the office of the Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes October 19th, 1913, and was employed there until some time in the early spring of 1914; identified the lead pencil notations up on the face of the Thomas Atkins census card in reference to the letter of May 9, 1905, as being in his handwriting and placed thereon subsequent to October 19, 1913.

C. LIPSCOMB (Rec., p. 4612):

Formerly engaged in the banking business at Bixby, Oklahoma; resident of Tulsa, Oklahoma; introduced by the defendants, Minnie Folk and

Chas. Page as a witness in rebuttal of the testimony of the Government's witness, C. B. Malcom. Testified that Malcom told him a few days before Malcom testified at Muskogee that he had a chance to make $500.00 as a witness in the Atkins case but that he (Malcom) "thought it was too risky."

F. K. TAYLOR (Rec., p. 4616):

Several terms police judge of Leavenworth, Kansas; testified as to custom of police department of Leavenworth in "picking up" parties on request of state or county officials.

WILLIAM A. DOIDGE (Rec., p. 4620):

Captain of police, Leavenworth, Kansas, and been employed on the police force since February 4, 1897; well acquainted with Patrick Delaney when he was on the police force; testified as to custom of police department in making entries for arrests made at the request of county or state officers; identified defendants' Exhibit "B-27" as a picture of Tommy York.

LEE BOND (Rec., pp. 4389, 4632):

Of counsel for the defendant Charles Page; practicing attorney and United States Commissioner, Leavenworth, Kansas; formerly police judge, Leavenworth, Kansas. Identified the witness Doidge as a member of the Leavenworth police force when witness was police judge.

Dr. F. B. Fite (Rec., p. 4647):

Practicing physician of Muskogee, Oklahoma; qualified as an expert witness and testified that condition found in the defendant, Minnie Folk, at the time of the delivery of the Peterkin baby in July, 1886, as testified to by Dr. C. R. Carpenter, could have been caused by and clearly indicated the birth of a previous child.

The Evidence Against Minnie Atkins

Richard Shanafelt (Rec., pp. 151-176):

Clerk in the Land Division in the office of the Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes; identified Government's Exhibits "A-1" to "A-23," records in reference to enrollment of and allotment to Thomas Atkins, Creek Indian Roll No. 7913; issuance of certificate of allotment deeds and correspondence relative to Thomas Atkins. During the testimony of this witness Government's Exhibits "A-24" to "A-30" were also introduced, consisting of correspondence between the Creek National Attorney, the Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs relative to proceedings to cancel the enrollment and allotment of Thomas Atkins, action taken by the Department of the Interior in connection with the cancellation of the enrollment and allotment of Thomas Atkins, and copies of the 1890 and 1895 Creek Rolls in reference to the tribal enrollment of Thomas Atkins.

At the conclusion of this witness' testimony-in-chief, Government's Exhibits "A-33" to "A-57," inclusive, were introduced, consisting of the records of the Dawes Commission relative to the enrollment of Charley and Harvey Harrison; power of attorney from Minnie Harrison to Thomas Holden, incomplete census card of Minnie Harris, proceedings in reference to the application for enrollment of Minnie Atkins, census card of Nancy Atkins, application of Nancy Atkins for an allotment, and correspondence between Nancy Atkins and the Dawes Commission.

EDWARD MERRICK (Rec., p. 3451):

Law clerk in the employ of the office of the Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes; employed by Dawes Commission March 4, 1901; been continuously in the employ of the Dawes Commission and its successors since that date with the exception of a few months in 1909 and 1910. Was enrolling clerk who listed the name of Thomas Atkins on the census card (Government's Exhibit "A-1") at Okmulgee on May 23, 1901. Testified as to the procedure of the Dawes Commission and incidents in connection with the placing of the name of Thomas Atkins on the census card at Okmulgee and his subsequent enrollment by the Dawes Commission and approval by the Secretary of the Interior; that he procured the information and made entry on the census card that Minnie Atkins was the mother of Thomas Atkins from the testimony or information secured either by him or some member or employee of the Commission extraneous of the Creek Tribal rolls.

On cross-examination by Mr. Stuart, of counsel for Page, this witness testified as follows:

"Q. This card lists Thomas Atkins here as the son of Minnie Atkins, don't it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Minnie Atkins, the census card listed him as Thomas Atkins, age, parentage, mother, Minnie Atkins?

A. Minnie Atkins, 1895, Euchee.

Q. Now, at the time you wrote out that card as Thomas Atkins and mother Minnie Atkins of the Euchee tribe, you intended to enroll Thomas Atkins the son of Minnie Atkins, didn't you?

MR. HILL: We object.

THE COURT: He may answer.

Q. You intended to enroll Tommy as the son of Minnie Atkins, didn't you, as it appears there?

A. Well, as it appears, Minnie Atkins being given as the mother, but primarily the Tommy Atkins is the one that appears on the Euchee Roll No. 213.

Q. I understand, but you put Thomas Atkins' name on there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you put Minnie Atkins as the mother of Tommy?

A. That is the information given.

Q. From that information you intended to put Thomas Atkins up to the Dawes Commission as the son of Minnie?

A. That was the conclusion we arrived at from the information the Commission had, that Thomas Atkins was the son of Minnie."

Alice M. Robertson (Rec., p. 290; recalled p. 298):

Came to Tallahassee mission, an Indian school north of Muskogee, in March, 1879, and found the defendant, Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, a pupil in the school; that she was an over-grown girl who might have been anywhere from fourteen to twenty years of age; that Minnie Atkins, in company with some twenty-five other students, were transferred in January, 1881, from Tallahasssee mission to Carlisle Indian school, Carlisle, Pennsylvania; that the witness went with Minnie Atkins to Carlisle and that witness remained there until November 15, 1882, and that she was in daily contact with Minnie

Atkins at Carlisle until witness left there and that she was under strict supervision at that time; witness again saw Minnie Atkins in Muskogee in 1895; saw her again at Fort Lawton, near Seattle, Washington, in 1914. This witness identified Minnie Folk as the Minnie Atkins who was at Tallahassee mission in 1879 and 1880, at Carlisle Indian school in 1881 and 1882, who visited her in Muskogee, Indian Territory, in 1895, and as the person she interviewed in Seattle, Washington, in July, 1914, at the solicitation of the Gypsy Oil Company.

THOMAS W. GREEN (Rec., p. 313):

This witness was introduced by the Government and testified as to the physical characteristics of the land in controversy and as to the possession thereof since January 25, 1913. During this witness' testimony Government's Exhibits "A-58" to "A-77," inclusive, being certified copies of instruments of record in Creek County, Oklahoma, sought to be cancelled by the Government's bill, were offered by the complainant.

NELLIE ROBERTSON DENNY (Rec., p. 328):

Employe at Carlisle Indian school, Carlisle, Pennsylvania, identified records of that institution showing entrance of Minnie Atkins into Carlisle, January 21, 1881; her discharge from that institution, July 8, 1884. Also identified post-card from

George H. Hyde postmarked Leavenworth, Kansas, July 12, 1884, advising the Superintendent of Carlisle Indian school of the arrival of Minnie Atkins in Leavenworth, Kansas, July 11, 1884. Also identified letter of March 1, 1913, from Micco Harjo, addressed to the Superintendent at Carlisle school, in reference to Minnie Atkins.

Will H. Miller (Rec., p. 338):

Financial clerk at Carlisle Indian school, identified records from which Nellie Robertson Denny testified.

Laura E. Hyde (Rec., p. 341):

Wife of George H. Hyde, cashier of the German bank of Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1884 and 1885; witness now living at Pittsfield, Massachusetts, and sixty-eight years of age; she testified that Minnie Atkins was sent to her home in Leavenworth by her husband's sister who was a teacher in Carlisle Indian school, 1884; that Minnie Atkins came to work for her in the summer of 1884 as a domestic and was in her employ a few months; that at the time she appeared to be a well developed woman of about eighteen years; that while she was in the witness' employ witness' children had noticed a soldier coming up behind their fence and that he would dodge away when the children saw him; that at no time while Minnie Atkins was in her employ did she appear to be in a pregnant condition and that witness regarded her as a good girl. On cross-examination witness' attention was called to an item in the issue of the Leavenworth Times of July 16, 1884, in reference to her having gone to Yankton, Dakota, on a visit; that she remembered the trip and that she was in Dakota for some time, especially during the hot weather; she specifically testified:

> "Q. Did you ever hear of her having given birth to any children?
> A. Yes, I have heard.
> Q. What did you hear, Mrs. Hyde, about Minnie giving birth?
> A. Yes, I heard she had had a child and that she was a very unnatural mother—she did not love it."

Claudius A. Hamilton (Rec., p. 347):

A resident of Leavenworth, Kansas, from 1883 to 1889; married October 2, 1883, to Mary Spain, and resided after their marriage at 922 Kiowa street; knew there was an Indian woman around Leavenworth before his marriage whose name was Minnie Atkins; first became acquainted with her the year following his marriage, some time in 1884; that she came to see witness' wife who told him she was an Indian girl from Carlisle and that she was working for Mrs. Hyde, the banker's wife; that witness understood she worked for the Hydes about six months and that she left there and went to work at Fort Leavenworth; that Herb Gradevant told witness that Minnie Atkins was working for him; that after Minnie left the Hydes' witness saw her frequently at his home; that he noticed Minnie being in a pregnant condition and took exception to her coming to his home; that she discontinued her visits until her trouble had passed away and that she then resumed her visits and brought a man by the name of Peterkin to witness' home and introduced him as her husband and that afterwards Minnie and Peterkin visited his home; that witness understood that when Peterkin left Fort Leavenworth with the 18th Infantry, Minnie went with him and witness later saw them when they were living together at Fort Logan, Colorado; that witness never saw Minnie pregnant but once during the time that she lived in Leavenworth. On cross-examination witness testified that Minnie did not show any state of pregnancy until after she left the Hydes but was unable to state the length of time; that he learned of Minnie working for Herbert Gradevant when he and Gradevant were employed in the construction of Fort McKenzie in Wyoming in 1901. He was specifically asked:

"Q. * * * About how long was it from the first time that you saw Minnie at Leavenworth until the time that you last saw her before leaving for Fort Logan?

A. I first saw her in the fall of eighty-five—eighty-four, and I think the last time, to the best of my knowledge and belief, I seen her in eighty-seven."

Mary Spain Hamilton (Rec., p. 360):

The wife of Claudius A. Hamilton, was the superintendent of the laundry at Carlisle school before her marriage to Hamilton October 2, 1883, and knew the defendant Minnie Atkins while she was a pupil at Carlisle; that witness left Carlisle some time before her marriage in 1883. Witness saw Minnie Atkins two or three times in Leavenworth while she was working for the Hydes. That she left the Hydes and went to work at Fort Leavenworth and came to witness at that time and borrowed a dollar from her for which she left a small pin. That while she was employed at the Hydes' she showed no evidence of being in a family way but that she did notice her being pregnant after she moved to the Fort; that she is uncertain as to the time but that it was within two years after she left the Hydes; that when this condition was apparent witness' husband remonstrated about Minnie coming to the house; that Minnie stayed away for a while until she was in a normal condition and she then brought a man by the name of Peterkin to witness' house whom she introduced as her husband, that she afterward saw Minnie at Fort Logan, Colorado, and knew of her having a baby there by Peterkin, named "Mabel," that died, and two children (boys) by a butcher named Harrison. On cross-examination witness admitted she noticed Minnie's condition some time before her husband's suspicions were aroused. That she was unable to state how long after Minnie went to work at the Fort she was in this condition, but it was in a period of about two years. Witness was unable to fix with accuracy the time she saw Minnie pregnant after she came to her house and borrowed a dollar.

During the examination of this witness the pin left by Minnie with the witness was introduced as Government's Exhibit "A-78."

JULIA GRODEVANT FOY (Rec., p. 382):

Resident of Sheridan, Wyoming, and is the daughter of Herbert D. Grodevant who died November 1, 1908. Witness lived with her parents in Leavenworth, Kansas, and personally knew of her father's methodical habits; that he kept a record of daily expenditures in small notebooks; identified entries in her father's handwriting in one of these books covering the period from October 1, 1884, to October 1, 1885.

(The Grodevant book was introduced during the witness' deposition as Government's exhibit 1 to her deposition. At the conclusion of this witness' testimony, Government's exhibit "A-79" to "A-81," inclusive, a plat of the Grodevant house and the military prison at Fort Leavenworth, a photograph of the Grodevant house at Fort Leavenworth, showing the kitchen, were introduced.)

Frank J. Grodevant (Rec., pp. 388-397):

A brother of Herbert D. Grodevant and lived with him from February 18, 1884, until November, 1887; testified that in 1884 and 1885 his brother was living back of the military prison at Fort Leavenworth; that he became acquainted with an Indian woman named Minnie Atkins who first went to work for his brother in 1884; witness fixes this date by reference to the account book of Herbert D. Grodevant which he identified and also identified the handwriting as that of his deceased brother. That Minnie Atkins was employed by his brother as a domestic, washed and did general housework; that to witness' knowledge Minnie Atkins never gave birth to any child while she was in his brother's employ and that during that time she did not have the appearance of being in a family way; that after she left the employ of his brother she went to work for the Staffords and that he never saw her in a pregnant condition while there.

On cross-examination witness admitted that he was a single man, living with his brother—worked in town and would leave early in the morning and come home late in the evening; that he never paid any particular attention to the domestics employed by his brother; that he never had any occasion to notice Minnie Atkins; that she might have been away from his brother's house two or three weeks and that witness would not have had occasion to notice it; that he remembered a white girl named Maggie Curry working for his brother at different times.

MARGARET NORTON (Rec., p. 407):

Daughter of Mrs. Margaret Diffley, or Mrs. Charles Woods; testified that she first became acquainted with Minnie Atkins when she was working at Grodevants; afterwards knew of her working for the Staffords and that Minnie came to her mother's house to live in 1886 and she gave her name as Minnie Peterkin; that there was a man living with her at that time as her husband under the name of Charles Peterkin and that in the latter part of the Month of July, 1886, Minnie Peterkin gave birth to a child named Robert Lee Peterkin; that this child was born at her mother's house, 815 North Eighth Street, Leavenworth, and only lived from four to six weeks; that she never knew of Minnie Peterkin having any former child.

CHARLES PETERKIN (Rec., p. 420):

Retired soldier, U. S. Army, fifty-six years old; was in the army from April 2, 1881, to April 21, 1908, was with Company E, of the 18th Infantry, when he went to Fort Leavenworth until the fall of 1887; first saw Minnie Atkins in 1885 when she was working at the Fort. Didn't know her intimately until she began working for Stafford; met her and became intimate with her in January, 1886; knew that before he became intimate with her she had been living with a private of the 18th Infantry by the name of Wm. D. (Patrick) Oliver; discovered soon after he became acquainted with her that she was three or four months in a family way; continued to live in Leavenworth with Minnie Atkins until the fall of 1887 when he was transferred to Fort Logan, Colorado; that Minnie came to Fort Logan in the spring of 1888 and continued to live with him until the fall of 1889; that he never heard of Minnie having any child prior to the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin, in July or August, 1886; that her second child, Mabel Peterkin, was born at Fort Logan, Colorado, in the summer of 1888.

On cross-examination witness testified that Robert Lee Peterkin was born at Mrs. Woods' house on North Eighth Street, in Leavenworth, and that Dr. Carpenter was the attending physician at the birth of this child and that Minnie had been living at the Woods' house five or six weeks prior thereto. On redirect examination testified that he never heard of such a person as Granny Letcher nor ever knew Minnie being a visitor to the home of any negroes in Leavenworth.

JOHN P. HESSE (Rec., p. 441):

Chief of Division in Adjutant General's office, Washington, D. C.; fixes, from Government records, date of discharge of Wm. D. Oliver from Company E, 18th Infantry, Fort Leavenworth, as December 18, 1885.

J. L. Bruff (Rec., p 442):

Testified that a search of the records of the Pension Office, at Washington, D. C., disclosed an application for a pension by the widow of Wm. D. Oliver.

Mrs. John (Cornelia G.) Stafford (Rec., p. 444):

Wife of Major John Stafford, retired, U. S. Army; married to Lieut. John Stafford July 8, 1885; lived with her husband at Fort Leavenworth in 1885 and 1886; first became acquainted with Minnie Atkins in September or October, 1885, when Minnie began working for her as a domestic and was continued in her employ until the following June when she left on account of the prospective birth of a child. Never knew or heard of her (Minnie) having a child prior to her employment by witness.

On cross-examination testified that she was not interested in Minnie at the time and that Minnie was away from the house a great deal of the time

Major John Stafford (Rec., p. 450):

Retired U. S. Army officer, husband of Cornelia G. Stafford, and corroborated her testimony as to employment of Minnie Atkins in September or October, 1885.

Mary Catherine Allen (Rec., p. 462):

Forty-eight years old and a resident of Leavenworth, Kansas. Daughter of Mrs. Charles Woods; had been living in Jackson County, Kansas, some fifteen or sixteen years prior to her return to Leavenworth on August 3, 1886, when she went to her mother's home at the corner of Eighth and Kickapoo Streets, and found Minnie Atkins there with a baby about four days old; that this baby was named Robert Lee Peterkin and died about two weeks after she first saw it; that a colored woman washed, dressed and prepared the baby for burial and went with Minnie in a hack to the cemetery.

Father Bernard Stephen Kelley (Rec., p. 473):

Parish priest, Leavenworth, Kansas, fixed the date of birth of Robert Lee Peterkin as July 31, 1886, and date of baptism as August 15, 1886, from the parish records.

J. J. O'Donnell (Rec., p. 476):

Engaged in the undertaking business in Leavenworth in 1886; fixed August 16, 1886, as the date of furnishing coffin for Robert Lee Peterkin.

A. L. SCHOTT (Rec., p. 478):

Superintendent Mt. Muncie Cemetery, Leavenworth, Kansas, 1886. Fixed date of burial of Robert Lee Peterkin as August 16, 1886, from cemetery records.

SISTER MARY GERTRUDE (Rec., p. 480):

Secretary, St. John's hospital, Leavenworth, Kansas; fixed October 7, 1886, as date of entrance of Minnie Peterkin (Atkins) as a patient at St. John's hospital.

ELMO E. MATTHEWS (Rec., p. 483):

Sergeant, Hospital Corps, Fort Logan, Colorado, fixed August 4, 1888, as date of birth of Nancy Peterkin, from hospital records.

EDWARD L. BATTERSON (Rec., pp. 487-492):

Quartermaster Sergeant, U. S. Army, Fort Logan, Colorado; fixed date of death of Mabel (Nancy) Peterkin as June 28, 1889, from post records.

GEORGE F. CAIN (Rec., p. 394):

Retired soldier, U. S. Army; corroborative of Batterson's testimony as to date of death of Mabel Peterkin.

Mary Land (Rec., p. 496):

Resident of Fort Logan, Colorado; knew Minnie Peterkin (Atkins) at Fort Logan, Colorado; knew her having three children, two boys and a girl; that she lived with a butcher by the name of Harrison at Logantown; never knew of Minnie having a child named Thomas Atkins.

James O'Connor (Rec., p. 499):

Retired Commissary Sergeant, U. S. Army, stationed at Fort Logan, Colorado, March 19, 1889, to December 20, 1890; in the spring of 1889 became acquainted with an Indian woman by the name of Minnie, who was living with two men at Sheridan when he knew her; one named Cunningham and the other named Harrison; knew of her having one child at Fort Logan and saw two children running around back of Harrison's butcher shop; never heard of Thomas Atkins.

Mary Jensen (Rec., p. 506):

Fifty-seven years of age, resident of Sheridan (Logantown), Colorado; first knew Minnie Peterkin (Atkins) when she came to Fort Logan in the latter part of 1887 or early part of 1888; knew of the birth of Mabel Peterkin and her death in 1889, when she was about a year old; that Minnie Peterkin had two boys born after Mabel Peterkin when she was living with a butcher by the name of Harrison.

Sadie James (Rec., p. 510):

The deposition of this witness covers 542 pages of the record and occupied eight days of the time of the Court's examiner at Kansas City. She testified that she was forty-six years of age; became acquainted with Minnie Atkins in Leavenworth on July 14, 1884, and knew her in and around Leavenworth until she (Minnie) left there in the fall of 1886 or spring of 1887, and never knew of her having a child named Thomas Atkins. These are the only concrete facts in reference to the birth and existence of Thomas Atkins that the witness testified to. The remainder of her deposition is in reference to her various transactions with parties interested in securing title to the land in controversy. She made a so-called confession to a Government officer, on the guaranty of immunity from prosecution, that she was a party to a conspiracy to probe the birth and existence of a Thomas Atkins, the son of Minnie Atkins. She is a negress; she admits to living a life of dissolution and crime; that she has always been a crook and would do anything for money.

Sarah E. (Betty) Mann (Rec., p. 1052):

Creek Indian, about fifty years of age, and went to school with Minnie Atkins at Tallahassee, and was one of the pupils that went with Minnie Atkins to Carlisle in 1881. Had no personal knowledge of Minnie Atkins from the time Minnie left Carlisle in 1884 until witness saw her in Seattle, Washington, in June, 1914. Identified Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, the defendant in this case, as the same Minnie Atkins that she knew at Tallahassee, Indian Territory, and Carlisle, Pennsylvania.

The testimony of this witness is mainly directed to transactions in connection with the activity of the litigants in this case, and she was introduced as a witness by the Government in support of the fabrication theory. She admits to duplicity in dealings with the parties she assumed to represent and confesses to numerous criminal and shady transactions to which she had been a party.

J. B. WHITE (Rec., p. 1104):

One of the defendants in this action who was instrumental in procuring the first lease from the defendant, Nancy Atkins, offered as a witness by the Government to establish the testimony and appearance of the defendant, Minnie Folk, Sapulpa, in July, 1914.

WILLIAM A. CRANSTON (Rec., p. 1110):

Engaged in the livery business at Leavenworth, Kansas, and fixed September 12, 1914, from his books as the date F. B. Long, agent of the defendant, Chas. Page, hired a horse and buggy at his barn.

O. GIACOMINI (Rec., p. 1113):

Proprietor of National Hotel, Leavenworth, Kansas; testified from register of hotel that F. B. Long was a guest of the hotel August 21st and 23rd, 1914.

MARTHA JONES (Rec., p. 1121):

Negress, residing at 309 Cherokee Street, Leavenworth, Kansas; testified as to Sadie James coming to her house with Irene Vinson in August, 1914, and Rube Smith and F. B. Long coming to see her there.

IRENE VINSON (Rec., p. 1124):

Twenty-two years old; negress; resident of Leavenworth, Kansas; testified in reference to going to Martha Jones' house with Sadie James in August, 1914.

CLARA KIRK (Rec., pp. 1128-1136):

Resident of Portland, Oregon; has known defendant, Minnie Folk (nee Atkins), eleven years; first became acquainted with her in Vancouver, Washington; testified that between July 12th and 15th, 1914, she went to see Minnie Folk at Seattle at the solicitation of Hugh Bartlett and Sadie James; detailed occurrences on the occasion of her visit to Minnie Folk at Seattle. Witness had no personal knowledge of the defendant, Minnie Atkins, prior to meeting her in Vancouver.

Dennis Jones (Rec., p.1160):

Deposition of Dennis Jones, taken October 13, 1914, on behalf of Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, to be read in evidence in case pending in state court; and,

R. J. (Rube) Smith (Rec., p. 1179):

Deposition of R. J. (Rube) Smith taken October 26, 1914, on behalf of Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, to be read in evidence in case pending in state court.

The depositions of these two witnesses were introduced in support of the Government's fabrication theory. Witness Dennis Jones was called and testified on behalf of the defendants, Minnie Folk (nee Atkins) and Page, at the trial.

C. S. Walker (Rec., p. 1208; recalled, p. 1283):

Tulsa, Oklahoma, attorney; had no knowledge of the facts in connection with the controversy and testified in the capacity of legal adviser of Sadie James.

Rush Greenslade (Rec., p. 1215):

Employe in the legal department of the Gypsy Oil Company, Tulsa, Oklahoma, detailed investigation made by that company in 1914 in connection with lease of the Gypsy Oil Company from H. U.

Bartlett; witness had no knowledge of any facts in connection with the controversy.

Edward Charles Fritsche (Rec., p. 1221; recalled, p. 1256):

An apprentice pharmacist in Adolph Lange's drug store in Leavenworth, Kansas, in the summer of 1885. The deposition of this witness was taken on behalf of defendants, Minnie Folk and Page, at Leavenworth. The Government subsequently subpoenaed the witness and produced him in open court at the trial, evidently with the view of supporting the fabrication theory. Witness was examined in open court at length as to his knowledge of the defendant, Minnie Atkins, and as to the occupants of the house at 217 Seneca Street, Leavenworth, in the year 1885. In the Government's direct examination of this witness counsel for the defendants, Folk and Page, brought out the manner in which the witness was induced to change his testimony on the stand from that given in his deposition. The witness' testimony as given in the deposition is strangely at variance with that as given on the stand in open court, and neither is of material assistance to the Court in the determination of the facts in controversy.

W. I. Williams (Rec., p. 1294):

Tulsa, Oklahoma, attorney; testified as to professional consultations with Sadie James. Had no personal knowledge of the facts in controversy.

MALCOLM E. ROSSER (Rec., p. 1301):

One of the attorneys for the defendant, Nancy Atkins, and parties claiming under her. Had no knowledge of the facts in controversy; testified as to the giving of Minnie Folk's deposition at Tulsa, October 22, 1914.

E. C. HANFORD (Rec., pp. 1315-1411):

Counsel for the defendant, Minnie Folk, nee Atkins; called by the Government for the purpose of corroborating testimony of Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, at Rice and Lyons' office in Tulsa, Oklahoma, in October, 1914; and witness' testimony at the receivership hearing in March, 1915.

WALTER BANKS, Deposition (Rec., p. 1318):

SAMUEL NASH, Deposition (Rec., p. 1339):

The depositions of these two witnesses were offered by the Government in support of the fabrication theory, and at the time they were introduced the Government attorneys stated that they were offering only certain portions thereof for that purpose. The depositions of these witnesses were subscribed and sworn to by them on October 14 and October 20th, 1914, respectively, were taken with a view to being used in the case pending in the state courts. The defendants, Folk and Page, contended that the introduction of the depositions of these witnesses on behalf of the Government was not limited to the specific purpose for which the same were introduced, but that, if admitted, were admitted for all purposes. The record is not clear as to whether the Court directly ruled on this proposition. The depositions are a part of the record and were introduced by the Government. The weight of these depositions is to the effect that these two boys, Walter Banks and Sam Nash, resided at Granny Letcher's home at 217 Seneca Street, in Leavenworth, in 1885, and that they knew an Indian woman named Minnie Atkins, who gave birth to a boy by the name of Tommy Atkins, who lived at Granny Letcher's house for a number of years.

Frank L. Montgomery (Rec., p. 1367):

Employed as United States Probate Attorney since February, 1914, and occupied that position when he testified in this case; this witness had no actual knowledge of any of the facts in connection with the birth of any children to either of the defendants, Minnie Atkins or Nancy Atkins. His testimony is directed mainly to the confession made by Sadie James as to the alleged conspiracy to prove that Minnie Atkins had a child named Tommy Atkins, and as to the statement or alleged confession that the witness secured from Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, at Seattle, Washington, December 17, 1914.

W. P. Z. GERMAN, (Rec. p. 1411):

Of counsel for the complainants; took the stand to testify in reference to the evidence offered at the time of the receivership hearing.

GEORGE W. DOTTER (Rec., p. 1417):

Was born at 217 Seneca Street, Leavenworth, Kansas, and lived there until July 28th, 1884, when the property was sold and his family moved out and went to live in the country.

JOHN ROHR (Rec., p. 1422):

Clerk of the District Court of Leavenworth County in 1883, 1884, 1885 and 1886; well acquainted during the year 1886 with John Malone, a deputy sheriff; also was well acquainted in 1885 and 1886 with Lilly White, who ran a sporting house in Leavenworth; first knew her in May, 1885; detailed the occasion of his first visit to Lilly White's resort on May 16, 1885; that she was then living next to the Feth house on Seneca Street, between Second and Third Streets; that he again visited the Lilly White resort between the 1st of June and 30th of September, 1885, with John Malone, and that John Malone was then living with Lilly White, and he attempted to fix this date by a business transaction between the witness and John Malone. On cross-examination the witness was unable to fix the exact date of the transaction and admitted that he had allowed himself a latitude of several months between the 1st day of June and the 30th day of September, 1885.

William P. Feth (Rec., p. 1438):

Architect, fifty years of age, formerly lived at 223 Seneca Street, Leavenworth, Kansas, and identified the Government's Exhibit "A-91" as a plat of the relative location of his former home and 217 Seneca Street in 1884, '85 and '86; that in 1885 he was fifteen years of age and prepared a petition (Government Exhibit "A-79"), directed to the city government, asking the removal of Lillie White from 217 Seneca Street, and other houses of prostitution, from that immediate neighborhood.

Fred Metscham (Rec., p. 1450):

Identified from official records of the city council action of council of August 5, 1885, upon the petition of Philip Feth et al. to have two houses of ill-fame occupied by Lilly White, 217 Seneca Street, and Stella Forest 303 Seneca Street removed and the nuisances caused thereby abated. The petition was read and referred to the city marshal with instructions to abate the nuisance. Witness testified that the original petition did not show the date of the filing with the city clerk but that he found the same among the 1885 files of petitions, etc. A. certified copy of the petition was offered in evidence at the time of the witness' deposition and was objected to by counsel for Minnie Folk, Page and Henry Carter.

HARRY H. SECKLER (Rec., p 1455):

Identified the signature of John Seckler to the original Lilly White petition as that of his deceased father.

WILLIAM W. TRUE (Rec., p. 1457):

Sixty-three years of age and has lived in Leavenworth since 1883. Had been in the employ of the Abernathy Furniture Company since the spring of 1884 with the possible exception of the years 1890 and 1891; that the Abernathy Furniture factory was located in 1884 and 1885 on Second and Seneca Streets; that the premises at 217 Seneca Street were across the street from the factory; that in 1884 he was night watchman at the Abernathy Furniture factory and that 217 Seneca Street was occupied by Lilly White, who conducted a sporting house; was unable to state when Lilly White removed from Seneca Street to Choctaw Street; had no recollection of a colored family living at 217 Seneca Street; did not know Granny Letcher or her son, Jim Mayo; knew a colored boy named Sam Nash, whom he thought lived on Kickapoo Street.

C. F. W. Dassler (Rec., pp. 1462-1468):

Prominent Kansas attorney, and resided in Leavenworth since 1873. Identified certified copy of petition filed in the District Court of Leavenworth County, October 30, 1885, by C. F. W. Dassler and L. J. Hopkins v. Charlottee Calkins et al., and testified that the same was an action to foreclose a mortgage on premises known as 217 Seneca Street, and that Lilly White was made a party defendant upon witness' supposition that she was an occupant of the property.

Witness testified that service was not had on all the defendants in the suit and that the case was dismissed November 27, 1885, when he and Hopkins became the owners of the property, and that from November 28, until the spring of 1890, he collected the rent for the premises from Granny Letcher. Witness had no personal knowledge as to when Granny Letcher moved into the house.

La Ban Gardner Hopkins (Rec., p. 1477):

An attorney at law, of Leavenworth, Kansas, and was associated with C. F. W. Dassler in 1884 and 1885. His testimony is corroborative of that of the witness Dassler in reference to the taking possession of the premises at 217 Seneca Street.

Joe Malone (Rec., p. 1480):

A resident of Tacoma, Washington, and was employed as guard at the penitentiary, as a policeman, and in the sheriff's office at Leavenworth, Kansas, from 1884 until 1889; testified that when he was on the police force he became well acquainted with Lilly White, who conducted a sporting house on the south side of Seneca Street between Second and Third Streets; that she afterwards moved to Choctaw Street; also knew a woman named Ella Abbott, who conducted a sporting house at Third and Cherokee Streets, with whom witness became acquainted in 1889 or 1890; that he was intimate with her for a considerable length of time and never saw or knew of a boy around Ella Abbott's place by the name of Thomas or Tommy Atkins.

W. B. SHAUGNESSY (Rec., p. 1514):

Chief of Police of Leavenworth, Kansas; testified from records as to witness Joe A. Malone being on the Leavenworth police force in 1885 and 1886.

JOHN T. BEECHLER (Rec., p. 1517):

Fifty-six years of age; came to Leavenworth when he was an infant in 1860, and resided there until the late nineties; knew an Indian woman by the name of Indian Mary, with whom he first became acquainted about 1875 ; remembered seeing her around Second Street about 1883; last knew of her in that year when she was living with an old fortune teller on Seneca Street, between Second and Third Streets; knew Lilly White when she ran a sporting house at 217 Seneca Street and that Mrs. Letcher occupied the house after Lilly White moved out; never knew an Indian Minnie or a boy called Tommy or Tommy Atkins. On cross examination witness admitted that he had been a professional gambler for a number of years; that he was in Seattle, Washington, in 1889, and prior thereto had lived in other western states, making his livelihood at gambling, and that the Indian Mary he knew in Leavenworth was a middle-aged woman, about forty years old, in 1876.

ALICE O'DAY (Rec., p. 1535):

White woman who lived at 208 or 210 Shawnee Street, Leavenworth, Kansas, in the spring of 1885; engaged in the dressmaking business; that across the alley from her place of business was a sporting house conducted by a woman named Lilly White; that the house occupied by Lilly White was 217 Seneca Street; that in July, 1885, she made dresses for some of the girls living at Lilly White's; remembered the circulation of the petition to have Lilly White's house abated as a nuisance; was asked to sign it and refused to do so for business reasons; remembered Granny Letcher as the Mary Letcher who did laundry work for her mother: knew her after she removed to 217 Seneca Street; knew the people who lived with her, but never heard of an Indian boy around the house by the name of Tommy. On cross examination, admitted she never visited Granny Letcher's house nor inquired as to members of her family and that there might have been a boy by the name of Tommy or Thomas Atkins at the house, and that she would have had no knowledge of him. She attempted to fix the time that she made the dresses for the girls at Lilly White's house, by her marriage in 1880, and the birth of her first child, Frances, in 1881, and the birth of her second child in 1882, and the birth of her third child, Clara Estelle O'Day, on Shawnee Street, between Second and Third Streets, and that she left Shawnee Street place when her child died.

A. L. Schott (Rec., p. 1581):

Secretary Mt. Muncie Cemetery; testified from cemetery records as to the death of Clara Estelle O'Day, February 14, 1887.

Joseph A. Eckert (Rec., p. 1583):

Lived in Leavenworth in 1884 and 1885 and knew Lilly White and was frequently around her place at 217 Seneca Street when she conducted a sporting house in the summer of 1885. Fixed the time definitely as the summer of 1885, and that Lilly White moved to Choctaw Street either in the fall of that year or early in 1886. On cross examination admitted that he was a constant frequenter of houses of ill-fame, drank considerably at that time, and in the summer and fall of 1885 was associated with a baseball team called the "Leavenworth Reds;" that he had a distinct recollection of a photograph being taken of the ball team in 1885. The witness was required to produce the photograph, and when it was presented to the examiner, was asked:

"Q. Have you the picture of the team of 1885?

A. I have.

Q. Have you the picture now of the team of eighty-five?

A. I have the—(examining the photograph which is identified in deposition))—this is the wind-up of the eighty-five team, and they came here in eighty-six and got their picture taken; in the latter part of eighty-six there wasn't but two men of that team in the ball team of eighty-six; this is the eighty-five team and they were lined up in the spring of eighty-six (witness reads from inscription on photograph), 'Leavenworth Reds of 1886.' "

William Jackson (Rec., p. 1615):

Lived at Fort Leavenworth since 1861; employed in various capacities around the military prison; knew Herbert Grodevant and lived a few loors from him in 1884 and 1885. His family and Grodevant's family frequently exchanged visits; knew a girl by the name of Indian Minnie, who worked at the Grodevant's in the late fall of 1884 and the winter and spring of 1885; that in the winter Minnie would join in coasting parties around the Fort; that he would see her frequently around the Grodevant yard or out on the porch; that she never appeared to witness to be in a family way and witness never heard of her having a child while she was working for the Grodevant's. On cross examination admitted he had no particular interest in the girl at Grodevant's; never paid any attenti.on to her more than he would any other servant around a neighbor's house.

At the conclusion of this witness' testimony, Government's Exhibits, "A-95", "A-96", and "A-97" were introduced, being tracings of the Grodevant residence and a photograph of Mrs. Woods' residence on North Eighth Street.

JOHN M. PURCELL (Rec., p. 1620):

Captain of the Watch, U. S. Penitentiary, Leavenworth, Kansas. Enlisted in the United States Army November 3, 1881; came to Leavenworth, December 16, 1881; was stationed at Fort Leavenworth in 1884, 1885 and 1886; knew Herbert Grodevant; knew where he lived near Fort Leavenworth; saw an Indian girl working around the Grodevant house in 1884 and 1885; saw her a number of times; saw her back of the prison wall with a soldier named Oliver; she never appeared to witness to be in a pregnant condition. On cross examination is unable to fix the exact time that he saw Minnie around the Grodevant house; was not particularly interested in the girl.

PATRICK COLLINS (Rec., p. 1627):

Lived diagonally across the street from Herbert Grodevant in Fort Leavenworth in 1884; knew a girl named Indian Minnie who was a domestic in the Grodevant home; that she was there about a year; visited the Grodevant house several times while Minnie was there; never remembers seeing her in a pregnant condition. On cross examination did not remember of a girl named Maggie Curry ever working for the Grodevants. Did not know of Minnie being away from the Grodevant house and Maggie Curry substituting for her; unable to describe Minnie Atkins or tell anything about her appearance.

MARY A. COLLINS (Rec., p. 1643):

Wife of the witness, Patrick Collins, and corroborates her husband's testimony on direct examination. Knew all the Grodevant servants including Minnie and Mayme, Frances Roff and Julia Forkay; paid no particular attention to Minnie; that she was a slovenly sort of girl and wore loose clothes; that she might have been away from the Grodevant house for a month or more without witness knowing it. Never knew of Maggie Curry working for the Grodevants.

William E. Dawes (Rec., p. 1654):

Went to work at Fort Leavenworth in 1882 as assistant foreman to Herbert Grodevant; assisted in the construction of the Grodevant house and was around there on several occasions doing work for Grodevant in the fall of 1884 and 1885; saw a girl around the Grodevant house by the name of Indian Minnie; she never appeared to witness to be in a pregnant condition. On cross examiation testified that he saw the girl but a few times; paid little attention to her and was never personally acquainted with her.

Lewis Young (Rec., p .1662):

Lived adjoining the Fort Leavenworth reservation in 1884 and 1885; knew Herbert Grodevant and his family; saw an Indian girl around their house; never knew her to be in a pregnant condition; never spoke to her in his life; never knew her personally, and witness' observation of her condition was casual.

Mrs. Margaret Jackson (Rec., p. 1669):

Knew a girl named Indian Minnie who was working for the Grodevants in 1884 and 1885; never paid much attention to the girl or had any particular interest in her.

Mary N. Cunningham (Rec., p. 1673):

Lived at Fort Leavenworth in 1884 and 1885; knew the Grodevants and that they had a girl working for them that was pointed out to her as Indian Minnie; that in May, 1885, witness and her sister were picking crabapple blossoms and saw the girl Minnie, hanging up dish towels in the Grodevant yard; fixed the date of the incident by reason of the movement of the Twentieth Infantry; only saw Minnie once or twice after that event; never knew her to be in a pregnant condition. On cross examination testified she didn't know Minnie personally and only saw her a few times.

Helen Beeler (Rec., p. 1695):

Sister of the witness, Mary N. Cunningham, corroborative of her sister's testimony in reference to the picking of crabapple blossoms and seeing Minnie at the Grodevants. Witness thought Minnie was a colored girl, but the Grodevants told her she was an Indian. Never noticed Minnie in a pregnant condition, but was not personally acquainted with her.

James F. Bierley (Rec., p. 1704):

Worked at Fort Leavenworth from 1883 to 1886, inclusive, driving a mule team; knew a girl named Indian Minnie, who worked at Herbert Grodevant's, but never notied her in a pregnant condition; did not talk to her very often.

Roy Reynolds (Rec., pp. 1708-1711):

Clerk Census Office, Washington, D. C.; identified Government's Exhibit "A-98," United States return for 1890 of the family of Mollie Letcher. Testified that an examination of the records of the Census Office of the 1890 census return failed to show any person by the name of Thomas Atkins, Tommy Atkins, Tommodore, Commodore or Indian Tommy listed as a resident of Leavenworth.

Larry Brown (Rec., p. 1712):

Chicken Dixon (Rec., p. 1714):

George Clinton (Rec., p. 1716):

These three witnesses, Creek Indians, were members of Euchee Town and testified to being present at the sessions of the Creek Council in May, 1901, and as to the procedure before the Dawes Commission at that time.

Joseph H. Callahan (Rec., p. 1721):

Sixty years of age and came to Leavenworth, February 5, 1884; worked on the construction of the street railway system; went to work for Wells-Fargo Express Company January 22, 1887; knew

George Hyde, banker, and that an Indian woman worked for him in 1884, but never knew her name; located Van Tyle's livery barn at Third and Seneca Streets, where he kept his team when driving for the Wells-Fargo Company; saw an Indian woman with a baby on her back in that locality that they called Indian Mary or Indian something; describes the woman; unable to identify the woman he saw at Van Tyle's barn as the same woman he saw at Hyde's house.

Eli Nirdlinger (Rec., p. 1730):

Attorney at law, Leavenworth, Kansas, and lived there since 1882; testified that in 1883 he knew an Indian woman in the neighborhood of Third and Seneca streets whose name was Mary; witness is positive that the time he knew this woman was in 1883. No cross examination.

Katherine Williams (Rec., p. 1732):

Knew a woman around Leavenworth and the reservation called "Indian Mary;" described her as dark-skinned, about thirty years of age, and that she was found dead on Salt Creek; witness never knew of her working any place or cooking for any family.

Joseph A. Cranston (Rec., p. 1743):

Partner of George Crilley in the livery business in Leavenworth, Kansas. Testified that in 1884 and 1885 he and Crilley had two barns, one on Seneca street and the other on Cherokee street; knew the Letcher house on Seneca sreet; never knew a woman there by the name of Indian Minnie nor a boy by the name of Tommy. On cross examination admitted that he spent most of his time at the Cherokee street barn and made no effort to post himself as to the inmates of the Letcher house on Seneca street.

CHARLEY HUDSON (Rec., p. 1747):

Negro, fifty-one years of age; in the fall of 1884 lived with Mollie Letcher at her house on Cherokee street; knew her when she moved to the house on Seneca street; never knew of a woman living with Mrs. Letcher by the name of Indian Minnie nor a boy who lived there by the name of Tommy.

LAURA THOMAS (Rec., p. 1763):

Negress, born in Leavenworth in 1865; knew Mollie Letcher when she lived on Cherokee street and afterwards when she moved to Seneca street; went to live with her on Seneca street soon after she moved there; never knew of a woman named Indian Minnie nor a boy named Tommy at Granny Letcher's; testified as to other persons who lived at Granny Letcher's .

On cross examination fixed the date when she went to Granny Letcher's as the day that the Scotts and Mary Anthony went there. Witness also admitted that she had refreshed her memory as to dates after consulting with Sadie James.

ELIZABETH BRADFORD (Rec., p. 1825):

Negress, fifty-seven years of age; did not know Granny Letcher until 1893; her daughter, Georgiana Payne, married Jim Mayo, Granny Letcher's son, in 1890; knew the members of Granny Letcher's household; never knew of Indian Minnie nor a boy named Tommy Atkins around Granny Letcher's On cross examination admitted that she did not know Granny Letcher or any of the persons around her house until after 1893.

BELLE REED (Rec., p. 1839):

Negress, forty-six years old; lived at Mollie Letcher's as Jim Mayo's wife for two years, beginning September, 1888; did not know Tommy Atkins.

CORRIENNE WOOLFOLK (Rec., p. 1855):

Testified that she was born in 1889, the year her sister, Nancy Frances, died.

M. BAHLER (Rec., p. 1856):

Chief of the Leavenworth fire department; testifying from fire department records fixed June 18, 1886, as the date of the burning of the Brock property, and February 25, 1889, as the date of the burning of the Kelly-Lysle mill.

ELIZA LAVALLAY (Rec., p. 1859):

Illiterate negress; moved to Granny Letcher's the night of the burning of the Kelly-Lysle mill; never knew Minnie Atkins, Tommy Atkins, Indian Minnie or Indian Tommy at Granny Letcher's. On cross examination admitted that she probably did not remain at Granny Letcher's more than a month.

ALICE PAIRE (Rec., p. 1885):

Negress, testified that on the night of the burning of the Kelly-Lysle mill she, her sister, Eliza Lavallay, her mother, Jane Scott, and her brothers and sisters moved into a room at Granny Letcher's house and lived there about a month, and that while there never knew of an Indian Minnie or a boy named Tommy.

MARY LOWER (Rec., p. 1906):

Negress, forty-three years old, moved with the witnesses, Eliza LaVallay and Alice Paire, and the other members of their family, to Granny Letcher's house the night of the Kelly-Lysle mill fire; that while at Granny Letcher's never knew an Indian woman named Minnie nor of any Indian boy being there. On cross examination admitted that she was only at the Letcher house four times; that while there she worked out and that there might have been a boy there that she knew nothing about.

Julia T. Carter (Rec., p. 1924):

Negress, thirty-one years of age; sister of the witnesses, Alice Paire and Eliza LaVallay, corroborative of their testimony in reference to moving to Granny Letcher's the night of the Kelly-Lysle mill fire; never knew of a Tommy Atkins at Granny Letcher's.

George Dale (Rec., p. 1931):

Forty-one years of age and lived at Mollie Letcher's two years before she died in 1898, and never knew of Tommy Atkins living there.

John Phillips (Rec., p. 1935):

Negro, about forty years of age; went to Leavenworth when he was about seven or eight years old; went to live in the stone house on Seneca street next to Granny Letcher's and never knew a boy named Tommy Atkins.

Fanny Isam (Rec., p. 1969):

Lived with Alice Woods on Seneca street in Leavenworth for about three years in the eighties near Granny Letcher's house; knew Walter Banks, Sam Nash and Jim Mayo, but never knew of a boy named Tommy Atkins living at Granny Letcher's.

Emma Gatewood (Rec., p. 1975):

Negress, forty-four years of age; lived on Seneca street between Second and Third streets, for four or five years in the eighties; lived in the rear of the Feth house; knew Granny Letcher, who died in the same block, and the people that lived with her; knew Jim Mayo, Walter Banks and Sam Nash; never knew a woman named Indian Minnie nor a boy named Indian Tommy around the house. This witness on cross examination testified as to a conversation between her and her deceased brother, Walter Woods, and E. C. Hanford, counsel for the defendant, Minnie Folk, at which she was present, and that her brother, Walter Woods, told Hanford that he remembered Tommy Atkins very well, played with him in the neighborhood, and described him to Hanford.

Nettie Brown (Rec., p. 1997):

Negress; at one time married to Jim Mayo and lived with him at Granny Letcher's place on Seneca street; knew Walter Banks and Sam Nash; never knew a boy named Tommy Atkins; unable to fix date when she went to live with Jim Mayo; never knew of any other children around Granny Letcher's with the exception of Walter Banks and Sam Nash; knew nothing of Jim Mayo's business and stated that Granny Letcher did not take care of babies. On cross examination this witness was unable to testify with accuracy as to any events in her life; admitted she had been frequently arrested and convicted and at the time that she gave her deposition was living in open adultery.

Richard Joseph Winfield (Rec., p. 2026):

Negro, forty-five years of age; frequenter of Granny Letcher's house on Seneca street; knew Jim Mayo and another boy who lived there whose name he did not remember; never knew of an Indian woman or boy living at Granny Letcher's.

Mattie Tutt (Rec., p. 2031):

Knew Granny Letcher in Leavenworth about two and a half years prior to her death in 1899; witness lived with Jim Mayo as his wife in 1899; never knew a boy named Tommy around the Letcher house when she lived there.

Martha Miller (Rec., p. 2039):

Negress, forty-three years of age; knew Mollie Letcher when she lived on Seneca street; never knew of a woman named Indian Minnie or a boy named Indian Tommy living with her.

Tom McKenzie (Rec., p. 2049):

Negro, fifty-two years old; knew Granny Letcher in the eighties when she was living on Cherokee street and later on Seneca street; knew certain members of her family, but did not know a woman named Indian Minnie or a boy named Tommy. Witness was unable to accurately fix dates.

C. M. MOATES (Rec., p. 2059):

Practicing physician in the City of Leavenworth; resided there since November 27, 1888; knew Granny Letcher when she lived on Seneca street between Second and Third streets; began treating her in a professional capacity in 1889 and continued to treat her at various times until her death in 1899; was often at her house; never knew or saw a boy around there by the name of Indian Tommy or Tommy Atkins. On cross examination admitted that the only other persons at Granny Letcher's he knew were Jim Mayo and Sam Nash.

MARY NASH (Rec., p. 2065):

Negress, sixty years of age; stepmother of Sam Nash; witness knew Mollie Letcher all the time that she lived in Leavenworth; never knew of a woman named Indian Minnie or a boy named Tommy around the Letcher house. On cross examination admitted that she lived a considerable distance from the Letcher house, having moved to West Leavenworth in 1879; was only at Granny Letcher's twice after that and there were many people at the Letcher house she did not know.

Georgia Flint (Rec., p. 2075):

Married Jim Mayo, whom she knew as Jim Philip, in October, 1890, at Atchinson, Kansas, and went to Leavenworth after her marriage and lived at the home of Jim Mayo's mother, Mollie Letcher, on Choctaw street, and afterwards on Shawnee street; that Sam Nash and Walter Banks were living with Mrs. Letcher while witness lived there; that there was also a little girl Mrs. Letcher was keeping by the name of Maude; that while she lived at Mrs. Letcher's she never heard of a boy by the name of Thomas, Tommy Indian Tommy or Thomas Atkins.

John C. Ketcheson (Rec., p. 2085):

Resident of Leavenworth, Kansas; engaged in the printing and binding business; publisher of Green's City Directory of Leavenworth for the years 1885 and 1886; identified copies of the city directory of Leavenworth for these two years; testified that the data for the directory was generally furnished him in February or March of the year in which the same was published; the 1885 directory showed Lilly White living at 217 Seneca street; the 1886 directory showed Mollie Letcher at 217 Seneca street.

Mrs. A. G. Wilds (Alvina D'Laval) (Rec., p. 2132):

Witness had no personal knowledge of the defendants, Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, or Nancy Atkins prior to May, 1915, when she became acquainted with the defendant, Minnie Folk, when she was employed by a man named Kohler, who was an operative of a detective agency, to establish friendly terms with Minnie Folk for the purpose of installing a dictagraph in her home with a view to having conversations between the witness and Minnie Folk reported and detailed to J. Truman Nixon, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, by whom through Kohler, she was ostensibly employed.

Witness had previously been a school teacher in Seattle, and as an amateur detective detailed the manner of her becoming acquainted with Minnie Folk; her visits to Mrs. Folk's home, the installation of the dictagraph and conversations she had with Mrs. Folk. The records of the conversations transmitted over the dictagraph were reduced to writing; the witness testified these transcribed conversations were never sworn to for the reason that the dictagraph operatives at the receiving end disagreed as to the reported conversations. Witness also detailed at length incidents of a visit to Tulsa, Oklahoma, and conversations with J. Truman Nixon and the defendant, Chas. Page.

Robert L. Baugh (Rec., p. 2159):

Testified as to an examination made by him of the records of the County Clerk of Creek County, and that there were no instruments of record affecting the title to the land in controversy, with the exception of the deeds, or patents, from the Creek Nation to Thomas Atkins, until the forged deed from Minnie Atkins to H. U. Bartlett in 1912, and that the first instrument of record from the defendant, Minnie Folk, was an oil and gas lease to the Gem Oil Company executed by Alexander McNabb, trustee, and Minnie E. Folk and Harry B. Folk, her husband, June 24, 1914, which was filed for record June 29, 1914.

Stuart Brewster (Rec., p. 3902):

Thirty years of age, resident of Leavenworth, Kansas; introduced as a witness by the Government to rebut testimony of Alva Adams and other witnesses who knew Tommy Atkins in and around Leavenworth from 1895 to 1898; testified to knowing a number of boys with whom he played around the neighborhood where Alva Adams lived and played, but never remembered hearing of a boy named Tommy Atkins or Tommy.

R. O. Larkin (Rec., p. 4376):

Seventy-three years old; testified that Mary Letcher, or Mollie Letcher, was formerly a slave who belonged to his father; she first married a man named Billy Mayo; that she removed to Leavenworth shortly after the Civil War; that he saw her in and around Leavenworth in 1884; remembered her son, Jim Mayo, and a boy named Sammy; never knew of a boy named Tommy around her house. Witness was unable to fix definitely dates of his visits to Granny Letcher's or where she was living at the time, but "thinks" it was when Cleveland was nominated and elected in 1884.

ERNEST ENDRESS (Rec., p. 4382):

Born in Leavenworth, January 4, 1887; and knew Alva Adams, Willie Warren, Ed Baker and other boys who played in the neighborhood of Third and Seneca streets about 1897 or 1898. Testimony of witness was offered by the government in rebuttal of the testimoy of Alva Adams and other boys as to knowing Thomas Atkins or Indian Tommy in the same neighborhood. Testified that he did not know any boy by the name of Tommy Atkins, or Indian Tommy, that played with the boys he knew about that time.

FLOYD HUNT (Rec., p. 4386):

Thirty-two years of age, resident of Leavenworth, and lived at 210 Olive Street in 1896, 1897 and 1898. Remembered the names of a number of boys that he played with about that time, but could recollect no boy named Tommy Atkins, Commodore, Indian Tommy or "Trailer." During the examination of this witness defendant's Exhibit "B-24," a map of the City of Leeavenworth showing the streets and alleys, was introduced in evidence. Witness made an examination thereof and testified that when he was nine or ten years old he was living on Olive street, some eight blocks from Third and Seneca streets.

W. D. Warren (Rec., p. 4392):

Resident of Leavenworth, Kansas, thirty-one years old; witness introduced by the Government to rebut testimony of Alva Adams as to his knowledge of Tommy Atkins. Witness testified that from 1894 to 1898 he played with a number of boys around Leavenworth and named a number of boys around Leavenworth and named a number of boys mentioned by Alva Adams in his testimony, but that he never knew an Indian boy that played with them that was nicknamed "Trailer," or any boy by the name of Tommy Atkins; never knew any of the persons who lived at Granny Letcher's house on Seneca street and never played around that particular house. On cross-examination testified that the boys he ran with generally played around Fifth and Second streets.

T. W. Bell (Rec., p. 4433):

Of counsel for defendant, Henry Carter, testified in reference to incidents preceding the taking of the deposition of Mrs. Mattie Cobb offered on behalf of the defendants, Folk and Page.

W. T. Hutchings (Rec., p. 4441):

Fixed April 20, 1885, as falling on Monday.

R. E. Martin (Rec., p. 4442):

A party in interest to this litigation under an oil and gas lease from Henry Carter; testified as to incidents preceding the taking of the deposition of Mrs. Mattie Cobb offered on behalf of the defendants, Folk and Page.

Benjamin B. Blakeney (Rec., p. 4446):

Of counsel for defendant, Henry Carter; testified in reference to incidents preceding the taking of Mrs. Mattie Cobb's deposition offered on behalf of the defendants, Folk and Page.

Irwin Donovan (Rec., p. 4451):

Attorney at law, Muskogee, Oklahoma; employed in the office of the Dawes Commission from September, 1904, to January, 1905; testified as to Dawes Commission procedure as to notations made on census cards.

Frank Kersten (Rec., p. 4454):

City detective, Leavenworth, Kansas; testified from the police court records of Leavenworth that records show no arrest of a Thomas Atkins from 1890 to 1891. This witness was produced by the Government to rebut the testimony of the policeman Patrick Delaney.

Elizabeth Dillman (Rec., p. 4462):

Knew the defendant, Minnie Folk (nee Atkins), at Fort Leavenworth in 1885 when she was employed as a servant at the Grodevant house and testified in reference to a Decoration Day celebration of that year and that she saw Minnie Atkins there and that she was not in a pregnant condition.

This witness was called in rebuttal by the Government for the apparent purpose of refuting the testimony she gave in a deposition in October, 1914, in the state court case; a part of this deposition was read at page 3444 of the transcript to the effect that she became acquainted with Minnie Atkins at Fort Logan, Colorado, and never knew or saw her in Leavenworth, but that her knowledge of Minnie Atkins living in Leavenworth was entirely hearsay.

J. C. Kennedy (Rec., p. 4465):

An employee of the office of the Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes; testified as to custom of office in preparing certified copes of census cards.

Dr. Finis W. Ewing (Rec., p. 4469):

Practicing physician, Muskogee, Oklahoma; introduced as a witness in rebuttal by the Government for the purpose of refuting the testimony of Dr. C. R. Carpenter, a witness for the defendants, Folk and Page. Admitted, on cross examination, that the condition found by Dr. Carpenter in Minnie Atkins at the time of the delivery of Robert Lee Peterkin might have been caused by the birth of a previous child.

Thomas Mozee (Rec., p. 4482):

Testified that he never knew a boy named Thomas Atkins around Ella Abbott's or Crilley's livery barn on Seneca street between Second and Third streets.

Mrs. Ada Amerly Van Duzee (Rec., p. 4505):

White woman who lived in Leavenworth in the eighties on Second street, west of 217 Seneca street; knew that the house was occupied by obnoxious white women; that there was complaint in the neighborhood as to the character of the inmates of the house; was unable to fix the time when the house was so occupied.

Joseph E. Vorhees (Rec., p. 4509):

County Clerk of Leavenworth County, Kansas; records of the sheriff's office of Leavenworth County, pertaining to deputy sheriffs for the years 1887, 1888 and 1889.

Charles R. Warren (Rec., p. 4515):

Born at 202 Shawnee street, Leavenworth, in 1890; lived at various places in the city and played with different crowds of boys; never heard of a boy named Tommy Atkins or Indian Tommy or a boy nicknamed "Trailer." On cross examination testified that he never heard of Granny Letcher or knew anything of her until he read of the present case in the newspapers.

Fred S. Cook (Rec., p. 4522; recalled, p. 4535):

Was in the employ of the United States Indian service in March, 1915; testified as to conversation he had with Dr. C. R. Carpenter, a witness for the defendants, Folk and Page, in San Diego, California, in March, 1915. Testimony of this witness was offered to rebut the expert testimony of Dr. Carpenter as to Minnie Atkins having a child prior to the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin. The witness' testimony on this particular proposition is as follows:

"Q: Did Dr. Carpenter at that time say that he attended Minnie Atkins at the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin and that that was the first child she gave birth to?

A. He didn't say Minnie Atkins. He knew her as Peterkin. He attended her at a place owned, I believe, by a woman by the name of Woods, and in the conversation the question was asked if this was her first child. He said, so far as he could remember it was, but that his records would bear him out whichever way it was and that his records were at Leavenworth, Kansas."

Dr. John Hutchings White (Rec., p. 4538):

Practicing physician at Muskogee, Oklahoma, qualified as an expert, and introduced by the Government to rebut the testimony of Dr. C. R. Carpenter that from the examination made by Dr. Carpenter at the time he attended Minnie Atkins at the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin her physical condition showed that she had previously given birth to a child. Witness was asked a number of hypothetical questions on direct examination and on cross examination admitted that a condition such as was testified to by Dr. Carpenter at the time of the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin could have been caused by the birth of a previous child.

F. L. Montgomery (Rec., p. 4545):

Mr. Montgomery was recalled by the Government for the purpose of rebutting certain testimony of the witness E. C. Hanford in reference to occurrences at Seattle in December, 1914.

C. B. Malcomb (Rec., p. 4559; recalled, p. 4601):

Introduced in rebuttal by the Government and detailed conversations had with the defendant, Chas. Page, and his agent, F. B. Long, with reference to finding a dead Indian boy who would correspond to the Thomas Atkins on the Dawes Commission records. On cross examination testified that he last time he talked with Page about the Atkins case was in March or April, 1914, and that a few days before testifying on the stand he had a conversation with C. Lipscomb, a banker of Bixby, Oklahoma. Witness was interrogated as to a memorandum that he examined prior to going on the stand and was ordered by the Court to produce the same and he admitted that he had secured it in the office of the United States Attorney.

C. H. (Hook) ROGERS (Rec., p. 4579):

Testified as to conversation had with F. B. Long in March or April, 1914, and employment by Long; introduced as a witness by the Government to rebut testimony of F. B. Long; on cross examination admitted signing a receipt for $50.00 which was settlement in full for all his services to Long and Page. Also admitted that he was under arrest for counterfeiting.

D B. ELLIOTT (Rec., p. 4587):

Attorney at law, Tulsa, Oklahoma; detailed a meeting with Chas. Page in February, 1914; and a subsequent conversation in 1915 when witness was representing J. Truman Nixon.

Mitchell Wadsworth (Rec., p. 4598):

Son of Kate Holden and cousin of Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, and Nancy Atkins; testified as to receiving a letter from Minnie Atkins, written from Detroit, Michigan, in 1898 or 1899, asking witness to file for her and her two boys, Harvey and Charley Harrison.

W. P. Z. German (Rec., p. 4637):

Of counsel for the complainant; detailed conversation with Dick Nichols in Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1916, as to what Rube Smith had told Nichols about money being paid for witnesses in the Atkins case.

Analysis of Evidence as to Minnie Atkins Pro and Con.

Before entering upon the task of examining the evidence above briefly set out both for and against Minnie Atkins, we desire to preface our remarks with a few suggestions.

We must not lose sight of the fact that the Circuit Court of Appeals, in its opinion on the receivership phase of this case, measured the strengtth of the Government's testimony and declared that on the testimony as introduced by the Government against Minnie Atkins there was no probability of a recovery against her by the Government on the allegations of the bill at a final trial.

The Court in that opinion said that in order to jutify a receivership of real estate in the possession of adverse parties the plaintiff must establlish to the satisfaction of the Court hearing his application for a receiver that a strong probability existed that the plaintiff would prevail in that case. Judge Sanborn, on page 185, Federal Reporter, Volume 233, at the bottom of the page, asks this pertinent question:

> "Did the plaintiffs (meaning the Government) establish the fact that there was a strong probability that they would prevail on final trial?"

After stating the burden which the Government was required to carry in this case the Court uses this language, and we quote at length, because it not only answers and sustains the proposition we are now asserting, but throws much light as to the showing which must be made by Nancy Atkins in this cause. Judge Sanborn, beginning on page 186, Vol. 233, Federal Reporter, says:

> "The only evidence the plaintiffs produced was the affidavit of Mr. Merrick, verified February 25, 1915, more than thirteen years after the event; that in May, 1901, he was a clerk and employe of the Dawes Commission; that on May 23, 1901, he 'listed for enrollment as a citizen by blood of the Creek Nation, the name of Thomas Atkins, who is enrolled opposite roll number 7913 of the final roll of Commission and on census card No. 2707, Field No. 2774, a true copy of which census card is hereto attached and made a part of this affidavit; that the evidence which induced him to list Thomas Atkins was the authenticated 1895 roll of Creek citizens, which said roll was used and relied upon by said Commission and by myself as the representative of said Commission 'in enrolling the name of Thomas Atkins.' (We may here suggest to this Honorable Court that Merrick's testimony is much fuller in this case now than it was in the receivership case, he having testified here in person and simply by affidavit in the receivership case.) The census card recorded these facts: That Thomas Atkins was a Creek Indian of half-blood, 10 years of age; that he was enrolled on the authenticated Creek tribal roll of 1895 as of Euchee township, under the name of Thos. Atkins No. 213, and that on the roll Minnie Atkins was recorded as his mother, and a white man as his father. Mr. Merrick further deposed that he had searched and found in the office of the Dawes Commission, where such matters are kept, memorandum or notation indicating that evidence or information was had or received by the Commission on the question whether Thomas Atkins was living or dead on April 1, 1899, and that he had no recollection of any such evidence or information had or received by himself, although somebody—who it was he said he could not recall—gave him information as to about the time of the alleged birth and parentage of the said Thomas Atkins; that the final roll of citizens by blood of the Creek Tribe 'was made up from the said census card under my personal supervision and compared and reviewed by some member of the Commission, and the > enrollment thus made was approved by the Secretary of the Interior on March 28, 1902.' "

> Folk v. United States, 233 Fed. Rep. at pages 186-187.

We call the attention of the Court to the fact that this is exactly, in substance, what Merrick testified to in this case except that Merrick added, which gives great force to his testimony, tha when he made out the census card he intended to designate Thomas Atkins as the son of Minnie Atkins, and that he did so designate him, and that the Dawes Commission so found.

The Court after discussing the various Acts of Congress applicable to the controversy, resumes:

> "The Act of March 1, 1901 (31 Stat. 869, c. 676, Section 28), provided that all citizens who were living on the 1st day of April, 1899, entitled to be enrolled under the Act of June 28, 1898, should be placed upon the rolls. The Act of June 28, 1898, was not simply an Act of Congress. It embodied and ratified the agreement between the Creek Nation and the United States. * * * Among the rolls and records of the Creek Tribe duly authenticated by the approval of the Creek Council, was a roll of citizens made by the tribe of 1890, another made in 1895, the pay roll of that nation for the year 1895, upon which a per capita payment was made to citizens of the tribe. On the roll of 1890 appeared 'Minnie Atkins (Thos. and Mary, 2 children).' On the roll of 1895 appeared the names of Minnie Atkins and Thomas Atkins and the receipt of Minnie Atkins for a > payment to herself and also a payment of like amount to her as the per capita payment due to her son, Thomas Atkins."

Folk v. United States, 233 Fed. Rep. at page 188. The learned Judge then takes up the Acts of Congress making the rolls evidence, and declares that the Dawes Commission was justified in taking the rolls as evidence, and uses this language:

> "As the Commission was required by the Acts of Congress to give full force and effect to the authenticated tribal rolls, the usages and customs of each tribe and was by those acts given access to all their rolls and records, the Creek Rolls of 1890 and 1895, on each of which Minnie Atkins and Thomas Atkins as her son were enrolled as citizens of the tribe by blood, constituted not only prima facie, but in the absence of strong and persuative countervailing proof, conclusive evidence before the Commission, of the right of Thomas Atkins to enrollment as a citizen of the Creek Tribe."
> —Folk v. United States, 233 Fed. Rep. at page 189.

The Court then takes up another issue and that is whether or not Thomas Atkins, the son of Minnie, ever lived and, after reviewing the testimony, he declared it to be conflicting and, standing alone, without corroboration, would have left the issue doubtful, but that doubt no longer existed when he considered what he declares was the most reliable evidence in the case, and this is his language:

> "But this testimony is not all the evidence, nor is it the most reliable evidence, upon that issue. There is the Creek tribal roll of 1890, which records Minnie Atkins and two children, Thomas and Mary; there is the Creek tribal roll of 1895, which records Minnie Atkins and Thomas Atkins, there is the receipt of Minnie Atkins upon the pay roll of that year for the payment to her of the per capita allowance for her son Thomas; there is the testimony of the care with which these rolls were made by the town king, corrected by the town meeting, investigated and purged by the committee of the Creek Council and there is the fact that these rolls were made and approved within 11 years after the alleged birth of Thomas, among the acquaintances of Minnie Atkins, all naturally jealous of and watchful to prevent any undue payment of tribal funds to each other, and there is the fact that under the Creek Agreement the tribe had the right to appear before the Commission and by its agents and its attorney, who during all the enrollment proceedings was under retainer and salary to protect the rights of the tribe, and to prevent the enrollment by the Commission of Thomas Atkins if he was not entitled thereto, and the Creek Agreement that if this was not done the roll of the Commission should be final."
> —Folk v. United States, 233 Fed. Rep. at page 190.

And then the learned Judge makes this deduction from all the testimony:

> "Is it not much more probable that those rolls are right, that Thomas Atkins was living > when they were made, and that the people of Euchee Township, at whose meetings they were corrected, knew that he was living and satisfied the officers of the tribe of that fact, than it is that the testimony of witnesses gathered by interested parties to testify to occurrences 20 years behind them tending to show that no such person existed is true? This Court will hesitate long to hold on such testimony that Thomas Atkins never existed in the face of these old and hitherto unassailed corrected rolls of the Creek Tribe, and their persuasive evidence of a living Thomas Atkins, the son of Minnie Atkins, when they were made. The proof now before the court that he never existed, that he was a myth, is not clear, unambiguous, convincing or satisfactory to this Court."

> —Folk v. United States, 233 Fed. Rep. 191.

From these citations in the opinion of the Court it is clear that it was the opinion of the Court, that the roll of 1890 was clear and showed Minnie Atkins to have a son named Thomas; that the roll of 1895 was unequivocal and showed Minnie Atkins to have a son by the name of Thomas; that the pay roll of 1895 was unequivocal and showed Minnie Atkins to have a son by the name of Thomas; and that the census card prepared by the Dawes Commission was unequivocal and showed Minnie Atkins to have a son by the name of Thomas. Now the Court was careful to state the force and effect of these rolls as probative evidence. It was careful to say that if no other evidence had been taken than the rolls themselves, that it required overpowering proof to set aside these rolls. This being true, it declared that the Government's position, even outside of the rolls, left the issue as to the existence or non-existence of Thomas Atkins gravely in doubt, and that, therefore, this doubt would operate to defeat the Government.

Since the receivership trial a great amount of additional evidence has been taken both by the Government and by Minnie Atkins, and we make bold to now say that the testimony in favor of Minnie Atkins is an hundredfold stronger than it was on the receivership hearing, and that the testimony of the Government, while somewhat stronger, does not compare in its additional strength with the added strength of the testimony in favor of Minnie Atkins. If this is true, then the evidence of the Government outside of the rolls, when considered in conjunction with the evidence in favor of Minnie Atkins, still leaves the claim as to the non-existence of Thomas Atkins (if that could under the law be now considered by this Court, and we challenge it strenuously), as unsustained and exactly the same condition exists as existed when the 8th Circuit Court rendered its opinion as above. No matter how favorably we may view whatever evidence the Government and Nancy offered at the trial, the rolls turn the scale, if indeed the scale needed turning, in favor of the claim of Minnie Atkins.

The history of Minnie Atkins presents a tragedy seldom met in the life of a young, wild, untrained and unprotected girl. The Creek people sent her to Carlisle school in 1881 when she was little more than a child. She was a wild girl, difficult to manage and indeed so unruly that the authorities at Carlisle concluded that they would hire her out, and consequently sent her to Leavenworth to work for a banker by the name of Hyde. She went to Mr. Hyde's in July, 1884. According to its chronology, we first take the testimony of Mrs. Cornelia Hyde Collins. This witness is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Hyde, and was born in Leavenworth in 1870; was about fourteen years of age when Minnie came to work for her parents; she (Minnie Atkins) was well grown for her age and rather forward in her development according to Mrs. Collins' testimony. The witness left Leavenworth in 1888, went to Honolulu in the Hawaiian Islands; remained there until 1897, married and has since resided at Pittsfield, Massachusetts.

And we ask the Court here and now to observe the high character of the witnesses for Minnie Atkins in this case. There are some, of course, who were disreputable and whose testimony ought to be subjected to rigid examination, but in the main her witnesses are men and women of high social standing and unimpeached and unimpeachable veracity. Such a woman is Mrs. Cornelia Hyde Collins. She testified that she knew Minnie Atkins when she worked for her father and mother in 1884 and remembers a soldier on several occasions hanging around the back door of the house with Minnie Atkins; states that Minnie left their place some time in 1884 or the beginning of 1885, and that shortly after she left the employment of her father and mother, probably some few months, she saw Minnie in a pregnant condition on the street in front of a disreputable house and was much shocked at the sight, and that she realized for the first time why she had left the employ of her father and mother. This witness places Minnie's pregnancy in 1885. It is in evidence that Minnie went from Hyde's to Grodevant's at Fort Leavenworth and there worked for Grodevant. At this time she was pregnant with this boy, Tommy.

Now we present another witness to the Court of the very highest character. This witness, Mrs. Emily Ripley, testified that she went to Leavenworth in 1878 with her husband, who was employed by the Government as chief clerk in the Leavenworth penitentiary; that she knew Mrs. Grodevant, with whom she was on intimate terms and was a near neighbor. That she made frequent visits to the Grodevant house and often saw Minnie Atkins and saw her when she was in a pregnant condition and spoke to Mrs. Grodevant about it. She fixed these visits to the Grodevants as the year 1885, because she said in that year she gave birth to one child and lost another by death; that her living child was born in January, 1885, and that her other child died in August, 1885, and was buried at Fort Leavenworth, and she fixes the time that she saw Minnie pregnant between the date of the birth of her child in January and the death of her child in August; that she never saw Minnie Atkins after the death of her child in August, 1885, but that she saw Minnie a short time after she noticed her pregnancy and she had resumed her normal shape.

In this connection the Court will keep in mind the Grodevant book which showed Minnie Atkins working for Grodevant at a certain time in 1885, her disappearance for several weeks in June of that year and the employment during the interim, of Mrs. John D. Sheehan, then Maggie, or Margaret, Curry. It will thus be seen that the Grodevant book, upon which the Government relied, but which was thoroughly explained, corroborates Mrs. Emily Ripley.

Minnie Atkins called David Atchison, a man who has lived in Leavenworth, Kansas, for sixty years, and who was engaged in the wood, coal, ice and feed business in Leavenworth in the eighties. Atchison testified that he knew Minnie Atkins in 1885 by the name of "Indian Minnie" when she would come to his wood and coal yard to buy coal for Granny Letcher, and that she frequently had a baby in her arms. That Granny Letcher lived on Seneca street between Second and Third streets in a frame building owned by a German named Dotter; that the baby carried by Minnie was called by his employes as "Minnie's papoose," and he fixes the year positively as 1885 by identifying it with a boom in Leavenworth which he declared was a well known and epochal fact in that city. This witness was before the Court. He fixed the time in 1885 when he saw Minnie Atkins as the fall of 1885 which, according to Minnie's testimony, was just a few months after the baby was born. The Court saw this witness and heard him testify and knew what manner of man he was.

L. B. Bell is employed in the Sheffield Car and Equipment Company of Kansas City. He knew Indian Minnie; he knew Indian Tommy, the boy at Granny Letcher's that went by the nickname of "Commodore," and was usually called Tommy Atkins. This witness was not impeached nor contradicted. He fixes this date by reason of his marriage in the fall of 1883 and by the fact that he went to work in the fall of 1884 for a transfer company in the city of Leavenworth.

Mrs. John Welch carried meals to her father at Grilley's barn twice a day. She knew this boy, Tommy Atkins, and saw him frequently at Granny Letcher's.

Philip Tucker is engaged in the livery business in Kansas City, Mo. He formerly lived in Leavenworth, resided there for thirty years, knew Indian Minnie, remembered seeing her there around Granny Letcher's. He knew she gave birth to a child at Granny Letcher's; saw her nursing this child on Mrs. Letcher's porch and carrying the child in her arms; the child's name was Tommy and nicknamed "Commodore," and was an Indian boy. This man is a business man and has no interest in this case.

Alexander Ford and Wm. D. Ford, two colored witnesses, corroborated David Atchison and were working for him at the time Minnie came with her child to get wood for Granny Letcher.

The witness Roderick, whose testimony we have briefed above, is an old soldier. The trial judge saw him upon the stand and he was a bluff, straightforward, sincere, honest old man. He identifies Indian Minnie with great particularity. He fixes the date at which he left Leavenworth as being in 1886 by reference to a cyclone that blew down a girl's school building. It was about July 5, 1886. Later on in the testimony, which we have briefed above, Theresa Swoboda, assistant bookkeeper and stenographer in charge of the files of the Leavenworth Times, identifies copies of the issues of the Leavenworth Times of May 12 and May 13, 1886, establishing the date of a cyclone and windstorm at Leavenworth at which time thirty people were killed. This old soldier clinches the date at which he saw Minnie with a child at Granny Letcher's as the summer of 1885, and the Court will note that he testifies positively that he knew Mollie Peters, an old fortune teller, who lived on Third and Seneca streets, across from Letcher's, and on or about the last of June or the first day of July, 1885, at the request of this fortune teller, he went over to Granny Letcher's and saw Indian Minnie in bed with a baby; that he took the baby in his arms and carried the baby over to the fortune teller's house.

Now we beg that the Court will constantly keep in mind that the Peterkin baby which was born to Minnie was, under all the proof, by the Government and defendants alike, never at Granny Letcher's house, but was born in another house in another part of the city of Leavenworth and so, therefore, every witness who puts Minnie with a baby at Granny Letcher's house excludes all idea that it was the Peterkin baby without reference to the date at which they saw Minnie Atkins at Granny Letcher's.

We come now to Dr. C. R. Carpenter. This man testified that he delivered Minnie of her Peterkin baby in July, 1886, and that when he delivered her of this baby he discovered infallible signs in the way of lines and corrugations in her uterus which was proof positive that she had given birth to a full grown child prior to the birth of the Peterkin baby. An effort was made by the Government, in rebuttal, to discredit this witness and to show that his expert evidence as to signs of former pregnancy and childbirth were not accurate and reliable; but on cross-examination all of the Government's witnesses admitted that this might have been true and that these signs were a fact to be considered; but Dr. F. B. Fite, a distinguished physician and surgeon, testified that the signs of former pregnancy and childbirth found upon this woman, Minnie Atkins, when she had the Peterkin child were reliable, and were practically an infallible test.

We call the attention of the Court to the fact that the Government found this man Carpenter through their detectives and brought him up for examination, and for some reason, unknown to us, after they had talked with him, refused to put him upon the stand and upon such refusal he was put, at a hazard, upon the stand by Mr. Hanford, attorney for Minnie Folk (nee Atkins) and told the story against the Government which he finally told at the trial of this case.

We then come to Milton Webster, whose testimony is briefed above. Milton Webster works for an express company in Kansas City. He knew Minnie Atkins well, saw her about the 30th day of May, 1885, at Granny Letcher's in a highly pregnant condition. He saw her some time later with a little baby four or five weeks old. This man Webster evidently is a working man, so far as was known, of unimpeachable character. He testified that he fixed the date of May 30, 1885, when he saw her pregnant, because that was Decoration

Day, and the day that Broaddus shot Jobson, two significant facts calculated to remain indelible upon a man's memory.

Adolph Lange is a man of the highest intelligence and character. His identification of Minnie Atkins and of her pregnancy in 1885 is one of the most acute and impressive facts in this whole case. He said he used to sell the old fortune teller, Mollie Peters, a balsam mixture; that she suffered much dysentery and that he frequently saw Minnie Atkins with Mollie Peters in his drug store; that he remembers particularly that he saw her some time in the spring or summer of 1885, and that she was in a pregnant condition. He identifies this date with the utmost precision and particularity. He went to Europe in 1884; made a proffer to the Court of the papers which showed his passage on a certain ship, showed receipts of different hotels in Europe for bills paid in the summer and fall of 1884, and fixed his return to Leavenworth in the month of September, 1884. He knows that he saw Indian Minnie the next year after his return in that pregnant state, and one of the peculiar coincidents connected with Indian Minnie and with his testimony is the little pocketbook incident. He had two pocketbooks of the same kind in his store. They opened on the side, and he stated that when Indian Minnie came in his store in 1885 in her pregnant condition she took a fancy to one of these pocketbooks and he sold it to her. He kept the mate to this pocketbook and has it now and has carried it all these years as a receptacle for his lead sinkers, he being a great fisherman and much addicted to that character of sport. He says when he saw Minnie in the summer of 1885 the weather was warm, she was thinly clad and her pregnant condition was plainly observable. A man like Lange doesn't make any mistakes and when, under oath, seeking to tell the truth and whole truth after all these years, his testimony must be given weight in any court. He testified in person before the trial court.

We now come to A. W. Hopkins. This colored man showed great intelligence upon the stand and was unmoved and unshaken by an aggressive and searching cross-examination. He saw Minnie Atkins with this child in her arms in 1885. He fixes this date with great particularity. He is Grand Secretary of the Knights and Daughters of Tabor. He has been connected with that organization since 1883; sent to Memphis as a delegate to a meeting of the Grand Temple and Tabernacle at that place in 1884. He there met a woman who was a sentinel at that convention, whose sessions were in secret, by the name of Jane Anderson. She asked him if he knew Minnie Atkins at Leavenworth, and he said he did not. She asked him to look her up. He stayed in Memphis for some time during the fall of 1884 and returned to Leavenworth late in that fall and was taken sick and was unable to get around for some time. In 1885 he made some inquiry about Minnie Atkins and found out nothing, but later on he learned that she was staying around Granny Letcher's and in the late summer of 1885 saw her with a baby in her arms. He told Minnie what the Anderson woman had said to him at Memphis and Minnie said that the child she was carrying was her child. He saw Minnie at this time right near Granny Letcher's place. This witness was personally before the court.

The Court knows, because of the vigilance and zeal of the Government's attorneys, that all these public happenings which were pointed out by the foregoing witnesses as fixing dates had been investigated by the Government and found to be true, because the Government has neither assailed nor attempted to assail the correctness of these dates with reference to the public events.

The next witness to whom we direct the special attention of the Court is Patrick Delaney. This witness was a policeman and fireman, held office in both departments in Leavenworth for a number of years. He was on the police force in Leavenworth in 1894, laid off two years and went back in 1896, 1897 and 1898. This policeman, whose duty it was, of course, to run down unlawful and objectionable characters, testifies that he knew this Indian Tommy well and knew him around Granny Letcher's, and that he actually arrested this boy some time in 1896 or 1897. This man appeared to be a straightforward man and is now employed as night watchman at the Kansas City stock yards, a position of trust and responsibility. This witness was present at the trial.

We now come to a witness whose testimony it seems to us is very impressive and of the very highest probative force. James M. Allen was born in Leavenworth in 1852, and the proof shows that he was the first white child born in Leavenworth. He had been engaged most of his life in business as the general agent of the Rock Island railroad at Leavenworth, and was superintendent and ticket agent at the union depot at Leavenworth in 1884 and 1885. Allen's work carried him into all parts of the city of Leavenworth. He knew this girl Indian Minnie very well, and he testified that one day while in the neighborhood of Crilley's barn while out on a mission as soliciting passenger agent to build up the passenger traffic on his railroad, he went into Granny Letcher's house. It must be remembered that Jim Allen was a young man and probably knew Minnie better than he discloses. But, however this may be, he swears positively and unequivocally that he saw this Indian Minnie, the Minnie Atkins who is one of the defendants in this case, because there was no other Indian Minnie at Granny Letcher's, with a baby in her arms, and he saw her several times with this baby at Granny Letcher's, that her child was about three or four months old. He knows that this must have been either in 1884 or 1885, and that it could not have been as late as 1886 because he was at that time not on the street looking after passenger business.

We again repeat that if Minnie Atkins was at Granny Letcher's house in 1884 or 1885, as the case may be, with a baby, it could not have been the Peterkin baby, and it was necessarily this boy Thomas Atkins.

The next witness was Mattie Cobb. This woman, while the history of many members of her family is shady, is, as far as was disclosed, a woman of good character. She was a Mrs. Edwards in 1885, and she had a daughter born to her in that year by the name of Grace. This daughter was born across the street from and close to Granny Letcher's house. She knows that her daughter was born in the spring of 1885, and that Indian Minnie, who waited on her for awhile during her confinement, was pregnant with the child, and shortly afterwards she knows that Minnie Atkins had a child at Granny Letcher's and she saw this child.

We now come to the boys who played with Thomas Atkins around Granny Letcher's house. Thomas Higgins was a man thirty-six years of age, was born in Leavenworth and lived there until he moved to Kansas City in 1905. He knew Thomas Atkins, who lived at Granny Letcher's house, and played with him.

Alva Adams, another witness, knew Tommy Atkins as a boy and played with him. Saw him the last time about 1897 or 1898. The witness himself was arrested for petty theft of some brass from the railroad yards, and served a short sentence in the county jail in Leavenworth. We have already seen that Thomas Atkins was arrested about the same time. He detailed in a most convincing way the games that he and Tommy and the other boys used to play, told about the name "Trailer" which was given to Tommy, and in fact gave his testimony in a very convincing way. (This witness was before the Court.)

Elof A. Crilley knew the boy Tommy Atkins at Granny Letcher's house. He was George Crilley's son and lived just across the street from Granny Letcher's house. He knew Walter Banks, Jim Mayo and Sam Nash, who also lived at Granny Letcher's house. He appeared to be an honest man. George Crilley, whose testimony was very lengthy, knew this boy, nicknamed him "Commodore," and testifies in much detail about his knowledge of him and events in the neighborhood.

Dennis Jones, a colored lawyer of Leavenworth, Kansas, went upon the stand. He is a negro of very high character, if we judge him by the evidence and his conduct in this case. His testimony is full and complete. He identifies Tommy, remembers him at Granny Letcher's, knew Tommy when he was growing up, thinks he saw him around there until he was twelve or thirteen years old, may not have been that old—and he positively identified Minnie Folk in the court room as the woman he knew as Indian Minnie in Leavenworth in 1884 and 1885, and whom he saw at Granny Letcher's. (This witness was before the Court.) He had been savagely attacked by Sadie James, self-confessed crook and star witness for the Government. The Government claimed that Dennis Jones had helped to fabricate a case against the Government and in favor of Minnie Atkins. Under this state of facts we introduced the District Judge of Leavenworth County, Kansas (Judge Wendorff); Stance Myers, Sheriff of that county for four years and member of the State Board of Control of Kansas, and O. B. Taylor, cashier of the First National Bank of Leavenworth, Kansas, as to Jones' standing in the community (Rec., pp. 3734-3736). These men, who have known Jones for many years, vouched for his integrity and veracity. This is vastly important, for two reasons: First, because these men would not have journeyed all the way to Muskogee to testify as to the character of Dennis Jones, unless Jones was a negro of unusually high character; and, second, because the testimony of Jones is exact and convincing as to the existence of Thomas Atkins and as to Minnie being his mother.

The depositions of Walter Banks and Sam Nash were offered by the Government to show that this was a fabricated case, but when offered became evidence for all purposes and became evidenc for the defendants, Minnie Atkins and Chas. Page, as much as for the Government.

Sam Nash knew this boy and testified with exactness as to his age, color and the time he remained with his grandmother.

Walter Banks was a boy at Granny Letcher's at the same time, and he testified in detail about the boy, Tommy, and showed him at Granny's for a long period of time, and established beyond a doubt his identity.

We appeal to the Court here and now, if these witnesses, some of them of the highest intelligence and character have been broken down or discredited or impeached in any way. It is impossible that such witnesses as Mrs. Ripley, Mrs. Collins, Dave Atchison, Adolph Lange, James Allen, the old soldier Roderick, and the others whose names are not necessary to be mentioned because already considered, do not leave a fixed and lasting impression upon the mind of the Court that the testimony is true, that they have testified with care and exactness; that they are witnesses who appreciate the obligation of an oath, and were zealous to state the truth and nothing but the truth. If Minnie Atkins, by any sort of legal legerdemain in this case, were ordered here and compelled to make out a prima facie case showing the existence of a certain

Thomas Atkins as her son, we ask the Court if the evidence we have quoted does not and would not establish this prima facie case?

The other evidence in favor of Minnie Atkins we have quoted and we will not take the time to analyze in detail, but we have brought definitely before your attention this class of witnesses as to the identity and existence of Thomas Atkins as the son of Minnie Atkins at Granny Letcher's, and unless the Government has broken down these witnesses and has shown that they testified falsely or that they are mistaken, there is no escape from the conclusion that their testimony in this regard is of the greatest force and probative effect.

We shall not undertake to go into detail in discussing the evidence against Minnie Atkins. We have summarized it as faithfully as we could, endeavoring to give our adversaries the benefit of every phase of this testimony, and we hope the Court will consider this testimony against Minnie Atkins in connection with the testimony to which we have called your attention, and see and ascertain if the case of Minnie Atkins has been met by the Government, or by Nancy.

By an examination of the evidence introduced in behalf of the Government, you will find that the witnesses testifying against Minnie Atkins are, many of them, of doubtful character, and most of them testify as to one fact here and another fact there. The Government was evidently seeking by this means to tie these incidents together as to these particular circumstances and make a connecting chain of evidence. We think the Government has failed to do this. We say the GOVERNMENT HAS FAILED to do this, and if the Government failed, Nancy failed, because Nancy never introduced ANY EVIDENCE as to the non-existence of Minnie's child, but relied upon the Government's evidence. We introduced, however, much affirmative evidence against Nancy's claim.

Now, going back to the quotation from Judge Sanborn's opinion, let us see how this case stands. Judge Sanborn said—and it must be remembered that many of the witnesses testifying for the Government on the trial of this case, tesified at he receivership hearing—that the evidence of the Government, outside of the rolls, when contrasted with the evidence in favor of Minnie Atkins, left the Government without a case. The cause is infinitely more doubtful (outside of the rolls), now as to Thomas Atkins' non-existence as the son of Minnie Atkins, so far as the Government and Nancy Atkins' interests are concerned, than it was at the receivership trial, because by an examination of this record you will readily see and must conclude that the case of Minnie Atkins has been strengthened an hundred-fold by new, unimpeachable and, it seems to us, perfectly truthful witnesses.

The Circuit Court said in the former appeal herein, that if the issue is left in doubt as a naked proposition of fact as between the Government and Minnie Atkins, the rolls, including the pay roll of 1895, which are themselves original evidence and sufficient upon which to predicate a judgment by the Dawes Commission, htat Thomas Atkins was in fact the son of Minnie Atkins, turned the scale and made it conclusive, not only as against the Government, but, necessarily, as against Nancy Atkins, who seeks to use the evidence of the Government.

Sam Brown's Testimony

Some stress was laid by the Government upon the proposition that Sam Brown testified that he procured the names of Minnie's children from John Davis at a certain time and that the evidence in the case shows that he could not have procured it from John Davis, because John Davis, at the time Sam says he procured the information from him, was in the penitentiary.

We think that Sam Brown was mistaken about procuring this information from John Davis, although the Government thought and alleged in its pleadings that Sam Brown did procure this information from John Davis, and it was not discovered that he probably did not procure it from John Davis until near the end of the trial. The attorneys who represented Minnie Folk, Page and others made no objection to the introduction of the penitentiary record showing John Davis in the penitentiary, because if it was of any benefit to the Nancy case, she was entitled to it. But it seems to us that this is a "tempest in a teapot." We cannot understand how this matter can affect substantially the result reached in this case by Judge Campbell, the trial judge. It must be remembered that this proof that John Davis was in the penitentiary was before him and it must be assumed that he found that Sam Brown might be mistaken as to the source from which he acquired his information as to Minnie's children. The trial judge held that Sam Brown certainly obtained his information from same reliable source, because it appears indisputably that the pay roll of 1895 fixed and established that the information furnished by Sam Brown to the Creek Council, and upon which the roll of 1895 was predicated, was substantially correct. The Government called Sam Brown as a witness on page 214 of the printed record and examined him at length. In his testimony, commencing on page 214 of the record, he says that Noah Gregory was Town King of the Euchees in 1890, and that Sam Brown was Town King in 1895. He testified that tribal payment was made to the members of the Creek Nation or Tribe in 1890 and 1895. He testified that he had much to do with the making of the 1890 roll that was used in the 1890 payment; that he was Clerk of the convention of the Euchee people and took the census of 1890, and that Noah Gregory presided at that meeting. He testified that he knew about the names of Nancy Atkins and Mamie Atkins in connection with that roll; he testified that he was a second cousin of these two women, and that he knew them personally and knew their parents. He testified that the convention above spoken of was held on the square grounds on Snake Creek and that he was clerk of the convention in 1890; he testified that the convention was called to represent Indian families, see how many there were in the families so that they could take a true census and enable the members of the tribe to draw their money. He stated that in that convention the question of the children of Mamie (or Minnie) Atkins was discussed; he testified one of the neighbors, said he thought Thomas Holden, who was a brother-in-law of Minnie Atkins, knew something about Minnie's children. That Thomas Holden, brother-in-law of Minnie, got up in the convention and stated Minnie had two children, but did not know their names, and that Mamie (or Minnie) was placed on the 1890 roll as having two children. He testified, and Mr. German, the Government counsel, agreed with him on page 218 of the printed record, that the words Mamie and Minnie were used interchangeably, and that Mamie or Minnie on the roll meant the same person. He testified that the names of the two children of

Minnie were afterwards put on the roll as Thomas and Mary. He testified as to the care with which the rolls were made, and that the 1890 roll was formally adopted as the census roll by the Euchee people, and passed up to the Creek Council, which adopted the same. He testified on page 228 that he had lived in Euchee Town for many, many years; that the names Thomas and Mary put over Minnie's children on the roll of 1890 could not refer to Thomas Atkins, the father of Minnie, nor to Mary Atkins, the mother of Minnie, because he said that Thomas Atkins, the father had died twenty years before the 1890 roll was made; and that his wife, Mary, died long before the 1890 roll was made; that these names could not have been put there as representing the father and mother of Minnie, because everybody knew they had been dead a long, long time. On page 228 he again testified that he took the census roll of 1890 to the Creek Council, and that after they examined it they ratified it. That there were many people around the Creek Council who were Euchee Indians, and that they were as well acquainted in the community as he was. He testified further, and it was not disputed, that Thomas Atkins, the father of Minnie, was a Coweta and not a Euchee, and if he had been given as a living man on the census roll he would not have been on the Euchee roll, but on the Coweta roll. He testified in detail as to being present when Minnie drew her money in 1895. On page

232 he testifies that he had known Nancy for years; knew her well, and that he drew for Nancy and drew all the money that she was entitled to draw.

An analysis of this evidence shows, of course, that there are inaccuracies in Sam Brown's statement, as there were in nearly all the statements of every witness who testified as to these happenings more than twenty years ago. The substantial, undisputed fact remains that Sam Brown, Euchee Town King, passed his information up to the Council. The Creek Council adopted it and placed Minnie, with two children, upon the roll of 1890, and one of those children was named Thomas, the very Thomas whose number and identity was fixed in the roll of 1895 and fixed by the Dawes Commission. Brown declares that Thomas Holden, a brother-in-law of Minnie, got up in the 1890 Euchee convention and stated that he knew Minnie had two children at that time, and all the testimony in the case, together with Minnie's testimony, accounts for these two children. Suffice it to say that the roll of 1890 had Thomas Atkins upon it as son of Minnie. The roll of 1895 had the name of Thomas Atkins upon its face as the son of Minnie, and the pay roll had exactly the same thing, because the evidence shows that these people were put on the roll in family groups, and these children followed the name of Minnie on all of these rolls and no child follows the name of Nancy on any of them. So, however weak or strong the testimony of Sam Brown may be, or however weak or strong the testimony of other witnesses may be with reference to this matter, the Creek people who from 1890 to 1895, during a period of five years, were investigating and striving to make these rolls correct, and after this investigation seeking evidence, as the testimony shows, from every quarter, declared that Thomas Atkins was the son of Minnie Atkins and placed him on that corrected roll as such.

We feel certain, therefore, that these rolls have not been successfully impeached, and whatever may be the lapse of memory on the part of witnesses as to what occurred long ago, these old rolls speak with mute strength and power the truth as found by the Creek people, and these rolls, it seems to us, are conclusive as a matter of evidence in this cause, both as against Nancy and against the Government.

Conflicting Statements of Minnie

Attorneys for the Government in their brief make some reference to the conflicting statements of Minnie Atkins. We hardly deem it necessary to go at length into this matter, but in view of the labor which has been expended upon the question by the Government, we shall discuss this matter under a separate heading.

Minnie Atkins testified six times in this case; five times under oath, subject to cross examination, as follows:

First. At Sapulpa in the injunction suit hearing, in Creek County District Court, wher she was cross examined by attorneys representing Nancy and those claiming under her.

Second. In the office of George Williams Snyder at Kansas City, Mo., where she was questioned in detail by Attorney Rice. This examination being preliminary to the taking of her deposition in the Creek County District Court against Nancy Atkins et al.

Third. In the office of Rice & Lyons, in Tulsa, at which time her deposition was taken in the Creek County case.

Fourth. Before the United States District Court at Muskogee in the receivership hearing.

Fifth. Before Examiner Penick, at Seattle, Washington, when her deposition was taken for use in the final trial of the case in the Federal court.

Sixth. In the final trial.

At the time of Minnie's discovery in Seattle, in June, 1914, she told Mrs. Catherine Sisk McComb (Rec., p. 3852) that the was the mother of five children. Mrs. McComb at that time was the wife of a lieutenant in the regular army and had employed Minnie as servant in her home. Minnie's statement to Mrs. McComb that she was the mother of five children was made before she knew anything about the value of the Thomas Atkins allotment, or before she had been advised that there would be any serious litigation concerning it.

The next statement Minnie Atkins made concerning her children was in conversation with F. B. Long at Seattle in June, 1914, at which time she made the assertion that she was the mother of Thomas Atkins, and that he was dead.

The next statement was made to her attorney, Mr. Hanford, and to Mr. Long, in July, 1914, at which time the data from which her first affidavit was written was procured. At that time she asserted that she left Thomas with a colored woman at Leavenworth. She first stated that the boy was born in a private house; subsequently changed that statement and said he was born in a Sister's hospital. She did not remember the date, but it was assumed the birth occurred either in 1886 or 1887. She said she left the baby with a colored woman in Leavenworth, but refused to give the name of this woman. In this conversation, Mr. Hanford's recollection has always been that Minnie's first statement was the baby was born at the house of a colored woman, but that she quickly changed this assertion and fixed the place of birth as the hospital.

Through all the various sworn statements she made during the progress of this case, there are some inaccuracies, but in only two instances did Minnie Atkins intentionally conceal the truth. First, as to the place of birth of her son; and, second, as to the Peterkin child. She explained in the receivership hearing and in her deposition at Seattle, and in the final trial at Muskogee, her first false statement by declaring repeatedly she did not want the white people to know that her baby was born in the home of a negro. Hanford told Minnie on his second trip West that she must tell the truth; that it was useless to conceal anything. Hanford further testified that the reason she refused to tell the truth about the birth of her son was because she did not want the people back in Seattle to know it; she was afraid Captian McNabb and McCombs would find it out, but that the negro woman's name was Granny Letcher.

Frank L. Montgomery testified (Rec., pp. 1372-1391) that in his conversation with Minnie at the time she made her alleged confession, the question of immunity was discussed. He admitted (Rec., pp. 1384-1399) that Sadie James, Robinson the detective and Buhl were with him. He also stated that he used the fact of Minnie's having executed a deed to Chas. Page at the time he talked about the penitentiary and granting her immunity. In her preliminary statement, made in Kansas City, where she was examined by Attorney Rice, Minnie stated that Tommy was born soon after she left the Hydes. At this time it was very apparent that she was trying mighty hard to tell the truth and at the same time conceal the facts about the Peterkin baby. At this time none of Minnie's attorneys nor friends knew of the Peterkin baby. Hanford had been East and had seen Peterkin, but Peterkin told him that this child was a girl, and Hanford apparently confused the information Peterkin gave him with the daughter Mabel, or or Alice, born in Ft. Logan. In that preliminary statement Minnie went so far as to confess that the date of the birth was 1885 (Rec., pp. 4051-4055). She said she left Hydes when she began carrying the child and that the reason she went to Granny Letcher's to give birth to the baby was because she did not want the white people to know about it.

Again, in the deposition taken in the office of Rice & Lyons for use in the Creek County District Court, she states the baby was born soon after she left Hydes (Rec., pp. 1305, 1390), but she did not testify as to the Peterkin baby in this deposition. However, she did say she worked for the Grodevants, and that she went from the Grodevants to the Staffords.

The Government in its arguments has attached great importance to its assertions that the only witness aside from Minnie herself who even attempted to fix the date of the birth of Thmas, was Mrs. Cobb.

Mrs. Ripley, who made such a good appearance on the stand, fixed the time when she saw Minnie pregnant, at the Grodevants.

The date of the birth was fixed by John Roderick, the old soldier.

Witness John F. Roderick having testified that his contract with the Government for conveying freight from the City of Leavenworth expired on the first day of July, 1885 (Rec., p. 2938), and that soon afterward he went to Fort Riley, and from there to Kansas City, testified as follows (Rec., p. 2940):

> "A. On or about the last of June or first of July I was down at Crilley and Cranstons' barn. I went in to Aunt Mollie's. Aunt Mollie told me she just brought a baby into the world and for me to go over with her and see it. I went over there and I saw a baby lying by the side of the woman called Indian Mary, recognized her, and then went back home. In about three or four weeks afterwards I went down again and asked how the baby was getting along. She said it was getting along fine; asked me to go over there and got the baby. I went over and got the baby. She was nursing at the time. I took the baby over to Aunt Mollie's.

Q. Now, you said Indian Mary, or Indian Minnie?

A. Indian Minnie.

Mrs. Cornelia Hyde Collins, daughter of Geo. H. Hyde, fixed the time when she saw Minnie pregnant as some few months after she left the Hyde home.

Claude Hamilton, Government witness, fixed the time of Minnie's pregnancy as some months after she came out to the Post for the Grodevant family.

Not only did Minnie conceal the facts as to the Peterkin baby from her own attorneys, but she also very successfully concealed the facts as to the Peterkin baby from Montgomery, who is supposed to have procured the alleged confession from her.

Testimony of Mrs. Emily Ripley (Rc., p. 2798):

"Q. Did you ever at any time see an Indian woman at Mrs. Grodevant's?

A. Yes.

Q. You know what they called her?

A. Indian Minnie.

Q. Indian Minnie. Was there anything that attracted your attention to her. I mean in her general appearance?

A. Yes, her physical development and her unusual coloring and hair.

Q. Did you see her at Mrs. Grodevant's?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Now, I will ask you whether or not, when you were at Mrs. Grodevant's, you noticed anything peculiar about her physical condition?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you notice? State to the Court.

A. She appeared to be about to become a mother. I saw her through a window one day. Mrs. Grodevant and I were in the room and were discussing her appearance.

Q. Did she appear very far gone or little gone in pregnancy?

A. Well, it seemed to be advanced.

Q. Did you speak to Mrs. Grodevant about it?

A. Yes, I did; I just said, 'Minnie looks as if she was pregnant,' and Mrs. Grodevant said, 'I believe she is.'

Q. When was this?

A. It was in 1885.

Q. How do you know it was 1885?

A. 1885 was a memorable year for me,—

Q. Well, just compose yourself.

A. I gave birth to a child and lost a child that year.

Q. In what portion of the year?

A. In January, 1885.

Q. And one of your children died the same year?

A. In August—

Q. In August, 1885? Do you know whether that was before or after your child died?

A. That I saw Minnie?

Q. Yes.

A. It was before.

Q. Mrs. Ripley, did you see Minnie after that?

A. Oh, yes, the year after my child died.

Q. After you saw her in the yard, when you say she was pregnant?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did she appear then?

A. Her condition was normal.

Q. Did you speak to Mrs. Grodevant about that?

A. Yes. Mrs. Grodevant said, 'yes, Minnie has a baby;' that is what she said."

Particular notice should be taken of this first-hand intimate conversation with Mrs. Lettie Grodevant. Mrs. Ripley knew Mrs. Grodevant before she was married; knew her as Lettie West, the daughter of West, and was a frequent visitor at her home. In this whole immense record this testimony of Mrs. Ripley's is the only word from the mouth of Mrs. Grodevant with reference to Minnie's condition. Not a single Government witness, and there were many of them testified to being intimately acquainted with the Grodevant family, had recollection of any statement made by Mrs. Grodevant as to Minnie Atkins. Subsequently, the Court stated (Rec., .p 2799), in reply to objection by counsel for the Government, that he would not consider the evidence given by Mrs. Ripley with reference to her conversation with Mrs. Grodevant. On cross-examination (Rec., p. 2806), Mrs. Ripley stated that she was very positive that she saw Minnie in a pregnant condition in the spring of 1885, during the months of May or June. Further, on cross examination of this witness, the Court (Rec. p. 2820), made the following ruling, to which counsel for the Government excepted:

> "While those witnesses are coming, the record may show in view of the cross-examination of this witness, that the ruling of the court this morning, in excluding from the record the conversation between this witness and Mrs. Grodevant at the time this witness testified she noticed the pregnant condition of Minnie Atkins, will be set aside and that conversation will be permitted to remain a part of the record."

With reference to the date when Thomas Atkins was born to Minnie at Leavenworth, particular attention should be paid to the testimony of Mrs. Cordelia Hyde Collins, who fixes the date by the time Minnie left the employment of her father and mother, Geo. H. Hyde (Rec., p. 2827). Mrs. Collins testified as follows:

> "Q. State whether or not she worked for your family?
> A. She worked for us for months. I can't tell how many months, as general housework girl.
> Q. Do you remember the occasion of her leaving your employment?
> A. Yes, quite suddenly and unexplained at the time.

Q. Did you ever see Minnie after she left your employ?

A. I saw Minnie once after she left us, on Choctaw Street.

Q. That was in the city of Leavenworth?

A. In the city of Leavenworth.

Q. What was the occasion of your seeing her at that time?

A. I was driving back from town. I had been on an errand and was driving up with our horse and buggy, and I saw Minnie on the left hand side of the street.

Q. On the left hand side of Choctaw Street?

A. Of Choctaw Street, without hat on, apparently as if she were staying there.

Q Do you know Leavenworth? .Can you state between what cross streets that would be?

A Yes, I saw her on 4th street, so she would have been between 3rd and 4th.

Q. I will ask you, Mrs. Collins, if you can describe the nature of the place you saw her in front of?

A. Choctaw was a disreputable street and a good many rough sort of people lived down there.

Q. I will ask you, if the place you saw her in front of was one of those places?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you know Minnie's physical condition at that time?

A. Yes, I noticed immediately and was shocked and realized that must have been why she left our house, when she was pregnant.

Q. About how long was that after she left your house?

A. I think it must have been two months possibly, enough so that I realized why she left our house."

The Grodevant book shows that Minnie went to work for Grodevants in October, 1884. She, therefore, left the Hydes during or very shortly before that month. The testimony of Mrs. Collins, therefore, absolutely fixes the time when Minnie was in a pregnant condition with her first born child.

Wih reference to the number of children and her conflicting statements to the number, attention is called to the testimony of Mrs. Catherine Sisk McComb (Rec., p. 3852). Mrs. McComb is the wife of an army officer stationed at Fort Lawton. Minnie had worked in her family, and prior to investigation in this case by the Government and before Minnie Atkins had steeled herself to conceal the facts as to the place of the birth of her son, Thomas, she told Mrs. McComb that she was the mother of five children.

In connection with the statements of Minnie and the transactions between her and others at Seattle and near there, we desire to call special attention to the testimony of Captain Alexander J. McNabb, who was a soldier of highest repute at the time, and on the staff of General Pershing during the late war. His interest in Minnie Atkins was entirely impersonal, and he intervened for the purpose of her protection. We think his testimony shows more clearly than any other the way in which this Indian woman was beset by men desiring to destroy her and to get the fruits of her inheritance.

Care with which Dawes Commission Examined the rights of citizens in the Creek Nation and the exhaustiveness with which every case was considered.

In the case of Woodward v. De Graffenried, 238 U. S. 284, this Court held that the communications to Congress by the Dawes Commission were a public matter, and public history of which the courts took notice, because that Commission was an arm of Congress, and, in the execution of its duties was the eyes and ears of the Government of the United States. In this connection, therefore, we call attention to the reports of the Dawes Commission to Congress and extracts from such reports.

On page 6 of the Annual Report of the Commission of date October 3, 1898, it is stated:

> "In addition to what was theretofore required of them, this act and these agreements, among other things, require them to take a census of all the citizenship of each nation before perfecting a final roll for allotment, and in doing so they are 'authorized and required to make correct rolls of the citizens by blood > of all the tribes, eliminating from the tribal rolls such names as may have been placed thereon by fraud or without authority of law, enrolling only such as may have lawful right thereto and their descendants born since such rolls were made,' etc.

> "This compels the Commission to pass judicial judgment upon the right to citizenship of every name upon the citizenship roll of each of the Five Tribes. No clerk or other substitute can do this work. It must be done personally by the Commission and upon a hearing of evidence in each case where there is any question."

On page 36 of the Annual Report for the year 1902, the Commission said:

> "The Act of Congress of March 1, 1901 (31 Stat. L. 861), which was ratified by the Creek National Council, May 25, 1901, provides for the enrollment of all citizens of said nation entitled to be enrolled under Section 21 of the Act of Congress of June 28, 1898 (30 Stat. L. 495), who were living on the 1st day of April, 1899. * * *
> "It therefore became necessary to determine who of these citizens were living on April 1, 1899, and who of said children born subsequent to that date were living on July 1, 1900. * * *"

In the report of the year 1903, at page 29 thereof, is set forth the following:

> "The nearer the work approaches completion, the greater the degree of care required in determining the rights of applicants for en> rollment. . When it is considered that no person who died prior to April 1, 1899; no child born subsequent to April 1, 1899, etc. * * * is entitled to enrollment, it will readily be seen that in cases of this character, where the question of date arises, the evidence must be clear and convincing. * * *

> "No record of births and deaths is provided for by law in the Creek Nation, and in very few instances coming under the observation of the Commission does it appear that such record has been kept by the relatives of the persons for whom applications have been made. The testimony submitted is from memory alone. In cases where the birth or death occurred within a few days of a date vital to the case, it is apparent that the date of such birth or death must be clearly and accurately established. In order to arrive at the truth supplemental testimony has been necessary in many cases, and extreme precaution is essential in order that injustice be not done the applicants or the Creek Nation."

In this report, under the sub-head "Enrollment Cases," it is stated:

> "During the year ended June 30, 1903, 178 original applications, embracing 276 persons, were made to this Commission for enrollment as citizens of the Creek Nation. Additional testimony has been taken in 54 cases. In 107 cases, embracing 128 persons, the applicants have been listed for enrollment without formal decision, no objections having been entered by the attorneys for the Creek Nation."

From these official reports of the Commission rendered while it was still in session, it is manifest that enrollments of citizens on the final rolls, as certified to the Secretary of the Interior, including the name of Thomas Atkins, were made upon affirmative evidence as to every fact judicially determined and essential to enrollment; and that the proceedings had and manner of enrollment, were not ex parte, but that all enrollments were made with the knowledge of the Creek Nation and its officers, including the Creek National Attorneys, whose duty it was to represent and contest for the interests of the Tribe.

It seems clear, therefore, inasmuch as the Dawes Commission did purge the roll of '95, and did declare that after such purging and examination, Thomas Atkins must be enrolled as a citizen of the Creek Tribe, conclusion inevitably follows that the appellant is not permitted to go, not only behind the judgment of the Dawes Commission, but to go behind the judgment of the Creek Council which enrolled Thomas Atkins upon its roll.

PAGE AND HIS ASSOCIATES WERE PURCHASERS IN GOOD FAITH.

On the hearing of this case before the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit on the receivership question, the Court, in its opinion used this language:

> "Nor is there any satisfactory or persuasive evidence that the defendants knew or had notice that Thomas Atkins never existed before they purchased their lease or title. They had the right to rely and act upon the Creek rolls of citizenship made by the tribe itself, and upon the final rolls made by the Dawes Commission until they received satisfactory evidence that these rolls were false and the evidence fails to convince that they ever had such evidence before they purchased."

The evidence now before the Court as to the good faith of Page and his associates, is the same. and, perhaps, stronger than it was when this case was heard in the receivership matter. We refer the Court to the witnesses hereinafter set out and to their testimony shown by the transcript.

The first witness introduced as to the good faih of Page was R. A. Josey. Mr. Josey was President and one of the principal stockholders of the Gem Oil Co., which originally purchased the lease, afterward assigning the same to Page & Josey, a one-half interest each. At page 3666 of the record, under direct examination by Mr. Stuart, Mr. Josey testified as follows:

> "Q. Mr. Josey, do you remember acquiring a lease on what is known as the Thomas Atkins property?
> A. I do.
> Q. Did Mr. Long work for your company?
> A. He did.

Q .Who were your attorneys?

A. Rice & Lyons.

Q. At that time? Now, Mr. Josey, I will ask you when was the first time, after you acquired that lease, that you ever heard anybody say or claim that Thomas Atkins was a myth, as near as you can remember?

A. Well, as near as I can remember, at the time of this confession that was made in Seattle.

Q. Sadie James' confession?

A. Of Minnie's confession.

Q. Of Minnie's confession?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In Seattle?

A. In Seattle.

Q. And you say that is the first time you ever heard of any claim of that sort?

A. That is my best recollection."

Chas. Page at the beginning was Vice-President of the Gem Oil Company and owner of one-half the capital stock thereof. Subsequently, the Gem Oil Company, which purchased the lease originally from Minnie Atkins, assigned the same to Mr. Page and Mr. Josey, a one-half interest each. On page 7838 of the record, Mr. Page testified as follows:

"Q. When did you for the first time hear that the Government, or anybody else, claimed that Thomas Atkins never existed at all?

A. Well, the first time I ever heard that was —that confession of Minnie's, I believe."

Further, on same page, Mr. Page testified as follows:

"Q. Did you get some sort of information that suit was going to be brought to cancel this patent?

A. Yes, I heard they were going to start suit, and parties would come to us and tell us—

Q. Well, that they were going to bring suit?

A. That they were making a tentative filing and so on, and getting ready to bring suit, but we had no fear of that, because we did not think the Government would lend itself to anything of that kind with Mr. Buhl and those people."

On page 3879, during direct examination of Mr. Page, Mr. Stuart offered in evidence the following telegram:

"January 18, 1915.

"Cato Sells,
"Commissioner of Indian Affairs,
"Washington, D. C.

"We are advised Creek Attorney Allen has been authorized to bring suit to set aside Creek deed issued to Thomas Atkins. Allen is working on false statements. He is misinformed. We have not been permitted to submit facts. We are mailing you full and complete statement of facts and request action be deferred until statement reaches you. We court the fullest investigation.

(Signed) "Chas. Page.
"R. A. Josey."

On the same page, Mr. Stuart read into the record the following telegram:

"Washington, D. C., January 21, 1915.
"Chas. Page and
"R. A. Josey,
"Tulsa, Oklahoma.

"Your telegram January eighteen. Suit instituted on January eighteen against Minnie Atkins and others. Case in charge of Department of Justice and Creek Tribal attorney.
(Signed) Cato Sells,
"Commissioner."

On the same page of the record, Mr. Stuart read into the record the following letter:

"January 20, 1915.
"Hon. Cato Sells,
"Commissioner Indian Affairs,
"Washington, D. C.

"Dear Sir:

"Please refer to our telegram of January 18, 1915, with reference to proposed suit in the U. S. District Court for the Eastern District of Oklahoma by the United States for and on behalf of the Creek Nation of Indians, to cancel the deed issued to Thomas Atkins, in which telegram we stated we would submit to you complete statement of facts. Our purpose in writing you was to be given an opportunity to present our side of the case prior to the filing of the suit. Now that the suit has been filed, we feel that it would be presumptuous for us to present any statement of facts, unless requested to do so by your office or the office of Creek Attorney Allen. We are ready and willing at any time to furnish you or Mr. Allen with any information desired. As stated in our telegram we court the fullest and most complete investigation of our case.

"Yours very truly."

Again, on page 3880 of the record, Mr. Page testified as follows:

Q. Mr. Page, I will ask you this: If prior to the time Minnie Atkins made that confession you entertained any doubt of any kind that Thomas Atkins existed? Did you have any doubt about it?

A. I never thought—I always believed that Tommie existed at all times after getting the record."

E. O. Curtis was put on the stand by the defendants. He testified (page 4169) that he is auditor for Chas. Page, familiar with the books of Chas. Page and that he had prepared statements as to the expenditures on the Atkins lease (page 4171 of the record). (During the testimony of Mr. Curtis, on p. 4171, defendants, Minnie Atkins et al., Exhibits B-22 and 25, were offered in evidence.) These exhibits appear on pages 4950 to 4958 of the record. Defendants' Exhibit B-22 is a statement of the expenditures on the Atkins lease up to December 17, 1914, which was the date of the alleged confession of Minnie Atkins. This statement shows the expenditures on the lease up until December 17, 1914, to have been $51,600.81. The first expenditure on the lease being a rig purchased on August 6, 1914, at a cost of $1,165.00. Defendants' Exhibit B-23 shows the expenditures on the Atkins lease from December 17, 1914, to January 18, 1915, to have been $15,800.38, the first sum mentioned, to-wit, $51,600.81, the expenses up to December 17, 1914, was the investment on the lease prior to the alleged confession, which confession was the first notice we had that the Government was active in the case or that any one claimed that Thomas Atkins was a myth and that he never existed. Defendants' Exhibit B-23, showing the total of $15,800.38, was the amount of money we spent between Dec. 17, 1914, when the alleged confession was made, which, as above stated was the first notice of the Government's claim and the filing of the suit by the Government on January 18, 1915.

As to the statements above referred to, under direct examination by Mr. Stuart, page 4169 of the record, Mr. Curtis testified as follows:

"Q. I will ask you whether or not you have a book that treats of the Tommie Atkins lease?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you drawn from those books the total amount of the expenditures, commencing in August and ending in January?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. August, 1914, and ending in January, 1915?

A. Yes, sir."

On page 4172, under cross examination by Mr. German as to the exhibits above mentioned, Mr. Curtis testified as follows:

"Q. Have you two exhibits?

A. One is to December 17th, and the other is from December 17 to January 18th."

Under cross examination, the Government attempted to show that some of the expenditures entered on the exhibits were simply book entries, and that the money had not actually been paid out.

Curtis was subsequently called for further cross examination and testified as to the expenditures and as to the office methods of doing business.

As to the Government's contention that some of the items shown had not been paid for, but were simply charged on the books, the Court, on page 4577, ruled as follows:

> "Now it is perfectly clear to me that so far as these defendants who took charge of that lease are concerned, if they incurred the liability, whether they paid it at once or paid it six months in the future, they incurred the liability, > and it amounted to the same thing as cash. There is no question about it, and it is just as much an evidence of good faith if they incurred an indebtedness that they had to pay as if they paid cash."

Geo. Kinney, on page 4158 of the record, testified that he was superintendent during the year 1914 and 1915 for Chas. Page and R. A. Josey. He testified that they began drilling on the Atkins lease in the year 1914, some time during the month of November. Mr. Kinney further testified on page 4160 that his employers had five steel tanks constructed during the winter of '14 and 1915; that he could not give the exact dates, and that his recollection was that the tanks cost $14,500 each. On cross examination by Mr. German, page 4160, Kinney testified that the No. 2 well, which was the first one defendants drilled, was spudded in November 3, 1914, and showed the Bartlesville sand on January 3, 1915.

The Law of This Case and the Necessary Correctness of the Judgment Rendered Herein From the Application of Such Law.

We think there can be but one conclusion in this cause when measured by the adjudicated cases, and that is, that the rolls of the Tribe, together with the evidence in support of said rolls, are practically conclusive of this controversy. What is known as the Wildcat case heretofore referred to in this brief was the first expression by the Supreme Court of the United States as to the binding force and character of the judgments of the Dawes Commission and of the force and effect of the rolls of the Tribe as evidence. It will be remembered that in that case the Court declared that the Dawes Commission was expected to make mistakes; that the immense volume of work before it induced mistakes, but that their judgments whether perfectly correct or not, must be assumed to be correct and impervious to collateral attack. The doctrine announced in the Wildcat case was not new, because the Eighth Circuit Court, more than twenty years ago announced and continued to announce prior to the decision by the Supreme Court in the Wildcat case that the Dawes Commission was a judicial body and that its judgments were entitled to the same faith and credit as the judgments of any court of competent jurisdiction. The Wildcat case affirmed the opinions of the 8th Circuit and held that the proceedings of the Dawes Commission were in no sense ex parte, but concluded and settled the rights of all parties before the Commission forever. These Courts declared that the presence of the Creek Council when the Dawes Commission was enrolling, the presence of the attorney for the Creek people whose duty it was to watch the rolls and help purge them, made the the whole transaction a judicial trial; made the judgment after such a trial a muniment of title in favor of the party who was actually enrolled by the commission.

Let us now consider what the Dawes Commission had to do when it came to the name of Thomas Atkins on the roll. The Commission took the roll of 1890 and examined it; it took the roll of 1895 and examined it, and, above all, took the corrected roll; that is, the exact roll known as the Creek pay roll, and examined it. On these rolls the Commission found the name of Thomas Atkins, and the Commission found that name accredited to the family of Minnie Atkins and found that Thomas Atkins accredited to Minnie as his mother. On the face of the rolls, the Thomas Atkins whom the Commission was examining was the son of Minnie Atkins; with these rolls before it and with the duty resting upon the Commission to determine if the rolls spoke the truth, the Commission took the evidence outside of the rolls and found that the Thomas Atkins on these rolls was, in fact, the son of Minnie Atkins, and found that he was living April 1, 1889, and entitled to enrollment. The Dawes Commission did this in order to assure itself that these rolls as to this particular Thomas Atkins, spoke the truth, and the Commission found that the rolls did speak the truth, because the evidence that the Commission took accorded in all things with the face of the rolls. Now we contend that these rolls, if they showed on their face what Judge Sanborn held in this case on the first appeal, that the Thomas Atkins on these rolls was the son of Minnie Atkins, are at least presumptive evidence in favor of Minnie Atkins, against the world, and they must be broken down by clear and substantial proof. To state the matter in another way, the first thing the Dawes Commission did when it came to this particular Thomas Atkins, was to examine the rolls of the tribe; that examination showed beyond a doubt that the rolls of the tribe on their faces disclosed the particular Thomas Atkins which the Dawes Commission was considering, to be the son of Minnie Atkins. This being true, the Dawes Commission then followed up this examination of the rolls by taking evidence extraneous to the rolls and concluded that the rolls were correct and they denominated this particular Thomas Atkins as the son of Minnie. We say that these rolls, therefore, are, if not conclusive, presumptively correct, and we start out therefore with this much in our favor.

We, therefore, recur to the original question, who was the Thomas Atkins No. 7913 actually enrolled and intended to be enrolled by the Dawes Commission, and did he live after April 1, 1899? The rolls on their faces declare that he was the son of Minnie Atkins. These rolls were prepared and approved by the Creek people, who, of course, had a deep and abiding interest in making correct rolls. The evidence taken by the Commission absolutely corresponds with the notations on the roll. Before we conclude here we desire to call attention of the Court to the specific findings of Judge Campbell, the trial Judge, which can be found on pages 140, 149 and 150 of the record. The learned trial Judge found that the Dawes Commission in acting in this particular case did not act arbitrarily and without evidence, but had before it substantial evidence as to the right of Thomas Atkins to enrollment and as to his being the son of Minnie Atkins. In this first finding, which we have just quoted substantially the learned Judge declared that not only did the Dawes Commission have a trial and hearing upon this matter, but had a trial and hearing as to the identity of the particular Thomas Atkins under consideration and had evidence as to his being the son of Minnie. In the next finding the trial Judge found that the Thomas Atkins enrolled as No. 7913 on the final roll of the Creek Indians is the son of the defendant, Minnie Folk, nee Atkins. The trial Judge found this separate, independent fact from an examination of all the evidence in this case, and after argument of counsel. The Court further found that the Thomas Atkins appearing on the 1895 authenticated roll of Creek Indians and later on the roll of Creek Indians as compiled by the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes opposite No. 7913 and approved by the Secretary of the Interior was in fact the illegitimate child of the said Minnie Folk, nee Atkins. And the Court in this particular finding said further that the said Thomas Atkins so enrolled was not the son of Nancy Atkins. Here the Court distinctly declared that from all the evidence in the case, the Thomas Atkins now under consideration was the son of Minnie and not the son of Nancy. And the Court further found specially, as he did in other findings, that Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, was the sole heir of that Thomas Atkins, and inherited the property now in controversy.

We beg to say that these findings show on their faces an exhaustive consideration of all the evidence by the trial court, and such findings carry with them great weight and cannot be easily overturned.

On page 144 of the record we quote from the memorandum opinion of Judge Campbell, which again reinforces our position as to the care with which he considered this case:

> "Time and space will not be taken to refer to nor analyze in detail, but after a most careful examination of all the evidence the Court finds that Minnie Atkins had an illegitimate male child born to her during the early part of June, 1885, at the home of a colored woman known as Granny Letcher in the City of Leavenworth, Kansas, and that she named this child Thomas Atkins."

Now here is a specific finding by the trial court not only that Minnie was the mother of this particular Thomas Atkins, but is a finding as to the date of his birth and as to the place where he was born. On page 145 the trial court said this:

> "The Court further finds that prior to the compilation of the tribal roll now known as the 1895 authenticated roll of the Creek Tribe of Indians, Minnie Atkins had conveyed information to certain of her relatives in the Indian Territry of the fact of the birth of Thomas Atkins, which information was eventually imparted to the tribal authorities compiling the roll and that the name Thomas Atkins appearing at 213 of Euchee Town on the 1895 authenticated tribal roll was placed on said roll by the tribal authorities compiling the roll as the child of the defendant, Minnie Atkins, pursuant to such information. The Court finds that the Thomas Atkins appearing on the 1895 authenticated tribal roll and later on the Dawes Commission roll is in fact the illegitimate child of said Minnie Atkins, born, as aforesaid, in the city of Leavenworth, Kansas, in the early part of June, 1885, and is not the child of Nancy Atkins."

The learned Judge who tried this case below patiently read and considered the deposiion evidence in this case; he patiently heard and considered the oral evidence given in this case. It was voluminous; it required a great amount of care and attention. He solemnly adjudged that the claim of Minnie Atkins as to the birth and parentage of Thomas Atkins enrolled by the Dawes Commission was true, and that the same Thomas Atkins was living on April 1, 1899, and entitled to enrollment. He held that the claim of Nancy Atkins was untrue.

In conclusion therefore, we beg to say respecfully, that there is no merit in the Government's case. The Government is defeated by reason of the fact that it has alleged no ground upon which a court of equity can act in reopening this case. It is defeated by reason of the circumstance that three courts have decided the questions of fact raised against the Government. It is defeated by reason of the circumstance that the finding of fact in this case by the Trial Court and by the Circuit Court of Appeals that Thomas Atkins was not a myth, was a just and correct finding of fact.

We therefore urge respectfully that this case ought to be in all things affirmed.

Respectfully submitted,

C. B. Stuart,
Lee Bond
E. C. Hanford
M. K. Cruce,

Amended Bill of Complaint.

Comes now the United States of America, by D. H. Linebaugh, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Oklahoma, its solicitor of record, and with leave of court first had and obtained, files this its amended bill of complaint herein and states:

That the United States of America, by D. H. Linebaugh, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Oklahoma, by direction of the Honorable Thomas W. Gregory, Attorney General of the United States, brings this suit in its own behalf and in behalf of the Creek Nation of Indians, against the defendants, Gypsy Oil Company and Gem Oil Company, which are corporations duly organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Oklahoma, and having their principal offices in Tulsa, Tulsa County, State of Oklahoma; against the defendant, Charles M. Ball, who is a resident and citizen of the State of Kansas, residing in the City of Coffeyville within said state; against the defendants, Minnie Atkins and Henry Carter, who are residents and citizens of the State of Kansas; against the defendants, Minnie E. Folk, nee Atkins, Harry B. Folk, and Edward C. Hanford, who are residents and citizens of the State of Washington, residing in King County within said state; against the defendant, Robert L. Rutherford, who is a resident and citizen of the State of Arkansas, residing in the city of Pine Bluff within said state; against the defendant, James A. Ferguson, who is a resident and citizen of the State of Arkansas, residing in the City of Fayetteville within said state; and against the defendants, Charles Page, A. A. Hammer, William S. Murphy, Wilbur M. Norris, W. W. Walton, Ellis H. Hammett, Rufus B. Cobb, George C. Conrod, John R. Fields, James M. Brogan, Thomas Gilcrease, Robert Wilson, S. D. Shirk, R. E. Whitehead, T. S. Hurst, F. F. Betzler, R. A. Josey, Nancy Atkins, Micco T. Harjo, as guardian of Nancy Atkins, an incompetent, Charles Harrison, Thomas Harris, Kahookah Harris, Harvey Harrison, a minor, A. J. Burchett as guardian of Harvey Harrison, a minor, Minnie Hall, nee Atkins, Martin Rowe, Harry Harrison, Thomas Atkins, C. J. Wrightsman and J. Truman Nixon (the full names and better description of the said defendants being to your orator unknown), who are citizens and residents of the State of Oklahoma, and who reside within the Eastern Judicial District of said state and within the jurisdiction of this court; and thereupon your complainant says:

I.

Complainant shows that at all of the times herein mentioned and for a long time prior thereto, that portion of the Territory belonging to the United States known and designated as the Indian Territory and now forming a part of the State of Oklahoma, and within the Eastern Judicial District thereof, has been occupied by the Choctaw, Chickasaw, Cherokee, Creek and Seminole Tribes or Nations of Indians; that the above-named tribes of Indians formed and constituted a particular and distinct class of Indians known and designated as the Five Civilized Tribes, as distinguished from other Indians or Indian Tribes within the jurisdiction of the United States and under its care, protection and control. That in many of the laws passed by the Congress of the United States pertaining to said Five Tribes of Indians and to their property they are referred to and designated as the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians, and that wherever so designated or referred to, in any of the Acts of Congress, were and are included within the provisions of such acts in the same manner and with like force and effect as though each of said Five Tribes were particularly and separately designated and named therein. That during all of the times mentioned herein the Creek Tribe of Indians has maintained and still maintains tribal relations among themselves and toward complainant, and complainant has at all times mentioned herein, in dealing with the said tribe, recognized such tribal relations. That complainant has at all times mentioned herein and still maintains an Indian Agent or Superintendent for said Tribes of Indians, who has supervision and control over the tribal property belonging to said Creek Tribe of Indians. That the Creek Tribe of Indians still has tribal property and unallotted lands belonging to said Tribe of Indians which is still under the control and management of the complainant.

II.

Complainant further shows that under and by virtue of the existing treaties between complainant and the Creek Tribe of Indians, and by virtue of the several Acts of Congress passed in relation to the affairs and property of the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians, the United States Government has always and now does assume the relation of guardian and trustee of the property of the Creek Tribe of Indians and the members thereof; that its political department has always declared and now declares such relation to exist between complainant and said tribe of Indians, insofar as the same relates to the members and property of said tribe of Indians.

That complainant, under and by virtue of the provisions of an Act of Congress passed and approved June 28, 1898, and by virtue of the several Acts of Congress supplemental thereto and amendatory thereof, and particularly the Acts of Congress passed and approved March 1, 1901, and June 30, 1902, assumed and undertook the duty of allotting in severalty to the various members and freedmen and enrolled citizens of said Creek Tribe or Nation of Indians, the lands belonging to said Tribe of Indians; that by virtue of complainant's rights and duties as sovereign and governing power of said Tribe of Indians and for the purpose of discharging its full duty and obligation towards said Tribe of Indians and for the purpose of restoring to the public domain of the said Tribe of Indians all the lands heretofore erroneously allotted by officers of the Government, according to the true spirit, intent and purpose of said trust, complainant brings and prosecutes this action in its own behalf and in behalf of the said Creek Tribe or Nation of Indians.

III.

Complainant further alleges and shows that the following described lands, to-wit:

> The Southwest quarter of the Northeast quarter and Lot two (2) of Section five (5), and the Southwest quarter of the Northwest quarter and Lot four (4) of Section four (4), Township eighteen (18) North, Range seven (7) East of the Indian Base and Meridian, was, on the 1st day of April, 1899, and at all the times hereinafter mentioned, and still is, a part of the lands belonging to the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians as public and unallotted demain.

IV.

Complainant further alleges and avers that by virtue of an Act of Congress approved March 1, 1901, commonly known as the Original Creek Agreement, all citizens who were living on the first day of April, 1899, who were qualified to be enrolled under the provisions of the Act of Congress of June 28, 1898, commonly known as the Curtis Act, were entitled to be placed on the rolls to be made by the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes under said Act of Congress of June 28, 1898, and that if any such citizen died before receiving his allotment of lands and distributive share of the funds of said Tribe or Nation, then the lands and moneys to which he would be entitled if living, should descend to his heirs according to the laws of descent and distribution of the Creek Nation, and be allotted and distributed to them accordingly.

Complainant further alleges that by virtue of the authority conferred upon the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes under the Acts of Congress aforesaid as amended by the several Acts of Congress supplemental thereto and amendatory thereof, said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, acting under the directions of the Secretary of the Interior, was charged with the duty of determining who were entitled under the said Acts of Congress to be enrolled as citizens and freedmen of the Creek Nation and with the duty of surveying and allotting to the lawfully enrolled citizens and freedmen of said Nation, their respective proportions of the allottable land belonging to the said Nation, of which the land hereinbefore described was a part; and complainant further alleges that no person not a member of said tribe and that no member of said tribe who was not living on said first day of April, 1899, as provided in the said Act of Congress, was entitled to be placed on the official roll of the Creek Tribe or Nation of Indians, nor was any such person entitled to an allotment or any distributive share of the public lands of said Creek Tribe or Nation of Indians, nor was said Commission authorized to so enroll or allot lands in the name of any fictitious person.

V.

(a) Complainant further states that on the 23rd day of May, 1901, the said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, without any application being made therefor by any person and upon its own motion and initiative and in a proceeding strictly ex parte, and without a hearing being had or conducted, listed for enrollment the name Thomas Atkins as being a son of a Creek Indian woman by the name of Minnie Atkins, and as representing a citizen by blood of the said Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians, entitled to be enrolled as such and to receive an allotment, as other enrolled citizens of said tribe, of the lands of said tribe which said Commission was authorized to allot to the citizens thereof; that said listing for enrollment was made for the purpose of placing the said name upon the final roll of citizens of said tribe then being prepared by said Commission under the said Acts of Congress; that pursuant to said listing the said name Thomas Atkins was shortly thereafter placed upon and made a part of the final roll of citizens of said tribe and the enrollment thus made was by the Secretary of the Interior approved on the 2nd day of March, 1902, a true copy of said roll insofar as it shows the name Thomas Atkins is hereto attached, marked Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof; that in reliance upon the validity and regularity of said enrollment of the name Thomas Atkins and in the belief that it represented the name of a citizen entitled to receive an allotment of the lands of the Creek Nation, said Commission, acting under the Acts of Congress aforesaid, arbitrarily and without application being made therefor allotted the lands specifically above described in the name of Thomas Atkins and thereby undertook to allot to Thomas Atkins as a citizen of said nation said lands, said allotment having been so made on the 30th day of June, 1902; thereby said lands were set aside and designated as an allotment to said Thomas Atkins; that an allotment certificate evidencing the making of said allotment was afterwards and under date of June 30th, 1902, issued whereby said Commission certified that said lands had been duly allotted to Thomas Atkins; a true copy of said certificate is hereto attached, marked Exhibit "B" and the same is made a part hereof; that thereafter and under date of the 14th day of April, 1903, the Principal Chief of said Creek Nation executed a patent whereby 120 acres and another patent whereby 40 acres of said land was undertaken to be conveyed to said Thomas Atkins, and said patents were afterwards and on the 8th day of May, 1903, approved by the Secretary of the Interior, and afterwards and on the 16th day of May, 1903, said patents were recorded in the office of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes in Book 12 at page 310 thereof and Book L at page 310 thereof, respectively; there is hereto attached and marked Exhibit "C" and made a part hereof a true copy of said patent to said 120 acres of said land, and as Exhibit "D" a true copy of said patent to said 40 acres of said land. Complainant further states that neither said certificate of allotment nor said patents have ever been delivered to any person, but still remain in the possession of said Commission.

(b) Complainant further states, as its first ground for the relief hereinafter prayed for, that said enrollment, allotment and patents are null and void, and that neither said allotment, allotment certificate nor patents conveyed any title to said lands to Thomas Atkins or any other person, for the following reasons and because of the following facts, to-wit:

Because of false and fraudulent evidence so far as the question of citizenship in the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians was concerned, from which said enrollment resulted, in this, to-wit: said Commission when engaged in the work of listing for enrollment the names of the citizens of said tribe, used as material evidence on the question of citizenship or membership in the tribe certain roll or rolls of the citizens of the said Tribe of Indians which had been made up for tribal per capita payment purposes by the tribal officers and authorities prior to the date of the work of enrollment which was being done by said Commission, and which were treated and denominated as Authenticated Tribal Rolls, among which was a roll of Creek citizens made up in the year 1895, and commonly called the 1895 Authenticated Pay Roll, and particularly did said Commission use and rely upon said 1895 payroll; that the name Thomas Atkins appeared upon said 1895 payroll in the family appearing thereon headed by the name Minnie Atkins; and thereby said roll showed upon its face that Thomas Atkins was in 1895 a living member and citizen of said tribe and a member of Euche Town, one of the bands or clans or subdivisions of the tribe. That on the 23rd day of May, 1901, the said Commission had before it and used as evidence and relied upon the said 1895 payroll and believed that it spoke and represented the truth so far as the question of the citizenship of Thomas Atkins was concerned and without conducting any hearing upon that question and without any further or other investigation being made or evidence having been adduced to or received by said Commission on that question it finally determined the question of his citizenshp and listed for enrollment and enrolled the name Thomas Atkins opposite roll number 7913. Complainant further states that the said evidence so used and relied upon by said Commission, to-wit: Said 1895 Pay Roll, insofar as the same showed that said Thomas Atkins was a citizen and member of said tribe in the year 1895, was material evidence on that question and was false and fraudulent and induced the said Commission, which was ignorant of its falsity, to act, conclude and determine as it did. The said tribal roll was false and fraudulent in this, to-wit:

By an Act of Congress approved March 2, 1895, Congress appropriated the sum of $200,000.00 to be paid to the Creek Nation and said sum was shortly thereafter so paid by the Treasurer of the United States; on or about June 1, 1895, the National Council of the Creek Nation, its legislative body, appropriated said sum of $200,000.00 to be used in making a per capita payment to the members of said tribe; that thereafter and in the year 1895 and for the purpose of making said per capita payment, a roll was made of the members and citizens of said tribe under the supervision of the said National Council; that said Tribe of Indians was divided into forty-seven subdivisions or bands known as towns, and that each of said towns had as its chief officer one of its members as Town King; that at said time and for a long time prior thereto, Samuel W. Brown was the Town King of that sub-division or band of said tribe known as Euche Town, to which the defendants, Minnie Atkins and Nancy Atkins, belonged; that it was customary at that time for the town kings of the various towns to give in the names of the members of their respective towns for the purpose of making up rolls of the members thereof, and that the rolls of the various towns taken together, constituted the roll of the tribe; that in accordance with this custom, the said Samuel W. Brown, as town king of Euche Town, in the making of the said 1895 payroll, gave in the name of Thomas Atkins as a living member of said town and tribe and as a part of the family of Minnie Atkins, and thereby caused the same to be placed upon the said roll of members of said town and tribe; that in giving in this information to the tribal officers making said roll, the said Samuel

W. Brown acted upon the false statement of one John Davis, a relative and agent of said Minnie Atkins, duly authorized so to do by her, made to him, the said Samuel W. Brown, that Thomas Atkins was at the time a living member of said Creek Tribe of Indians and of Euche Town thereof, belonging to the family of Minnie Atkins; and complainant avers that the officers of said tribe so making up said roll were induced and persuaded to, and did so enroll the name of Thomas Atkins upon the false statements and representations so communicated to them by the said Samuel W. Brown to the effect that the said Thomas Atkins was at the time a living citizen of said nation and town thereof, and entitled to share in the distribution of said money; and complainant avers that in truth and in fact no such person as Thomas Atkins, a member of the Atkins family from Euche Town, was in being at that time, nor was there ever such a person except the father of said Minnie Atkins and Nancy Atkins, but that their said father, Thomas Atkins, died more than ten years prior to 1895, as the said Minnie Atkins and Nancy Atkins both well knew at that time; that the Thomas Atkins so enrolled upon said 1895 payroll was a myth and a fictitious person, and this the said Minnie Atkins and John Davis well knew at the time; that the said Samuel W. Brown was ignorant of that fact and believed the false and fraudulent representations made to him and acted innocently in communicating such information to the officers of the tribe aforesaid, and that the officers of the tribe aforesaid engaged in making up said roll, believed said false and fraudulent representations to be true and relied thereon, and in such belief and reliance, placed the name of Thomas Atkins on said roll; that the Treasurer of the said Creek Tribe of Indians, in the summer and fall of the year 1895, made distribution and payment of said per capita payment to the members of said tribe in accordance with the said roll, and that Minnie Atkins received and collected from said nation through said treasurer the sum of $14.40, the same being the amount paid to each citizen, as a payment belonging and due to Thomas Atkins, and at the time she concealed from the said tribe and its officers the fact that there was no such person as Thomas Atkins and so concealed the truth for the purpose of defrauding the Creek Nation out of said sum of $14.40, and that it had that effect.

Complainant further avers that at that time, the Congress of the United States, as was well and generally known throughout the Creek Nation and to the members thereof, and particularly to Minnie Atkins and Nancy Atkins, had passed various acts looking to the enrollment of the various members of the tribe with a view of allotting to said members, the lands of the tribe in fee simple, and distributing the moneys of the tribe among the members thereof, and to a dissolution of the tribal government, and that in causing the name of said Thomas Atkins to be placed upon said 1895 pay-roll and in concealing the fact that there was no such person in being, the said Minnie Atkins did so for the fraudulent purpose and with the fraudulent intent of enjoying whatever benefits might accrue to her as the alleged relative and heir at law of said Thomas Atkins in the final allotment of the lands of said tribe and distribution of the moneys thereof; that she has ever since continued to conceal from the said tribe and its officers, and from the Government of the United States and its officers, the fact that there was no such person as Thomas Atkins entitled to be enrolled upon said 1895 payroll, well knowing that said roll would be relied upon as speaking the truth with reference to the names of the members and citizens of said Tribe of Indians.

(c) Complainant further states that the defendants, Nancy Atkins, Minnie Atkins, Henry Carter, Martin Rowe, Harvey Harrison, Charles Harrison, Thomas Harris and Thomas Atkins, well knowing that said name was wrongfully enrolled as aforesaid, have each separately ratified the fraudulent practices made upon said Commission as aforesaid and adopted the same as their own, and have sought to take, receive and enjoy the fruits and benefits thereof, by each separately claiming and asserting that Thomas Atkins, enrolled opposite roll number 7913, as aforesaid, had an existence and was entitled to be enrolled as a citizen of said Creek Nation, and to have allotted to him or in his name, the lands aforesaid, and each of said defendants is separately claiming that he or she, as the case may be, is either the said enrolled Thomas Atkins or is the heir at law of said Thomas Atkins and as such inherited and thereby acquired the title to said lands, and have in divers ways asserted and exercised their said claims, and particularly by openly dealing with said lands and deeding or leasing same as is shown by the instruments hereinafter described. The said separate claims of identity as or relationship to said Thomas Atkins are, as complainant is informed and believes and upon information and belief charges the facts to be as follows, to-wit:

Said Nancy Atkins claims and asserts that she had a son by the name of Thomas Atkins and that said enrolled Thomas Atkins was her said son, and that he is dead; said Minnie Atkins claims and asserts that she had a son by the name of Thomas Atkins and that said enrolled Thomas Atkins was her said son, and that he is dead; said Harvey Harrison and

Charles Harrison, who are the sons of the said Minnie Atkins, claim and assert that they had a brother, also the child of said Minnie Atkins, by the name of Thomas Atkins, and that said enrolled Thomas Atkins is their said brother, and that he is dead; that the said Henry Carter and said Martin Rowe, each separately and for himself, claims and asserts that he is the said enrolled Thomas Atkins; the said Thomas Harris claims and asserts that he had a son by the name of Thomas Atkins and that the said enrolled Thomas Atkins was his son, and that he is dead; the defendant, Thomas Atkins, claims and asserts that he is the said enrolled Thomas Atkins; complainant states that all of said claims are false and that each and every one of said defendants well know and have well known during all the time that they have made said claims that they are false, and complainant further states that none of said claims were made or asserted until about 10 years after the recordation of the patents aforesaid, and not until the said lands were thought to be valuable for oil and gas mining purposes.

(d) Complainant further states that the other defendants herein claim some right, title or interest in and to said lands adverse to the complainant and the said Creek Nation under and by virtue of leases, deeds and other forms of conveyance from one, a part of, or all of said persons claiming either to be the said enrolled Thomas Atkins, or to be his heir, or heirs, among which leases, deeds and other form of conveyances are the following described instruments, which describe and undertake to convey or lease said lands, to-wit:

A quitclaim deed purported to have been executed by Minnie Atkins to the defendant, H. U. Bartlett, dated October 2, 1912, and recorded in Book 57 at page 404 in the office of the Register of Deeds of Creek County, Oklahoma, which said deed complainant is informed and believes and upon information and belief charges the fact to be, was not signed by Minnie Atkins, nor by her authority, but is a forgery.

An oil and gas mining lease from H. U. Bartlett to the defendant Gypsy Oil Company, dated November 27, 1912, and recorded in Book 70 at page 586 in said office.

A bargain and sale deed from the defendant, Minnie Atkins, who is now Mrs. Minnie E. Folk, in the name of Minnie E. Folk joined by her husband, Harry B. Folk, to Alexander J. Macnab, Jr., trustee, dated June 13, 1914, and recorded in Book 103 at page 85, in said office.

An oil and gas mining lease from said Alexander J. Macnab, Jr., trustee, and said Minnie E. Folk, nee Atkins, and Harry B. Folk, her husband, to the defendant Gem Oil Company, a corporation, dated June 24, 1914, and recorded in Book 101 at page 259, in said office.

An assignment of said oil and gas mining lease from said defendant, Gem Oil Company, to the defendants, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, dated June 30, 1914, and recorded in Book 102 at page 75, in said office.

A bargain and sale deed from said Alexander J. Macnab, Jr., trustee, to the defendant, Minnie Folk (Minnie Atkins) dated July 18, 1914, and recorded in Book 102 at page 347, in said office.

A deed from defendant, Minnie Atkins, in the name of Minnie E. Folk, to defendant, Charles Page, dated October 22, 1914, and recorded in Book 107 at page 28, in said office.

An oil and gas mining lease from the defendant, Nancy Atkins, to the defendants, Wilbur M. Norris, W. W. Walton and Ellis H. Hammett, dated April 15, 1913, and recorded in Book 80 at page 311, in said office.

An oil and gas mining lease from the defendant, Micco T. Harjo, guardian of Nancy Atkins, a business incompetent, to the defendants, J. B. White, E. W. Fowler, A. E. Carter and A. Seltzer, dated May 27, 1913, and recorded in Book 88 at page 368, in said office.

An assignment of said oil and gas mining lease from the lessees therein to the defendant Robert L. Rutherford, dated May 29, 1914, and recorded in Book 102 at page 641, in said office.

An assignment of said oil and gas mining lease from the said Robert L. Rutherford to the defendant, James A. Ferguson, dated September 30, 1914, and recorded in Book 107 at page 289, in said office.

An oil and gas mining lease from the defendant, Henry Carter, to the defendant, Gem Oil Company, dated November 13, 1914, and recorded in Book 107 at page 125, in said office.

A quitclaim deed from the defendant, Harvey Harrison, to the defendant, H. E. Whitehead, dated June 20, 1914, and recorded in Book 62 at page 252, in said office.

A quitclaim deed from the defendant, Harvey Harrison, to the defendant, Minnie Atkins, in her name as Minnie Folk, dated June 29, 1914, and recorded in Book 57 at page 580, in said office.

An oil and gas mining lease from the defendant, Charles

Harrison, to the defendant, Charles M. Ball, dated November 4, 1913, and recorded in Book 92 at page 629, in said office.

An oil and gas mining lease from the defendant A. J. Burchett, as guardian of defendant, Harvey Harrison, to the defendants, Thomas Gilcrease and Robert Wilson, dated February 16, 1914, and recorded in Book 98 at page 322, in said office.

An oil and gas mining lease from the defendant, Harvey Harrison, to the defendant, S. D. Shirk, dated February 21, 1914, and recorded in Book 90 at page 284, in said office.

A warranty deed from the defendant, Martin Rowe, to the defendant, W. P. Root, dated August 17, 1914, and recorded in Book 100 at page 186, in said office.

A mortgage from the defendant, W. P. Root, to the defendants, Martin Rowe and one Grant Hamlin, dated August 17, 1914, and recorded in Book 72 at page 369, in said office.

A release of mortgage from said Martin Rowe, in the name of Thomas Atkins, and said Grant Hamlin, to said W. P. Root, dated August 29, 1914, and recorded in Book 39 at page 272 in said office.

A quitclaim deed from the defendant, W. P. Root, to defendant, Martin Rowe, in the name of Thomas Atkins, dated August 24, 1914, and recorded in Book 62 at page 284, in said office.

A deed from the defendant, Thomas Atkins, to the defendant, C. J. Wrightsman, dated ...., 1915, and recorded in Book ......, at page ......, in said office.

(e) Complainant further states that no such person as the Thomas Atkins enrolled by said Commission as aforesaid, ever had an existence and that said name represents a myth and fictitious person and that each of said persons claiming to be his heir or heirs, well know and have at all times well known that no such person as the alleged Thomas Atkins, enrolled as aforesaid, ever existed and that their said claims are false and fraudulent, and that each of said persons claiming to be said enrolled Thomas Atkins well know and has at all times well known that he is not, but complainant states that all said instruments so recorded as aforesaid and the claims of right, title and interest in and to said lands by the defendants, and each of them, under said instruments and otherwise as set forth above constitute clouds upon the title to said lands and interfere with and embarrass and harass the complainant in the performance of its duties and obligations to and toward said Creek Nation and the members thereof with respect to said lands, the title thereto and the rents and profits issuing therefrom, and the proper disposition thereof for the benefit of said tribe and its members. Complainant further states that by reason of the facts set forth in this paragraph the said enrollment, allotment and issuance of said patents were the result of fraud and were based upon false and fraudulent proof and evidence so far as the question of citizenship of Thomas Atkins in said tribe was concerned, and that said Commission in so enrolling said name, allotting said lands and issuing said patents committed gross mistake of law as well as of fact, and that said enrollment, allotment, allotment certificate and patents should be declared void and cancelled for the reason that the said Creek Nation and your complainant are greatly and irreparably injured thereby. And complainant further states that had said Commission known of the fact that said 1895 payroll was false and fraudulent and that the name Thomas Atkins, appearing thereon, represented a myth and fictitious person, and that no such person as the enrolled Thomas Atkins had ever existed, it would not have enrolled said name as aforesaid, nor made said allotment, nor issued said patents.

VI.

Complainant, for its second ground for the relief hereinafter prayed for, here reiterates and makes a part hereof that part of paragraph five which is contained in the sub-division thereof marked (a), and which pertains to the fact of the enrollment by said Commission of the name Thomas Atkins opposite Roll No. 7913, and the making of said allotment and the issuance of said patents, and further states that said enrollment, allotment and patents are null and void for the reason that so far as the question as to whether or not Thomas Atkins was living or dead on the first day of April, 1899, the said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes in listing the name Thomas Atkins for enrollment and in enrolling said name at the times aforesaid, conducted no hearing, made no investigation and did not have or receive any evidence of any character, but proceeded ex parte and acted arbitrarily; that there was no contest, controversy or adverse proceedings of any character or kind had by or before the said Commission with respect to the said question as to whether or not the alleged Thomas Atkins, whose name said

Commission listed for enrollment, and enrolled at the time aforesaid, was living or dead on the first day of April, 1899, and that said Commission neither gave or caused to be given to the Creek Nation, or its officers or any other person any notice that the name of the alleged Thomas Atkins was about to or would be so listed for enrollment and enrolled as aforesaid or allotted as aforesaid, or that said patents were about to be or would be issued as aforesaid; that in so causing the name of the alleged Thomas Atkins to be listed for enrollment as aforesaid and to be placed on the roll of Creek citizens by blood as aforesaid, the Commission acted, so far as the question as to whether or not Thomas Atkins was living or dead on the first day of April, 1899, was concerned, arbitrarily and summarily, and without any knowledge, information or belief that the alleged Thomas Atkins was in existence and living or was dead on the first day of April, 1899, but said Commission so placed the name of the said Thomas Atkins on the said roll on the mere arbitrary and erroneous assumption, wholly unsupported by evidence or information that the said Thomas Atkins was in existence and being and was living on the first day of April, 1899, and was entitled to be enrolled by the said Commission under the Acts of Congress aforesaid.

Complainant further states that if the alleged Thomas Atkins of Creek Indian blood enrolled as aforesaid by said Commission on the rolls of Creek citizens by blood opposite roll number 7913, had any existence and was in being at any time, that he died prior to the first day of April, 1899, and was not living on said date, and that by virtue thereof he was not entitled to be enrolled as a member and citizen of the Creek Nation of Indians, and was not entitled to receive any allotment or part or portion of the lands of the said nation, under the Acts of Congress hereinbefore referred to; and that the purported heirs of the alleged Thomas Atkins were not entitled to receive any part of the public lands of the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians by inheritance or otherwise as such heirs, and that no person took any title whatsoever to said lands by virtue of the allotment of said lands in the name of Thomas Atkins or the issuance of said patents to and in the name of the alleged Thomas Atkins.

Complainant further states that in so acting and in so enrolling the name Thomas Atkins aforesaid, the said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes acted upon a gross error and mistake of fact as well as of law, for complainant alleges that said Commission did not know and did not have any evidence before it at the time it caused the name of the said Thomas Atkins to be so enrolled, either showing or tending to show whether or not he was living or dead on April 1, 1899, but if it had been known to the said Commission at or before the time of the enrollment of the alleged Thomas Atkins as a citizen of the Creek Nation as aforesaid that he was dead and not living on the first day of April, 1899, or that he had never had any existence, he would not have been so enrolled by the said Commission, nor would said allotment have been made in his name, nor would said patents have been issued to him.

Complainant further avers that because of the arbitrary and erroneous acts of the Commission aforesaid, the name of the alleged Thomas Atkins appeared on the official roll of the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians opposite roll number 7913, which was approved by the Secretary of the Interior and the allotment of said land was arbitrarily and erroneously issued as aforesaid.

Complainant further states that the defendants, Nancy Atkins, Minnie Atkins, Henry Carter, Martin Rowe, Harvey Harrison, Charles Harrison, Thomas Harris and Thomas Atkins, are each separately, and for himself or herself, as the case may be, openly and notoriously claiming and asserting, that he or she, as the case may be, is either the said enrolled Thomas Atkins or his heir at law and that by reason thereof he or she, as the case may be, acquired the title to said land under and by virtue of said patents having been issued as aforesaid; and the other defendants herein are claiming some right, title or interest in said property under and [by] virtue of deeds or leases from one or more of said defendants last above specifically named, which said leases and deeds are described in that part of paragraph five of this amended bill of complaint which is contained in and under that subdivision thereof marked (d), which said subdivision is here reiterated and made a part of this paragraph; and thereupon complainant further states that said patents and claims and assertions of title to said land and said deeds and leases constitute clouds upon the title to said lands, and embarrass, harass and interfere with complainant in the execution of its trust and performance of its duties and obligations to and toward said Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians and the members thereof with respect to said lands, the title thereto and the rents and profits issuing therefrom, and the proper disposition thereof for the benefit of said tribe and the members thereof.

VII.

Complainant, for its third ground for the relief hereinafter prayed for, states that the name Thomas Atkins was enrolled by said Commission opposite roll No. 7913 on the Creek

Indian roll, and the said allotment made and certificates and patents issued, at the times set forth in and under subdivision (a) of paragraph V of this amended bill, which said subdivision of said paragraph is here reiterated and made a part of this paragraph, and further states that the said enrollment, allotment and patents are null and void, for that the said alleged Thomas Atkins so enrolled by said Commission opposite roll number 7913 never had any existence and was and is a fictitious person and that said name represents no person who is or ever was in being; that by reason thereof said Commission in so enrolling said name and allotting and patenting said land as aforesaid, committed a gross mistake of fact as well as of law, and that neither said allotment, allotment certificates nor said patents conveyed any right, title or interest in and to said lands to any person whomsoever; but, complainant states that the defendants, Nancy Atkins, Minnie Atkins, Henry Carter, Martin Rowe, Harvey Harrison, Charles Harrison, Thomas Harris and Thomas Atkins are each separately and for himself or herself, as the case may be, openly and notoriously claiming and asserting, that he or she, as the case may be, is either the said enrolled Thomas Atkins or his heir at law, and that by reason thereof he or she, as the case may be, acquired the title to said lands under and by virtue of said allotment having been made and said patents issued as aforesaid; and the other defendants herein are claiming some right, title or interest in said property under and by virtue of deeds or leases from one or more of said defendants last above specifically named, which said leases and deeds are described in that part of paragraph five of this amended bill which is contained in and under the subdivision thereof marked (d), which said subdivision is here reiterated and made a part of this paragraph, all of which patents, claims, assertions, deeds and leases constitute clouds upon the title of said Creek Nation in and to said land and harass, embarrass and interfere with complainant in the execution of its trust and the performance of its said duties and obligations to said tribe and the members thereof.

VIII.

Complainant further avers that all and singular of said defendants are claiming and asserting rights and interest in and to the lands herein described by virtue of certain mesne conveyances, other than those hereinbefore described, originally made by one or more or all of the said alleged Thomas Atkins or his alleged heirs, as complainant is informed and believes, the extent of the claim of interest of each being to this complainant unknown, but this complainant alleges the truth to be that none of the said defendants have, either at law or in equity, any right, title, interest or estate in or to said lands or any part thereof.

IX.

Complainant further alleges that the above described lands are situated in the oil and gas belt of the Creek Nation and in that portion of the oil and gas field known as the Cushing Field, and that said lands are of great value principally because of the bed of oil and gas thereunder, of which the Creek Nation is, and has been, at all of the times herein referred to, the owner as aforesaid; that complainant is informed and believes, and therefore alleges the fact to be that the defendants, Gem Oil Company, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, and each of them, without authority or consent of this complainant or the Creek Nation of Indians, claiming the right so to do under some pretended lease contract or conveyance executed to them by some or all of the alleged heirs of the said Thomas Atkins, have unlawfully entered upon said lands and are proceeding to prospect and drill thereon for oil and gas, and have drilled thereon for oil and gas, and have removed therefrom and disposed of for the exclusive use and benefit of themselves and some or all of the alleged heirs of the said Thomas Atkins, great quantities of oil and gas, the value of which is not, and cannot be, known to this complainant; that said defendants have no right, title or interest in or to any part of the said lands and the oil and gas thereunder; that the said acts of the said defendants in so unlawfully and wrongfull entering upon the said lands aforesaid and prospecting and drilling thereon for oil and gas, and taking and removing oil and gas therefrom, constitute a continuous trespass upon said lands in violation of the rights of this complainant and of the Creek Nation of Indians, and said acts as aforesaid constitute waste upon the estate of the said Creek Nation in said lands, and said acts are materially, irreparably and permanently damaging said estate; that when the oil and gas deposits underlying said lands are exhausted, the value of the same will be principally, if not wholly, destroyed; that this complainant nor the Creek Nation of Indians has no means of gauging the oil and metering the gas mined and removed by defendants from under the said lands aforesaid, and are now, and will continue to be, unable to know the amount and value of the oil and gas mined and removed; that the rights and claims of complainant and the Creek Nation of Indians in and to the land aforesaid is well founded and based upon good grounds, and that unless a receiver be appointed by proper order of this court, after due notice and hearing had, to take charge of and go into possession of said lands aforesaid, and drill wells and mine and conserve the oil and gas underlying said lands, and impound the same or the proceeds thereof, for the use and benefit of this complainant and the Creek Nation of Indians, the said trespass and the waste will be continued, to the permanent, irreparable and material injury, and in violation of the right of this complainant and the Creek Nation of Indians.

Inasmuch as complainant has no adequate remedy at law and can have no adequate relief except from a court of equity, complainant prays that a writ of subpoena issue to the defendants, Minnie Atkins, Henry Carter, Charles M. Ball, Nancy Atkins, Micco T. Harjo, as guardian of Nancy Atkins, an incompetent, Charles Harrison, Thomas Harris, Kakookah Harris, Harvey Harrison, a minor, A. J. Burchett, as guardian of Harvey Harrison, a minor, Minnie Hall, nee Atkins, Martin Rowe, Harry Harrison, Minnie E. Folk, nee Atkins, Harry B. Folk, Edward C. Hanford, Robert L. Rutherford, James A. Ferguson, Gypsy Oil Company, a corporation, Gem Oil Company, a corporation, Charles Page, H. U. Bartlett, A. A. Hammer, William S. Murphy, Wilbur M. Norris, W. W. Walton, Ellis H. Hammett, Rufus B. Cobb, George C. Conrod, John R. Fields, James M. Brogan, Thomas Gilcrease, Robert Wilson, S. D. Shirk, H. E. Whitehead, T. S. Hurst, F. F. Betzler, R. A. Josey, Thomas Atkins, C. J. Wrightsman and J. Truman Nixon, and that all and singular of said defendants be required to appear in this court at a day certain and under certain penalties therein named, and fully answer all matters and things alleged in said amended bill of complaint, but not under oath, answer under oath being hereby expressly waived.

Complainant further prays that this court decree that the allotment certificate and patents attached hereto as Exhibits B, C and D, are void and of no effect as instruments of conveyance, and that the same be cancelled and the records purged thereof; that each and all of said defendants be decreed to have no right, title, interest or estate in and to the said land aforesaid, and the oil and gas lying thereunder; that the title to said land be quieted in complainant and the Creek Nation of Indians, and that whatever cloud is cast on the title to the said land by reason of any of the matters aforesaid be decreed by this court to be dissolved and that said land herein be decreed to be a part of the public and unallotted tribal land of the Creek Nation, subject to disposition by this complainant in accordance with the law; that the enrollment of the said Thomas Atkins be cancelled and that he, or any person claiming by, through or under him, including these defendants, be decreed by this court to be not entitled to participate in the disposition

Allotment Deed. (40A) Creek Indian Roll No. 7913

THE MUSKOGEE (CREEK) NATION, INDIAN TERRITORY.

To All Whom These Presents Shall Come, Greeting:

Whereas, By the Act of Congress approved March 1, 1901 (31 Stats. 861), agreement ratified by the Creek Nation May 25, 1901, it was provided that all lands of the Muskogee (Creek) Tribe of Indians, in Indian Territory, except as therein provided, should be allotted among the citizens of said tribe by the United States Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes so as to give to each an equal share of the whole in value, as nearly as may be, and

Whereas, It was provided by said Act of Congress that each citizen shall select, or have selected for him, from his allotment forty acres of land as a homestead for which he shall have a separate deed, and

Whereas, the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes has certified that the land hereinafter described has been selected by or on behalf of a citizen of said tribe, as an allotment, exclusive of a forty-acre homestead, as aforesaid,

Now, therefore, I, the undersigned, the Principal Chief of the Muskogee (Creek) Nation, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the aforesaid Act of the Congress of the United States, have granted and conveyed and by these presents do grant and convey unto the said Thomas Atkins all right, title and interest of the Muskogee (Creek) Nation and of all other citizens of said Nation in and to the following described land, viz:

> The South West Quarter of the North West Quarter of Section Four (4), and the South West Quarter of the North East Quarter, and Lot Two (2), of Section Five (5), Township Eighteen (18) North, and Range Seven (7) East of the Indian Base and Meridian, in Indian Territory, containing One Hundred and Twenty and 85/100 (120.85) acres, more or less, as the case may be, according to the United States survey thereof, subject, however, to all provisions of said Act of Congress relating to appraisement and valuation and to the provisions of the Act of Congress approved June 30, 1902 (Public No. 200).

In Witness Whereof, I, the Principal Chief of the Muskogee (Creek) Nation, have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of said Nation to be affixed this 14th day of April, A. D. 1903.

Endorsed: Filed Sep. 17, 1915, R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 9th day of February, A. D. 1915, the defendant T. S. Hurst filed Disclaimer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Answer of T. S. Hurst.

Comes now T. S. Hurst, one of the defendants in the above entitled cause, and for answer to the petition of plaintiff, disclaims any right, title or interest in and to said property involved herein.

Wherefore, defendant asks that he be henceforth discharged with his costs.

T. S. HURST, Defendant.

Endorsed: Filed Feb. 9, 1915, R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 9th day of February, A. D. 1915, the defendant F. F. Betzer filed disclaimer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Disclaimer of F. F. Betzer.

Comes now F. F. Betzer, one of the defendants in the above named case and for his answer to the petition of the plaintiff, disclaims any right, title or interest in and to the property involved herein.

Wherefore said defendant asks to be hence discharged with his costs.

F. F. BETZER.

Endorsed: Filed Feb. 9, 1915, R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 22nd day of February, A. D. 1915, the defendant Gypsy Oil Company filed Disclaimer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Disclaimer and Answer of Gypsy Oil Company.

Comes now the Gypsy Oil Company, one of the defendants in the above entitled cause, and shows to this Honorable Court that, before the bringing of this action, to-wit, on the 20th day of January, 1915, it relinquished and released to Chas. Page and R. A. Josey all the right, title, interest, claim, or demand it had or claimed to have in and to the land described in the complaint herein, and in and to the oil and gas thereunder; and the said Gypsy Oil Company here and now disclaims any right, title, interest, or estate in and to the Southwest Quarter (SW4) of the Northeast Quarter (NE4) and Lot Two (2), of Section Five (5), and the Southwest Quarter (SW4) of the Northwest Quarter (NW4) and Lot Four (4), of Section Four (4), Township Eighteen (18) North, Range Seven (7) East of the Indian Base and Meridian, and all right, title, interest, or estate in and to the oil and gas thereunder, and in or to any oil and gas mining rights or privileges appertaining to said above described land.

Wherefore, the said Gypsy Oil Company says that it should be dismissed hence, and have and recover its reasonable cost in this behalf expended.

II.

Further answering said bill of complaint, the Gypsy Oil Company avers and says that the records of the Five Civilized Tribes show that Thomas Atkins was a duly enrolled citizen of the Creek or Muskogee Tribe or Nation of Indians, and, as such, was entitled to an allotment of the lands of said tribe; and further show that there was allotted to the said Thomas Atkins, as his distributive share of the lands of said tribe or nation of Indians, the said Southwest Quarter (SW4) of the Northeast Quarter (NE4) and Lot Two (2), of Section Five (5), and the Southwest Quarter (SW4) of the Northwest Quarter (NW4) and Lot Four (4) of Section Four (4), Township Eighteen (18) North, Range Seven (7) East, of the Indian Base and Meridian; and that said Thomas Atkins was the son of one, Minnie Atkins.

This defendant further avers and says that it relied upon the rolls and records of said tribe or nation of Indians, and on the fact that said tribe or nation of Indians issued a deed or patent to the said Thomas Atkins for the above described lands, and on said patent being duly executed by the principal chief of said nation and approved by the Secretary of the Interior, as establishing the fact that said Thomas Atkins was a citizen of the Creek or Muskogee Tribe or Nation of Indians, and was alive on and after April 1, 1899, and entitled to receive an allotment; and believed said facts, so established and evidenced by said records, to be true; and this defendant, being informed and believing that said Thomas Atkins, after being enrolled as a citizen of said tribe or nation of Indians, and after receiving an allotment of the lands of said tribe, as above set out, died possessed thereof, leaving Minnie Atkins, his mother, as his sole and only surviving heir at law, secured oil and gas mining leases on said land, through mesne conveyances relating back to Minnie Atkins, the mother of said Thomas Atkins, paying therefor a valuable consideration; that, at the time of receiving said mining rights and privileges, and at the time of paying the consideration therefor, this defendant, in good faith and in the honest and bona fide belief that it was obtaining good title to said oil and gas mining leases and privileges, received the same and paid the consideration therefor, and, in good faith and in said honest and bona fide belief that it had acquired good title thereto, entered on said above described lands and commenced to develop and operate the same for oil and gas, and drill and put down an oil well upon said premises, and has extracted from said lands 4090.74 barrels of oil therefrom, which oil was and is of the actual value of $3,556.78, including both the working interest and the royalty interest in such oil, and expended, in drilling said well and operating and producing the said oil, the sum of $15,615.82; and that said sum, so expended, was the actual and reasonable cost of developing said lands for oil and gas mining purposes and in producing oil therefrom, and, at the time of making said expenditures and producing said oil, that said expenditures were made and said oil produced by this defendant in the bona fide and honest belief that it owned the oil and gas mining leases on said lands, and had the right to enter thereon for the purpose of prospecting and developing the same for oil and gas mining purposes; and that if it is, or has been, a trespasser on said land, it has been a good faith trespasser, and should not be held to account to the complainant in this cause in any sum except a sum found on an accounting herein in excess of the actual and reasonable expenses and expenditures of this defendant in producing oil from said premises.

Wherefore, this defendant says that, before any judgment or decree be entered against it in this cause, an accounting should be ordered by this court to determine the amount of oil produced from said above described land by this defendant and the actual and reasonable costs of producing such oil; and that no judgment or decree should be rendered against it on said accounting unless it transpires, or is shown, that defendant produced oil in greater value from said above described premises than the actual and reasonable cost of developing and producing the said oil, and then, only for the excess in value of the oil over and above the reasonable, actual, and necessary expenditures of this defendant in developing said lands for oil and gas mining purposes and in producing oil therefrom.

This defendant further says that, if this court should hold that it is not entitled to offset against the oil produced by it from said premises and the actual necessary, and reasonable expenditures made and incurred by this defendant in developing said premises for oil and gas mining purposes, and in producing gas therefrom, it should be decreed to be a good faith trespasser, and, as such held liable only to the complainant for the usual and customary rights reserved to the owner of land in oil and gas mining leases.

Endorsed: Filed Feb. 15, 1915, R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 10th day of June, A. D. 1915, the defendant Thomas Atkins filed Answer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Separate Answer of Thomas Atkins.

Comes now Thomas Atkins and for his separate answer to the Bill of Complaint filed herein says:

That he has been reliably informed that the Henry Carter mentioned as one of the defendants in this cause is meant and intended for this defendant, Thomas Atkins; that he was raised part of his life and lived with Henry Carter and is known by some people as Henry Carter, but that his true name is Thomas Atkins, and as such, he files this, his answer.

This defendant adopts the allegations in the Bill of Complaint filed herein insofar as they do not conflict with his interests or his right to recover in this case.

This defendant joins in in the request that all conveyances which appears by the record on said land be cancelled, set aside and removed as a cloud.

This defendant denies each and every allegation in said complaint filed herein which in anyway alleges that Minnie Atkins is not his mother; denies each allegation which would seek to establish or prove his name was not Thomas Atkins and the son of Minnie Atkins.

Defendant alleges the truth to be that his roll is 7913 and thay he received as his proportionate part of the land held in common by the Creek citizens, the land described in the Bill of Complaint; that he is entitled to said land by virtue of his relationship to Minnie Atkins and the enrollment and allotment of said land.

The defendant joins in the request made in the Bill of Complaint that all instruments affecting the title to said land be cancelled, but that he be placed in the possession of said land and be restored to all the rights that he is entitled to by virtue of being a Creek citizen and the son of Minnie Atkins.

Premises considered, the defendant therefore prays that all instruments and conveyances affecting the title to said land be cancelled, set aside and removed as clouds upon the title to said land mentioned in the Bill of Complaint; that he be placed in the possession of same; that he have the costs of this action and for all proper and equitable relief.

Attorneys for Defendant Thomas Atkins.

State of Oklahoma, Hughes County—ss.

Thomas Atkins being first duly sworn upon oath, states that he is the defendant named in the above answer; that he has read said answer, knows the contents thereof and that the same are true.

My commission expires Nov 30 1918. Notary Public.

Endorsed: Filed Jun. 10. 1915. R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 11th day of October, A. D. 1915, the defendant Thomas Atkins filed Answer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Separate Answer of the Defendant, Thomas Atkins, to the Amended Bill of Complaint.

Comes now the defendant, Thomas Atkins, by his solicitor, Haskell B. Talley, and files this his separate answer to the Amended Bill of Complaint, and for his defense herein sets forth the following:

A.

1. That said amended bill of complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in favor of the complainant and against this defendant; that said complainant has no right, title or interest in, or duty to perform in reference to, the subject matter of this suit; that said complainant is not a proper party plaintiff in said bill of complaint as against this defendant.

2. That there is an improper joining of defendant and the remaining defendants in said cause of action, except the defendants, C. J. Wrightsman and J. Truman Nixon; that the complainant is barred by its own laches from bringing this suit; and that the cause of action of the Creek Nation herein, if any there was, is now barred by the statute of limitations.

B I.

That this defendant as to the material allegations contained in that part of complainant's bill numbered one in Roman numerals, admits the truth thereof, except that this defendant denies that complainant's Indian Agent or Superintendent has supervision or control over the tribal property belonging to the Creek Tribe of Indians, and denies that the tribal property and unallotted lands of said Creek Tribe of Indians are still under the control and management of the complainant as alleged.

II.

That this defendant denies the allegations contained in the first paragraph of that part of the bill of complaint designated in Roman numerals as paragraph two; admits that part of the remainder of the bill numbered two in Roman numerals, which alleges that the complainant had the right to, and did, allot in severalty to the various members and freedmen and enrolled citizens of the Creek Tribe of Indians lands in said nation belonging to said Indians; but denies that the complainant had at the time of filing this bill of complaint, or at any time subsequent thereto, the right or duty, as sovereign or as the governing power over said Indians for the purpose of restoring to the public domain of said Tribe of Indians lands alleged to have been erroneously allotted by this complainant, to bring this suit; and denies that this complainant brings, or has the right to bring, this action in its own behalf or in behalf of said Creek Tribe of Indians.

III.

That this defendant admits that on April 1, 1899, the land which is the subject matter of this suit was a part of the lands of the Creek Nation, but denies that said land was at the time of the filing of this bill of complaint, or at any time subsequent to the filing of this bill of complaint, the property of the Creek Nation and unallotted domain.

That this defendant admits the truth of the allegations contained in that part of the bill of complaint numbered four in Roman numerals.

V.

1. That this defendant answers paragraph of the amended bill of complaint numbered five in Roman numerals as follows:

(a) Denies that this defendant was listed for enrollment by the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes without any application being made therefor, in a proceeding strictly ex parte, and without a hearing being hand or conducted; admits that the name of this defendant was listed for enrollment for the purpose of placing said name upon the final rolls of the citizens of the said Creek Tribe of Indians, and that said name was thereafter placed upon and made a part of the final rolls of citizens of said tribe, that said allotment was approved on March 2, 1902, and that exhibit to the amended bill marked "A" is a true copy of said final roll in so far as it shows the name of Tommie Atkins; denies that said Commission arbitrarily, and without application being made therefor, allotted the lands which are the subject matter of this suit in the name of Tommie Atkins, but admits that the allotment of said lands was made on June 30, 1902, and that said land by such allotment was set aside and designated as the allotment of this defendant, and that an allotment certificate evidencing the making of said allotment was issued on June 30, 1902, to this defendant, a copy of such allotment certificate attached to the amended bill as exhibit "B" being a correct copy of the original allotment certificate, and that the Principal Chief of said Creek Nation on the 14th day of April, 1903, executed patents as alleged in said amended bill, which patents were on May 8, 1903, duly approved by the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, and on May 16, 1903, were duly recorded in the office of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, the allotment patent being recorded in Book 12 at page 310 thereof, and the homestead patent being recorded in the office of said Commission in Book "L" at page 310 thereof, exhibit "D" attached to the amended bill of complaint being a true copy of said homestead patent; and denies that said certificate of allotment and said patents have never been delivered and still remain in the possession of said Commission.

(b) Denies that the aforesaid allotment and patents are null and void; denies that any false and fraudulent, or false or fraudulent, evidence so far as the question of citizenship of this defendant in the Creek Tribe of Indians was concerned was used by this defendant, or any one having authority to act for this defendant, for the purpose of inducing said Commission to enroll this defendant or for the purpose of inducing said Commission to allot this defendant, or to induce the Creek Nation or the United States Government to issue patents for the land in question to this defendant; that this defendant is not informed to what extent, if any, said Commission used on the question of citizenship in said tribe, a certificate of enrollment or roll of citizenship of said tribe which had been, prior to the allotting of said land, made up for the purpose of making a tribal payment, particularly the authenticated pay roll of 1895, and being without information concerning such authenticated pay roll and concerning the alleged acts of said Commission based thereon this defendant demands that said complainant be required to make strict proof of such allegation, as well as of the allegation that Tommie Atkins appeared upon the 1895 pay roll as a member of the Euchee Town; that this defendant is without information as to whether or not said Commission had before it, and used as evidence on May 21, 1910, said pay roll, and whether or not said Commission believed that said pay roll spoke and represented the truth so far as the citizenship of Tommie Atkins was, and is concerned, and being without information concerning said allegation this defendant demands strict proof of the same by the complainant; denies that said Commission did not conduct any hearing upon, or did not make investigation or have any evidence before it concerning, the citizenship and right to receive allotment of this defendant, or that the said 1895 pay roll was the only evidence before said Commission at the time it received for enrollment, and did enroll, and did allot this defendant; denies that said 1895 pay roll was false or fraudulent as to this defendant, and that said Commission, ignorant of the falsity of said pay roll acted, concluded and was determined thereby; that this defendant is not informed concerning the methods by which the sum of Two Hundred Thousand Dollars was appropriated and used under the Act of Congress approved March 2, 1895, in enrolling citizens of the Creek Nation for the purpose of making a per capita payment to said members, and being without information upon such subject, this defendant demands that this complainant make strict proof of same; but this defendant denies that Samuel W. Brown wrongfully or fraudulently gave in the name of this defendant for enrollment on said roll, and that said Samuel W. Brown acted upon the false statements of one John Davis, or of any person, made to said Brown; admits that this defendant belonged at the time mentioned to the family of Minnie Atkins; denies that the name of this defendant was fraudulently or wrongfully enrolled as alleged, but this defendant asserts that this defendant was, at the time of the making of said 1895 roll, a living member of the Creek Tribe of Indians, entitled to share in the said per capita payments and in the distribution of the land and property of said Creek Tribe of Indians; denies that the officers of said Creek Tribe of Indians making, or assisting in making, said 1895 roll were induced to, and did, enroll the name of this defendant because of any false statements or representations whatsoever communicated to them by Samuel W. Brown or any other person; denies that any attempt was ever made by any person, whatsoever, to allot Thomas Atkins, grandfather of this defendant, or that the grandfather of this defendant was ever allotted upon the lands in question, and this defendant asserts that he was duly enrolled by the officers of said Creek Tribe of Indians and by the officials of the United States Government with the full knowledge of all the facts in reference to the identity and existence of this defendant on April 1, 1899; denies that Minnie Atkins, mother of this defendant, concealed any facts, whatsoever, from the officers of said Nation and the United States Government in connection with the receiving by her for this defendant of the 1895 payment, and denies that said mother of this defendant defrauded the Creek Nation at that time out of $14.40, or any other sum belonging to this defendant; denies that the mother of this defendant falsely and fraudulently enrolled and caused to be allotted this defendant for the purpose of receiving, as the heir of this defendant, tribal funds and said allotment, the mother of this defendant at the time knowing, this defendant asserts, that this defendant was living and was entitled to share in the allotment of lands of, and in the distribution of the monies of, said tribe; denies that the mother of this defendant has ever concealed or attempted to conceal from the government of the United States and its officers the facts concerning the existence and identity of this defendant.

(c) That this defendant as to such material allegations contained in that part of the amended bill of complaint designated in Roman numerals as paragraph five, subdivision (c), which attempt to state a cause of action against this defendant, denies the same; and, as to such allegations contained in said subdivision which attempt to state a cause of action against Nancy Atkins, Minnie Atkins, Henry Carter, Martin Rowe, Harvey Harrison and Thomas Harris, this defendant is without knowledge as to the truth or falsity of the same, and demands that said complainant make strict proof thereof.

(d) That this defendant answering the material allegations contained in that part of the amended bill of complaint designated in Roman numerals as five, subdivision (d), says that he has no knowledge of the truth or falsity of said allegations and he therefore demands that the complainant be required to make strict proof of the same.

(e) That this defendant answering the material allegations contained in the amended bill of complaint designated in Roman numerals as five, subdivision (e), denies the same.

VI.

That this defendant further answering said amended bill of complaint as to paragraph thereof numbered in Roman numerals six, denies that the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes listed this defendant for enrollment without conducting any hearing, or making any investigation, or having received in connection any evidence of any character, and denies that said Commission proceeded ex parte and arbitrarily; denies that there was no contest, controversy or adverse proceedings had by and before the said Commission concerning whether this defendant was living or dead on the first day of April, 1899; denies that said Commission neither gave nor caused to be given to the Creek Nation, its officers or any other person any notice that the name of this defendant was about to be or would be, listed for enrollment and enrolled as for allotment or that patents were about, to be, or would be, issued as aforesaid; denies that said Commission in placing the name of this defendant on the roll of Creek citizens by blood, as aforesaid, and in so far as the question of whether or not this defendant was living or dead on April 1, 1899, was concerned, acted arbitrarily, without any knowledge or belie*ve* as to the existence of this defendant on April 1, 1899; denies that this defendant died prior to April 1, 1899, and was not living on said date; denies that said Commission acted upon a gross error and mistake of fact as well as of law in enrolling and passing to allotment in the Creek Nation this defendant, and says that this defendant was living on April 1, 1899, a citizen by blood of the Creek Nation entitled to allotment in said Nation, and that he was allotted as a citizen of such Nation the land described in the amended bill of complaint, patents for said land being thereafter and before the bringing of this suit duly issued to this defendant.

That this defendant has no knowledge concerning the claims asserted by the various other defendants named in complainant's bill to the subject matter of this suit as particularly set out in this paragraph numbered six, and therefore demands that complainant make strict proof of such allegations, except that this defendant does claim to be the owner of the lands allotted as aforesaid to Tommie Atkins and entitled to the possession thereof.

VII.

That this defendant in answering the material allegations in the amended bill of complaint marked in Roman numerals seven, admits that he as enrolled by said Commission opposite number 7913 on the Creek roll, and that the said allotment certificates and patents issued at the time set forth in subdivision (e) of paragraph five of this amended bill; denies that said enrollment, allotment and patent are null and void; denies that this defendant never had any existence and was and is a fictitious person; and denies that said Commission committed a gross mistake of fact as well as of law in allotting this defendant.

VIII.

That this defendant answering so much of the material allegation contained in that part of the amended bill of complaint marked eight in Roman numerals, as charges or attempts to charge a cause of action against this defendant, denies the same, and says that he is the owner both at law and in equity of all right, title and interest and estate in and to the subject matter of this suit.

IX.

That this defendant answering so much of the material allegations contained in the amended bill of complaint in paragraph numbered nine in Roman numerals, as charges or attempts to charge a cause of action against this defendant, admits that the land in question is situated in the oil and gas belt of the Creek Nation, and that it is of great value because of the oil and gas underlying the same; denies that said land belongs to the Creek Nation; admits that the defendants, Gem Oil Company, Charles Page and R. E. Josey, and each of them, without the consent of this defendant are, claiming and exercising the right of ownership over, and are in possession of, said premises without the consent of this defendant, and are taking and wasting great quantities of oil and gas from said premises, the value of which products being unknown to this defendant, but which this defendant believes to be, and therefore asserts, is very great, such taking and destroying of said property constitutes a continuous trespassing upon the lands of this defendant and a waste of said premises to the material, irreparable and permanent injury of said estate; and, unless a receiver be appointed by this court to take charge of, and go into possession of, said lands and conserve the oil and gas underlying the same for the use and benefit of this defendant, this defendant will suffer permanent, irreparable and material injury.

X.

That this defendant, as to each and every material allegation in said amended bill of complaint not hereinbefore admitted or denied, hereby enters his denial, and says that he is the owner of said premises and of all, appurtenances and improvements thereon, and is entitled to the immediate possession of the same subject to an oil and gas mining lease in favor of the Orange Oil Company on the homestead allotment, dated the 20th day of March, 1915, and an oil and gas mining lease on the surplus allotment to the same Company and of the same date, both of said leases being now owned by J. Truman Nixon and an attorney's contract with Haskell B. Talley, dated the 14th day of August, 1915.

Wherefore, this defendant having fully answered all the material allegations in the amended bill of complaint prays that the complainant take nothing by its said amended bill, and that said amended bill be dismissed at the costs of the complainant.

HASKELL B. TALLEY,
Solicitor for Defendant, Tommie Atkins.

Endorsed: Filed Oct. 11, 1915. R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 11th day of October, A. D. 1915, the defendant J. Truman Nixon filed Answer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Separate Answer of the Defendant, J. Truman Nixon, to the Amended Bill of Complaint.

Comes now the defendant, J. Truman Nixon, by his solicitor, Haskell B. Talley, and files this his separate answer to the Amended Bill of Complaint, and for his defense herein sets forth the following:

A.

1. That said Amended Bill of Complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in favor of the complainant and against this defendant; that said complainant has no right, title or interest in, or duty to perform in reference to, the subject matter of this suit; that said complainant is not a proper party plaintiff in said Bill of Complaint as against this defendant.

2. That there is an improper joining of defendants herein, and that there is a misjoinder as between this defendant and the remaining defendants in said cause of action, except the defendants, C. J. Wrightsman and Thomas Atkins.

B I.

That this defendant as to the material allegations contained in that part of complainant's bill numbered one in Roman numerals, admits the truth thereof, except that this defendant denies that complainant's Indian Agent or Superintendent has supervision or control over the tribal property belonging to the Creek Tribe of Indians, and denies that the tribal property and unallotted lands of said Creek Tribe of Indians are still under the control and management of the complainant as alleged.

II.

That this defendant denies the allegations contained in the first paragraph of that part of the Bill of Complaint designated in Roman numerals as paragraph two; admits that part of the remainder of the bill numbered two in Roman numerals, which alleges that the complainant had the right to, and did, allot in severalty to the various members and freedmen and enrolled citizens of the Creek Tribe of Indians, lands in said Nation belonging to said Indians; but denies that the complainant had at the time of filing this Bill of Complaint, or at any time subsequent thereto, the right or duty, as sovereign or as the governing power over said Indians for the purpose of restoring to the public domain of said tribe of Indians lands alleged to have been erroneously allotted by this complainant, to bring this suit; and denies that this complainant brings, or has the right to bring, this action in its own behalf or in behalf of said Creek Tribe of Indians.

III.

That this defendant admits that on April 1, 1899, the land which is the subject matter of this suit was a part of the lands of the Creek Nation but denies that said land was at the time of the filing of this Bill of Complaint, or at any time subsequent to the filing of this Bill of Complaint, the property of the Creek Nation and unallotted domain.

IV.

That this defendant admits the truth of the allegations contained in that part of the Bill of Complaint numbered four in Roman numerals.

V.

1. That this defendant answers paragraph of the Amended Bill of Complaint numbered five in Roman numerals as follows:

(a) Denies that the defendant, Thomas Atkins, was listed for enrollment by the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes without any application being made therefor, in a proceeding strictly ex parte, and without a hearing being had or conducted; admits that the name of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, was listed for enrollment for the purpose of placing said name upon the final rolls of the citizens of the said Creek Tribe of Indians, and that said name was thereafter placed upon and made a part of the final rolls of citizens of said tribe, that said allotment was approved on March 2, 1902, and that exhibit to the amended bill marked "A" is a true copy of said final roll in so far as it shows the name of Thomas Atkins; denies that said Commission arbitrarily, and without application being made therefore, alloted the lands which are the subject matter of this suit in the name of Thomas Atkins, but admits that the allotment of said lands was made on June 30, 1902, and that said land by such allotment was set aside and designated as the allotment of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, and that an allotment certificate evidencing the making of said allotment was issued on June 30, 1902, to the defendant, Thomas Atkins, a copy of such allotment certificate attached to the amended bill as exhibit "B" being a correct copy of the original allotment patent, and that the Principal Chief of said Creek Nation on the 14th day of April, 1903, executed patents as alleged in said amended bill, which patents were on May 7, 1902, duly approved by the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, and on May 16, 1903, were duly recorded in the office of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, the allotment patent being recorded in Book 12 at page 310 thereof, and the homestead patent being recorded in the office of said Commission in Book "L" at page 310 thereof, exhibits "C" and "D" attached to the amended bill of Complaint being true copies of said patents; and denies that said certificates of allotment and said patents have never been delivered and still remain in the possession of said Commission.

(b) Denies that the aforesaid allotment and patents are null and void; denies that any false and fraudulent, or false or fraudulent, evidence so far as the question of citizenship of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, in the Creek Tribe of Indians was concerned was used by said defendant, Thomas Atkins, or any one having authority to act for the defendant, Thomas Atkins, for the purpose of inducing said Commission to enroll the defendant, Thomas Atkins, or for the purpose of inducing said Commission to allot the defendant, Thomas Atkins, or to induce the Creek Nation or the United States Government to issue patents for the land in question to said Thomas Atkins; that this defendant, J. Truman Nixon, is not informed to what extent, if any, said Commission used on the question of citizenship in said Tribe, a certificate of allotment or roll of citizenship of said tribe which had been, prior to the allotting of said lands, made up for the purpose of making a tribal payment, particularly the authenticated pay roll of 1895, and being without information concerning such authenticated pay roll and concerning the alleged acts of said Commission based thereon this defendant demands that said complainant be required to make strict proof of such allegation, as well as of the allegation that Thomas Atkins appeared upon the 1895 pay roll as a member of the Euchee Town; that this defendant is without information as to whether or not said Commission had before it, and used as evidence on May 21, 1910, said pay roll, and whether or not said Commission believed that said pay roll spoke and represented the truth so far as the citizenship of Thomas Atkins was, and is, concerned, and being without information concerning said allegation this defendant demands strict proof of the same by the complainant; denies that said Commission did not conduct any hearing upon, or did not make investigation or have any evidence before it concerning, the citizenship and right to receive allotment of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, or that the said 1895 pay roll was the only evidence before said Commission at the time it received for enrollment, and did enroll, and did allot the defendant, Thomas Atkins; denies that said 1895 pay roll was false or fraudulent as to the defendant, Thomas Atkins, and that said Commission ignorant of the falsity of said pay roll acted, concluded and was determined thereby; that this defendant is not informed concerning the methods by which the sum of Two Hundred Thousand Dollars was appropriated and used under the Act of Congress approved March 2, 1895, in enrolling citizens of the Creek Nation for the purpose of making a per capita payment to said members, and, being without information upon such subject, this defendant demands that this complainant make strict proof of same; but this defendant denies that Samuel W. Brown wrongfully or fraudulently gave in the name of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, for enrollment on said roll, and that said Samuel W. Brown acted upon the false statements of one John Davis, or of any person, made to said Brown; admits that the defendant, Thomas Atkins, belonged at the time mentioned to the family of Minnie Atkins; denies that the name of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, was fraudulently or wrongfully enrolled as alleged, but this defendant asserts that the defendant, Thomas Atkins, was at the time of the making of said 1895 roll, a living member of the Creek Tribe of Indians entitled to share in the said per capita payments and in the distribution of the land and property of said Creek Tribe of Indians; denies that the officers of said Creek Tribe of Indians making, or assisting in making, said 1895 roll were induced to, and did, enroll the name of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, because of any false statements or representations whatsoever communicated to them by Samuel W. Brown or any other person; denies that any attempt was ever made by any person, whatsoever, to allot Thomas Atkins, grandfather of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, or that the grandfather of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, was ever allotted upon the lands in question, and this defendant asserts that the said Thomas Atkins was duly enrolled by the officers of said Creek Tribe of Indians and by the officials of the United States Government with the full knowledge of all the facts in reference to the identity and existence of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, on April 1, 1899; denies that Minnie Atkins, mother of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, concealed any facts, whatsoever, from the officers of said Nation and the United States Government in connection with the receiving by her for the defendant, Thomas Atkins, of the 1895 payment, and denies that said mother of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, defrauded the Creek Nation at that time out of $14.40, or any other sums belonging to the said Thomas Atkins; denies that the mother of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, falsely and fraudulently enrolled and caused to be allotted the said Thomas Atkins for the purpose of receiving, as the heir of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, tribal funds and said allotment, the mother of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, at the time knowing, this defendant asserts, that the said Thomas Atkins was living and was entitled to share in the allotment of lands of, and in the distribution of the monies of, said tribe; denies that the mother of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, has ever concealed or attempted to conceal from the Government of the United States and its officers the facts concerning the existence and identity of the said Thomas Atkins.

(c) That this defendant as to such material allegations contained in that part of the amended bill of complaint designated in Roman numerals as paragraph five, subdivision (c), which attempts to state a cause of action against this defendant, denies the same; and as to such allegations contained in said subdivision which attempt to state a cause of action against Nancy Atkins, Minnie Atkins, Henry Carter, Martin Rowe, Harvey Harrison, Thomas Harris and Thomas Atkins, this defendant is without knowledge as to the truth or falsity of the same, and demands that said complainant make strict proof thereof.

(d) That this defendant answering the material allegations contained in that part of the amended bill of complaint designated in Roman numerals as five, subdivision (d), says that he has no knowledge of the truth or falsity of said allegations and he therefore demands that the complainant be required to make strict proof of the same.

(e) That this defendant answering the material allegations contained in the amended bill of complaint, designated in Roman numerals as five, subdivision (e), denies the same.

VI.

That this defendant further answering said Amended Bill of Complaint as to paragraph thereof numbered in Roman numerals six denies that the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes listed the defendant, Thomas Atkins, for enrollment without conducting any hearing, or making any investigation, or having received in connection any evidence of any character, and denies that said Commission proceeded ex parte and arbitrarily; denies that there was no contest, controversy or adverse proceedings had by and before the said Commission concerning whether the defendant, Thomas Atkins, was living or dead on the first day of April, 1899; denies that said Commission neither gave nor caused to be given to the Creek Nation, its officers or any other person any notice that the name of the said Thomas Atkins was about to be, or would be, listed for enrollment and enrolled as for allotment or that patents were about to be, or would be, issued as aforesaid; denies that said Commission in placing the name of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, on the roll of the Creek citizens by blood, as aforesaid, and insofar as the question of whether or not the said Thomas Atkins was living or dead on April 1, 1899, was concerned, acted arbitrarily, without knowledge or believe as to the existence of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, on April 1, 1899; denies that the defendant, Thomas Atkins, died prior to April 1, 1899, and was not living on said date; denies that said Commission acted upon a gross mistake of fact as well as of law in enrolling and passing to allotment in the Creek Nation the defendant, Thomas Atkins, and says that the said Thomas Atkins was living on April 1, 1899, a citizen by blood of the Creek Nation entitled to allotment in said Nation, and that he was allotted as a citizen of such nation the land described in the amended bill of complaint, patents for said land being thereafter and before the bringing of this suit duly issued to the defendant, Thomas Atkins.

That this defendant has no knowledge concerning the claims asserted by the various other defendants named in complainant's bill to the subject-matter of this suit as particularly set out in paragraph numbered six, and therefore demands that complainant make strict proof of such allegations, except that the defendant, Thomas Atkins, does claim to be the owner of the lands allotted as aforesaid to Thomas Atkins and entitled to the possession thereof.

VII.

That this defendant in answering the material allegations in the amended bill of complaint marked in Roman numerals seven admits that the said Thomas Atkins was enrolled by said Commission opposite number 7913 on the Creek roll, and that the said allotment certificates and patents issued at the time set forth in subdivision (a) of paragraph five of this amended bill; denies that said enrollment, allotments and patents are null and void; denies that the defendant, Thomas Atkins, never had any existence and was and is a fictitious person; and denies that said Commission committed a gross mistake of fact as well as of law in allotting the defendant, Thomas Atkins.

VIII.

That this defendant answering so much of the material allegations contained in that part of the amended bill of complaint marked eight in Roman numerals, as charges or attempts to charge a cause of action against this defendant, denies the same, and says that said Thomas Atkins is the owner both at law and in equity of all right, title and interest and estate in and to the subject-matter of this suit.

IX.

That this defendant answering so much of the material allegations contained in the amended bill of complaint in paragraph numbered nine in Roman numerals, as charges or attempts to charge a cause of action against this defendant, admits that the land in question is situated in the oil and gas belt of the Creek Nation, and that it is of great value because of the oil and gas underlying the same; denies that said land belongs to the Creek Nation; admits that the defendants, Gem Oil Company, Charles Page and R. E. Josey and each of them, without the consent of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, are claiming and exercising the right of ownership over, and are in possession of, said premises without the consent of the defendant, Thomas Atkins, and are taking and wasting great quantities of oil and gas from said premises, the value of which products being unknown to this defendant or to the defendant, Thomas Atkins, but which this defendant believes to be, and therefore asserts, is very great, such taking and destroying of said property constituting a continuous trespass upon the lands of the defendant, J. Truman Nixon, and a waste of said premises to the material, irreparable and permanent injury of said estate, and, unless a receiver be appointed by this court to take charge of, and go into possession of, said lands and conserve the oil and gas underlying the same for the use and benefit of this defendant, this defendant and said Thomas Atkins will suffer permanent, irreparable and material injury.

X.

That this defendant, as to each and every material allegation in said amended bill of complaint not hereinbefore admitted or denies, hereby enters his denial, and says that the said Thomas Atkins is the owner of said premises and of all appurtenances and improvements thereon subject to the leases and contracts hereinafter set forth, and is entitled to the immediate possession of the same, subject to an oil and gas mining lease in favor of the Orange Oil Company on the homestead allotment, dated the 20th day of March, 1915, and on oil and gas mining lease on the surplus allotment to the same Company and of the same date, both of said leases being now owned by this defendant, and subject to an attorney's contract with Haskell B. Talley dated the 14th day of August, 1915.

Wherefore this defendant having fully answered all the material allegations in the amended bill of complaint prays that the complainant take nothing by its amended bill, and that said amended bill be dismissed at the costs of the complainant; that the title of this defendant as to his interest in said premises be quieted and that he be given such other and further relief as in equity and in good conscience he is entitled to.

HASKELL B. TALLEY,
Solicitor for Defendant, J. Truman Nixon.

Endorsed: Filed Oct. 11, 1915, R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 30th day of October, A. D. 1915, the defendant Thomas Atkins, sued as Henry Carter filed Answer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Separate Answer of Thomas Atkins to Amended Bill of Complaint.

Comes now Thomas Atkins and for his separate answer to the amended bill of complaint filed herein, says:

That he has been sued in said action as Henry Carter, but that his name, in truth and in fact, is Thomas Atkins, though he has sometimes been known as Henry Carter; that he is a son of Minnie Atkins and allottee No. 7913 appearing upon the allotment rolls of the Creek Indians.

This answering defendant alleges that he adopts the allegations of the amended bill of complaint filed herein insofar as they do not conflict with his interest or his rights to recover in said cause, and joins in the request that all conveyances which appear of record on said land, except the conveyance by the Principal Chief of the Creek Nation to himself, be cancelled, set aside and removed as a cloud.

This answering defendant, however, denies specifically all the allegations in paragraphs 5a, 5b and 5c in the amended bill of complaint and alleges the facts to be that he is a son of Minnie Atkins; that in 1895, he was living and was approximately ten years of age, and that he was entitled, under the laws, customs and usages of the Creek Nation, as a Creek citizen, to be duly and regularly enrolled as a Creek citizen upon the 1895 authrnticated pay roll and was so enrolled and was, at the time of said enrollment, a living member and citizen of the said tribe, and legally entitled to such enrollment; that thereafter, to-wit: on the 23rd day of May, 1901, he was duly allotted the Southwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter and Lot Two (2) of Section Five (5) and the Southwest Quarter of the Northwest Quarter and Lot Four (4) of Section Four (4) in Township Eighteen (18), [] of Range Seven (7) East of the Indian Base and Meridian, and the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes did, in proper form, after a full and legal hearing, enroll this defendant as the son of the said Minnie Atkins, a Creek Indian woman, and a citizen by blood of the Creek Nation and Tribe of Indians, and did place his name upon the final rolls of citizens of said tribe being prepared by said Commission under the acts of Congress, and that his enrollment was due, legal and regular and proper, as shown by Exhibit A attached to the amended bill of complaint, and said Commission did legally and properly allot the said described tract of land to this answering defendant as a citizen of the said Creek Nation, on the 30th day of June, 1902, and did thereby, set aside and designate as an allotment to this answering defendant the said land, and did cause a certificate evidencing the said allotment in due and proper form to issue, copy of which is attached to the amended bill of complaint as Exhibit B, and thereafter, in due course, in compliance with law, in legal, regular and proper manner, to-wit, on the 14th day of April, 1903, the Principal Chief of said Creek Nation executed a patent, whereby 120 acres of said land was allotted as surplus, and did, on the same day, execute another patent, whereby 40 acres of land was allotted as the homestead of said Thomas Atkins, and said patents and conveyances were, on the 8th day of May, 1903, approved by the Secretary of the Interior and afterwards, on the 16th day of May, 1903, said patents were duly recorded in the office of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, in Book 12, at page 310 and Book L, at page 310, respectively, copies of said patents being attached to the said amended bill of complaint as Exhibit C and Exhibit D, and that thereby this answering defendant became vested with the absolute legal title to said premises in fee.

This answering defendant admits each and every allegation stated in paragraph 5d of the said Amended Petition but alleges in addition thereto that the certain oil and gas mining lease signed by the defendant Henry Carter to the defendant Gem Oil Company, dated November 13, 1914, and recorded in Book 107, at page 125, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Creek County, was obtained by fraud in the following particulars, to-wit:

That at said time a certain party to this defendant unknown, represented that he was a detective and that he had found that this answering defendant was the owner of the tract of land above described, and that if this answering defendant would give him authority to represent him, that he would place him in possession of the said land and procure cancellation of all fraudulent and spurious claims and would charge him a reasonable compensation only for services performed, and late on the night of November 13, 1914, presented to this defendant an instrument, which he represented as a power of attorney, and procured defendant's signature thereto, upon representation that the same was a power of attorney, when, in truth and fact, the same appears now to be an oil and gas mining lease to the Gem Oil Company; that no consideration was paid this answering defendant and he never intended to execute the same but signed the instrument presented, upon the representation that it was a power of attorney; that this answering defendant has never seen said lease and does not know whether he executed the same or not, but alleges the fact to be that if he did execute the same, that it was by reason of his relying upon the said false representations made by the said assumed detective, whose name is, to this answering defendant, unknown, and that the same ought to be cancelled and held for naught.

This answering defendant specifically denies that no such person as Tommy Atkins enrolled by said Commission as aforesaid ever had any existence, and denies that said name represents a myth and fictitious person but admits that if any person claims to be his heir or heirs, that the said claim is false and fraudulent, but denies that the enrollment and allotment and issuance of patents to the said Thomas Atkins were the result of fraud, and were based upon false and fraudulent proof and evidence, so far as the question of citizenship of Thomas Atkins in the said tribe was concerned, and denies that said Commission, in so enrolling said name, allotting said land and issuing said patents, committed gross mistake of law, as well as of fact, and denies that said enrollment, allotment certificate and patents should be declared void and cancelled for the reason that the said Creek Nation and the complainant are greatly and irreparably injured thereby, or for any other reason.

Your complainant further denies each allegation of paragraph six, of the said amended bill of complaint, insofar as it conflicts with the allegations of this answer, and denies that the said enrollment, allotment and patents are null and void for the reason that so far as the question as to whether or not Thomas Atkins was living or dead on the 1st day of April, 1899, the said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes in listing the name of Thomas Atkins for enrollment, and in enrolling said name at the time aforesaid, conducted no hearing, made no investigation and did not have or receive any evidence of any character, and denies that said Commission proceeded ex parte and acted arbitrarily, and denies that in so causing the name of Tommy Atkins to be enlisted for enrollment as aforesaid, and to be placed on the roll of Creek citizens by blood, as aforesaid, the Commission acted, so far as the question as to whether or not Thomas Atkins was living or dead on the first day of April, 1899, was concerned, arbitrarily and summarily and without any knowledge, information or belief that the alleged Thomas Atkins was in existence and living or was dead on the first day of April, 1899, and denies that said Commission so placed the name of said Thomas Atkins on the said roll on the mere arbitrary and erroneous assumption, wholly unsupported by evidence or information, that the said Thomas Atkins was in existence and being and was living on the first day of April, 1899, and was entitled to be enrolled by said Commission under the Acts of Congress aforesaid, and alleges that the said Commission did have and hold a due and proper hearing, did take evidence and did judicially determine that the said Thomas Atkins was living on the first of April, 1899, and was the son of Minnie Atkins, a Creek citizen, and had been properly enrolled upon the Creek Rolls of 1895, and was, in all respects, entitled to an allotment and did duly allot him as aforesaid.

This answering defendant denies that the said Thomas Atkins had died prior to the first day of April, 1899, and was not living on said date, and denies that by virtue thereof he was not entitled to be enrolled as a member and citizen of the Creek Nation and denies that he was not entitled to receive any allotment or part or portion of the land of said

Creek Nation, under the acts of Congress aforesaid, but allege that he is now living and has no heirs entitled to claim or receive any of said land from him.

This answering defendant further denies that the said Commission, in so enrolling the name of Thomas Atkins, acted upon a gross error and mistake of fact as well as of law, and denies that the Commission did not know and did not have any evidence before it at the time to cause the name of said Thomas Atkins to be enrolled, either showing or tending to show whether or not he was living or dead, on April 1, 1899.

Defendant denies that because of the arbitrary and erroneous acts of said Commission, as aforesaid, the name of the alleged Thomas Atkins appeared on the official roll of the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians, opposite No. 7913, which was approved by the Secretary of the Interior, and denies that the allotment of said land was arbitrary and erroneously issued as aforesaid.

This answering defendant further denies that the said enrollment, allotment and patents to Thomas Atkins are null and void, for that the said alleged Thomas Atkins so enrolled by the said Commission opposite No. 7913 never had any existence and denies that said Thomas Atkins is a fictitious person and denies that said name represents no person who is or ever was in being, and denies that said enrollment, allotment and patents of said land was committed by a gross mistake of fact, as well as law, and denies that neither said allotment certificates nor said patent conveyed any right, title or interest in and to said lands to any person whomsoever.

Wherefore this answering defendant having fully answered, prays that the complainant recover nothing against him, that he be adjudged the owner in fee simple of the land above described, and that all conveyances upon the said land except the allotment patents to this answering defendant, be adjudged fraudulent, invalid and void, and that same be cancelled; that the Gem Oil Company, and each and all of his co-defendants herein, be required to render an accounting to show the amount of oil, gas and other minerals taken from said land, and that he have judgment against them and each of them for the amounts so respectively taken; for costs and for such other relief as the premises justify.

Solicitors for Thomas Atkins, alias Henry Carter.

State of Oklahoma, Seminole County.

Thomas Atkins being first duly sworn on oath deposes and says that he is the defendant named in the above answer that he has carefully read the same and knows the contents thereof and that the statements and allegations contained therein are true and correct.

THOMAS ATKINS.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 29 day of Oct., 1915. (Seal) A. Thelma Johnson,
My com. exp. Aug. 4th, 1919. Notary Public.

Endorsed: Filed Oct. 30, 1915. R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 14th day of December, A. D. 1915, the defendant Charles Page filed answer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Answer of Defendant Charles Page.

This defendant respectfully, now, and at all times hereafter saving to himself all and all manner of benefit of exception or otherwise that can or may be had or taken to the many errors, uncertainties and imperfections in said bill contained for answer thereto, or of so much thereof as this defendant is advised it is material to answer, or necessary for him to make answer, answering says:

(A) That this defendant is a stranger to all and singular the matters and things in the said complainant's bill of complaint and, therefore, leaves the complainant to make such proof thereof as he shall be able to produce.

(B) That heretofore, on or about the 23d day of May, 1901, the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, caused the name of Thomas Atkins to be placed on the rolls of Creek citizens by blood opposite Roll No. 7913.

(C) That thereafter, and on the 30th day of June, 1902, certificate of allotment was issued as provided by law, to the said Thomas Atkins; and,

(D) That thereafter, on the 14th day of April, 1903, homestead and allotment patents as provided by law, were issued to the said Thomas Atkins in due form, conveying the lands described in the bill of complaint to the said Thomas Atkins, and said patents, were, as provided by law, duly approved by the Secretary of the Interior on the 8th day of

May, 1903, and filed for record in the office of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, on the 16th day of May, 1903, and recorded in Book 1, at page 310, and Book 12, at page 310, respectively.

(E) That the land described in said patents comprises the land described in said bill of complaint, all of which is located in what is now Creek County, in the eastern district of the State of Oklahoma.

(F) That true and correct copies of said patents are attached to complainant's bill of complaint filed herein.

(1) Further answering, this defendant denies that the complainant brings or prosecutes this action in its own behalf or on behalf of the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians, and denies that said action is brought for the purpose of discharging complainant's duty and obligation towards said Tribe of Indians, or for the purpose of fully executing, carrying out, or discharging its duty in relationship to the allotment severally of the lands of said Tribe of Indians to the duly enrolled members thereof, according to the spirit, intent and purpose of any trust.

(2) This defendant denies that the lands described in complainant's complaint are a part of the lands belonging to the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians as public and unallotted domain; and,

Denies that such lands have been any part of such Nation since the said 30th day of June, 1902.

(3) Save as herein appears, this defendant denies the allegations set forth in paragraph four of said complaint;

And this defendant says that the duties of said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, and the rights of the citizens of the Creek Nation thereunder, are set forth in in the laws and treatise of the United States.

(4) Defendant denies that the listing of the name of Thomas Atkins for enrollment by said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes was made without any application being made therefor by any person or upon its own motion and initiative and denies that the proceeding in which said listing was carried out, was ex parte.

Defendant admits that said listing for enrollment was made for the purpose of placing the said name upon the final roll of citizens of said tribe then being prepared; and,

Admits that the name of Thomas Atkins was placed upon and made a part of the final roll of citizens of said tribe, and that said enrollment was approved by the Secretary of the Interior on the 2nd day of March, 1902; and,

Admits that the copy of said roll attached to said complaint as Exhibit "A" is a true copy thereof.

Defendant admits that said Commission, under appropriate Acts of Congress, allotted the lands described in said complaint to Thomas Atkins on the 30th day of June, 1902; and that said lands were set aside and designated as an allotment to said Thomas Atkins; and admits that the allotment certificate evidencing the making of said allotment was on June 30, 1902, issued whereby said Commission certified that said lands had been allotted to Thomas Atkins; and admits that the copy of said certificate attached to said complaint and marked Exhibit "B" is a true copy thereof; but defendant denies that the allotment of said lands to Thomas Atkins, as aforesaid, was arbitrarily made or made without application therefor.

Defendant admits that on the 14th day of April, 1903, the Principal Chief of said Creek Nation executed patents conveying respectively one hundred twenty (120) acres and forty (40) acres of said land to Thomas Atkins, and that said patents were, on the 8th day of May, 1903, approved by the Secretary of the Interior, and on the 16th of May, 1903, said patents were recorded in the office of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, in Book 12, at page 310 thereof, and Book L at page 310 thereof, respectively; and admits that the copies of said patents attached to said complaint and marked Exhibit "C" and Exhibit "D" respectively, are true copies thereof.

Defendant denies that said certificate of allotment and said patents have never been delivered to any person, and denies that they still remain in possession of said Commission, but defendant avers that recordation of said patents and said certificate as above set forth is constituted by law, and is, due and sufficient delivery thereof so as to completely terminate all right, title and interest in and to said land that theretofore remained in the Creek Nation of Indians or the United States of America; and that such recordation vested full and complete title to said lands in said grantee and his heirs.

(5) Defendant denies that said enrollment, allotment and patents are null and void; and denies that no title to said lands was conveyed by said allotment, allotment certificate and patents to Thomas Atkins or his heirs.

Defendant denies that said enrollment resulted from false and fraudulent evidence as to the question of citizenship in the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians of said Thomas Atkins.

Defendant admits that said Commission, in listing for enrollment the names of the citizens of the Creek Tribe of Indians for enrollment, used as material evidence, on said question of citizenship in said tribe, certain rolls of citizens which had been prepared by the officers of said tribe, and which were denominated and treated as authenticated tribal rolls, among which was the 1895 authenticated payroll; and admits that said Commission particularly relie*f* upon said 1895 payroll.

Defendant admits that the name of Thomas Atkins appeared upon said 1895 payroll in the family headed by the name of Minnie Atkins, and admits that said roll showed on its face that Thomas Atkins was in 1895 a living member and citizen of said tribe and a member of Euchee Town thereof.

Defendants admits that on the 23d day of May, 1901, the Commission had before it and used as evidence and relied upon said 1895 payroll.

The defendant denies that said Commission finally determined the question of citizenship of said Thomas Atkins and listed for enrollment and enrolled his name without any further investigation or other evidence being adduced to or had by said Commission other than said roll.

Defendant admits that said 1895 roll was material evidence on the question of citizenship of Thomas Atkins, but denies that said 1895 payroll was false and fraudulent.

Defendant admits that Samuel W. Brown as Town King of Euchee Town, in making up the said 1895 payroll gave in the name of Thomas Atkins to the National Counsel of the Creek Nation of Indians as a living member and citizen of said town and tribe, and as a part of the family of Minnie Atkins, and, thereby, caused said name to be placed upon the roll of members of said town and tribe. And that, in so doing, said Brown acted upon information obtained from John Davis, a relative and agent of Minnie Atkins duly authorized by her, to the effect that Thomas Atkins was at that time a living member of said tribe and town, and a member of the family of Minnie Atkins;

But defendant denies that the said information so imparted to said Samuel W. Brown, by said John Davis, was false or fraudulent.

Defendant admits that the officers of said tribe did enroll the name of Thomas Atkins, acting upon the statements and representations made to them by said Samuel W. Brown, but denies that said representations were in any way false, Defendant denies that Thomas Atkins, a member of the family of Minnie Atkins, of Euchee Town, was not in being at that time, and denies that no such person ever existed other than the father of Minnie Atkins.

Defendant denies that the Thomas Atkins so enrolled upon said 1895 payroll was a was a myth and fictitious person; and denies that such was known to be a fact by Minnie Atkins and John Davis because defendant avers that said Thomas Atkins, enrolled as aforesaid, was a living person at that time and was well known to said Minnie Atkins and said John Davis.

Defendant admits that said Samuel W. Brown relied upon the statements and representations made to him by said John Davis, and that he communicated the same to the officers of said tribe and that they acted upon them, but denies that said representations were false.

Defendant admits that in the summer of 1895 the Treasurer of said Creek Tribe of Indians made, distribution and per capita payment to the members of said tribe in accordance with said roll, and that Minnie Atkins received and collected from said nation through said treasurer, the sum of $14.40 as a payment due to and belonging to Thomas Atkins, but denies that she defrauded said tribe thereby, and denies that she defrauded said tribe by concealing that no such person as Thomas Atkins was in existence, because plaintiff avers that said Thomas Atkins was at that time alive and in being and entitled to be paid said sum so received by Minnie Atkins.

Defendant denies that at that time it was well and generally known throughout the Creek Nation and to the members thereof, and particularly to Minnie Atkins, that the Congress of the United States had passed various acts looking to the enrollment of the members of said tribe with a view to allotting to said members the lands of the tribe in fee simple; and denies that said Minnie Atkins caused the name of Thomas Atkins to be placed upon the 1895 payroll for the purpose of enjoying whatever benefits that might accrue to her as the heir at law of said Thomas Atkins in the final enrollment of the lands of said tribe; and denies that she could have known or foreseen that said allotment of lands would take place or in what manner or by what procedure the same would be carried out; and denies that she could have foreseen that any benefit would accrue to her in that regard by said enrollment on the 1895 payroll; and denies that at that time any provision had been made by Congress whereby she could have so benefited, and denies that she could have known that said roll would have any bearing upon said allotment of lands; and denies that said Minnie Atkins has concealed from the officers of said tribe and the Government of the United States, that there was no such person as Thomas Atkins because defendant avers that said Thomas Atkins was at that time a living person and a member of said tribe and entitled to be enrolled on said 1895 payroll. This defendant says that he has no knowledge as to the claims of any of the defendants set forth in said complaint other than ,this answering defendant, and the defendants Minnie E. Folk, Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford.

And defendant denies that no such person as Thomas Atkins enrolled by said Commission as aforesaid, never existed; and denies that said name represents a myth and fictitious person, and denies that this defendant and the above-named defendants know, or have any any time known, that no such person as the said Thomas Atkins, ever existed, and denies that their claims are false and fraudulent.

And denies the allegation in said bill that this defendant and the defendants Minnie E. Folk, Harrby B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford have no claim either in law or in equity to any right, title, interest or estate in and to said lands, or any part thereof; and further denies that the claims of these defendants are adverse to complainant or to the Creek Nation of Indians.

(6) This defendant does not know and can not set forth the interests or claim of interest of any of the defendants named in said complaint in subdivisions C, D and E of paragraph 5 thereof, except for this answering defendant and Minnie E. Folk, Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford.

And defendant denies that the claims of these defendants, are adverse to the complainant or the Creek Nation of Indians.

And denies that the above-named defendants have no interest in said lands at law or in equity.

(7) This defendant denies that any instrument under which he holds constitute a cloud upon the title to said lands; and denies that the existence of said allotment certificate and patents or other instruments subsequent thereto, hinder or delay complainant in the performance of the duties imposed upon it by law to preserve to the Creek Nation the said land and the value thereof, and to allot and otherwise dispose of said land and to wind up the affairs of the Creek Nation.

(8) Defendant denies that said enrollment, allotment and patents are null and void. And defendant denies that the said Commission in placing the said Thomas Atkins on the roll of Creek citizens by blood acted arbitrarily, summarily or without knowledge or information or belief that the said Thomas Atkins was in existence and living on the 1st day of April, 1899, and denies that said Commission in listing the name of Thomas Atkins for enrollment and enrolling said name, conducted no hearing, or made no investigation, and denies that it did not have or receive any evidence of any character, and denies that it proceeded ex parte and acted arbitrarily.

Defendant denies that there was no contest, controversy or adverse proceeding had by or before the said Commission in respect to the question as to whether or not said Thomas Atkins was living or dead on the first day of April, 1899.

Defendant denies that the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes did not give or cause to be given to the Creek Nation or its officers, or any other person, notice that the name of the said Thomas Atkins was about to be or would be enrolled.

And denies that the said Commisson placed the name of said Thomas Atkins on said roll on an arbitrary or erroneous assumption wholly unsupported by evidence or information as to whether Thomas Atkins was living on April 1, 1899, and entitled to be enrolled by said Commission under the Acts of Congress made and provided.

(9) Defendant denies that complaintant has no knowledge and does not know that Thomas Atkins was in existence and was living prior to April 1, 1899.

And denies that the said Thomas Atkins died prior to the 1st day of April, 1899.

And denies that he was not entitled to be enrolled and allotted lands of the Creek Nation.

(10) Defendant denies that the heirs of the said Thomas Atkins were not entitled to receive any part of the public lands of the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians by virtue of being heirs of the said Thomas Atkins. And denies that they did not take title to the lands described in said complaint by virtue of the allotment thereof in the name of Thomas Atkins, and the issuance of said patents to and in the name of Thomas Atkins.

(11) Defendant denies that at the time the name of said Thomas Atkins was placed upon the official rolls aforesaid, the said Commission placed said name thereon under an erroneous and arbitrary assumption that the said Thomas Atkins was in being and living on April 1, 1899.

And denies that said Commission acted upon a gross error or mistake of fact or mistake of law.

And denies that said Commission did not know or did not have any evidence before it at the time that they caused the name of the said Thomas Atkins to be enrolled showing, or, tending to show that the said Thomas Atkins was living on April 1, 1899.

(12) Defendant denies that the name of the said Thomas Atkins appears on the official rolls aforesaid because of the arbitrary or erroneous act of said Commission;

And denies that the allotment of said lands described in said complaint was arbitrarily or erroneously made to the said Thomas Atkins

(13) Defendant denies that the said enrollment allotment and patents are null and void and denies that Thomas Atkins so enrolled by said Commission opposite roll No. 7913 never had an existence, and denies that he was and is a fictitious person, and that said name represents no person who is or ever was in being;

And denies that by reason thereof said Commission in so enrolling said name and allotting and patenting for the land as aforesaid, committed a gross mistake of fact as well as of law, and denies that neither said allotment, allotment certificates nor said patents conveyed any right, title or interest in and to said lands to any person whomsoever.

And defendant avers that at the time said Thomas Atkins was enrolled by said Commission as aforesaid he was a living person, a member and citizen of the Creek Nation of Indians and entitled to be so enrolled and allotted.

Defendant admits that he and the defendants, Minnie E. Folk, Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford, are claiming some right, title or interest in said property under and by virtue of said allotment certificates and patents or by virtue of deeds or leases subsequent thereto and in pursuance thereof, but denies that said patents, claims, assertions, deeds and leases constitute clouds upon the title of said Creek Nation in and to said lands, and harass and embarrass and interfere with complianant in the execution of any trust or the performance of its duties and obligations to said tribe and the members thereof.

(14) Defendant denies that the complainant now has any information or knowledge as to the life or death of said Thomas Atkins that it did not have at the time of the enrollment of said Thomas Atkins and the allotment of said lands to him.

(15) Defendant admits that the land described in said complaint are situated in the oil and gas belt of the State of Oklahoma, and in that portion of the oil and gas field known as the Cushing field; and admits that said lands are now of great value because of the oil and gas thereunder.

But defendant denies that the Creek Nation is now or has been at any time the owner of any of the oil or gas under said lands;

And denies that said Creek Nation has had any interest in any portion of said lands subsequent to June 30, 1902.

(16) Defendant denies that the Gem Oil Company, Charles Page and R. A. Josey or either of them have unlawfully entered upon said lands or unlawfully proceeded to prospect and drill thereon for oil and gas, or have unlawfully drilled thereon for oil or gas, or have unlawfully removed therefrom or disposed of oil and gas.

(17) Defendant denies that he or the Gem Oil Company or R. A. Josey have committed any trespass and denies that they have no right, title or interest in and to any part of said lands or the oil and gas thereunder.

And denies that this answering defendant or any of said parties have committed a trespass upon said lands in violation of the rights of complainant, or of the Creek Nation of Indians.

And denies that the acts of this defendant and said parties constitute waste upon any estate of the Creek Nation, or that said acts are materially, irreparably or permanently damaging to said estate.

(17)[18] Defendant denies that the claim or rights of the complainant and the Creek Nation in and to said lands aforesaid are well founded or based upon grounds that are good; and denies the existence of any ground, necessity or right for the appointment of a receiver of said premises;

And denies that any injury, permanent, irreparable or material will be occasioned to any alleged rights of complainant or the Creek Nation of Indians.

(19) Defendant denies that complainant and the Creek Nation of Indians have no adequate remedy at law.

(20) Defendant avers that the said Thomas Atkins was a duly enrolled citizen of the Creek Nation of Indians of one-half blood, alive and in being on April 1, 1899.

(21) That the tribal authorities of the Creek Nation duly authorized thereto by law, enrolled said Thomas Atkins on the tribal rolls of said tribe of the years 1890 and 1895.

That thereafter, said rolls and said enrollment of Thomas Atkins thereon, were duly confirmed by Act of Congress on June 10, 1896, which provided specifically that the rolls of citizenship of said Creek Nation as then existed were confirmed.

(22) That thereafter the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, under authority of the Act of Congress of June 28, 1898, adjudged said Thomas Atkins to have been properly enrolled and to be entitled to enrollment on said tribal rolls.

(23) That thereafter, pursuant to the Act of Congress of ...., 1901, said Commission having before it the evidence required by law to entitle the said Thomas Atkins to enrollment, including said tribal rolls, duly adjudged the said Thomas Atkins to be a citizen of said Creek Nation living on the first day of April, 1899, entitled to be enrolled under Section 21 of the Act of Congress approved June 28, 1898; and with the full knowledge and consent of the Creek tribal authorities and proper officers of the Creek Nation and complainant did place the name of the said Thomas Atkins upon the final roll made by said Commission under and by virtue of said Acts of Congress.

That said enrollment as made by said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes was thereafter duly and regularly approved by the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to law and thereupon became and was and is final and conclusive.

(24) That thereafter pursuant to law, said allotment, certificates and patents were duly made, executed, issued, delivered and recorded, and that the entire title in and to said premises was thereby divested over and from the Creek Nation of Indians and complainant and vested in said Thomas Atkins or his proper representatives.

(25) That at the time of the selection of said lands and the issuance of patents and for many years thereafter, the value of said lands was purely nominal, being approximately $1.50 an acre

That on or about the ...... day of ...., 1912, the Gypsy Oil Company went into open notorious possession of said lands and drilled thereon a well producing oil and gas; that thereafter in July, 1914, this answering defendant and the defendants Minnie E. Folk, Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford, went into possession of said lands and were on the third day of July, 1914, in peaceable, open and notorious possession thereof.

That on said day the order was made by the District Court of Creek County, Oklahoma, having jurisdiction of the res, authorizing said defendant and the defendant R. A. Josey to hazard and expend $50,000.00 in the development of said lands pursuant to said order of court, a full, true and correct copy thereof being attached hereto marked "Exhibit A" and made a part hereof;

That pursuant to the terms of the said order of court, said defendants Charles Page and R. A. Josey, entered on said premises, hazarded said sum of $50,000.00, and by the hazard of said sum of money and by their energy, skill and knowledge of the oil and gas business, have succeeded in making said premises worth whatever value the same possess at this time; that said Charles Page has succeeded to whatever rights said Gipsy Oil Company and the Gem Oil Company and R. A. Josey have heretofore had in said lands;

And the entire value of said lands over and above a nominal sum has been created by the energy, development and hazard of said Gypsy Oil Company, Gem Oil Company, R. A. Josey, and this defendant.

(26) That the complainant, its officers and agents, together with its Indian Superintendent in charge of the affairs of the Five Civilized Tribes, had, at all times, full knowledge of the possession, development and operation of said lands;

(27) That said complainant has recognized and acquiesced in the validity of said patents, and has stood behind and sustained the same as its sovereign act since their issuance up to the filing of this suit.

That no claim in law or equity has been or asserted by said complainant, its officers or agents, including its Indian Superintendent at Muskogee, or by the Creek Nation, or its officers or agents prior to the filing of this action, although the fact of said possession, and the fact of the intention of said defendants to hazard large sums of money in the testing of said premises for oil and gas, was well known to said complainant, its officers and agents, to the Creek Nation, its officers and agents, and also well and publicly known throughout the oil fields of the State of Oklahoma.

(28) That said complainant and said Creek Nation stood by and allowed these defendants to hazard said sum of $50,000.00 and more, to use their knowledge, skill and experience in the oil business in testing said premises, and said complainant, and the Creek Nation, by their silence, laches, acquiescence, and recognition of the validity of said patents, and failure to assert any claim or to give notice of any claim, are now estopped and forever barred to assert any claim adverse to the title of this defendant, and the defendants, Minnie E. Folk, Harry B. Folk, and Edward C. Hanford, who are in open, notorious and exclusive possession of said premises and of the oil and gas lying thereunder.

(29) That oil and gas was discovered in paying quantities on said lands more than three years prior to filing of this suit, of which complainant and said Creek Nation had knowledge or ample opportunity to have knowledge.

(30) That thereafter this defendant, together with the defendant R. A. Josey, proposed, and it was well and fully known to said complainant and the Creek Nation, to hazard said sum of $50,000.00 in testing said premises to the deep sand known as the Bartlesville sand, which had not yet been tested on said lands.

And that all of said drilling operations and hazard of said sums of money were made and had upon the faith in the validity of said patents, in reliance thereon, and in accordance with the judgment of the District Court of the State of Oklahoma, having jurisdiction of the res.

(31) That the cancellation of said patents or the granting of any relief as prayed for in said complaint, would be inequitable and unjust by reason of the changed conditions of the parties, the lapse of time, the great increase in value of the property and the difficulty in meeting allegations which might readily have been met had they have been made seasonably.

That this answering defendant in good faith spent a valuable and adequate cash consideration, to-wit: the sum of $10,000.00 in hand paid, for the leasehold interest for oil and gas in and to said premises, and paid said consideration at the time of taking a conveyance from the heirs of Thomas

Atkins who were in possession of said lands under claim of title, without notice of any claim on the part of the complainant or the Creek Nation of any claim of invalidity in said patents, and in reliance thereon;

And subsequent thereto, vast expenditures and liabilities in the sum of more than $200,000.00 have been made or assumed by this defendant in reliance on the validity of said title, and without notice of any defect or claim of defect in said patent by complainant or the Creek Nation.

That this answering defendant and the defendant R. A. Josey purchased the claim of the Gypsy Oil Company in and to said premises in reliance on the validity of said patents for a consideration of more than $20,000.00, without notice or knowledge of any claim on the part of complainant or the Creek Nation in and to said lands.

That this defendant and the defendant R. A. Josey, purchased the interest of the defendants Harvey Harrison and Charlie Harrison from the persons holding the same, in and to said leasehold estate for oil and gas for a valuable consideration in the sum of $1,500.00, in hand paid, prior to the assertion of any claim by complainant or the Creek Nation of any invalidity of said patent.

That this answering defendant has purchased the interest of R. A. Josey in and to said property and is now the owner and holder of all right, title and interest heretofore held by said R. A. Josey, in and to the leasehold estate to said property for oil and gas purposes.

(32) That if the claim of the claimant or of the Creek Nation had been asserted by the filing of suit or the giving of notice or otherwise, these defendants would not have hazarded the said sum of money in the testing of said lands for oil and gas and would not have paid the purchase price for the same.

That having hazarded the said sum of money and paid said purchase price without any intimation or assertion on the part of complainant or the Creek Nation of the invalidity of said patent, said complainant and the Creek Nation are barred and estopped by their delay and laches in a court of equity from asserting any such claim against this defendant, and it would be inequitable to grant the relief sought by said bill against this defendant.

(33) That the res in controversy is within the jurisdiction and under the control of the District Court of the State of Oklahoma in and for Creek County, as appears from the orders of said court attached hereto and marked "Exhibit A."

That this court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver or to proceed further with the hearing of this cause.

(34) Defendant further avers that the enrollment of said Thomas Atkins, and the issuance of said allotment certificate and patents constitutes an adjudication by a special tribunal constituted by law charged with the duty of making enrollment of citizens of the Creek Nation, clothed with authority, as provided by law, and are final decrees, conclusively adjudicating the right of said Thomas Atkins to enrollment and the conveyance to him of said lands described in said patent, which said decrees are impervious to act on the ground set forth in complainant's complaint, and that for said reason this Honorable Court has no jurisdiction in the premises.

(35) And defendant avers that complainant and the Creek Nation are barred and forever foreclosed and estopped by laches from asserting any claim to said lands adverse to this defendant and the defendants Minnie Folk, Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford; that any claim or claim of right, title and interest that they may have had heretofore are stale and are not enforcible in a court of equity. And they are not entitled to any relief in this action. That more than thirteen years has elapsed since said allotment certificate was issued and more than twelve years since the issuance of said patents; that said lands have increased vastly in value from a nominal sum to many hundreds of thousands of dollars, by reason of the discovery of oil and gas thereunder and the improvements and developments placed thereon by said defendants.

That defendant without notice or knowledge of any defects in his title or the title of those through whom he claims has invested large sums in the development of said property for oil and gas increased the value thereof. That complainant and the Creek Nation with full knowledge have stood by and allowed defendant so to do without giving notice of any claims on their part and have failed to assert any such claim until after said lands were proven and known to be valuable for oil and gas. And that the condition of the parties, and of said property, have materially changed, by reason of that fact, the relief prayed for by complainant is without equity.

(36) Defendant avers that the complainant or the Creek Nation has not any interest in the estate described herein to entitle complainant to sustain this suit.

That it appears from the face of complainant's complaint herein, that the same does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, and that complainant is not entitled to the relief prayed for against these defendants.

(37) That it appears from said complaint that this court has no jurisdiction to hear and determine this action.

(38) That said bill of complaint is wholly without equity.

(39) Defendant further denies that said bill sets forth any equity in complainant or the Creek Nation which entitles it or either of them to any relief prayed for in said complaint, and makes this defense with like effect as if the same had been raised by motion to dismiss.

(40) Defendant further shows that, as appears affirmatively from said complaint, complainant and the Creek Nation have a plain, speedy and adequate remedy at law and are not entitled to maintain an action in equity.

And this defendant denies all and all manner of unlawful combination and confederacy wherewith he is by the said bill charged; there is not another matter, cause or thing in said complainant's said bill of complaint contained material or necessary for this defendant to make answer to, and not herein and hereby well and sufficiently answered, confessed, traversed and avoided or denied, is true, to the knowledge or belief of this defendant, or which matters and things this defendant is ready and willing to aver, maintain and prove as this Honorable Court shall direct; and humbly prays to be hence dismissed with his reasonable costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained.

C. B. STUART,
Attorney for Defendant Charles Page.

United States of America, Eastern District of Oklahoma—ss.

Charles Page, being first duly sworn on oath deposes and says: That he is one of the defendants in the foregoing cause; that he has read the foregoing answer, knows the contents thereof, and believes the same to be true.

My commission expires on the 3 day of Feb. 1918.

Exhibit "A".

State of Oklahoma, County of Creek. In the District Court. Minnie Folk (formerly Minnie Atkins), on behalf of herself, and on behalf of Alexander Macnab, Jr., Trustee, Plaintiff, vs. The unknown heirs and devisees of Thomas

Atkins, deceased, Harvey Harrison and Charles Harrison, Defendants; Charles Page and R. A. Josey, Interveners. --No. 3719.

ORDER.

This cause came on for hearing on this ...... day of July, 1914, and the plaintiff appearing in open Court by her attorney, E. C. Hanford, and the interveners, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, appearing by their attorneys, Rice and Lyons, and it appearing that the issues between said plaintiff and interveners are made up, and both parties announcing for trial, said cause came on to be heard on the pleadings, evidence and admissions of counsel, and it appearing to the court that heretofore the lands described in the petition, to-wit:

> The Southwest Quarter (SW4) of the Northwest Quarter (NW4) of Section Four (4), and the Southwest Quarter (SW4) of the Northeast Quarter (NE4) and Lot Two (2) of Section Five (5), and Lot Four (4) of Section Four (4), all in Township Eighteen (18), North, Range Seven (7), East, containing one hundred sixty (160) acres, more or less, were allotted to Thomas Atkins, a citizen of the Creek Nation, and that a prima facie cause has been made showing the death of Thomas Atkins, and that he left as his sole heir, Minnie Folk, formerly Minnie Atkins, the plaintiff in this cause; that heretofore, Minnie Folk conveyed the legal title to said lands to Alexander Macnab, Jr., in trust, and said trustee and the said Minnie Folk thereafter made an oil and gas lease to the Gem Oil Company, and that said company thereafter assigned said leasehold to Charles Page and R. A. Josey, who are the present owners of the same and in possession thereof.

That said lease is the ordinary form of lease, and contains the ordinary conditions and provisions customary in the oil and gas field in which said lands are located; that said lands are being drained of the oil to the great damage of the owners of said leasehold and the owner of said fee; that said lands should be developed forthwith to protect the rights of all persons interested thereon; that it is necessary to hazard approximately Fifty Thousand Dollars ($50,000.00), in the development thereof under the present conditions to properly protect said rights. That said Charles Page and R. A. Josey are able and willing to enter on said lands, hazard said money, and proceed with the development of the same, pursuant to the terms of said lease.

That under the testimony offered, the said Charles Page and R. A. Josey have acquired title to said leasehold on said lands, subject only to the rights of Thomas Atkins, whose death, without issue, is alleged. That a sufficient showing has been made to give rise to the presumption of law that the said Thomas Atkins is dead, and it further appears that said Thomas Atkins died at so early an age that the probability of his leaving a wife or issue is slight.

That the proposed development of the lands under the lease held by the said Charles Page and R. A. Josey is not only beneficial to the said Minnie Folk, the mother of said Thomas Atkins, but is beneficial to the said Thomas Atkins if he be alive.

That the interveners are willing to waive any right to reimbursement from the said Thomas Atkins for expenditures made in the development of said leasehold, and are entitled to have their leasehold estate protected, in the event said Thomas Atkins should finally appear and establish his identity. And

It further appearing that all of the allegations of interveners' petition are true,

Now Therefore, It is Ordered, Considered and Adjudged that the title of said interveners, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, in and to the leasehold estate for oil and gas, is quieted against plaintiffs.

It is further Ordered, Considered and Adjudged that by virtue of the said proposed development and waiver of claim of reimbursement from the said Thomas Atkins, and the necessity of said development to protect the rights of the owners of said premises, and the probability of the entire loss of the oil and gas thereunder, if such development is not made, the rights of said lessees in the leasehold estate are hereby confirmed, subject only to the claim of Thomas Atkins for proper royalty therefrom.

It is further Ordered, Considered and Adjudged that such proper orders shall be made as to unknown heirs and devisees of Thomas Atkins and other parties defendant, as shall hereafter be required by law.

Done in open Court this ...... day of July, 1914.

..........................,
Presiding Judge of the District
Court of Creek County, Oklahoma.

Endorsed: Filed Dec. 14, 1915, R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 23rd day of December, A. D. 1915, the defendants Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford filed Answer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Answer of Minnie E. Folk (nee Atkins), Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford.

These defendants respectfully, now, and at all times hereafter saving to themselves all and all manner of benefit of exception or otherwise that can or may be had or taken to the many errors, uncertainties and imperfections in said bill contained for answer thereto, or of so much thereof as these defendants are advised it is material to answer, or necessary for them to make answer, answering say:

(A) That these defendants are strangers to all and singular the matters and things in the said complainant's bill of complaint and, therefore, leave the complainant to make such proof thereof as he shall be able to produce.

(B) That heretofore, on or about the 23d day of May, 1901, the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, caused the name of Thomas Atkins to be placed on the rolls of Creek citizens by blood opposite Roll No. 7913.

(C) That thereafter, and on the 30th day of June, 1902, certificate of allotment was issued as provided by law, to the said Thomas Atkins; and,

(D) That thereafter, on the 14th day of April, 1903, homestead and allotment patents as provided by law, were issued to the said Thomas Atkins in due form, conveying the lands described in the bill of complaint to the said Thomas Atkins, and said patents, were, as provided by law, duly approved by the Secretary of the Interior on the 8th day of May, 1903, and filed for record in the office of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, on the 16th day of May, 1903, and recorded in Book 1, at page 310, and Book 12, at page 310, respectively.

(E) That the land described in said patents comprises the land described in said bill of complaint, all of which is located in what is now Creek County, in the eastern district of the state of Oklahoma.

(F) That true and correct copies of said patents are attached to complainant's bill of complaint filed herein, and true and correct copy of said patents are attached to this answer (marked Exhibits A & B) and specifically made a part hereof.

(1) Further answering, these defendants deny that the complainant brings or prosecutes this action in its own behalf or on behalf of the Creek Nation or tribe of Indians, and deny that said action is brought for the purpose of discharging complainant's duty and obligation towards said tribe of Indians, or for the purpose of fully executing, carrying out, or discharging its duties in relationship to the allotment severally of the lands of said tribe of Indians to the duly enrolled members thereof, according to the spirit, intent and purpose of any trust.

(2) These defendants deny that the lands described in complainant's complaint are a part of the lands belonging to the Creek Nation or tribe of Indians as public and unallotted domain; and,

Deny that such lands have been any part of such nation since the said 30th day of June, 1902.

(3) Save as herein appears, these defendants dny the allegations set forth in paragraph four of said complaint;

And these defendants say that the duties of said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, and the rights of the citizens of the Creek Nation thereunder, are set forth in the laws and treatise of the United States.

(4) Defendants deny that the listing of the name of Thomas Atkins for enrollment by said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes was made without any application being made therefor by any person or upon its own motion and initiative and deny that the proceeding in which said listing was carried out, was ex parte.

Defendants admit that said listing for enrollment was made for the purpose of placing the said name upon the final roll of citizens of said tribe then being prepared; and,

Admit that the name of Thomas Atkins was placed upon and made a part of the final roll of citizens of said tribe, and that said enrollment was approved by the Secretary of the Interior on the 2nd day of March, 1902; and,

Admit that the copy of said roll attached to said complaint as Exhibit "A" is a true copy thereof.

Defendants admit that said Commission, under appropriate Acts of Congress, allotted the lands described in said complaint to Thomas Atkins on the 30th day of June, 1902; and that said lands were set aside and designated as an allotment to said Thomas Atkins; and admit that the allotment certificate evidencing the making of said allotment was on June 30, 1902, issued whereby said Commission certified that said lands had been allotted to Thomas Atkins; and admit that the copy of said certificate attached to said complaint and marked Exhibit "B" is a true copy thereof; but defendants deny that the allotment of said lands to Thomas Atkins, as aforesaid, was arbitrarily made or made without application therefor.

Defendants admit that on the 14th day of April, 1903, the Principal Chief of said Creek Nation executed patents conveying respectively one hundred twenty (120) acres and forty (40) acres of said land to Thomas Atkins, and that said patents were, on the 8th day of May, 1903, approved by the Secretary of the Interior, and on the 16th of May, 1903, said patents were recorded in the office of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, in Book 12, at page 310 thereof, and Book L at page 310 thereof, respectively; and admit that the copies of said patents attached to said complaint and marked Exhibit "C" and Exhibit "D" respectively, are true copies thereof.

Defendants deny that said certificate of allotment and said patents have never been delivered to any person, and deny that they still remain in possession of said Commission, but defendants aver that recordation of said patents and said certificate as above set forth is constituted by law, and is, due and sufficient delivery thereof so as to completely terminate all right, title and interest in and to said land that theretofore remained in the Creek Nation of Indians or the United States of America; and that such recordation vested full and complete title to said lands in said grantee and his heirs.

(5) Defendants deny that said enrollment, allotment and patents are null and void; and deny that no title to said lands was conveyed by said allotment, allotment certificate and patents to Thomas Atkins or his heirs.

Defendants deny that said enrollment resulted from false and fraudulent evidence as to the question of citizenship in the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians of said Thomas Atkins.

Defendants admit that said Commission, in listing for enrollment the names of the citizens of the Creek Tribe of Indians for enrollment, used as material evidence, on said question of citizenship in said tribe, certain rolls of citizens which had been prepared by the officers of said tribe, and which were denominated and treated as authenticated tribal rolls, among which was the 1895 authenticated pay roll; and admit that said Commission particularly relied upon said 1895 pay roll.

Defendants admit that the name of Thomas Atkins appeared upon said 1895 pay roll in the family headed by the name of Minnie Atkins, and admit that said roll showed on its face that Thomas Atkins was in 1895 a living member and citizen of said tribe and a member of Euchee Town thereof.

Defendants admit that on the 23d day of May, 1901, the Commission had before it and used as evidence and relied upon said 1895 pay roll.

The defendants deny that said Commission finally determined the question of citizenship of said Thomas Atkins and listed for enrollment and enrolled his name without any further investigation or other evidence being adduced to or had by said Commission other than said roll.

Defendants admit that said 1895 roll was material evidence on the question of citizenship of Thomas Atkins, but denies that said 1895 pay roll was false and fraudulent.

Defendants admit that Samuel W. Brown as Town King of Euchee Town, in making up the said 1895 pay roll gave in the name of Thomas Atkins to the National Council of the Creek Nation of Indians as a living member and citizen of said town and tribe, and as a part of the family of Minnie Atkins, and, thereby, caused said name to be placed upon the roll of members of said town and tribe. And that, in so doing, said Brown acted upon information obtained from John Davis, a relative and agent of Minnie Atkins duly authorized by her, to the effect that Thomas Atkins was at that time a living member of said tribe and town, and a member of the family of Minnie Atkins;

But defendants deny that the said information so imparted to said Samuel W. Brown, by said John Davis, was false or fraudulent.

Defendants admit that the officers of said tribe did enroll the name of Thomas Atkins, acting upon the statements and representations made to them by said Samuel W. Brown, but deny that said representations were in any way false.

Defendants deny that Thomas Atkins, a member of the family of Minnie Atkins, of Euchee Town, was not in being at that time, and deny that no such person ever existed other than the father of Minnie Atkins.

Defendants deny that the Thomas Atkins so enrolled upon said 1895 pay roll was a myth and fictitious person; and denies that such was known to be a fact by Minnie Atkins and John Davis because defendants aver that said Thomas Atkins, enrolled as aforesaid, was a living person at that time and was well known to said Minnie Atkins and said John Davis.

Defendants admit that said Samuel W. Brown relied upon the statements and representations made to him by said John Davis, and that he communicated the same to the officers of said tribe and that they acted upon them, but deny that said representations were false.

Defendants admit that in the summer of 1895 the Treasurer of said Creek Tribe of Indians made, distribution and per capita payment to the members of said tribe in accordance with said roll, and that Minnie Atkins received and collected from said nation through said treasurer, the sum of $14.40 as a payment due to and belonging to Thomas Atkins, but deny that she defrauded said tribe by concealing that no such person as Thomas Atkins was in existence, because plaintiff avers that said Thomas Atkins was at that time alive and in being and entitled to be paid said sum so received by Minnie Atkins.

Defendants deny that at that time it was well and generally known throughout the Creek Nation and to the members thereof, and particularly to Minnie Atkins, and that the Congress of the United States had passed various acts looking to the enrollment of the members of said tribe with a view to allotting to said members the lands of the tribe in fee simple; and deny that said Minnie Atkins caused the name of Thomas Atkins to be placed upon the 1895 pay roll for the purpose of enjoying whatever benefits that might accrue to her as the heir at law of said Thomas Atkins in the final enrollment of the lsands of said tribe; and deny that she could have known or foreseen that said allotment of lands would take place or in what manner or by what procedure the same would be carried out; and deny that she could have foreseen that any benefit would accrue to her in that regard by said enrollment on the 1895 pay roll; and deny that at that time any provision had been made by Congress whereby she could have so benefitted, and deny that she could have known that said roll would have any bearing upon said allotment of lands; and deny that said Minnie Atkins has con-cealed from the officers of said tribe and the Government of the United States, that there was no such person as Thomas Atkins because defendants aver that said Thomas Atkins was at that time a living person and a member of said tribe and entitled to be enrolled on said 1895 pay roll. These defendants say that they have no knowledge as to the claims of any of the defendants set forth in said complaint other than, these answering defendants and the defendant Charles Page.

And defendants deny that no such person as Thomas Atkins enrolled by said Commission as aforesaid, never existed; and deny that said name represents a myth and fictitious person, and deny that these defendants and the above named defendant Charles Page, know, or have at any time know-, that no such person as the said Thomas Atkins, ever existed, and deny that their claims are false and fraudulent.

And deny the allegation in said bill that these defendants and the defendant Charles Page have no claim either in law or in equity to any right, title, interest or estate in and to said lands, or any part thereof; and further deny that the claims of these defendants are adverse to complainant or to the Creek Nation of Indians.

(6) These defendants do not know and can not set forth the interests or claim of interest of any of the defendants named in said complaint in sub-divisions C, D and E of paragraph 5 thereof, except for these answering defendants and Charles Page.

And defendants deny that the claims of these defendants, are adverse to the complainant or the Creek Nation of Indians.

And deny that the above named defendants have no interest in said lands at law or in equity.

(7) These defendants deny that any instrument under which they hold constitute a cloud upon the title to said lands; and deny that the existence of said allotment certificate and patents or other instruments subsequent thereto, hinder or delay complainant in the performance of the duties imposed upon it by law to preserve to the Creek Nation the said land and the value thereof, and to allot and otherwise dispose of said land and to wind up the affairs of the Creek Nation.

(8) Defendants deny that said enrollment, allotment and patents are null and void. And defendants deny that the said Commission in placing the said Thomas Atkins on the roll of Creek citizens by blood acted arbitrarily, summarily or without knowledge or information or belief that the said Thomas Atkins was in existence and living on the 1st day of April, 1899, and deny that said Commisison in listing the name of Thomas Atkins for enrollment and enrolling said name, conducted no hearing, or made no investigation, and deny that it did not have or receive any evidence of any character, and deny that it proceeded ex parte and acted arbitrarily.

Defendants deny that there was no contest, controversy or adverse proceeding had by or before the said Commission in respect to the question as to whether or not said Thomas Atkins was living or dead on the first day of April, 1899.

Defendants deny that the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes did not give or cause to be given to the Creek Nation or its officers, or any other person, notice that the name of the said Thomas Atkins was about to be or would be enrolled.

And deny that the said Commission placed the name of said Thomas Atkins on said roll on an arbitrary or erroneous assumption wholly unsupported by evidence or information as to whether Thomas Atkins was living on April 1, 1899, and entitled to be enrolled by said Commission under the Acts of Congress made and provided.

(9) Defendants deny that complainant has no knowledge and does not know that Thomas Atkins was in existence and was living prior to April 1, 1899.

And deny that the said Thomas Atkins died prior to the 1st day of April, 1899.

And deny that he was not entitled to be enrolled and allotted lands of the Creek Nation.

(10) Defendants deny that the heirs of the said Thomas Atkins were not entitled to receive any part of the public lands of the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians by virtue of being heirs of the said Thomas Atkins. And deny that they did not take title to the lands described in said complaint by virtue of the allotment thereof in the name of Thomas Atkins, and the issuance of said patents to and in the name of Thomas Atkins.

(11) Defendants deny that at the time the name of said Thomas Atkins was placed upon the official rolls aforesaid, the said Commission placed said name thereon under an erroneous and arbitrary assumption that the said Thomas Atkins was in being and living on April 1, 1899.

And deny that said Commission acted upon a gross error or mistake of fact or mistake of law.

And deny that said Commission did not know or did not have any evidence before it at the time that they caused the name of the said Thomas Atkins to be enrolled showing, or tending to show that the said Thomas Atkins was living on April 1, 1899.

(12) Defendants deny that the name of the said Thomas Atkins appears on the official rolls aforesaid because of the arbitrary or erroneous act of said commission;

And deny that the allotment of said lands described in said complaint was arbitrarily or erroneously made to the said Thomas Atkins.

(13) Defendants deny that the said enrollment allotment and patents are null and void and deny that Thomas Atkins so enrolled by said Commission opposite roll No. 7913 never had an existence, and deny that he was and is a fictitious person, and that said name represents no person who is or ever was in being;

And deny that by reason thereof said Commission in so enrolling said name and allotting and patenting for the land as aforesaid, committed a gross mistake of fact as well as of law, and deny that neither said allotment, allotment certificates nor said patents conveyed any right, title or interest in and to said lands to any person whomsoever.

And defendants aver that at the time said Thomas Atkins was enrolled by said Commission as aforesaid, he was a living person, a member and citizen of the Creek Nation of Indians and entitled to be so enrolled and allotted.

Defendants admit that they and the said defendant Charles Page are claiming some right, title or interest in said property under and by virtue of deeds of leases subsequent thereto and in pursuance thereof, but deny that said patents, claims, assertions, deeds and leases constitute clouds upon the title of said Creek Nation in and to said lands, and harass and embarrass and interfere with complainant in the execution of any trust or the performance of its duties and obligations to said tribe and the members thereof.

(14) Defendants deny that the complainant now has any information or knowledge as to the life or death of said Thomas Atkins that it did not have at the time of the enrollment of said Thomas Atkins and the allotment of said lands to him.

(15) Defendants admit that the lands described in said complaint are situated in the oil and gas belt of the state of Oklahoma, and in that portion of the oil and gas field known as the Cushing field; and admit that said lands are now of great value because of the oil and gas thereunder.

But defendants deny that the Creek Nation is now or has been at any time the owner of any of the oil or gas under said lands;

And denies that said Creek Nation has had any interest in any portion of said lands subsequent to June 30, 1902.

(16) Defendants deny that the Gem Oil Company, Charles Page and R. A. Josey or either of them have unlawfully entered upon said lands or unlawfully proceeded to prospect and drill thereon for oil and gas, or have unlawfully drilled thereon for oil or gas, or have unlawfully removed therefrom or disposed of oil and gas.

(17) Defendants deny that they or the Gem Oil Company or Charles Page or R. A. Josey have committed any trespass and deny that they have no right, title or interest in and to any part of said lands or the oil and gas thereunder.

And deny that these answering defendants or any of said parties have committed a trespass upon said lands in violation of the rights of complainant, or of the Creek Nation of Indians.

And deny that the acts of these defendants and said parties constitute waste upon any estate of the Creek Nation, or that said acts are materially, irreparably or permanently damaging to said estate.

(18) Defendants deny that the claim or rights of the complainant and the Creek Nation in and to said lands aforesaid are well founded or based upon grounds that are good; and deny the existence of any ground, necessity or right for the appointment of a receiver of said premises;

And deny that any injury, permanent, irreparable or material will be occasioned to any alleged rights of complainant or the Creek Nation of Indians.

(19) Defendants deny that complainant and the Creek Nation of Indians have no adequate remedy at law.

(20) Defendants aver that the said Thomas Atkins was a duly enrolled citizen of the Creek Nation of Indians of one-half blood, alive and in being on April 1, 1899.

(21) That the tribal authorities of the Creek Nation duly authorized thereto by law, enrolled said Thomas Atkins on the tribal rolls of said tribe of the years 1890 and 1895.

That thereafter, said rolls and said enrollment of Thomas Atkins thereon, were duly confirmed by Act of Congress on June 10, 1896, which provided specifically that the rolls of citizenship of said Creek Nation as then existed were thereby confirmed.

(22) That thereafter the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, under authority of the Act of Congress of June 28, 1898, adjudged said Thomas Atkins to have been properly enrolled and to be entitled to enrollment on said tribal rolls.

(23) That thereafter, pursuant to the Act of Congress of ...., 1901, said Commission having before it the evidence required by law to entitle the said Thomas Atkins to enrollment, including said tribal rolls, duly adjudged the said Thomas Atkins to be a citizen of said Creek Nation living on the first day of April, 1899, entitled to be enrolled under Section 21 of the Act of Congress approved June 28, 1898; and with the full knowledge and consent of the Creek tribal authorities and proper officers of the Creek Nation and complainant did place the name of the said Thomas Atkins upon the final roll made by said Commission under and by virtue of said Acts of Congress.

That said enrollment as made by said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes was thereafter duly and regularly approved by the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to law and thereupon became and was and is final and conclusive.

(24) That thereafter, pursuant to law, said allotment, certificates and patents were duly made, executed, issued, delivered and recorded, and that the entire title in and to said premises was thereby divested over and from the Creek Nation of Indians and complainant and vested in said Thomas Atkins or his proper representatives.

(25) That at the time of the selection of said lands and the issuance of patents and for many years thereafter, the value of said lands was purely nominal, being approximately $1.50 an acre.

That on or about the ...... day of ...., 1912, the Gypsy Oil Company went into open notorious possession of said lands and drilled thereon a well producing oil and gas; that thereafter in July, 1914, these answering defendants and the defendants Charles Page and R. A. Josey, went into possession of said lands and were on the third day of July, 1914, in peaceable, open and notorious possession thereof.

That on said day the order was made by the District Court of Creek County, Oklahoma, having jurisdiction of the res, authorizing said defendants and the defendants R. A. Josey and Charles Page to hazard and expend $50,000.00 in the development of said lands pursuant to said order of court.

That pursuant to the terms of the said order of court, said defendants Charles Page and R. A. Josey, entered on said premises, hazarded said sum of $50,000.00, and by the hazard of said sum of money and by their energy, skill and knowledge of the oil and gas business, have succeeded in making said premises worth whatever value the same possess at this time; that said Charles Page has succeeded to whatever rights said Gypsy Oil Company and the Gem Oil Company and R. A. Josey have heretofore had in said lands;

And the entire value of said lands over and above a nominal sum has been created by the energy, development and hazard of said Gypsy Oil Company, Gem Oil Company, R. A. Josey and Charles Page.

(26) That the complainant, its officers and agents, together with its Indian Superintendent in charge of the affairs of the Five Civilized Tribes, had, at all times, full knowledge of the possession, development and operation of said lands;

(27) That said complainant has recognized and acquiesced in the validity of said patents, and has stood behind and sustained the same as its sovereign act since their issuance up to the filing of this suit.

That no claim in law or equity has been made or asserted by said complainant, its officers or agents, including its Indian Superintendent at Muskogee, or by the Creek Nation, or its officers or agents prior to the filing of this action, although the fact of said possession, and the fact of the intention of said defendants to hazard large sums of money in the testing of said premises for oil and gas, was well known to said complainant, its officers and agents, to the Creek Nation, its officers and agents, and also well and publicly known throughout the oil fields of the State of Oklahoma.

(28) That said complainant and said Creek Nation stood by and allowed said defendants to hazard said sum of $50,000.00 and more, to use their knowledge, skill and experience in the oil business in testing said premises, and said complainant and the Creek Nation by their silence, laches, acquiescence, and recognition of the validity of said patents, and failure to assert any claim or to give notice of any claim, are now estopped and forever barred to assert any claim adverse to the title of these defendants and the defendant Charles Page, who are in open, notorious and exclusive possession of said premises and of the oil and gas lying thereunder.

(29) That oil and gas was discovered in paying quantities on said lands more than three years prior to filing of this suit, of which complainant and said Creek Nation had knowledge or ample opportunity to have knowledge.

(30) That thereafter said defendants Charles Page and R. A. Josey, proposed, and it was well and fully known to said complainant and the Creek Nation, to hazard said sum of $50,000.00 in testing said premises to the deep sand known as the Bartlesville sand, which had not yet been tested on said lands.

And that all of said drilling operations and hazard of said sums of money were made and had upon the faith in the validity of said patents, in reliance thereon, and in accordance with the judgment of the District Court of the State of Oklahoma, having jurisdiction of the res.

(31) That the cancellation of said patents or the granting of any relief as prayed for in said complaint, would be inequitable and unjust by reason of the changed conditions of the parties, the lapse of time, the great increase in value of the property and the difficulty in meeting allegations which might readily have been met had they have been made seasonably.

(32) That the res in controversy is within the jurisdiction and under the control of the District Court of the State of Oklahoma in and for Creek County.

That this court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver or to proceed further with the hearing of this cause.

(33) Defendants further aver that the enrollment of said Thomas Atkins, and the issuance of said allotment certificate and patents constitutes an adjudication by a special tribunal constituted by law charged with the duty of making enrollment of citizens of the Creek Nation, clothed with authority, as provided by law, and are final decrees, conclusively adjudicating the right of said Thomas Atkins to enrollment and the conveyance to him of said lands described in said patent, which said decrees are impervious to act on the ground set forth in complainant's complaint, and that for said reason this Honorable Court has no jurisdiction in the premises.

(34) And the defendants aver that complainant and the Creek Nation are barred and forever foreclosed and estopped by laches from asserting any claim to said lands adverse to these defendants and the defendant Charles Page; that any claim or claim of right, title and interest that they may have had heretofore are stale and are not enforcible in a court of equity. And they are not entitled to any relief in this action. That more than thirteen years has elapsed since said allotment certificate was issued and more than twelve years since the issuance of said patents; that said lands have increased vastly in value from a nominal sum to many hundreds of thousands of dollars, by reason of the discovery of oil and gas thereunder and the improvements and developments placed thereon by said defendants.

That the condition of the parties, and of said property, have materially changed and by reason of that fact, the relief prayed for by complainant is without equity.

(35) That complainant is conclusively barred from maintaining this action by the provisions of Section 8 of the Act of Congress of ...., 1901; 26 Stats. at Large, 1099, Sec. 8, which is as follows:

> "That suits by the United States to vacate and annul any patent heretofore issued shall only be brought within five years from the passage of this act, and suits to vacate and annul patents hereafter issued shall only be brought within six years after the date of the issuance of such patents;"

for the reason that more than six years has elapsed since the date of the issuance of said patents conveying said lands to Thomas Atkins or his proper representative.

(36) Defendants aver that the complainant or the Creek Nation has not any interest in the estate described herein to entitle complainant to sustain this suit.

That it appears from the face of complainant's complaint herein, that the same does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, and that complainant is not entitled to the relief prayed for against these defendants.

(37) That it appears from said complaint that this court has no jurisdiction to hear and determine this action.

(38) That said bill of complaint is wholly without equity.

(39) Defendants further deny that said bill sets forth any equity in complainant or the Creek Nation which entitles it or either of them to any relief prayed for in said complaint, and makes this defense with like effect as if the same has been raised by motion to dismiss.

(40) Defendants further show that, as appears affirmatively from said complaint, complainant and the Creek Nation have a plain, speedy and adequate remedy at law and are not entitled to maintain an action in equity.

And these defendants deny all and all manner of unlawful combination and confederacy wherewith they are by the said bill charged; there is not another matter, cause or thing in said complainant's said bill of complaint contained material or necessary for these defendants to make answer to, and not herein and hereby well and sufficiently answered, confessed, traversed and avoided or denied, is true, to the knowledge or belief of these defendants, or which matters and things these defendants are ready and willing to aver, maintain and prove as this honorable court shall direct; and humbly pray to be hence dismissed with their reasonable costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained.

Allotment Deed. (40) Creek Nation Roll, No. 7913

THE MUSKOGEE (CREEK) NATION, INDIAN TERRITORY.

To All Whom These Presents Shall Come, Greeting:

Whereas, By the Act of Congress approved March 1, 1901 (31 Stats. 861), agreement ratified by the Creek Nation May 25, 1901, it was provided that all lands of the Muskogee (Creek) Tribe of Indians, in Indian Territory, except as therein provided, should be allotted among the citizens of said tribe by the United States Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes so as to give to each an equal share of the whole in value, as nearly as may be, and

Whereas, It was provided by said Act of Congress that each citizen shall select, or have selected for him, from his allotment forty acres of land as a homestead for which he shall have a separate deed, and

Whereas, the said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes has certified that the land hereinafter described has been selected by or on behalf of a citizen of said tribe, as an allotment, exclusive of a forty-acre homestead, as aforesaid,

Now, therefore, I, the undersigned, the Principal Chief of the Muskogee (Creek) Nation, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the aforesaid Act of the Congress of the United States, have granted and conveyed and by these presents do grant and convey unto the said Thomas Atkins all right, title and interest of the Muskogee (Creek) Nation and of all other citizens of said Nation in and to the following described land, viz:

> The South West Quarter of the North West Quarter of Section Four (4), and the South West Quarter of the North East Quarter, and Lot Two (2), of Section Five (5), Township Eighteen (18) North, and Range Seven (7) East of the Indian Base and Meridian,

in Indian Territory, containing One Hundred and Twenty and 85/100 (120.85) acres, more or less, as the case may be, according to the United States survey thereof, subject, however, to all provisions of said Act of Congress relating to appraisement and valuation and to the provisions of the Act of Congress approved June 30, 1902 (Public No. 200).

In Witness Whereof, I, the Principal Chief of the Muskogee (Creek) Nation, have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of said Nation to be affixed this 14th day of April, A. D. 1903.

My commission expires on the 9th day of Sept., 1918.

Endorsed: Filed Dec. 23, 1915. R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 29th day of December, A. D. 1915, the defendant Nancy Atkins, filed Answer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Separate Answer of Nancy Atkins to the Amended Bill of Complaint.

Comes now the above named defendant, Nancy Atkins, by H. A. Ridgway, her guardian, and for her separate answer to the amended bill of complaint filed herein by the complainant, admits that she is a citizen and resident of the Eastern Judicial District of the State of Oklahoma.

I.

Answering paragraph one of complainant's amended bill of complaint, she admits all the allegations thereof.

II.

Answering paragraph two of said amended bill of complaint, she admits that the United States Government assumes or attempts to assume some sort of a duty with reference to the allotted lands and other property of the Creek Trive or Nation of Indians, but she alleges that she is without knowledge or information as to the lawful rights and duty of the complainant in that respect, and she alleges that she is without information as to whether or not this action was brought in behalf of the complainant and in behalf of the Creek Tribe or Nation of Indians by virtue of complainant's right and duty as a sovereign and governing power of said tribe of Indians and for the purpose of discharging its full duty and obligation towards said tribe and for the purpose of restoring to the public domain of the said tribe of Indians all the lands heretofore erroneously allotted by the officers of the Government according to the true spirit, intent and purpose of the trust alleged in said paragraph two of said amended bill of complaint, and, therefore, this defendant denies said allegation and demands strict proof thereof.

III.

Answering paragraph three of said amended bill of complaint, this defendant admits that the lands described therein were on the 1st day of April, 1899, a part of the unallotted and public domain of the Creek Nation of Indians, but she denies that said lands are now a part of said unallotted domain of said Nation and denies that said lands now belong to the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians.

IV.

Answering paragraph four of complainant's amended bill of complaint this defendant admits all the allegations thereof.

V.

Answering paragraph five of complainant's amended bill of complaint this defendant admits that on the 23rd day of May, 1901, the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes listed for enrollment the name of Thomas Atkins, but she says that it is not true that the proceedings for his enrollment were strictly ex parte in the sense alleged in said amended bill of complaint, but she alleges that the proceedings on the 23rd day of May, 1901, were upon the motion and initiative of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes and the members of the Creek or Muskogee House of Kings and House of Warriors. She admits that the Commission listed the name of Thomas Atkins as being the son of a Creek woman by the name of Minnie Atkins, a representative and citizen by blood of the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians, and admits that said list for enrollment was made for the purpose of placing said names upon the final roll of citizens by blood of said tribe then being prepared by said Commission under said Act of Congress and she admits that pursuant to said list the said name was thereafter placed upon and made a part of the final roll of said Tribe of Indians and the enrollment thus made was by the Secretary of the Interior approved on the 2nd day of March, 1902. She admits that the said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes acting under the Acts of Congress set forth in said amended bill of complaint arbitrarily and without application being made therefor allotted the lands described in said amended bill of complaint in the name of Thomas Atkins as alleged in said paragraph five. This defendant admits that in placing the name of Thomas Atkins upon the rolls of the members of said Creek Nation or Muskogee Tribe of Indians used as material evidence on the question of citizenship certain roll or rolls of said tribe which had been made up for tribal per capita payment purposes by the tribal officers prior to the time of work of enrollment, which was being done by said Commission, and which were treated and denominated as authenticated tribal rolls, among which was a roll of citizens made up in the year of 1895 and commonly called the 1895 authenticated pay roll, and admits that the name of Thomas Atkins appeared upon said 1895 pay roll in the family appearing thereon headed by the name of Minnie Atkins, and admits that said roll shows upon its face that Thomas Atkins was in 1895 a living member and citizen of said tribe and a member of Euchee Town, and admits that on the 23rd day of May, 1901, the said Commission had before it and used as evidence the said 1895 pay roll, and admits that said Commission believed that the said 1895 pay roll spoke and represented the truth so far as the question of citizenship of Thomas Atkins was concerned; but she denies that said Commission finally determined the question of his citizenship and listed the name of the said Thomas Atkins for enrollment without any further or other investigation being made or evidence having been adduced to or received by said Commission on that question. She admits that said 1895 pay roll was material evidence on the question of whether or not Thomas Atkins was a citizen and member of said tribe in the year of 1895, but denies that said pay roll was false and fraudulent as alleged in said paragraph five of said amended bill of complaint. She denies that in the making of the said 1895 pay roll Samuel W. Brown, as Town King of Euchee Town, acted upon the false statement of one John Davis, a relative and agent of Minnie Atkins, duly authorized so to do by her; that Thomas Atkins was at the time a living member of said Creek Tribe of Indians and of Euche Town thereof belonging to the family of Minnie Atkins, and denies that the officers of said tribe in so making up said roll enrolled the name of Thomas Atkins upon the false statement and representations made to them by the said Samuel W. Brown to the effect that the said Thomas Atkins was at the time a living member and citizen of said Nation and town thereof. She denies that the said Thomas Atkins, so enrolled upon the said 1895 pay roll was a myth and fictitious person and denies that the said Minnie Atkins and John Davis well knew at the time said roll was made that the said Thomas Atkins was a myth and fictitious person and denies that the officers of the Tribe engaged in making up said roll acted upon any false and fraudulent representations in placing the name of Thomas Atkins on said roll. She denies that Minnie Atkins caused the name of said Thomas Atkins to be placed upon the said 1895 pay roll for the fraudulent purpose and with a fraudulent intent of enjoying whatever benefit might accrue to her as the sole relative and heir at law of the said Thomas Atkins in the final allotment of lands of said Tribe and distribution of the moneys thereof.

She denies that she is ratifying any fraudulent practice and denies that any fraudulent practices were made or had upon said Commission as alleged in said fifth paragraph of said amended bill of complaint. She admits that she claims and asserts that she had a son by the name of Thomas Atkins and that said enrolled Thomas Atkins is her said son and that he is dead; but she denies that said claim is false, and denies that she well knew or has well known during all the time that she has made said claim that it is false. She says that it is not true that she never made or asserted said claim until about ten years after the recordation of the patent referred to in said amended bill of complaint, but she admits that she did not take any steps to obtain possession and quiet her title to said lands until they were thought to be valuable for oil and gas mining purposes and she alleges that the complainant in this action did not apparently seem to and did not take any steps to cancel said patent or to remove the name of Thomas Atkins from the rolls of said Tribe of Indians until said lands were thought to be valuable for oil and gas mining purposes. She says that it is not true that no such person as the Thomas Atkins enrolled by said Commission ever had existence and that it is not true that said name represents a myth and fictitious person and that it is not true that she well knew and has at all times well known that no such person as the alleged Thomas Atkins enrolled as aforesaid ever existed and and her said claim is false and fraudulent. She says that it is not true that any of the statements set forth in said paragraph five of said amended bill of complant embarrassed and harassed the complainant in the performance of its duties and obligations to and towards the said Creek Nation and the members thereof with respect to said Creek lands. She says that it is not true that the said enrollment of the said Thomas Atkins and the allotment of lands to him and the issuance of said patent were the result of fraud and were based upon false and fraudulent proof and evidence, so far as the question of citizenship of Thomas Atkins in said tribe was concerned and that it was not true that said Commission in so enrolling said name, allotting said lands and issuing said patent committed gross mistake of law as well as of fact, and that it is not true that said enrollment, allotment, allotment certificate and patent should be declared void and cancelled for the reason that the said Creek Nation and the complainant are grossly and irreparably injured thereby.

Further answering said paragraph five, this defendant alleges that the allegations thereof are not sufficient in law to constitute a cause of action against this defendant or to entitle the complainant to the relief prayed for in said amended bill of complaint.

VI.

Answering paragraph six of said amended bill of complaint, this defendant reiterates and makes a part hereof her answer to paragraph five of said amended bill of complaint, and further answering said paragraph six says that it is not true that the said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes in listing the name of Thomas Atkins for enrollment and enrolling said name at the time alleged in said amended bill of complaint conducted no hearing, made no investigation and did not have or receive any evidence of any kind, and that it is not true that said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes proceeded ex parte. She admits that there was no contest, controversy or adverse proceedings of any character or kind had by or before the said Commission with respect to the said question as to whether or not the said Thomas Atkins was living or dead on the 1st day of April, 1899; but she alleges that no adverse proceedings were necessary, for the reason that the complainant by its duly constituted authorities was the moving party in the enrollment of Thomas Atkins, and that the Creek Nation had notice that all persons whose names were on the 1895 Creek Roll would be enrolled, unless their names were stricken from said roll by reason of fraud; that said notice was contained in the Indian Appropriation Bill, approved June 10th, 1896, by which the tribal rolls of the said Creek Tribe of Indians were confirmed, and also in the 21st section of the Act of June 28th, 1898, entitled, "An Act for the protection of the people of the Indian Territory and other purposes;" that the Creek Nation further had notice by reason of the practice of the said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes in enrolling members of the said Creek Nation, of which the Creek Nation and its regularly constituted authorities were informed. She says that it is not true that the said Commission in causing the name of Thomas Atkins to be listed for enrollment and placing the same on the rolls of Creek citizens by blood, acted, so far as the question of whether Thomas Atkins was living or dead on the 1st day of April, 1899, was concerned, arbitrarily and summarily and says that it is not true that said Commission placed the name of Thomas Atkins on said roll on the arbitrary and erroneous assumption, wholly unsupported by evidence or information, that the said Thomas Atkins was in existence and was living on the 1st day of April, 1899. She says that it is not true that Thomas Atkins died prior to the 1st day of April, 1899, and was not living on said day, and says that it is not true that he was not entitled to be enrolled as a member and citizen of the said Creek Nation of Indians, and that it is not true that he is not entitled to receive an allotment of a part or portion of the lands of said Nation under the Acts of Congress referred to in said amended bill of complaint, and says that it is not true that she is not entitled to receive the lands described in said amended bill of complaint by inheritance as the heir of said Thomas Atkins. She says that it is not true that the said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes acted upon a gross error and mistake of fact as well as of law, and says that it is not true that said Commission did not know and did not have any evidence before it at the time it caused the name of the said Thomas Atkins to be enrolled showing, or tending to show that he was living on April 1st, 1899. She says it is not true that because of any arbitrary or erroneous acts of the Commission as alleged in said amended bill of complaint, the name of Thomas Atkins appears on the official tribal roll of the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians opposite roll No. 7913, which was approved by the Secretary of the Interior, and that it is not true that the allotment of said lands was arbitrarily and erroneously issued as alleged in said amended bill of complaint. She admits that she is openly and notoriously claiming and asserting that she is the heir at law of the said Thomas Atkins and that by reason thereof is entitled to the lands described in said amended bill of complaint under and by virtue of the patent therein referred to, having been issued as therein alleged. She says that it is not true that said patent, nor the lease executed by her guardian in her name to the said lands, constitute clouds upon the title to said lands and that it is not true that said patent and lease embarrassed, harassed and interfered with the complainant in the execution of its alleged trust and in the performance of its duty and obligation to and towards said Creek Nation or said Tribe of Indians with respect to said lands.

VII.

Answering paragraph seven of said amended bill of complaint this defendant reiterates and makes a part of her answer to said paragraph seven all of the allegations, statements and denials contained in her answer hereinbefore set forth to paragraphs five and six of said amended bill of complaint, and further answering says that it is not true that the said Thomas Atkins never had any existence and that it is not true that he was and is a fictitious person, and that it is not true that said name represents no person who is or ever was in being and that it is not true that said Commission in so enrolling said name and allotting and patenting said land made a gross mistake of fact as well as of law and that it is not true that neither said allotment, allotment certificate nor said patent conveyed any right, title or interest in and to said lands to any person whomsoever; but, further answering, she admits that she is claiming an interest in said lands as alleged in said paragraph seven of said amended bill of complaint.

VIII.

Answering paragraph eight of said amended bill of complaint, this defendant admits that she is claiming and asserting rights and interest in and to the lands described and she admits that the lessees to whom she has heretofore executed a lease and their assignees are claiming an interest in said lands by virtue of their said lease.

IX.

Answering paragraph nine of said amended bill of complaint, she admits that said lands are situated in the oil and gas field of the Creek Nation and in that portion of the oil and gas field known as the Cushing field and that said lands are of great value particularly because of the bed of oil and gas thereunder. She says that it is not true that the Creek Nation is now, and has been at all times referred to in said amended bill of complaint of complainant, the owner of said lands. She says that it is true that the defendants, the Gem Oil Company, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, and each of them, without authority and consent of the complainant or the Creek Nation of Indians claiming the right so to do under some pretended lease contract or conveyance executed to them by some of the alleged heirs of the said Thomas Atkins, have unlawfully entered upon said lands and are proceeding to prospect and drill thereon for oil and gas and have drilled thereon for oil and gas and have removed therefrom and disposed of, for the exclusive use and benefit of themselves great quantities of oil and gas; and she admits that said defendants, Gem Oil Company, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, have no right or title in or to any part of said lands and the oil or gas thereunder. She admits that the acts of the said defendants in prospecting and drilling upon said lands for oil and gas constitute a waste upon said lands and are materially, irreparably and permanently damaging said estate, but she says that said prospecting and waste is an injury to her and her lessees and not to the Creek Nation or complainant.

Further answering, this defendant alleges that this court is without jurisdiction to try the matters alleged in said amended bill of complaint and is without jurisdiction to cancel said allotment.

Further answering this defendant alleges that said amended bill of complaint is insufficient in law to constitute a cause of action and that it does not constitute a cause of action against this defendant.

Further answering this defendant alleges that on or about the 23rd day of May, 1901, the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, which then had jurisdiction to enroll all the members of the Creek Tribe and which was at that time and has been at all times since the only tribunal having jurisdiction of the enrollment of the members of the Five Civilized Tribes, subject to the supervision of the Interior Department, caused the name of Thomas Atkins to be placed on the roll of Creek citizens by blood opposite roll No. 7913; that thereafter, as alleged in said amended bill of complaint, certificates of allotment were issued as provided by law and subsequent thereto homestead and allotment patents as provided by law were issued to the said Thomas Atkins in due form conveying the lands described in the amended bill of complaint to Thomas Atkins, and that said patents were approved by the Secretary of the Interior and recorded in the office of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes in Book 1, at page 310, and Book 12, at page 310, respectively.

Further answering, this defendant alleges that she was the mother of Thomas Atkins, whose name was and is so enrolled opposite number 7913 of the roll of members by blood of the Creek Tribe of Indians; that said Thomas Atkins was born some time prior to the year 1895; that he was living on the 1st day of April, 1899, and that he died some time during the year 1902; that he was born, resided during his life and died in the Creek Nation.

Further answering, and by way of cross bill of complaint against the defendants, Minnie Atkins, Henry Carter, Charles M. Ball, Charles T. Harrison, Thomas Harris, Kahookah Harris, Harvey Harrison, a minor, A. J. Burchett, as guardian of Harvey Harrison, a minor, Minnie Hall, nee Atkins, Martin Rowe, Harry Harrison, Minnie E. Folk, nee Atkins, Harry B. Folk, Edward C. Hanford, Gem Oil Company, a corporation, Charles Page, A. A. Hammer, William S. Murphy, Wilbur M. Norris, W. W. Walton, Ellis H. Hammett, Rufus B. Cobb, George C. Conrad, John R. Fields, James M. Brogan, Thomas Gilcrease, Robert Wilson, S. D. Shirk, H. E. Whitehead, T. S. Hurst, F. F. Betzler and R. A. Josey, this defendant alleges and states that she is and was at the time of his death sole heir at law of the said Thomas Atkins and that as such she is the owner of the lands described in the said amended bill of complaint herein, to-wit:

> The South-west Quarter (SW/4) of the North-east Quarter (NE/4) and Lot Two (2), of Section Five (5); and the South-west Quarter (SW/4) of the North-west Quarter (NW/4) and Lot Four (4) of Section Four (4), all in Township Eighteen (18) North, Range Seven (7) East of the Indian Base and Meridian.

She alleges that all of the above named defendants are claiming some interest in and to said lands adverse to this defendant; that a number of leases, purported deeds, and other purported conveyances have been made and recorded and filed for record affecting her title to said lands, among which are as follows:

Bargain sale deed from the defendant, Minnie Atkins, who is now Mrs. Minnie E. Folk, under the name of Minnie E. Folk, joined by her husband, Harry B. Folk, to Alexander J. McNab, Jr., trustee, dated June 13, 1914, and recorded in Book 103, page 85, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Creek County, Oklahoma;

An Oil and Gas Mining Lease from said Alexander J. McNab, Jr., trustee, and the said Minnie E. Folk, nee Atkins, and Harry B. Folk, her husband, to the defendant, Gem Oil Company, a corporation, dated June 24, 1914, and recorded in Book 101, at page 259, in said office;

An assignment of said oil and gas mining lease from said defendant, Gem Oil Company to the defendants, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, dated June 30, 1914, and recorded in Book 102, at page 75 in said office;

A bargain and sale deed from said Alexander J. McNab, Jr., trustee, to the defendant Minnie Folk (Minnie Atkins), dated July 18th, 1914, and recorded in Book 102, at page 347, in said office;

A deed from Minnie Atkins under the name of Minnie E. Folk, to defendant, Charles Page, dated October 22nd, 1914, and recorded in Book 107, at page 28, in said office;

An oil and gas mining lease from the defendant, Nancy Atkins to the defendants, Wilbur M. Norris, W. W. Walton and Ellis H. Hammett, dated April 15, 1913, and recorded in Book 80, at page 311, in said office;

An oil and gas mining lease from the defendant, Henry Carter, to the defendant, Gem Oil Company, dated November 13, 1914, and recorded in Book 107, at page 125, in said office;

A warranty deed from the defendant, Thomas Harris, joined by his wife, the defendant, Kahookah Harris, to the defendant, Rufus B. Cobb, George C. Conrad, John R. Fields and J. M. Brogan, dated February 22, 1913, and recorded in Book 94, at page 181, in said office;

A deed from a person representing himself to be Thomas Atkins to the defendant, C. J. Wrightsman, dated ......, 1915, and recorded in Book ...., at page ...., in said office;

That all of said instruments are clouds upon her title and should be cancelled as such.

Further answering and by way of cross bill of complaint against the defendants, Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, this defendant alleges that she is the owner of said lands, deriving her ownership as above set forth, and that on the 2nd day of October, 1912, some person claiming to be and impersonating the defendant, Minnie Atkins, executeed a quit claim deed to the defendant, H. U. Bartlett, and that afterwards on the 29th day of November, 1912, the said H. U. Bartlett executed what purported to be an oil and gas lease to the defendant, Gypsy Oil Company. She alleges that thereafter the Gypsy Oil Company entered upon and took possession of the said lands for the purpose of developing and operating the same for oil and gas mining purposes and proceeded to begin developments upon said lands; that thereafter on the 23rd day of July, 1913, this defendant by her guardian and next friend at that time, who was Micco T. Harjo, instituted a suit in the District Court of Creek County, Oklahoma, to cancel the conveyance from the purported Minnie Atkins to H. U. Bartlett and the lease from Bartlett to the Gypsy Oil Company and to quiet her title to the said lands and to recover possession thereof; that thereafter on the 24th day of March, 1914, she recovered a judgment in said District Court of Creek County, quieting her title to said lands and adjudging her to be the lawful owner thereof and entitled to the possession of the same. A copy of said judgment is hereto attached, marked Exhibit A, and made a part hereof.

She alleges that after said judgment was obtained the said defendant, Gypsy Oil Company, appealed said action to the Supreme Court of the State of Oklahoma, and perfected its appeal by filing its petition in error and case-made in the office of the Clerk of the Supreme Court of the State of Oklahoma as required by law, and also executing an undertaking for appeal in said action in the sum of Six Thousand ($6,000.00) Dollars, conditioned as required by law.

She alleges that afterwards and during the month of June, 1914, the defendants, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, with knowledge of said proceedings in the District Court of Creek County and with knowledge of the said judgment in favor of this defendant in said action, instituted a search for the defendant Minnie Atkins for the purpose of obtaining a lease, deed, or other conveyance to said lands to them and that they, after considerable search, found said Minnie Atkins and obtained the deed from her and her trustee, hereinbefore set forth, and also obtained from her the oil and gas mining lease executed by her and the said Alexander J. McNab, Jr., trustee, to the Gem Oil Company. She alleges that the said deed and lease were obtained by the defendants, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, with full knowledge of her rights and with full knowledge that she had obtained the judgment hereinbefore set forth in the District Court of Creek County, and that the same was pending on appeal, or was about to be appealed by the Gypsy Oil Company. She alleges that the Gem Oil Company is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Oklahoma, but that the greater part of its stock is owned by the defendants, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, and was at the time the said lease was executed to it and that it is entirely under the control of the said defendants, Page and Josey. She alleges that shortly after obtaining the said deed and lease the said defendants, Page and Josey, by their agent and servants, entered in and upon the lands described in said amended bill of complaint without her knowledge or consent and by force and against her will and against the will and without the consent of the Gypsy Oil Company broke and entered the enclosure around said lands and took possession of a portion of said lands and erected a derrick thereon. She alleges that after they had so obtained possession of a portion of said lands that they caused the defendant, Minnie Folk, to bring an action in the District Court of Creek County for the purpose of quieting their title to said lands and for the purpose of obtaining an injunction against the Gypsy Oil Company and H. U. Bartlett, restraining them from interfering with the possession of the said defendants, Page and Josey. She alleges that said action was consolidated with other actions pending in the said District Court of Creek County and that an application was made by the said defendants in the name of Minnie Folk for an injunction in said action, and an application was also made by them dissolving a temporary injunction that had been obtained against they by the defendant, H. U. Bartlett, and that this defendant also made application for the appointment of a receiver in said action pending in the District Court of Creek County, in which she had obtained judgment and that all of said matters were heard together and that the court refused to appoint a receiver in said action or dissolve the said temporary injunction so obtained by H. U.

Bartlett, and gave the defendants, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, permission and authority to drill one well upon a portion of the premises hereinbefore described, to-wit:

> Lot Two (2) of Section Five (5), Township Eighteen (18) North, Range Seven (7) East, and that said permission was given upon the express condition and understanding that the said Charles Page and R. A. Josey, should not receive any compensation for the drilling of said well in the event it should be decided later that they were not entitled to the property in controversy. A copy of said order so giving them permission is hereto attached, marked Exhibit B, and made a part hereof.

This defendant alleges that all of the drilling upon said lands by the defendants, Page and Josey, has been at their own expense and risk, and that all the drilling and other operations they have done and had upon said lands except the first well drilled thereon by them, has been done in violation of said order of court.

This defendant alleges that thereafter, the exact date of which this defendant is unable to give, the defendants, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, entered into an agreement with the Gypsy Oil Company, by which the Gypsy Oil Company agreed to and did surrender to the said defendants the actual possession of the remainder of said lands and that they dismissed said appeal pending in the Supreme Court of the State of Oklahoma.

Further answering, the defendant says that by order of the County Court of Nowata County, she executed a lease to J. B. White, E. W. Fowler, A. E. Carder and A. Seltzer, on the 27th day of May, 1913, and that said lease was as, she is informed and believes and therefore alleges, assigned to the defendants, Robert L. Rutherford and J. A. Ferguson on the 28th day of September, 1915, and that they are now the owners and holders of the oil and gas rights in said lands.

This defendant alleges that the defendants, Gem Oil Company, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, have been operating said lands for oil and gas since their settlement with the Gypsy Oil Company, and that they operated a portion of said lands prior to said settlement. She alleges that they have produced from said lands a large amount of oil and gas, the exact amount of which is unknown to her, and she alleges that the Gypsy Oil Company, prior to its settlement with the said defendants, Page and Josey, had produced a considerable amount of oil and gas from said lands, the exact amount of which is unknown to this defendant.

Wherefore, she prays judgment that the amended bill of complaint herein filed by the United States of America be dismissed; that said complainant take nothing by said amended bill of complaint, and that her title be quieted as against all of the defendants named in said action, except the defendants, Robert L. Rutherford and James A. Ferguson as to their oil and gas interests in said lands; that an account be taken of the oil and gas produced from said lands by the defendants, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, the Gem Oil Company and the Gypsy Oil Company, and that she have judgment against said defendants for the oil and gas produced from said lands by them; that she have judgment for costs of suit and all proper relief.

Exhibit "A."

In the District Court of Creek County, State of Oklahoma. Nancy Atkins, an Incompetent, by Micco T. Harjo, Her Legal Guardian and Next Friend, Plaintiff, v. H. U. Bartlett, A. A. Hammer, Gypsy Oil Company, a Corporation, William S. Murphy, Wilbur M. Norris, W. W. Walton and Ellis H. Hammett, Defendants.—No. 3120.

JOURNAL ENTRY.

Now on this 26th day of February, 1914, regular judicial day of the January, 1914, term of the above named court, this cause comes regularly for trial, the plaintiff, Nancy Atkins, an incompetent, by Micco T. Harjo, her legal guardian and next friend, appearing by her attorneys, William W. Gresham and N. B. Maxey, and the defendants, H. U. Bartlett and A. A. Hammer, appearing by their attorneys, McDougal & Lytle, the Gypsy Oil Company, a corporation, appearing by its attorney, Henry McGraw, and Wilbur M. Norris, W. W. Walton and Ellis H. Hammett, appearing by their attorney, Judson J. Hughes, and the defendant, William S. Murphy, not appearing, although heretofore the said William S. Murphy has filed his answer herein.

Thereupon, all parties announce ready for trial and agree to try the case to the court without the intervention of a jury, and the trial is proceeded with. And the plaintiff introduces a part of her evidence and the court thereupon adjourns its session until the 27th day of February, 1914.

And now on the 27th day of February, 1914, the trial is proceeded with and the parties appearing as above noted, the plaintiff introduces additional evidence and rests. Thereupon the defendants introduce their evidence, and the plaintiff and defendants thereafter introduce evidence in rebuttal and rest, and the case is closed.

Thereupon, after full argument and the court being fully advised in the premises the court finds in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendants and each of them, except as to W. W. Walton, Wilbus M. Norris and Ellie H. Hammett, and as to them said cause is continued and the court finds that at the time of the commencement of this action plaintiff was entitled to the immediate possession of the following lots and lands in Creek County, State of Oklahoma, to-wit:

> The South-west Quarter of the North-west Quarter of Section Four (4), and the South-west Quarter of the North-east Quarter and Lot Two (2) of Section Five (5), Township Eighteen (18) North, Range Seven (7) East, and Lot Four (4) of Section Four (4), Township Eighteen (18) North, Range Seven (7) East, and that said plaintiff Nancy Atkins has been adjudged an incompetent person and that Micco T. Harjo is her duly appointed, qualified, and acting guardian; that as to the rights, title, interest and claims of the defendants, H. U. Bartlett, A. A. Hammer, the Gypsy Oil Company, a corporation, William S. Murphy, plaintiff is entitled to have her title in and to said lots and lands quieted; that the lots and lands above described compose the allotment of Thomas Atkins, who was a half blood member of the Muskogee or Creek Tribe or Nation of Indians and whose name appears on the Dawes Commission Roll of said Tribe opposite Roll No. 7913; that the said Thomas Atkins departed this life in what is now Wagoner County, Oklahoma, intestate, without having been married and without issue, leaving him surviving as his sole and only heir Nancy Atkins, whom the court finds to be the mother of him, the said Thomas Atkins.

The court further finds that at the commencement of this action the defendant, H. U. Bartlett, was in the sole and exclusive possession of said lots and lands and had been in such possession for a period of about twelve (12) months prior thereto, and that the Gypsy Oil Company was in possession of said lands by reason of its said oil and gas mining lease, executed by the said H. U. Bartlett, and was engaged in the exploration and development of said lands for oil and gas mining purposes; that the plaintiff is entitled to the judgment of this court cancelling and annulling the several deeds, leases and contracts under which the said defendants claim.

The court further finds that the rental or usable value of the premises during the time the same were occupied by the defendant, H. U. Bartlett, is Forty ($40.00) Dollars per year exclusive of the value of any oil produced therefrom. To each and all of which findings, determinations and decisions of the court the defendants and each of them then and there duly excepted and still except.

Thereafter, to-wit: On the 24th day of March, 1914, a regular judicial day of the January, 1914, term of the above-named court, came the parties to this action appearing by their respective attorneys as first hereinabove noted, and the defendants, H. U. Bartlett, A. A. Hammer and the Gypsy Oil Company, present their respective several motions and supplemental motions for a new trial herein, and the court after hearing the argument of counsel takes under advisement the determination of such motions and supplemental motions of said defendants for a new trial herein, and the rights, title and interest of the defendants, Walton, Norris and Hammett;

Thereafter, to-wit: On the 20th day of June, A. D. 1914, the courts find the above facts as against the defendants, Walton, Norris and Hammett, to which they except and the court decides said cause against them and they file in open court their motion for a new trial and the court doth overrule and deny the motions and supplemental motions for a new trial filed herein by the defendants, H. U. Bartlett, A. A. Hammer and the Gypsy Oil Company and Walton, Norris and Hammett. To which motion, order, decision and judgment of the court the defendants, Norris, Walton, Hammett, and H. U. Bartlett, A. A. Hammer, and the Gypsy Oil Company severally excepted and still except.

It Is Therefore Considered, Ordered, Adjudged and Decreed by the Court, That the plaintiff do have and recover for the immediate possession of the lots and lands above described, and that the plaintiff do have and recover of and from the defendant, H. U. Bartlett the sum of Eighty ($80.00) Dollars as the value of the rents, profits and use of the premises.

It Is Further Ordered, Adjudged and Decreed by the Court, That the title of the plaintiff to the said premises be settled and quieted in her, the said Nancy Atkins, as against the defendants and each of them and that the deed purported to have been executed by Minnie Atkins to the defendant H. U. Bartlett and dated October 2nd, 1912, and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Creek County, Oklahoma, in Book 57, page 404, and the deed purported to have been executed by Thomas Atkins to the defendants, A. A. Hammer, acknowledged January 14th, 1913, and of the record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Creek County, Oklahoma, in Book 86, page 202, and the oil and gas grant, executed by the defendant H. U. Bartlett in favor of the defendant, Gypsy Oil Company, a corporation, dated November 29th, 1912, and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Creek County, Oklahoma, in Book 70, page 586, and the deed purported to have been executed by Thomas Atkins in favor of the defendant, William S. Murphy, dated March 20th, 1913, and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Creek County, Oklahoma, in Book 78, page 350, and the oil and gas mining lease purported to have been executed by Nancy Atkins in favor of the defendants, Wilbur M. Norris, W. W. Walton, and Ellis H. Hammett, acknowledged on the 15th day of April, 1913, and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Creek County, Oklahoma, in Book 85, at page 311; and each and all of them be and the same are hereby cancelled, annulled, set aside and held for naught, and the record thereof cancelled, to all of which each of the defendants except.

It Is Further Ordered, Adjudged, and Decreed by the Court, That the defendants and each of them, and all persons who claim by, through or under them, and all persons who have placed of record any claim or conveyance to the lands herein described since the commencement of this suit, are hereby enjoined and restrained from in any way disturbing or interfering with the plaintiff in the peaceable possession of said premises.

It Is Further Ordered and Adjudged, That the plaintiff recover from the defendants all of her costs in this suit laid out and expended and that execution issue therefor.

To which actions, orders, judgments, decision and decree of the court the defendants, and each of them, then and there duly excepted and still except. And said defendants and each of them praying an appeal to the Supreme Court and an extension of time within which to make and serve a case-made, it is ordered upon good cause shown that an extension of one hundred and twenty (120) days from and after this date be granted said defendants, and each of them in which to make and serve upon the plaintiff or her attorneys a case-made; the plaintiff to have ten days (10) thereafter to suggest amendments thereto in writing; such case-made to be settled, certified and signed upon five (5) days' notice in writing by either party.

And the defendants praying the court to fix the amount of a supersedeas, or undertaking for appeal, and to stay execution, it is ordered for good cause shown that execution be stayed pending the filing of such undertaking for appeal, on the giving of a good and sufficient bond conditioned as provided by law, in the sum of Six Thousand ($6,000.00) Dollars, within twenty (20) days from this date, such bond to be approved by the Clerk of said court.

It Is Further Ordered, That in case such bond shall be given within the time so allowed, then execution shall be stayed one hundred and sixty (160) days within which time the defendants or either of them shall commence proceedings in error; and in case such proceedings in error are filed within the time herein allowed then execution shall be stayed pending the determination of such proceedings in error by the Supreme Court.

WADE S. STANFIELD,
Judge.

Exhibit B.

Nancy Atkins, an Incompetent, by Micco T. Harjo, her legal guardian and next friend, Plaintiff, v. H. U. Bartlett, A. A. Hammer, Gypsy Oil Company, a corporation, William S. Murphy, William M. Norris, W. W. Walton and Ellis H. Hammett, Defendants.—No. 3120.

JOURNAL ENTRY.

Now on this 24th day of July, 1914, said cause No. 3772 came on for hearing upon the application of the plaintiffs for a Temporary Injunction, and for leave to drill an offset well upon the premises in controversy; and said cause No. 3723 came on for hearing upon the plaintiffs' application to dissolve H. U. Bartlett's Temporary Injunction, and upon the Motions of H. U. Bartlett and Gypsy Oil Company to dissolve the plaintiffs' Temporary Injunction therein; and said cause No. 3120 came on for hearing upon the application of the plaintiff for the appointment of a receiver of the property in controversy; said Minnie Folk, Alexander McNab, Jr., Trustee, Charles Page and R. A. Josey, appearing by their attorneys, Rice & Lyons; said Gypsy Oil Company appearing by its attorney, Henry McGraw; said H. U. Bartlett and A. A. Hammer, appearing by their attorneys, McDougal & Lytle, and said Nancy Atkins, Micco T. Harjo, her legal guardian and next friend, J. B. White, E. W. Wheeler, A. E. Carder and A. Seltzer, appearing by their attorneys, M. E. Rosser and William M. Gresham, Whereupon the respective parties introduce their evidence, and after hearing the argument of counsel, the cause is taken under advisement until the 3rd day of August, 1914.

And now on this 3rd day of August, 1914, came the parties to said cause, appearing by their respective attorneys as first hereinabove noted, and the court, after hearing further argument of counsel, and being fully advised in the premises, rendered its opinion in writing, and finds that said Charles Page and R. A. Josey should be given leave to drill an offset well on the premises in controversy, as in said opinion set forth.

It Is Therefore Ordered that said opinion of the court shall be filed in said causes as part of the record thereof, and it is further ordered and adjudged by the court, that until the further order in the premises, the said Charles Page and R. A. Josey be and they are hereby given and granted leave and permission on the terms and conditions hereinafter specified, to drill a well for oil and gas upon, offsetting a certain producing oil well upon adjacent premises, upon the north side of said described tract; and that the remaining parties to said causes, and each of them, are restrained, enjoined and prohibited from in any way molesting, disturbing, obstructing or interfering with said Charles Page and R. A. Josey in the matter of drilling, equipping and operating such proposed well. To all of which actions and orders of the court the parties to said causes, represented by attorneys, Henry McGraw, McDougal & Lytle, M. E. Rosser and William M. Gresham, severally excepted and still except.

> Lot Two (2) of Section Five (5), Township Eighteen (18) North, Range Seven (7) East,

It Is Further Ordered and Adjudged that the remaining parties to said causes, or their respective representatives, shall have the right, at all reasonable times, to visit and view the premises, and to inspect, examine and investigate such proposed well, its depth, condition, the formations encountered, its operation and the production thereof, and they shall be allowed access to such well, and all accounts pertaining to the amount of oil or gas produced and the purchase price thereof, providing however, that none of said parties, or their representatives, shall obstruct, disturb, or interfere with said Charles Page and R. A. Josey in the due and orderly prosecution of the work of drilling and operating such well.

The foregoing order is made upon the condition, and shall not be operative, until and unless said Charles Page and R. A. Josey within ten (10) days from and after this date, shall give and file with the Clerk of the court an undertaking, with sufficient surety to be approved by both the Clerk and Judge of this court, in the amount of Fifty Thousand ($50,000.00) Dollars, to secure all parties to said causes the damages they may sustain, including reasonable attorneys' fees, if it be finally decided that the foregoing order should not have been made; and said undertaking shall contain the further condition that said Charles Page and R. A. Josey shall immediately commence to drill a well for oil and gas upon said Lot 2 of Section 5, Township 18 North, Range 7 East, at a point offsetting a producing well upon adjacent premises, adjoining said tract upon the North, and drill said well in good and workmanlike manner, with reasonable dispatch, to and into what is known as the Bartlesville sand, unless relieved from such obligation by an order of this court, and to equip such well with all necessary derrick, casing, tubing, pipe, tankage, and other equipment, and to operate such well in a skillful manner, and to market the production thereof at the highest available market price, and to account to the successful party or parties to said causes for the proceeds of the oil or gas produced from such well; and said undertaking shall contain the further condition that said Charles Page and R. A. Josey shall pay all bills for drilling, wages, and material used in constructing and equiping said well as aforesaid, and that they will deiver to the successful litigant, now a party to said causes such well and all such equipment thereof, unencumbered and unimpaired, and in a good and sound condition, and without any obligation or liability upon the part of such successful party or parties to said causes to reimburse the said Charles Page and R. A. Josey for the cost of said well, the equipment thereof, or the expenses of operating the same.

It Is Further Ordered and Adjudged by the court that the application of the plaintiff in said cause No. 3120, for the appointment of a receiver of the property in controversy, be and the same hereby is denied. To which action and order of the court the said plaintiff therein then and there excepted and still excepts.

It Is Further Ordered and Adjudged by the court that the several motions of said Gypsy Oil Company and H. U. Bartlett to dissolve the Temporary Injunction, granted and allowed the plaintiffs in said cause No. 3723, be and the same hereby are in all things overruled, and denied. To which action and order of the court the said Gypsy Oil Company and H. U. Bartlett, and each of them, then and there excepted and still except.

It Is Further Ordered and Adjudged by the court that the Temporary Injunction granted and allowed the defendant, H. U. Bartlett in said cause No. 3723, be and the same is vacated and dissolved, to which action and order of the court the said H. U. Bartlett, then and there excepted and still excepts.

And the said H. U. Bartlett and the Gypsy Oil Company praying an appeal to the Supreme Court from the action and order of the court allowing the said Charles Page and R. A. Josey to drill a well for oil and gas upon the premises in controversy, as hereinbefore set forth, and enjoining the said H. U. Bartlett and Gypsy Oil Company from interfering with said parties in the matter of drilling and operating said well, and the said H. U. Bartlett praying an appeal to the Supreme Court from the action and order of the court in dissolving the said Temporary Injunction against the plaintiffs in said cause No. 3723, it is ordered, upon good cause, shown that an extension of fifteen days from and after this date be granted said H. U. Bartlett and Gypsy Oil Company, and each of them, in which to make and serve upon the adverse parties, or their attorneys of record, a case-made, such adverse parties to have two days thereafter to suggest amendments thereto in writing, and such case-made to be settled, certified and signed upon five days' notice in writing by either party.

And the parties to said causes represented as aforesaid by M. E. Rosser and William M. Gresham praying an appeal to the Supreme Court from the foregoing orders, denying the appointment of a receiver in said cause No. 3120, and in granting the said Charles Page and R. A. Josey leave to drill a well upon the premises and enjoining their clients from interfering with the drilling and operation of such well, and praying an extension of time within which to make and serve a case-made, it is ordered, upon good cause shown, that an extension of fifteen days from and after this date be granted said parties, and each of them, in which to make and serve upon the adverse parties, or their attorneys of record, a case-made, the adverse parties to have two days thereafter to suggest amendments thereto in writing, and such case-made to be settled, certified and signed upon five days' notice in writing by either party.

And the parties to said causes, represented as aforesaid by said Henry McGraw, McDougal & Lytle, M. E. Rosser and William M. Gresham, and each of them, praying the court to fix the amount of a supersedeas or undertaking for appeal, and to stay said orders it is ordered, for good cause shown, that said orders allowing and granting leave to said Charles Page and R. A. Josey to drill a well as aforesaid upon the premises in controversy, and enjoining the remaining parties to said causes from interfering with the drilling and operation of such well, be stayed and suspended, pending the filing of such undertaking for appeal, on the giving of a good and sufficient bond conditioned as provided by law, in the sum of Twenty-five Thousand Dollars ($25,000.00) on or before the 11th day of August, 1914, such bond to be approved by the Clerk of this court.

It Is Further Ordered that in case such bond be given within the time so allowed, then such orders allowing the said Charles Page and R. A. Josey to drill a well upon the premises in controversy, and enjoining interference with the drilling and operation of such well, be stayed and suspended for thirty days from this date, within which time said parties praying an appeal, or either of them, shall commence proceedings in error, and in case such proceedings in error are filed within the time herein allowed, then said orders as to the drilling of said well, and enjoining interference therewith, shall be stayed pending the determination of such proceedings in error by the Supreme Court.

It is further ordered that the foregoing order dissolving the temporary injunction of H. U. Bartlett in said cause numbered 3123 be, and the same is stayed and suspended until the 11th day of August, 1914, and in the event the said H. U. Bartlett within said period shall file such supersedeas bond, then the foregoing order dissolving said temporary injunction shall be stayed and suspended for a period of thirty days from this date which time the said H. U. Bartlett shall commence proceedings in error; and in case such proceedings in error are filed within said period of thirty days, then said order dissolving said temporary injunction of H. U. Bartlett in said cause numbered 3123 shall be stayed and suspended pending the declaration of such proceedings in error by the Supreme Court.

WADE S. STANFIELD,
Judge.

Endorsed: Filed Dec. 29, 1915. R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 29th day of December, A. D. 1915, the defendants Robert L. Rutherford and James A. Ferguson filed Answer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Separate Answer of Robert L. Rutherford and James A. Ferguson.

Come now the above named defendants, Robert L. Rutherford and James A. Ferguson, and for their separate answer to the amended bill of complaint filed by the complainant in the above entitled and numbered cause admit that they are citizens and residents of the State of Arkansas; and, further answering, they adopt as their answer, to the same effect as if specially copied into this answer, all the allegations of the separate answer of Nancy Atkins hereinbefore filed, and allege that all the allegations therein with reference to the parentage and enrollment of the said Thomas Atkins are true.

Further answering, these defendants allege that they are the owners of a certain leasehold interest in said lands by virtue of the assignment a certain lease executed to J. B. White, E. W. Fowler, A. E. Carder, and H. Seltzer, dated the 27th day of May, 1913, and transferred and assigned to these defendants on the 28th day of September, 1915; they allege that said lease is a good and valid lease and properly executed by the guardian of said Nancy Atkins, and that by virtue thereof they are the owners of a lease-hold interest in said lands.

They allege that by reason of said oil and gas mining lease and the assignment thereof they are the owners of the oil and gas in and upon said lands, and the oil and gas produced therefrom by the defendants, The Gypsy Oil Company, Gem Oil Company, Charles Page and R. A. Josey. They allege that the said defendants have produced upon said lands a large amount of oil and gas, the exact amount of which is unknown to them, of which they are the owners.

Wherefore, they pray:

First: That the amended bill of complaint of the United States of America be dismissed; that an accounting be taken of the oil and gas produced from said lands by said defendants and that they have judgment against said defendants for the oil and gas produced from said lands;

Second: That they have judgment for costs of suit and all other proper relief.

And, to-wit, on the 25th day of January, A. D. 1916, the defendants H. U. Bartlett, A. A. Hammer and H. E. Whitehead filed Disclaimer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Disclaimer of H. U. Bartlett, A. A. Hammer and H. E. Whitehead.

To the Honorable RALPH E. CAMPBELL, Judge of the Above Named Court:

Come now the defendants, H. U. Bartlett, A. A. Hammer and H. E. Whitehead, and represent to the Court that they have no interest of any kind, nature or description in and to the lands involved herein; that they disclaim any and all interest in or to the same, and pray that they go hence without judgment for costs taxed against them.

JOHN B. MESERVE,
Attorney for H. U. Bartlett, A. A. Hammer, and H. E. Whitehead.

U. S. Clerk: Please file this in the above action.

Endorsed: Filed Jan. 25, 1916, R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 25th day of January, A. D. 1916, the defendant William S. Murphy filed Disclaimer herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Disclaimer of William S. Murphy.

Comes now said defendant William S. Murphy, and for answer to the petition of the plaintiff, disclaims any right, title or interest in and to the property involved in this action.

Wherefore said defendants asks to be hence discharged with his costs.

WILLIAM S. MURPHY,
Attorney for Defendant.

U. S. Clerk: Please file this in the above action.

Endorsed: Filed Jan. 25, 1916. R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 11th day of August, A. D. 1916, the defendants Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford filed Answer to the Cross Complaint of Nancy Atkins, which is in words and figures as follows:

Answer of Defendants Folk and Hanford to Cross-Complaint of Nancy Atkins.

Come now the defendants Minnie Folk (nee Atkins), Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford and answering the first so-called cross-bill of complaint of the defendant Nancy Atkins, say:

I.

Said defendants aver that the matters and things alleged in said first so-called cross-bill of complaint are wholly immaterial and are insufficient in law and fact to constitute a cause of action against said defendants or any of them, or a cross action in this suit; that they are wholly without equity; and, further, that this Honorable Court is without jurisdiction to hear and determine the matters and things therein alleged.

II.

Said defendants deny that said Nancy Atkins is, and was at the time of his death, sole heir at law of the said Thomas Atkins and that, as such, she is the owner of the lands described in complainant's bill of complaint herein and in said so-called cross-bill of complaint.

These defendants admit that they are claiming some interest in and to said lands and that certain leases, deeds and other conveyances have been made and recorded and filed for record by them affecting the title to said lands; but they deny that any of said conveyances affect any right, title or interest of said defendant Nancy Atkins; and said defendants deny that said Nancy Atkins has any right, title or interest in or to said lands.

Said defendants deny that any of the conveyances affecting the title to said lands, as set forth in said first so-called cross-bill of complaint, are clouds upon the title of said defendant Nancy Atkins; and deny that said Nancy Atkins has any right, title or interest in or to said lands.

Answering the further and second so-called cross-bill of complaint set forth in the answer of said Nancy Atkins, these answering defendants aver:

I.

Said defendants aver that the matters and things alleged in said second so-called cross-bill of complaint are wholly immaterial, and are insufficient in law and fact to constitute a cause of action against said defendants, or any of them, or a cross action in this suit; that they are wholly without equity; and, further, that this Honorable Court is without jurisdiction to hear and determine the matters and things therein alleged.

II.

These defendants deny that said Nancy Atkins is the owner of said lands described in complainant's second amended bill of complaint and in said second so-called cross-bill of complaint and deny that she derived any ownership in the manner set forth in her separate answer herein or in said second so-called cross-bill of complaint.

Said defendants deny that, on the 24th day of March, 1914, said Nancy Atkins recovered a judgment in the District Court of Creek County, Oklahoma, quieting title in her to said lands and adjudging her to be the lawful owner thereof and entitled to the possession of the same; and deny that "Exhibit A", attached to said answer and second so-called cross-bill of complaint, is a copy of said judgment.

These answering defendants deny that said purported judgment, set forth in said "Exhibit A," constitutes a valid and subsisting judgment in said cause and aver that the same was not signed and filed until the 25th day of June, 1914; and that the same is null and void and without any force or effect whatsoever because it was attempted to be entered by said District Court of Creek County, Oklahoma, out of regular and legal term time of said court.

Said defendants aver that said purported judgment is null and void as to them, and each of them, because, neither they, nor any of them, were parties to the same or to the suit in which said purported judgment was attempted be rendered.

Said defendants further aver that said purported judgment is not a final judgment and was, and is, stayed by virtue of an appeal therefrom, now being prosecuted and pending in the Supreme Court of the State of Oklahoma, and that no hearing has been had therein and no decree rendered on said appeal.

Said defendants aver that said Minnie Folk (nee Atkins) and her lessee are in open notorious and peaceable possession of said lands and that possession thereof was taken by her and on her behalf, as the owner thereof, and by the Gem Oil Company, at that time the owner and holder of a leasehold estate to said lands under said Minnie Folk, and that said possession was taken lawfully and peaceably and by virtue of right of ownership, and that said Nancy Atkins had not, and never has had, any right or valid claim of right to possession of said lands adverse to said Minnie Folk (nee Atkins) or her lessees or assigns, nor any claim of right to possession under the Gypsy Oil Company or by virtue of said purported judgment. That no right, or claim of right, to possession of said lands, adverse to said Minnie Folk was, or is, vested in said Nancy Atkins through any defect in, or insufficiency of, title or right of possession on the part of the Gypsy Oil Company or H. U. Bartlett or any other strangers to, or adverse claimants of, title to said lands.

Said defendants deny that any drilling on said lands has been done in violation of any order of the District Court of Creek County of Oklahoma.

Said defendants deny that Robert L. Rutherford and J. A. Ferguson, or either of them, are the owners and holders of any oil and gas rights in said lands; and deny that they, or either of them, have any right, title or interest in and to said lands or the oil and gas therein lying.

Defendants admit that the Gypsy Oil Company and H. U. Bartlett have released and quit-claimed to them all of their claim of right, title and interest and right to possession in and to said lands and that the appeal mentioned in said so-called cross-bill of complaint has been dismissed.

These defendants admit that said Minnie Folk has commenced an action in the District Court of Creek County, Oklahoma, to quiet title in her to said lands and that said action is now pending therein.

These defendants deny that they have any knowledge or information as to any of the other matters or things alleged in said second so-called cross-bill of complaint, not herein specifically admitted or denied, and therefore deny the same and ask for strict proof thereof.

Wherefore, these answering defendants pray that said first and second so-called cross-bills of complaint be dismissed and that said defendant Nancy Atkins be adjudged to have no right, title or interest in or to said lands, and for their costs and disbursements herein.

E. C. HANFORD,

Solicitor for Defendants Minnie Folk (nee Atkins), Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford.

State of Oklahoma, County of Tulsa—ss.

Edward C. Hanford, being first duly sworn, deposes and says: that he is one of the defendants in the above named cause; that he has read the foregoing answer, knows the contents thereof and believes the same to be true.

EDWARD C. HANFORD.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 9th day of August, A. D. 1916. (Seal) Claude F. Tingley, Notary Public.

My commission expires—My Commission Expires Sept. 9, 1916.

Endorsed: Filed Aug. 11, 1916. R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 11th day of August, A. D. 1916, the defendant Charles Page filed Answer to the Cross-bill of Nancy Atkins, which is in words and figures as follows:

Answer of Charles Page to Cross-bill of Defendant Nancy Atkins.

Comes now the defendant Charles Page and answering the first so-called cross-bill of complaint of the defendant Nancy Atkins, as set forth in her answer filed herein, says:

I.

Said defendant avers that the matters and things alleged in said first so-called cross-bill of complaint are wholly immaterial and are insufficient in law and fact to constitute a cause of action against said defendants or any of them, or a cross-action in this suit; that they are wholly without equity; and, further, that this Honorable Court is without jurisdiction to hear and determine the matters and things therein alleged.

II.

Said defendant denies that said Nancy Atkins is, and was at the time of his death, sole heir at law of the said Thomas Atkins and that, as such, she is the owner of the lands described in complainant's bill of complaint herein and in said so-called cross-bill of complaint.

This defendant admits that he is claiming some interest in and to said lands and that certain leases, deeds and other conveyances have been filed for record by him affecting the title to said lands; but he denies that any of said conveyances affect any right, title or interest of said defendant Nancy Atkins; and said defendant denies that said Nancy Atkins has any right, title or interest in or to said lands whatsoever.

Said defendant denies that any of the conveyances affecting the title to said lands, as set forth in said so-called cross-bill of complaint, are clouds upon the title of said Nancy Atkins; and denies that said Nancy Atkins has any right, title or interest in or to said lands.

Answering the further and second so-called cross-bill of complaint set forth in the answer of said Nancy Atkins, this answering defendant says:

I.

Said defendant avers that the matters and things alleged in said second so-called cross-bill of complaint are wholly immaterial, and that they are insufficient in law and fact to constitute a cause of action against said defendant, or a cross-action in this suit; that they are wholly without equity; and, further, that this Honorable Court is without jurisdiction to hear and determine the matters and things therein alleged.

II.

This defendant denies that said Nancy Atkins is the owner of said lands described in complainant's amended bill of complaint and in said second so-called cross-bill of complaint; and denies that she derived any ownership in the manner set forth in her separate answer herein or in said second so-called cross-bill of complaint.

Said defendant denies that, on the 24th day of March, 1914, said Nancy Atkins recovered a judgment in the District Court of Creek County, Oklahoma, quieting title in her to said lands and adjudging her to be the lawful owner thereof and entitled to the possession of the same; and denies that "Exhibit A," attached to said answer and second so-called cross-bill of complaint, is a copy of such judgment.

This answering defendant denies that said purported judgment, set forth in said "Exhibit A," constitutes a valid and subsisting judgment in said causes and avers that the same was not signed and filed until the 25th day of June, 1914; and that the same is null and void and without any force or affect whatsoever because it was attempted to be entered by said District Court of Creek County, Oklahoma, out of regular and legal term time of said court.

Said defendant avers that said purported judgment is null and void as to him and his grantee, and each of them, for the reason that neither they, nor either of them, were parties to the same or to the suit in which said purported judgment was attempted to be rendered.

Said defendant further avers that said purported judgment is not a final judgment and was, and is, stayed by virtue of an appeal therefrom, now being being prosecuted and pending in the Supreme Court of the State of Oklahoma, and that no hearing has been had therein and no decree rendered on said appeal.

Said defendant avers that he, as lessee of Minnie Folk (nee Atkins), and said Minnie Folk, are in open, notorious and peaceable possession of said lands, and that possession thereof was taken by and on behalf of said Minnie Folk, as the owner thereof, and by the Gem Oil Company, a corporation, at that time the owner and holder of a leasehold estate to said lands under said Minnie Folk, and that said possession was taken lawfully and peaceably and by right of ownership, and that said Nancy Atkins had not, and never has had, any right or valid claim of right to possession of said lands adverse to said Minnie Folk (nee Atkins), or her lessees or assigns, nor any claim of right to possession under the Gypsy Oil Company or by virtue of said purported judgment. That no right, or claim of right, to possession of said lands, adverse to said Minnie Folk was, or is, vested in said Nancy Atkins through any defect in, or insufficiency of, title or right of possession on the part of the Gypsy Oil Company or H. U. Bartlett, or any other strangers to, or adverse claimants of, title to said lands, or by virtue of said purported judgment.

Said defendant denies that any drilling on said lands has been done in violation of any order of the District Court of Creek County, Oklahoma.

Said defendant denies that Robert L. Rutherford and J. A. Ferguson, or either of them, are the owners and holders of any oil and gas rights in said lands: and denies that they, or either of them, have any right, title or interest in and to said lands or the oil and gas therein lying.

Defendant admits that the Gypsy Oil Company and H. U. Bartlett have released and quit-claimed to him, and his grantor, all of their right, title and interest and right to possession in and to said lands and that the appeal mentioned in said so-called cross-bill of complaint has been dismissed.

This defendant admits that said Minnie Folk has commenced an action in the District Court of Creek County, Oklahoma, to quiet title in her to said lands and that said action is now pending therein.

This defendant denies that he has any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to any of the other matters or things alleged in said second so-called cross-bill of complaint, not herein specifically admitted or denied and which may be adjudged material or necessary to be answered, and therefore denies the same and asks for strict proof thereof.

Wherefore, this answering defendant prays that said first and second so-called cross-bills of complaint be dismissed and that said defendant Nancy Atkins be adjudged to have no right, title or interest in or to said lands, and for his costs and disbursements herein, and for such other and further relief as to the Court may seem meet and proper.

C. B. STUART,

Endorsed: Filed Aug. 11, 1916. R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 12th day of September, A. D. 1916, the complainant filed Supplemental Bill of Complaint, which is in words and figures as follows:

Motion and Supplemental Bill of Complaint.

Comes now the complainant, the United States of America, by D. H. Linebaugh, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Oklahoma, by direction of the Honorable Thomas W. Gregory, Attorney General of the United States, and respectfully shows to the court:

That heretofore and on to-wit, the ..... day of December, 1914, the Secretary of the Interior of the United States invited and requested the Attorney General of the United States to cause suit to be instituted in this court to cancel allotment and patents covering the alloment selection arbitrarily made by the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes on the 30 day of June, 1902, for and in the name of Thomas Atkins, whose name appears upon the approved roll of citizens of the Creek Nation, or Tribe of Indians, opposite No. 7913.

That said request for the institution of suit was upon the erroneous assumption that said patents had not only been delivered but also that no action had ever been taken whereby their complete issuance had been suspended.

Complainant states that the Secretary of the Interior requested the institution of suit without knowledge of the existence of certain instrument, documents and records in the office of the Superintendent for the Five Civilized Tribes relating to and questioning the right of Thomas Atkins to enrollment and without knowledge that said patents had not only not been delivered but that their delivery had been held up in the year of 1905 by an order still unrevoked, of said Commission, which lack of knowledge upon the part of said Secretary of the Interior was brought about by reason of the unintentional and inadvertent act of some officer, agent or employee of the Interior Department of the United States in overlooking said instruments, documents and records and therefore and thereby failing to call to the attention of said Secretary of the Interior the existence of said instruments, documents and records, as well as their contents purport and effect.

Further your petitioner shows that your petitioner acting under and by direction of the Attorney General of the United States, responsive to the invitation and request of the Secretary of the Interior, as aforesaid, did on the 18th of January, 1915, cause to be filed in this court the bill of complaint herein and at said time acted upon the erroneous assumption that the patents covering the land involved herein, had been completely issued and was not informed or advised to the contrary until on or about the 11th day of July, 1916, whereupon and on said date, a special agent of the Department of Justice, assigned to assist the solicitors of your petitioner in an investigation of the facts of this case, discovered among the records and files in the office of the Superintendent for the Five Civilized Tribes, at Muskogee, the original certificate of selection and the patents herein, which had never been delivered to the allottee named therein, or to any other person and that the records in the office of the said Superintendent disclosed that the complete issuance of said patents was suspended and said patents held up by an order of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes made on May the 9th, 1905.

Petitioner further states that the records in the office of the Chief of the Creek Nation at Muskogee, Oklahoma, disclose that information had been received that the Thomas Atkins whose name appeared upon said Creek roll and in whose name the patents covering the land involved herein were about to issue, had died in the year 1878; and they further disclose that on May 10th, 1905, said patents were returned by the Principal Chief of the Creek Nation to the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes and that the rights of the said Thomas Atkins to enrollment as a citizen of the Creek Nation were pending. That it further appeared from the records in the office of said Commission that in the month of May, 1905, pursuant to said order so made by said Commission, said patents were retained in the office of said Commission and withheld from delivery and proper records were made in the office of said Commission evidencing said order, and further showing that proceedings with relation to the attempted passage of the legal title to said lands out of the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians were suspended, pending an investigation into the citizenship rights of said alleged allottee.

Further your petitioner shows that in May, 1905, said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes did prosecute certain inquiries in relation to the enrollment rights of Thomas Atkins, but that said Commission, at said time was unable to obtain information sufficiently definite upon which to predicate further action or recommendation and it- said order so made in that month and its said action in relation to said patents have not been revoked or set aside, and said patents have ever since that time been held up pending an investigation into the right of Thomas Atkins to enrollment and allotment,

Further your petitioner shows that the entire record in the office of the Superintendent for the Five Civilized Tribes, formerly the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes and the principal Chief of the Creek Nation, insofar as they relate to the enrollment of the name of Thomas Atkins; the allotment attempted to be made in his name; the certificate of selection and patents; and the withholding of delivery of said certificate of selection and patents and the suspension thereof pending an investigation into the right of Thomas Atkins to enrollment as well as the suspension of the issuance of patents in lieu thereof to the alleged heirs of Thomas Atkins, consists of certain instruments, documents and records described as follows:

> The so-called census card whereon, on May 23, 1901, the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes listed for enrollment upon the final roll to be prepared by said Commission, the name Thomas Atkins, which said card was caused by said Commission at said time to show that said name appeared upon the 1895 tribal roll of the Creek Nation opposite No. 213 Euchee Town. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 1, a copy of said census card.

The page .... of Euchee Town Creek Tribal Roll for the year 1895 on which appears the name Thomas Atkins opposite No. 213. A copy of said page of said roll is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 2.

The schedule or roll prepared by said Commission in the year 1901, which schedule constituted a partial final roll of citizens by blood of the Creek Nation of Indians, which final roll was at that time in process of preparation by said Commission, showing the name Thomas Atkins listed opposite roll No. 7913, together with a letter from the Commission to the Secretary of the Interior dated March 1, 1902, transmitting the schedule upon which the name Thomas Atkins appeared opposite said roll number, and recommending the approval of the enrollment of all the persons whose names appeared upon said schedule or partial roll, including the name Thomas Atkins. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 3 a copy of said letter and of said schedule insofar as the same shows the name Thomas Atkins.

The final roll of citizens by blood of the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians insofar as the same relates to the name Thomas Atkins. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 4 a copy of said roll.

A resolution passed and adopted by said Commission on May 24, 1902, with relation to the making of allotments by the Commission in cases where names appear upon the final roll, but where allotments have not been selected by or for the persons represented by said names. There is attached hereto and marked Exhibit No. 5 a copy of said resolution.

The arbitrary selection of an allotment in the name Thomas Atkins by the Commission acting by and through its Acting Chairman. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 6 a copy of said arbitrary selection made pursuant to said resolution of May 24, 1902, which said selection was made on June 30, 1902.

The certificate of selection executed by said Commission bearing date of June 30, 1902, evidencing the making of said allotment to and in the name Thomas Atkins. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 7, a copy of said certificate of selection.

The record in the office of said Commission kept in a book relating to the delivery of certificates of selection, which shows that the certificate issued in the name of Thomas Atkins was returned through the mails because uncalled for and undelivered. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 8 a copy of the page of said record relating to said certificate of selection.

The surplus allotment patent prepared by said Commission and executed on April 14, 1903, by the Principal Chief of the Muskogee (Creek) Nation to Thomas Atkins, describing that portion of the lands selected as aforesaid, which were designated as the surplus allotment for said Thomas Atkins, to-wit:

> The Southwest quarter of the Northwest quarter of Section 4, and the Southwest quarter of the Northeast quarter, and Lot 2 of Section 5, Township 18 North, Range 7 East of the Indian Base and Meridian in the Indian Territory, containing 120.85 acres, more or less, which said patent was approved by the Secretary of the Interior on May 8, 1903, and filed for record in the office of said Commission on May 16, 1903, and recorded in said office in Book 12 at page 310. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 9 a true copy of said patent.

The so-called homestead deed, prepared by said Commission and executed on April 14, 1903, by the Principal Chief of the Muskogee (Creek) Nation to Thomas Atkins, describing the lands selected as aforesaid as a homestead allotment for Thomas Atkins, to-wit:

> Lot No. 4 of Section 4, Township 18 North, Range 7 east of the Indian Base and Meridian in the Indian Territory, containing 41.16 acres, more or less, which patent was approved by the Secretary of the Interior on May 8, 1903, and filed for record in the office of said Commission on May 16, 1903, and recorded in said office in Book L at page 310. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 10 a true copy of said homestead deed.

Said patents or deeds after having been recorded in said office were, pursuant to law, transmitted by said Commission to the Principal Chief of the Creek Nation for delivery to Thomas Atkins, the patentee named therein.

Letter dated May 9, 1905, from T. B. Needles, Commissioner in charge of the office of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, to E. B. Miller, Chief Clerk of the Creek Land Office, a subdivision and part of the said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, advising said Chief Clerk of said land office of the fact that a queston had arisen affecting the citizenship rights of Thomas Atkins, enrolled on Creek card, field No. 2774, Creek Indian Roll No. 7913, and directing the suspension of action in the matter of the issuance of deeds to the heirs of Thomas Atkins, deceased, until further advised. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 11 a true copy of said letter.

That on receipt of the said letter by the said E. B. Miller, Chief Clerk of the said land office, an entry was made upon the census card of Thomas Atkins (Exhibited No. 1 hereof) in words and figures as follows, to-wit:

> "E. B. Miller, Chief Clk. Land Office Letter of May 9, 1905, from the Commissioner to the Five Civilized Tribes directing action be suspended in matter of issuing deed to heirs of No. 1."

A letter dated May 9, 1905, from T. B. Needles, Commissioner in Charge of the office of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, to one Will Robison of Muskogee, then Indian Territory now Oklahoma, making inquiry as to the present address of Minnie Atkins, advising that her testimony is desired in a matter pending before said Commission, which said letter relates and refers to the case of Thomas Atkns, the same having the following identifying letters and figures thereon, to-wit: "Cr. I.—2774," the said number being the field number on the Thomas Atkins census card, the letters "Cr." standing for Creek, and the letter "I" standing for Indian; and the reply of said W. R. Robison to said letter endorsed on the face of said letter advising substantially that he did not know the address of said Minnie Atkins. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 12 a true copy of said letter and the answer thereto.

A letter dated May 9, 1905, containing the identifying marks contained on the said letter to Will Robison, addressed by said T. B. Needles, Commissioner in charge of the office of the said Commission, to one Noah Gregory (the Town King of Euchee Town of the Creek Nation in the Indian Territory) at Sapulpa, Indian Territory now Oklahoma, advising that the Commission had been informed that Thomas Atkins was dead, and among other things stating that it was desired that said Noah Gregory cause a form of death affidavit enclosed with such letter to be filled out and properly executed by some person, a near relative preferred, who knew the date of said Thomas Atkins' death, and that said death affidavit, when so executed, be returned to the Commission. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 13 a copy of said letter.

No reply, so far as can be ascertained, was made to said communication to said Noah Gregory.

A record in the office of the Principal Chief of the Muskogee (Creek) Nation appearing on page 16 of a book kept by and in the office of said Principal Chief known as the "Index and Record of Delivery of Deeds for lands allotted in Muskogee (Creek) Nation," relating to the deeds prepared, executed, approved and recorded as aforesaid in the name of Thomas Atkins, which said record shows, among other things, that said deeds were to be held for investigation because it was reported by Judge John R. Thomas that Thomas Atkins had died in the year 1878; and said record further shows that said deeds or patents were returned by the Principal Chief aforesaid to the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes on May 10, 1905, by messenger on account of the pendency of the right of said Thomas Atkins to enrollment. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 14, a true copy of the page of said record whereon the entries relating to said patents appear.

An endorsement appeared on the back of said surplus patent (Exhibit No. 9 hereof) in the following words, to-wit: "Hold up. See index."

A letter dated May 11, 1905, from Tams Bixby, Chairman of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, to H. G. Hains, Chief Clerk of the Enrollment Division of said Commission, advising that the deeds covering the allotment to Thomas Atkins, Creek Indian Roll No. 7913, were held by the Creek Allotment Division pending further instructions. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 15, a true copy of said letter.

A book known as the Index Book to a book known as the Special Creek Memorandum Book or Hold Up Book, containing, among other names, the name Thomas Atkins, and indicating that in a book known as the Hold Up Book, at page 124 there is an entry relating to patents in the name of Thomas Atkins. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 16, a copy of the page of said index book on which appears the reference to the name Thomas Atkins.

Page 124 of said Hold Up or Special Memorandum Book, where an entry is made with relation to the patents which were numbered 13662 and 13663 to Thomas Atkins showing that said patents had been ordered by the Enrollment Division to be held on account of the citizenship of Thomas Atkins and that the deeds had been returned by the Chief of the Creek Nation by messenger on May 10, 1905, and that the Enrollment Division had been notified of their return on May 11, 1905. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 17, a copy of said page 124 of said Hold Up Book.

A book known as the Index to a book or record kept by said Commission known as the "M" Journal, which said index contains the name Thomas Atkins, and indicates that at page 113 in said "M" Journal, there is an entry relating to Thomas Atkins. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 18, a copy of the page in said index book containing the name Thomas Atkins.

Page 113 of said "M" Journal showing that patents numbered 13662 and 13663 covering the lands allotted in the name of Thomas Atkins had been ordered by the Enrollment Division of the Commission, on May 9, 1905, to be held on account of a question as to said Atkins' citizenship in the Creek Nation, and that the patents had been returned by the Chief of the Creek Nation by messenger on May 10, 1905, and that the Enrollment Division had been notified on May 11, 1905. There is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 19, a true copy of said page 113 of said "M" Journal.

Further your petitioner shows that the above mentioned and described records are all the records in the office of the said Commission, or its successor, pertaining or relating to withholding delivery of the said patents and to the suspension of the issuance of patents to and in the name of the heirs of said Thomas Atkins, and the reasons therefor, and to the investigation pursuant thereto into the right of Thomas Atkins to enrollment and allotment, up to and until the month of August, 1916.

Further your petitioner shows that at the time of the institution of this suit, and at all times subsequent thereto, up to and including said 11th day of July, 1916, said records discovered in the office of the Superintendent for the Five Civized Tribes, who has succeded the said Commission in the actual custody thereof, were not known or called to the attention of either the Secretary of the Interior or the Attorney General of the United States or the solicitors for the complainant herein, but that on or about said 11th day of July, 1916, the existence and contents of said records in said office became known in the manner aforesaid, and it was then discovered by and became known to the solicitors for complainant for the first time that in the year 1905 said patents had been ordered held up and had been in fact held up pending an investigation into the citizenship rights of said Thomas Atkins, and that the order had never been revoked, nor said patents afterwards sent out for delivery, but that they have constantly remained since that time in fieri and the status of the legal title to said land has remained from that time until now unchanged, and that the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior over the question as to the rights of Thomas Atkins to enrollment and allotment and to acquire the title to lands of the Creek Nation of Indians by allotment or of his heirs to acquire the same, if there ever was such a person as Thomas Atkins, has never ceased or been exhausted.

Further your petitioner shows that immediately upon the discovery of said records and undelivered patents the attention of the Secretary of the Interior was called thereto. Whereupon in the proper exercise of the jurisdiction, power and authority conferred upon him by law, the Secretary of the Interior did, on August 18th, 1916, resume the exercise of his jurisdiction and thereupon caused to be issued notices to all persons claiming any right, title or interest, so far as known to him, in and to the lands involved herein and described in said allotment certificate and purported patents. notifying them that at 10 o'clock A. M. on September 25, 1916, at the office of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, in the City of Washington, District of Columbia, hearing would be resumed by the Department of the Interior of the United States for the purpose of determining whether the name of the said Thomas Atkins should be stricken from the approved roll of citizens by blood of the Creek Nation and delivery of the allotment certificate, and the allotment and homestead patents refused, and for the purpose of determining whether or [not] said certificate and patents should be cancelled and held for naught. There is attached hereto, made a part hereof, and for identification marked Exhibit 20, a copy of said notice so issued by the Secretary of the Interior.

Further your petitioner shows that at the time of the issuance of said notices the Secretary of the Interior advised the Attorney General of the facts, as hereinbefore set forth, and requested that the United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Oklahoma be instructed to invite the attention of this Honorable Court to the disclosures and discoveries then recently found, and request an order of the court deferring further action or hearings herein until the Secretary of the Interior could determine the matters and things concerning the enrollment, issuance, delivery or cancellation of the patents in the name of Thomas Atkins as hereinbefore fully set forth.

Further your petitioner shows that responsive to said request of the Secretary of the Interior, and by letter under date of August 22, 1916, the Attorney General directed that these matters be brought to the attention of this court and, owing to the peculiar situation of the property involved, suggestion be made of the propriety of deferring further action in this cause until the hearing before the Secretary of the Interior shall be completed and his decision announced.

Further your petitioner shows that this Honorable Court now has the property involved in this litigation in its indirect control by the execution and filing of a bond in the sum of $900,000.00, in lieu of a receivership, by the defendant Charles Page, who is in possession of and operating said property for oil and gas mining purposes, and has been and is extracting therefrom and selling large quantities of petroleum oil; also that certain of the defendants are claiming title to the property involved as against other of the defendants, there being several such conflicting claims. Petitioner therefore respectfully shows the court that, in order to protect the rights of all parties concerned, said property should continue in the custody of the court, as it has heretofore, and the rights of the successful party or parties to the proceeds heretofore and hereafter to be derived from the operation and development of said property for oil and gas mining purposes should be protected as heretofore, pending the final determination of the questions involved, and in order to preserve and protect said property against waste to the detriment of whomsoever shall ultimately be adjudged to be the owner thereof, and to that end that this case should stand as an ancillary suit or proceeding to the proceeding pending before the Secretary of the Interior, the court in the meantime continuing as it has heretofore done, to protect the interests of all concerned until the Interior Department shall have concluded its investigation and announced its decision, and until, by proper amendment of the pleadings herein by the complainant on behalf of the Creek Nation, or by any other party hereto, the result of the proceedings before the Interior Department may be shown to this court, whereupon proper proceedings may be had herein in accordance with the law and facts; and in this connection, complainant further respectfully shows to the court that there are a number of instruments of record in the office of the court clerk of Creek County, Oklahoma, describing and affecting the title to said land, said instruments being the various instruments under which many of the defendants herein claim title, all of which are described in the amended bill of complaint filed herein, which the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, if he should adjudge favorably to the Creek Nation the matters pending before him, would be without authority to cancel, and which only this court would possess jurisdiction to cancel; and that should the Secretary of the Interior determine unfavorably to said Creek Nation, it would be within the power of the court to determine the conflicting claims of the defendants, at least as respects their respective rights growing out of the extraction and sale of oil from said lands.

Wherefore complainant moves and prays that this Honorable Court make and enter its order substantially to the affect that this pending cause be not set down for trial on the merits until the Honorable Secretary of the Interior shall have concluded the investigation started by him and shall have exhausted his jurisdiction in the premises by a determination of the questions pending before him, and until by amendment of the pleadings herein this court may be advised of the determination of said Department of the Interior in said matter or until the further order of the court, and that in the meantime the court hold the property involved herein in statu quo and conserve the proceeds derived from the extraction and sale of oil and gas therefrom in the same manner that it has done heretofore, or that some other arrangement equally effective be substituted in lieu of the present arrangement, and that for all essential purposes this motion be treated as a supplemental bill of complaint, and for all other proper relief.

The Honorable, The Secretary of the Interior,
Washington, D. C.

Sir: The Commission transmits herewith, for your approval, partial roll of citizens by blood of the Creek Nation, numbered 7825 to 8312, inclusive, whose names have been regularly listed for enrollment on Creek Indian cards, numbered 2665 to 2877, inclusive, who were living on the first day of April, 1899, or born to citizens so entitled to enrollment, up to and including the first day of July, 1900, and then living, as provided by Act of Congress, approved March 1, 1901, and are found either upon the 1890 or 1895 authenticated Creek Rolls, or who are descendants of persons whose names are found upon said rolls, born since said rolls were made; or were admitted to citizenship by the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, or by the United States Court on appeal under the provisions of Act of Congress approved June 10, 1896, or who are descendants of persons so admitted, born since such admissions; or were duly and lawfully admitted to citizenship by the Creek National Council, or by the legally constituted Commissions and Courts of said Creek Nation, or who are descendants of persons so admitted, born since such admission.

Here follows, in same order as roll, table showinf tribal enrollment (if found on rolls), and such other data as will enable complete identification of all:

* * * * * * *

The Commission, after having thoroughly examined the rolls of the Creek Nation and such evidence as has been submitted, touching the identification of the persons on roll herewith submitted, is of the opinion that all are entitled to enrollment as Creek citizens by blood, and should be so enrolled.

Respectfully submitted,

COMMISSION TO THE CIVILIZED TRIBE.

Acting Chairman.

Whereas, section three of the Act of Congress approved March 1, 1901 (31 Stat. 861), known as the Creek Agreement, provides that:

"All lands of said tribe except as herein provided shall be allotted among the citizens of the tribe by said Commission so as to give to each citizen an equal share of the whole in value as nearly as may be," And that

"* * * there shall be allotted to each citizen one hundred and sixty acres of land," and

"* * * each citizen shall select from his allotment forty acres of land as a homestead," and that

"* * * if for any reason such selection shall not be made for any citizen, it shall be the duty of said Commission to make selection for him."

[illegible]

"And, whereas, numerous citizens of said nation have made no selection of land for allotment and others have made selection of only a portion of the land to which they are entitled, and

"Whereas, after due notice given, many citizens of said nation have failed to make a selection of a homestead, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the acting chairman is hereby authorized and empowered by and on behalf of the Commission to allot to each citizen out of the lands of the Creek Nation not heretofore allotted or selected such an amount of land of at least average quality as will make the total allotment of each citizen one hundred and sixty acres, and to select a homestead for such citizens in all cases where a selection of a homestead has not been made by or on behalf of said citizen:

Provided, That the allotment and selection of homestead so made for a citizen shall include improvements shown by the plats or records of the office to belong to said citizen.

On motion of Commissioner Breckenridge, duly seconded, the same was unanimously adopted.

All Whom These Presents Shall Come, Greeting:

Whereas, by the Act of Congress approved March 1, 1901, (31 Stats. 861), agreement ratified by the Creek Nation May 25, 1901, it was provided that all lands of the Muskogee (Creek) Tribe of Indians, in Indian Territory, except as therein provided, shall be allotted among the citizens of said tribe by the United States Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes so as to give to each an equal share of the whole in value, as nearly as may be, and

Whereas, It was provided by said Act of Congress that each citizen shall select, or have selected for him, from his allotment forty acres of land as a homestead for which he shall have a separate deed, and

Whereas, the said Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes has certified that the land hereinafter described has been selected by or on behalf of Thomas Atkins a citizen of said tribe, as an allotment, exclusive of a forty-acre homestead, as aforesaid,

Now, Therefore, I, the undersigned, the Principal Chief of the Muskogee (Creek) Nation, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the aforesaid Act of Congress of the United States, have granted and conveyed and by these presents do grant and convey unto the said Thomas Atkins all right, title and interest of the Muskogee (Creek) Nation and of all other citizens of said Nation in and to the following described land, viz: The Southwest Quarter of the Northwest Quarter of Section Four (4), and the Southwest Quarter of

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
WASHINGTON.

August 18, 1916.

Sir:

You will take notice that on the 25th day of September, 1916, at 10:00 o'clock A. M., at my office in the City of Washington, D. C., hearings will be resumed to determine whether or not the name of Thomas Atkins, appearing opposite roll No. 7913 on the approved Roll of Citizens by blood of the Creek Nation, should be stricken therefrom, and delivery refused of the certificate of allotment and the allotment and homestead deeds, covering the following described lands, to-wit:

> Southwest Quarter of the Northwest Quarter of Section Four (4) and Southwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter and Lot Two (2) of Section Five (5) and Lot Four (4) of Section Four (4) Township Eighteen (18) North, Range Seven (7) East of the Indian Base and Meridian, containing 162.01 acres, which deeds have never been delivered, and are now in the possession of the Department of the Interior, and to determine whether or not said certificate and deeds should be cancelled and held for naught.

Very truly,
(Signed) Bo Sweeney,
Assistant Secretary.

Endorsed: Filed Sep. 12, 1916. R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 1st day of December, A. D. 1917, the court filed its opinion herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Memorandum Opinion.

CAMPBELL, D. J.:

At an early stage in the taking of testimony in this case, after the plaintiff had produced the greater part of the evidence upon which it relied as to just what transpired before the Dawes Commission in May, 1901, at Okmulgee, when Thomas Atkins was listed for enrollment, and when it proposed to enter upon that branch of the case which involved the offering of proof in support of its contention that Thomas Atkins never had any existence, the objection was made by counsel for the defendants Atkins, Page and allied interests that such evidence was inadmissible as being immaterial to any proper issue in the case. It was then urged that the evidence already adduced by the plaintiff, so far from establishing the charge that the Dawes Commission had enrolled Thomas Atkins without having any evidence upon the question as to whether he was living April 1, 1899, on the contrary established that it had heard testimony upon this point. It was further urged in support of the objection that the Government's proof also showed that the hearing before the Dawes Commission as to the right of Thomas Atkins to be enrolled was not ex parte as contended by the Government, but that the Commission had acted as a quasi judicial body in listing for enrollment and enrolling Thomas Atkins as a member of the Creek Tribe, had heard evidence upon the things conditioning his right to enrollment, to-wit: as to his being a citizen by blood of the tribe, his residence with the tribe, and his having been living on April 1, 1899, and that his enrollment by the Commission and the issuance of patents pursuant thereto amounted to a judgment of that tribunal conclusively determining in his favor those several questions of fact as against any future collateral attack and against any direct proceeding to vacate or set aside such enrollment and patents except upon the grounds upon which the final judgment of a judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal may be attacked, that is, for such fraud or such mistake of law or fact as when established renders such judgment voidable. That the fraud charged against Minnie Atkins in relation to the procurement of the placing of the name of Thomas Atkins on the 1895 Creek Roll was not the character of fraudulent act for which the judgment of the Commission could be attacked, in that, if it was fraud, it involved a matter in issue before the Commission, and not an extrinsic or collateral matter. It was urged therefore that the question of the existence or non-existence of Thomas Atkins was necessarily involved in the question of his being alive or dead on April 1, 1899, and that question having been conclusively determined by the Commission could not be retried in this court. The matter was then orally argued quite fully and the court, largely on the authority of Iowa Land and Trust Company v. United States, (217 Federal Reporter, page 11), overruled the objection and permitted the plaintiff to offer proof as to whether Thomas Atkins ever existed, to which issue, as afterward developed, has been addressed the greater part of the testimony making up the enlarged record in this case. Just before the close of the taking of the testimony in the case, which consumed more than a month, the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States in United States v. Wildcat et al., commonly known as the "Barney Thlocco" case, was rendered, involving the question of the finality of the action of the Dawes Commission in enrolling Creek Citizens and the issuance of patents to them or in their names. In the light of this decision, counsel renewed their objections above referred to and the court decided to re-open this question of law and permit counsel to brief the same, and to further consider that question preliminary to the consideration of other features of the case. There was an effort on the part of the Government to secure a rehearing of the Thlocco case by the Supreme Court, but the court is now advised that this has been denied, so that the case stands as authority. Counsel for plaintiff in their brief say:

> "Even if we had proceeded with the trial of the case with the contention that the Commission acted arbitrarily, and without evidence as to the right of Thomas Atkins to be enrolled, we would now be foreclosed with respect to that contention, by reason of the decision in the Barney Thlocco case; but we were not unmindful of the view which this court took of the issue of fact raised in that case, and, in point of fact, we proceeded to try this case upon the following propositions, presented by our pleadings, namely:
> First. That the enrolled and allotted Thomas Atkins was, and is, a distinctly mythical person; consequently, that the Dawes Commission was without jurisdiction to enroll that name or allot lands to him, and the patents were, and are, utterly void. This proposition is presented in the amended bill of complaint as the third ground for the relief prayed for, and calls for no impeachment of the judgment of the Commission, save only insofar as proof of the utter non-existence of the enrollee and patentee operates absolutely to impeach and destroy that judgment and the resultant patents. (See paragraph VII of the amended bill of complaint.)
> Second. That the Commission, as a basis for the enrollment of the name of Thomas Atkins, used, as absolutely necessary, hence, necessarily material evidence upon the question of the citizenship of Thomas Atkins, the 1895 payroll containing his name, and that that payroll was false and fraudulent insofar as it contained that name; that the defendant, Minnie Atkins caused it to contain said name, well knowing that it had no rightful place thereon, and concealed the fact that it represented a mythical person; that her concealment of that fact has continued from that day to this, and she is now attempting to reap the benefits growing out of the Dawes Commission enrollment, which resulted from the ex parte proceeding wherein said false tribal roll was used as aforesaid. (See paragraph V of the amended bill of complaint.)"

In view of this admission and the evidence offered by the Government itself, we start with the established proposition that the Government has failed to discharge the burden which rested upon it to establish by the evidence that the Commission acted arbitrarily and without evidence as to the right of Thomas Atkins to be enrolled, which involved, as we have seen, the questions of his Creek blood, his residence in the tribe, and his having lived up to and including April 1, 1899. Therefore, unless the action of the Commission may be attacked in this proceeding on the theory that notwithstanding its findings Thomas Atkins was in fact a myth and never existed, and that Minnie Atkins in having him placed upon the 1895 Creek Roll as a person then in being, and permitting the Commission to consider said roll as evidence of his existence and Creek citizenship, without apprising the Commission of its falsity, practiced such fraud upon the Commission as renders its judgment voidable in this proceeding; or on the theory alone that Thomas Atkins was in fact a myth, and that therefore, notwithstanding its attempted action, the Commission was without jurisdiction to enroll his name or allot land in his name and that hence its action is a nullity, the title to the land still remaining in the Creek Nation and pretended patents being clouds thereon, the objection to the introduction of evidence was well taken and as a matter of law the plaintiff must fail in this case. Its right to make this proof the plaintiff bases upon these three propositions as appears from the brief.

I.

"The proceedings before the Commission were ex parte.

II.

"The particular charge of fraud in this case, if sustained, entitles the complainant to the relief prayed for.

III.

"A patent to a fictitious person is, in legal effect, no more than a declaration that the Government thereby conveys the title to no one, and the judgment on which it is based is a nullity for want of jurisdiction in the Dawes Commission to render it."

Were the proceedings before the Commission ex parte? That they were not it seems to me is now settled beyond controversy by the decision of the Supreme Court in the Thlocco case. That case also involved the enrollment of a deceased Creek citizen appearing upon the tribal roll, but unaccounted for at the time of enrollment. The question of his enrollment was before the Dawes Commission at the very time and under circumstances almost if not entirely identical with those of this case, and the proceedings of the Commission in relation to Thlocco's enrollment are strikingly similar to those here as appears from a comparison of the evidence in the two cases, in large part given by the same witnesses in both, members and employees of the Commission. In the Thlocco case, after reviewing the legislation vesting authority in the Dawes Commission, it was said:

> "The legislation which we have outlined indicates the purpose of Congress to make provision for the partition of the lands belonging to the Creek Nation among the members of the tribe, and to that end it authorized the Dawes Commission to make investigation and determine the names of such as were entitled to be on the rolls of citizenship and to participate in the division of the tribal lands. This purpose indicated in the Curtis Act of 1898 was emphasized by the so-called Creek Agreement of 1901, subsequently ratified by the tribe. In that Act the Commission was authorized to investigate the subject, and its action when approved by the Secretary of the Interior was declared to be final. There was thus constituted a quasi-judicial tribunal whose judgment within the limits of its jurisdiction were only subject to attack for fraud or such mistake of law or fact as would justify the holding that its judgments were voidable. Congress by this legislation evidenced an intention to put an end to controversy by providing a tribunal before which those interested could be heard and the rolls authoritatively made up of those who were entitled to participate in the partition of the tribal lands. It was to the interest of all concerned that the beneficiaries of this division should be ascertained. To this end the Commission was established and endowed with authority to hear and determine the matter.
> A correct conclusion was not necessary to the finality and binding character of its decisions. It may be that the Commission in acting upon the many cases before it made mistakes which are now impossible of correction. This might easily be so, for the Commission passed upon the rights of thousands claiming membership in the tribe and ascertained the rights of others who did not appear before it, upon the merits of whose standing the Commission had to pass with the best information which it could obtain.
> When the Commission proceeded in good faith to determine the matter and to act upon information before it, not arbitrarily, but according to its best judgment, we think it was the intention of the Act that the matter, upon the approval of the Secretary, should be finally concluded and the rights of the parties forever settled, subject to such attacks as could successfully be made upon judgments of this character for fraud or mistake. * * *

In the present case the Government had jurisdiction over these lands. It had the authority to partition them among the members of the tribe. Shulthis v. McDougal, 170 Fed. 529, 534; McDougal v. McKay, 237 U. S. 372, 383.

For this purpose it determined to divide the lands among those living on April 1, 1899, and constituted a tribunal to investigate the question of membership and consequent right to share in the division. We think the decision of such tribunal, when not impeached for fraud or mistake, conclusive of the question of membership in the tribe, when followed, as was the case here, by the action of the Interior Department confirming the allotment and ordering the patents conveying the lands, which were in fact issued. If decisions of this character may be subject to annulment in the manner in which the Government seeks to attack and set aside this one, many titles supposed to be secure would be divested many years after patents issued, upon showing that the decision was a mistaken one. The rule is that such decisions are presumably based upon proper showing, and that they must stand until overcome by full and convincing proof sufficient within the recognized principles of equity jurisdiction in cases of this character to invalidate them. Maxwell Land-Grant Case, 121 U. S. 325, 379, 381; Colorado Coal Co. v. United States, 123 U. S. 307."

In the Iowa Land and Trust Company case supra, which, as suggested, was the authority inclining this court to overrule the objections referred to at the trial and permit the proof on the question of Thomas Atkins being a myth, Judge CARLAND said:

"It is urged, also, in the present case, that the United States cannot cancel the patents in question because the fraud alleged was not extrinsic to the matter tried at the hearing before the Commission. To support this position the following cases are cited: Hilton v. Guyot, 159 U. S. 113, 16 Sup. Ct. 139, 40 L. ed. 95; United States v. Throckmorton, 98 U. S. 61, 65, 66, 25 L. ed. 93; Vance v. Burbank, 101 U. S. 514, 519, 25 L. ed. 929; Steel v. St. Louis Smelt. & Ref. Co., 106 U. S. 447, 453, 1 Sup. Ct. 389, 27 L. ed. 226; Moffatt v. United States, 112 U. S. 23, 32, 5 Sup. Ct. 10, 28 L. ed. 623; United States v. Minor, 114 U. S. 233, 242, 5 Sup. Ct. 826, 29 L. ed. 110. But the Supreme Court has often held that the rule above announced is not applicable to ex parte proceedings in the United States Land Office, and that the finding of the land officers in such proceedings, although not open to collateral attack, is not con> clusive against the Government when it sues to cancel the resulting patent upon the ground that it was obtained by means of false and fraudulent proofs. United States v. Minor, 114 U. S. 233, 5 Sup. Ct. 826, 29 L. ed. 110; McCaskill Co. v. United States, 216 U. S. 504, 30 Sup. Ct. 386, 54 L. ed. 590; Washington Securities Co. v. United States, 234 U. S. 76, 34 Sup. Ct. 725, 58 L. ed. 1220."

In the case of the United States v. Minor, supra, cited by Judge CARLAND as authority for the holding that the action of the Dawes Commission in that case was ex parte, the Supreme Court said:

> "The learned judge whose opinion prevailed in the Circuit Court and is found in the record, has been misled by confounding the present case with that of United States v. Throckmorton, 98 U. S. 61, and Vance v. Burbank, 101 U. S. 514, and thus applying principles to this case which do not belong to it.
> In Throckmorton's case, it is true, a part of the relief sought was to set aside a patent for land issued by the United States. But the patent was issued on the confirmation of a Mexican grant after proceedings prescribed by the Act of Congress on that subject. These proceedings were judicial. They were commenced before a board of commissioners. There were pleadings and parties, and the claimant was plaintiff, and the United States was defendant. Both parties were represented by counsel, the United States having in all such cases her regular District Attorney to represent her. Witnesses were examined in the usual way, by depositions, subject to cross-examination, and not by ex parte affidavits. From this tribunal there was a right of appeal to the District Court, and from that court to the Supreme Court of the United States by either party. There was nothing wanting to make such a proceeding, in the highest sense, a judicial one, and to give to its final judgment or decree all the respect, the verity, the conclusiveness, which belong to such a final decree between the parties. The patent could only issue on this final decree of confirmation of the Spanish or Mexican grant, and was, in effect, but the execution of that decree. * * *
> It needs no other remarks than those we have already made, as to the nature of the proceeding before the land officers, to show how inappropriate this language is to such a proceeding. Here no one question was in issue. No issue at all was taken. No adversary proceeding was > had. No contest was made. The officers, acting on such evidence as the claimant presented, were bound by it and by the law to issue a patent. They had no means of controverting its truth, and the Government had no attorney to inquire into it. Surely the doctrine applicable to the conclusive character of the solemn judgments of courts, with full jurisdiction over the parties, and the subject-matter, made after appearance, pleadings and contests by parties on both sides, cannot be properly applied to the proceedings in the land office in such cases.''

It is very clear that this case cannot be assimilated to the Minor case, supra. Here there were questions relating to the right of Thomas Atkins in issue—his Creek blood, his residence in the tribe and as to whether he was living on April 1, 1899. If in fact no adversary proceedings were had nor any contest made it was not for lack of opportunity given the Creek Tribe to contest. As appears from the testimony of plaintiff's witnesses the committee representing the Creek Tribe and the Creek attorney were in attendance and had an opportunity to question any one who gave the Commission information. Whenever the right of any person proposed for enrollment was questioned by either the Tribal Committee or attorney, then a record was made of the testimony and to that extent the hearing was more formal, no record being made where the right was not questioned, but in either case the Commission sought to secure and so far as the record shows did secure evidence outside the tribal rolls themselves as to the residence of each person enrolled and as to his being alive on April 1, 1899. The Dawes Commission was not bound by the evidence offered by any applicant for enrollment nor by the tribal rolls. It had means of controverting the truth of statements made by the applicant and was especially authorized and directed by law to purge the tribal rolls of all names placed thereon by fraud, which presupposed an investigation as to the right of any one appearing upon the tribal rolls to enrollment by the Commission, so that the tribal enrollment was not conclusive.

On the other hand, as stated in the Thlocco case, the matter in hand was the partition of the land belonging to the Creek Nation among the members of the tribe and to that end it authorized the Dawes Commission to make investigation and determine the names of such as were entitled to be on the rolls of citizenship and to participate in the division of the tribal land, and it was only after the Dawes Commission had determined formally the right of any person claiming citizenship, that he was entitled to an allotment and patent therefor, and the patent issued pursuant to such finding by the Dawes Commission, just as in the Throckmorton case the patent issued on the confirmation of the Mexican grant by the Board of Commissioners clothed by Congress with power to hear and determine the matter. As in that case, so here, the proceedings before the Dawes Commission were judicial rather than ex parte. As said by Judge SANBORN on the receivership phase of this case (233 Fed. Reporter 177), the patents to Thomas Atkins were adjudged valid, so far as related to defects at that time urged by the plaintiff, by the Dawes Commission:

> "A quasi-judicial tribunal, to which by the Creek Agreement the Congress and the Creek Tribe entrusted the power and upon which it imposed the duty to decide that question, a tribunal whose jurisdiction of that question and of every issue it was necessary for it to consider and determine in reaching its decision was conclusive upon all and impervious to collateral attack either by the Creek Nation, the United States, or any other party in interest."

Is the fraud charged in this case such as, when established, renders voidable the finding of the Dawes Commission as to the right of Thomas Atkins to enrollment as a Creek citizen? The charge is very tersely stated in that portion of plaintiff's brief above quoted, setting forth its second contention, that of the use of the 1895 payroll as material and necessary evidence as to the citizenship of Thomas Atkins, which roll was false insofar as it set forth his name as an existing member of the tribe when it was compiled; that defendant Minnie Atkins caused it to contain his name knowing him to be a myth and that the name had no rightful place on the tribal roll, but concealed that fact from the tribal authorities and later from the Dawes Commission and has since continued to conceal it and is now seeking to reap the benefit of such acts. The Circuit Court of Appeals for this circuit in the case of United States v. Whitted et al., in an opinion filed July 30, 1917, holding a former decision of the officers of the land department as to the non-mineral character of certain lands in controversy conclusive of the issues presented and that the question could not be relitigated in that case, cited Vance v. Burbank, supra, saying:

> "In the case just cited the rule is stated thus: 'The appropriate officers of the Land Department have been constituted a special tribunal to decide such questions, and their decisions are final to the same extent that those of other judicial or quasi-judicial tribunals are.' In the same case the court further said: 'It has also been settled that the fraud in respect to which relief will be granted in this class of cases must be such as has been practiced on the unsuccessful party, and prevented him from exhibiting his case fully to the department, so that it may properly be said that there has never been a decision in a real contest about the subject-matter of inquiry. False testimony or forged documents even are not enough, if the disputed matter has actually been presented to or considered by the appropriate tribunal. * * * The decision of the proper officers of the department is in the nature of a judicial determination of the matter in dispute'."

—United States v. Throckmorton, 98 U. S. 61;
Steel v. Smelting Co., 106 U. S. 450;
United States v. Primrose Coal Co., 216 Fed. 553.

Now we have seen that the three essentials to the right of Thomas Atkins to enrollment were his Creek blood, his residence in the tribe and his having been alive April 1, 1899. The record shows by testimony of plaintiff's witnesses that whatever may have been the practice of the Dawes Commission as to accepting the 1895 tribal roll as evidence of acknowledgment by the tribe of Creek blood, the matters of residence in the tribe and of being alive on April 1, 1899, were always the subject of evidence outside and independent of the tribal roll, and that on these questions the roll was never taken as conclusive. Nor under the law was the tribal roll conclusive as to the right of citizenship of Thomas Atkins when it was compiled, for we have seen that the Dawes Commission was authorized and directed to purge the rolls of any names placed thereon by fraud. Therefore, before the Dawes Commission, a tribunal (as Judge SANBORN has said in this case) entrusted with the power and upon which the duty was imposed to decide them conclusively, these several questions were presented for consideration. The Creek tribe was represented before that tribunal. Its tribal lands were being partitioned and the particular question was as to the right of Thomas Atkins to participate. As said by Judge SANBORN in this case, 233 Fed., pages 190-191, and 192:

> "And there is the fact that under the Creek Agreement the tribe had the right to appear before the Commission and by its agent and its attorney, who during all the enrollment proceedings was under retainer and salary to protect the rights of the tribe, and to prevent the enrollment by the Commission of Thomas Atkins if he was not entitled thereto, and the Creek Agreement that if this was not done, the roll should be final. * * *

> "The Creek Tribe made the Creek rolls of 1890 and 1895. By the Creek Agreement (31 Stats. 869) Section 28, which it made and ratified, the Creek Tribe contracted with the United States that the Dawes Commission should make the final roll of its citizens and allot them their lands and that it should base that enrollment upon the Creek tribal rolls of 1890 and 1895, and especially upon the latter. It had the opportunity and the privilege to correct and purge its rolls before that tribunal."

The Creek Tribe, notwithstanding the tribal roll, which only had the force of evidence in the case, might have defended against the enrollment of Thomas Atkins on the very grounds charged as constituting the fraud here. That it did not do so renders the decision of the Dawes Commission none the less conclusive as against it. Res adjudicata. 10 Enc. U. S. Sup. Court Reports, pages 761, 762, and cases cited. Therefore this is the class of case in which, as held in Vance v. Burbank and the Throckmorton cases, supra, the fraud charged must be such as has been practiced on the unsuccessful party and prevented him from exhibiting his case fully to the tribunal trying it, so that it may be properly said that there has never been a decision in a real controversy about the subject-matter of inquiry. False testimony or forged or fraudulent documents are not enough. There can be no contention that any act of the defendant Minnie Atkins charged or proven in this case had any such effect upon the hearing before the Dawes Commission, either as to the Creek Nation or the Commission itself. The enrollment must stand so far as the charge of fraud is concerned.

May the action of the Dawes Commission in enrolling Thomas Atkins and issuing patents to him be questioned in this case on the theory that he never had any existence and that therefore the title still remains in the Creek Tribe and the action of the Commission is a nullity for want of jurisdiction?

A case largely relied upon by the plaintiff in support of this contention is that of Sampeyreac, 7 Peters 222. For reasons pointed out by District Judge HOFFMAN in United States v. Flint, 25 Fed. Cases, pages 1118, 1119, the Sampeyreac case is not deemed decisive of this case. Judge HOFFMAN said:

> "Among the great number of claims to lands in the territories ceded to the United States by France and Spain, it is not to be supposed that many fraudulent titles may not have escaped the scrutiny of the tribunals appointed to determine their validity. It is a significant circumstance, that in no case, so far as the judicial history of the country informs us, has the United States, on discovering the fraud, attempted to cause the re-examination before the ordinary tribunals of a finally confirmed claim.

In the case of Sampeyreac, 7 Pet. (32 U. S.) 222, which is the only reported case where a re-examination was made, it was done by virtue of a special Act of Congress, which authorized the proceeding, not before the ordinary tribunals, but by bill of review in the special tribunal upon which the original jurisdiction over the cause had been conferred. Whether or not by virtue of that jurisdiction it might have entertained a bill of review to set aside its own decree, the Supreme Court does not decide. An Act of Congress seems to have been deemed necessary to confer the authority. But it is nowhere intimated that any court of equity powers, but upon which no authority to pass upon the validity of claims of that description had been conferred, could have entertained such a bill, or in any other form have re-examined the questions finally decided by the special tribunal.

The case was one of admitted forgery. But it was nevertheless contended by counsel, that the decree of the court being conclusive between the parties, congress had no power to authorize the review, or to disturb vested rights. The Supreme Court, without passing upon the general proposition, overruled the objection, on the ground that Sampeyreac was admitted to be a fictitious person and that, therefore, there had been no real parties before the court between whom the decrees could be conclusive.

The position taken by counsel in this case may, perhaps, be extreme and untenable. In deciding the case at bar, it is not necessary to assert that, where a fraudulent title has been confirmed, the United States is entirely without remedy, nor that the political department of the Government may not, if it sees fit, invest the courts with authority to re-examine the questions which, as the law now stands, remain finally decided in these cases. But, until Congress has so expressed its will and conferred the requisite authority, it may confidently be affirmed that the ordinary tribunals are without jurisdiction."

It is true that if it were conceded and not an issue in this case that the Thomas Atkins who appears upon the roll, never in fact existed, it would follow that the patents made in his name are nullities and did not divest the title from the Creek Tribe, for, of course there must exist in every grant, the subject of the grant, the grantor and the grantee. It is charged in this case that the grantee never existed, but far from being conceded, that charge is denied, and an issue is framed on that question. It is first involved, as we have seen, in the charge of fraud, but the fraud charged is not such as justifies this court in retrying the questions of fact conclusively determined by the Dawes Commission. Therefore, if this issue may be tried in this case it must be because it was not a necessary issue of fact before the Commission, or because, notwithstanding it may have been one of the questions of fact necessarily decided by the Commission, it is of such a nature as could not have been conclusively decided as against a retrial of the same issue between the same parties or their privies in this case. It was necessary that the Dawes Commission should find that the Thomas Atkins enrolled by it was alive April 1, 1899, before it could adjudge him entitled to enrollment, and that it did so find is conclusively presumed from the fact that it enrolled him. This finding is presumed to have been upon evidence until the contrary is clearly and convincingly established. Not only does the record fail to establish that such finding was without evidence, but on the contrary is strongly to the effect that there was such evidence. Of course a finding that he was living April 1, 1899, is a finding that he was not a fictitious or mythical being. Therefore, the question of the very existence of Thomas Atkins was necessarily considered and determined by the Commission. It is not perceived on what theory this necessary issue of fact, once determined by the Commission, is any less conclusively determined, than is the question of Creek blood or residence in the tribe. As said in the Thlocco case, a correct determination or conclusion was not necessary to the binding character of the decision, and even though now it should be most conclusively and convincingly shown that Thomas Atkins is a myth, it cannot avail the plaintiff, for that is not a question which this court can retry.

On that question the Creek Tribe has had its day in court and so far as it is concerned, that Thomas Atkins had existence and was alive on April 1, 1899, is conclusively determined.

Judge.

Endorsed: Filed Dec. 1, 1917. R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 13th day of May, A. D. 1918, the court filed its Supplemental Memorandum Opinion herein, which is in words and figures as follows:

Supplemental Memorandum Opinion and Findings.

Last December the court filed in this cause a memorandum opinion on the question initially submitted as to whether in view of the action of the Dawes Commission in enrolling Thomas Atkins, and in view of the evidence adduced as to the circumstances of his enrollment, the complainant, the United States, can now properly be heard on its contention that Thomas Atkins never in fact had any existence, and is purely a mythical personage. For reasons set forth in that opinion the court decided that the complainant was concluded by the action of the Dawes Commission enrolling Thomas Atkins.

But there still remained, as between the several interests represented by the defendants, the question as to which of them the evidence showed to be entitled to the property in controversy. These are divided into three groups,, viz: those claiming under the defendant Minnie Folk, nee Atkins; those claiming under the defendant Nancy Atkins; and those claiming under the defendant Henry Carter. Briefs have been submitted and the court has carefully read such of the record as consists of depositions not read at the trial and has also read and reconsidered much of the oral testimony now reduced to typewriting, which of course was heard at the trial. The questions as between the several defendants depend for solution largely upon a determination of facts which the evidence may be found to establish. In May, 1901, the Dawes Commission, for reasons disclosed by the record, had temporarily established its enrolling division for the Creek Nation at Okmulgee, Indian Territory, for the purpose of facilitating the completion of its enrollment of members of the Creek Tribe. The work of enrollment had been going on for some time and many persons had been enrolled or listed for enrollment upon application either in person or by some one authorized to act for them. But by reference to the tribal rolls which the Commission had before it, and especially the authenticated Creek payroll of 1895, it developed that many names of persons appeared thereon who had not applied for enrollment and in regard to whose right to enrollment the Commission had received no information, further than the fact of their being upon said tribal rolls. These were classed by the Commission as "unaccounted for," and, for reasons developed by the record, each such name was listed upon a census card, preliminary to inclusion later in a schedule of names of persons found entitled to enrollment, to be submitted to the Secretary of the Interior for approval, in case subsequent investigation should establish the right of such person to enrollment. Among these unaccounted for names was that of "Thos. Atkins," appearing on the 1895 authenticated roll as No. 213 Euchee Town, and this name was accordingly listed on a census card for further investigation. This card, as finally completed from such investigation as was made prior to his enrollment, contained the following data as to Thomas Atkins; that he was ten years of age; a male; of one-half Indian blood, enrolled on the 1895 approved tribal roll as No. 213, Euchee Town; his father a white man name apparently unknown, and his mother Minnie Atkins also appearing as a member of Euchee Town on the 1895 tribal roll. He was accordingly enrolled on the approved Dawes Commission roll as No. 7913, Thomas Atkins, age ten, sex male, of ½ Indian blood. Pursuant to this enrollment certificates of allotment were issued by the Commission covering the land in controversy, followed by patents therefor which have been duly recorded, the allotment having been arbitrary, that is by the Commission on its own motion without application or selection having been made by or for the allottee.

The question as between the Minnie and Nancy Atkins interests is as to whether this Thomas Atkins so enrolled is in fact a child of Minnie Atkins or a child of Nancy Atkins. It is strongly urged on the one hand by the Minnie Atkins interests that Nancy Atkins never had a son named Thomas, no, in fact any child except a girl born about 1890 or 1891 who died at or very shortly after birth. This was also the contention of the complainant. This is denied by the Nancy Atkins interests, they contending that Nancy's child was a boy, an illegitimate child named Thomas Atkins and that he lived until about the year 1900 or 1901 and is in fact the person who appears on the 1895 authenticated roll as No. 213 of Euchee Town. It is further contended by the Nancy Atkins interests that Minnie Atkins never had a child named Thomas Atkins, and they join the complainant in the contention that the Thomas Atkins claimed by Minnie is purely a myth. Of course if the evidence should be found to establish the contention that the Thomas Atkins claimed by Minnie never in fact had any existence, and it further appeared that Nancy did in fact have the child she claims to have had, the fact that Minnie had no such child might lead very strongly to the conclusion that the Thomas Atkins enrolled was Nancy's child. Hence the evidence has been carefully considered on the question as to whether or not Minnie Atkins in fact had this child Thomas as she claims. This question is greatly obscured in this voluminous record by much evidence on both sides which the court finds unworthy of belief. The time and space will not be taken to refer to or analyze it in detail. But after a most careful consideration of all the evidence the court finds that Minnie Atkins had an illegitimate male child born to her during the early part of June, 1895, at the home of a colored woman known as Granny Letcher, in the City of Leavenworth, Kansas, and that she named this child Thomas Atkins.

The court further finds that prior to the compilation of the tribal roll now known as the 1895 authenticated tribal roll of the Creek Tribe of Indians, Minnie Atkins had conveyed information to certain of her relatives in Indian Territory of the fact of the birth of Thomas Atkins, which information was eventually imparted to the tribal authorities compiling the roll, and that the name Thomas Atkins appearing as No. 253 of Euchee Town on the 1895 authenticated tribal roll was placed upon said roll by the tribal authorities compiling the roll as the child of the defendant Minnie Atkins pursuant to such information. The court finds that this Thomas Atkins appearing on the 1895 authenticated tribal roll, and later on the Dawes Commission roll, is in fact the illegitimate child of said Minnie Atkins, born as aforesaid in the City of Leavenworth, Kansas, in the early part of June, 1895, and is not the child of Nancy Atkins.

Much of the record consists of testimony on the question of fact as to whether Nancy Atkins ever had a son Thomas, as she now claims, and this question also is obscured by much testimony on both sides not considered worthy of belief. Grave doubt is cast upon Nancy's contention by her own conduct during the period when the Dawes Commission was enrolling the members of the tribe and allotting the land, when it is considered that she manifested a lively interest in her own enrollment and allotment and that of her brother Lee, who had died, as she knew, in 1894 or 1895, but in this correspondence with the Commission makes no reference to her supposed son Thomas, who, if her present contention be true, had lived until after April 1st, 1899, was clearly entitled to enrollment, and whose death was almost contemporaneous with her correspondence with the Commission. But in view of the foregoing finding as to the identity of Thomas Atkins on the roll with defendant Minnie Atkins' son Thomas, it becomes immaterial as to whether in fact Nancy Atkins also had a son Thomas.

The claim of defendant Henry Carter that he is identical with and in fact is the said Thomas Atkins, the said son of Minnie Atkins referred to in a foregoing finding, has been carefully considered. The court finds that the evidence does not support this contention. The court finds that the defendant Henry Carter is a man some five years older than he would be were he in fact identical with the said Thomas Atkins son of the said Minnie Atkins. The court finds that defendant

Henry Carter is in fact the illegitimate son of Adis Wright, formerly Adis Carter, daughter of Henry, deceased, by whom (the said Henry Carter, deceased) the defendant Henry Carter was raised from early infancy.

It follows that the defendant Minnie Atkins, and those claiming under her, must prevail, and appropriate decree accordingly may be prepared by counsel and presented for signing and entry. Before making final directions as to the apportionment or taxing of the costs in this case, the court desires to hear counsel orally as to their respective contentions as to the matter, at Muskogee on Monday, May 27th next, at ten o'clock, A. M.

RALPH E. CAMPBELL,
Judge.

Endorsed: Filed May 13, 1918. R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

And, to-wit, on the 29th day of May, A. D. 1918, the same being one of the days of a Special Session of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Oklahoma, held at Muskogee, Oklahoma, court met pursuant to adjournment. Present and presiding the Honorable RALPH E. CAMPBELL, Judge.

Among the proceedings had on this day is the following:

Decree.

This cause came on further to be heard on the amended bill of complaint of the complainant, filed September 17, 1915, the separate answers of the defendants Thomas Atkins and J. Truman Nixon, filed October 11, 1915, the separate answer of Charles Page, filed October 14, 1915, the separate answer of Minnie Folk (nee Atkins), Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford, filed December 23, 1915, the separate answer and cross-complaint of Nancy Atkins, filed December 29 ,1915, the separate answer of Robert L. Rutherford and James A. Ferguson, filed December 29, 1915, the separate answer of Henry Carter, claiming to be Thomas Atkins, filed December 30, 1915, the separate answer of Charles Page to the cross-bill of complaint of Nancy Atkins filed August 11, 1916, and the separate answer of Minnie Folk (nee Atkins), Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford to the cross-bill of complaint of Nancy Atkins filed August 11, 1916.

And it being proven to the satisfaction of the court that the defendants, Charles Harrison, Thomas Harris, Kahookah Harris, Martin Rowe, Gypsy Oil Company, a corporation, Gem Oil Company, a corporation, H. U. Bartlett, A. A. Hammer, William S. Murphy, Wilbur M. Morris, W. W. Walton, Ellis H. Hammett, Rufus B. Cobb, George C. Conrod, John R. Fields, James M. Brogan, Thomas Gilcrease, Robert Wilson, H. E. Whitehead, T. S. Hurst, F. F. Betzler, R. A. Josey, have heretofore been served with proper summons to answer or plead to the bill of complaint filed herein, and the said defendants Charles Harrison, Thomas Harris, Kahookah Harris, Martin Rowe, A. A. Hammer, William S. Murphy, Wilbur M. Morris, W. W. Walton, Ellis H. Hammett, Rufus B. Cobb, George C. Conrod, John R. Fields, James M. Brogan, Thomas Gilcrease, Robert Wilson, having failed to answer or plead to the bill of complaint herein are judged by the court to be in default and take nothing by this action:

And the defendants Gypsy Oil Company, a corporation, Gem Oil Company, a corporation, H. U. Bartlett, H. E. Whitehead, F. F. Betzler, T. S. Hurst, R. A. Josey, having heretofore answered disclaiming any right, title or interest in and to the property in controversy in this action, it is adjudged by the court that they take nothing by this action:

And thereupon witnesses and evidence were introduced on behalf of the complainant, and the defendants, and the taking of testimony and the reception of evidence was continued from day to day in open court, and all parties having announced, they rested, the cause was taken under advisement by the court.

The court, in accordance with the memorandum opinion filed in this cause on the 3rd day of December, 1917, relative to the objection of counsel for the defendants made in the course of the trial of this action and renewed at the conclusion of the introduction of evidence herein, to the effect that evidence offered by the complainant in support of its allegation that Thomas Atkins was and is a mythical person is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, finds said objection well taken, and finds that as between the complainant and the defendants, the complainant is precluded by the judgment of the Dawes Commission from a retrial of the question as to the existence or non-existence of Thomas Atkins, to which the complainant excepts and its exception is allowed.

And after due consideration of the testimony of the witnesses presented in open court, the depositions of witnesses offered and read into the record and the exhibits and evidence admitted on behalf of both the complainant and the defendants, and briefs filed by the various defendants, on the questions of law and fact presented in the trial of the cause:

The court finds that the land in controversy was allotted and patented to Thomas Atkins, Creek Indian, Roll No. 7913, as his distributive share of the lands of the Creek Nation and that the patents from the Creek Nation to Thomas Atkins conveying

> The Southwest quarter (SW4) of the Northeast quarter (NE4) and Lot Two (2) of Section Five (5), and the Southwest quarter (SW4) of the Northwest quarter (NW4) and Lot Four (4) of Section Four (4), Township Eighteen (18) North, Range Seven (7) East of the Indian Base and Meridian, should not be cancelled as prayed in complainant's bill, but are adjudged and decreed to be valid, subsisting conveyances of this land from the Creek Nation and the United States to Thomas Atkins, his heirs, and the persons claiming by, through or under him; to which finding the complainant and the defendants Nancy Atkins, and J. A. Ferguson except, and their exceptions are allowed.

The court finds further that the Dawes Commission in enrolling Thomas Atkins as aforesaid, did not act arbitrarily, and without evidence; but had before it substantial evidence as to the right of Thomas Atkins to enrollment and as to his being the son of Minnie Atkins; to which finding the complainant and the defendants, J. A. Ferguson and Nancy Atkins except, and their exceptions are allowed.

The court further finds that the Thomas Atkins enrolled as No. 7913 on the final roll of Creek Indians, is the son of the defendant, Minnie Folk (nee Atkins); to which finding the complainant and the defendants Nancy Atkins, and J. A. Ferguson except, and their exceptions are allowed.

The court further finds that the Thomas Atkins appearing on the 1895 authenticated tribal roll, and later on the roll of Creek Indians, as compiled by the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes opposite No. 7913, and approved by the Secretary of the Interior, is, in fact, the illegitimate child of the said Minnie Folk (nee Atkins), to which finding the complainant and the defendants, Nancy Atkins and J. A. Ferguson except, and their exceptions are allowed. The court further finds that said Thomas Atkins is not the son of Nancy Atkins, to which finding the defendants Nancy Atkins and J. A. Ferguson except and their exceptions are allowed.

The court further finds that the defendant Henry Carter is not the son of the defendant, Minnie Folk (nee Atkins), as claimed by said defendant, Carter, to which finding the defendant Carter excepts and his exception is allowed.

The court further finds as a matter of law and fact that Thomas Atkins, the illegitimate son of the defendant, Minnie Folk (nee Atkins), and to whom the land in controversy was allotted, has departed this life, without issue; to which finding the complainant and the defendants Nancy Atkins, Henry Carter and J. A. Ferguson except, and their exceptions are allowed.

The court further finds that Minnie Folk (nee Atkins) is, under the law and facts disclosed by the record in this case, the sole heir at law of Thomas Atkins, her son, aforesaid, to whom patents to the land in controversy were issued, and that the said Minnie Folk (nee Atkins), as such sole heir, inherits the property of the said Thomas Atkins now in controversy; to which finding the complainant and the defendants

Nancy Atkins, Henry Carter and J. A. Ferguson except, and their exceptions are allowed.

It Is Therefore Ordered, Adjudged and Decreed, That the defendant Minnie Folk (nee Atkins) be, and she is hereby declared to be the owner of and entitled to the possession of

> The Southwest quarter (SW4) of the Northeast quarter (NE4) and Lot Two (2) of Section Five (5) and the Southwest quarter (SW4) of the Northwest quarter (NW4) and Lot Four (4) of Section Four (4), Township Eighteen (18) North, Range Seven (7) East of the Indian Base and Meridian;

as against all defendants and complainants herein, subject only to the right, title and interest of the defendants, Page and Hanford, claiming by, through or under her, and that the complainant take nothing by virtue of this action and the bill of complaint filed herein be dismissed; to which the complainant excepts and its exception is allowed.

It is further ordered and decreed that the defendant Henry Carter, take nothing by this suit, to which the defendant, Henry Carter, excepts and his exception is allowed.

It is further ordered, adjudged and decreed that the defendant Nancy Atkins take nothing by reason of her cross-complaint filed herein and that the same be dismissed; to which the defendants, Nancy Atkins and J. A. Ferguson except, and their exceptions are allowed.

The court further decrees that the interest and title of Minnie Folk (nee Atkins) and the said Charles Page and Edward C. Hanford, in the property in controversy, are forever quieted as against the complainant and all the other defendants in this case, and all those claiming under them; to which the complainant and the defendants Nancy Atkins and J. A. Ferguson and Henry Carter except and their exceptions are allowed, in open court, and in the presence of counsel of record of all the defendants and intervenors, the complainant and the defendants, Nancy Atkins, Henry Carter and J. A. Ferguson, give notice of appeal.

It is further ordered that each of the respective parties herein pay the costs incurred in this cause by him.

Done in open court, this the 29th day of May, 1918.

RALPH E. CAMPBELL,
Judge of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Oklahoma.

Endorsed: Filed May 29, 1918. R. P. Harrison, Clerk U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Oklahoma.

Statement of the Evidence.

BE IT REMEMBERED, that on this the 30th day of April, 1917, the above entitled and numbered cause came on to be heard for final trial before the Honorable RALPH E. CAMPBELL, District Judge, presiding; and thereupon there appeared on behalf of the United States, D. H. Linebaugh, Esq., and W. P. Z. German, Esq., Special Assistants to the Attorney General, W. P. McGinnis, Esq., United States Attorney, Paul Pinson, Esq., Special Assistant to the United States Attorney, and R. C. Allen, Esq., Creek National Attorney; and on behalf of the various defendants, Judge C. B. Stuart, A. C. Cruce, Esq., E. C. Hanford, Esq., Judge Joseph M. Hill, Judge Malcolm E. Rosser, B. B. Blakeney, Esq., E. S. Cobb, Esq., and T. W. Bell, Esq.

And thereupon the following proceedings were had, to-wit:

Afternoon session.

And thereupon, RICHARD SHANEFELT, produced, sworn, and examined as a witness for and on behalf of the Government, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What is your name? A. Richard Shanefelt.
Q. What age are you, Mr. Shanefelt? A. Thirty-eight.
Q. You live at Muskogee? A. I do.
Q. What connection have you with the office of the Superintendent for the Five Civilized Tribes?
A. Clerk in the Land Division of that office.
Q. Is that the office and the Land Division, the department where are kept all of the records relating to the enrollment and allotment of citizens of the Creek Nation? A. It is.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, I wish you would listen to the—to the description of these exhibits which I am going to offer in evidence as they are offered.

Mr. German: Your Honor, at the taking of the depositions, we introduced a large number of exhibits, and to avoid confusion the new exhibits will need to begin with the number following the last number there.

The Court: Can't you give them a number now for the record? Did you use numerals before?

Mr. German: Yes, sir. We might use letters now. Judge Allen calls my attention to the fact that we have more exhibits than there are letters in the alphabet, and suggests that we commence with the old numbers.

The Court: Well, call this Exhibit A-1, A-2 and A-3.

Mr. German: As Exhibit A1, we offer certified copy of the census card of Thomas Atkins.

The Court: A certified copy of the census card of Thomas Atkins is offered. It may be admitted.

Mr. Cruce: If Your Honor please, we have intended to ask the rules in this case.

The Court: The witnesses in this case may come to the bar of the Court. All of the witnesses in the Court room may come to the bar of the Court. Come forward, all who are witnesses in this case.

Mr. German: Your Honor, may I suggest that counsel don't mean that to include Mr. Lieber and Mr. Hastings, the Dawes Commission clerks.

The Court: Not to apply to them?

Mr. Cruce: No, sir.

The Court: Are these all the witnesses that are in the Court room? You who are called as witnesses in this case will be required to stay out of the room, the Court room except when giving your testimony; you are not to talk to anyone about what your testimony has been or will be while on the witness stand. Provide a room for the witnesses outside. You may retire. You will remain in the witness room until you are excused.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, Mr. Montgomery is an attorney, we exclude him from the rule.

The Court: Mr. Montgomery is excluded from the rule. You may proceed, gentlemen.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, this census card has on it down at the bottom right hand corner the date, May 23, 1901. Right above that appears the words "Date of application for enrollment." I will ask you to state if you know approximately when those words which I quoted were placed on that census card?

A. The stamp bearing the words "Date of application for enrollment," as near as I can remember, was put on approximately three years ago; that was an explanatory note or stamp placed on there for the purpose of explaining what that date was.

Q. That was true of all census cards in the office of the Commission?

A. Of all where that was considered the date of application. In some instances that date does not represent the date of application; the census card shows where that is not in such a case.

Mr. German: I call Your Honor's attention to the fact that it refers to the 1895 roll No. 213 on that roll. We now offer in evidence a certified copy of the 1895 Creek Pay Roll of Euchee Town, covering Nos. 205 to 233 included, as Exhibit A-2.

The Court: Let it be examined. A good deal of time would be saved if these exhibits could be examined by counsel during the recess I think probably. See if you can't do that, gentlemen, to a greater or less extent to save time. Only those which are objected to them will necessarily be considered.

Mr. Rosser: I am just examining these for curiosity. I have no objection.

The Court: Well, it may be admitted then.

Mr. German: We offer as Exhibit A-3, a certified copy of the letter of the Commission, dated March 1, 1902, to the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting the schedule or roll made by the Dawes Commission, in so far as it shows the name of Thomas Atkins, opposite No. 7913.

The Court: It may be admitted. I will assume, unless you gentlemen announce an objection, that there is no objection to these certified copies of the Commission's papers.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-4, we offer a certified copy of the final roll in so far as it relates to Thomas Atkins opposite No. 7913.

The Court: Admitted.

Mr. German: As Exhibit A-5, we offer a certified copy of a Creek Citizenship Certificate, issued for Thomas Atkins, enrolled opposite No. 7913. I will ask the witness a question about this one.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, what use was made of such a certificate as that in the office of the Commission?

A. It was issued from the Citizenship Division and sent to the Allotment Division, for the purpose of showing that the party had been identified on the approved roll, or rather to identify the person to whom the allotment was made. It was virtually made up from the census card.

Mr. German: I suppose that may be admitted.

The Court: It is admitted.

Mr. German: We offer a certified copy of the resolution of the Commission, dated May 24, 1902, relating to the making of allotment by the Commission, persons who did not come in and make application for allotment.

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Overruled. It may be admitted.

Mr. German: We offer as Government's Exhibit A-7 certified copy of a plat, designating the land arbitrarily allotted to Thomas Atkins.

Mr. Hanford: The witness testified that that was arbitrarily allotted?

Mr. German: No.

Mr. Hanford: Objected to on the ground——

The Court: The Court will not take statement of counsel as to it being arbitrarily allotted as part of the testimony in this case. It is merely admitted as a plat of the land which was allotted in this person's name.

Mr. Hanford: I just thought Mr. German might qualify his statement.

Mr. German: I was merely reading from the certificate of Mr. Parker.

We now offer as Government's A-8, a copy of the designation of this land in allotment to Thomas Atkins by Tams Bixby, acting Chairman, pursuant to the resolution of May 24, 1902. That is the selection of the land in allotment made by Mr. Bixby for the Commission. In other words, this is the arbitrary selection as we contend.

Q. Shanefelt, is there any record in the files of the Commission, showing the selection of this land for Thomas Atkins other than this Exhibit A-8, which I have just identified?

A. There is not in the form of an application.

Q. I don't understand the meaning?

A. Well, we have record books, tract books, to show the allotment of lands, description of lands, but in the form of an application, that is the only one.

Q. These lands were arbitrarily allotted? A. Yes, sir.

> Mr. German: I now offer in evidence, as Government's Exhibit A-9, the certificate of selection issued by the Commission to Thomas Atkins, relating to the selection of this land in allotment for him.
> The Court: It may be admitted.
> Mr. German: And in that connection, as Exhibit A-10, the stub of the certificate just referred to.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, in issuing those certificates, was there a stub kept with reference to each one?

A. In each instance, yes, sir.

Q. Was there any book kept by the Commission relating to the delivery of allotment certificates or certificates of selection? A. Yes, sir.

> Mr. German: I neglected to state to Your Honor that the allotment was made June 30, 1902.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, what kind of a record was that? I mean in what sort of book or pamphlet, or what?

A. It was in book form, what was termed the mailing book of allotment certificate.

> Mr. German: We offer now in evidence, Government's Exhibit A-11, being a certified copy of page 193 of the mailing book of Creek Allotment certificate. I call Your Honor's attention to the fact that this shows —contains the name Thomas Atkins, Muskogee, and gives the certificate number which corresponds with the certificate number, with the number on the certificate and has this entry: "Mailed"—— Well, that isn't clear; I had better have the witness explain that.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, here are the figures 5-8-0-3 opposite the name of Thomas Atkins, what does that mean?

A. That would indicate the date that allotment certificate was mailed out. The date of mailing the certificate.

> Mr. German: Now, I call Your Honor's attention to the fact that the entry there is "Returned by postmaster," right over those figures that I had the witness testify about.
> The Court: Addressed Thomas Atkins, Muskogee?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, there appears to the right of the certificate number on this exhibit, the number being 6983, the letter H. What does that letter stand for?

A. That would stand for "Hold." That was the letter used for that word.

The Court: Let's see. What was it that was sent out now, the allotment certificate?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: That is the book recording the mailing out of allotment certificates?

Mr. German: Yes, sir. Shows that it was returned and then has the letter "H."

Mr. Hanford: We wish to object and strike from the testimony what we meant by the letter "H." Object to the certificate as to that part.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, where is the original allotment certificate, or I should say Certificate of Selection?

A. I have it with me.

Q. You have it with you. Produce it please. I*f* that it?

A. That is it, yes, sir.

Mr. German: I would like to have this marked as Government's Exhibit A-12.

Q. Where did you get this certificate, which is Government's Exhibit A-12, Mr. Shanefelt, certificate of selection?

A. Got it from a clerk in charge of the land office, Judge Angel.

Q. When? A. Today.

Q. Had you seen it in the office of the Superintendent before that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About when?

A. About two months ago as near as I can remember.

Q. Where?

A. In the land division, in the allotment jacket.

Q. Of whom? A. Thomas Atkins.

Q. Thomas Atkins. How did it get there?

A. Placed in there, I couldn't say.

Q. Why wasn't it delivered, what was it doing there?

A. Well, it wasn't delivered and some employ of the office evidently had placed it in the allotment jacket. A great many certificates in these are filed.

Q. Is there any record in the office showing that this certificate was ever delivered? A. There was not.

Mr. German: We now offer this exhibit.

Mr. Hanford: Object to the question and move to strike the answer, if the Court please, on the ground it is immaterial as to delivery.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Where are the patents that were issued?

The Court: What is offered now as the original allotment certificate to Thomas Atkins—what counsel states to be the original certificate is now offered. I take it there is no objections to that?

Mr. Hanford: No, Your Honor please, we object to the evidence showing that it was not delivered, on the ground that delivery is immaterial.

The Court: Then, this certificate may be admitted as the allotment certificate. There is no objection to that.

Q. Where are the patents, if you know, Mr. Shanefelt?
A. I have the original patent right here.
Q. In your hand? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Let's have them identified, please. Where did you get these patents, Mr. Shanefelt?
A. From the same source I did the allotment certificate.
Q. Also from Judge Angel today? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Had you seen them before? A. I had.
Q. Where? A. In the undelivered deed file.
Q. Is there any record showing these deeds wherever delivered?
A. Not in the office of the Superintendent of the Five Civilized Tribes.
Q. Yes, sir?
A. The Creek Chief's office had the delivery at one time of the patents to the Creek Nation, and then later they were all returned to the Dawes Commission or Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes, and that office continued the delivery.
Q. Now, what office was it continued the delivery?
A. The Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes.
Q. So, there was a time when the Creek Chief made delivery of the patents? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you know about when that was discontinued?
A. I am not sure, but I think about 1910 or 1911.

Mr. German: We offer in evidence the Homestead Deed, which is Government's Exhibit A-13, and dated 13662, from the Muskogee Nation to Thomas Atkins.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: And the allotment deed, or deed to the surplus allotment, which is Government's Exhibit A-14, which is numbered 13663, from the Muskogee Nation to Thomas Atkins.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. Cobb: Do those deeds show to have been recorded?

Mr. German: Yes, sir. Your Honor, those are the original deeds, and after we are through with them we would ask leave to withdraw them, that is after the trial.

The Court: After the trial is finished, no doubt such of the originals as should be kept on file with the Commission may be withdrawn, except as to such as it is deemed should remain in the files, and any withdrawal will be substituted by copies. I will take care of that after the case is completed here.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, on the back of the allotment deed, which is Deed No. 13663, right under the name Thomas Atkins appear the words "Hold up, see index." Do you know when those words were put there?

Mr. Hanford: I object to that as immaterial.

A. No, sir.

The Court: He says he doesn't know.

Q. I will ask you whether or not they were there the first time you ever saw these patents? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: We offer in evidence a certified copy of what is known as page 16—of what is known as the index and record book of the delivery of deeds for lands allotted in Muskogee (Creek) Nation, as Government's Exhibit A-15.

Mr. Hanford: We object on the ground that the question of delivery is immaterial; and therefore, the record is immaterial that delivery was not essential, and not necessary to establish the question of title.

The Court: The authenticity of this, or the fact that such records were made by the Commission is not questioned I take it; just the materiality.

Mr. Hanford: Yes, sir, and the witness is testifying evidently——

The Court: It may be admitted, your exception will be noted.

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, I would like to read the entry appearing on there with reference to Thomas Atkins' patents.

Mr. Hanford: We object to that on the same ground.

The Court: You may read that part of the instrument.

Mr. German: (Reading from exhibit:) Name, Atkins, Thomas. Deceased C I—— Those words are apparently inserted after this record was originally made. No. 7913, Homestead Deed No. 13662. Acreage——I don't know what that column is——Volume C, page 160. Underneath that is allotment deed No. 13663, recorded in Volume C, pages 160 and 161. To whom deed was delivered, and running across the column made for date of delivery and remarks, appear these words: "Hold for investigation, said to have died in 1878, is relative of Chaney Trent. Reported by Judge J. R. Thomas. Return to (Initials) D. Tom, 5-10-05. Investigation to rights for enrollment pending."

Mr. Hanford: Mr. German, may I ask you what the purpose of that evidence, that exhibit?

Mr. German: Well, it has two purposes; one is to show that the deed never was delivered. That being competent evidence relating to our contention that Thomas Atkins was a mythical person. No person claiming the patent. Another proposition is that the patents were ordered held up in the year 1905. This question, Your Honor, is the question we had in the Thlocco case, in so far as this evidence relates to the question as to whether or not Thomas Atkins existed. I think it would be clearly competent evidence in this case, being a circumstance in other words. I don't know whether Your Honor will receive it for the other purpose, we expect to follow this proof with the evidence that the Commission ordered it held up, and that they made some sort of an investigation in 1905, but found nothing; and that the matter remained in that status past 1906, and continued to remain in that status until last year, when the matter of the right of Thomas Atkins to enrollment—and incidentally to the right to the issuance of this patent—was taken up by the Secretary of the Interior, presuming the proceedings started in 1905, to question the right to enrollment; and that notice was issued to all those claiming this land; served on them in 1916, and that a hearing was conducted by the Secretary of the Interior, resulting——

The Court: Well, it is probably a little premature now. I have admitted this record now for the purpose of showing the data entered by the Commission at the time of the issuance of this patent. As to whether the data just read there will be competent on that other line, which you say you have evidence to address later, I will determine at the time.

Mr. Hanford: If the Court please, on that point, there remains the rule which has been firmly established and universally adhered to, established by the Thornton case, and adhered to by long lines of decisions since that. That the judgment of a special tribunal which had power to determine cannot be impeached on account of false or fraudulent document. If the Dawes Commission can be impeached, its judgment can be impeached.

The Court: Well, I think I have determined that question on your demurrer heretofore. I may be wrong. You have your exception on that.

Mr. Hanford: Then there is the other proposition that fraud, in order to impeach the judgment of the Dawes Commission, must be fraud which was perpetrated upon the Commission itself and in the proceeding which the Dawes Commission considered, anterior to that judgment.

The Court: I have considered those matters in your demurrer heretofore. It has been overruled and your exceptions have been taken.

Mr. Hanford: I wish to be heard further on that.

The Court: All right.

Mr. German: May I understand the Court, we differ on one proposition. Does Your Honor rule that before we can introduce evidence in support of our contention, that we must make proof that the tribal roll was fraudulently made and was used by the Commission?

The Court: That is a point of that allegation that he was a myth and never existed.

Mr. German: Well, we have a third and independent allegation.

The Court: How is that established by the evidence that you are now offering.

Mr. German: I agree with Your Honor that this doesn't especially bear upon it. I was trying to get at Your Honor's ruling with a view of proceeding accordingly. As I understand it, Your Honor's view and your holding that before we can introduce evidence directly upon the question as to whether Atkins existed, we must support our charge that Minnie Atkins placed his name upon the Tribal Roll, or was responsible for it, and that that tribal roll was used by the Dawes Commission.

The Court: No, I don't hold that, because I judge that any evidence which is competent to establish your contention that he never had any existence——

Mr. German: Is admissible?

The Court: Is admissible in connection with the other evidence that that being true, he was placed upon the roll by Minnie Atkins, and the roll used accordingly. Of course the very foundation of the thing must be the establishment of the fact that he never had any existence, because if he ever had any existence, then there is positive evidence of his death.

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, in view of your inquiry as to whether the evidence which we now offer bears upon that question, the last exhibit which we offered was the index record in the office of the Creek Chief relating to the delivery of the deed. Now, I take it Your Honor will admit evidence of the fact that the deed wasn't delivered has been established.

The Court: That is already established.

Mr. German: Now, I don't believe Your Honor has ruled on the objection to the introduction of a copy of the Creek Deed delivery book. That has been admitted, yes.

The Court: That was admitted. It will stand subject to counsel's objection, but that line of testimony will not be proceeded with further on the point of the nonexistence of Atkins.

Mr. German: Then, may I make a little record; we have some further evidence along that line.

Mr. Allen: May I say, Your Honor, in connection with this record, it seems to me that upon the question of whether or not the Dawes Commission had any information before it, when it enrolled Tommy Atkins, that it is competent to receive the document now being offered. We expect to show by this witness——

The Court: I have ruled on that. I don't care to hear you any further on that.

Mr. Allen: Upon the other question, the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia did not hold that the Secretary of the Interior cannot cancel this enrollment, but did deny that relief and the Secretary proceeded to cancel the enrollment.

Mr. Stuart: But it distinctly said that it couldn't cancel the patent, Your Honor.

The Court: I have nothing before me from that Court except as you gentlemen remember it.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor knows, as a matter of history, that he was enjoined.

The Court: You may make your profert and get it in the record.

Mr. German: We offer as Government's Exhibit A-16, a letter, dated May 11, 1905, to H. G. Hains, Chief Clerk in the enrollment division of the Creek Nation, and signed by the Chairman of the Commission, advising that the deeds to this allotment of Thomas Atkins were held up pending further instructions. I will just offer all of these, Your Honor, and then one objection can refer to them all.

Then as Exhibit A-17, a certified copy of one page of the index book to the M. Journal, showing the name of Thomas Atkins, and referring to page 113 in said M. Journal.

Then a certified copy of, as Government's Exhibit A-18, page 113 of M. Journal, which is a record to the effect that the patents to Thomas Atkins, giving their numbers, have been ordered by the enrollment division on May 9, 1905, to be held account of his citizenship.

Then, as Government's Exhibit A-19, we offer a certified copy of one page of the index to Special Creek Memorandum Book. This shows the name of Thomas Atkins and refers to page 124 of said book.

Then, a certified copy, as Government's Exhibit A-20, of page 124 of the Special Creek Memorandum book, which shows that these patents were ordered held on account of the citizenship of Thomas Atkins.

Then a certified copy of a letter, dated May 9, 1905, addressed by the Commissioner in charge to Will Robinson, Muskogee, Oklahoma, making inquiry as to the address of Minnie Atkins, whose testimony is desired, and giving the census card number of Thomas Atkins up in the corner of the letter.

A letter, dated May 9, 1905, from the Commission to Noah Gregory, requesting him to furnish a proof of death of Thomas Atkins, giving his census card No. 2774, stating that advice had been received that he is dead.

A letter dated May 9, 1905, as Government's Exhibit A-23, from the Commissioner in charge to E. B. Miller, advising that a question has arisen affecting the citizenship of Thomas Atkins and directing a suspension of the issuance of deeds to his heirs.

All of these exhibits coming from the office of the Commission, the Dawes Commission.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, in connection with the offer of these exhibits, I will ask you whether the records in the office show any response to the letter addressed to Noah Gregory?

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. German: We offer to show in this connection by the witness that the records in the office of the Commission fail to show a response to said letter.

Q. In connection with the offer of Exhibit A-21, which is the letter to Will Robinson, we offer his answer there to, which is written at the bottom of the letter in these words "Don't know," signed W. R. Robinson.

Mr. Hanford: Is that all the offer?

Mr. German: No, sir, we are not quite through. As Government's Exhibit A-24, we offer in evidence a certified copy of a communication to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, dated August 4, 1916, from R. C. Allen. Creek National Attorney, requesting that the matter of the alleged citizenship rights of Thomas Atkins, as commenced in 1905, be resumed. And as a part thereof, Judge Allen's supplemental communication dated October 23, 1916, on the subject, setting forth the reasons why the name should be cancelled from the roll.

As Government's Exhibit A-25, we offer in evidence a certified copy of a communication dated August 12, 1916, addressed to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, signed by Gabe E. Parker, Superintendent of the Five Civilized Tribes, relating to the matter of the proceedings pending before the Secretary of the Interior for determination of the citizenship rights of Thomas Atkins.

As Government's Exhibit A-26, we offer in evidence a certified copy of the notices issued to all the defendants in this lawsuit, and all other persons who have come forth asserting any claim of right, title, or interest in the land in controversy, advising them that the Secretary would conduct a hearing on a certain date in the case involving the right of citizenship of Tommy Atkins. Furthermore, said exhibit contains the order setting said case for hearing before him in Washington, D. C., and continuing the hearing from time to time. And we offer in this connection to prove actual service of all such notice by registered mail.

As Government's Exhibit A-27, we offer in evidence the determination of the Secretary of the Interior, dated April 28, 1917, cancelling the enrollment of the name of Thomas Atkins on the final roll of Creek Citizen, and directing that a notice be entered.

The Court: Does that cover all the offers in that connection?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: I understand the same objection is offered as to all of them. Objection sustained and exception noted.

Q. Now, Mr. Shanefelt, have you the original 1895 authenticated pay roll with you? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: Your Honor, for the inspection of the Court, we would like to offer that in evidence. We have offered a certified copy.

Q. You can leave that with us, pending the trial?

The Court: Yes, the Court will be responsible for it. The original of the tribal roll is offered, a copy of which has already been offered. It may be admitted.

Mr. Allen: Your Honor, this roll is in constant daily use. I was wondering if Your Honor wouldn't allow it to be returned.

The Court: Is there any feature of it you want to call to the attention of the Court and counsel?

Mr. German: No, sir, we offered it because Mr. Shanefelt was on the stand.

The Court: Well, if it is offered and becomes a part of the record it will have to stay here.

Mr. German: Then I will withdraw it.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, are there any other records or files in the office of the Commission relating to the name of Thomas Atkins, who was enrolled opposite No. 7913?

A. Further than these you have offered here?

Q. Yes, sir? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are they?

A. We have a census roll prepared by the Town King of Euchee Town.

Q. What year?

A. The year 1895, which was submitted for the use of the Creek National Counsel, or their census committee.

Q. Is this a copy of the document you refer to, or one of these? A. This is it right here.

> Mr. German: We offer this in evidence as Government's Exhibit A-28. It will be shown in this connection that in making the 1895 pay roll, there were two or three rolls made before they finally got to the drafting of the pay roll itself, the roll which they used in making the pay roll, and this is one of those. It will be connected up with the 1895 pay roll.
> The Court: All right.

Q. Now, what else, if anything?

A. The authenticated roll as evidently made up by the Creek Census Committee or Creek National Counsel in 1895.

Q. Is that it? A. Yes, sir.

> The Court: Where does that authenticated roll differ from the 1895 roll which has already been offered?
> Mr. German: Well, there are slight differences, Your Honor. In other words, Government's Exhibit A-28 and the one the witness is now talking about are two of the rolls. Upon inspection you will observe that were evidently used by the Creek Nation as they were making their 1895 pay roll. I am not offering these for any other purpose except that. I think the law requires of the Government in this case the production of everything which may be in the office of the Commission, at least prior to the patent, which may relate in any way to the name of Thomas Atkins. And we expect to follow this with the evidence of witnesses as to how this 1895 roll was made up, and that these rolls evidently, obviously, will be material in the case.
> The Court: All right, proceed.
> Mr. Hanford: Your Honor, we object to the evidence showing that they were rolls used before the Commission.
> Mr. German: If there is objection we don't offer them.
> The Court: All right.

Q. Now, there was an 1890 roll wasn't there, Mr. Shanefelt? A. Yes, sir.

> Mr. German: We offer as evidence, Government's Exhibit A-29, a certified copy of the 1890 authenticated Creek Roll.
> The Court: It will be admitted.

Q. That roll, Mr. Shanefelt, has been in the possession of the Commission? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That 1890 roll is in typewritten form? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The one which has been in the possession of the Commission? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And this Exhibit A-29 is merely a copy of the page of that roll which contains the name of Minnie Atkins, and purports to contain the names of others by the name of Atkins. Now, in what way did the Commission—I will ask that of Mr. Hopkins. Are there any other records in the office of the Commission relating to Thomas Atkins?

A. There are two copies of the 1890 census roll, and then there is another copy of the tribal roll dated 1896, prepared by a committee of whom—I have forgotten the initials—Colbert was chairman, 1896 Roll. Colbert 1896 Roll.

Q. Now, are there any others?

A. One other. It is evidently a copy of the 1895 census roll in book form. Long narrow record in book form.

Q. Now, are there any others?

A. I can't think of any others.

Q. Is there any memorandum or record in connection with the enrollment by the Commission of the name Thomas Atkins showing that they received this evidence in the matter of his enrollment?

A. There is none that we have been able to find.

Q. Have you made any search? A. I have.

> The Court: With reference to this original 1895 roll, a page of which you offered a little while ago, it might be well to read the record of that that is material and counsel may examine it as to points you desire to call the Court's attention to, and then it may be taken by the Commissioner, and as the case proceeds it may be later brought in.
> Mr. German: Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, on the 1890 roll, opposite the name Mamie Atkins, beneath whose name appears the name Nancy Atkins and appears the word in parenthesis "two children," and right above those two words appear the words "Tommy" and "Mary." Are the names Tommy and Mary as entered there enrolled on that roll or not? A. I would say no.

Q. Was the census card made up in 1901, and which has been introduced here, the census card of Thomas Atkins, does it identify or refer to his name upon any tribal roll?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which one? A. The 1895.

Q. Do the census cards refer to more than one tribal roll when the Commission has found the name upon more than one tribal roll?

A. As a rule it does. It was the custom.

Q. Yes, sir? A. Where they had been identified.

Q. Is there any such thing in the files of the Commission as old census cards, documents called old census cards?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are they?

A. We have two kinds of old census cards or census cards under field numbers. There is a card similar to the approved card upon which Thomas Atkins is enrolled. Then we have an old Creek Card as we term it, in the form of a yellow, short card upon which names were enrolled. Later that enrollment was dropped.

Q. Did you make any search to see whether there was any old field card or old Creek Card, as I understand it to be called, old census card of Thomas Atkins? A. I have.

Q. Was there any such?

A. I couldn't find any record of his name being enrolled upon such.

Mr. Cruce: If the Court please, we move to exclude from the jury now a statement of this witness, we haven't see the——

The Court: You mean exclude from the record?

Mr. Cruce: Yes, sir, the statement of this certified copy, Government's Exhibit A-29, does not show the enrollment of Tommy and Mary Atkins.

The Court: He stated that as a matter of his judgment.

Mr. Cruce: Yes, sir, it is not competent.

The Court: It may be stricken from the record as a conclusion of the witness, and not to be considered by the Court.

Mr. German: We except.

The Court: Exception noted. The record may show, if you desire to do so, that the original roll is admitted and I will make the examination of it, to which you wanted to call my attention now, if you care to do so.

Mr. German: Yes, Your Honor, we would like to do that, but before doing that, I would like to ask this witness a question which I overlooked.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, with reference to the names on the 1890 roll, Exhibit A-29, how can one determine from looking at that roll whether a name appearing on it is an enrolled citizen or one whose name is enrolled as a citizen of the tribe in 1890 if you know?

Mr. Hanford: We object as incompetent testimony and calls necessarily for a conclusion of the witness. This is not a roll made by the Dawes Commission but by the tribe.

The Court: That is the 1895 roll of the tribe?

Mr. German: Purports to be, yes, sir.

The Court: Let me see the exhibit. Now, your question was with relation to what, the names of Thomas and Mary?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: Two children?

Mr. German: Yes, sir. Now, Your Honor understands that the contention is that Thomas Atkins was enrolled on the 1890 roll, and that it was used with considerable force, as Your Honor will recall, before the Circuit Court of Appeals, as evidence of the existence of Thomas Atkins; consequently, there is a question here whether that name was enrolled on that roll.

The Court: He may answer.

Mr. Hanford: Note our exception.

A. On the authenticated Creek Tribal Roll in each instance I have had occasion to examine, they are arranged in family groups and as such are given numbers one, two, three and running to the end of the family, both the 1893 and 1895 rolls, those names which are enrolled there are given numbers.

Mr. German: That is all.

The Court: Now, did you desire to call my attention to any feature of that original 1895 roll?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: The copy of which has been admitted.

Mr. Hanford: I withdraw my objections to those two exhibits if you want to offer them while he is on the stand.

Mr. German: They are now offered—A-27 and A-30.

The Court: They may be admitted. Any cross-examination of this witness at this time?

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. How long have you held your present position in the office of the Superintendent of the Five Civilized Tribes?

A. In what capacity? In the employment of the——

Q. I understand you are in the Creek land department?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you been in that department?

A. Been in the Creek office—I think I was assigned to that in 1908.

Q. And you have been there ever since? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you employed by the Dawes Commission at the time that it was in session? A. While it was in session?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what capacity? A. As clerk.

Q. Clerk in which department?

A. Well, part of the time I was in the Choctaw Land Office at Atoka; it was finally entitled then, I think, the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes.

Q. At what time did you become connected with the Commission? A. In—I think it was December of 1903.

Q. December of 1903? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you have no personal knowledge yourself as to the matters relating to the enrollment of Thomas Atkins about which you have testified?

A. Other than what I ascertained through examination and search of the record and hearsay.

Q. And anything that you attempt to testify to is what is shown by the records?

A. And what is considered as common knowledge of the office and what I have been told by parties who have had close connections with it; who were connected with it.

Q. And you include in your testimony what you have been told by others and what are matters of just current knowledge?

A. Not current knowledge; office knowledge which I have been told by the officers in charge was true.

Q. For instance, you testified that there was no record in the office of the Superintendent of the Five Civilized Tribes showing any application was made for the enrollment of Thomas Atkins; you have no personal knowledge as to whether or not any application was made, have you?

A. I stated that could [] be found—further than shown by the records.

Q. That is all?

A. Yes, sir. I have a very good knowledge of the office records.

Q. You identified a Creek—a mailing record—a Creek mailing book showing the mailing of the allotment certificate?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I believe that you testified that showed that the allotment certificate was in fact mailed on a certain date which was shown by the numerals on it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you testified that there was no record in the office of the Five Civilized Tribes showing the delivery of this allotment certificate or these patents to any one? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And stated that that record was to be found in the office of the Creek National Attorney?

A. The mailing book of Creek deeds?

Q. No, not the mailing book; the delivery book?

A. Well, the delivery book of Creek deeds only?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you know what that record shows?

A. Only from an examination.

Q. Do you know that in the office to the Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes appears a letter from R. C. Allen, Creek National Attorney, dated October 17th, 1914, to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs at Washington, D. C., stating that he had recently made delivery of an allotment certificate and patent to Thomas Atkins?

A. No, sir, I don't know of that.

Q. You have not found that record?

A. I have heard there was such a copy of a letter there but it is not an office record—regular office mailing record.

Cross Examination by Mr. Maxey.

Q. You stated that the allotment certificate and the allotment deeds were found in the files of the office in the undelivered certificates and deeds, I believe?

A. I stated the deeds were found in the undelivered deed file; that is the way I put it.

Q. Are those the only deeds that have never been delivered? A. They are not.

Q. Approximately how many are there that never were delivered?

A. I don't believe I could give you accurate estimate, or a good estimate.

Q. As many as a hundred? A. More than that, I expect.

Q. Five hundred?

A. I expect there is two hundred and fifty deeds.

Q. Is that the only allotment certificate that you found was never delivered? A. It was not.

Q. How many allotment certificates do you find were not delivered? A. Possibly four hundred.

Q. Four hundred?

A. Three to four hundred—just estimating.

Recross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. You testified that the deeds to Thomas Atkins and the allotment certificate were found by you in the—for the first time in the office of the Superintendent, or were seen by you for the office of the Superintendent, about two months ago?

A. I beg pardon, I didn't——

Q. Do you mean to say that those deeds appeared there for the first time about two months ago?

A. You evidently misunderstood my answer to any question because I never made any such statement.

Q. What was your testimony in that regard?

A. I was asked when I saw them and I remember of having seen them and guessed the date to have been about that time. I said I had seen them there. The question was, I think, when was the last time I had seen them.

Q. Prior to this time?

A. Prior to this time, yes, sir. I didn't say that I—I never said that I was the first one to find those deeds in the record.

Q. You didn't intend to testify to your own personal knowledge that those deeds had reposed in that office all the time that they were issued until the present time?

A. I mean to state by my answer that those deeds when attention was first called to them, were found in the files of the undelivered deed files.

Q. And do you know whether those deeds have been there all the time from the time that they were issued until the present time? A. No one could testify to that.

Q. They might have been?

A. The supposition is that they were.

Q. They might have been out and might have been returned?

A. If so, there should have been a receipt on file. It is the custom of the office to take a receipt for any record that goes out of the Land Office.

Q. But it is possible for them to have been out?

A. Possible for anybody to have a latch key, or a proper key, and take any record, yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cobb.

Q. You testified as to a certain notation on some of the records, the letter "H" on some of the records which indicated to hold the patent, or hold up the delivery of it. Do you know where these notations were made on the Dawes Commission records?

A. I can cite you to several cases. The Land Office had what they called "hold" files—"H" files—indicated on the record the letter "H", as to whether they were held.

Q. You misunderstood my question. I asked you if you knew when that notation was made in this particular case?

A. No, sir, I can't say other than what the record shows.

Q. Where?

A. I can't state other than what the record shows.

Q. Do you know in whose handwriting this notation was in? A. Those "H's"?

Q. Yes. A. They are printed; I can't tell you.

Q. Printed? A. Yes, sir, printed.

Q. Typewritten?

A. No, sir, with ink and pencil—hard to identify.

Q. In this 1895 original Dawes roll, there is a notation "error of 1" in red ink? A. The 1895 pay roll?

Q. Pay roll, yes, sir. Now, do you know when that notation was made? A. I can't tell you.

Q. I wish you would examine the handwriting there and see if you know the handwriting.

A. I do not; I have already examined it.

Q. Examined it and don't know the handwriting?

A. Yes, sir.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Shann*a*felt, judging from—taking the practice of the Dawes Commission under consideration, or rather what was the practice of the Commission relating to making records to holding up patents? A. What was the practice?

Q. Yes, sir, when a patent was ordered held up, what was the practice? How did the Commission proceed?

A. Well, they had a record book in which they noted the proceeding had in the case and indexes to those.

Q. Was any established system in reference to making the record relating to the holding up of the patent?

Mr. Hanford: Objected to; I believe he said that he was not there at the time.

The Court: Yes, he testified, if I remember his testimony, that he was in this Creek division since 1908?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: And these matters in which you are interrogating him about were something about—in any event, must have taken place before that?

Mr. German: In connection with this examination of this witness, we desire now, to reoffer exhibits relating to holding up of these patents. The letters and book entries relating to holding up of these patents, for the reason, Your Honor, the additional reason, it relates to a question as to whether the patents have been in the office of the Commission since 1905 when they were ordered held up. That additional purpose, not waiving the other ground.

The Court: The same ruling. The objection to the exhibits is sustained and exceptions noted.

Q. Mr. Shan*na*felt, Mr. Hanford asked you about a letter dated October, 1914, purporting to have been written by Judge Allen, Creek National Attorney. He suggested this might be in the office of the Commission. I will ask you if it is in—if that letter does not state specifically this——

The Court: Now, if the letter is at all material here, the original or copy of it would be, I think, the best evidence. Let's not take up time.

Q. Will you get the copy?
A. I don't know which you refer to.
Q. Tomorrow, and bring it in? A. Yes, sir.

And thereupon Court recesses until 9:30 o'clock A. M.

And thereafter, at 9:30 o'clock, May 1, 1917, court having convened pursuant to adjournment, further proceedings herein are had as follows:

J. L. BRUFF, being called on behalf the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Bruff, what are your initials? A. J. L.
Q. What official position if any, do you hold?
A. I am special agent of the Department of Justice.
Q. As special agent of the Department of Justice, have you had anything to do with working in this case that is now on trial? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The allotment deed and homestead deed which were introduced in evidence yesterday, have you seen them before?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was the first time you saw them?

A. It was early in July of last year.

Q. Where?

A. In the Land Office of the Superintendent of the Five Civilized Tribes.

Q. Here at Muskogee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In this building on the fourth floor? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you happen to see them there on that occasion?

A. Well, after I was assigned to the case along in July I made a search of every record that I could find in the office of the Superintendent to see what——

> The Court: Now, is this along the line of evidence that was excluded yesterday?
> Mr. German: No, Your Honor; this is accounting for the patents. This relates simply to the subject of the non-delivery of the patents; that is all it relates to.
> The Court: Well, that was involved in the matters ruled on yesterday.
> Mr. German: No, I was not leading up to any matters excluded by Your Honor yesterday.
> The Court: It is deemed by you that this evidence tends to prove the non-existence of Atkins?
> Mr. German: A circumstance. The fact that the patents were not delivered is a circumstance. Counsel passed some reflection yesterday, on the evidence given by Mr. Shan*na*felt.
> The Court: Well, I will not interfere; I wanted to know where it was drifting.

Q. Where did you find those patents?

A. I found them in the Land Office in the allotment jacket of Nancy Atkins.

Q. What did you do with them, then? Call Mr. Shan*na*felt, or any person's attention to them in the office?

A. Yes, sir, Mr. Shan*na*felt was right behind me when I found them and I called his attention to them.

Q. Do you know where he put them?

A. I think he put them back in the Tommy Atkins file; I am not certain of that, though.

Q. They were in the Nancy Atkins file? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is where you found them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember the words "hold up, see index" on one of those? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Stuart: Oh, we object to that, Your Honor. It is not the best evidence.

The Court: He just asked if he remembered those. The question of whether or not they were on this instrument. Of course the instrument is the best evidence.

Mr. German: Now, I want to ask a question, relating to a question, Your Honor excluded, simply to make the record.

The Court: Alright.

Q. Mr. Bruff, did those words "hold up, see index" lead to the finding of any other records in the office? A. They did.

Q. What records?

A. They lead to my finding of the record of the non-delivery of the deed; the record of it in the delivery book of the Principal Chief.

Q. Then, were those so-called hold-up records which were offered in evidence yesterday discovered in connection with that matter?

A. Yes, sir. After the finding of that record, I found those other records pertaining to the same matter.

Q. How were those patents folded? That is, were they folded together, or were they folded separately?

A. They were separate.

Q. Separate?

A. No, I beg your pardon. One was in the other; folded together.

Q. One was in the other? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which was on the outside? The one having this pencil endorsement on it or the other? A. I don't recall.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. When you first saw these papers, Mr. Bruff, those deeds was not there, were they?

A. That was the first general search I had ever made of those records.

Q. Did you not look in the Atkins papers before this and didn't you fail to find those deeds?

A. I didn't make a general search of all the Atkins files.

Q. Did you make any search?

A. Yes, sir; I searched all the jackets and those pertaining to the records of Tommy Atkins.

Q. And you did not find the deeds? A. No, sir.

Q. How long was it after that before you found these deeds? A. Well, I first made a search——

Q. You are not answering my question now?

A. Well, it was probably five or six weeks.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Had you searched in the Nancy Atkins files for them?

A. No, sir.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon RICHARD SHANEFELT was recalled for further examination and testified as follows:

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Shanefelt, yesterday evening Mr. Hanford asked you about a letter in the office—copy of a letter in the office of the Commission, dated October 17, 1914, from Judge Allen to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Judge Allen being the National Attorney for the Creek Nation. I will ask you to state whether this is a copy of the letter which you refer to?

A. In the testimony of yesterday, I will state I did not remember of having seen this, but having made a further search I located it. I found it in the files.

Q. This is the letter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You hold it in your hands? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I will ask you to state when you made the suggestion to Mr. Hanford that there was a letter there containing some such statements as this: "I recently delivered the patent"; I will ask you to state if this is not the letter, and if the statement is not as follows: "The deed executed by Chief of the Tribe, Porter, Principal Chief of the Creek Nation, conveying this land was issued to Thomas Atkins on the 14th of April, and delivered only recently"?

A. I think it was Mr. Hanford made the statement, was it not, asked me if there was not a letter there, and I stated I did not know of it.

Q. I understood your to say it was?

A. I believe I said I did not know.

Mr. German: I believe that is all.

The Court: Any questions? Stand aside.

(Witness dismissed.)

R. C. ALLEN, called and sworn as a witness on behalf of the Government, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Judge Allen, your initials are R. C.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are the Creek National Attorney, or the National Attorney for the Creek Nation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You held that position in October, 1914?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have occasion to communicate with the Commissioner of Indian Affairs in that month, with relation to this, Atkins, allotment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether or not that was your first communication with him on the subject? A. It was.

Q. Is this letter which Mr. Shanefelt has just testified about, is that the letter that you refer to? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The communication you referred to?

A. A carbon copy of my letter.

Q. In that letter you stated that the patent has been recently delivered. What information had you on that subject at that time?

A. I was advised by Judge Angel that the original patents could not be found in the office of the Superintendent where they belong, and I assumed that they had been delivered, and so reported in my letter of October 17.

Mr. German: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Judge, on the 17th day of October, 1914, did you write a letter to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs about the patent? A. I did.

Q. And in that letter you said that the patent had been recently delivered. To whom were they delivered?

A. I had no information further than the information I have just given you.

Q. Well, what do you mean by that in your letter?

A. That was my letter recommending the institution of this suit.

Q. I know it was, but you said the patent had been recently delivered?

A. I was unable to find the patents and assumed that they had been delivered.

Q. And if you assumed that they had been delivered, why did you qualify that and say that they had been recently delivered? A. I don't know.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. You didn't know whether they had been or not?
A. No.
Q. You had no personal knowledge relating to their delivery? A. None whatever.

Mr. German: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cobb.

Q. The patents were not in their proper place in the Dawes Commission, is that correct?
A. That is my information.
Q. The proper place where these patents should have been was in the Thomas Atkins jacket?
A. Well, either in the Thomas Atkins jacket or among the undelivered deeds. There was no record in the office of the Commission or the Chief's showing they had been delivered——
Q. My question relates to whether the patents were in their proper files in the Dawes Commission?
A. They were not. In answer to Judge Stuart's question, I may have been prompted to write that letter by an old letter that was in the office of the Chief, transferred in 1914, just before the institution of this suit, by some one claiming to be Thomas Atkins and living in Texas and who wrote for the deed.
Q. You didn't believe he was Thomas Atkins, did you? That man down in Texas?

Mr. German: I object to that as not proper cross examination.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. German: Exception.

A. No, sir.
Q. So, you wouldn't have delivered them to him?
A. He was writing for his deeds is all.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, W. H. ANGEL, was called and sworn as a witness on behalf of the Government and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. State your name? A. W. H. Angel.
Q. What official position do you hold?

A. I have charge of all the allotments and enrollment records of all the nations constituting the Five Civilized Tribes.

Q. What relationship does Mr. Shanefelt occupy to that office that you are in charge of?

A. He looks after the work in furnishing information to the general public in regard to enrollment and allotment.

Q. He works immediately then with the enrollment and allotment records? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Judge, have you recently had the Thomas Atkins patent enrolled opposite number 7913? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have them yesterday? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You gave them to Mr. Shanefelt? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In October, 1914, did you make any effort to find those patents?

A. Judge Allen came to me and asked me to ascertain whether or not the patents were in the office, and I then caused —I don't know whether it was on that date or not, exactly that date, but at least about that time—I caused a search to be made among the records of the office and advised him that the patents were not there.

Q. Now, where would they have been looked for in the office, Judge?

A. We looked for them in the allotment jacket of Thomas Atkins, and we kept a file of undelivered patents, either in the allotment jacket or in that file of undelivered patents.

Q. Yes, sir. Those are the places then where they would have been looked for? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Upon that kind of a search this report would have been made? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, the Nancy Atkins jacket would not be looked in?

A. No, sir, wouldn't think of looking there.

Q. Judge, are there any undelivered patents there now?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Why are there patents in the office of the Commission undelivered?

A. Well, a considerable number have been returned by the postmasters unclaimed, and by the postmasters with the endorsement that the addressee refuses to receive same. It is presumed that they are mostly patents that were issued to Indians that belonged to the Snake Band, as we call it.

Q. The Snake Ban*k*, so called Snake Band? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the so-called Snake Ban*k*, Judge?

A. Well, they are Indians who held out against the Govern*ments* in accepting their allotments.

Q. Refusing to participate in allotment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where do they reside, what part of the country?

A. Well, they mostly reside in the western and southwestern part of the Creek Nation.

Q. That is west and southwest of Muskogee about how far?

A. Well, I should judge there are a good many in the vicinity between Okmulgee and Eufaula and Holdenville, in that section of the country; probably forty to forty-five miles south and west of Muskogee, and some west of Okmulgee.

Q. Are those Snake Indians included in the class who did not write in to the Commission and attempt to prosecute efforts to procure enrollment and allotment?

A. I didn't understand.

Q. Does not include that class, I say, who wrote in to the Commission, communicating with the Commission with a view to obtaining allotment? A. Oh, no, sir.

Q. Judge, when the Commissioner ordered a patent held up for any reason what kind of a record was made on that? How did they keep a record, or did they keep a record?

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Overruled.

A. Why, they kept what they called a "hold-up" record.

Q. Describe it. A. What is that?

Q. Describe it.

A. A hold-up record was—if there was any reason why a patent should not be delivered, why it was noted in this "hold-up" book and the reason given why it was held-up.

Q. Now, what was that "hold-up" book called? What was the special name given to it?

A. Some of them called it—they had different names for it—some called it the "hold-up" book and some called it the "M" book.

Q. Letter "M"? A. Letter "M".

Q. "M" book or journal?

A. "M" journal; different names for the convenience of the Commission.

Q. Now, was there one called "Special Memorandum" book? A. I can't recall any book under that name.

Q. Was there an index to the book you refer to?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, in connection with this witness' testimony——

The Court: Any cross examination of this witness? I submitted evidence yesterday with regard—going to show—related to the question as to whether the patent had been delivered or not. I doubt whether in the view

I have taken in other similar cases the view I shall take of this case, I shall consider that material, but I permitted the evidence to go in to that extent.

Mr. Stuart: I want to make this suggestion, Your Honor. They are evidently leading up to some new exhibit. Are you not?

Mr. German: No, we have offered all, Judge—all of the exhibits that we could possibly offer.

Mr. Stuart: Well, that is all, Your Honor. That has all been thoroughly trashed out and ought not to be contested at all.

The Court: I had that in mind but in as much as these records were offered yesterday and practically all of them went in without objection, to the point whether or not the patent had been delivered, I permitted these to go in the record for what it is worth. I am not prepared to say that I will consider it.

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, in view of the testimony of Judge Angell we again offer the letters and records as to the so-called "hold-up" record.

The Court: The records that were excluded yesterday?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: I suppose the same objections will be introduced?

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir.

The Court: The objections are sustained and exceptions noted.

Mr. German: Exceptions.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Judge Angell, did I understand you to say that in the search for those patents the records had not been examined——

A. Not at the time Judge Allen asked me to search for them in 1914.

Q. That was in October, 1914?

A. I think it was in October, yes, sir.

Q. Judge Angell, if a certified copy of the files contained in any jacket were requested and were furnished by your office, that would necessitate the going to those jackets and examining them and securing those files to furnish the certified copy, would it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember, Judge Angell, in the latter part of June or about the first part of July, when myself and maybe Mr. Frank Long, came to your office and asked to see those files, and filed a request for certain certified copies which were furnished? A. I can't recall it, no, sir.

Q. You don't remember of transmitting under date of July 6th, 1914, to Mr. Frank Long in Tulsa, certified copies of the Nancy Atkins files? A. No, sir, the records would show.

Q. Then, if the records so show, they also showed the fact that those files were examined, would they not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You know, Judge Angell, that as a matter of fact, that all the files of this case about that time were gone through by a great many people, do you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you know that requests had been made on the part of certain persons, claiming to represent Thomas Atkins, to have these patents delivered to them, do you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, you don't testify as a fact, Judge Angell, that the Nancy Atkins files were not examined prior to October 17th, 1914?

A. No, sir, I testified that they were not examined by our office force in the search for the patent, at the request of Judge Allen.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon, P. B. HOPKINS, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Your name is P. B. Hopkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You reside at Muskogee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What age are you, Mr. Hopkins? A. 54.

Q. What is your business?

A. I am in the oil business; have been for some time.

Q. Were you ever connected with the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, known as the Dawes Commission?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Covering what period of time?

A. The fall of 1897 until the spring of 1903, with the exception of a period of six months that I was out.

A. In what year about?

A. In 1900, I believe, from February to August, 1900, I was out.

Q. What was your position in the office of the Commission?

A. Well, I was designated Chief Clerk and later Chief Law Clerk; had charge of the enrollment and contest charge of the Commission.

Q. Were you actively connected with the Creek enrollment work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which of the Five Tribes did the Commission devote its attention to first in the matter of enrollment, at least after you became connected with the Commission?

A. The Creek—the Creek tribe.

Q. Were you in charge of the Creek enrollment work from the beginning of your connection with the Commission in 1897?

A. Well, in the fall of 1897, I wouldn't say that I was; I think they had two or three parties out in the field that year, each one of them in charge of a commissioner. I think Captain McKennon was in charge of one and Mr. Bixby was in charge of another during that time; but with the beginning of the year 1898, from that time on I was practically in charge of the work.

Q. What Act of Congress were you enrolling—proceeding with the enrollment work under at the beginning?

A. Well, we were attempting to proceed under the Act of 1897.

Q. 1897? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then after the Curtis Act of June 28th, 1898?

A. We proceeded under the Act of June 28th, 1898.

Q. And the Creek enrollment work until the Original Creek Treaty of 1901—— A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, did you encounter any difficulty in obtaining possession of the Creek Tribal Rolls?

[A.] Yes, sir, we met with some opposition from the Chief and a number of the House of Kings in the instructions. In fact we were unable to obtain any of the rolls from the officials of the tribe until after the message of the Curtis Act, June 28th, 1898, or thereabouts.

Q. Had you made any efforts then to obtain them, any special efforts to obtain them prior to the Curtis Act?

A. Yes, sir, there were efforts made at different times to obtain them. I cannot detail those just to the times and what official action was taken in reference to them but I know the Commission had talked the matter over with the Chiefs and with members of the House of Kings and others, trying to get possession of them, and trying to locate them, trying to ascertain where they were and in whose possession they were, etc., but without success.

Q. Did they assign any reasons why they would not give you those rolls?

A. If they did, I can't state what they were now, except the general opposition to enrollment and allotment that existed with a number of those same officials.

Q. You say there a general opposition on the part of those same officials? A. Yes, sir, those certain officials.

Q. Was the Creek Chief a part of that opposition—Isparhecher?

A. Yes, sir, we felt as though Isparhecher was opposed to the work of allotment principally and believed that the work of enrollment was simply preliminary to forcing the members of the tribe to take their lands in severalty.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, after the Curtis Act, I will ask you this: do you know how it happened the provision was inserted in the Curtis Act whereby the Commission might apply to the Court—the United States Court in the Indian Territory, for a process to obtain possession from the tribal authorities of documents, papers and rolls? Do you know how that proposition happened to be inserted in that act?

Mr. Cruce: Objected to, if the Court please, an- incompetent.

The Court: I can't see how that could have any bearing on this case.

Mr. German: Only in this way, Your Honor: in the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals, the Court, without having evidence in that line relating to this matter, stated that the Creeks held their rolls out to the Commission and to the world as authentic and correct, I am attempting here to show——

The Court: Well, that I clearly think had reference to a time after laws—after Acts of Congress were passed which provided for the—in the Act of 1898, for the use of the rolls, and pursuant to that law, the rolls, I take it were delivered to the Commission.

Mr. German: Then, I will withdraw my last question and ask another question.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, when did you obtain possession of the Creek tribal rolls?

A. I can't give you the exact date with reference to that. I think that we probably first procured the rolls of the Freedman Town—Arkansas Canadian and North Fork, with possibly the exception of the Arkansas, over which there was some correspondence with the officials, but my recollection is that it was sometime along the latter part of 1898, or even the early part of 1899. The correspondence with Chief Isparhecher with reference to those rolls and requests for them and his letter transmitting them to the Commission, I presume are on file yet.

Q. Did you have to obtain any court process to get that?

Mr. Stuart: Now, Your Honor, we object to this.

The Court: Objections sustained. They were finally procured and were, I take it, given when they were given, as the rolls of the tribe, the various rolls.

Mr. German: Yes, they were finally procured, Your Honor, but they were not given to the Commission voluntarily and that is the point I desire to show; that the Commission had to obtain a court order from Judge Clayton, a writ of mandamus, I assume you call it, or mandatory injunction, to be served upon Chief Isparhecher and this was done and served on him before the rolls were obtained.

The Court: Well, now, let's see. By the agreement and by the Act of 1898, to which the Creek Nation assented was this provision——

Mr. German: Here are the facts on that legislation. The Creeks were not parties to the 1898 Act. They rejected the so-called Creek Agreement which [] a part of the Curtis Act, instead of ratifying it and then they rejected another agreement, in between that and the Original Creek Agreement, and then the Original Creek Agreemnt, ratified by the Creeks on May 1st, 1901, is the first treaty ever entered into relating to the enrollment and the allotment.

The Court: Now, what do you propose to show? That the rolls involved in this case were procured for the use of the tribe——

Mr. German: In the summer, late summer of 1898.

Mr. Stuart: If Your Honor please, it is an undisputed fact that the Dawes Commission did have the rolls and is an undisputed fact that the Dawes Commission acted upon the rolls, Judge Sanborn's statement was simply a mixed question of law and fact; he simply said the Creek Nation by virtue of this enrollment held it out to the world as a correct enrollment.

The Court: I don't think it is material as to the manner in which the rolls were procured. It is conceded that they were procured and after they were procured, they were resorted to by the Commission for the purpose of enrollment and when the agreement came along it was agreed that these rolls might have certain force and effect and they were used. I don't think it is material.

Mr. German: I don't desire to insist, Your Honor, except for the statement in the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals that the Commission—that the tribal officers of the tribe held—furnished these rolls to the Commission and aided the Commission, gladly gave them to the Commission. I am not using his language but that is the idea.

The Court: I think, Mr. German, that it is going into a collateral matter and [] material in the case.

Mr. German: We save an exception and in this connection we offer to prove by the witness that in the latter part of the summer of 1898, the Commission obtained a court order from the Judge of the United States Court in the Indian Territory, directed to the Chief of Creek Nation, commanding him to deliver to the Commission all of the Creek tribal rolls and record, and it was then for the first time that the rolls and records were obtained. In addition to proving this by this witness, we offer also to prove it by record. I presume we don't need to tender the Court record?

The Court: The record may show that offer and that it is overruled by the court on objection of counsel for defendant, and your exceptions noted.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, prior to the time you obtained these rolls from the Commission, did you take any census of the Creek Nation?

A. We undertook to take a census of the Creek in the fall of 1897; fall and early winter of 1897.

Q. How long did you prosecute that work, what period of time about?

A. The best of my recollection is it extended from somewhere from the latter part of September or first of October up until about Christmas.

Q. Yes, sir. Did you attempt to take a census of all the citizens of the tribe?

A. The Commission made appointments at different places in the nation and advertised the fact that they would be there, for the purpose of taking a census, expecting the citizens would come in and make application for enrollment; but only a small portion of them did so, and they found that the information that they obtained from relatives and officials of the tribe was incomplete and unsatisfactory, and discontinued the work until such time as they could procure the rolls.

Q. Now, did you make any record in taking that census?

A. Yes, sir, there was a record made, what they call census cards, at that time.

Q. I hand you Government's Exhibit A-31, showing the names of Charles Harris, Harvey Harris, Minnie Harris nee Atkins. State whether or not that is one of the old census cards and whether that is the character of record you made in taking that census?

A. Yes, sir, this is a copy of one of the old census cards.

Q. How did you distinguish those cards from the cards made up by the Commission used in making the final roll?

A. Well, the character of information that is provided for here by the heading of the various columns.

Q. How did you distinguish them in describing them by name, what is this one called you hold in your hand, Exhibit A-31? A. We used to call them census cards.

Q. Yes, sir; then what is the census card on which the name is finally listed for enrollment and which is used by the Commission in making the final roll, such as Government's Exhibit A-31, which I show you?

A. Well, I don't know that we had any distinctive name for it. At the time the cards were made we called them field cards.

Q. Isn't Government's Exhibit A-1 called now the Census Card of Thomas Atkins? A. I couldn't tell you.

Q. You don't know what it is called? A. No, sir.

Q. At any rate, this one is called a census card, Government's Exhibit A-31? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Hopkins, you obtained possession of the tribal rolls after the Curtis Bill, and then you proceeded with the work of enrollment in the Creek Nation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you use the tribal rolls in that work?

A. For the purpose of determining whether or not the application for enrollment, or party for whom application was made for enrollment, was a recognized citizen of the nation.

Q. It constituted then evidence on the question of citizenship? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall how far you had progressed with the enrollment of Creek Citizenship in the early part of the year 1901, about the time the so-called Original Creek Agreement was approved, it having been approved March 1, 1901?

A. No, sir, I couldn't tell you to what extent. I would presume though that we were somewhere between eighty-five and ninety per cent of a completed work.

Q. Now, did you make use of the tribal roll in any other way than that you have just suggested when you reached the point that we are now talking about in the enrollment work?

A. Well, we used it for the purpose of inquiring into those who hadn't appeared for enrollment, to determine whether or not they were living, and whether there were such persons and why application had not been made for them. In other words, for the purpose of accounting for all those who were on the roll.

Q. Yes, you were attempting to account for all persons whose names appeared on the tribal roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Account for them in what way, what did you mean by that word, account for them?

A. That they were enrolled or that they were not entitled to enrollment by reason of having, prior to April 1, 1899, or for any other reason such as duplication of any name, such as padding of the roll by fraud or anything of that kind. We took it that our direction was to enroll all those upon the roll who were there by authority of law, and we went through those rolls very carefully to see that nobody was enrolled who wasn't entitled to enrollment.

Q. I didn't understand your answer about enrolling all of those who were on the tribal roll. Will you state that again.

A. I think possibly the stenographer had better repeat my answer.

Q. Yes. A. Unless the question is repeated to me.

Thereupon, record was read by the stenographer.

Q. I see. Then, as I understand that answer, you were attempting to enroll all whose names appeared on the tribal roll, who appeared otherwise to be entitled to be enrolled, and who appeared to be authenticatively on the tribal roll?

A. Yes, sir, all of those who came within the provision of the Act of Congress directing us to make the roll.

Q. Yes, sir, now you refer to section 21 of the Curtis Act do you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Hopkins, what kind of a record did you keep when you listed a person for enrollment, say in the year 1899 and in 1900, along there prior to the original treaty, prior to the meeting at Okmulgee that took place just before the original treaty was ratified by the Creek Nation; how did you proceed in enrolling a person or listing them for enrollment? A. Do you mean as to the record we made of it?

Q. Yes, sir, and the entire procedure, what was your practice? I am speaking now prior to your meeting in Okmulgee in May, 1901, which occurred just before the Original Creek Treaty was ratified?

A. Well, briefly as I can state it, after the passage of the Curtis Act, we proceeded with the enrollment of Freedmen, identifying them with the Dunn Roll as far as possible.

We carried that work up until the first part of the year 1899. The Commissioners returned from Washington, reported that the Secretary was very anxious that there should be a land office opened somewhere in the Indian Territory and the allotments proceeded with. That there seemed to be some dissatisfaction with the progress of the work. That members of Congress, and especially the Committee, thought there should be more expeditious work in getting the division of the land in severalty. There was no approved roll, or roll approved by the Secretary of the Interior, and none had been submitted to him. So, it was decided by the Commission to carry on the work of making the roll along with the matter of making the allotment; and an enrollment and land office was opened in Muskogee, Oklahoma, for the enrollment and allotment of land, particularly for the enrollment of Creeks, whose enrollments had not been completed, and for the allotment both to the Indians and freedmen. The practice was to——

Q. When did you open this land office?

A. First of April, 1899.

Q. Where?

A. At Muskogee. The practice was to take the application of adults for themselves and for their minor children, or for any minors that were in their care. The clerk in charge of the enrollment division conducting the examination as to their right to enrollment, in the presence of the Creek Tribal Commission or Creek Attorney, satisfying himself that the applicant came within the purview of the Curtis Act; that they were on tribal rolls which had been admitted by Act of Counsel; entered their names, or caused their names to be entered by a clerk, on an enrollment card; and where they desired them to make their application for an allotment, filled out what was called a citizenship certificate to be presented to the person in charge of the allotment office, as his authority for receiving an application for an allotment. Now, the work proceeded in that manner practically throughout the entire time of enrollment and allotment.

Q. Now, would the witness, or the applicant who appeared for himself, or himself and minor children, be sworn?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would the testimony be recorded?

A. Not unless there was objection to his enrollment made by some official of the tribe, or somebody who claimed to be conversant with his citizenship right. We followed the practice at that time as it is followed in a court where it is agreed by the party that no appeal is to be taken. Where there was objections though to the enrollment by anybody or for any reason the case was either heard then or set down for hearing, and a stenographer called, witnesses sworn, and the testimony reduced to writing.

Q. That would be denominated then an enrollment case, wouldn't it, to distinguish it from an ordinary case of enrollment?

A. Why, I think that they were called enrollment cases more particularly to distinguish them from allotment contest cases perhaps.

Q. Now, where would the data that would be gathered by the clerk, in listening to the statements of the applicants, be recorded, on a card I believe you stated? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is that this so-called final census card, such as Government's Exhibit A-1?

A. Yes, sir, or a card similar to that.

Q. Now, Mr. Hopkins, when you came along about the first of April and May, 1901, did you have any unaccounted for name on the tribal roll?

A. Yes, sir, there were a large number of names appearing on the tribal roll for whom no application for enrollment to the Commission had been made, no application made up to that time.

Q. Let me ask you one other question on the other matter. Would you, prior to the time you have just mentioned, enroll as a citizen an adult who did not personally appear?

A. It would be an exceptional case. We would do so in cases where it was satisfactorily shown to the Commission that the parties were ill, and I might say chronically so, so that there was slight chance of them appearing before the Commission at a convenient point, or where the parties were old, crippled, or blind and unable to travel and some relative appeared, and the relative's statements were vouched for by a representative of the tribe, the Principal Chief or members of the Creek Commission that was in session with the Dawes Commission.

Q. From whom would you entertain an application for the enrollment of a minor?

A. Well, from the parents or from a relative with whom the minor lived, and in whose custody the minor was, or legally appointed guardian.

Q. When a minor was enrolled on a final census card other than the one on which the minor's parents or custodian or relative, or those you have just enumerated who might apply for him, what was the practice of the Commission in the matter of entering on the card of that minor any reference to the card of the other person?

A. Well, that was frequently done where a minor was enrolled by himself, an entry of that kind was very often made on the card showing that the minor's parents were enrolled on a certain other card. It has been done.

Q. Being identified by number?

A. By the card number possibly.

Q. And the name? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say that has been done. Was that the practice to do that or not?

A. I presume in the majority of cases where a minor would be entered on a card that that would be done because as I recollect it there would be some reason why the name was entered separately on that card, and the reference would be made to the other card so that the name might be transferred to the other card. But I have known of instances too where children were practically without anybody to care for them, such as being in an orphan asylum, or the relatives were in dispute who should have the right to enroll the child, thinking that that carried the right to allotment. But as a general proposition an attempt was made to make a notation on the card of the child, showing the card of one or both of the parents.

Q. You say that along with the matter of enlisting for enrollment, prior to the Original Agreement of 1901, frequently applications for enrollment would be made? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was always done if it was desired? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By the applicant for enrollment. State whether testimony would be taken in the matter of the application for the allotment?

A. There was a form of questions prepared by the Commission for use by the clerks in charge of the allotment office, to be asked of the applicants when they presented their citizenship certificate and desired to make an application for enrollment.

Q. Was the testimony of the applicant then taken and recorded or not?

A. Yes, sir, the questions and answers were taken down by a stenographer is my recollection, and transcribed afterwards and put in the allotment jacket.

Q. What was the reason for taking down the testimony in the matter of an application for an allotment when you considered it not necessary to take it except in questioned cases of enrollment?

A. Well, I presume, frankly, that by the first of April. 1899, when we were commencing the work of allotment, that we had a little bit more money to spend for clerks and stenographers than we did in starting in the enrollment. And it having been started in the enrollment work without taking written testimony in each case, at that particular time we didn't think it practical to have part written and part not, and we followed the same course, and in allotment cases took the testimony.

Q. What was the object of having a personal application of persons for enrollment?

A. Well, so that the Commission could have the best information possible as to the family and family connections, and so that the cards might be made descriptive of the persons thereon and thereby be better identified.

Q. Why did you not accept the placing of the name on the tribal roll as sufficient, or did you do that?

A. If sufficient——

Q. To entitle*d* you to enroll the name. Did you accept the placing of the name on the tribal roll as sufficient evidence to entitle you to enroll a name all by itself?

A. Well, I wouldn't say that we did in the absence of the information that the party was dead, or had left the country and had given up their residence in the nation, and for other reasons had forfeited or lost their right to enrollment and allotment.

Q. Did you accept the tribal roll alone in the absence of any other information of any sort, and enroll the name in any case, finally enroll the name?

A. No, sir, I don't think there was ever a case before the Dawes Commission during my time where a name was put down on a card without some information having been obtained.

Q. From some source? A. From some source, yes, sir.

Q. Why wouldn't you accept an enrollment from the tribal roll?

A. Because we couldn't make such a roll as the law directed us to make. We wouldn't have sufficient evidence to identify the parties so that an officer making a payment in the future, or transacting business with them, could be satisfied that he was dealing with the right parties.

Q. What did you accept the tribal roll as evidence of?

A. A recognition of citizenship by the tribe.

Q. Yes, sir. Did you know of any cases of fraudulent enrollment on the tribal roll?

Mr. Hanford: Well, we object, if the Court please, on the ground that it is immaterial.

The Court: How would that throw any light on this case?

Mr. German: Well, I will withdraw the question.

Q. Did the Commission—— Was the Commission possessed of information on the subject of the reliability and dependability of the tribal roll by correctness?

Mr. Stuart: I wish you would repeat that question.

(Question read by stenographer.)

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, that calls for a conclusion; I don't see how that can have any force and effect here.

The Court: I think that would be a conclusion.

Mr. German: We except.

Q. You say, Mr. Hopkins, that you were attempting to account for citizens, persons whose names appeared on the tribal rolls, and attempting not to enroll persons who were not on the tribal rolls without authority of law? What information did you have relating to the subject generally such as to the reliability of the tribal roll?

A. Well, we had evidence of the approval of the tribal rolls by the Creek Council, or by the authorized Commission of the Creek Council. We had a number of rolls furnished us of other years, which by the investigation of the records of the Creek Council and the judgment of their Supreme Court we had found had never been officially passed upon by the tribe. Had been prepared in some instances by Town Kings, and other instances by Commissions whose work failed of ratification by the Council. But with reference to the 1890 and 1895 roll, particularly in the 1895 roll, we had the definite information. My recollection now is—I couldn't swear to the exact document—that those rules were officially approved by the Creek Council.

Q. Did you have information as to whether there were any names placed upon that roll by fraud?

Mr. Hanford: We object, Your Honor, as immaterial relating to Thomas Atkins.

The Court: I don't think that is material.

Mr. German: We save an exception. We offer to prove by the witness that the Commission was advised that the 1895 tribal roll, and the other tribal rolls, contained many names that had been placed there by fraud and without authority of law, and for a monetary consideration many names had obtained a place on those rolls.

The Court: Now, that was advice which they had. The question is what did the Commissioners do for the purpose of making these rolls in relying upon the tribal rolls, if they did anything.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, approximately how many names were on these tribal rolls and unaccounted for by the Commission about the first of May, 1901?

A. I have no actual knowledge of that except as I gather from the report of the Commission as to about the number of names that were enrolled in May, 1901; that report stated that there were something like twenty-five hundred names listed for enrollment during that month.

Q. You didn't quite get my question, I don't think. Approximately, how many were unaccounted for the first of May, 1901?

A. Well, sir, I couldn't tell you that either. I don't recollect as to that, but in March, 1901, the Commission prepared a list of the names of those unaccounted for for each town and sent a copy of that list to each one of the Town Kings, and many of the Town Warriors, advising them that those names were unaccounted for, and asking them for information with reference to them and their assistance in accounting for those people. I presume the records of the Commission would contain those lists.

Q. How many town- were there?

A. There were forty-seven towns on the 1895 roll; there were forty-eight towns, in my recollection, on the 1890 roll; and on the 1867 roll forty-six.

Q. Now, you remember the approval of the so-called Original Creek Agreement on March 1, 1901, the Act of Congress known as the so-called Original Creek Agreement?

A. The Act of Congress approving it?

Q. No, sir, the Act of Congress known as the Original so-called Creek Agreement?

A. Yes, sir, I have some recollection of that.

Q. Now, that treaty, that so-called treaty, was to be ratified by the Creek National Council before it became effective. Did the Commission have anything to do with the ratification of that agreement? A. Well, not officially at least.

Q. Where was the capital of the Creek Nation?

A. At Okmulgee.

Q. Did the Creek Council convene for the purpose of taking action on that agreement?

A. Yes, sir, the Creek Council convened somewhere along probably the 4th or 5th of May, 1901, I presume.

Q. Did the Commission open any office at Okmulgee at that time?

A. Yes, sir, the Commission opened and office I think on the 6th of May, 1901.

Q. Where were the headquarters of the Commission?

A. They were in the Capitol Building my recollection is on the ground floor of the Capitol Building.

Q. And in Okmulgee? A. In Okmulgee, yes, sir.

Q. Where was the Commission's main office?

A. In Muskogee.

Q. At Muskogee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This office at Okmulgee on this occasion was a temporary office was it not? Temporarily there?

A. Yes, sir. The same as we had made other appointments for enrollment purposes.

Q. What was the Commission there for, what was the occasion of your being there?

A. That we might be more conveniently located to those who had not already appeared for enrollment and allotment, and whom we believed would appear in greater numbers at Okmulgee while the Council was in session than they could get them, or they could conveniently come to Muskogee.

Q. Did you have occasion to take up the matter of these unaccounted for names that you have spoken of while there and consider them?

A. Yes, sir, that work was going on during all of that period I believe. In fact, I think that the the efforts of the Commission' were strongly put forth along in March, 1901, up to and including that time.

Q. Were you having any trouble with the Indians to obtain their assistance in the matter of that enrollment, or finding out the facts with reference to those unaccounted for names?

A. I would say that we were not having any willful opposition on the part of any Indian or official, but it was more of a failure on their part to find it convenient come to Muskogee or visit the Commission at Okmulgee, or more in the nature of that kind.

Q. You were trying to get to them. They didn't freely come in to report the matters, the facts, is that what you mean?

A. Do you have reference to the Creek officials or the citizens?

Q. Both—— Well, take the citizens first?

A. There were a large number of citizens who did not come in, and I presume had made up their minds that they would not. The class of Indians that were afterwards known as Snakes.

Q. Had you taken any action, any special steps, to obtain their attendance in May, 1901?

A. Yes, sir, notices were sent to all of the Town Kings and Town Officers and Principal Chiefs of the Creek Nation, notifying all the kings and warriors to see that the people came in for enrollment. We had a large number of appraisers, as we called them, out classifying the land for appraisement, and they were all directed to notify the people to appear for enrollment. And in addition to that we assembled at Okmulgee all of the teams and wagons that we had for the purpose of sending out for those who were unable to come, who were physically unable to make the journey or had no means of transportation by which they could come to Muskogee.

Q. Did you have any assistance from the United States Marshal?

A. Well, my recollection is that we did in some instances; had some case—something of that kind.

Q. Were not the United States Marshal and his deputies present at Okmulgee assisting you on this occasion to bring in some of those Indians?

A. I think they were present at Okmulgee and did assist us towards bringing in one or two of those Indians but it is not my recollection that that was their purpose of being at Okmulgee. I think it was for the purpose of being on the ground for the session of the Creek Council and preserving order generally.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, what date was the Creek Treaty ratified? A. My recollection is May 25th, 1901, by the Creeks.

Q. Now, prior to that, the counsel was in session from about May 6th, I believe you stated?

A. Some where the early part of May, yes, sir.

Q. They were in session, now, during the entire time, were they, from the date—from May 6th to May 25th?

A. Well, I can't tell you whether they recessed over weekends or not during that time. The session had not adjourned, however, during that time.

Q. Well, was there any matter relating to the enrollment that affected in any way the time when they acted on the treaty?

A. Well, I will tell you the facts. I don't [] that [] could say definitely that it affected the time that they acted on the treaty. During the consideration of the treaty, members of the House of Kings and House of Warriors, and I think also, the Principal Chief, either on his own behalf or on behalf of members of his council said to the Commission that there was a fear among certain member- of the council, probably in both houses that unless everybody was enrolled or enlisted for enrollment prior to the ratification of the treaty, that the treaty would act to cut them off of the final roll. It was a view the Commission did not take, however, because the direction was to enroll all those who were on the rolls but the Creeks themselves—as I say, a certain number of them, so it was reported to the Commission, were inclined to believe that that would be the effect of the ratification of the treaty.

Q. On account of a certain provision in the treaty?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is the provision the one which reads substantially like this: No person shall be enrolled after the ratification of this treaty—no, that is not exactly it. I will read it to you, Mr. Hopkins, from the act. "No person except as herein provided shall be added to the rolls of citizenship of said tribe after the date of this agreement and no person whomsoever shall be added to said rolls after the ratification of this agreement." The portion read appearing as the first sentence of section 28; is that the provision you referred to?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Hopkins, what did they say to you or the Commissioners, with relation to placing those names—those unaccounted for names on the roll before they would act on the treaty, if anything?

> Mr. Cruce: We object to that, if the Court please, because it is immaterial.
> The Court: What did who say?
> Mr. German: The members of the council and the Chiefs.
> The Court: Overruled.
> Mr. Cruce: Exceptions.

A. I can't quote them as to what they said. It was in effect an inquiry or a request to know whether a roll could be completed or those people who were unaccounted for could not be listed for enrollment before they ratified the treaty, so as to avoid any question coming up afterwards that they would be eliminated from the roll had they not appeared prior to the ratification of the agreement. The practice of the Commission had been, as I have previously stated, the personal application of the adult for himself or the minor children. It was simply a rull of the Commission and was not obligatory by any Act of Congress of any kind, and the Creeks evidently desired to have some manner provided in which those names could be enlisted or enrolled before they passed on the treaty.

Q. Did the Commission comply with that request?

A. The Commission changed their rule.

Q. Or that desire?

A. Of personal appearance to the extent of permitting the appearance for the purpose of making application to be made by the Town King, or Town officers, or some official of the tribe.

Q. Now, how many days prior to the date on which the treaty was ratified did the Commission confirm or adopt the rule you have just suggested complying with the desire of those Indians?

A. I cannot state the number of days prior to ratification of the treaty that that passage was permitted. We were receiving applications personally from individuals through all of that time. In other words, the time was not devoted exclusively to the applications made by officials of tribe and I wouldn't be able to tell you.

Q. Was that practice indulged in May 22nd, 23rd and 24th?

A. I presume it covered those three days; possibly more for all that I know now.

Q. Now, state to the Court all—first state how many were engaged in listing names for enrollment at that time over at Okmulgee.

A. Well, sir, I can't tell you that, I don't believe from my recollection of it. I presume there was two or three, maybe three.

Q. Who were they as you remember?

A. Well, that I can't tell you, except that I believe Mr. Edward Merrick was one of them, and I wouldn't be certain as to the others; possibly Mr. Hastin was one. He was connected with the office for a time.

Q. Now, explain to the Court by what process and just what proceeding or procedure was indulged in and conducted there in obtaining the information from the Town King, or other Tribal officers, to dispose of those unaccounted for names?

A. Well, to the best of my recollection, the enrollment clerk would have before him the roll of some particular town, the 1895 roll of some particular town; he would follow down the names there and where there was no notation on the roll indicating that the party had applied for enrollment or had enlisted for enrollment on one of the enrollment cards, the inquiry would be made as to who this part was and who knew them; whether they were living and whether they were in the country and what became of them and so forth, and so on. If there was no information to the effect that the party was dead or had left the country, why the name would be entered on the car with some additional information as could be obtained at that time.

Q. The information would be furnished by a town officer as a rule on those particular dates, now, that we are talking about?

A. As a general rule, I would say so, yes, sir. Possibly there might have been some distant relative who was there or something of that kind. We would take the information from anybody that we deemed was reliable.

Q. Were there many names listed on the several days immediately before May 25th, 1901?

A. Quite a number of names but I can't tell you the number of them.

Q. Was it an unusual number compared with number that had been enrolled previous to that time?

A. Well, there was a great many days that the enrollment was so light that Mr. Bixby complained that we were not paying our expenses; on those dates, I expect we had quite a profit in the business.

Q. Now, let me ask you this. Take as an illustration, suppose that the clerk found on the tribal roll the name Smith, and there was a note or some figures opposite his name which indicated that he had been listed for enrollment; that underneath his name appeared the name William Smith, and there was no note or other evidence on that tribal roll that he had been listed for enrollment or otherwise disposing of him; the name William Smith would be regarded as an unaccounted for name, would it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, the Town King, or other officer present, would be asked about that name, would he not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. If the Town King's attention was called to the fact that John Smith's name appeared above and then say, yes, I know John Smith; he had a child, I suppose that is the name of the child; that child is about 10 years old, and that child's mother was a non-citizen, would the clerk have listed that name for enrollment on that information at that time, under the circumstances existing? A. He would.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, did the tribal rolls, they speak for themselves in failing to show the relation between the parties, but they were grouped in family groups, were they not as a rule?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was there anything in the relative position of those names on the tribal rolls which constituted information as to the relationship existing in any particular family?

A. No, sir.

Q. You take a census card, Mr. Hopkins, on a minor on which there is no notation indicating—notation consisting a cross-reference to the card or number of the father or mother of that person, what would that indicate to you as to who probably applied for the enrollment of that person, when you consider the fact that that listing took place on May 23rd, 1901?

A. I don't think that I could form an opinion from a mere statement of that kind.

Q. If that child's parents—if the parent of that child—if the name of the parent of that child appeared in the family group from which the name of that child was taken off of the tribal roll, and if that parent's name had been listed there for enrollment by the Commission prior to May 23rd, 1901, or had been listed on a card for consideration for enrollment by the Commission prior to May 23rd, 1901, would according to the practice of the Commission, if that child had made an an application, would there have been a cross-reference on the census card of the child, to the parent's card?

A. There would as a general rule. There might be exceptions to it.

Q. But that was the practice, was it?

A. Yes, sir; as a general rule, that was a general rule, yes, sir. There might be exceptions for reasons.

Q. I will ask you, Mr. Hopkins, when you went to Okmulgee and took up the matter of this long list of unaccounted for names in May, 1901, was it the plan of the Commission to list these names prior to the ratification of that treaty before the Town—the tribal officers made the suggestions that you related awhile ago? A. No, I think not.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, you served how long with the Commission? About 6 years, you say?

A. Yes, sir, just about 6 years.

Q. And you were familiar with its customs and practices all that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were constantly in communication with Mr. Bixby, the chairman, were you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Bixby, the chairman of the Commission, was in constant attendance at Okmulgee at this enrollment that you speak of? A. I believe so.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, when you people sought to enroll the Indians you gathered your information from every point of the compass that you could get, didn't you? You got all the information that you could? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Your purpose was not to enroll anybody except upon evidence, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your purpose was to have evidence outside, even, of the rolls to satisfy your judgment that the Indian that you were enrolling was entitled to enrollment? That was your purpose?

A. Yes, sir; where there any questions that could arise at all as to his rights to enrollment, that led us to suspect that there might be any reason, we went outside for information.

Q. As a matter of fact, can you recall a single instance where you enrolled an Indian as a member of the Creek Tribe without some evidence?

A. No, sir, I don't believe there ever was one.

Q. You don't believe there was one? A. No, sir.

Q. Would you have enrolled any man as a citizen of the Creek Tribe without some evidence? A. No, sir.

Q. You would not? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, these Indians who were out there in the country, some of them were Euchees and some were Snakes, weren't they? A. Well, some were both.

Q. I say some were Euchees and some were Snakes?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is there a difference between a Euchee and a Snake Indian?

A. Well, there is no official title of Snake Indians; the Indians who took concerted action to oppose allotment or to the placing of them on their land were designated as Snakes as a general term but that has no reference whatever to any particular band in the Creek Nation.

Q. Now, let me ask you this. When you made out a census card at Okmulgee, if you completed a card you always had some evidence before you completed a card? You always had some evidence before you completed a card, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As a general rule before you completed a card. And isn't it true that after you had enrolled these people, or put them down for enrollment at Okmulgee—listed them for enrollment at Okmulgee, that after that the Commission through its officers made subsequent investigation of those very things?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And isn't it a fact that Mr. Bixby, the chairman, in practically every instance went over with the clerk that listed the particular Indian for enrollment before he finally sent it to Washington?

A. I don't think there was ever a name that was sent to Washington that Mr. Bixby did not pass upon especially if the report had his signature to it.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Hopkins, would you just tell the Court, what methods you pursued from the time of the census card, until the time of final enrollment by the Dawes Commission, what was the first thing that you did? You listed him for enrollment, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And than what did you do after you listed him? What was the next thing?

The Court: What do you mean by listing him for enrollment? The actual placing him on the census card?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you completed that card, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That census card? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And after you completed that card, you made further investigation and put him on a final roll and that final roll went to Washington?

A. Yes, sir, the name was transferred from that census card to the final roll that went to Washington accompanied by a letter of a Commissioner finding in reference to the names that were placed thereon. But I don't think I can answer your question affirmatively that after the card was fully completed that we still made a further investigation before it was put on. The card was taken up with the evidence that was on it and passed on by the Commission, as to his right to go on the final roll.

Q. And in each and every case, Mr. Bixby, the chairman, did that thing?

A. If Mr. Bixby's name appears attached to the roll or to the schedule that it accompanied that went to Washington, or the letter accompanying the schedule, then he passed on every name, because I never knew him to pass anything to Washington that he did not pass on himself.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, in making this enrollment, the first steps that were taken was the placing of the name upon the list, that is the list made for enrollment and putting him on the card, preliminary card that was made out, was it not?

A. That was the first record that made.

Q. And after the name and the toen were placed upon the card, then a certificate of enrollment was made up, including all the data relating to the applicant that the Commission had before it, was it not? A. I don't——

Q. I am trying to draw out more distinctly the distinction between the listing for enrollment—listing of name and the actual enrollment. As I understand you, the first step was to list the name for enrollment and the town to which the applicant belonged could be secured from the tribal roll, but that in addition to that there appeared upon the census card certain other facts as to age, degree of blood, parentage, etc.?

A. Well, I think that our tactics were this. A party appeared for enrollment and they were sworn; their name was ascertained, and the town that they belonged to. The matter of identification by the members of the Creek Council there —were asked if he were the party and if satisfied that he was the party that he represented himself to be, and we found his name on the tribal roll, then we took a card and put his name down; but the mere appearance of a person for enrollment did not justify us in writing his name down and starting a card which might afterwards have to be destroyed because he might be a party—not a citizen whatever, and it might be a mixing up of the records that might be unaccounted for in some way.

Q. Exactly. Let me ask you this question, Mr. Hopkins. When the census card was finally made up and contained in addition to the name and the town of the applicant, also the age, the parentage and the degree of blood, the town that the parent belonged to, etc., that that information, that other information could not have been secured from the tribal rolls, could it?

A. I don't think so; I never saw a tribal roll that had it on.

Q. Then, when a census card did contain those other facts, is that any evidence that some other evidence must have been had besides the tribal roll by the Commission before they put down those facts? A. Yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Rosser.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, have you a copy here of the 1895 pay roll? Was one handed to you a while ago? A. No, sir.

Q. I will show you another copy of it. It seems that on this 1895 pay roll which has been introduced in evidence, there are groups of names with a little space between, indicating that certain persons are grouped together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in the group in which Thomas Atkins' name appears the first name in that group appears to be Ed Schrimsher? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, to the extreme left of his name, appears the figure 9 and opposite Minnie Atkins appears 10 and 11, and so on down?

A. I would say that opposite Schrimsher's name appears 209 and Minnie Atkins 210.

Q. That is right. The two hundred part does not appear back of the nine but it is understood; we know it ought to be there. Now then, immediately to the left of Ed. Schrimsher appears the figure 1, and following the, two, three, four. I wish you would explain the meaning of those two sets of figures.

A. The first column of figures there goes to the total of names that are on the roll and are carried through so that the last name on the roll would have a number indicating the total number of names on the roll. The numerals in the second column indicate the number of people that are in the family. Now, it is a matter of history that the citizenship in the Creek Nation as far as the tribe of Vann was concerned, followed the mother and that the children enrolled, her descendants were enrolled in the same town of which she was originally a member; so that we sometimes had the name of parent—most generally where there is only one belongs—where the parents belong to different towns, the father's name would appear separately in his own town, probably with his mother's family or his relatives descended from her, and in the wife's town the children would follow her; so that in answering Mr. German awhile ago that it did not indicate family relationship, they would very frequently take the oldest member, male or female, descendant, who still belonged to that town and put that first and put down different names of that town. Now that rule had an exception also, insomuch that a dependant parent or grandparent, or we might say, as we might say an incompetent, might be listed last, because they would put down as the head of the family the one who would represent them in drawing the money, to whom they would look to see that they would draw the money, or the adult as a general thing.

Q. Well, this group in general indicated a descendant from a common mother? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There is not anything in this roll which shows relationship of these different parties to each other, is there?

A. No, sir, I wouldn't say that there was.

Q. I will ask you to state the meaning of the purpose of these figures immediately to the left of the name and in the same column with the word name.

A. Did you state that correctly?

Q. To the right, I should have said.

A. I would say that that is the number entered upon the enrollment card known as "field" number of the Dawes Commission enrollment card on which their name was entered as an applicant for enrollment.

Q. Then, these numbers to the right were put there by the Commission or by some one connected with the Commission? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they were not on the rolls when the rolls were received by the Commission? A. No, sir.

Q. Those figures, the*m*, immediately to the right, were not on the Creek roll as such but were placed there later?

A. That is correct.

Cross Examination by Mr. Maxey.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, in the 1890 roll, which is plaintiff's Exhibit A-29, under the group of names to which your attention was just called, commencing with Ed. Schrimsher, will you take this? You will notice a bracket out to the right and the words Thomas and Mary—two children; will you explain what that means?

A. I have no explanation to it whatever. Personally, I would have thought that they were members of that family, but what it does mean or actually mean, I don't know because I didn't have anything to do with the making of the 1890 roll.

Q. Well, do you find on that roll the name Thomas and Mary as enrolled citizens anywhere in that family group?

A. No, sir, I find no notation made to the enrollment of either of those two on this sheet.

Q. Now, if it is a fact that the father and mother of Minnie and Nancy and Lee Atkins was named Thomas and Mary, would you say that referred to their father and mother?

Mr. Cruce: We object, if the Court please, because it calls for a conclusion.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Cruce: Exceptions.

A. Judge, I would hate to testify to anything in connection with what that was unless I saw the original roll and know—this being a photographic copy, to know whether the ink would indicate whether it was placed on there at the same time; it looks here as though it was put on in this way: parenthesis, two children and either a comma or period, I can't determine from this, and then parenthesis and then just above it Thomas and Mary. Now, whether Thomas and Mary were put on as an explanation as to who the children were, or whether Thomas and Mary had two children, I cannot tell you. I think the original copy might indicate as to whether Thomas and Mary were subsequently added as an explanation as to what it was. But that would simply be an opinion of mine, is all.

Mr. Maxey: I would like to have that original roll.

The Court: I understand it is being sent for; could you proceed with something else?

Mr. Maxey: That is all I wanted to ask him, Your Honor.

The Court: Any further interrogation of this witness? Cross examination or direct?

Mr. German: Yes, Your Honor, redirect. I would like to ask a question or two.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, in getting the parentage in one listed for enrollment or about to be was there more pains taken in the matter of age and blood?

A. Yes, sir, fully as much though; in a great many instances, I say fully as much so. In fact in a great many instances there might have been twenty witnesses examined in a case as to parentage.

Q. That would be where some question was raised against the enrollment where you would have so many witnesses?

A. Yes, sir, where there was a doubt existed by reason of something that had arisen as to what the parentage was.

Q. Now, I am speaking of the ordinary case of application for enrollment where the right is not questioned by anybody? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You tried to get the names of the parents? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Because your card, as designed, called for answering that data? A. In every instance.

Q. Yes, sir?

A. Yes, sir, in every instance we attempted to get it.

Q. And you got that from the same source as a rule that you got the other data relating to that person aside from the tribal roll?

A. Well, it could be obtained; in a great many instances we went outside and even held cards under consideration until we could make further inquiry to one or the other of the parents.

Q. Now, I have reference to the May, 1901, situation?

A. No, not particularly as referred to where the parties making application for the enrollment of children who stated one of the parents.

Q. If the applicant appeared in person, as a rule you would have no difficulty in getting that information from him?

A. If the father appeared in person and made application for the minor?

Q. No, I say if the applicant appeared in person you would have no difficulty in getting the information from him?

A. I say often in hundreds of cases, we would have difficulty in getting the names of parents.

Q. Frequently wouldn't know the father?

A. Frequently wouldn't know the father and frequently wouldn't know the mother.

Q. Due to the illegitimacy, or what was the trouble?

A. Probably illegitimacy.

Q. They would know their mother even if they were illegitimate wouldn't they?

A. Very often not. Very often the mother might be listed as a white woman and they would say the child had been taken and raised by the Indians. A number of cases where there was no question of legitimacy a party couldn't remember the name of the mother because they were infants at the time the parents died.

Q. Were the Creeks, as a rule, of high mental qualifications? A. Yes, sir, as a rule.

Q. There were hundreds of cases though where they were not?

A. A great many cases, about the usual average of citizenship I expect.

Q. You mean among Indians? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you say Mr. Bixby was at Okmulgee in May, 1901?

A. My recollection he was.

Q. Were there any of the other Commissioners there?

A. Well, I couldn't say definitely as to that, but my recollection is that there were. I have an idea that Mr. Needles was there, and I don't know but what Colonel Breckenridge was, but I am not positive as to that.

Q. How many Commissioners were there?

A. Three, I believe, at that time.

Q. Were they all there at that time?

A. I couldn't say as to that. There was business that called them to Muskogee at times, and they had their conveyances and they drove over.

Q. Were these Commissioners actively assisting the clerks in making inquiry, or what were they doing?

A. The Commissioners?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. They were there assisting by passing upon any questions that were submitted to them, directing the work where direction was required, or anything of that kind. You might say they were on the job, that is about all I can say.

Q. A great deal of work was being done? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You spoke a while ago of a committee from the tribe sitting with the enrollment clerks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That committee from the tribe sat with the enrollment clerks during the work in 1899 and 1900 did they not?

A. All the way through.

Q. Yes, sir, all the way through? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, just what did that committee do?

A. Well, the committee listened to the applications made by the people for enrollment, and the testimony that was given with reference to them, and made objections where they thought that the applicant was not entitled to enrollment by reason of having lived out of the state for a period of years. In some instances on the ground that the Act of Council admitting them to citizenship had been passed through fraud, and things of that kind. But they were there generally representing the tribes to see that nobody went on the roll that was not entitled to go on there and get a share of the land.

Q. And it was in those cases where the committee raised an objection to an enrollment for any reason, or raised a question about it, that you took the testimony down?

A. Yes, sir, where the Commission or the attorney for the Creek Nation, who was generally present, or anybody who seemed to be reputable and reliable made any representation to the Commission that the party was not entitled to enrollment, the case was set for hearing.

Q. And the testimony taken down and preserved?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you spoke of Mr. Bixby considering cases before the names went on the final roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The clerk who made the census card, or some clerk in the enrollment division would bring to Mr. Bixby the census card, is that right, the enrollment card?

A. Or he would go to the division where the cards were.

Q. And then he would pass upon the case upon the data set forth on the enrollment or census card, and the tribal roll, I mean in a case where it wasn't a contested or questioned case, where they didn't have the record and preserved testimony?

A. Well, the card, as you are representing to me now, if passing upon what appeared on the card and a tribal roll was not all that was referred to in a very large proportion of the cases. We gathered information and data from these people at various times and places by correspondence, we had birth affidavits and affidavits of relatives and those were in an envelope on the back of the card. A large envelope pasted on the back of the card containing all the notations gathered by clerks or anybody else with reference to that case or anything relating to it. If the general office had occasion to write an officer with reference to the case a copy was filed in the enrollment office and kept there. Mr. Bixby would take everything in connection with that case before he would pass the name.

Q. Now, take the case where there was no correspondence and no testimony and no affidavits, and he had before him merely the census card with the data on it and the tribal roll, he would determine the case from that, would he not?

A. Yes, sir, I presume he would if there was on the card there which would indicate that it came within the terms of the law requiring their enrollment, I expect he probably would.

Q. And then that name, if the evidence appearing upon the face of the card was sufficient, or rather the data taken with the tribal roll, that name would then be placed on the schedule? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, a schedule, what was a schedule?

A. A schedule is simply a section or part of the final roll, and they were sent up in that manner more for convenience and to expedite the work.

Q. Send to the Secretary for action?

A. For his approval, yes, sir.

Q. And then if approved by the Secretary returned and filed with the Commission as to the final approved roll?

A. One of the copies was. I expect it was sent in three copies or four. One to be retained in the office of the Secretary and one to be filed in the office of the Principal Chief, and one with the Dawes Commission. It may have been two that were retained in Washington, but I can't tell you as to that.

Q. How many citizens were enrolled in all in the Five Tribes?

A. I couldn't tell you, Mr. German, in the neighborhood of one hundred thousand of them.

Q. Do you know how many Creeks?

A. I do not recollect to this day, in the neighborhood of fifteen thousand.

Q. Do you know who the tribal attorneys were, or attorney in 1900 and 1901?

A. Well, I don't know of my own knowledge, my recollection is that Albert McKellop was the attorney at that time.

Q. Well, he was a Creek Indian?

A. He was a Creek citizen by blood, yes, sir.

Q. Do you know about his having been licensed to practice law?

A. I think that he was licensed both by the Tribal Court and the United States District Court as a practicing attorney.

Q. Do you know who the attorney was before him?

A. No, sir, I don't recall. I had occasion to look it up once before and possibly knew, but I don't now. There is a record to that effect.

Q. Was it Mr. Reed?

A. Well, sir, I don't believe that Judge Reed appeared before the Dawes Commission with reference to any work.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cruce.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, I understood you to state a while ago, in illustration, that when you were over at Okmulgee, if you found a name on the tribal roll with no annotations and the party wasn't there to make application himself, you then gathered such information as you could from the Town Kings and the Committee which was there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You invariably did that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you would try to find out whether the party was living? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Whether the party was living on the first day of April, 1899? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You would try to find out also whether the party had left the state so as to abandon citizenship? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All of that information you got outside of the tribal roll necessarily? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many members were there of that Commission representing the tribe there?

A. My recollection is that there were five, may have been cut down to three before the work was finished, but I am not positive about that.

Q. And that committee sat with you constantly?

A. Yes, sir, the personnel of the committee changed.

Q. I understand?

A. The letters of the Chief to the Commission, designating the members of that committee on the Commission, and the changes in personnel would all be shown from the records, I don't remember those things.

Q. Now, the attorney representing the tribe was there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was permitted to question parties who gave information? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To ascertain whether the parties who were present on that listing was entitled to enrollment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, for instance, take this exhibit, Government's Exhibit A-1, it shows—— It is the enrollment of Thomas Atkins and shows his age ten, you didn't get that age from the tribal roll?

A. I don't suppose the clerk who made the card could get it from that. I did not make that card.

Q. I understand, but you understand from inspection of that roll that it didn't give the ages? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did it give the name of father, white man. Did the roll give that information?

A. That would have to be procured outside.

Mr. Cruce: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, you are familiar with section 21 of the Act of April 28th, 1898, which provides that the Commission would be required to make the rolls descriptive of the persons thereon? A. The Act of June 28th, you mean?

Q. Let me read you that section, it is short?

A. Well, it is not necessary.

Q. You remember that. Mr. Hopkins, the provisions of that section required the rolls to be made descriptive of the members thereon so that they may be identified is the reason is it not that the census card contained those other facts that were required to be gotten from witnesses; in other words, the allottee identified, was described and identified by his census card?

A. Yes, sir. If you will permit me to go outside the record though, I will say though you might say it was the other way. Because I prepared the cards so that we could have that information and that we might be within the law we embodied that provision in the Curtis Bill so as to fit the cards.

Q. That was what that provision in the act referred to?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was because of the descriptive matters that were placed on the census card? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Maxey: If the Court please, I called for the original roll to further examine Mr. Hopkins, but I am informed that the original can't be found and that the photographs that have been introduced in evidence here is a photograph of a copy of the original roll made by the Commission. And I am informed by parties who have seen the original roll that this is not a copy of the original roll. There has been something added to it —there have been some things added to it that are not on that copy.

The Court: Is the original roll available?

Mr. Maxey: It was in the hands of the Commission.

Mr. Allen: One of the rolls, Your Honor, that the Commission never was able to get from the tribe. But they did get what they always considered the authenticated roll.

The Court: Let me ask this: I have gathered as we went along here that there was an 1890 roll of the tribe to which the Commission resorted when it was gathering up the rolls.

Mr. Maxey: Yes, sir.

The Court: Was that the copy which they now have?

Mr. Allen: Yes, sir.

The Court: That is the roll to which the Commission referred so far as they referred to any 1890 roll?

Mr. Allen: Yes, sir.

Mr. Maxey: Yes, sir, but the original roll and the copy they made they added notations in the copy that are not in the original roll.

The Court: The page of the original roll relating to Thomas Atkins was offered and received in evidence yesterday, I think?

Mr. Maxey: Yes, sir.

The Court: It is now stated that you will find that that is a page from the copy which the Dawes Commission used?

Mr. Maxey: Yes, sir.

The Court: There is no question about that. You may show anything you may desire to show with regard to those notations, qualify it in any way that the facts warrant.

Mr. Hanford: Your Honor please, the copy which was introduced was a photographic copy of the carbon of the original roll. Mr. Maxey evidently refers to some memorandum roll, but the official roll of the Creek Tribe is the typewritten roll which is here. The photographic copy was not taken from the original itself, but was taken from a carbon of that original roll and this is the roll which the Dawes Commission used.

Mr. Allen: The carbon happens to be the original roll and has always been so regarded.

The Court: It seems to me the thing that is material here so far as the 1890 roll is concerned is the copy of the roll, or the roll which the Commission recognizes as the approved 1890 roll, and to which they referred in making the enrollment.

Mr. German: And that is the reason we introduce a photographic copy of this so called carbon copy.

Mr. Maxey: The original Creek roll is written in long hand. This is a typewritten copy from that. On the original roll, written in long-hand by the Creek officers, the name of Minnie Atkins appears, two children, without giving any names. And in this they say Thomas and Mary.

The Court: You say that is the state of the original roll that you say you can't find?

Mr. Maxey: Yes, sir.

The Court: If that roll differs from this roll, it might be competent on some phase of this case if the roll was here. If it isn't here we can't have it, that is all.

And thereupon, Court took a recess until two o'clock P. M.

And thereafter, Court reconvened at two o'clock, P. M., pursuant to adjournment and the following proceedings were had:

PHILLIP E. HOPKINS, recalled for further examination, testified as follows:

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, did you in Okmulgee, in 1901, in May, learn anything about Thomas Atkins?

A. No, sir, not that I recall of personally.

Q. Did you at that time have any knowledge of this Atkins family, or Thomas Atkins?

A. No, sir, no special knowledge at any time.

Q. Do you have any recollection of the reception of any evidence, any personal and independent recollection of the reception of any evidence there as to Thomas Atkins at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. With reference to what members of the Commission was over there, what is your best recollection as to which ones of them were there?

A. Well, my best recollection with reference to Mr. Bixby being there; and I rather believe that Colonel Needles was there at least a good part of the time, but I might be mistaken, he might have been there in March prior to that; I wouldn't be able to testify without refreshing my recollection from files of the Commission.

Q. Is Col. Needles living? A. He is not.

Q. Is Mr. Breckenridge living?

A. Yes, sir, the last that I heard of him a few months ago.

Q. You don't remember that he was there?

A. I couldn't state definitely, positively, no, sir.

Mr. German: That's all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Hopkins, you don't have any particular personal recollection about any of these pages do you, except some unusual case? A. No, sir.

Q. All you know is what the practice and invariable custom of your department was with reference to this enrollment? A. That's all.

Mr. Stuart: And you have stated that. That is all.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, SAMUEL W. BROWN, was called, sworn and examined as a witness on behalf of the Government and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What is your name? A. Samuel W. Brown.

Q. Mr. Brown, what is your citizenship?

A. Citizen of the Creek Nation.

Q. What band or town? A. Euchee.

Q. Are you an officer of that town? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What office do you hold? A. Town King.

Q. How long have you been Town King?

A. I have been, let's see—I missed eight years—from 1867.

Q. Were you Town King in 1890? A. 1890? No, sir.

Q. Who was? A. Noah Gregory.

Q. What degree of Indian blood are you? A. I am half.

Q. The other half is white? A. The other half is white.

Q. Mr. Brown, you were Town King after Mr. Gregory though, were you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you Town King in 1895? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was a tribal payment made to the members of the Creek Nation or Tribe? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In 1890 was there not? A. 1890, yes, sir.

Q. What was the amount of that payment per capita?

A. Twenty-nine dollars.

Q. Then, there was a tribal payment made in 1895 was there not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the amount of that payment?

A. Fourteen dollars forty cents ($14.40).

Q. Was there a roll made in 1890 of the members in each town? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many different Creek Towns were there?

A. You mean in the Creek Nation?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. There is forty-four Creek Towns and three colored.

Q. Making forty-seven in all?

A. Yes, sir, forty-seven towns.

Q. Now, Euchee Town was one of the Creek Towns?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When this 1890 payment of twenty-nine dollars was made, was it made on some tribal roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there a roll of Euchee Town made up?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you speak of the Town, Euchee Town, what do you mean by that? A. Well, different tribes I suppose.

Q. It is a descriptive word to designate the band?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And consists of the Euchees? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the making of the 1890 roll that was used in making the payment in 1890?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you have to do with that?

A. I was the clerk of that convention, mass meeting of the Euchee people, and we took the census of 1890.

Q. Who presided at that meeting?

A. Mr. Gregory, he was the Town King at that time.

Q. Town King? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember of anything about the name of Nancy Atkins and Mammie Atkins in connection with that roll?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell the Court—— First let me ask you this: Were you related to them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What relationship? A. About second cousin.

Q. Second cousins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Minnie Atkins personally? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Nancy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who were their parents? A. Sir?

Q. What was the name of their parents if you know, their father and mother?

A. Oh, their father and mother. Thomas Atkins is the father of the children and Mary Jane Atkins was the mother. Davis was her maiden name.

Q. What did you say about Davis?

A. Her name was Mary Jane Davis before she married Atkins.

Q. Were they living in 1890, Thomas Atkins and Mary Jane Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did they die?

A. Seventy-six or seventy-seven it seems to me.

Q. Somewhere along in there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had they lived in the Indian Territory? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the Creek Nation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In 1890 where was Minnie Atkins if you know?

A. In 1890 I don't think she was here.

Q. Had she been here?

A. No, sir, I don't think she was, she was out in the states.

Q. In the states somewhere; did you know where?

A. No, I didn't know at that time.

Q. Where was Nancy Atkins in 1890 if you know?

A. She was here.

Q. Do you know where she was living at that time?

A. Well, I couldn't tell you that very much, but sometime she was living here and at Wagoner.

Q. Now, tell the Court where you lived at that time?

A. I was living on Snake Creek.

Q. Where is that? A. That is west of here.

Q. About how far? A. About forty miles.

Q. Is that where you have been—— Is that where you are living now?

A. Yes, sir, I was living right close to Weolocka Mission. I have a store there.

Q. Did you say Nancy was living near Wagoner?

A. She used to be at Muskogee, and sometimes I could hear of her at Wagoner.

Q. What direction is Wagoner from Muskogee?

A. I believe it is north.

Q. Where did you people as a rule live, your Euchee people?

A. Well, some was living on Snake Creek, a place they called Snake Creek, it is a creek running from the river; and some on Pole Cat; some lived on the place they called Big Pond; and some living at Deep Fork.

Q. Where was Pole Cat? A. That is near Red Fork.

Q. West of where you live?

A. Yes, sir. I am living on that creek now.

Q. I thought you said you lived on Snake Creek?

A. I did when I was doing business.

Q. They are not very far apart are they?

A. They are not far, directly sixteen or seventeen.

Q. Where is Big Pond?

A. That is good ways, that is on the line almost.

Q. On further west than Pole Cat and Snake Creek?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the western portion of this state? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where is North Fork? A. You mean Deep Fork?

Q. Deep Fork? A. Well, that is this side.

Q. This side of where?

A. This side of Big Pond, no the other side.

Q. So, it too, is over in the western part of the Creek Nation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Muskogee and Wagoner are in the eastern part of the Creek Nation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in 1890, when you held this convention of your people, at which Noah Gregory presided, where was that held? A. It was held—— You mean 1890?

Q. Yes, sir?

A. It was held on the Square Grounds, well right on Snake Creek.

Q. And you were clerk of that convention?

A. Yes, sir, in 1890.

Q. Now, what was that convention held for?

A. It was held—— The people was called together to represent their families, see how many was in the families so they could take true census and enable them to draw that money.

Q. Was that the twenty-nine-dollar payment?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall the name of Mammie or Minnie Atkins and Nancy Atkins having been called up at that convention?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall their names having been placed on that 1890 roll, were their names placed on the 1890 roll?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mammie Atkins and Nancy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, was there anything said about Mammie Atkins having any children? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell the Court what it was?

A. Well, Minnie's brother-in-law, he didn't state at first, but one of the neighbors said Thomas knowed something about Minnie having children.

Q. Thomas, who? A. Thomas Holden.

Q. That was her brother?

A. Brother-in-law. And he said that she had two children.

Q. Who said that?

A. Jackson Barnett. And Thomas got up and stated that she had two children but he didn't know their names. I said it won't do to leave them out if they are not in the country, and better enroll them, and if the Council will not accept them of course we will have to cancel them. But we will not do that, we will put them on the roll two children. So, that was enrolled that way, Minnie and two children.

Q. But you didn't know their names?

A. Didn't know their names.

Q. Did anybody attempt to call their names? A. No, sir.

Q. Did anybody make any statement as to what their names were? A. No, they never did.

Q. So, the name was put down the Mamie and two children? A. That was in 1890.

> The Court: Will there be any controversy as to whether Mamie and Minnie are interchangeable names of the same persons?
> Mr. German: I don't think so. I will ask the witness about that.
> The Court: I notice sometimes it is Mamie.

A. Minnie is her proper name.

Q. When you used the name Mamie on that roll——

A. Might have been spelled that way, the intention was Minnie.

Q. This daughter of Thomas and Mary? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I will ask you this: State whether or not the words Thomas and Mary were written above the words two children there at that convention. Tell me whether or not the words Mary and Thomas were written above the words children there at that convention? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, was that roll, as made up by your convention, taken before the Creek National Council? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that roll ratified by the Creek National Council?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. State what your connection was at that time?

A. I was in the House of Warriors.

Q. You were a Warrior? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The legislative bodies of the Creek Nation were known as the House of Warriors and House of Kings? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The House of Kings being composed of Town Kings and the House of Warriors being composed of Warriors?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The two bodies taken together constituted the legislative body of the nation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, at the time the council ratified that roll, state whether or not the words Thomas and Mary were written above the words two children? A. They were not.

Q. Mr. Brown, I call your attention to the fact, I have already done it off the stand, by showing you the roll, that on the typewritten copy of that roll in the possession of the Commission the words and Thomas and Mary appear to be typewritten above the words children. Do you know when those words got on there or anything about it?

A. No, sir, I don't.

Q. Mr. Brown, in 1895 you state that you were the Town King of Euchee Town? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In making the 1895 payment state whether you had anything to do with making the roll for Euchee Town?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. For the purpose of that payment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You did. What did you have to do with making that roll?

A. Well, that is the request from the Council that the roll should be made.

Q. Did you have anything—— Did you make that census roll up or not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have a meeting of your people to act on it?

A. Well, they didn't act much on it, they just gave in the family, the head of the family and a list of their children, and of course there was no objection made, but they were satisfied. There was some Euchees that was left out because we couldn't tell—— I couldn't tell whether they had any children or not. I had to get out and hunt the others.

Q. Now, then, you had held a meeting of your people?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And considered the roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Census?

A. Yes, sir, held the meeting and called the people together. We had no council but it was a meeting and all that had families that was not able to come to that meeting, of course the head of the head of the family was there representing the family at the census.

Q. Now, after that meeting was held were you authorized to gather the names of any of the rest of your people and put them on the census? A. No, sir, I wasn't authorized but I had the right.

Q. You had the right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether or not the names of these Atkins—Minnie and *M*ancy, and Jim were placed on the '95 roll by you? A. You mean in 1895?

Q. Yes, sir. A. Yes, sir.

Q. By you? A. By me.

Q. Where did you get the names of the Atkins family that you put on that roll?

A. I got the Atkins family right in this Muskogee.

Q. Who from?

A. A man by the name of John Davis, Minnie's uncle.

Q. Minnie's uncle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you make any record of the names that he gave you at that time? A. I took the list, yes, sir.

Q. What did you take the list down in?

A. I had a little book.

Q. I will ask you whether this is the book?

A. That is the book.

Q. To help you a little bit I put a little slip of paper there at the page. A. Yes, sir.

Q. What names did John Davis give you?

A. Ed Schrimsher, Minnie Atkins, and Charlie, and I can't hardly see but it is all here—Susan and Thomas and Mary and Nancy.

Q. Tell the Court what the conversation was between you and John Davis at that time.

A. Well, we didn't have very much; we didn't have very much to say about it to each other that day. It was a very cold day and I just asked him did he know the remnants of the Atkins family and he said he did, and that is the list he gave me.

Q. Did he tell you about what kin one of the- was to the other? A. No, sir, he didn't say a word about that.

Q. Did you ask him anything about that?

A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. Did you know—you have stated already that you knew Minnie? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I will ask you whether or not she was in the Indian Territory in 1895? A. She was here in 1895 at the payment.

Q. At the payment. Did you know she was here prior to the date of the payment?

A. No, sir, I don't believe I did at that time.

Q. And you learned it on that day? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know personally the names of all the people John Davis gave you that day? I mean did you know personally the people whose names John Davis gave you that day?

A. Not the children—in the list.

Q. What people on that list did you know?

A. I knew Ed Schrimsher, and I knew Minnie Atkins, and I knew Nancy.

Q. But you didn't know the others? A. No, I didn't.

Q. After you got that list of names from John Davis, did you put them on the '95 roll or not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As he had given them to you?

A. Yes, sir, his name is also on that list; he had a Cherokee family and of course his children couldn't go on Euchee roll. I got his name and it is on there.

Q. When did you put these names that John Davis gave you on that Euchee Town census? Before or after the convention of your people? A. After.

Q. Then was that census roll taken up with your people after you put these names on there? A. You mean '95?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were those names—was your census rolls of your people after you put those names on it—of these Atkins—this Atkins family—was it taken up with your people in convention assembled? A. Oh, no.

Q. It was not. Did the roll which you have prepared in the manner related, was it taken up with the Creek Council —Council of the Creek Nation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it acted on by the Council? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What action did they take on it? Did they ratify it or not? A. Ratified it.

Q. At the time the Council ratified that roll, how did they proceed in acting upon it? Did they have a committee or how was it taken up? A. They had a committee appointed.

Q. Committee. What was the name of that committee?

A. I have forgotten now but the Enrollment; something like that, I guess.

Q. Census roll committee?

A. Yes, census roll committee. It has been so long.

Q. Now, that committee would consider the census rolls of each of the towns? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that right? How would that committee find out about whether those census rolls were correct or not?

A. Well, they would not pass on them unless they were correct.

Q. I know but where did they get their——

A. By the Council members.

Q. Well, take Euchee Town—who did they ask about the Euchees?

A. Asked me and Mr. Gregory, and Mr. John Buck; those were members.

Q. Members of the Euchee Town? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The Town King and Town Warriors? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was this Atkins family and these names that appear on it discussed before that committee?

A. I don't know whether they discussed this much or not because we never had much trouble with our rolls before the Council. We always tried to get it right and we stated that is all we could get up and I think they passed on it.

Q. Just accepted your representations on it?

A. Yes, sir; yes, sir.

Q. Well, how would the Council come to act on the roll?

A. Well, they adopted them and they would go through.

Q. The committee would make a report or not?

A. The committee makes a report to the Council.

Q. To the Council? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then what would the Council do with the report?

A. The council, of course, if they found the rolls correct according to the committee's report, why, they passed on it.

Q. And approved them? A. Approved them.

Q. Now, after that roll was made up and ratified by the Council, you had this tribal payment of '95, did you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you present at that payment? A. I was there.

Q. I will ask you if you recall anything about the payment that was made on account of these Atkins names appearing upon that roll?

A. No, I did not, but at the pay table, Judge Moore was the treasurer.

Q. You were there? A. I was there.

Q. Alright, sir; go ahead.

A. And there was the Euchee payment; there was some omitted—some that wasn't there, and those, Judge Moore says, I will just turn you over what is left—I can't be hanging around here for just a few, and you can pay them off yourself. He just turned that over to me. By that time, Minnie Atkins had come up before we left our chairs.

Q. Before you left your chairs?

A. Yes, we were there yet. She said, Uncle Sam, I want my money. That is the very words she said. I said to Judge, what about this, she is right here? Do I have to pay this money to her, and he said, Oh, pay it to her. So, I just paid the money to her.

Q. Do you remember just how much she received?

A. $57.60, I think that is correct. She received for four.

Q. For four? A. Yes.

Q. Now, that would be four times $15.40? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, who signed up for that money that she got?

A. I did.

Q. You think you did? A. Yes, sir, and Cornelius Carr.

Q. Cornelius Carr was the witness to the signatures?

A. Yes, sir, he was.

Q. I wish you would look at this original pay roll and look at the Atkins family here and the receipt of the money.

A. Well, there she is, right there. She got this and I got this here—I got this.

Q. Then Minnie signed for herself and three others?

A. Well, he witnesses it down here—Cornelius Carr—somewhere.

Q. Over here in this column?

A. Any way, she got the money, because I had the money in my hands and I paid it to her.

By the Court.

Q. Well, who wrote this right there?

A. I expect the clerk wrote that; that is her name.

By Mr. German.

Q. Either the clerk or Minnie wrote that?

A. Yes, sir. She drew the money because the money was turned over to me and I hadn't left the room yet.

Q. You hadn't left the room yet?

A. Yes, the Judge was still in his chair—hadn't left it—and I drew the other two, too.

Q. Did you give Minnie any of the money that you collected there for Nancy and Ed Schrimsher?

A. No, sir, she didn't get it.

By the Court.

Q. What relation is Schrimsher to Minnie Atkins?

A. They are two sister's children.

Q. Sister's children? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was a cousin of hers then?

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. German.

Q. Now, Mr. Brown, in 1895, did you have any personal knowledge of Minnie Atkins' children? A. I did not.

Q. What became of Minnie after the payment? Did she continue to live in the Indian Territory or not?

A. I don't think she did.

Q. At the time of this payment, what conversation was had with Minnie and you, or Minnie and Mr. Moore, if anything? A. At the time of the payment?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Well, she requested—she wanted her payment because I was her Town King—and she came to me—she thought Judge Moore still had the money in his possession. She said she wanted her money, was all she said.

Q. She thought Judge Moore still had her money?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any thing said about her family on that occasion?

A. I said how about these other two, and I said how about this—the list—why, just pay her what she contends for and hold the other; pay it yourself.

Q. So you held Nancy's and Ed's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Brown, did you have the knowledge of all the members of all the Euchee's band, or what was the extent of your acquaintanceship with your town?

A. You mean the Euchee Town?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Euchee tribe. I knew all the old ones but some of the young ones I didn't.

Q. You personally knew all the old ones?

A. All the old ones.

Q. Had there been any Thomas Atkins living among your people that you knew of after the death of old Thomas who was the father of Minnie? A. Thomas Atkins?

Q. Yes, sir, Thomas Atkins—after Thomas Atkins, the father of Minnie died. Was there any member of your Euchee people by the name of Thomas that you knew? A. No, sir.

Q. Was there any child by that name that you knew?

A. No, sir, except what the '95 showed.

Q. Except what the 1895 roll showed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you got your information about that as you stated? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was your sole information about any Thomas Atkins, a member of your town? A. Yes, sir.

The Court.

Q. What kin was Nancy Atkins to Minnie? A. Sister.

The Court.

Q. Who was Lee Atkins?

A. That is Minnie's brother—full brother.

Q. Is he living or dead? A. He is dead.

[Mr. German.]

Q. Do you personally know of any member of that old Atkins family who is living except Nancy?

A. Thomas Atkins' family, you mean?

Q. Yes, sir. A. Nancy and Minnie.

Q. Nancy and Minnie? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are they the only ones you know of living?

A. The only two living.

Q. Do you know Charlie and Harvey Harrison?

A. Charlie and Harvey—I knew them—I seen Charlie in 1897 and Katy Holden—Thomas Holden's wife.

Q. Who was Katy Holden? A. Minnie's half sister.

Q. Is she living or dead? A. She is dead.

Q. Is Tom Holden living or dead? A. He is dead.

Q. You say you saw Harvey at that time, or Charlie?

A. I said both of them.

Q. What sized or aged children? A. Oh, they were small.

Q. Have you ever seen any other person who it is claimed was the child of Minnie besides Harvey and Charlie?

A. No, I don't believe I ever saw any others.

Q. Did you ever know of a child, did you ever see a child who—a boy who claimed to be named Thomas Atkins, who claimed to be Minnie's child? A. No, I never did.

Q. None ever lived among your children that you ever knew of?

A. Just them two boys that I seen after that payment, you know.

Q. Mr. Brown, were you in Okmulgee, in May, 1901, when the Creek Council was considering the Original Creek Agreement? A. I was there.

Q. The Creek Agreement that was ratified? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On May 25, 1901? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember about some of the clerks of the Dawes Commission being there?

A. They was there all the time mostly; I can't say much about it but it——

Q. Did they ask you about the members of the—unaccounted for members of the Euchee Town? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The members that they found on the tribal roll that they had not been able to find out about? A. 1901?

Q. In 1901. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you give them the information about this name Thomas Atkins on the tribal roll—did you give the Dawes Commission any information about that name?

A. I don't know whether it was 1901, or afterwards. I can't remember exactly now.

Q. Did you ever talk with any clerk of the Dawes Commission about it? [A.] No, sir, I don't believe I did.

Q. How is that? A. I don't hardly think so.

Q. You don't hardly think so? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, over there in Okmulgee in May, 1901, do you now recall where the Dawes Commission met that was there doing the work—in what part of the Capitol Building they were? A. In the Capitol Building?

Q. Yes, sir, or were they in the Capitol Building?

A. Well, there was a tent there, on one side of the creek there.

Q. It was March that they were camped on the creek.

A. Some time in the fall.

Q. Then, when considering the Creek Agreement which you ratified May 21st, 1901, did the Dawes Commission have any clerks there in the Capitol Building? A. I think so.

Q. Did you appear before those clerks and talk before them about the members of the Euchee Town that they had not gotten any information about? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you give them any information about Thomas Atkins?

A. I don't know whether I did or not; I might have and I might have not.

Q. Did you know any more about that name Thomas Atkins about that time than you do now?

A. I don't know as much.

Q. You don't know as much. So that if you gave them any information, you simply told them what you told here on the stand?

A. That is all I know about it—the list I had. Yes, sir.

Q. Is John Davis living or dead? [A.] He is dead.

The Court: You say he is dead?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That little book that you had in which you wrote the names of this Atkins family in 1895 that John Davis gave you—— A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where has that been recently?

A. Why, it has been right in my trunk; I have a lot of them there, just like that. Not the Atkins on it but I keep my books.

Q. But that book, Mr. Long, has had it for some or four months, hasn't he?

A. I don't know what they done with it there; I got it a while ago.

Cross Examnation by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Brown? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew Ed. Schrimsher well, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew Minnie Atkins well, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew Nancy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew John Davis? A. Yes, sir.

Q. John Davis was Minnie's uncle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you are some kin to Minnie yourself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in 1895, John Davis gave you certain names, didn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were anxious to see that each Indian entitled to it got the payment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was your business? A. That was my business.

Q. And you kept this book for that purpose? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you keep this book correctly? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You kept it correctly? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Alright, now? A. Tried to.

Q. Now, this book—what do you call this book——

A. This book, some of it is the Euchee list—most of it.

Q. Made out by you?

A. Yes, sir, that is some accounts on there, I guess.

Q. Made out by you at the time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you note on this book each time that an Indian claimant got his money? Did you mark it paid?

A. Well, this account here is accounts.

Q. Well, yes, but this here, for instance. Did you put that Pd. here? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Paid; what does that mean?

A. That means paid, been paid.

Q. Meant that was paid?

A. That means the Creek Nation.

Q. Had paid those people? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when John Davis came in there, was Ed. Schrimsher with him? A. I believe not.

Q. Don't you remember that Ed was with him?

A. I believe not.

Q. Well, you and John Davis went over the Atkins family together, didn't you? He told you there names.

A. We never did go over the Atkins family.

Q. Well, but he gave you the names on here?

A. Yes, sir, that is alright.

Q. The first name is Ed Schrimsher, you knew him?

A. Yes.

Q. And you knew him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The next is Mamie Atkins, or Minnie Atkins?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The next one is Charlie? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The next one Susan? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The next one Thomas? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you wrote that Minnie Atkins, right there, didn't you, Mr. Brown? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was to indicate that this was Minnie Atkins' family, wasn't it? A. Yes, she drew that money.

Q. Now, then, when John Davis gave you these names —John Davis told you—he called over Minnie Atkins, and you knew Minnie, of course, and Charlie, and Sue, and Thomas and Mary, and told you those were Minnie's children, didn't he?

A. Didn't say whether they were Minnie's children or not but said that is the family.

Q. This is the family; said this is the name. And the last name on there is Nancy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is Minnie's sister? A. Yes, sir, her sister.

Q. Now, we will talk about this roll a little. You are a Euchee, are you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you have lived in that Euchee town for many, many years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew all the older people, you say?

[A.] I knew pretty near all of them.

Q. Now, we will take this '90 roll; of course the 1890 roll was made out in 1890, wasn't it, and the '95 roll in 1895?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Thomas Atkins, the old Thomas as you call him was a Light-horse man, wasn't he? A. Used to be.

Q. Used to be a Light-horse man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And he died about 20 years before the '90 roll, didn't he? How long before that?

A. He died along in 1877 or '76.

Q. And his wife Mary died long before the '90 roll?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew it, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew you weren't putting any dead men on that roll, didn't you? A. Couldn't.

Q. You didn't intend to put anybody dead on there, did you? A. No, sir.

Q. And you knew that that Thomas and that Mary were dead, didn't you, Mr. Brown? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew that. Now, the way that you gathered this information, Mr. Brown, was by inquiring from members of the family, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And kept in touch with them as Town King the best you could? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But as the younger generation came on that information would have to be furnished you by members of the family? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You relied upon this information that John Davis gave you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Believing that it was correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And true? A. No one disputed it.

Q. Wouldn't dispute it. And you took that before the Creek Council, didn't you, Mr. Brown? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the matter was examined by the Creek Council, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And after they examined it, they ratified it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And there were a good many people around the Creek Council that were Euchee Indians, weren't they?

A. Well, sometimes.

Q. And very well acquainted in the community just like you were? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And with those facts in mind, the Creek Council took that roll and examined it and ratified those names as members of the Creek Nation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, this money that you said you paid was $67.50 —who did you pay that to? A. Minnie.

Q. How many did she draw for? A. Drawed for four.

Q. Drew for four. That would be herself and three more, would it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Drew four? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you do know that Lee Atkins was a brother of Minnie? A. Full brother.

Q. And a brother of Nancy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Minnie was claiming simply to draw for herself and her children, wasn't she? That is what she told you?

A. That is what she claimed.

Q. Now, Mr. Brown, the names on this book are all Euchees, aren't they? A. All Euchees.

Q. This is a Euchee list? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And a Coweta Indian wouldn't be on a Euchee list, would he? A. Hardly.

Q. And old man Thomas Atkins was a Coweta?

A. Coweta.

Q. And he wouldn't have been put on this Euchee list on any circumstances? A. No, sir, not his family.

Cross Examination by Mr. Rosser.

Q. Now, Mr. Brown? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say this is a list of the Euchees? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And this list here is a list of the Atkins family, the relationship? A. Yes, sir.

Q. E. A. Skrimpsher is a brother of Nancy Atkins and Minnie Atkins' mother? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, that, then, made Nancy and Minnie and Ed Skrimpsher cousins. Now, in this list seven names appear altogether? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is Ed Skrimpsher, Minnie Atkins, Thomas Atkins, Susie Atkins, Mary and Nancy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you paid Minnie the money for four people?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You kept the money of Ed Skrimpsher and Nancy, or at least you drew that? A. I drew that.

Q. What was done with the other, the fifth, the extra one? You drew for two? A. She drew for four.

Q. She drew for four and you got two, what do you remember what was done about that? A. No, I don't.

Q. You don't remember that? A. No, sir.

Q. You stated a while ago that when this list was given you by Mr. Davis that he made no statement to you as to what relation these different persons were except that they were the Atkins connection? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he state to you which one was the child of the other? A. No, sir, he didn't. I knew the others.

Q. You knew Ed Skrimpsher and Minnie and Nancy?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. But you didn't know the other names? A. No, sir.

Q. And he didn't tell you what kin they were to the others? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, Judge Stuart asked you if Minnie didn't say they were her children, but as I understood you to say a while ago when Mr. German was examining you, that she didn't say they were her children, but she just wanted money for four. A. Yes, she wanted money for four.

Q. What did she say about the relationship?

A. She didn't say anything, but my thought struck me it was her children.

Q. In other words she wanted money for four and you just supposed they were her children and paid it to her under that supposition? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But she didn't actually state to you that they were her children?

A. No, sir, the thought, I was convinced in thinking over it that they were her children because I knew the others.

Q. You were living about forty miles west of here then?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Nancy was living here or at Wagoner?

A. Somewhere.

Q. How long had it been up to the time the 1890 roll was made that you had seen Nancy? A. Not for some time.

Q. Just what do you mean by that? A. Year or two.

Q. You hadn't seen her for quite a while?

A. No, sir, I could hear where they were.

Q. But you hadn't seen her for a long time? A. No, sir.

Q. How long prior to the making of that roll had it been since you saw Minnie? A. Some time.

Q. Several years? A. Several years.

Q. You didn't see her at all about the time you made the 1890 roll? A. No, sir, not at that payment.

Q. Judge, there is one other question I want to ask you; I notice you have this name Mamie Atkins?

A. It is the same person.

Q. I know it is the same person but I want to know why you wrote it that way?

A. Just naturally sometimes a person in a hurry. I know that is Minnie Atkins.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, we would like to offer this book in evidence as Defendant's Exhibit B-1.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cruce.

Q. Mr. Brown, you don't remember of course the exact words of all the conversation between you and Mr. Davis in 1895? A. Couldn't.

Mr. German: Your Honor, I don't want to be captious, but Judge Stuart and Mr. Cruce represent the same client.

The Court: Well, so far as you can, gentlemen, confine yourselves to one for each side. I would rather have you do that than to have one counsel interrupt the other by making suggestions because I think we would get along faster.

Q. You knew Nancy Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew she was at Muskogee sometimes and sometimes at Wagoner? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You never heard of her having any children?

A. Well, I heard something about that, but I heard her children was dead.

Q. So, when Minnie came there in 1895 and drew the money for three children and herself, you just had the thought in your mind that the children were her children?

A. Well, let me state that over. The Creek Council had passed an act that anyone outside the limits of the Creek Nation could not get the money, and I just supposed that she wasn't getting anything but only getting the four on the list.

Q. You supposed she was not drawing for herself but was drawing for four children?

A. That is the way I had it in my mind.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. That was just a mere supposition on your part?

A. Yes, sir, I forgot that because that is the way I felt.

Q. You stated you knew old Tommy Atkins and old Mary Atkins, if I may express it that way, who died. Had you known a member of that family by the name of Susan?

A. No, sir. Mary Atkins and Minnie Atkins.

Q. In the olden days, away back after the war, did you know a Susan Atkins?

A. No, sir, I did not. That is where I got the information, from old Uncle John Davis.

Q. John Davis gave you the information and that is all you know about it? A. Yes, sir.

Judge Stuart: This is page 8. (Defendant's Exhibit B-1.)

The Court: It may be admitted.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cobb.

Q. After these pay rolls, 1890 and 1895, had been accepted by the Creek Council, in case there were any errors upon them, were they subject to correct at that time?

A. Please repeat. (Question read by the reporter.) It was.

Q. Anybody questioning the right of a party upon any one of those rolls could have the matter adjusted even up to the time of the payment, couldn't they?

A. Well, I never questioned it. They had a perfect right.

Q. They could have done it? A. Yes, but never did.

Q. This payment was made to Minnie at the time without any question being made?

A. Wasn't any question. Because the treasurer of the Creek Nation requested me to pay her.

Q. At this payment in 1895 Minnie drew what she was entitled to at that payment? A. That is what I said.

Q. And you drew what Nancy was entitled to?

A. Yes, she didn't draw it.

Q. And you drew all that she was entitled to there at that payment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew Nancy well and had known her for years?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Knew all her family? A. Yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Rosser.

Q. Judge, how long had it been at the time this money was paid since you had seen or talked with Nancy Atkins?

A. Which one?

Q. At the 1890 payment how long since you had seen Nancy and talked to her? A. I didn't see her.

Q. Hadn't seen her for a long time?

A. No, they are kind of straglers.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. You stated that you had heard that Nancy Atkins had a child and that it was dead? A. Yes, sir, I heard that.

Q. When had you heard that, Major?

A. Oh, might have been in 1887 or 1886.

Q. You mean 1887 or 1897? A. 1886 or '87.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, NOAH G. GREGORY, was called sworn as a witness on behalf of the Government, and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Pinson.

Q. You may state your name? A. Noah Gregory.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Gregory?

A. I live near Jenks, Oklahoma.

Q. Where is Jenks?

A. It is about ten miles this side of Tulsa in Tulsa County.

Q. How far is it from Muskogee? A. About forty miles.

Q. What direction is it from Muskogee?

A. West, a little northwest.

Q. Are you a Creek Citizen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of what band or town of the Creek Nation are you a member? A. Euchee.

Q. Have you ever occupied any official position with regard to that town?

A. Yes, sir, I used to be a member of Council, member of the House of Kings and also House of Warriors.

Q. Do you recall now at what period you were Town King and what period you were a Warrior?

A. No, sir, I can't state the period.

Q. You do remember what your official position was in 1890?

A. I think it must have been in that year I was a—belonged to the House of Kings, during all the time Perryman was Chief.

Q. Mr. Gregory, do you recall a convention over which you presided in connection with the making of the 1890 roll for Euchee Town, for the twenty-nine-dollar payment?

A. Yes, sir. We had a convention near Kellyville, about a mile south of town, south of Kellyville, at the Euchee Busk Ground.

Q. What creek is that near?

A. Pole Cat, right on Pole Cat.

Q. Do you know Samuel W. Brown?

A. Yes, sir, known him all my life.

Q. Were you in Okmulgee in May, 1901, during the time that the Dawes Commission was holding an enrollment office there with the Creek Council just before the Original Creek Agreement was ratified?

A. Yes, sir, I remember I was called there by the Dawes Commission to help them to enroll the names and to correct the roll that I had, and in comparing them with the rolls that they had.

Q. Do you recall any of the persons there as employees of the Dawes Commission there at that time?

A. I remember Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Hastings more distinctly than any of them.

Q. There were several employees of the Dawes Commission there? A. Oh, yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall the occasion of certain of the employees going over the Euchee Roll with you, or portions of the Euchee Roll at about that time?

A. Yes, sir, I remember well that Mr. Hopkins and I sat there all day, and he complained about taking so much cold and how many handkerchiefs he used that day by speaking to another lady, and that is why I remember Mr. Hopkins so well; and more particularly there was one lady we had by the name of Sina Jack, and she had married two persons by the name of Jack, and we had quite a laugh about one woman having lived with two Jacks.

Q. On that occasion—— On that occasion there in connection with some employee of the Dawes Commission, did you have occasion to refer to the name of Minnie Atkins as appearing on the 1895 Tribal Roll?

A. I remember that Minnie Atkins very distinctly when we come to that name. Every name we come to he would ask me if that person was living and where they were. And I told him that the last I heard of her was that she had went to Colorado; I didn't know where she was living, we had tried to find out if she was living but we hadn't been able to locate her.

Q. Did you at that time or about that time have any information as to certain children of Minnie Atkins who were then residents of the Indian Territory?

A. Yes, sir, I remember on one occasion I went to Muskogee and went back from Muskogee with Tom Holden; I think he said he had two of Minnie Atkins' children there with him, that he wanted to make a selection for them, to file for them; but he hadn't yet. And I heard by others too that they were there at his house.

Q. How many?

A. Two of them, that was my recollection.

Q. Did you know anything about their names then?

A. No, sir, [I] didn't, I don't remember.

Q. You simply learned that she had two children living with Thomas Holden? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know either one of them personally?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever known either of them personally?

A. No, sir. S*mme*s to me I met one of them four or five years ago, but I don't know which one.

Q. Did you have any personal knowledge, or did you know any of the persons of the immediate family of Minnie Atkins?

A. No, sir, I knew Lee Atkins and I knew Nancy but didn't know Minnie personally.

Q. Didn't know Minnie personally?

A. At that time, no, sir.

Q. Did you know Minnie's father or mother?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know what the names of Minnie's father and mother were?

A. I have heard that her father's name was Thomas Atkins, that is all.

Q. Simply hearsay? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you ever know the members of the Euchee Town in a general way, all of them?

A. Yes, sir, I knew most of the Euchees, only those that lived off and scattered distances away from the main settlement.

Q. Did you know where Lee lived?

A. Yes, sir, he was around Eufaula and Checotah mostly.

Q. Do you know when he died?

A. No, sir, I can't recall the time.

Q. Do you know whether he was dead in 1901?

A. I think he was. He wasn't living then.

Q. Where did Nancy live?

A. She used to live here in Muskogee most of the time when I first knew her she used to be at Eufaula.

Q. When was that? A. That was along in 1879.

Q. Now, was Nancy present at Okmulgee in May, 1901?

A. No, sir.

Q. At that enrollment period? A. I didn't meet her.

Q. Was Thomas Holden present over there?

A. No, sir, not at that time.

Q. Was any member of Minnie's immediate family that you know of present at that time?

A. No, sir, wasn't any of them.

Q. Sam Brown was present, wasn't he?

A. Yes, he was there I think.

Q. Was Muskogee or Wagoner or Eufaula a Euchee settlement, either one of those three places, were there any Euchees living in those places?

A. No, sir, just a few that were scattered.

Q. Where were the Euchees mostly grouped, where did they live?

A. They lived mostly along on Snake Creek and Pole Cat, and some above Bristow.

Q. That is what part of the Creek Nation?

A. That is west.

Q. Muskogee and Eufaula and Wagoner are in the eastern part?

A. Yes, sir, they went by Snake Creek settlement, and Big Pond settlement, and Pole Cat settlement of Euchees.

Q. Do you now recall what was the name of the child of Minnie whom you afterwards met personally?

A. Name of the child?

Q. Yes?

A. No, sir, I don't know even today. I heard some of them say she had two boys, one of them named Harvey and Charlie.

Q. I mean from your personal knowledge you don't know to this day? A. No, sir.

Q. You suggested a while ago that you might have met one of them four or five years ago, do you remember that one?

A. No, sir.

Q. Was it Charlie Harrison or Harvey Harrison, do you recall? A. No, sir.

Q. And in 1901 you were not acquainted with any of Minnie's immediate family outside of Nancy and Lee?

A. Well, I knew John Davis, her Uncle, and then old lady Robinson, William Robinson's wife that was an aunt of hers, I knew her well.

Q. You knew no closer relatives?

A. I knew them personally.

Q. Do you know, or did you ever know during your residence among the Euchee, officially and privately know of any members of Euchee Town—know personally any members of the Euchee Town being Thomas Atkins? A. No, sir.

Mr. Pinson: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cruce.

Q. Mr. Gregory, when you were down there at Okmulgee, there was a committee down there representing the Creek Tribe, wasn't there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You don't know what information they gave the Dawes Commission with reference to Tommy Atkins?

A. I don't know, but there was not any committee that had any higher authority than we did to give in that particular town.

Q. I say you don't know what information they gave that commission? A. No, I don't.

Q. There were some of the kings there, were there?

A. There might have been but it wasn't acceptable.

Q. I say there were some of the kings there?

A. Yes, other kings from different towns.

Q. You don't know what information Mr. Bixby got down there? A. No, I don't.

Q. You don't know what information Col. Needles got down there? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, you do remember distinctly, you say, about you and Mr. Hopkins discussing Minnie's name? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you told him that you knew Minnie Atkins?

A. No, sir, I couldn't have told him so because I don't tell things I don't know.

Q. Well, you didn't know her then?

A. No, sir, I didn't know her.

Q. You told him she had gone off to Colorado?

A. I had heard that.

Q. From whom? A. From different ones.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Hopkins also that you had also heard that she had certain children?

A. Yes, I think she had some children.

Q. Well, what did you tell him about Tommy there at that time when you had the roll of 1895 which had Thomas' name on it? A. I don't remember what I did tell him.

Q. You gave him all the information you knew?

A. Yes, sir, all I knew.

Q. You don't remember what information you did give him, but all the information you had at that time and the best you had you gave him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was your purpose? A. Yes, sir.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon E. HASTAIN, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Please state your name, age and residence.

A. E. Hastain; age, 47; residence, Muskogee.

Q. You were formerly engaged in the work of enrolling citizens of the Creek Nation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During what period of time were you in that work?

A. I don't remember just exactly but in 1900 and 1901.

Q. Do you remember of going to Okmulgee with a party for the purpose of enrolling what is know- as unaccounted for citizens of the Creek Nation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Prior to that time had you been engaged in the work of enrolling Creeks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What had been the plan of the Commission adopted prior to that time with reference to getting information concerning the right to enrollment of members of the tribe?

A. Members of the tribe—that is head of families and where they were single and of age, appeared in person.

Q. You required the personal appearance of the allottee —of the enrollee, or some member of his family in the event he was a minor or incapable of enrolling himself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you went to Okmulgee with that party what was the purpose of going there?

A. Well, there might have been more reasons than one for going but perhaps the special reason was the council was in session and the Commission went out there because there was a large number of citizens attending council, and they could be enrolled and receive their allotment at that place.

Q. Had you before that time held out an invitation to the Creeks to come in and be enrolled and gone into the field and enrolled all of those that you could find?

A. The Commission had had field parties and also the office at Muskogee was kept open at all the time.

Q. Do you remember what effort was made, if any, to get the members of the tribe and heads of the family to appear at Okmulgee to get enrolled? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was the United States Marshal and his deputies there at that time and assisting in any way?

A. They were there, yes, sir.

Q. Had an order by the United States Court been issued to bring in citizens for the purpose of enrolling them?

A. I don't remember just that order.

Q. Did you know when you went to Okmulgee and commence- that work that you would change the plan that you had formerly adopted for the enrollment of these people, requiring their personal appearance?

A. We didn't know it at the time we went out.

Q. Did you adopt any different method after you got to —after you reached Okmulgee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. With reference to the date of the ratification of the Original Creek Agreement on May 25th, 1901, when was that change of policy made?

A. I don't remember exactly but a few days before that; before the 25th.

Q. What was the reason for the change?

A. There seemed to be an opinion among members of the Creek Council that if they should ratify the treaty, some members of the tribe would not be enrolled and their names would be left off and that the Commission would be without authority to place their names upon the roll.

Q. The Commission desired that the Creeks ratify that agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When that opinion—that information was conveyed to the Commission, what instruction, if any, was given the people there engaged to enrolling these citizens with reference to their enrollment?

A. We did this: we took the 1890 and the 1895 rolls and we put the names of those who had not been enrolled upon cards; every name that had not already been enrolled was placed upon a card.

Q. During the last two or three days you were engaged in the work of enrolling all of the citizens, all of the names appearing upon the tribal rolls where they had not formerly been enrolled, about how many names per day did you enroll?

A. I couldn't give the information as to the number each day.

Q. Did you, during those few days, require the personal appearance of th*ese* enroll*l*ee, or any member of his family?

A. No, sir.

Q. What means did you adopt to get information concerning these unaccounted for names?

A. Well, in so far as we could, we got information about them—there were a large number, however, and we could not get information about all of them at that particular time.

Q. Who did you seek information from?

A. From some Chief of the Warriors or some kind of a member of the tribe.

Q. Did you during those days, take the town roll to the Town King and enroll all names appearing upon the tribal roll unless he had information that they were not entitled to enrollment?

A. Possibly; if we had information that they were not entitled to enrollment we did not put their names on the card —otherwise we did.

Q. That was, you mean, during these last two or three days? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In making up the roll or census card of Creek Indians, where a*n* minor was enrolled, did you by cross-reference or otherwise, give the name and card of his child?

A. That was generally the practice those few days we might have enrolled some and not have done that.

Q. Was that the practice in all cases where the friend of the family gave you the information? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I hand you the Government's Exhibit A-1, Mr. Hastain, and will ask you if you know who prepared that card?

A. Yes, sir, Mr. Edward Merrick.

Q. Do you know whether that name represents one of the unaccounted for names enrolled at Okmulgee?

A. That was a card made on May 23rd, when we were placing all those names on cards.

Q. Was that card prepared during the last period—the last two or thee days before—— A. Yes, sir.

Q. The ratification of the agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is there anything on that card, any marks indicating who applied for the enrollment or whether any one did or not for the enrollment of this party? A. No, sir.

Q. I hand you the original of Government's Exhibit A-30, the tribal roll of 1895 and ask you to examine that in connection with the census card of Thomas Atkin-, Government's Exhibit A-1, and state whether or not that roll was before this enrollment party at Okmulgee when that car- was made.

A. Yes, sir, this was taken from the 1895 pay roll at Euchee Town.

Q. How can you tell?

A. From the information on the card. It says 1895 Euchee, No. 213, ans it says No. 1, on 1895, authenticated roll No. 213, Thomas Atkins.

Q. And field number, is there any——

A. Then following the names on the pay roll, in pencil 2774; that means that that name appears on field number census card no 2774.

Q. Does the fact that Thomas Atkins' name appears below the name of Minnie Atkins indicates whether or not he is a child of Minnie Atkins, or would it have indicated that to you at Okmulgee, in the enrollment of this party?

A. It might have, yes, sir.

Q. In the answer of other information than disclosed by the roll would you have put him on the roll as a son of Minnie Atkins from his appearance in the list of Minnie Atkins in the '95 roll?

> Mr. Cruce: If the Court please, we don't think that question is competent. If there is nothing on the roll that itself indicated—on the card that itself indicates the relationship—the Court, I think, is as competent to judge it as the witness.
> The Court: Well, unless there was a well defined practice with relation to this roll in making those census cards, and it was treated in a certain [] in regard to those lists of families; this man was there assisting; he did not make this card. We have not before us, now, the man who made this card.

Mr. Allen: That is true, but he was with other member- of the party at Okmulgee in making the census cards at this particular time.

The Court: Well, he may answer.

Mr. Cruce: Exceptions.

A. I might have in the absence of any other information.

Q. Mr. Hastain, in making this roll, this census card at Okmulgee, did the party, enrollment party, have before it the tribal roll of 1800? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was any information received from that roll concerning Thomas Atkins?

A. Evidently not, because his age was given as 10 years and the party who wrote this card evidently didn't look on the '90 roll, because his name would not appear there if he was 10 years of age.

Q. Is there any other information that that card discloses that shows that the 1890 roll was not used?

Mr. Cruce: Just a moment. If the court please, we move to exclude the answer to the former question, because that is clearly a conclusion that the witness is drawing, that the court might make or not make, as the facts authorized.

The Court: Well, the court probably would make it or not, could make it for himself anyway, regardless of this witness—of course it is evident to anyone that this made in 1901, enrolling a child whose age was given as 10 years, enrolled a person who could not in any event have been on an 1890 roll.

Mr. Allen: Here is the question; I will ask the witness the question——

Q. Would the tribal enrollment of this party have shown the rolls of 1895 and 1900, if they had reviewed the 1890 roll in making—strike that question, please.

The Court: I understand now you are seeking to ask him whether or not the practice was such in regard to these cards that if the person making this census card had had before him information at the time, of the making of the 1890, as well as the '95 roll, would there have been a notation on there that the 1890 roll was reviewed as well as the 1895.

A. There would have been a notation on here if he had been identified on the 1890 roll.

Q. You find no such notation on the card?

A. No such notation on the card.

Q. Are you familiar with the practice of the party at Muskogee in the enrollment of these unaccounted for Creeks during the last two or three days of that work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. If they had had any information at that time as to where Thomas Atkins was living—rather, as to with whom he was living, would it have been noted upon this card?

A. Yes, sir, it would have been noted there.

Q. If at that time a member of the House of Kings sitting at the table with the party enrolling this name had given the information that Minnie Atkins was the mother of two boys, the names of whom he did not know, and that one of those boys was about 10 years old, would that have afforded the information contained upon that card?

A. It would have.

Q. In connection with the tribal roll of 1895?

A. It would have, yes, sir.

Q. Is or is not that—is that true or not with reference to the work of enrolling the Creeks which was done prior to this rush period at Okmulgee? A. No, sir.

> Mr. Allen: Where I have referred to exhibit 30—A-30 in the examination of this witness, I should have referred to Government's Exhibit A-2, the exhibit that I handed the witness was Government's Exhibit A-2, instead of Government's Exhibit A-30.

Q. How many people were engaged in the work of enrolling these citizens, these unaccounted for names at Okmulgee during the last few days of this work?

A. I can't give the exact number; Mr. Bixby, Mr. Hopkins, Mr. Merrick, Mr. Leiber, Mr. Beavers, and some others also assisted.

Q. But those were the only people who were authorized to place the names upon these census cards?

A. Just those I have mentioned, yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Beavers, do you know where he is now?

A. I don't think that he is living.

Q. You think he is dead. Mr. Bixby is living?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Hopkins has testified and Mr. Leiber is here.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And yourself, are the only ones whom were engaged in the work of putting those names upon the census cards——

A. Mr. Merrick.

Q. Mr. Merrick? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you say approximately how many cards were made each day during the last two or three days of this work?

A. That would just be a guess. There was something like 2500 enrolled during that particular month and most of them were enrolled in those few days.

Q. Was that an unusual number? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you exercise the same care in the enrollment of those people as you did at other times? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have any personal recollection of Thomas Atkins? A. No, sir.

Q. Or ever having heard of him? A. No, sir.

Q. Was Mr. Bixby with you during the last few days at Okmulgee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was any other member of the Commission there?

A. I can not say positively about that; I don't remember.

Q. Mr. Bixby was the only one that you have any recollection? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Hopkins was overseeing the work, was he?

A. Yes, sir, he was the chief clerk.

Q. And you and Mr. Merrick and Mr. Lieber were doing the actual work of enrolling these people?

A. Yes, sir; all worked, I think—each one did as much as he could.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Hastain, at Okmulgee, very naturally a large number of witnesses appeared before the Commission, didn't they?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Many hundreds of them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were taking the evidence all the time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the main point toward which you were directing your attention and Mr. Bixby, and Mr. Hopkins, and Mr. Beavers, and Mr. Leiber was to find out first whether that Indian had died prior to April 1st, 1899, didn't you?

A. We did that in every instance.

Q. Every case, didn't you?

A. As a rule we did, yes, sir.

Q. Your inquiry was to determine whether that particular Indian had died prior to April 1st, '99, or after April 1st, wasn't it? If you found out that he died prior to that time, you didn't list him, did you? A. No, sir.

Q. If you found out he died after that time you did?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the main inquiry to which you directed you- attention there at that time and your associates was to find out that one fact when he died? Wasn't it?

A. I think perhaps that is true. I think the rolls were perhaps gone over with the Town King, and if he knew of any one who was dead, the notation was made in pencil and that name was not transferred to a card.

Q. Now, then, you had two distinct kinds of census card at Okmulgee, didn't you? One was a completed and one an incomplete card?

A. We had all the card with us, yes, sir.

Q. Well, I mean this: you had one card that you called a completed card, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then, you had one card that you called an incomplete card, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. If you had a card completed, you never did that until you satisfied yourself with evidence that the man was living at April 1st, '99, did you?

A. Not if it was what we called a completed card.

Q. A completed card? A. No, sir.

Q. If your card was complete now, you had as a member of the Commission and all your men determined the question as to when he died? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then you had the age and the sex? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And his parentage and everything that decides that man you put on that completed card, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you had finished the completed card, you had satisfied yourself by evidence that your card was right, hadn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when you had the incomplete card, you would wait until further investigation could be had? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you made that subsequent investigation, you completed that card, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in the meantime, Mr. Bixby would frequently come into your room and confer with you about the man who was entitled to enrollment, wouldn't he?

A. Well, he was there all the time; I imagine that is true.

Q. Going in and out and you talked with him about some of these Indians, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was actively in the work, wasn't he, Mr. Hastain?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Actively in the work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Giving it his personal attention as far as he could?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you went out to get evidence upon which this enrollment must have been made, you consulted those that you thought were most familiar with the transaction, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You would go, for instance, to Euchee Town, to one of the Kings—you would send for him and get him in there, and talk with him about his family, wouldn't you, and talk about the members of that community?

A. I never was out with a field party.

Q. I mean come into your place. The Kings would do it and the Warriors would do it, and individuals—all ginving you what information they could with reference to the particular town in which they lived? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your purpose all the time was to exhaust every source of evidence that you could find, wasn't it?

A. Satisfy ourselves, yes, sir.

Q. And your purpose was to make a correct roll, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you thought you were making a correct roll, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you never enrolled a single person that you didn't think was entitled to enrollment, did you? A. I never did.

Q. Never did? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever know anybody else to do it out there? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, you were assisted there by the officers of the Court; the Marshal was out there helping you round them up, wasn't he? To get the people in—as far as you remember that—or do you remember that?

A. I remember their being there.

Q. You remember it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You remember also field parties were out investigating it; looking up these citizens?

A. At different times; I don't know about this particular time.

Q. At different times? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as a matter of fact, Mr. Hastain, do you know of a single case where the Commission through Mr. Bixby or Mr. Needles, or any other member of the Commission, a single case where they sent the official roll to Washington with their approval, to the Secretary—do you know of a single case where they did not make an investigation?

A. I don't know of a case.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Hastain, I call your attention to Government's Exhibit A-1. There is a notation in the bottom of the right hand—lower right hand there, and I will ask you to state what that shows.

A. It says the date of application for enrollment May 23rd, 1901. That was the date that this card was made.

Q. That was the date that this census card was made out by the enrolling clerk, or member of the Commission, or whoever it was that made it out? You didn't make out this card, did you? A. No, sir.

Q. What was the custom in regard to indicating on the card what application was made for enrollment?

A. Well, that was the custom to put down in the right hand corner the date on which the card was at least started. There might have been information obtained later—on a later date but that was the date on which the card was begun.

Q. Then, this card is made out in the usual form so far as it indicates, whatever was done in the way of an application being made for enrollment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This conforms to the customary census card, in that regard? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is all that would be shown on a card as to any question for application for enrollment?

A. Well, unless it was a contested case; then, the information would be there, see enrollment case number so and so—giving the number.

Q. Mr. Hastain, you stated or I understood you to state, that because this Exhibit No. 1 showed that the applicant was upon the 1895 roll, that the name was taken from the 1895 roll for enrollment on the census card—for listing on the census card. Is it not a fact, Mr. Hastain, that when a name was presented for enrollment, the enrolling clerk or officer would check that name as to the roll and indicate what roll it was upon?

A. Yes, sir, he would show if they were on the 1890 roll up there at the, tip would show that he was on the 1890 roll and the page. Then, down below, we would indicate that No. 1, appeared upon the 1895 roll.

Q. That would not indicate however that he was listed for enrollment necessarily by taking his name from the roll, without any other application being made. In other words, the reference to the tribal roll was put on each card where their names were found to be on that card? A. That is true.

Q. So that there is no indication here as to whether the name was merely taken from the roll and subsequently investigated, or whether application was formerly made by some person, by some individual in his behalf, or by him?

A. It shows what the card shows.

Q. You stated that you might have taken the name of the other from the authenticated tribal roll of 1895 where the applicants' name appears on that roll underneath her. You didn't make out this card? A. No, sir.

Q. You couldn't have obtained the parentage as to the father from the 1895 roll could you? A. No, sir.

Q. Therefore, where the card contained an indication as to the father, that would indicate that evidence from some other source was received as to that part, as to that entry on the census card, would it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Hastings, was it customary to refer in every case to both the 1890 and 1895 rolls? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, if an allottee who was enrolled upon one of these census cards as ten years of age at the date of enrollment, was that at the date of enrollment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And his name appeared upon the 1890 roll, but the census card did not show that he was enrolled upon the 1890 roll, that would be a mistake as to his age, would it not?

A. If his name was on the 1890 roll, that would be a mistake as to his age, yes, sir.

Q. Then, because the enrolling officer had his age at ten years, whereas, if he had taken his name from the roll, the 1890 roll, he had found him on the 1890 roll, he would know that he wasn't ten years of age; that would indicate also that he had gotten his name from some source besides the roll, would it not? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Hanford: That is all.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. I had you Government's Exhibit A-29, which is a certified copy of the census roll of Euchee Town, 1890, and ask you whether or not Thomas Atkins was enrolled upon that roll?

A. Thomas and Mary, two children, in the same list with Minnie Atkins.

Q. Where do they appear in that list?

A. They are in parenthesis just to the right of the name Minnie Atkins.

Q. Do their names appear upon the roll as enrolled citizens? A. You mean upon the 1890 roll?

Q. Yes?

A. Yes, sir, I would say so. I could tell better if I had the original, but I don't see any indication that those names had been placed on the census card.

Q. Is there a number opposite the name of the other enrolled citizens upon that roll? A. Yes, sir, but not these.

Q. If the Commission had determined that they were enrolled upon that roll, would not they have so stated on the census card identified as Government's Exhibit A-1?

A. Yes, sir, there would have been a census card made out for Thomas and Mary.

Q. You say you are familiar with the custom of enrolling—of the Commission in enrollment of these people during the last few days at Okmulgee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. If the Commission had observed, had have known that the mother of this ten-year-old Thomas Atkins was a non-citizen, or rather was a non-resident of the Creek Nation, and hadn't had any information as to who this party was living with, would they have sent this card up for approval?

A. No, sir.

Q. If they had had that information, would it be contained upon the card? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How then do you account for this name being contained in the schedule sent up for approval?

A. I don't know, I don't understand just how that was sent up.

Q. If they had had any information as to who he was living with, it would have been contained on the card?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Judge Stuart has asked you about the care exercised by Mr. Bixby in the enrollment of these people. That had reference to the names that he passed upon when he signed the schedule transmitting them to the Secretary?

A. I had reference to the general practices, the usual way of enrolling citizens.

Q. And you had reference to the care exercised by him when he transmitted the schedule to the Secretary?

A. Yes, sir. Mr. Bixby was very careful about those things.

Q. Was he more careful or not than the other members of the Commission?

A. I think Mr. Bixby was the only member of the Commission that really understood the Creek enrollment work.

Q. The others paid little attention to the work of enrolling the Creeks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. These words: "Date of application for enrollment," printed or stamped above "May 23, 1901," can you tell when that was stamped on that card?

The Court: I guess there will be no controversy but what that was put upon the card just two or three years ago. That is the evidence in the case.

Mr. German: If there isn't any controversy that question should be withdrawn.

Mr. Rosser: There isn't any controversy as far as we are concerned.

The Court: That it was placed there long after the cards were made up, and within the last two or three years.

Mr. Allen: Then, of course, that doesn't indicate——

The Court: Clearly it wasn't put on there at the time the card was made.

Mr. Allen: It therefore does not indicate that an application was made for this enrollment. I think that is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Hastings, I hand you the original of the census roll of Euchee Town of the Muskogee Nation, known as the 1890 roll.

Mr. Hanford: Was this introduced in evidence?

Mr. Allen: A certified copy of it was.

Q. That is the same roll as Government's Exhibit A-29 which you have just examined and testified to in regard to, is it not? You may compare them. I don't think there is any controversy but what this is the same roll?
A. This doesn't look like——

The Court: This exhibit here is evidently not a photographic copy of this page that the witness has before him.

Mr. Hanford: This is the photographic copy of this, Your Honor. And this is the original which I hand him.

Mr. Allen: This is treated as the copy of the original and the copy has always been treated by them as the authenticated 1890 roll.

Mr. Hanford: I mean the other which is treated as the authenticated roll is a carbon of this. I am using this in connection with this exhibit because it is plainer, Your Honor.

The Court: They must be identical then if one is a carbon of the other.

Mr. Allen: It is a fact that this was just found recently.

Q. I used it to indicate here. Will you please read this in the order in which it is written? A. Card No. 2?
Q. Yes, here is what I want: That on the original it is plainer, it shows the name of Mamie Atkins, the symbol and and the parenthesis; inside the parenthesis two children, and then in the space above Tommy the symbol & Mary and parenthesis. Is that right? A. That is correct.
Q. The parenthesis mark is outside the whole.

Mr. Allen: The parenthesis mark appears after the word children. Two children in parenthesis.

Mr. Hanford: Well, the copy will show.

Q. Mr. Hasting, I will ask you if that doesn't indicate that the words Tommy and Mary following the comma and written above in that way would indicate that that was the names of two children?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as calling for the opinion of the witness.

The Court: Well, he is a man who is familiar with these rolls and has worked with them in enrolling these citizens. If it has any significance to him as a man in the nature of an expert he may answer.

Mr. Allen: We except.

A. I would take that to mean that Tommy and Mary were two children.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. If you had had at that time information that the father and mother of Minnie Atkins were named Thomas Atkins and Mary Atkins, and that Tommy and Mary Atkins died in 1877 and '78, and that Minnie did not have any child named Mary, and did not have any child named Tommy, would you then say that they intended these two people to represent her children or that they were identifying Minnie by giving the names of her parents?

Mr. Stuart: We object to that question, the witness is deciding the very thing the Court is to decide.

The Court: Well, he has stated the hypothetical question, that is not in evidence. I suppose you propose to introduce evidence to that effect. That is the only theory upon which it would be admissible.

Mr. Allen: We propose to show that she did not have children by the name of Thomas and Mary.

Q. And you had also had the information that Nancy who is on that same roll below Minnie was a child of this Thomas and Mary Atkins, what would you say as to whether or not that was descriptive of the person of Minnie rather than the intention of the party making that roll to designate two children of hers.

Mr. Hanford: We object to that as incompetent.

The Court: He may answer.

Q. Descriptive of the persons of Minnie and Nancy Atkins?

A. In that event, I would take it to mean that Thomas and Mary had two children, Minnie and Nancy.

Q. The Dawes Commission found that they—that Thomas was not on the 1890 roll when they made this census card?

The Court: Well, that appears from the census card itself.

Mr. Allen: And also in the letter transmitting it to the secretary. I will withdraw that question.

Cross Examination by Mr. Rosser.

Q. These rolls that have been introduced, Mr. Hasting, are not the original Creek Rolls are they? A. No, sir.

Q. The one that they referred to here as the original and the carbon copy are both copies of some Creek Roll?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it was testified by Mr. Brown, Judge Brown, that on the original roll that was acted upon by the Creek Council that these words Thomas and Mary did not appear. Do you remember yourself about that?

A. No, sir, I couldn't say about that. I wouldn't have any recollection.

Q. Do you know where the original Creek Roll is now?

A. No, sir.

Q. How long has it been since you saw it?

A. I don't know just what you mean by the original Creek Roll?

The Court: He means the 1890 roll. You had an 1890 Creek Roll before you at Okmulgee in this enrollment?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Was that a typewritten roll or a roll in long hand?

A. Typewritten.

The Court: Then, that wasn't I take it, the original roll to which you refer?

Mr. Rosser: No, sir, it is not.

Q. These rolls that you have been testifying to today show on their face, do they not, that they are copies from something else? The 1890 rolls?

A. Yes, sir, they are copies.

Q. One or the other of these is what you acted upon is it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. By the 1895 roll that has been introduced, is the original Creek Roll made by the Creeks themselves?

A. That is the pay roll?

Q. Yes, sir? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So you don't remember whether this Thomas and Mary appears on the 1890 Creek Roll or not?

A. I couldn't say.

Q. Except that they appear here on this copy?

A. Yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Hasting, I will ask you in regard to Mr. Allen's hypothetical question that he put to you, that if the name of Minnie Atkins was followed not only by Nancy Atkins, but by Lee Atkins, who was her brother, which would make three children of the same father and mother, would you still say that that two children referred to the two children of Thomas and Mary?

A. Well, Mamie and Nancy are together as belonging to the same family and Lee is number one separate:

Q. Is there anything there to—— Now, the figures—— The names opposite the figures one and two above Nancy Atkins would be there as a part of the same family that she belongs to would it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, is there anything here to indicate that that wouldn't take in the entire family?

A. Except that it is opposite Nancy Atkins.

Q. Is there anything there to connect that "and two children" the symbol "&" with Nancy Atkins, which is below Mamie Atkins?

A. Nothing except as I stated with those facts in my mind I would take it to mean that.

Q. If you were referring to this roll, Mr. Hastings, with such information as you have of your own knowledge, personally, regardless of any questions that had been put to you by Mr. Allen, what would you say that that indicated, that wording following Mamie Atkins?

> The Court: I think he has already testified that it would indicate to his mind that they were the names of the two children.

Q. Then, let me ask you this, Mr. Hastings: In any case upon that roll would there be entered the father and mother of an enrolled citizen where the father and mother had died some ten or twelve years prior to their entry upon that roll?

A. Ought not to be.

Q. Did you ever encounter a case where a child was enrolled as a citizen and appearing opposite their names the name of their father and mother?

A. I don't just recall any other case like this.

Q. So, your original conclusion would go that that indicated "and two children," whose names were Thomas and Mary figured the way it stands by itself.

Mr. Allen: We object to that. He has stated that time and time again.

A. Well, this would indicate that.

The Court: Oh, yes, that is clearly in the record.

Mr. Hanford: I just wanted to conclude with that repetition. If he can answer yes or no.

Q. What would be your answer, yes, or no?

Mr. Allen: We object.

The Court: We will not take any more time to that. The Court has his answer.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. I will ask you this question, if the names of Ed Shrimpsher No. 1, to Nancy Atkins No. 4, are not listed together and does not the comma appear after the name of each one, except Nancy Atkins, the last one in that group? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Allen: That is all.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, JOHN G. LIEBER, was called, sworn, and examined as a witness for and on behalf of the Government and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. State your name, age, and residence?

A. John G. Lieber, age forty-four, residence Muskogee.

Q. Judge Lieber, were you engaged in the work of enrolling the Creeks in 1901?

A. I assisted in enrolling Creeks, yes, sir.

Q. When did you commence that work?

A. On May 31, 1899.

Q. Up to the time you went—— Did you go with a party of others to Okmulgee in May, 1901? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For the purpose of enrolling unaccounted for names appearing on the tribal rolls? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Up to the time you went to Okmulgee, what was the practice of the Commission with reference to the enrollment of these people, with particular reference to the requirement for the appearance of the enrollee, or some member of the family?

A. Well, from the time I became connected with the land office, which was May 31, 1899, the practice was to have the two rolls of the Creek Nation, the 1890 and the 1895, the Creeks had a commission that represented them in the land office and in the enrollment of citizens. An applicant would come in to be enrolled either for himself or his family. If the Creek Commissioners knew that the party was entitled to enrollment and their names appeared on the 1895 or 1890 roll of the tribe, they were enrolled without any question if there was no objection from some source to their enrollment.

Q. Then, you did require the personal appearance of the person to be enrolled?

A. If they were adults, and if they were minors then somebody must appear for them.

Q. Did you abandon that practice and custom while at Okmulgee?

A. Yes, sir, that is the last two or three days before the treaty was ratified.

Q. Up to the last two or three days you pursued the same policy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Why did you abandon that and adopt another policy?

A. Because the members of the Council were afraid if there were any names left off the roll at the time the treaty was ratified there would be no way of putting them on the roll after that, and they wanted the Commission to put everybody on the roll that was on the Creek Tribal Rolls and was not accounted for. We knew that it was impossible to do that and take evidence in the cases in the time we had to do it, because it was known that the treaty would be ratified—or that was the supposition—in a few days, so we abandoned all rules and enrolled the names of all persons on the rolls who had not been accounted for.

Q. Was it believed at that time that the Dawes Commission would have the right to strike the names that were not entitled to be enrolled? A. That was the theory.

Q. And upon that theory the Dawes Commission changed the former rule requiring personal appearance and doing that enrollment period you enrolled all people whose names appeared upon the tribal roll?

A. And had not been accounted for, yes, sir.

Q. About how many each day during the last two or three days of this enrollment did you enroll at Okmulgee?

A. I judge there was at least five hundred a day for the last three days. We worked on into the night too.

Q. And did you exercise that same degree of care with the enrollment of those people that you had formerly exercised in the enrollment of citizens? A. No, sir.

Q. Who gave you the information such as you did obtain to the rights of these people to be enrolled?

A. We would get the members of the House of Warriors and House of Kings who were there at the Council Meeting, and get what information we could from them, and if we couldn't get the information we thought we ought to have, if the name appeared upon that roll and hadn't been accounted for, we would put them on a card anyhow.

Q. Did a member of the tribe sit with the party enrolling these people and assist them in the enrollment of the citizens, give them information?

A. Not all the time. Not those last three days.

Q. Such information as you did obtain was obtained largely from the members of the House of Kings from the Town, the tribal town of the party whose name appeared on the tribal roll?

A. We would gather the information from the member of the Town, that is the Tribal King or Warrior, if we could. If we couldn't, we got it from whatever source we could; and if we couldn't get it from any source, we put the name on the card if it had not been accounted for.

Q. I will hand you Government's Exhibit A-1, and ask you if that is one of the unaccounted names you listed during the last two or three days?

A. Yes, sir, this is one of the cards made out.

Q. Does that card indicate whether any member of that family appeared for his enrollment?

A. No, sir, it indicates that he did not.

Q. Does the fact that he is a member ten years of age, without any cross reference to any member of his family, indicate anything to you?

A. It indicates that he was one of those unaccounted for ones about which we had no information, or little information, and was placed upon this card because we did not know whether he was or was not entitled to membership.

Q. You will observe there that reference is made to the father of this enrollee as a white man and his age as ten years of age. During your rush period under the custom that you adopted there at that time, if the member of the House of Kings sitting by had given information that Minnie Atkins brought two boys to this country in 1895 and that he didn't know their names, would that have afforded sufficient information to have made up the card in its present form under those circumstances at Okmulgee?

A. It is very likely that the clerk would have put white man as his father from that information.

Q. And would there be ten years of age if he had been advised that Minnie brought a small boy here in 1895?

A. Oh, yes, if anybody had advised him he would have put that information upon the card.

Q. Taking the name from the 1895 roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was any member of the Commission present at Okmulgee, with the exception of Mr. Bixby, during the time that you people were engaged in this work?

A. I don't remember that any of the other members were there except Mr. Bixby.

Q. You have no recollection of any of the other members of the Commission being there? A. Not on that trip.

Q. Was Mr. Bixby always careful of the people's names he transmitted on the checdule? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that true of the other two commissioners?

A. In the work in which the other two commissioners were directly engaged it was true, but they were never engaged directly in the Creek enrollment work.

Q. And they paid very little attention to the enrollment work in the Creek Nation?

A. That was in a sense turned over to Mr. Bixby.

Q. If any information had been obtained, either at Okmulgee or elsewhere, before this name went up for approval, that Thomas Atkins was a minor ten years of age, was living with some non-citizen, would that fact have been noted upon that card under the practice of the Commission?

A. Under the practice it would except for during those three days before that treaty out there at Okmulgee.

Q. And you were doing rush enrollment work?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. If the Commission had had information that Minnie Atkins was a non-resident of the Creek Nation, and there was nothing in the records to show with whom this party was living, and that he was a minor ten years of age, do you think that they would have transmitted that card to Washington for approval if they had observed that condition?

Mr. Cruce: If the Court please, that is purely a conclusion and we object to it.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Now, is there anything upon that card to indicate whether or not the Dawes Commission refused the 1890 roll in the enrollment of this party at Okmulgee or subsequently refused that roll? A. There is not.

Q. Does it indicate whether they did or not?

A. It indicates that they did not consult the 1890 roll.

Q. That they took his name from the 1890 roll only—1895 roll, only? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I hand you the original of Government's Exhibit A-2, being the pay roll of Euchee—1893—1895 pay roll of Euchee Town and ask you to examine it and state whether or not under the circumstances at Okmulgee they would have listed the name of Thomas Atkins from no other information than the roll, as the child of Minnie Atkins?

A. They would on those last three days.

Q. Did you obtain or have any personal information as to the existence of Thomas Atkins? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know any person by that name? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you hear of any person by that name?

A. Not that I——

Q. At Okmulgee, or thereafter before the preparation of this enrollment? A. Not that I remember of, Judge.

Q. Merrick was the clerk who prepared this census card, was he*r* not? A. Yes, sir, it is in his handwriting.

Q. How many of you were engaged in that work at Okmulgee?

A. Well, Mr. Merrick, Mr. Hopkins, Mr. Bixby, Mr. Hastain and myself. I think Mr. Beaver was out there a little.

Q. Do you know where Mr. Beaver is now? Know whether or not he is dead?

A. If he is living, he is at Denton, Arkansas. I think it is near Hot Springs.

Q. Do you know whether he is living? A. I do not.

Q. Did Mr. Bixby or Mr. Hopkins do any work of listing these people for enrollment or enrolling the people?

A. Mr. Bixby did little of it himself. Mr. Hopkins, however, did a great deal of it and Mr. Merrick was at the work constantly.

Q. The bulk of the work was done by Mr. Hopkins?

A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Hastain and Mr. Merrick?

A. These last three days, yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Leiber, the 1895 roll was really started—was really considered a more perfect roll than the '90 roll, wasn't it? Correct roll—of 1895? A. I think so, Judge.

Q. Had been gotten up with greater care?

A. That was the original roll that we had.

Q. Now, you say that there was an impression that if the Indian did not get on by a certain time that they would be bared out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By virtue of the statute of limitation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your purpose was to see that no Indian entitled to get on there escaped—put everybody on? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Also, your purpose was to not put anybody on there that was not entitled to go on?

A. No, not to get anybody on there that was not.

Q. To have a clean straight, clear roll and to the best of your ability you performed that?

A. Exactly, except on these last three days when we took a chance, you know.

A. Well, when you took a chance, I understand; if you completed a card, your completed card represented that you had some information, didn't it?

A. Completed card?

Q. Yes, sir. Now, if you gave a completed card to an Indian applicant no matter who he was, and that card was complete, as you understood it, that meant that you had investigation as to him, didn't it?

A. That meant that we had got information that satisfied us that he should be on that roll.

Q. That is it. That you had got information that satisfied you that he should be on that roll.

A. That is on this last three days.

Q. Those that you took a chance with, you didn't give a completed card, did you? Couldn't do it?

A. We made a card such as is shown here in Exhibit A, only, except that it wouldn't have been a citizenship certificate on it.

Q. Mr. Leiber, now, if you made a completed card that is evidence—is evidence to you now whether you remember the exact case or not, that you got information that satisfied your judgment that that Indian was entitled to enrollment. Isn't that it?

A. If we made a completed card that is true.

Q. That is what I say—completed card. So if you gave a completed card and it was a completed card, then that satisfied your mind; now, although you don't remember the particular case on which that card was predicated and which justified you in putting that Indian on the roll. That is correct, isn't it?

A. Well, Judge, the cards that we made at that time were not completed cards, or at least we didn't consider it so. Excuse me, I don't get your distinction between a completed and an incompleted card.

Q. You heard these other witnesses testify here, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they all testified that when the card was completed that satisfied them that they had information. Does that satisfy you or not?

A. Yes, sir, when it is complete.

Q. Well, that is all I want to know. If it was incomplete, you are satisfied there was something yet to be finished?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And those that you left incomplete as to these people, you made subsequent investigation?

A. The Commission did, yes, sir.

Q. And sent field parties into the field to verify those parties identity?

A. Yes, they had parties in the field practically all the time.

Q. And this relieves the Creek Tribe of any danger that there might come from the hazard that you spoke of?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. They wanted it completed by evidence, didn't they?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they did do it, didn't they?

A. Yes, sir; the best they could.

And thereupon Court takes a recess until 9:30 o'clock A. M.

And thereafter, and on May 2nd, 1917, at 9:30 o'clock A. M., court convened pursuant to adjournment, and further proceedings herein were had as follows:

JOHN E. LEIBER being recalled, further testified as follows:

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Your name is John E. Leiber? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you on the stand yesterday when court adjourned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Judge Leiber, prior to the work of enrolling citizens of the Creek Tribe of Indians in contemplation of the approval of the Act of March 1st, 1901, known as the Original Creek Agreement, you only enrolled living citizens of the tribe?

A. I think that was the rule, yes, sir.

Q. Then, the work you did at Okmulgee on May 22nd, 23rd and 24th, at which time Thomas Atkins was enrolled, was in contemplation of the ratification of the Original Creek Agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know A. G. McKellop? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not he was present at Okmulgee during these last few days?

A. No, I can't say positively that he was.

Q. You were one of the three men most actively engaged of the work of enrolling these Creeks at that time?

A. During those three days, yes, sir.

Q. You have no recollection of his assisting you at that time?

A. No; he may have assisted us, but I don't remember it now.

Q. Is he living or dead? A. He is dead.

Q. I hand you Government's Exhibit A-1, and ask to you to carefully examine that exhibit which is the census card of Thomas Atkins. Mr. Leiber, is that census card in its present form what would under the practice of the Commission have been denominated a completed census card?

> Mr. Hanford: If Your Honor please, we object on the ground that it calls for a conclusion of the witness. The Court—it is in evidence before the Court and that is for the Court to determine. The entries are there.
> The Court: There has been a good deal said about a completed card here, but there has been no evidence as to what a completed card contains, or whether there was any difference between an uncompleted card and a completed card, or what that difference was.
> Mr. Allen: We will follow that up.
> The Court: Well, you may show what a completed card contained and probably the Court can best determine whether this complies with the requirements for a completed card or not.
> Mr. Allen: I will be glad to follow Your Honor's suggestion but I think*ing* in as much as we have this particular case before us, the witness might say what was necessary for this particular [ ] to contain in order for it to be considered a completed card under the statutes of the Commission.
> The Court: We don't know whether this is a completed card or not. This witness was asked to state if that was a completed card; that probably is a conclusion for him to arrive at from an examination of the card. If he knows what constituted a completed card, probably he can state.

Q. How long were you engaged in the work of enrolling these Creeks, Judge Leiber?

A. I was not directly engaged in the enrollment division, except during—from May 31, 1899, until some time in 1901, in the middle of 1901, I was only incidentally engaged in the enrolling work. I was in the Creek Land Office and all the work was done right there in the Land Office. I was used in that department frequently.

Q. How long were you in the service of the Commission?
A. From May 31, 1899, until some time in 1904.

Q. During all of that time did you have occasion to examine the census cards of Creek citizens? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And a part of that time you engaged in the work of actually making up the census cards?

A. Assisting in that work, yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what under the practice of the Commission was regarded as a completed census card?

A. I never knew the term completed census card to be used, or heard it except in this case, and I don't believe I would be in the position to say what a completed card would mean, or what it meant.

Q. Would such a card as you considered——

Mr. Stuart: We object to that.

The Court: Let's get the question.

Q. ——sufficient information thereon, such a card as contained thereon sufficient information to transmit it to the Secretary of the Interior for approval——

The Court: Let me have that question. Perhaps you had better frame that question again.

Q. By a completed card I mean such a card that enabled the Commission to determine whether or not the party whose name was listed thereon was entitled to enrollment and to transmit the same to the Secretary of the Interior for his approval. Under that definition do you understand what was considered under the practice of the Commission as a completed card? A. Yes, under that theory.

Q. Is that what was considered by you as a completed card? A. This one I hold in my hand?

Q. No, the card that contained the information that satisfied the Commission that the party was entitled to enrollment.

A. Well, it would have necessarily have been considered complete, or it would not have been passed on at that time and put on the schedule and sent to the Department for approval. If it was considered incomplete they would not have put it on a schedule.

Q. Well, is the card that you hold in your hand, Government's Exhibit A-1, under the practice of the Commission, a completed card? A. I wouldn't consider it so.

Mr. Cruce: We object, if the Court please.

The Court: Objections sustained, because it is the same question as asked before. This witness stated before that he never heard of a completed card until he came into this case; that he didn't know that term as a term used during the time of enrollment; he has stated that he would consider any card which had been passed upon by the Commission, a name from which was included in the schedule, as a completed card. That is the way I understand his testimony.

Mr. Allen: I think Your Honor misunderstood him. He was speculating on a hypothetical question.

The Court: I don't think this witness can state now on his own conclusion, whether this is a completed card in view of his past testimony. The objection is sustained. That term completed card has been coined in this case. He may be wrong about that; there may be some other evidence but so far as he knows that term, completed card, is coined in this case. You are seeking, I apprehend, to show that this card was not just an ordinary card as would be used in making up the schedule for final roll.

Mr. Allen: If such had been used——

The Court: You have interrogated him along this line but it cannot be shown by this witness from a conclusion whether this was a completed card or not.

Q. Under the practice of the Commission at that time which you say you are familiar, would this card have been forwarded by the Commission for approval if it had been observed at the time it was being sent out?

Mr. Cruce: We object, if the Court please, as being incompetent, and as asking for a conclusion of the witness.

The Court: He may answer.

Mr. Cruce: Exception.

A. It would not.

Q. Would the clerk have sent this card to the Commissioners for this name to be contained on a schedule to be sent to the Secretary for approval?

Mr. Cruce: I object to that if the Court please, as asking for a conclusion of the witness, and as incompetent testimony.

Q. If it had been noticed that this party, a minor, was enrolled without any further information than it contained on the card?

The Court: He may answer.

Mr. Cruce: Exception.

A. It would not.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Leiber, you never had a thing to do with this enrollment except that last few days, did you? You were a contest lawyer?

A. Well, the first work I did, Judge, was in that department.

Q. That was during those last days at Okmulgee?

A. Oh, no.

Q. Now, just tell me how long you served as an enrolling clerk, pure and simple. Let's get at it.

A. When the Land Office was first opened in 1899, the different clerks in the office worked in the different departments as they were needed. First here, and then there. I was one of the clerks in the office after May 31, 1899, and I was used part of the time in the enrolling work, part of the time in the allotment work, and at various things that there were to do there in that office, and that continued until up in sometime I think in 1901—the summer, probably, when the allotment contest work was made a special department and I was put in that department.

Q. Now, when you commenced as contest lawyer, about what month was it?

A. Well, I was working at the contest work at this time, that is in the—— Well, January, February and March, 1901, April, May and June.

Q. That is this, you were especially deputed to look after the contest work?

A. At that particular time, yes, sir.

Q. Now, when was that?

A. That was along I judge in 1901, early in 1901.

Q. And that continued how long?

A. Well, the Department continued up until the land office——

Q. I am talking about how long you worked?

A. As long as I worked for the Commission.

Q. And this special designation of yours was contest lawyer, wasn't it?

A. Yes, sir, when the contest department was established.

Q. Yes, you testified in the Thlocco case that you were the contest lawyer? A. Yes, sir, at that time.

Q. Now, then, they did have special enrolling clerks; Mr. Merrick did that kind of work?

A. No, Mr. Merrick was in the contest division later on, but in May, 1901, he was working in the enrollment division only.

Q. What was Mr. Hasting doing?

A. I think he worked only in the enrolling department at that time.

Q. And Mr. Hopkins was General Superintendent of the whole thing? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, this card here shows the number of 7913, don't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It shows the name Thomas Atkins don't it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. It shows his age don't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It shows that he was a male? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It shows that he was a half blood? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He—— It shows he was on the roll of 1895?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. It shows he was a Euchee Indian? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And shows his father a white man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And shows Minnie Atkins was his mother?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that she was on the 1895 roll and that she was a Euchee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, will you tell me what more you could put on that card?

A. Under the statute, Judge, the card would have shown with whom this child was living.

Q. Did it show it in the Thlocco case that you testified in? A. I don't remember about that.

Q. Now, you say the only thing that keeps that card from becoming a complete card is that it don't show with whom that child was living, shows everything else, and that is the only defect?

A. Yes, from the fact that a minor is on a card by himself.

Q. That is the only defect, isn't it?

A. Well, I won't say that, Judge.

Q. Well, show me another—well, is there any defect in that now that you can find, Mr. Lieber?

A. Well, I can't think of any right now, Judge.

Q. All right. Now, if the mother of this child—— If the mother, Minnie Atkins, was the natural guardian of Tommy Atkins at the time, and Minnie Atkins wasn't enrolled, you couldn't have made any cross reference here could you?

A. If she wasn't enrolled at that time, but I understood she was.

Q. I am asking you my question?

A. That is one of the defects of the card, Judge, the fact that his mother was enrolled at that time.

Q. I am asking you the other question. Suppose that as a matter of fact she was not enrolled citizen, what would be the objection then?

A. The objection then would be that if she was on the 1890 roll it would have been noted on that card.

Q. Well, that is all right. Now, Mr. Lieber, let's come right down to the proposition again. You stated yesterday, didn't you, that when this kind of a card was made that it was never finally passed by the Commission to the Secretary of the Interior, unless a full investigation was made, didn't you?

A. I think that I said, Judge, that was the practice.

Q. Yes, that was the practice; you say so now, don't you?

A. That was the practice, yes, sir.

Mr. Stuart: That is all.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Judge Lieber, you stated that you understood that Minnie Atkins was enrolled. Is it not a fact that her name was merely listed on the census card?

A. That is what I meant, that her name had been placed on a census card prior to the time this census card was made.

Q. The name was placed there for investigation and later stricken? A. My information is that that is a fact.

The Court: Never mind what you- information is. It is merely hearsay, immaterial.

Q. Assuming that to be true, would this card—— The Commission had required this card to show with whom this child was living?

A. In the general rule it would, yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cruce.

Q. Now, Minnie Atkins as I understood you in your last statement was listed just like Tommy over there at Okmulgee? A. I think Minnie was listed here at Muskogee.

Q. Well, here at Muskogee then, just as Tommy was at Okmulgee? A. Yes, went through the same——

Q. And the further investigation of the Commission struck her name from the roll and left Tommy on?

Mr. Allen: I object to that.

The Court: He stated that his information was that Minnie was listed and stricken from the roll. That is what I understood from his testimony, but that is all hearsay. Now, we know Tommy Atkins was left on the roll. He was enrolled. Now, if this witness is giving hearsay information as to Minnie, then that is the difference of the action of the Commission between Minnie and Tommy.

Mr. Cruce: Does the Government admit that Minnie Atkins was not enrolled by the Dawes Commission?

Mr. German: Why, yes, the fact is she was put on an old census card, and then in pursuance of their custom she was listed from an old census card to a so called regular census card for investigation, and later investigated and not enrolled.

Q. Now, another question: You say that that card that was exhibited to you, I believe A-1, Government's Exhibit, is complete in everything except that it doesn't show with whom Tommy Atkins was listed. Now, what would have been the action of the Commission in the event you had been unable to ascertain with whom he was living; would you have stricken him from the roll or let the card go on as it is?

A. Under the practice the name never would have been sent up unless they was satisfied that the child was living and entitled to citizenship.

Q. I understand that, but suppose the Commission was satisfied he was living and entitled to citizenship, but couldn't get the information as to whom he was living with, then what would the action have been?

A. They would have left him on the roll of course.

Mr. Cruce: Yes, that is what I thought.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, TAMS BIXBY, produced, examined, sworn and examined as a witness for and on behalf of the Government, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What is your name? A. Tams Bixby.

Q. You live here at Muskogee, do you Mr. Bixby?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever have any connection with the Dawes Commission, Mr. Bixby? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did it begin?

A. May 22, I believe, May, 1897.

Q. What was your connection, what relationship, what was title of your position?

A. Well, I was first—— I was appointed Commissioner and then selected acting commissioner soon after I arrived in the Indian Territory. Then I was afterwards—I mean acting chairman, and then I was afterwards chairman and afterwards commissioner, sole commissioner.

Q. So your first connection was that of one of the commissioners? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as long as the Commission was composed of more than one commissioner, you were one of the commissioners?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Beginning in 1897? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then after the Commission was abolished, about along in 1905, or '06, you were appointed commissioner?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The officer which succeeded the Commission?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long were you Commissioner, about?

A. Ten years altogether on the Commission and as commissioner.

Q. Commissioner altogether ten years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Bixby, which one of the commissioners, if either as against the other, took special notice of Creek enrollment work? A. Myself.

Q. Yes, sir. Where did the other commissioners work, in the matter of enrollment or otherwise; did the commissioners give their especial attention to?

A. Well, if it might be said that they gave their especial attention to any particular tribe, it was perhaps more to the Cherokees than any other.

Q. Than that of Choctaws and Chickasaws and Seminoles, you all worked about the same in the matter of the Choctaws, Chickasaws, and Seminole enrollment work?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which was the first tribe to be enrolled, that is, which tribe did you devote your attention to first? A. Creeks.

Q. To the Creeks. Did you have any difficulty of obtaining possession of the tribal rolls? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the nature of it?

A. Well, Isparhecher seemed to be unwilling so far as he was concerned to do anything for us; and we had to get the rolls as best we could from various sources.

Q. Who was Isparhecher?

A. He was a Chief of the Creek Nation for some time.

Q. Did you obtain possession of any of these rolls at the Capitol Building of the Creek Nation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How?

Judge Stuart: Your Honor, we object to that. It doesn't make a particle of difference whether Isparhecher did give them up or not, he did give them up.

The Court: This matter came up yesterday. It seems to me immaterial to go into the question of litigation that was necessary to get these rolls. That, in my judgment, is purely a collateral matter, and in my judgment it is immaterial.

Mr. German: We save an exception. We offer to prove that the Commission encountered difficulties; that finally the Commission obtained a Court order to be served on Chief Isparhecher by which the rolls were obtained after service of the order. That many of the rolls were found at Okmulgee at the Capitol House by the Commissioners or their clerks without the assistance of tribal officers and without the tribal officers having voluntarily delivered them. These things occurred about 1898, after this Curtis Act.

The Court: Let the record show your offer to prove.

Mr. German: And we except to the exclusion of the evidence.

Q. Mr. Bixby, you endeavored to identify, find all of the citizens of the Creek Nation who represented the names appearing on the tribal rolls, did you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had the 1890 and 1895 tribal rolls of the Creek Nation that you used in that work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when you came to about the first of May, 1901, approximately what percentage of the names appearing on the Creek Tribal Roll had you listed for enrollment as having been identified?

A. I don't remember, I know there were a good many names that had not been cleared up or identified.

Q. How did you denominate or designate those names; did you use the words "unaccounted for citizen" in connection with them, or what term?

A. I don't remember any particular term, but——

Q. But they were unaccounted for?

A. They were unaccounted for, yes, sir.

Q. Now, you remember the occasion of the approval of the so-called original agreement treaty by the President on March 1, 1901? A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether or not prior to that date the Creeks had ratified any enrollment and allotment treaty? A. No.

Q. They hadn't? A. No.

Q. State whether they had rejected the 1897 treaty?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had they rejected any proposed treaty between the 1897 treaty and the 1901 treaty? A. I can't remember.

Q. Well, they had not ratified it?

A. No, they had not ratified it.

Q. The so-called Creek Treaty that was a part of the Curtis Bill, there was one part of the Curtis Bill, wasn't there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that accepted or rejected? A. Rejected.

Q. Rejected? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, we come to the time when Congress passed the so-called Creek Treaty and the President approved it in March, 1901. I will ask you to state whether the Creek National Council held a session for the purpose of acting on that treaty?

A. They held a session and that matter was up before them.

Q. Was up before them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that session held?

A. Well, it was in session in the spring of 1901, in May.

Q. In May? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have any of your enrollment force there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. For what purpose were they there?

A. We were there for the purpose of assisting the passage of that Agreement, in that; and in enrolling the Creek citizens, so far as possible, that had not been enrolled.

Q. Of course your Commission wanted that Agreement ratified? A. Yes, sir, very much.

Q. And Congress did? A. Yes, sir, very much.

Q. And the Departmental officials? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Also you say you was there for the purpose of enrolling citizens? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you devote your own attention while there to these unaccounted for names that we have spoken of?

A. We certainly did.

Q. Explain to the Court what attention you did devote to them there.

A. I can't just tell everything that we did, but we did everything that we could think of to get the citizens in there, to get their enrollment, and also to ascertain by any possible means such information as would permit us to list the people for enrollment who were on those rolls.

Q. Now, did you get any citizens in there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you adopted various methods to get them in?

A. Yes, sir. We sent for them and we invited them and did every thing that we could possibly think of to get them before us.

Q. And you even had a part of the force of the United States Marshal to assist you to some extent, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Bixby, on about May 22nd—21 or 22nd, and some two or three days before the day on which the treaty was actually ratified, I will ask you to state whether there was still some unaccounted for names? A. Yes, sir, there were.

Q. Was there any person or officer there in the Commission, or with the Commission, or among the tribal officials who desired those unaccounted for names listed before the treaty would be ratified?

A. Just state that over again, please.

Q. Was there anybody who wanted those remaining unaccounted names listed for enrollment before the treaty was ratified? A. Yes, sir, we did.

Q. You did? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The Commission? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For what reason?

A. Well, we knew that some people thought that under the provisions of the Act of Congress that it was necessary for everybody to be enrolled before that treaty should be ratified. I had a different view of it myself, but of course I wanted to be safe and made every possible endeavor to get every citizen's name upon the list.

Q. Before the treaty was ratified?

A. Before the treaty was ratified.

Q. Now, is the provision you referred to the first sentence of twenty-eight of that treaty?

A. I can't say for certain; if I saw it I could tell you very quick.

Q. At any rate, it is the provision that says that no person, no name, shall be added to the roll of citizens of the Creek Nation after the ratification of this treaty, or something to that effect? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Yes? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in order to get those names on the cards before the treaty was ratified, what did you do?

A. Well, we notified every Town King, and every Warrior and everybody that we knew that we thought had any information in regard to these people as well as the people themselves, to come before us, and we had a great many citizens who were perhaps not members of the tribe assisting us, and we had a force of clerks there.

Q. You got the best you could and listed it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I will ask you to state if prior to that particular occasion we are talking about, it was not the rule of the Commission that personal appearance was required, for a person who desired to be enrolled, or whose case was under consideration, except in the case of infants and incompetents?

A. That was the general rule, yes, sir.

Q. And in the case of infants or incompetents, what was the rule?

A. Well, the rule was to take information from the parent, or Town Kings, or Warriors, or from the relative, or from anybody that knew anything about it.

Q. Now, in case a name under consideration, speaking now of the general practice of the Commission; I am not talking about now those days that you had been consentrating on, but speaking of the general practice. When a name under consideration was questioned, the citizenship was questioned, the right to enrollment was questioned, what did you do?

A. Well, we would make an investigation.

Q. Would you record—take down evidence in those cases?

A. Not always in the Creek tribe.

Q. You would make a more thorough investigation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Than you otherwise would?

A. Yes, sir. Much of the Creek enrollment was done without taking any testimony down in writing.

Q. Now, on the last two or three days there before the treaty was ratified in May, 1901, you would take such information as a Town King, say, would give you about a name that you found on the roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you would list the name for enrollment? If his information was favorable to his enrollment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Whether he claimed to have personal knowledge or not? A. Well, I won't say as to that.

Q. I will ask you this: would, to illustrate, suppose a Town King was sitting across the table from an enrolling clerk on that occasion and the enrolling clerk was, say for illustration, take the Tuckabachee Town; here is the Tuckabachee Town, Mr. Jacobs, Town King, sitting across the table; Mr. Jacobs says the name John Smith on this Tuckabachee roll; he is unaccounted for; we have a blue pencil mark, showing that we have made a census card for him, but underneath his name, and a part of the group of that family, appears the name William Smith, unaccounted for; we have got no remarks there to show that he is dead or enlisted for enrollment, or otherwise accounted for, and the clerk would say, Mr. Jacobs, do you know about that William; suppose Mr. Jacobs would say, I know John Smith, and I know that he had a child and that child is about 10 years old.

A. That he had a child or has a child?

Q. No; I know of his having a child about 10 years old; I don't know its name, and I expect that is it. Would the name have been listed under that statement under the circumstances? A. I would have listed it myself, yes.

Q. You say you would? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Bixby, after you made up the census cards, you didn't make your roll, the roll the Commission was required to make, that is the tabulating of the name?

A. Schedule.

Q. Schedule, that is what you called it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After your census cards were made, you made a schedule? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The clerk did for you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of the names of—that is, a list of the names showing the tribal enrollment, and then the Commission would, or you, for instance, would take those names and consider them together with the census cards, would you not? Explain to the jury the process.

A. I would consider the census card and only consider the schedule as to whether it was an accurate representation of the census card.

Q. Of the census card? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you—would you, in considering that schedule and the census card, determine whether the name should remain on the schedule?

A. Why, if it was—looked alright on the census card it would go on the schedule.

Q. On the schedule? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then what would you do as to the schedule then?

A. Well, we had four copies, as I remember, which were signed by the Commissioners, or at least two of them, and transmitted, one to the Secretary of the Interior, one to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, one to the Chief of the Tribe, and one kept in our office.

Q. Mr. Bixby, then you would transmit the schedule to the Secretary of the Interior for appropriate action?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you would do that with a letter, would you not?

A. Yes, sir, a letter of transmittal.

Q. When you passed on the names in any particular schedule, would you sign the letter?

A. Yes, I signed the letters—most of them—not all of them.

Q. When you didn't pass on the names in a particular schedule, did you sign the letter? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, were any of the other Commissioners at Okmulgee besides you in May, 1901, on the occasion of——

A. They were not there engaged in the work; they might have come out for a visit, I don't remember; but they were not there looking after the work.

Q. Speaking of this schedule matter, would the Commissioners sit in a body and consider those schedules or would you sit separately and take them up?

A. I took them up generally alone but I think Mr. Breckenridge and Mr. Needles possibly sat together; I am not absolutely certain about that but that is my recollection.

Q. Now, there is one other question I want to ask you: when a minor was listed on a census card alone, listed alone on a census card, that is not listed with parents, his parents not listed, with his custodian or guardian, what was the general practice of the Commission with relation to making any reference either in a note on the census card relating to who was his custodian, or, in lieu of that, or instead of that, a cross-reference to the card of his parent or relative with whom he was living, etc.?

A. The custom was to make that reference if we had it and knew it and could get it.

Q. And you usually got it, did you not?

A. Yes, sir, usually got it.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Bixby, when were you appointed chairman of the Commission?

A. I don't know the exact date. I just drifted in from —of course, so far as the field work was concerned, I was chairman all the time; I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember the exact date? A. No, sir.

Q. But you were chairman so far as the field work was concerned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Your associates were Mr. Needles and Colonel Breckenridge? A. And Captain McKennon.

Q. And who else? A. Frank Armstrong.

Q. Frank Armstrong?

A. And a man named Montgomery, I don't remember his name.

Q. Who represented the successive member of the Commission as they would die? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, Mr. Bixby, you knew of course that no man was entitled to be put on this roll as a Creek citizen who had died prior to April 1st, '99, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As a matter of fact, did you keep that constantly in your mind? A. Absolutely.

Q. Was that the main and essential fact that you were investigating from day to day?

A. That was one of them, yes, sir.

Q. One of them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. If you found out that a man died prior to April 1st, '99, you didn't put him on the roll? A. No, sir.

Q. If you found out he died after April 1st, you put him on the roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Provided you found he was a Creek citizen by blood and entitled to go there? A. And a resident.

Q. Now, did you ever at any time, Mr. Bixby, that you recall, put any man on the roll about whose rights you did not take some evidence outside of the roll itself? Can you recall a single case? A. No, sir.

Q. You may state whether or not you satisfied your mind that the Indian had lived after April 1st, '99, before you put him on the roll? A. Absolutely.

Q. Now, Mr. Bixby, while you were in Okmulgee, did you send out any field parties?

A. We sent out—not field parties as I remember, but we sent out people to bring citizens in.

Q. To bring citizens in? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you consult with the Town Kings of each particular town as near as you could?

A. I did personally and I threshed it constantly.

Q. You may state whether or not you endeavored by every means accessible to you to find out the truth or falsity of each man's claim to citizenship? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you make that investigation carelessly, or as fully as you could? What was your practice about it? Tell the Court how far you went to discover the truth.

A. Why, I devoted every possible energy and every possible thought, waking thought, to the effort to get that roll correct as far as it was possible for humanity to do it under the circumstances.

Q. You may state to the Court whether or not you were absent a good deal of the time, or whether you were on the job all the time.

A. I was on the job about 15 or 16 hours a day generally.

Q. All the time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you say your entire efforts at that time were directed to the making of a correct roll of Creek citizens?

A. Sure was.

Q. That is what you were there for? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when these cards were made out, did you ever release a card finally until you had satisfied yourself either by further investigation or by a conference with your clerk, that that card was correct?

A. We always did the best we could.

Q. Did you ever release one until you were satisfied?

A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Bixby, I will ask you whether it was your practice to confer with the clerks that made up a card before you would finally release it? A. We conferred constantly.

Q. Constantly?

A. Yes, sir. We had some of the best clerks I ever knew, too.

Q. Were your clerks competent men?

A. Some of the best I ever knew.

Q. Were they diligent? A. Yes, they were.

Q. And careful? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Bixby, another question: will you state to the Court whether or not in your judgment you examined personally every Creek card before it was finally released?

A. I expect I examined every card time and again.

Q. Time and again. Well, just explain why you did it and how you did it.

Q. Well, you know this covered several years and we were constantly going over the cards; there was constantly something coming up and it was my intention, at least, to examine every card. Of course it is possible that some cards may have escaped my notice, but that was not by intention that they should.

Q. Your practice was to examine them all?

A. Every one.

Q. And you did it more than once, you say?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you finally sent up the judgment of the Dawes Commission, of which you was chairman, on a particular Indian's right to enroll there, do you say that you had satisfied your mind with evidence outside of the rolls that he was entitled to be there?

A. That was certainly my intention.

Q. And do you think you did it? A. Yes, I think so.

Q. Mr. Bixby, Mr. German, asked you about a certain roll that was signed by Needles and Breckenridge, they seem to have signed it jointly.

A. I don't think he asked me.

Mr. German: The fact is that that schedule containing this name was not signed by Mr. Bixby, but was signed by the other two; that is according to the evidence.

The Court: Mr. Bixby was questioned by Mr. German as to who signed the schedules from time to time, and it was developed in the evidence that if Mr. Bixby was sitting and considering the matter, he signed the schedule, and if the others were sitting, they signed it.

Q. Yes, sir. And signed it jointly?
A. Yes, sir; that is my recollection.
Q. And they did sign it jointly in this case?
A. The other two.
Q. Yes, sir? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Well, it had not appeared in this evidence.

Mr. German: I hadn't introduced it, Your Honor; I had not called your attention to it.

Q. Now, Mr. Bixby, those two men as far as you know, do you know whether they exercised the same kind of care as you did in these matters?

The Stenographer: Did you answer that?

Mr. German: He answered, I can't answer that.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you supervised everything that went out of the Creek Nation before it went on the card?
A. I examined every card, but there was some schedules that I did not sign.
Q. But you examined every single card that went out?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Whether you signed the report or they signed it?
A. Yes, sir, I examined every card in the Creek Nation more than once.
Q. More than once? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: What was your answer as to whether or not the other Commissioners exercised the same care that you did?

A. I didn't answer it.
Q. Now, Mr. Bixby, just one other question: These rolls that were made, or these cards that were made the last few days at Okmulgee, there was some hurry there because your idea was not to permit any Indian who was entitled to be enrolled to be left off of the roll? A. Yes, sir.
Q. And as far as you could there you made this card complete if you could by evidence, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And if a card was incomplete, you afterwards backed that up by subsequent evidence?

A. There was some incomplete cards, yes, sir.

Q. And you reinvestigated that afterwards? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as a matter of fact then looked at both cards through a subsequent investigation before you sent them to Washington? A. Yes, sir.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Bixby, you say you examined every Creek card? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't always examine them—— I mean to ask you this: Did you pass final judgment on each Creek card or those that Mr. Breckenridge or Mr. Needles examined without your participating?

A. I couldn't say that I passed final judgment on each card, no, sir.

Q. You were constantly and diligently at work attempting to avoid enrolling anybody who wasn't entitled to enrollment? A. That was my idea, yes, sir.

Q. You were constantly working with the Creek matters? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you spoke of the date April 1, 1899, constantly keeping it in mind, I will ask you whether you considered the question of the life of a person prior to the time when the Original Creek Treaty became a law; under the Curtis Bill, was the question of life prior to April 1, 1899, a vital question? A. Not before that.

Q. Under the Curtis Bill what was the question as to life or death?

A. Well, the party needed to be living at the time of enrollment.

Q. The party needed to be living? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, the Original Creek Treaty of May 25, 1901, was the treaty and the first law that provided for the enrollment of the deceased citizens in the Creek Nation, wasn't it?

A. As I recollect, yes, sir.

Q. So, from and after that enactment, you did consider also the question of life on April 1, 1899?

A. Well, we had it in mind during the pending of that.

Q. At Okmulgee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You mean the treaty was pending before the Council for ratification? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You contemplated its ratification by the Council? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Prior to the occasion that you have just mentioned, what questions did you consider in the matter of enrollment, what were the essentials as considered by the Commission to entitle one to enrollment?

A. Tribal enrollment, residence, and being alive.

Q. Did you take the fact that a man was on the tribal roll as evidence of life in 1899 and 1900?

A. No, not necessarily.

Q. Now, Mr. Bixby, the enrollment clerks were the persons who gathered the data with reference to the right to enrollment, excepting cases where there was serious contest, when you would sit in the trial?

A. That was the general practice, yes, sir.

Q. Then the information that would come to you or the other Commissioners as a rule for consideration, would be the information that would come from the clerk, was it not?

A. Would be the general practice, although in the Creek Nation, of course, I was present at a great many enrollments, personally present.

Q. Personally present? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At a great many enrollments? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was a physical impossibility for you to be present at all the listings? A. Absolutely.

Q. And the way you would pass, when you would pass finally on the questions whether the listing was right or wrong would be from the listing shown on the census card and what the clerks would tell you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Bixby, do you recall the—— You stated that you constantly were working with these census cards and in the matter of these Creek enrollments—— Do you recall that in 1905, some question having arisen to the question of the rightfully enrollment of Tommy Atkins' name?

A. No, I don't recall it.

Q. You don't recall it? A. No, sir.

Q. Was a record made when a question was raised?

A. I presume so, I don't know.

Q. Well, what was the practice, I mean?

A. Why, if it was raised by anybody in authority, there would be a record made.

Q. A record made? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the patent, if the patent was not delivered at the time, what would be done about the patent?

A. The patent would be held up.

Q. Would be held up? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Pending an investigation? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Maxey.

Q. Mr. Bixby, you say that you had charge of the enrollment, especially in the Creek Nation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you usually signed the letters of transmittal of the schedule to the Secretary of the Interior?

A. I think that is true, yes, sir.

Q. Now, why was it that Mr. Needles or Mr. Breckenridge signed some, because you were away from the office?

A. I might have been out of the office.

Q. But you had supervised the schedule before it was made up?

A. Not necessarily any particular schedule, I might not have seen it at all.

Q. But you had, as I understand you, examined the cards? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And passed on the cards that were entitled to go on the schedule? A. I did pass on the cards, yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Needles and Mr. Breckenridge would sign the schedule when they got it ready if you were not there?

A. I couldn't say in this particular case whether they signed it without examination, but I expect they examined the card the same as I did.

Q. That was the practice was it? A. Yes, sir.

Examination by the Court.

Q. Do I understand you, Mr. Bixby, that you examined not only the cards which were placed on the schedule which you signed, but you had examined the cards with reference to the scheduling upon those schedules signed by the other members too?

A. I said I examined the cards in the Creek Nation time and again. I didn't mean to convey the idea that I had examined this particular schedule just before it was scheduled, because I presumed the same practice was followed that was followed when I made up the schedule; that the cards were all brought in the schedule was held by two or three different clerks and the Commissioners examined the cards, and one clerk read the schedule and the other followed the schedule to see that they were accurate in every particular.

Q. Well, now, at those examinations, do I understand that the chief essentials stand as between the clerks and commissioners was to see that the schedule properly stated what the card showed?

A. Yes, sir, when the schedule was made up, yes, sir.

Q. At that time there was as a rule no examination with regard to the correctness of the card itself? A. No, sir.

Q. But as to whether the schedule correctly stated the card? A. Yes, sir.

Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Let me ask you in that connection, how would a clerk know whether to put a name on a schedule?

A. The card was approved.

Q. How was the approval indicated?

A. It is my recollection it was stamped after being passed by the Commission.

Q. Stamped in what way, do you recall the stamp?

A. No, sir.

Q. Take Exhibit A-1 and let's see if you can indicate to us what you mean?

A. I don't know which one of these stamps indicate the final approval, but certainly one of them did, I think.

Q. The ones that we find here, Mr. Bixby—— Here is one stamp indicating that the enrollment of this name opposite No. 7913 was approved by the Secretary of the Interior on March 28, 1902. Of course, that is not the one?

A. That is not the one.

Q. And here is another stamp which says, "Date of Application for Enrollment, May 23, 1901." Of course that is not the one? A. No.

Q. Then here is a notation here that No. 1, which is the name of Thomas Atkins, isn't found on the 1895 authenticated roll. That is not the one? A. No, sir.

Q. Then, the only one left I see is "Citizenship Certificate issued for No. 1, June 27, 1902." Now, that appears to be after the date of approval by the Secretary of the Interior, so that couldn't be the one. So, do you find on there anything along that line? A. No, I don't find any.

Q. Do you recall whether—— Do you now recall the exact practice in that regard, how it was that the clerk knew when to put a name on the schedule?

A. I expect it was just approved by the Commissioner.

Q. Just a verbal designation?

A. Yes, it looks so from that.

Q. Now, you stated that you examined all the Creek cards. You would examine Creek cards that were half finished, Creek cards that were just started, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Examined them in their unfinished state and finished state? A. Yes, sir, certainly.

Q. Constant attention? A. Yes, sir.

Examination by the Court.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Bixby, then as I understand you, before these cards were ready for scheduling they had to pass for approval before the Commission or some member of the Commission? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That they were not taken by the clerk for scheduling until they were approved? A. No, sir.

Q. And that every card, prior to the time the clerk took it, received approval, either by evidence of stamp or not, by some member of the Commission? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How was this final approving done?

A. Why, there was no particular formality about it. They were just selected out when they were ready, when they were supposed to be completed and prepared for enrollment or scheduling.

Q. Well, then, what I am trying to get at, they would be brought before a member of the Commission sitting at that time and presented to the member of the Commission, and what investigation would take place as a matter of practice if you remember?

A. No particular investigation unless some question came up. Of course, these cards you know were constantly—especially in the Creek Nation, under the observation of myself and the chief law clerk.

Q. That is, as they were being perfected?

A. As they were being perfected, yes, sir. Some of the cards almost got worn out by constant use and handling.

(Witness dismissed.)

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibits A-34 and A-35 and A-36, we desire to offer in evidence the records, certified copies of records in the office of the Commission, relating to Harvey and Charlie Harris, whose census card, enrollment census card we have already introduced. Counsel is acquainted with these.

The Court: How does this bear upon the case as you conceive it?

Mr. German: It relates, Your Honor, to the question—one question that it relates to is the circumstantial evidence on the subject of the enrollment by the Commission of Thomas Atkins. Here are members of this family who appearing before the Commission testified in relation to the family and mentioning the members of the family, and omitting invariably to mention Thomas Atkins; circumstantial evidence on that subject. Furthermore, the testimony, the records which we offer, coupled with the other records relating to these same two persons, show that Minnie Atkins is the mother of these boys, and deal with Minnie Atkins' presence in those various—that is, her whereabouts, and show her absence from the Indian Territory, and they constitute official records relating to the family history of the Atkins; so that it is circumstantial evidence, and possibly more in some instances, relating not only to the enrollment by the Commission of this family but also to the question as to whether the child——

The Court: Are those objected to?

Mr. Hanford: They are objected to on the ground that they are immaterial.

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor understands that we expect to offer also, the record of the Commission in toto, relating to Minnie Atkins. It seems her name was listed on the old census card with Harvey and Charlie.

The Court: Now, let's see, this does not go to the point or question as to whether there was evidence or not before the Commission, as to the existence or life of Tommy Atkins on April 1, '99?

Mr. German: No, sir.

The Court: Does not go to that point at all?

Mr. German: No; that point we concede as not in the case. It does, however, bear upon the proposition as to who may have given whatever information the Commission had at Okmulgee. It relates to that.

Mr. Cruce: What point is not in the case?

Mr. German: The question as to whether the Commission had anything before it as to Atkins' life April 1st, '99.

The Court: That is in this case. The question I had in mind is as to whether these papers now offered throw any light on that question.

Mr. German: Except in this way, Your Honor: you remember that witnesses about the enrollment at Okmulgee, in testifying in relation to the enrollment work, testified that parents would appear, and according to the rule, had to appear, or in the absence of the parent, persons having the children in their custody had to appear, and it developed that at Okmulgee, that Town Kings and others may have given information. Now, this is circumstantial evidence, tending to show no member of this family gave whatever information that the Commission may have had relating to Thomas Atkins. It is also admissible for that reason.

The Court: That no member of his family gave—how does this say that?

Mr. German: Circumstantial evidence on the question, for instance when Your Honor has before you all these enrollment records relating to this Atkins family, you will see that the Commission has actually taken recorded testimony relating to every name in this family group, on the '95 roll, at one time or another; that in all of that testimony these is no mention of this Thomas Atkins; that whereas as to Thomas there is an absence of any record of any evidence; furthermore that this will show that the only member of that Atkins family who was in the Creek Nation at the time was Nancy. Then, when we come to Nancy, to her communications and testimony before the Commission, they would show that she was making an effort to have placed upon the roll her brother Lee and her sister Minnie, who she stated was living out of the Indian Territory, but made no mention of Thomas. So that, taking the records together we think they constitute forceful evidence relating to the question of the enrollment by the Commission of the name of Thomas Atkins, coupled with the evidence that we have in the office of the Commission of the records relating to Thomas.

The Court: A-34 seems to be in the matter of the application of Thomas Holden, for Harvey Harrison for allotment as a citizen of the Muskogee Nation; that refers to the allotment. I suppose that prior to this time, Harvey Harrison had been admitted—enrolled?

Mr. German: There is a card showing that he was enrolled, yes, sir.

The Court: And this application for allotment was made after the enrollment was complete and their status as citizens established?

Mr. German: Yes, sir, but the date of that record in your hand——

The Court: This is dated May 5th, 1900.

Mr. German: Yes, sir, which is prior to the listing of the name of Thomas.

The Court: Well, this is before the Court; I will permit them to go in the record, over your objections and exceptions, gentlemen.

Mr. German: Now, we offer certified copy of the power of attorney filed with the Commission, dated April 2nd, 1900, signed by Mrs. Minnie Harrison, in Wayne County, Michigan, purporting and attempting to empower Thomas E. Holden, to file for herself and minor children, Charlie and Harvey Harrison, as Exhibit A-37.

The Court: That is objected?

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir.

The Court: The same objection; overruled and exception noted. I assume there is no question about the identity of Minnie Harrison as Minnie Atkins?

Mr. German: If there is, we will establish the identity.

The Court: I am assuming Minnie Harrison is Minnie Atkins in this case.

Mr. German: Now, we offer Exhibit A-39, the testimony of Fred Bowers, taken August 25, 1904, relating to the application for enrollment of Minnie Atkins. Before offering A-37, I desire to offer A-38—withdraw the present offer of A-37; A-38 is an unfinished and incomplete census card, made April 24, 1901, relating to the enrollment of Minnie Harris, who is identified on the 1890 Euchee Town tribal roll, which has been introduced here, her name being Minnie Atkins and on the 1895 tribal roll, opposite 210 thereon, which is Minnie Atkins.

The Court: That is objected to?

Mr. Stuart: We have got this one first, Your Honor, to be passed on.

The Court: That is withdrawn for the present. There is now offered what is stated to be an unfinished card with relations to Minnie Harris, which it is stated Minnie Atkins as appeared from the unfinished card.

Mr. German: By the use of the word unfinished, I mean the card was not completely filled out. It is a finished card. It shows she was not enrolled.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, we have to look after the records some. Here it is admitted in this case that Minnie Atkins was a Creek citizen by blood. Nobody ever denied it or ever will deny it——

The Court: Now, I take it there is no question made in this case that if Tommy Atkins had existence, as is claimed at the time of this 1890 or 1895 roll, and then lived to April 1, 1899, there is no claim made that Minnie's condition as a Creek citizen, or of being a Creek Indian, was such as to entitle him to enrollment is there?

Mr. German: Oh, no, sir; not bearing on that.

The Court: Absolutely no question about that.

Tommy Atkins was entitled to enrollment if he ever existed and if the Commission had evidence of his existing April 1, 1899, substantial evidence.

Mr. Stuart: Now, Your Honor, these documents here—this one shows that Minnie Harris was not enrolled; we admit that she was not enrolled. There is no doubt that she was not enrolled, and the evidence here that they offered that she was not enrolled—what bearing has that in this case?

The Court: It is suggested that in the process of the taking of that testimony in regard to Minnie, as well as the other members of the family, there was no reference in any event made to Thomas Atkins, and that is the point to which this evidence is directed as I understand, the only point.

Mr. German: Yes, sir, except as additional evidence showing who may or may not have appeared before the Commission in 1901, whether any member of the family appeared.

Mr. Stuart: Now, Your Honor, before—the objection we make is of course, as to the volume of the record; Government's Exhibit A-38, this is an exhibit showing that Minnie was stricken from the rolls because there was no proof that she was alive April 1st, '99.

Mr. German: Rather, was not enrolled.

Mr. Stuart: We don't object to that.

The Court: Well, that may be admitted.

Mr. Stuart: This one here that to prove that she was not alive, that she was out of the country and they could not find her, that simply increases the volume of the record.

The Court: Now, what bearing has this?

Mr. Stuart: This is 39. This is evidence here by a man named Fred Bowers and they ask him where Minnie was——

The Court: Now, Mr. German, as to A-39, if this is just a part of the examination pursuant to which Minnie was refused enrollment, then what place has that in this record?

Mr. German: Here is another place that it has in the record. Your Honor will remember that the witnesses testified that when the census card was made, the practice was to note the address of the parent—I mean to make a note with relation to who had the custody——

The Court: Who was the custodian of the child?

Mr. German: Yes. And now, the census card of Tommy is silent on that subject and he was listed alone and this evidence taking it together, beginning with the old census card, which by the way, has some notes on it as to Minnie Atkins, and this one which has just been introduced, showing that she was denied enrollment, bringing it on down including all of the records relating to Minnie, shows her whereabouts, and tends to looseness relating to the enrollment of Thomas by the Commission, because there would have been a cross-reference to these records, and they would have furnished information as to her whereabouts which would have brought about a conclusion on the subject of that.

The Court: Well, we are consuming a good deal of valuable time. I will give you gentlemen your objections. There is not such a volume of this as to make it serious. Save your exceptions, and I will consider it when you come to present the case. I am not prepared to say that I will say then that there is any very great light thrown on the case by these.

Mr. German: Your Honor, I think I made a mistake; I said I offered the final census card of Harvey and Charlie Harrison—I was mistaken. We offer it as Exhibit A-33.

The Court: Admitted over the same objection and exception of counsel.

Mr. German: As Exhibit A-41, I offer the testimony of Sam Brown taken October 25, 1904, relating to the application to enroll Minnie Harris. As A-42, a certified copy of the order of the Commission denying Minnie Atkins enrollment—application for enrollment. And as A-43, the action of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes——

The Court: Now, it is admitted that Minnie Atkins was not enrolled. Why put in the record the formal decision of the Commission?

Mr. German: I think that is correct. I withdraw A-43, and A-44. We offer certified copy of the enrollment—rather the census card, of Nancy Atkins.

Mr. Rosser: With reference to that, we make the same objection as was made by counsel representing Minnie Atkins; objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: The record may show the objection interposed by Nancy Atkins' interest in the same that has already been interposed by the Page interests in this case; the objection is overruled and exceptions noted as to them. Now, there is offered the Nancy Atkins card?

Mr. Rosser: It is admitted that she was enrolled and that she got an allotment, so why encumber the record with all those things?

The Court: What is the point in regard to the Nancy Atkins card now?

Mr. German: The census card?

The Court: Yes?

Mr. German: Merely shows the fact of her enrollment, she being a defendant in this case and claiming an heirship here, her card is offered. Her name is on it alone.

The Court: Oh, it may go in, save your exceptions.

Mr. Rosser: Exceptions.

Mr. German: We offer in evidence as Exhibit A-45, certified copy of a letter to the Commission from Nancy Atkins, dated June 25, 1901, relating to her filing papers.

The Court: That objected to?

Mr. Rosser: All this entire record in relation to Nancy Atkins is objected to. I don't want to repeat it every time. I know what he is offering and we object to all the record now being offered.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, I would like to ask one question. I didn't get the number one exhibit—introduced one exhibit, showing that somebody made an application for Minnie Harrison for citizenship——

Mr. German: No, it was testimony of the witness relating to the application.

Mr. Stuart: And on that testimony the application was rejected?

Mr. German: On that and other testimony. As Exhibit A-46, I offer a letter from Nancy Atkins to the Commission, dated July 29th, 1901, which relates to her brother Lee Atkins and her sister Minnie. She is attempting to obtain their enrollment.

Mr. Rosser: Our objection is to the entire record and we don't [] to repeat but we object to this.

The Court: If I except this in toto, without hearing your objection, I am blindly letting it go into the record.

I am disposed to be very liberal with regard to exhibits in this case, but unless there is some reason for putting these exhibits in, these will not go into the record.

Mr. German: We will not offer them unless we have reason, Your Honor.

Mr. Rosser: The objection to this letter, my recollection is, this was after.

The Court: Just state briefly what each one is that you are offering.

Mr. German: This is a letter dated July 29, 1901, from Nancy to the Commission, and it is a letter wherein she asks to be informed as to the steps to be taken in the matter of filing for her brother Lee, and then she takes up the matter of her sister Minnie, who went to Colorado, and states that she received a letter from Minnie and hasn't heard from her for some time and wants her own filing papers sent to her; that is the filing papers of the author of the letter, sent to her. This letter is offer—one reason is it was written prior to the date of the designation of any relation to Tommy Atkins, and she is interested in the allotment of herself and her brother, talking about Minnie and her brother Lee, and is silent on the subject of Thomas.

The Court: It may be admitted; exceptions noted.

Mr. German: And letter addressed to Nancy Atkins by the Commissioner in charge—T. B. Needles, dated August 9th, 1901, replying to the letter that has just been offered.

The Court: This is hardly necessary; that has nothing that Nancy said or did. Is there anything there in that letter that will throw any light on this case—it may be admitted.

Mr. German: As Exhibit A-48, we offer Nancy Atkins' letter to the Commission dated August 15, 1901, in reply to the letter which has just been offered.

The Court: What is the substance of that?

Mr. German: (Reading) Your favor of the 9th instance in reply to mine of the 29th ultimo at hand and contents noted. Many thanks for information. I failed to state to you that my sister, Minnie Atkins, of whom I wrote you, was born in the Indian Territory, and has lived here all her life until a little less than three years ago, when she left temporarily for her health, going to Colorada, and she wrote me from that place on the 12th of last November. Of course she has been a citizen of the Indian Territory and enrolled all her life and has drawn Creek money as myself—she belonged to the same town as myself. I write this as I failed to state in my last that she was born in the Territory and as I see from yours, which I enclose, that you thought she had not moved to the Indian Territory. Please write at once as it is getting late and I am anxious that she has her rights as she is entitled to and needs them.

The Court: That may be admitted over the same objection and exception.

Mr. German: Exhibit A-49 is a letter from the Commission to Nancy, dated August 19, 1901, in reply to the same letter.

The Court: Part of that same line of correspondence.

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: Admitted over the same objection and exception.

Mr. German: Exhibit A-50 is a letter from Nancy Atkins to the Commission, dated March 7, 1903, making some inquiry about her deed.

A-51 is a letter from Nancy to the Commission dated April 6th, 1905, making some further inquiry about her deed.

The Court: They may be admitted.

Mr. German: A-52 is a letter to Nancy Atkins by the Commission, dated April 14, 1903, acknowledging receipt of her recent letter relating to her deeds. I don't know that that is very important.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: A-53 is the testimony of Nancy Atkins, given on January 23, 1901, in the matter of her application for an allotment.

The Court: Are there any statements there which throw any light on her contention in this case as to here relation to Tommy Atkins?

Mr. German: Just circumstantially, because she makes no reference of Tommy, but is seeking an allotment for herself.

Mr. Maxey: What is the date of that?

Mr. German: March 27, 1901. The allegation in the answer of Nancy Atkins, of the Nancy Atkins group defendants, is that Thomas died in 1902, at any rate after this date.

The Court: It may be admitted over the same objection and exception.

Mr. German: A-54 is Nancy Atkins personal application for an allotment for himself.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: A-55 is Nancy Atkins' testimony given June 11, 1901, before the Commission in the matter of her application for an allotment.

Mr. Maxey: Same objection.

The Court: It may be admitted, exception noted.

Mr. German: A-56 is Nancy Atkins' personal application for additional land in allotment, and is dated June 11, 1901.

Mr. Maxey: Same objection.

The Court: It may be admitted, exception noted.

Mr. German: A-57 is Nancy Atkins' personal application for additional land in allotment—her homestead selection, designated her homestead out of her allotted land, dated May 3, 1902.

The Court: It may be admitted, over the same objection and exception.

Mr. German: If there is any question—— Some say there is—about my having introduced Exhibit A-37. I offered it and some think I inadvertedly withdrew it.

The Court: What is that?

Mr. German: Exhibit A-37. It is the Power of Attorney of Minnie, dated April 2, 1900.

The Court: The record may show that that is admitted over the objection and exception of counsel for the Page interests.

And thereupon, ALICE M. ROBERTSON was called, sworn and examined as a witness for and on behalf of the Government, and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Pinson.

Q. What is your name? A. Alice M. Robertson.
Q. Where do you live, Miss Robertson? A. Muskogee.
Q. How long have you lived in Muskogee?
A. Since September 5, 1885.

Q. What was your business or profession in the latter part of the seventies, and where did you live at that time?

A. In 1873 I went to the Indian office in Washington as a clerk. From 1873 to 1879 I was a clerk in the Indian office in Washington.

Q. From that point where did you go?

A. In March, 1879, I came to Tullahassee Mission to help my father and mother in their Mission work.

Q. What was the Tullahassee Mission?

A. The Tullehassee Mission was an Indian school established under the joint auspices of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions and the Muskogee or Creek Nation in 1849.

Q. At what point? A. At Tullahassee.

Q. Is that in the Indian Territory?

A. In the Creek Nation.

Q. What direction and distance from the town and City of Muskogee?

A. It is on the Tulsa division of the M., K. & T. about three miles north of the Clarksville bridge, or Spaulding bridge.

Q. That is quite near to Muskogee is it?

A. Within ten miles of Muskogee.

Q. Do you know Minnie Atkins, or did you at that time know Minnie Atkins?

A. I found her a pupil in the school the last of March, 1879.

Q. At Tullehassee? A. At Tullehassee.

Q. What age person was she at that time?

A. She was one of those overgrown girls who might be anywhere from fourteen to twenty from her appearance.

Q. You do not now remember her age from information received at the time? A. I do not.

Q. How long was she at the school to your knowledge there?

A. I don't know how long she had been in the school at the time I came there. She left there in the latter part of January, 1881.

Q. Where were you——

A. I beg your pardon, yes, January, 1881.

Q. Were you acquainted with the family of this girl, Minnie Atkins?

A. Yes, her father was our nearest neighbor east. Tom Atkins, before the war, lived down in Dogwood Thicket we called it two miles east. Her grandmother, Sallie Davis, was our nearest neighor to the south, about a half a mile from the Mission.

Q. What was the name of her mother?

A. Mary Jane Davis.

Q. Did you know her?

A. As a child, as an older student in the school.

Q. Miss Robertson, prior to going to Washington as a clerk, where had you lived?

A. I had been before that two years at college at Elmira, New York; I went to Elmira from Tullehassee Mission.

Q. Then you lived in the Indian Territory prior to the time you speak of going to Washington?

A. I was born at Tullehassee.

Q. And have always lived in Indian Territory?

A. It has always been the only home. I have staid at other places.

Q. Your knowledge of the family of Minnie Atkins or your acquaintance with them was during your early youth, was it, in the Indian Territory?

A. I was seven years old when the war broke out, and those who were in school necessarily left the school. There was a break. We came back after peace was made and the school was resumed at Tullehassee in the early spring I think in March 1868.

Q. From your acquaintance with the family, and your acquaintance of the family of Minnie you had a personal interest in her as one of your pupils? A. I had.

Q. You say that Minnie left the Indian Territory in January, 1881? A. She did.

Q. What was the occasion of her leaving if you know?

A. The Tullehassee Mission was destroyed by fire during December 20, 1880, and the children were disbursed to their homes. I was at the Carlisle Indian School and Captain Pratt said that it was a pity that there was no other place for the children to go; that they should not come to Carlisle where there was room; but the Government recognized no duty towards the Civilized Tribes, and he couldn't take them. And as I had served six years in the Indian Offices I asked permission from him to go to Washington and see if I couldn't get an exception made by which some of those children should come to Carlisle. In two hours after hearing of the burning of the Mission, I was on the train going to Washington——

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, I believe we will object. Just let her say she went to Carlisle.

Mr. Pinson: The ultimate purpose of the question was to ascertain where Minnie went from the Mission.

The Court: Now, Miss Robertson, it will not be necessary to go through that history.

Q. Just state?

A. She came from Tullehassee to the Carlisle Indian School in a party of twenty-five students the latter part of January, 1881.

Q. Now, did you know her during her stay at Carlisle, or during part of it?

A. During the part from January, 1881, to November 15, 1882, when I left Carlisle.

Q. At that time you left Carlisle, Minnie was still there, was she? A. She was still there.

Q. In 1882?

A. Those students had come there for a period of three years.

Q. That was the understanding?

A. They were not accepted unless they promised to stay three years.

Q. During the time of your stay at Carlisle, were you frequently in company with Minnie, associated with her, thrown with her? A. Very frequently.

Q. During the time when she was at the Tullehassee Mission, you were her teacher?

A. Teaching in domestic science.

Q. Did you have occasion to teach Minnie? A. I had.

Q. As one of your pupils? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall having had your picture taken with her on occasion? A. At Carlisle.

Q. At Carlisle?

A. Photographers were not common at Tullehassee.

Q. State, Miss Robertson, if you know whether Minnie was a good girl during the time you knew her at Tullehassee and during the time up to the time you left her at Carlisle?

A. She had a very good standing.

Q. Are you aware whether any children were born to her during that period, can you state? A. Positively not.

Q. When was the next time that you saw Minnie Atkins after 1882 when you left Carlisle?

A. It was in Muskogee, Oklahoma, in the late summer of 1895.

Q. In Muskogee in 1895? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in 1882, when you left her at Carlisle, give us a description of her appearance at that time, her general appearance.

A. Oh, she probably weighed I should think about a hundred and fifty pounds. The students in Carlisle were not allowed to wear corsets and she was rather stocky.

Q. What was her height approximately?

A. Her height was probably, I should think, just guessing at it, about five feet six inches.

Q. What was her color?

A. She had not a clear complexion.

Q. Was she dark or light skinned as Indians go, Creek Indians go?

A. Well, she showed that she was a half blood, she had a good deal of color in her cheeks, but was not especially fair.

Q. What you would call a dusky complexion?

A. No not exactly dusky, something like an ordinary tanned country girl.

Q. She was not a dark skinned Indian? A. Not at all.

Q. What was the color of her hair?

A. Well, it was brown with a sort of tawny shade to it.

Q. Was it straight or curly?

A. It had a little tendency to curl.

Q. You next saw her in the year 1895, you stated?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was that? A. At Muskogee.

Q. Had you had any information as to her whereabouts or known anything about her in the meanwhile?

A. I had heard of her going out under the placing in home system——

Q. I say you had learned something?

A. I knew nothing of her personally.

Q. Had no personal knowledge? A. No, sir.

Q. Where was it that you saw her in 1895?

A. In my own house.

Q. In Muskogee? A. In Muskogee.

Q. Do you remember what the occasion was, do you have now an independent recollection of what her occasion was in coming back to the Indian Territory at that time?

A. I only know what she told me.

Q. What was it?

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, I assume that this testimony is going to prove some statement about this child?

Mr. Pinson: Yes, sir, beginning with Minnie's life's history.

Mr. Stuart: Well, I don't know, Your Honor, what that life's history has to do with it.

The Court: Well, I am going to hear this testimony with reference to what Minnie said at that time, the record already showing that she had been here to collect certain monies on the 1895 pay roll.

Mr. Stuart: Now, Your Honor, we have no objection to that, but we do object to any evidence with reference to the existence or non-existence of that child. We want to be heard.

The Court: I appreciate that, and I will permit you to be heard on that before this case is disposed of, but I will permit the witness to answer. And you may object now and then I will hear you upon that particular phase of the case very shortly.

Mr. Stuart: All right, then we object now. Save our exception.

Q. What was the occasion if she stated?
A. She had quarreled with her husband.
Q. What did she advise you at that time that her name was, that her husband's name was?
A. Peterkin, Sergeant Peterkin.
Q. Do you recall whether any one was with her when she came to your house? A. Two children.

The Court: The record will show that you are objecting to each one of these questions and answers.
Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir.
The Court: Exceptions noted.

Q. What was the size of the children?
A. The children were small.
Q. Do you know whether they were boys or whether one was a boy and one a girl? A. I do not remember.

The Court: Now, what was the answer with regard to the children, whether the children were with her?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: And her husband's name at that time was what?

A. Peterkin.

The Court: The two children were two boys?

A. I do not remember the sex; they were two small children and their names was Peterkin. I have forgotten the different given names.
Q. Was her husband with her or any other person?
A. No one but the two children.
Q. Now, can you give us just an idea about the size of those two children at that time?
A. Simply that she carried one in her arms and one was walking. She came all stained and dusty from the train to my house.
Q. And carried one child. Was it such an age that it necessitated her carrying it for any distance?

A. I don't remember, it was small.

Q. You don't remember whether it was such a child that could have walked four or five blocks by itself?

A. I do not remember, I know my feeling is that the youngest was rather young.

Q. What approximately do you recall as to the difference between their ages?

A. Oh, the natural difference in families.

Q. They were not twins? A. No, sir.

Q. Would you say there was as much as two years' difference between them?

A. Why, I should think, I have not had time to straighten it out in my mind.

Q. Simply your recollection at the time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did Minnie remain with you at that time?

A. A few days.

Q. Do you know what became of her when she left your home?

A. She went to Eufaula, whether directly or not I do not remember.

Q. What was the next occasion when you saw Minnie Atkins—pardon me just a moment. I would like to ask you this question: What was her appearance in 1895 when you saw her?

A. She was older and stouter than she had been as a school girl.

Q. Had she grown any taller? A. No.

Q. How much stouter would you judge?

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, we have got to object to some of these.

Mr. Pinson: I will withdraw it.

Q. What was the occasion of your next seeing Minnie?

A. I was hired to go to Seattle and see whether some one there was really Minnie Atkins or not.

Q. Did you go to Seattle? A. I did.

Q. Whom was the first person you saw in Seattle at the Post? A. The Orderly in the Commandant's Office.

Q. At the Commandant's Office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I referred to the Post unconsciously. Where did you go in Seattle?

A. I went to the New Washington Hotel.

Q. From there to what point? A. To Fort Lawton.

Q. What is Fort Lawton? A. A Military Post.

Q. Do you remember the month and the year when this occurred? A. It was the latter part of July, 1914.

Q. I understood you to say that you were hired to go there, by whom?

A. Arrangement was made by Mr. Greenslade on behalf of the Gypsy Oil Company.

Q. And your purpose as I understand it, was to identify Minnie Atkins if she was there, is that correct?

A. That is what I was employed to do.

Q. Now, at the Post you met first the Commandant's Orderly, did you meet the Commandant? A. I did.

Q. Did you state your mission to him? A. I did.

Q. What occurred in connection with your statement to the Commandant?

A. There was a little conversation. I asked him to send and have this woman brought to his office, because I desired that any identification or lack of identification should be done in the presence of competent witnesses.

Q. Was she brought to the office? A. She was not.

Q. Were you permitted to remain in the office?

A. I was not.

Q. What was done after you left the office, or where were you sent?

A. The Orderly was directed to take me to Captain McNabb's office. Captain McNabb was officer of the day.

Q. Did you remain in his office some little time?

A. I did.

Q. What occurred there?

A. Minnie was brought in—at least after several hours' writing at the Post. Mr. Hanford and a man said to be Minnie's husband, and Minnie herself came in an automobile and were brought in to the place where I was eating luncheon with Captain McNabb at his bachelor quarters, I think, there were one or two other bachelor officers there.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Minnie alone at that time? A. Not one word.

Q. Did you attempt to discuss with her the matter of Tommy Atkins? A. I did.

Q. In the presence of these persons? A. I did.

Q. Were you permitted to? A. I was not.

Q. Now, this person whom you saw there in Fort Lawton in July, 1914, with Mr. Hanford and Captain McNabb, was that or not the same Minnie who went to school to you at Tullehassee? A. It was the same Minnie.

Q. And at Carlisle? A. It was.

Q. Who was it at that time who prevented you from holding a conversation with Minnie in regard to Tommy Atkins?

A. The lawyer, Mr. Hanford.

And thereupon, the noon hour having arrived, the Court took a recess until two o'clock P. M.

And thereafter, Court reconvened at two o'clock P. M. pursuant to adjournment.

> The Court: You may proceed, gentlemen; Miss Robertson was on the stand. You hadn't concluded with her. You may take the stand, Miss Robertson.

And thereupon, ALICE M. ROBERTSON was recalled for cross examination.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Miss Robertson, Minnie Atkins, when she was at Carlisle school was found out two or three times wasn't she?

A. Not during the period that I was there.

Q. Now, when did you go there?

A. I was——. She came to the school in January, 1881, I left the school in November, 1882.

Q. Now, how long did she stay at that school?

A. She was there when I left.

Q. You don't know what occurred to her after you left; you don't know whether she was farmed out or not?

A. I understood——

> Mr. Stuart: Never mind, if you know. Just anything that you know of your own knowledge. You don't know anything of your own knowledge with reference to her after you left the Carlisle School, do you?

A. Only reports from other people, not personally.

Q. Now, then, what you meant to say was that Minnie wasn't found out while you was there?

A. Not while I was there.

Q. But you don't pretend to say that she was not found out many times after you left there, do you?

> Mr. German: We object to that question, Your Honor.
> The Court: It is very evident that any information she has is not her own; now, that would be entirely hearsay.

A. Only what I got from the regulation.

> The Court: I don't suppose that you would consider—or the Court would consider her testimony competent with regard to what she read in the school regulation.

Mr. Stuart: Of course not.

The Court: Let's not take it up.

Q. Now, Miss Robertson, you say you went to Seattle to identify Minnie Atkins?

A. To identify a person that was supposed to be Minnie Atkins.

Q. That is what you went for? A. It is.

Q. And you did identify her? A. I did.

Q. And she was the same Minnie Atkins you knew up at Carlisle? A. It was.

Q. And the same Indian girl that used to live down here in this Indian Territory? A. It was.

Q. The same woman exactly? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And while you were there, you had some little talk with Minnie Atkins? A. I had.

Q. And you had that talk in the presence of Mr. Hanford and Captain McNabb of the United States Army?

A. And several others.

Q. Do you remember while you talked with Minnie you were trying to identify her, she had grown larger had she?

A. Yes,

Q. You asked her if she remembered any of the old school songs, didn't you? A. I did.

Q. And asked her to sing a verse of one? A. I did.

Q. And she did sing a verse and you joined in and sang?

A. I did.

Q. And that was one way of identifying her? A. It was.

Q. And then you asked her when the school burned down if there was anything on the ground, and she said there was snow on the ground; do you remember that? A. I remember.

Q. And that was another way of identifying her?

A. I did.

Q. And then you said, then you surely are Minnie Atkins?

A. I said undoubtedly you are Minnie Atkins. I asked many other questions.

Q. But you asked her those questions?

A. I asked her those questions.

Q. And then you asked her something about Tommy Atkins, didn't you? A. It was cut off very short.

Q. Well, but you asked her something about it, didn't you? A. Tried to.

Q. And she answered you one of the questions, didn't she?

A. She did not.

Q. And then Mr. Hanford told you to please not discuss the evidence with her about that child, didn't he?

A. He did. He said he would not have her disturbed by such questions.

Q. How many people had been around there to see her, do you?

A. Haven't any more idea than you have of the number of times she was farmed out.

Q. You state that you staid there at the place and had dinner with the officers? A. Luncheon.

Q. Luncheon. Did you get pretty well acquainted with Captain McNabb while you were there?

A. Captain McNabb treated me as a gentleman should.

Q. Very courteously? A. Very courteously.

Judge Stuart: That is all.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Pinson.

Q. Do you know what the custom was with regard to farming out those inmates at Carlisle?

A. They went under great care after application had been received.

Q. As to the length of time that they staid before they were farmed out?

A. They were never allowed to go until they had been a length of time in the school.

Q. What was that length of time?

A. It varied according to the individual.

Q. There was no regular time which prescribed the time they should remain? A. No.

(Witness dismissed.)

Mr. German: We contemplate now, Your Honor, to prove what we concede to be the facts with relation to Minnie's children, what children she had, and that she had no child named Thomas, and an admission she has made.

The Court: You are now then going into that part of the case which has relation to the existence or non-existence of Tommy Atkins.

Mr. German: Yes, sir, but I don't mean to suggest that we may not have a little more evidence relating to the Dawes Commission evidence, but we haven't any more now at hand.

The Court: You will not be cut off on that line.

Mr. German: I especially mention Mr. Merrick.

Mr. Stuart: Well, we want his testimony too.

The Court: I am not going to cut you off as to what occurred before the Commission. Now, of course we have no witness on the stand. There is no formal objection that can be made except as you may state it in the record in a general way as to what you object.

Mr. German: Then, Your Honor, we can make a record here. They objected to Miss Robertson's testimony, and her testimony relating to the two children which Minnie had with her in 1895, evidence which we offered in support of our contention.

Mr. Stuart: Well, we formally objected to that. That is not the material thing we object to. We understood you were coming down to the definite offer to prove that Thomas Atkins never existed.

Mr. German: We are.

The Court: Well, now, I might hear you on that proposition, gentlemen, because when the evidence is offered, if I conclude, after argument, that it is competent, I will have heard the argument and you may make your exceptions so that your record may be made in that way; so I will hear you now.

And thereupon, extended argument was presented to the Court.

The Court: I will determine this matter in the morning. I want to give it some consideration in connection with some authorities that have been called to my attention. We will take a recess until ten o'clock tomorrow morning.

And thereupon court took a recess until ten o'clock A. M. Thursday, May 3, 1917.

And thereafter, on May 3, 1917, at 11 o'clock A. M. Court reconvened, pursuant to adjournment, and the following proceedings were had as follows:

The Court: The case, as now before this Court, may be treated fundamentally as a case in which the United States for the Creek Nation is the plaintiff, and Minnie Atkins is the defendant; and for the present consideration, in the determining whether or not the objection to the evidence proposed to be offered by the Government is well taken, must in my judgment be determined as if the Government were here for the Creek Nation on one side, and Minnie Atkins were here alone on the other side. There are other defendants who claim under Minnie Atkins who must stand or fall with her, unless for some reason of lack of notice or fraud charged on her part, that that fraud be held to exclude her, they take the position of innocent purchasers and escape by reason of their lack of knowledge of the fraud charged to her.

It is charged among other things in this bill that Minnie Atkins, through her agent Davis, a relative of hers, secured the name of Thomas Atkins to be placed on the 1895 Creek roll. It is alleged—and secured him to be placed on the roll as her child. It is alleged that Thomas Atkins—or the so-called Thomas Atkins—never in fact existed. That Minnie Atkins never had such a child, and that therefore the name, Thomas Atkins, placed on the roll, as charged by her fraud, represents a myth. It is charged that the purpose of Minnie Atkins in placing, or causing to be placed, the name Thomas Atkins was twofold. First, to secure the immediate benefit of the payment of a certain per capita sum which was to be distributed among the enrolled members of the Creek Tribe, the 1895 payment, for the purpose of which the roll in controversy was made up. And second, that in view of the Act of Congress passed prior to that time looking to the allotment of these lands, and with relation to the enrollment of the Indians, she knew that the roll of 1895, which was being made, would be an important item of evidence in procuring final enrollment and allotment of land, and so forth; and that then, in 1895 when his name was caused to be placed on the roll, she contemplated that it should not only have the effect of procuring the payment for her, but have the effect of procuring a place for Thomas Atkins, her alleged son, on the final rolls, and procure for her as his heir a benefit in the distribution of the lands and moneys of the tribe.

It is further alleged that not only did she enroll him with that in view, but that she concealed from the Dawes Commission and the agent of the Government, during all the process of enrollment, the fact that Thomas Atkins was a myth; that he had no place on the Creek roll, while the Commission under provision of law was considering that roll as evidence with regard to the right of Thomas Atkins for enrollment.

Now, the history of the enrollment, of the enrollment of the Indians, beginning with 1893, when the Dawes Commission was first established by Congress, and running down through the legislation to and including the Act of April 28th, 1898, and the Creek Agreement, which provided that the rolls should be made up pursuant to the Act of 1898, is necessary of consideration. I find nothing in the Act of 1893 wrich specifically refers to the enrollment, to any act of enrollment by the Dawes Commission of the several members of the tribe. It does contemplate the ultimate allotment of the land among the Indians, with a view to ultimate statehood here in the Indian Territory. But not until the Act of 1896 is there any specific reference made to the enrollment of these Indians by the Dawes Commission. In 1896, the Act of June 10, 1896, it is provided:

> "That said Commission is further authorized and directed to proceed at once to hear and determine the application of all persons who may apply to them for citizenship in any of said nations, and after such hearing they shall determine the right of such applicant to be so admitted and enrolled:
> "Provided, however, that such application shall be made to such Commissioner within three months after the passage of this act.
> "The said Commission shall decide all such applications within ninety days after the same shall be made.
> "That in determining all such applications said Commission shall respect all laws of the several nations or tribes, not inconsistent with the laws of the United States, and all treaties with either of said nations or tribes, and shall give due force and effect to the rolls, usages, and customs of each of said nations or tribes:
> "And provided, further, that the rolls of citizenship of the several tribes as now existing are hereby confirmed, and any person who shall claim to be entitled to be added to said rolls as a citizen of either of said tribes and whose right thereto has either been denied or not acted upon, or any citizen who may within three months from and after the passage of this Act desire such citizenship, may apply to the legally constituted court or committee designated by the several tribes for such citizenship, and such court or committee shall determine such applications within thirty days from the date thereof."

It further provides: "That the said Commission, after the expiration of six months, shall cause a complete roll of citizenship of each of said nations to be made up from their records," that is from the records of the nations, "and add thereto the names of citizens whose rights may be conferred under this act, and said rolls shall be, and are hereby, made rolls of citizenship of said nations."

In this Act of 1896, wherein the tribal rolls are confirmed by Congress, Congress seems to have intended that to those confirmed rolls shall be added such persons as may be admitted to citizenship, either by the Dawes Commission or the tribunal of the tribes, within the specified limited time, and that when those applications for citizenship have been made and determined, by the Commission or by the tribunal of the tribes, then the Dawes Commission should take those names and add to the existing confirmed rolls from the tribal records, making up a roll of the several tribes. That was the law as it stood in 1896. In 1897 Congress construed the Act of 1896, to the extent of providing that the rolls confirmed should be the last authenticated rolls of the tribes, which in the case of the Creek Nation would be the roll of 1895. Then April 28, 1898, further legislation was had with reference to the enrollment of these Indians. After providing for the enrollment of the Cherokees, especially for that tribe, Congress provided further:

> "Said Commission is authorized and directed to make correct rolls of the citizens by blood of all the other tribes," (which included the Creeks,) "eliminating from the tribal roll such names as may have been placed thereon by fraud or without authority of law, enrolling such only as may have lawful rights thereto, and their descendants born since such rolls were made, with such intermarried white persons as may be entitled to Choctaw and Chickasaw citizenship under the treaty and laws of said tribes."
> Providing further: "No person shall be enrolled who has not heretofore removed to and in good faith settled in the nation in which he claims citizenship."

And further the rolls are to be made descriptive. By this legislation in 1898, it appears to me, that notwithstanding the confirmation of the rolls by the Act of 1896, and as construed by the Act of 1897, by this legislation the matter of the enrollment of these Indians was exclusively turned over to the Dawes Commission. They were not required to place upon the tribal rolls a name of a citizen because that name appeared upon a roll which had theretofore been confirmed by Act of Congress. The effect of that confirmation, so far as making the names on the confirmed rolls established citizens of the tribe was set aside in my judgment by the Act of 1898, and the whole matter opened up, and Congress gave the Dawes Commission access, not only to the rolls which had theretofore been confirmed, but to all the rolls and records of the tribes, for the purpose of determining who, under the laws, customs, and usages of the tribes under the previous acts, were entitled to enrollment in 1898. Now, that was the law which was in force and under which the Dawes Commission was proceeding to act in 1901 when Thomas Atkins was placed on what is now the final Creek roll. The 1895 roll, as Judge Sanborn says in the receivership phase of this case, was a very important item of evidence before the Dawes Commission in determining the right of Thomas Atkins, and all other confirmed citizens of the nations to enrollment upon this side of the Creek law. It was an item of evidence, a matter of evidence, to which it was directed by Congress to refer. If Minnie Atkins had applied herself for enrollment, and had presented the 1895 roll, assuming that the charge is true that Thomas Atkins had no existence, and that she had caused him to be placed upon that roll, and thereafter had herself appeared before the Dawes Commission seeking enrollment for him presenting the enrollment of Thomas Atkins on the 1895 roll as an item of evidence in support of her contention that Thomas Atkins should be enrolled by the Commission as her child, then she would have been in the attitude of presenting to that Commission this false and fraudulent evidence with regard to Thomas Atkins' rights of enrollment; in my judgment if she had made her application and had permitted the Commission to refer to the 1895 roll when her application, she personally being present, applying for the enrollment of Thomas, had permitted the Commission to refer to the 1895 roll to determine whether or not Thomas Atkins had ever been enrolled or not, she would have been in the attitude of of one before the Commission presenting false and perjured testimony, evidence which she had made herself with regard to the right of Atkins to be enrolled, and the question would then arise whether in a case of that kind, the Government, on behalf of the Creek Nation, might now be heard to contend—might now be heard to have the patent issued pursuant to such enrollment set aside. I cannot see any material difference between what her attitude would be under those circumstances, and the attitude of Hawkins in the Iowa Land and Trust Company case, who appeared before the Commission in that case, representing to the Commission that his son, who had at one time lived, was living April 1, 1899, when in fact he was not. In that case the Government was permitted to file its bill to set aside that patent because of the fraud perpetrated on the Commission by this representation by Hawkins, the father of the dead child, as to his having lived after April 1, 1899; whereas, the proof in the case to set aside the patent conclusively showed that he was not so living. The patent was set aside and the action of this court affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals. But Minnie Atkins was not personally before the Commission. After she procured this name to be placed on the roll, if she did so, she left Indian Territory. It is not charged that she appeared before the Commission at all. It is charged that the Commission arbitrarily made this enrollment and allotment. That they did so without evidence except this enrollment which it is charged Minnie had so fraudulently procured to be made. Now, after Minnie had procured this name to be enrolled as we have seen, Congress passed a law which made that roll an item of evidence in the case, a very important item of evidence in determining whether the enrolled Thomas Atkins as a Creek on the 1895 roll, was entitled to enrollment on the Dawes Commission roll. Minnie Atkins is presumed to have had knowledge of the law which made that an item of evidence. It is charged that she concealed from the Commission the fact that Thomas Atkins had had no existence and that he had no right upon the tribal roll. She may not have done that by any affirmative act on her part, but is she in any better position here now, not having made any application, but having permitted the Dawes Commission to proceed to enroll Thomas on their own initiative, no application having been made, and relying upon the roll which was made by her procurement in 1895; is she in any better position now because she didn't appear before the Commission and actively seek enrollment of Thomas, than she would be if she had? I cannot see any material difference between the two situations. It seems to me that she is in the same position as if she had been before the Commission presenting that roll as establishing the fact that Thomas Atkins had in 1895 had existence as her son entitled to enrollment in the tribe. Judge Sanborn here held that the fact that Thomas was enrolled on the 1895 roll is very strong evidence that at that time he existed, and that in the absence of countervailing proof to the contrary he may be presumed to have existed up to and including April 1, 1899.

Now, it is contended that this question may not now be raised because, as was urged in the Iowa Land and Trust Company case, it is urged also in the present case, that the United States cannot cancel the patent in question because the fraud alleged was not extrinsic to the matter tried before the Commission, but the Court denied that contention saying "But the Supreme Court has often held that the rule above announced is not applicable to ex parte proceeding in the United States Land Office, and that the finding of the land officers in such proceedings, although not open to collateral attack, is not conclusive against the Government when it sues to cancel the resulting patent upon the ground that it was obtained by means of false and fraudulent proof." Citing United States vs. Minor, 114 U. S. 233; McCaskill Company vs. United States, 216 U. S. 504; Washington Security Company vs. The United States.

Now, it is true that those cases which the Court cites were public land cases in which, as is stated in its decisions, it is held that the hearing before the public land officers are ex parte, but the Circuit Court of Appeals goes on to say in this case:

> "In the case at bar the hearing before the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes was purely ex parte. The United States for the Creek Nation was not represented and no issue was framed or tried."

Now, it will be remembered that in the Iowa Land and Trust Company case was involved the enrollment of this Chester Hawkins by the Dawes Commission, proceeding under the same law and provision and practice that they proceeded under in the case at bar, except in that case there was an affirmative application on the part of the dead child's father for his enrollment, whereas, in this case in the absence of application the Commission proceeded to act upon its own initiative in determining the question of the right of enrollment.

I have studied, read, and re-read Judge SANBORN's decision on the Receivership phase of this case. In reading that, and considering it together with the Iowa Land and Trust Company decision, and the other authorities controling, it is necessary to bear in mind that what Judge SANBORN said there, he said with relation to the question as to whether or not this court had properly appointed a receiver for the property and taken it out of the hands of the defendants, Page and Josey, who were claiming under Minnie Atkins. That case was presented on the original bill. That bill merely charged the entire absence of any substantial evidence before the Commission on the question of whether or not Thomas Atkins was living April 1, 1899. Judge SANBORN first takes up that phase of the case and finds that there is not sufficient strong evidence indicating that the Government will ultimately prevail on that issue as to warrant the appointment of a Receiver. He next takes up the question injected into the case by evidence which was really not within the original bill, to the effect that Thomas Atkins was a myth. He treats that as another contention, tangible contention in the case, if established, but finds from a review of the evidence that in view of the force which must be given to what the roll—the 1890 and 1896 rolls themselves show, and in view of other evidence that was presented to this Court at the hearing, it cannot be said that there is a strong possibility that the Government would prevail in establishing that theory that Thomas Atkins was a myth. He further finds that, however that may be, the defendants Page and Josey, the evidence fails to show that the defendants Page and Josey who were in possession of the property had any notice of this non-existence of Thomas Atkins prior to the time that they purchased the property; and seems to hold that in that case there could be no recovery as to them, and that therefore the Court improperly took the property away from them and sought to put it in the hands of a Receiver. Then, third, he takes up the question as to the fraud charge, in what we now have before us as the amended bill, and finds first that that is prepermitted, because the matter was not before this Court when the Receivership hearing was had, and finds further that the evidence does not establish that phase of the case, having found that Page and Josey had no notice of this fraudulent act, or of the fact that Thomas Atkins was a myth, of course even in that case of fraud, he holds that the tribe and the United States merely acting for the tribe, is estopped after the long lapse of time, after the large amount of money which the defendants in possession placed on the property, without such notice, that fact, that after that long lapse of time, without notice, the Creek Tribe is estopped from asserting as against Page and Josey, the persons in possession, their action to cancel the patent and strike down their right.

The objection will be overruled and exceptions noted. It is a question not without difficulty, but I have given it my best thought, and have to, for the purpose of this case, determined it as I have, and let another Court determine it otherwise, if they so find.

Mr. Cobb: If the Court please, I don't remember whether we made the objection also to this evidence offered; if we did not, we desire to make the objection now.

The Court: Well, when the evidence is offered you may make your objections and the Court, the Court's ruling will be the same and your exception will be noted. It is now only ten minutes to twelve and we will not proceed to put on any more proof now. If any other phase of the case may be disposed of, I will hear it.

Mr. Crane: I would like to ask counsel for the Government, in view of the statement of the Court, assuming that Minnie Atkins had practiced fraud, I would like to inquire if they are in position to present their testimony on that question as to Page's knowledge, as a preliminary, to show that he——.

Mr. German: Your Honor, we expect to be able to prove that before Mr. Page dealt with Minnie Atkins, that he had notice of the non-existence of Thomas Atkins.

The Court: Well, the question is whether you are in position to place that proof first.

Mr. German: No, we are not, for the reason that it would not follow in line with orderly proof.

The Court: I have thought about that some, gentlemen, since it was suggested yesterday. It seems to me the question of the existence or non-existence of Thomas Atkins, now that the Court has permitted that phase of the case to be gone into, is so inextricably mixed up with all the other matters, it will be pretty hard to divorce one from the other.

Mr. Stuart: You don't understand the suggestion. The proposition is, Your Honor, they have set up here as to the fraud or myth. If these people purchased without knowledge of it, they are innocent purchasers. * * *

The Court: I will try this case in the regular way. I will sit through it; some court will have to hear it and I will hear it.

Mr. German: I want to make this suggestion, Your Honor, in view of counsel's suggestion, we may have occasion as the case proceeds, to present some argument, or call the Court's attention to some additional authorities upon the question of notice.

The Court: I am not determining that question now. You charge that these parties had notice, I assume you are going to attempt to prove the charge?

Mr. German: Our idea in charging that was merely this, if I may be permitted to explain at this time * * *

The Court: I will tell you Mr. German, unless I, I misconstrued Judge SANBORN's opinion, he holds there, a holding which must apply to this case unless it was—is entirely different from what it was on the application for the appointment of the Receiver, the Court holds that even though Thomas Atkins was a myth, because of the long lapse of time that the Creek Nation, and the Government stands here in the shoes of the Creek Nation—because of the long lapse of time they permit it to go by, holding out the records of the Dawes Commission and the patents to the purchasers, in view of the fact that he in the opinion had already held that they had notice, that therefore as to them, the Government and the Creek Tribe was estopped.

Mr. German: I see. I merely wanted to explain our position to Your Honor, that we were not agreeing to that construction of the opinion.

The Court: Oh, no, or am I now deciding that phase of the case more than giving notice of the trend of my mind on that proposition.

And thereupon, court takes a recess until 2 o'clock P. M.

And thereafter and at 2 o'clock P. M., court convened pursuant to adjournment and further proceedings herein are had as follows:

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, so that we may understand, I understand the Court holds now, the question as to whether there was any evidence before the Dawes Commission, and the question of fraud, and the question of myth, three propositions in this case. There is no question here as to whether or not he dies prior to April 1st, 1899, I understand?

The Court: Of course if he is a myth, then there never was any death.

Mr. Stuart: But the question of fraud; the name was put on the Creek roll as a living person. Of course the question as to the date of April 1st, 1899, didn't cut any figure there——

The Court: I think that is what this case is now. Evidently the Government is standing on the myth proposition now; that interwoven with the fraud.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-58, we offer in evidence the certified copy of a purported quit claim deed, purporting to have been executed by Minnie Atkins to H. U. Bartlett, describing the land in controversy, dated October 2nd, 1912.

The Court: I shall consider that objections—— exhibits which are offered, to which you gentlemen do not offer objections, are admitted without my asking you. H. U. Bartlett quit claim deed is offered.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, I object to that as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial. Don't tend to prove any issue in this case. We have no connection with Bartlett, and the quit claim deed doesn't prove any issue in this case.

The Court: Mr. German, let me hear from you.

Mr. German: We are about to offer, Your Honor, deviate a little bit from the question as to the existence of Atkins, in order to make that question appear more clear to the Court as we proceed. We want now to offer evidence relating to the time when the defendant placed of record their first claim of title, and these deeds are admissible for the further reason that they constitute what we call clouds on the title to the land in controversy, and we desire to prove the existence of those clouds.

The Court: The exhibit will be admitted and exceptions noted—exceptions of the defendant Page.

Mr. German: We would like to ask counsel if they will admit that that deed was a forgery. We can prove it, of course.

Mr. Hanford: The deed from Minnie Atkins?

Mr. German: Purporting to be to Mr. Bartlett in 1912.

Mr. Stuart: If that is the same deed, there are two of them.

The Court: It may shorten the matter if you gentlemen will examine that.

Mr. Hanford: We admit it.

The Court: Now, the record might show then, for the purpose of shortening the case to that extent, that it is admitted by the defendant Page and that interest in the case that this Bartlett deed which is offered is a forgery.

Mr. Rosser: Our interests also admits that, Your Honor.

The Court: It is admitted also by the Nancy Atkin's interest—by all of the defendants in the case, it is admitted?

Mr. Hanford: At this time, if Your Honor please, we could probably save interruptions, if it may be admitted by the Court, that the objections made by Judge Stuart, or Mr. Cruce, in behalf of the Page interests, and the exceptions noted, are also objections on the part of defendants Folk and Hanford, to save my joining in the objections and exceptions, and I might have the benefit of their's.

The Court: The record may show that. Now, so far as the interests of you other gentlemen, are the same as that of the Page interests, if you desire that the record may show that their objections are your objections and exceptions—do you desire that?

Mr. Cobb: Yes, sir.

The Court: Alright.

Mr. Stuart: He is just speaking for one.

Mr. Maxey: There is some of it that we might not object to and other parts that we would object to.

The Court: Perhaps you had better go along then.

Mr. Cobb: If the Court please, with this understanding, in case we don't join in an objection, we will make it known at the time; if we don't make it known to the Court at the time, we join in the objection.

The Court: That applies to the Henry Carter interest. The Nancy Atkins interest will take care of themselves as they go along. Here is another suggestion that might be made in so far as the evidence in relation to the myth and to the fraud and those things, to which objection was made yesterday and argument had, the record at proper time may show that objections to each question of that character is offered and overruled and exception noted. Why may not the record be safely made on that without the interposing of objections?

Mr. Stuart: The only difficulty to that, while objections may be understood as made to that class of testimony, the testimony itself may not be of the character which the Court admits; it may be collateral to the inquiry or it may be hearsay.

The Court: I know, but as to the testimony of the same feature of that kind, as to which you want to interpose the objection.

Mr. Stuart: Otherwise the objection will stand.

The Court: Then you will be considered as having objected for that reason.

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir.

And thereupon, THOMAS W. GREEN, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What is your name? A. Thomas W. Green.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Green?

A. I live in the neighborhood of Oilton, Oklahoma.

Q. Oilton? A. Oilton, yes, sir.

Q. Do you know the land known as the Thomas Atkins allotment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Consisting of 160 acre, or approximately that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that land in one body or two?

A. It is in two tracts.

Q. In two tracts. And what acreage? A. 80 acres each.

Q. Where is that land located? I mean is it located in any oil field? A. Yes, sir, it is located in the oil field.

Q. In what field?

A. In what is called the north Cushing field.

Q. Where is that with reference to Tulsa?

A. From Tulsa?

Q. Yes, sir. A. East of Tulsa.

Q. You mean west, do you not?

A. Yes, sir, west—yes, sir, west.

Q. How far?

A. Somewhere in the neighborhood of about 35 miles.

Q. What County is it in? A. Creek County.

Q. Where do you live with reference to that land?

A. I live upon that land.

Q. You live upon this land? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which 80? A. I live on the west 80.

Q. How far apart are those two 80's?

A. A quarter of a mile between them.

Q. And the west 80 is composed of two 40's, one lying north of the other? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the east 80 is the same way? A. Yes, sir.

Q. With an 80 between them?

A. There is—— yes, sir, there is an 80 between the two.

Q. It is composed of two 40's; one lying north of the other? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which one of those two 80's of the Atkins allotment do you live on? A. I live on the west 80.

Q. How long have you lived there?

A. I have lived there since 1913.

Q. What time in the year?

A. About the 25th of January.

Q. How came you to enter on this land at that time?

A. I had taken an agricultural lease or a contract from H. U. Bartlett.

Q. You are his agricultural lessee then? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the time you went on this land, were there any improvements on it? A. No, sir.

Q. Was there any cultivation on it? A. No, sir.

Mr. Hanford: If Your Honor please, we object to this line of testimony on the ground that it is immaterial. The question, I suppose, that the witness is produced for the purpose of testifying is as to fact of production by defendants at a certain time but under Your Honor's ruling in the Thlocco case when the witness Kirkbride was produced, you held that question of production was incompetent.

The Court: What is your object?

Mr. German: We want to show that the very first occupant of this land was——

The Court: What bearing has that as you conceive upon the question before the Court now?

Mr. German: We are making the contention that Thomas was a mythical person and that no claim was ever made to the land at the time the witness is relating; that it had never been occupied, and in connection with that we expect to show that there never was any assertion of ownership so far as the deeds and records of Creek County are concerned, as a circumstance relating to the question of the existence of Atkins. Now there is the contention in the case, too, I may suggest incidentally, of estoppel, and I wanted to prove that no assertion of ownership was ever made by any individual to the title to this land as a circumstance.

The Court: Overruled, exceptions noted.

Q. Was there any fencing on it? A. No, sir.

Q. No houses? A. No houses.

Q. Did thr land have the appearance of ever having been cultivated? A. No, sir.

Q. Was there any person on the land when you went and took possession? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you make any improvements on the land?

A. Mr. H. U. Bartlett built a house there and paid me for fencing and breaking the land.

Q. That was after you went into possession of course?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long after you went into possession was it until you built the house, about?

A. Well, we began building on the house as soon as he gave me the lease.

Q. When was the fence built?

A. The fence was built sometime in March.

Q. Of 19—— A. '13.

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, as Government's Exhibit A-59, we offer in evidence a certified copy on an oil and gas lease for grant from H. U. Bartlett to the Gem Oil Company, dated November 20, 1912.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Q. Mr. Green, was this land ever operated for oil and gas purposes?

A. Not when I went on the land, no, sir.

Q. It hadn't been then, was it after you went upon the land? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By whom? A. Gypsy.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, we want to introduce a formal objection to that. This evidence is utterly incompetent at this time. They can't negative the good faith of Page and Josey.

The Court: Well, that relates to the order of proof. Your objection will be overruled and exception noted.

Q. When was it that the Gypsy put a well on it?

A. The Gypsy started putting down a well about the 25th of December, 1913.

Q. Did they strike oil? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About when? A. About the 23rd of January, 1914.

Q. And did they save the oil? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the handling of that well?

A. Yes, sir, the Gypsy Oil Company hired me to switch and take care of the oil.

Q. Where was that well located?

A. That well was located on the west eighty, in the southwest corner.

Q. You say that you fenced this land, did you fence both eighties?

A. No, I just had a verbal contract on the west eight-.

Q. What kind of fence was this?

A. It was a two wire, barb wire fence.

Q. All around that west eighty? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were there any gates in that fence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where were they?

A. On the southeast corner and on the southwest corner, and a gate in the northeast corner.

Q. One in the northeast corner?

A. Northeast corner, southeast and southwest corners.

Q. Was there any opening in the fence at the northwest corner? A. No, sir.

Q. Is there a public road along either line of that land?

A. There is a public road on the north side.

Q. In July, 1914, were you still having to do with the well? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there anyone occupying the land with you except the Gypsy Oil Company any time after they entered and started that well up to July? A. In the oil business that is—

Q. You don't understand my question. You were in possession as an agricultural lessee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the Gypsy Oil Company had a well on it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, was there anybody else that was occupying the land in any way up to July, prior to July, 1914? A. No, sir.

Q. Did anyone else enter on that land that summer?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who? A. The Gem Oil Company.

Q. Whose company was that? A. Mr. Charles Page's.

Q. When did that company enter into possession of the land? A. About the 5th of July I noticed them.

Q. You noticed them about the 5th of July?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1914? A. Yes, sir, 1914.

Mr. German: We now offer in evidence as Government's Exhibit A-60, certified copy of so called bargain and sales deed, dated June 13, 1914, from Minnie E. Folk (Atkins) and Harry B. Folk, her husband, to Alexander J. McNabb, jr. Trustee.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: And a certified copy of an oil and gas mining lease, dated June 24, 1914, from Alexander J. McNab, jr. Trustee of Minnie E. Fol*d*, formerly Minnie E. Atkins, and Harry B. Fol*d*, her husband, to the Gem

Oil Company covering the land in controversy, as Government's Exhibit A-61.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: And as Government's Exhibit A-62 a certified copy of an assignment of the deed last described, the assignment being from the Gem Oil Company to Charles Page and R. A. Josey, dated June 24, 1914.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Q. Mr. Green, when did you first discover the Gem Oil Company on the land?

A. I first discovered them on Sunday Morning, July 5, 1914.

Q. In what way were they on the land?

A. The rig timber was on the land at that time.

Mr. German: Your Honor, I want to correct the date of the last instrument introduced; it is June 30, instead of June 24, 1914.

Q. What was your answer?

A. On July 5th the rig timber was on the land.

Q. Rig timbers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At what point on the land?

A. On the northwest corner of the west eighty.

Q. Of the eighty you were on? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the condition of the fence near where the rig timbers were on the land?

Mr. Hanford: We object as incompetent.

The Court: Why all that detail?

Mr. German: It will appear further on, this evidence is a little out of order, it will appear later on and we make the contention in this case that Mr. Page after getting this lease forcibly took possession of the land that was openly and notoriously occupied by others under claim of title.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, that goes to the controversy as to the title between H. W. Bartlett under that forced deed which they have introduced and the question of title between Page and Josey under their lease from Minnie Folk, formerly Minnie Atkins. I think your Honor, will see that the——

The Court: Objection overruled. Take your exception. Proceed.

A. What was the question?

Q. It was this: What was the condition of the fence near the rig timbers?

The Court: I have this to suggest: You can save a lot of details if you will just go into those matters which are essential as quickly and rapidly as possible. This is going to be a long case.

Mr. German: I will try to do that.

A. The fence was in good condition.
Q. Was the fence up or down? A. The fence was up.
Q. Near the rig timbers? A. All around that side.
Q. Well, I mean after the rig timbers were brought in?
A. No, sir, the fence was down.
Q. The fence was down? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Were the posts intact, posts up?
A. The posts was up, yes, sir.
Q. What about the wires? A. The wires was down.
Q. Down off of how many posts?
A. The wire was cut at one post and laid back.
Q. Laid back? A. Yes, sir.
Q. State whether or not you were consulted about the possession that was taken there before they entered?
A. No, sir, I did not know anything about it.
Q. Until you found it on Sunday morning? A. Yes, sir.
Q. On July 5th? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Was there any wagon tracks there? A. Yes, sir.
Q. That was next to the road, I believe you stated?
A. Yes, sir, that was on the north side.
Q. What was done then about proceeding—was there a rig put up of those timbers?
A. Yes, sir, the rig started along about a couple of days after that, the rig builders started to building the rig.
Q. Now, later on did they drill a well there? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Immediately or not?
A. No, sir, not immediately.
Q. Did you know about any litigation pending in the District Court of Creek County at Sapulpa with reference to this possession?
A. Before they moved the rig on this land?
Q. No, sir, afterwards? A. Afterwards?
Q. Yes? A. I was called to Sapulpa when they had the trial there.
Q. Was that before or after the rig timbers were placed there?
A. That was after the rig timbers were put there.

Q. Did you know of any litigation at Sapulpa before they were placed there? A. No, sir.

Q. You don't know whether there was or not?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, did you after that have anything to do with that well? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you ever in the employ of the Gem Oil Company with relation to that land after that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About how long after they drilled their well, or was it during the time they drilled their well?

A. About November, 1915, I began working for the Gem Oil Company my first work.

Q. November, 1914? or 1915? A. 1915.

Q. Did the Gypsy Oil Company abandon its possession after that or not? A. I don't understand.

Q. Well, who was in possession now?

A. The Gem Oil Company.

Q. How long have they been in possession, since the time you have mentioned.

A. Yes, sir, since the time I mentioned.

Q. And have they been continuously in possession since then? A. To my knowledge they have, yes, sir.

Q. Drilled very many wells or not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the time that the Gypsy—— No, at the time that the Gem Oil Company entered in possession of that land, about what was the Gypsy well producing?

A. At that time it was producing about twenty five barrels.

Q. A day? A. A day, yes, sir.

Q. Did it later ever produce more than that?

A. No, sir, it decreased later.

Q. Twenty five barrels a day? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any other production of oil close to that land at that time the Gem Oil Company entered in possession? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How far away?

A. Well, there was oil wells or offsets for Number 1 well that the Gypsy was operating, and there was a well north of the one where the Gem Oil Company set their rig.

Q. Now, in the early part of 1913 when you went into possession of the land, were there any oil wells close to this land? A. No, sir.

Mr. German: Now, your Honor, we offer a certified copy of deed dated October 22, 1914, from Minnie E. Folk, formerly Minnie Atkins, to Charles Page, as Government's Exhibit A-63.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-64, a certified copy of a so called conveyance date- October 30, 1914, from Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, to Edward C. Hanford, conveyed a portion of the eighth royalty interest provided for under the lease.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-65, a certified copy of a bargain and sale deed from Alexander J. McNab, Trustee for Minnie E. Folk, dated July, 18, 1914.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-66 a certified copy of oil and gas lease, dated November 13, 1914, from Thomas Atkins, known as Henry Carter, to the Gem Oil Company.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-67, a quit claim deed from Harvey Harrison to H. E. Whitehead.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-68, a quit claim deed from Harvey Harrison to Minnie Folk, formerly Minnie Atkins.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-69, an oil and gas lease, dated November 4, 1913, from Charles Harrison to Charles M. Ball.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-70, a certified copy of oil and gas lease dated February 16, 1914, from A. J. Burkett, Guardian of the estate of Harvey Harrison to Thomas Gillcrease and Robert Wilson.

The Court: Admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-71, certified copy of oil and gas lease from Harvey Harrison to Ed D. Shirk.

The Court: Admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-72, a certified copy of a purported warranty deed from Thomas Harris and Kahookah Harrison to Rufus B. Cobb.

The Court: Admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-73, certified copy of warranty deed from Thomas Atkins a single person, to W. P. Root, that is dated August 17, 191——.

The Court: Admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-74, certified copy of a real estate mortgage dated August 17, 1914, from W. P. Root to Thomas Atkins, formerly known as Martin Rowe.

The Court: Admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-75, certified copy of release of mortgage, the mortgage last described, the release being dated in August.

The Court: Admitted.

Mr. German: As Government's Exhibit A-76, certified copy of quit claim deed from W. P. Root to Atkins dated August 24, 1914.

Mr. German: We now offer as Government's exhibit A-77, certified copy of a petition filed in the District Court of Creek County, in Case 3723, on July 7th, 1914, the case being entitled Charles Page and R. A. Josey vs. Nancy Atkins at al., including H. U. Bartlett and The Gypsy Oil Company. The petition is verified by Charles Page. I may state that it is a suit for injunction—injunctive release, to prevent the defendant from interfering with his possession.

The Court: A suit by Page and Josey against Bartlett and others?

Mr. German: Against Nancy Atkins and others.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Q. Mr. Green, did you communicate to the Gypsy Oil Company, or Mr. Bartlett, the presence of this rig that you found on this land on July 5th, 1914?

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Overruled.

A. The Gypsy in some way or another had learned of this rig being put on there. I had started to inform Mr. Wise, the District Superintendent at Drumright, when I met him coming out.

Q. When, about what day was that?

A. About the 7th or 8th of July.

Q. 7th or 8th of July. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there anybody at that time making any effort to put Mr. Page off? A. At that time?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. That was the first advise you had when you met Mr. Wise, that they knew of the presence of the rig on the land?

A. Yes, sir, that was the first.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Green, you moved on that property on January, 1913? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Just at the beginning of the year?

A. At the beginning of the year, yes, sir.

Q. And you moved on there under an agricultural lease from H. B. Bartlett, did you?

A. I moved on there on an agricultural lease from H. U. Bartlett.

Q. Did you procure that lease for the purpose of farming or did he come and get you to take that lease so as to move on to the property?

A. No, sir, Mr. H. U. Bartlett, made me a lease on it for the purpose of farming. I didn't know anything about any other stuff at that time.

Q. And had you looked up Mr. Bartlett's title to see who held the title to the land at that time? A. No, sir, no sir.

Q. How did you happen to go to Mr. Bartlett?

A. Well, I disremember now, just exactly how I came to ask him but I went to Mr. Bartlett, and asked him about this land.

Q. And you knew that he claimed the property through Minnie Atkins, didn't you?

A. Not at that time; I didn't know how he came in possession of it.

Q. You don't know how he had the property?

A. How he had the property, no sir.

> Mr. Hanford: I think you will admit, Mr. German, that Mr. Bartlett at this time was claiming the property under that deed that you introduced, admitted to be a forgery?
> Mr. German: Yes, sir; Mr. Bartlett didn't know of the forgery.
> Mr. Hanford: So that they were claiming title through Minnie Atkins, though the title was a forgery.
> The Court: The record may show that is the case.
> Mr. German: Yes, sir.

Q. Was there a well on that property at the time you moved on to it? A. No, sir.

Q. Had a well been commenced? A. No, sir.

Q. When did they commence to drill a well?

A. Commenced to drill a well about the 25th day of December, 1913.

Q. 1913? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was the Gypsy Oil Company?
A. The Gypsy Oil Company, yes, sir.
Q. Do you know how deep that well was?
A. Not exactly, no, sir.
Q. It only went to the Layton sand, I believe?
A. Wheeler sand.
Q. Wheeler sand?
A. Yes, sir; something like twenty-two hundred feet.

Q. That went to the Wheeler sand and you was a twenty-five barrel well at its inception?

A. When it was first drilled?
Q. When it first came in, yes.
A. No, sir, it was 35 barrels when it first came in.

Q. And it went on down and down so that it was a small well? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And not a good well at that depth? A. No, sir.
Q. And they did not drill any more? A. No, sir.

Q. The Cushing pool—that is the Bartlesville sand, had, up to that time, not come up so as to take in that property?

A. No, sir; hadn't developed that far yet.

Q. And when they drilled it to the Wheeler sand and got a well that was not a paying well, then they just quit?

A. As far as any of the sand was drilled, at that present time, it was the Wheeler sand. Gumbinsky & Freeman had a well——

Q. Here is what I want to get at Mr. Green; the first drilling of that property to the Bartlesville sand was drilled in early in July—was started in July or August—in July, I believe you stated 1914, when the Corn Oil Company moved their rig on and commenced drilling down to the Bartlesville sand?

A. Yes, sir, that was the first well, that was the first one to drill to the Bartlesville.

Q. Before they started that drilling there was no other drilling on the property except that well that the Gypsy Oil Company drilled? A. That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Green, your name is Green? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Green, who do you hold under now? Who do you claim under?

The Court: Are you living on the land?

A. Living on the land, yes, sir, at the present time.
Q. Who do you claim under?
A. Who do I claim under? I hold possession under now?
Q. Yes.

The Court: Yes, that is the question.

A. I haven't had a lease this last year.

Q. Well, who did you claim lease under last year?

A. Last year I had a lease that I claimed under Mr. Garrett.

Q. Quinton Garrett? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He is the negro in whose name this land has been allotted since this suit commenced, isn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And who filed on it for him? A. I can't say.

Q. Did Mr. Bartlett have anything to have with your going in under Quinton Garrett?

A. Mr. Bartlett came out there with Mr. Garrett when they came.

Q. Did Mr. Buell, the one-armed gentleman come also?

A. No, I don't believe, Mr. Buell was out there that time.

Q. He has been out there several times since with you, on the land? A. Well, I didn't see him if he was.

Q. But Mr. Bartlett did come?

A. Yes, sir, Mr. Bartlett has been there.

Q. And you still claim under *W*uinton Garrett?

A. I just had one year under Mr. Garrett.

Q. Well, you are holding over under a lease from Quinton Garrett, aren't you? A. Not at the present time.

Q. Well, who do you hold under?

A. I haven't got any lease.

Q. Well, what are you doing there? If you are not holding under anybody, what claim have you got there?

A. Roust-about, there in the oil field.

Q. What? A. Working in the oil field at the present time?

Q. Well, don't you assert any right there at all—right of occupation? Don't assert any right to it?

A. Not at the present time.

Q. Well, you are on that land there, trying to find oil, aren't you? A. No, sir.

Q. What are you doing there?

A. Working for the Gem Oil Company at the present time.

Q. Is the Gem Oil Company claiming the land?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, do you hold under them now?

Mr. German: I submit Your Honor, that the witness said that he doesn't hold under anybody.

The Court: Well, I think I understand his situation; the last holding was under this Quinton Garrett and he is holding over; if he has any holding, it is under that last lease.

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir, that is what I want him to confess.

The Court: Well, he confessed it to my satisfaction.

Mr. Stuart: Alright, Your Honor.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cobb.

Q. Mr. Green, you say that the Gem Oil Company put the timbers on the land about July 5th, 1914? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how long was it before they drilled on this land?

A. Something like three and three and a half, or four months before they commenced to drill.

Q. Along about November or December?

A. Somewhere along in the fall; I disremember.

Q. How long was it after they began to drill before they actually drilled the wells? Before they brought in a well there? A. I can't say.

Re-Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Green, you say held the land as Mr. Bartlett's tenant in 1914? A. '13 and '14.

Q. '13 and '14? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You farmed the land? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you farm it in 1915? A. No, sir.

Q. Why?

A. Well, because the wells was operating, teams was coming through there, oil and pipe lines was every place and you couldn't farm it.

Q. Couldn't farm it as it had so many oil wells on it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So much working on it?

A. Yes, sir; so much work—so much oil wells and stuff and stock, loose, going through—couldn't do anything.

Q. In 1916, did you farm it? A. No, sir.

Q. You farmed it since 1914?

A. No, sir, have*N*'t farmed it since 1914.

Q. You say you are on it—how are you on the land? Living on it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In a house?

A. Yes, sir, living on the land, in this house that was built on this land when Mr. H. U. Bartlett put me in possession of it.

Q. You have been living there ever since? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the only way you occupy the land?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Working as a roust-about in the oil field?

A. Yes, sir, at the present time.

Q. For the Gem Oil Company as you understand it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Page's company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are drawing your pay from Mr. Page for how long? A. I have been drawing since along in November 1915.

Q. 1915, monthly? A. Yes, sir.

(Witness dismissed)

Mr. German: Your Honor, I want to ask counsel if they will agree that there was no instrument of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Creek County prior to the placing of record of this deed; the exhibit that we have introduced.

The Court: Are you in position to admit that, gentlemen, or do you desire them to prove it?

Mr. Hanford: I am not in position to admit that. There is another forged deed there—purported deed from Thomas Atkins; I am not prepared to admit that, Your Honor.

Mr. German: If we will furnish you with an abstract, possibly then you may? I just want to save bringing the witness?

Mr. Maxey: I think it is true.

The Court: I presume if there is an abstract to that effect, you gentlemen can agree upon that.

Mr. German: Yes, sir. Now, Your Honor, we offer the deposition of Miss Nellie Robertson Denny, appearing in the transcription of the depositions taken by Giles A. Penick, Examiner, beginning at page 516. I might state that deposition relates to what the records show at Carlisle Indian School, with relation to Minnie Atkins being there from January, 1881, to July 8th, 1884, giving her description, and those things; a complete copy of the record.

The Court: You are just offering the deposition now?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: You are not going to read the depositions now?

Mr. German: I thought, Your Honor desired that we not do that.

The Court: Let's see; you have a number of oral witnesses here as to points covered by the depositions?

Mr. German: Yes, relates to points covered by the depositions but it wouldn't be a complete case at all.

The Court: Now, can you put on your oral witnesses in such way as I can get an intelligible idea of the case by hearing these oral witnesses and then hearing the depositions?

Mr. German: Not alone. I make the suggestion to you, Your Honor, that we make an extemely brief statement of what the deposition covers so that you may more clearly appreciate the connection of the oral witnesses.

The Court: If you can do that, it will save reading it in its entirety, and enable me to pass upon objections as to the case proceeds, that may arise.

Mr. German: I think we can do that with regard to the deposition just offered. I think I substantially stated it.

Mr. Stuart: We don't deny, Your Honor, that the girl was at Carlisle School.

The Court: The deposition may be admitted as a part of the record.

Mr. German: That shows that she was 15 years old when she entered the School in January 1881; that she gave her parentage as Thomas Atkins and Mary Jane Atkins.

The Court: I suppose there will be no question about the identity of this Minnie Atkins and as to the time she was there. It may be admitted.

Mr. Cruce: When was that?

Mr. German: January, '81, to July 8th, '84. As a part of that we offered an exhibit there, described as complainant's exhibit 15, which is a postal card from Mrs. George H. Hyde of Leavenworth, Kansas, to Captain Pratt, who was then in charge of that school, dated July 11th, 1884, in which it is stated that Minnie arrived at the Hyde home on July 11th, '84, at Leavenworth. Then, in addition to that, letter from Mr. Hyde to Mr. Pratt, which is government's exhibit No. 60, which relates to the coming of Minnie to the Hyde home.

Appearances: For the United States, R. C. Allen, Esquire.

For the Defendants, Page, Josey, and Hanford: E. C. Hanford, Esquire.

NELLIE ROBERTSON DENNY, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Please state your name?
A. Mrs. Nellie Robertson Denny.
Q. Your place of residence?
A. Carlisle Indian School, Carlisle, Pennsylvania.
Q. What is your official position?
A. A Clerk in charge of the outing.
Q. Of Carlisle? A. Of the Carlisle Indian School.
Q. At this place, Carlisle, Pa.?
A. Carlisle, Pennsylvania.
Q. How long have you held this position?
A. Since 1908, but prior to that I was an assistant here beginning in 1900.

Q. Since 1900, have you either been Clerk in charge or assistant?

A. I have been since 1900, I have been assistant clerk in the Outing Office.

Q. Up to 1908 and since then Clerk in charge?

A. Yes, with the exception of two years when I was keeping house—that is from 1912 to 1914.

Q. As Clerk in charge of the Outing, do you have custody of the records showing when students entered Carlisle and when they left, and of all correspondence in regard to students of Carlisle?

A. I have some of the records, I have all of the correspondence relating to students who are here, and most of the correspondence relating to students who have left the institution. I don't have all of the record books in this office.

Q. Who else has charge of record books?

A. Mr. DeHuff, the Principal Teacher, has charge of what we call the daily records of the students here.

Q. I am speaking now of the closed records, that is the records pertaining to the entrance and time of leaving of students who went to school in the eighty's, do you have charge of those records? A. All but two books.

Q. Who has those?

A. They are in Mr. Miller's office, but I borrowed them this morning, the ones that referred to Minnie.

Q. And you the proper custodian of that book?

A. Well, he has always kept it in his office, kept those two books, I am referring particularly to the first original books.

Q. Under the rules of the school though, are you made responsible for the proper custody of those two books as well as the other records of this office?

A. I don't know how to answer that. I don't think there has ever been any deffin*a*te instructions given me about that—that is, about keeping those old books, I don't recall any. I had to use them in getting the data.

By Mr. Allen: I will ask you to mark this for identification as Government's Exhibit 15.

Q. I hand you Government's Exhibit 15, which purports to be a postal card mailed at Leavenworth, Kansas, July 12th, 1884, and addressed to Captain R. H. Pratt, signed by George H. Hyde, and ask you if that post card has been in your possession since you came into the office that you now hold?

A. It has been in my possession since Mr. Long was here.

Q. Where did you get that post card?

A. We found it in the records down at the warehouse—that is in the—— among the letters down there.

Q. What letters were they that you found that among?

A. They were letters that we called the old letters that were written to General Pratt about all sorts of matters when he was here.

Q. Were you present when it was discovered, when it was found? A. Yes, Mr. Long and I found it.

Q. Did you find it among the old letters that were stored in the warehouse for safe keeping? A. Yes.

Q. Is that postal card in the exact condition, with the exception of the mark of the exhibit, that it was in when you found it? A. Yes, sir, exactly.

By Mr. Allen: I offer the exhibit—offer this card in evidence and ask to have it marked as Government's Exhibit.

Q. I hand you Government's Exhibit 16, which purports to be a letter addressed to Captain Pratt, dated June 18th, 1884, signed Mary R. Hyde. Hve you seen seen this letter before? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you first see this letter?

A. I saw it first at the warehouse when Mr. Long was here.

Q. Was it also found among the old files of Carlisle School? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was among the old letters that were placed in the warehouse for safe keeping? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is it in the same condition that it was in when you found it?

A. Yes, sir, except these figures, I don't know when they got on there.

Q. Except the figures appearing in lead pencil on the back of it? A. Yes.

Q. Below the name of Mary Hyde?

A. Yes, I don't know whether they were on when we found the letter, I think those are General Pratt's figures.

> By Mr. Allen: We offer this letter in evidence as Government's Exhibit 16.

Q. I hand you what purports to be a daily morning report, beginning with July 1884, and ending with June 1887. I will ask you if that is one of the books of original entry pertaining to students at Carlisle, which is now in your custody?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What does that book purport—what does it show, I will ask you?

A. It shows the total number of pupils, both boys and girls, present and absent.

Q. Is that the book of original entries in which those entries occur?

A. That is the original book of that record—of that information.

> By Mr. Allen: We offer in evidence pgge—the book identified by the witness, and particularly Page 3 of this book. By agreement of counsel, the witness will be permitted to read into the record the entry of this book identified by her, pertaining to Minnie Atkins, found on Page 3, thereof. You will please read that entry, everything relating to Minnie.

A. On July 8th, 1884, the names of those discharged from the school are Elwood Dorian, Harry Harmon, Minnie Atkins, Lena Carr. They are marked "Sent home."

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mrs. Denny, do you know which of those students were sent home on July 8th, 1884, were students from Oklahoma? A. Just one.

Q. Which one, Minnie Atkins? A. Yes.

Q. And there is no connection between Minnie Atkins being discharged on that date and the others?

A. No, sir, not that I know of.

Q. The records show in your office—show that Minnie Atkins was one of the number that came to Carlisle together?

A. Yes.

Q. From Oklahoma? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There are no others of that party on July 8th in that list? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, I hand you Government's Exhibit 15, which is the post card identified by you, and ask you the date of the manuscript appearing on that post card? A. July 11th, 1884.

Q. Do you know the signature of George H. Hyde?

A. No, sir.

Q. Which appears there, you can't identify that?

A. No, sir.

Q. As his signature? A. No, sir.

Q. The postoffice mark appears on the face of that post card, can you make that out and read that into the record?

A. Leavenworth, Kansas, July 12, 3 P. M., it looks like, or 8.

Q. But that is the post card that you found in the files?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And identified? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have charge of the records relating to all of those students that came from Oklahoma, Mrs. Denny?

A. Well, that is a pretty hard question for me to answer, because they are rather scattered.

Q. Mrs. Denny, have you made further search for correspondence and records relating to Minnie Atkins since the time that Mr. Long was here?

A. Not for letters, but for records, I have hunted for any old books that I could find around the office.

Q. And have you succeeded in finding any?

A. Nothing in addition to what we had already found.

Q. Those records show that Minnie Atkins arrived here on what date?

A. It was in '81, I believe, but I don't know the exact date, but I think it was in January. Minnie Atkins arrived in January 21, 1881.

Q. And on what date did she leave?

A. July 8th, 1884, according to the records.

Q. Then, she was here approximately three years?

A. Yes.

Q. Do the records show to what place she went when she left? A. No, nothing except the post card.

Re-Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Have you now in your custody a record of Carlisle, showing the description and historical record of students admitted to Carlisle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the name of that book?

A. Record of Students, Carlisle Indian School.

Q. I notice that book is a very large book, containing nearly six hundred pages. Have you searched through that book for the name of Minnie Atkins and are you now able to give us the numbers of the pages upon which her name appears? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you please turn to each entry in that book concerning the name of Minnie Atkins and read the entire entry.

> By Mr. Allen: We now offer in evidence the book identified by the witness, and particularly the pages referring to the name of Minnie Atkins. It is agreed that the witness may read into the record the entries concerning the name of Minnie Atkins, found on pages forty-one, Eighty, Eighty-one, Ninety-four, and 205.
> By Mr. Hanford: We agree with the understanding with Mr. Allen that Mrs. Denny may read any other entries other than those relating to Minnie Atkins that she may be interrogated about?
> By Mr. Allen: Yes, sir, that is agreed.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mrs. Denny, this is the book which you have in your hand, which you have just referred to, is it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Regarding the initial record of this institution of matters set forth therein? A. Yes, sir.

Re-Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

A. Do you want me to read this now?

Q. Yes.

A. English name, Minnie Atkins; Agency, Tullehassee; Nation, Creek Band, Euchee; Father's name, Thomas Atkins; rank, none; father dead; parents living, dead; father dead; mother dead; blood, mixed; age, fifteen; height, five feet five—I suppose that means five feet and five inches—weight, 130; forced inspiration, thirty-six; forced expiration, thirty-four; arrived at school, January 2nd, 1881; for what period entered, three years; discharged July 8th, 1884—that comes under remarks. On page eighty, under "Sent to Country Homes", she is numbered eighty; name, Minnie Atkins; Nation, Creek; Name of Patron, George N. LeFebre; Town, Scrasburg; County, Lancaster; State, Pennsylvania; Placed out, April 16, 1883. The first record I omitted. She appears twice on this page. I will finish this other one. She was placed out April 16th, 1883, and was returned September 8th, 1883. Now, previous to the other entry she is Numbered Sixty-three, Minnie Atkins.

Q. Previous— You mean previously, is that on Page Eighty?

A. Yes, Page Eighty. Creek Nation; Name of Patron, George N. LeFebre; Town, Scrasberg; County, Lancaster; State, Pennsylvania; Placed out, December 30, 1882, and returned February 10, 1883. On Page Eighty-one, Minnie Atkins is numbered one-two-four, Creek Nation; Name of Patron, William Penrose; Town, Neshaminy; County, Botts; State, Pennsylvania; Placed out, October 29th, 1883, and returned June 13th, 1884. The next page is ninety four. This is the page "Discharged from School". She is Number 367; Minnie Atkins; Father's name, Thomas Atkins; Nation, Creek; Date of Leaving, July 8th, 1884. On Page 205 under "Historical Record," we find Minnie Atkins Number 267, Creek, both parents dead, fifteen years old, half-breed, at school two years. Arrived at school January 22nd, 1881, from Tullehassee Mission; December 30th, 1882, went to George H. LeFebre, Scrasberg, Pa., and April 16th, 1883, went to the same place; returned to school September 8th, 1883; October 20th, 1883, went to William Penrose, Nesharminy, Pa. Good. June 13th, 1884, returned to school; and July 18th, 7884, went out west.

Q. Those are all of the entries appearing in that book or in any other record that you have so far as you have been able to find concerning the name of Minnie Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Allen: I ask you to mark this letter and the carbon attached, as Government's Exhibit 17.

Q. I hand you Government's Exhibit 17 and ask you what it is? A. You want me to read it?

Q. No, just tell what it is?

A. It is a letter post marked Nowata, Oklahoma, dated March 1st, 1913, from Micco Harjo, 204 North Sycamore street, Nowata, Oklahoma, relative to——

Q. To whom addressed?

A. Addressed to the Superintendent Carlisle Institute.

Q. Now, tell what the bottom one is?

A. The third sheet is a letter to Micco Harjo from the Superintendent.

Q. Is it a carbon copy?

A. It is a carbon copy of a letter to Micco Harjo from the Superintendent, and was written the 8th of March, 1913, in answer to his letter.

Q. Was that letter signed by the Superintendent and mailed out in the due course of mail on that date?

A. Well, now, I presume it was. Of course, now, I didn't read the letter.

Q. I hand you Government's Exhibit 18 and ask you what it is?

A. That is a letter written February 20th, 1915, to the Gem Oil Company, Box 597, Tulsa, Oklahoma, by the Supervisor in charge.

Q. What is the third sheet?

A. The third sheet is a letter to the Honorable Superintendent of the Carlisle Indian School, dated February 7th, 1915, and signed by the Gem Oil Company, by R. O. Josey.

Q. R. A.? A. R. O., it looks O, doesn't it?

By Mr. Allen: We offer Government's Eighteen in evidence.

Q. Before that offer— Have you been in the custody of that letter since it was received in this office?

A. It has been in the Minnie Atkins files.

Q. Has that file been in your custody?

A. It has been in this office, yes, sir.

Q. Was that letter received by you in the due course of mail—that letter from the Gem Oil Company signed by R. A. Josey? A. It came to me for filing.

By Mr. Allen: We now offer it in evidence.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. This letter is dated—from Mr. Josey to the Indian School—is dated February 17th, 1915? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From Oklahoma? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the reply is dated February 20th, 1915?

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Hanford: No objection.

Re-Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Can you give the names of the students who came—your record shows came to Carlisle School with Minnie Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you now reading from the record identified by you as the Record of Students at Carlisle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From what page? A. Page 41.

Q. Is that the first page upon which the name of Minnie Atkins appears? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Please give the names of the students, beginning where that record shows entered Carlisle with Minnie Atkins?

A. You want just the names?

Q. Yes.

A. Minnie Atkins, Millie Brown, Sarah Elizabeth Prowell, Nancy McIntosh, Millie McIntosh, Eliza Dell, Elizabeth McNat, Elizabeth McIntosh, Ella Moore, Martha Elizabeth

Moore, Rachel Checote, Jessie West, Eliza Chisoe, James Freeman, Rosa Ross, all Creeks but the last. Now, the record shows some boys, do you want the boys?

Q. Where does the record show they came to Carlisle from?

A. Tullehassee Mission, Muskogee, Indian Territory, written in pencil. On page seven in this same book we find the names of the boys who came in that party.

Q. Please read those names?

A. Benjamin Marshall, Robert Stuart, Alexander McKnight, Alec Childers, Silas Childers, James Bell, Cornelius Carr, Samuel Scott, and Samuel Checote, Almarine McKellop.

Q. Is that all of the names?

A. All came on the 22nd of January, 1881, yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. On page 41 of the same record book, Mrs. Denny, do the dates when the pupils returned home from school appear —that is, the girls? A. It shows that date.

Q. I will ask you to give the names of those who appear to have returned home in July, 1883?

A. Elizabeth McNat, she went home June 11th, 1883; and Jane Freeman went home May 24th, 1883; and the next one is Rosa Ross, she went home July 30, 1883; Robert Stewart went home November 1st, 1883.

Q. That last entry appears on page seven, that is a boy?
A. Yes.

Q. Now, I will ask you to name the students who went home in the year 1884, that is the year following. The girls first from page forty-one. Is that it?

A. Yes, on page forty-one: Sarah Elizabeth Crowell went home June 17th, 1884; Millie McIntosh went home June 17th, 1884; Elizabeth McIntosh went home June 17th, 1884; Jessie West went home June 17th, 1884; Eliza Phissoe went home the same date, June 17th, 1884.

Q. And now from page seven, the boys on that same date are who?

A. Benjamin Marshall, who went home on June 17th, 1884; Ellis Childress who went home June 17th, 1884; Cornelius Carr who went home June 17th, 1884; Samuel Scott who went home June 17th, 1884; and Almarine McKellop went home in 1887 according to this.

Q. What day in 1887 did Almarine McKellop leave?
A. March 28th.

Q. Then you gave a list of five girls and four boys who left on the same day, June 17th, 1884, is that right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And only named Almarine McKellop who remained for several years later and left March 28th, 1887?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, turning again to page forty-one and taking the names of the girls who left in 1884, but not with that party, who do you find?

A. I find Millie Brown, who left August 27th, 1884, Nancy McIntosh——

Q. No, I want those who left in 1884. Nancy McIntosh is not one? A. She left in 1886.

Q. But those who left in 1884. The first one is Millie Brown, and the next one? A. Ella Moore.

Q. Who left on what date?

A. January 29th, 1884; and Martha Moore, who left the same date.

Q. That is June 29th?

A. June 29th. Rachel Checote, who left June 3rd, 1884. Minnie Atkins, who left July 8th, 1884.

Q. Now, any boys who left in 1884, but not with that party of June 17th, from page seven you are reading now?

A. Yes, sir. Alexander McNac left March 11th, 1884; and Samuel Checote left June 3rd, 1884.

Q. Now that—— Now, in 1885, the boys first from page seven, give the dates that any of them left in that year?

A. Silas Childers left May 6th, 1885. James Bell left August 20th, 1885.

Q. And turning to page forty-one, girls that left in that year? A. Eliza Bell left August 30th, 1885.

Q. Now, in 1886 from page forty-one?

A. Nancy McIntosh left June 22nd, 1886.

Q. So that completes the list and shows the dates of the different members of that party left the school? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, Mrs. Denny, the records show that in 1884, two of that party were held back at the school for some reason, that is, Billy Brown who left in August, and Minnie Atkins, who left in July. The others left June 17th, or prior to that date? A. The dates given were all right.

Q. Well, Mrs. Denny, all of those students, who were discharged in the year 1884, that is the same year that Minnie Atkins was discharged, left the school prior to her leaving with the exception of Millie Brown, who remained about a month longer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And most of them left in a party July 17th, 1884. Is that right?

A. Yes, sir, I went home in that same party, June 17th.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. At that time, during the time that Minnie was here, students were enrolled at Carlisle for a term of three years, were they not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Counting the time that the records show that Minnie Atkins was out of school had her three years term expired when she left here in July, 1894?

A. Yes, sir. The outing was just considered a part of her school term.

Q. Did you know Minnie in June, 1894?

A. Why, I knew her. I don't remember that I—I don't remember seeing her at that time.

Q. You had known here during the three years previous to that time? A. Yes, sir, I was here when she came.

Q. And was very intimately acquainted with her?

A. Well, I knew her very well, yes.

Q. About what was her age?

A. I should think she was anywhere from sixteen to eighteen as I recall.

Q. Was she in—— A. That is just my recollection.

Q. Was she in good physical condition when you last saw her?

A. Yes, sir, she was always a strong looking girl.

> By Mr. Hanford: I want to move to strike the previous answer as to the age of Minnie Atkins, the witness not disclosing that she knows her age or is able to state.

Recross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. I hand you Defendant's Exhibit 4, for identification, which is a file of correspondence attached together, and ask you to state what the separate items are, Mrs. Denny?

> By Mr. Allen: We agree to the admission of that letter in evidence.

Q. The first is a carbon copy of a letter written to Fred S. Cook, Special Agent United States Indian Service, Muskogee, Oklahoma, on May 3rd, 1911, signed by the Supervisor in charge—my writing. The second letter is the original made of a letter written April 3rd, 1911, from Muskogee, Oklahoma, to Oscar H. Lipps, Supervisor of Carlisle Indian School, Carlisle, Pa., signed by Fred S. Cook, Special Agent.

Q. That letter is in your files and has been since its receipt at this office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It arrived in the due course of mail? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the carbon copy is an exact copy of the letter that was sent in due course of mail in reply to the letter from Mr. Cook? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Allen: We agree to that, Mr. Hanford.

By Mr. Hanford: There being no objection to this being offered in evidence, I offer it. (Defendant's Exhibit 4.)

(Witness dismissed.)

Mr. German: Now, we offer the deposition of Will H. Miller, connected with the School of Carlisle, taken before Mr. Penick, which appears in the transcript beginning at page 529, and relates to the same subject.

And thereupon, WILL H. MILLER, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. What is your name? A. Will H. Miller.

Q. What is your official connection with the Carlisle Indian School? A. Financial Clerk.

Q. The testimony of the witness just examined shows that she procured a book, from which she read by agreement certain pages, entitled "Record of Students of Carlisle." Were you present when she examined—when she read from pages of this record? A. I was.

Q. You heard her testimony concerning all entries in that book? A. I did.

Q. Were the entries contained in that book, as recited by her, correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you been in possession of this book?

A. The book has been kept in my office since my connection with the school, April, 1900.

Q. 1900, it has been in your custody since that time?

A. With the exception of a short time that I was away from the school about a year.

Q. It has been in your custody, in the custody of your office since you assumed the duties of that office? A. Yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Miller, that book, as I understand it, is simply kept in your office, it is simply placed there, is that right?

A. The records were always kept in that office prior to this new filing system and Mrs. Denny has.

Q. But you don't make the records, do you? A. Not now.

Q. Do you make the entries in the book? A. Not now.

Q. But you have a place for the book in your office, and therefore it is kept there, is that right?

A. Well, it is kept—yes, sir, it is kept there.

Q. What is your position in connection with the Institution? A. Financial Clerk.

Q. Financial Clerk? A. Yes.

Q. And that is virtually the banker? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Your office is called the bank, is it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mrs. Denny has charge of the files and records of the Institution, has she not, in her office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she keeps those records and is the proper person to testify as to their contents, is she not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then your identification of those records is simply a check upon her reading from the records, is that true?

A. That is true, yes, sir. You understand, though, that these records of the school were formerly kept in that office up until the time that this new filing system was established, since which time it has been kept in Mrs. Denny's office.

(Witness dismissed.)

Mr. German: Likewise, the deposition of O. H. Lipps, of that school, which appears in Mr. Penick's transcription, beginning on page 531, and which relates to the same.

The Court: They may be admitted.

And thereupon, OSCAR H. LIPPS, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn, and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Mr. Lipps, please state your name?

A. Oscar H. Lipps.

Q. Age and residence?

A. Age forty-four, present residence Carlisle, Pa.

Q. Are you the present Superintendent of Carlisle Indian School? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the name of this school?

A. Carlisle Indian School, yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Lipps, I hand you Government's Exhibit 17, and ask you what that is?

A. This is a letter from Micco Harjo and my reply thereto.

Q. Was your reply, of which this purports to be a carbon copy, mailed upon the date shown upon the carbon, in the due course of mail to the address of Mr. Micco Harjo?

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Allen: We offer Exhibit 17 in evidence.

Q. I ask you to examine Government's Exhibit 17, is that a carbon copy—sheets one and two, of a letter mailed to the Gem Oil Company by you in due course of mail in reply to their letter attached to the carbon copy? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Allen: We offer that.

Q. Mr. Lipps, under the arrangement of the designation letter of the duties of the various officers of Carlisle, who is the legal custodian of the records pertaining to the students of Carlisle?

A. These records are kept in this office, by Mrs. Denny.

Q. Are books entitled "Records of Students," "Daily Morning Report," and Correspondence concerning the students at this school, a part of the records that she is required to keep? A. Yes, sir.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, the taking of testimony herein is adjourned to the Raleigh Hotel, Washington, D. C., for nine o'clock A. M., January 26th.

And thereafter, the above last mentioned time and place and on January 26th, 1916, the taking of testimony herein was adjourned to Pittsfield, Massachusetts, for nine o'clock A. M., January 27th, 1916.

Mr. German: Now we offer the deposition of Mrs. LAURA E. HYDE, taken before Mr. Penick, which appears in his transcription, beginning at page 533. Mrs. Hyde was the wife of George H. Hyde, of Leavenworth, Kansas; she is now living at Pittsfield, Mass. She testified that George H. Hyde is dead; that Minnie Atkins came to their home in—upon July 11th, 1884, and remained there for three months, in their home in Leavenworth, and worked for them as a servant girl, and while there she demeaned herself properly, according to her observations, and gave birth to no child, and showed no evidences of pregnancy.

Mr. Hanford: That does not cover the cross examination, though, Mr. German.

Mr. German: Well, the cross examination, as I remember it——

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, it will be impossible to try this case this way.

The Court: No, I see it now; it will be the statement of something in the record detailing something at another place. I see that; the only question is whether I shall hear these depositions read now and get this case in its entirety and proper order, or whether in the interest of disposing of these oral witnesses, hear them and go ahead, and merely let these depositions be passed into the record and hear them later.

The Court: The record may show now that this case will proceed in the order, that the oral witnesses will be placed on the stand and the depositions, which have been taken heretofore will merely be offered and admitted into the record without reading, merely stating the page of the examiner's transcript where the deposition offered is found. The Court will take the depositions together with all of the objections which appear in the examiner's transcript, and will rule on the objections without argument of counsel, after oral testimony is taken and transcribed for examination.

Mr. Cruce: There are some depositions, Your Honor, where the witnesses will be present in person.

The Court: Well, I assume that wherever a witness is present that the witness will be put on the stand, rather than the deposition read, unless it is agreed by counsel that the deposition may be used instead of the witness.

And thereafter and on January 27th, 1916, at 9:30 o'clock, A. M., at the Wendell Hotel, Pittsfield, Mass., further testimony herein was taken as follows:

Mrs. LAURA E. HYDE, being called on behalf of the Government, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Please state your name, age and place of residence.

A. Mrs. Laura G. Hyde; Pittsfield, Mass.; 71 Wendell Avenue; age 68.

Q. Mrs. Hyde, did you formerly live at Leavenworth, Kansas? A. Yes.

Q. During what years did you live at Leavenworth?

A. '55.

Q. Did you live there during all of the '80?

A. Yes—let me see—with a little while in Sedalia, Mo. I don't know whether we lived in the '80's in Sedalia, Mo.

Q. Did you live in Leavenworth during the years 1884 and '85? A. Yes.

Q. In what business was you- husband engaged at that time? A. Banking business.

Q. With what bank was he connected? A. First?

Q. In 1884 and '85?

A. I think the German Bank of Leavenworth.

Q. What position did he hold with the bank at that time?

A. He was the cashier.

Q. His name was George H. Hyde? A. Yes.

A. Did Mr. Hyde, your husband, have a sister, who during the year 1884, was a teacher at Carlisle Indian School?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know Minnie Atkins, commonly known as Indian Minnie? A. Well, I did know her.

Q. Did she ever work for you? A. Yes, she did.

Q. During what time did she work for you, Mrs. Hyde?

A. Well, now if we had that postal card, I could tell you exactly, but I cannot.

Q. Do you have reference to the postal card that was written by—— A. By my husband.

Q. By your husband to his sister at Carlisle?

A. Well, it was written but I don't know whether it was to his sister or to Captain Pratt; it was to either one of them, but that told just when Minnie came to us. He just said, Minnie had arrived.

Q. I hand you Government's Exhibit 15, which is the postal card about which you have testified and ask you if after refreshing your memory by this card, you can tell what time Minnie came to you—Minnie Atkins came to you.

A. This is in '84, Leavenworth, July, '84, and it is my husband's signature—my husband's writing.

Q. At what time?

A. July 11th, I think; that is '84, isn't it?

Q. Yes, '84; that would be 1884.

Q. Without reference to the card and independent of the postal card which has been admitted in evidence and marked

Government's Exhibit 15, are you able to say about what time Minnie Atkins commenced working for you?

A. No, I think my memory would fail me. I don't know anything just exactly to place it by, but I feel quite sure that that is the time—about that time.

Q. Do you remember that during the '80's that she did work for you?

A. Yes, I remember she work for me—for us.

Q. About how long did she work for you, and in what capacity?

A. Well, she worked as—well, as a maid of all work.

Q. Madam? A. A maid of all work, she was.

Q. About how long did she work for you?

A. I can't say definitely; I think between not more than four or five months.

Q. About how old was she when she commenced working for you—when she worked for you?

A. Well, she was a full grown woman; I should think she might have been between 18 and 20—of course I can't tell exactly; I never remember hearing her age—she might have been younger or older.

Q. She might have been younger or older? A. Yes.

Q. What were her associations while with you? Did she associate with the white or colored race?

A. I really—my memory fails me. It is a long time ago, and I don't know as to that.

Q. Did she have any men associates while she worked for you?

A. Well, I remember the children saying that they had seen a soldier coming up behind our fence—behind our board fence. We had a close, board fence—and that when he saw them, if he thought that he was seen, he dodged away. That is all I know about her ever having anybody coming to see her—all that I can remember.

Q. Did you ever know of anyone ever coming to see her, or her associating with anyone, either men or women, while there?

A. No, I can't remember; I don't remember that I did.

Q. Did you ever have any trouble with her about her associating with men while she was there?

A. None at all; I didn't think she ever did—I never thought of such a thing.

Q. Mrs. Hyde, state whether or not there was anything in her appearance, or conduct, at any time that she was with you, that indicated that she might be in a pregnant condition.

A. Such a thought never entered my head; I never suspected her at all of anything of the kind.

Q. Did she appear in the same physical condition when she left you as she did when she came to you?

A. I think she did.

Q. Did you regard her—state whether or not you regarded her as a good and virtuous girl while she was with you.

A. That is what I thought she was, though she might have been otherwise and I might not have known it as I was not looking out for anything of that kind.

Q. Have you ever seen her since she left you? A. No.

Q. State the circumstances under which she left your employ.

A. Well, I can't remember exactly; I don't remember seeing—well, it seems to me I do remember seeing her going away in a cab. It is very hazy as to how she went.

Q. Who with?

A. Well, I am not sure; it might have been that she went with a soldier but I am not sure as to that.

Q. Is that the best recollection as to how she went away?

A. Well, I believe it is.

Q. At that time, Mrs. Hyde, you frequently—state whether or not you frequently went down town and around town driving, around from one place to another in the City of Leavenworth. A. That I did.

Q. Yes? A. Yes, we went almost every day.

Q. Down and around through town?

A. Yes, sir; I used to go for my husband every day almost—drive down myself for him.

Q. Did you ever see Minnie any time after she left you?

A. I never did.

Q. Did you frequently go to the Fort—Fort Leavenworth?

A. Yes, not frequently but occasionally we used to go up there.

Q. Were your visits to the Fort as frequently as they were down town and around the City of Leavenworth? A. Oh no.

Q. During the time that Minnie was at Leavenworth, or subsequent to that time, did you ever hear of her associating with negroes? A. No.

Q. You did not? A. Oh, well, I heard——

Q. I mean before this case came up.

A. Well, no, I guess not; no, I did not.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mrs. Hyde, your recollection of how long Minnie worked for you is not accurate—simply an impression?

A. Yes, that is it.

Q. But you remember that it was a comparatively short time? A. Yes.

Q. You cannot state definitely the number of weeks or months? A. No, I cannot.

Q. It might have two or three months, or four or five months?

A. Yes; I think more likely the first, though, but I can't say.

Q. When Minnie worked for you, did you place any restrictions upon her except in regard to her work and duties in the house? I mean, did she have liberty at times to go out? A. Yes, I think so.

Q. And after her work was completed, she was allowed her liberty?

A. Yes, I think so. That was the custom with all of our girls, so I suppose it was with her.

Q. She had the usual duties of any household servant?

A. Yes.

Q. So, so far as Minnie was concerned, the only thing that you were interested in were just her doing her household duties?

A. Yes, I didn't think of her being otherwise—that she needed any special care. I never thought of that because she had come from Carlisle.

Q. What is your recollection of Minnie's appearance at that time? Did she show that she was an Indian—didn't she?

A. Yes.

Q. Could you remember well enough, just to describe her slightly, Mrs. Hyde?

A. Yes; she was rather a large woman, and held herself well. She was right good-looking, but I think her hair was not perfectly straight as an Indian.

Q. Sort of an athletic type?

A. Well, we didn't think much about athletics in those days.

Q. Well, I mean——

A. Yes, she was a vigorous, nice looking girl.

Q. Do you remember another servant that you had in your employ about that time, that did the laundering, named Kate—a colored girl?

A. We did have a Kate that worked for us a little while.

Q. Kate Logan?

A. But I wouldn't know her last name—Kate.

Q. Mrs. Hyde, do you remember of a visit that you made about this time to Yankton, Dakota—that would be South Dakota—Yankton, South Dakota?

A. Well, I remember going to South Dakota but I can't tell what year that was in. Tom was about two years old—no, he wasn't quite two years old, was he? How old is Tom? (Witness speaks to lady in the room.) That was about '80 then, that I went to Yankton.

Q. The Leavenworth Times of July 19th, 1884, has an item to this affect: Mrs. Geo. Hyde left for Yankton, Dakota, yesterday. Do you think that that would be about the date?

A. What date?

Q. July 19th, 1884.

A. Well, I don't know. I remember taking my little—I took my little boy up there because we were having—he was not very well there in Leavenworth, to get out of the warm weather, so I took the baby up to Yankton. Well, it could have been in July—well, maybe it was in 1884.

Q. What was your boy's name, Mrs. Hyde?

A. Charles Thomas.

Q. In what year was he born? A. '82.

Q. And he was about two years old?

A. Well, he would have been about two years old the next March.

Q. So 1884 would have been about the right time?

A. I think so.

Q. Do you recall how long you remained in Dakota? How long a visit you made? A. No, I do not.

Q. It was during the hot weather though? A. Yes.

Q. Mrs. Hyde, when Minnie left your employ, did she leave suddenly? A. Yes, she did.

Q. And cause you to wonder why she had left?

A. Yes, I didn't know why she had gone; I didn't know that she was dissatisfied—she didn't give me any warning.

Q. It was a curious occurrence at any rate?

A. Yes, I suppose it was this soldier but——

Q. She didn't confide in you any reason that she might have for wanting to leave your employ? A. No.

Q. After she left, did you ever hear of her spending any time with a negro family, or being connected with negroes?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear of her having given birth to any children? A. Yes, I have heard.

Q. What did you hear, Mrs. Hyde?

> Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper cross examination, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and hearsay.

Q. What did you hear, Mrs. Hyde, about Minnie's giving birth?

A. Yes, I heard she had had a child and that she was a very unnatural mother—she did not love it.

Q. Did you ever hear that she had left it with colored people to be cared for? A. No.

Mr. Allen: We object to that for the same reason.

A. That is all I ever heard about her child.

Q. Simply that she was an unnatural mother and didn't love it? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall an incident connecting Minnie about the sale of a cow?

Mr. Allen: We object to that for the same reason.

Mr. Hanford: Purely a reminisence—I won't go into that.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Did you hear that she had had a child, and was a very unnatural mother after this law suit came up, Mrs. Hyde?

A. After this lawsuit?

Q. Yes. A. No, a long while ago.

Q. Who told you about it? A. I can't remember.

Q. You don't know how long the child lived or what became of it? A. No, I do not.

Q. If she had a child and it lived two weeks and died, that might have been the child about which you heard?

Mr. Hanford: We object to the question as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. It might have have been; I don't know whether it lived or died—I never heard that.

Recross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. You don't recall about how long after Minnie had left your home that you heard that? A. No, I do not.

Q. You can't fix the time within a year or——

A. No, I think not.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: Yes. We now offer the deposition of CLAUDIUS A. HAMILTON, beginning at page 464:

And thereupon, CLAUDIUS A. HAMILTON, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What age are you, Mr. Hamilton?

A. Sixty-five nearest birthday.

Q. Where do you live?

A. At the present time 4347 South Grand Avenue, Los Angeles.

Q. You are the husband of Mrs. Mary Hamilton?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever live in Leavenworth, Kansas?

A. Yes, sir, lived there from '83 to '89.

Q. When were you and Mrs. Hamilton married?

A. On the 2nd of October, '83.

Q. Where?

A. In the Cathedral at Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. Where did you live after you marriage first?

A. I think the number of the house is 522 Kiowa Street, between Fifth and Sixth, right across from the Cathedral.

Q. In Leavenworth? A. In Leavenworth.

Q. How long did you live in that house?

A. Three houses there, I moved out of one into the other—the only place I lived in Leavenworth as man and wife.

Q. The two houses? A. Yes, sir.

Q. First in one and then in the other? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Painter.

Q. Have you ever been connected with the United States Army? A. Yes, sir, I was for ten years.

Q. What ten years?

A. From '73 to the—the 6th day of January, '73, to the 5th day of January, '83.

Q. Were you ever in the contracting business?

A. Yes, sir, contracted most of the time since '83.

Q. You said you were a painter, how did you pursue your occupation as painter, taking jobs? A. Taking jobs, yes, sir.

Q. Under contract? A. Under contract, yes, sir.

Q. Hiring men? A. Hiring men.

Q. And doing the labor yourself too? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know an Indian woman by the name of—whose name was Minnie Atkins before your marriage?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you first know her?

A. Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. When was it that you first got acquainted with her with reference to the date of your marriage?

A. It was the following year, sometime in eighty-four.

Q. How came you to know her?

A. She came up to see my wife and I got acquainted with her in that way, my wife told me that she was an Indian girl from Carlisle.

By Mr. Blakeney: We object to what his wife told him.

Q. Your wife told you who she was in the presence of Minnie? A. Oh, yes, in the presence of Minnie.

Q. What was it that your wife told you?

A. Told me that she was an Indian girl, Minnie Atkins, from the Carlisle Training School, when my wife had been there, and she was working for Mrs. Hyde, the banker's wife.

Q. The banker there in Leavenworth?

A. A banker there in Leavenworth, yes, sir.

Q. Did you see Minnie very often after your acquaintance with her? A. Yes, sir, quite often.

Q. Where did you see her?

A. At my own house, my house that my wife and I were occupying.

Q. Do you know about how long she worked for the Hyde's?

A. Somewhere in the neighborhood, I understood about six months.

Q. Where did she go to from the Hyde's?

A. She told me she was going up to Fort Leavenworth.

Q. Did you see her afterward—did she go to Fort Leavenworth? A. That is what I understood her.

Q. Did you see her after she went to the Fort?

A. Yes, sir, very often.

Q. Where did you see her?

A. She would come down to my place to see my wife visiting.

Q. Did you learn for whom she worked at the Fort at first?

A. From my personal knowledge, Minnie said she was going to work for the Officer's Mess.

Q. Did she tell you the names of any people that she worked for out at the Fort?

A. No, I knew she was working for other people at the Fort from the individuals themselves, but not from Minnie.

Q. All right, who did you find out from?

A. Herb Grodevant.

By Mr. Blakeney: We object as hearsay and incompetent.

Q. What is the name—Herbert Grodevant?—— Do you know whether he is living or dead? A. He is dead now.

Q. You say he told you she was working for them?

A. Yes, sir, he told me.

By Mr. Blakeney: We object as hearsay, irrelevant, incompetent, and immaterial. If the answer came in before the objection, I move that the answer be stricken because it is hearsay and incompetent.

Q. About how often did you see her while she was working for the Grodevant's?

A. I can't answer that question.

Q. Did you or not see her while she was working for the Grodevant's?

By Mr. Blakeney: We object as assuming that she worked for the Grodevant's, incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. I can't say whether—— When she was working for the Grodevant's she was down at our place and I saw Minnie and from her own conversations that she was working for the Officer's Mess, and it was afterwards that I found out she was working for the Grodevant's.

Q. Now, you say you left Leavenworth in '89?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What time of the year?

A. In January—nine, I landed in Fort Logan on the 13th day of January, '89, and it took about three days to go.

Q. Fort Logan, Colorado?

A. Fort Logan, Colorado. I had a contract there to go to work.

Q. After Minnie left the Hyde's there in Leavenworth and went out to the Fort, did you see her very often?

A. Quite frequently.

Q. Where would you see her? A. At our place.

Q. At your own home?

A. At my own home, down to visit my wife's.

Q. State whether or not you saw her frequently—for what length of time did you see her frequently?

A. Oh, I didn't pay any attention to it, it was quite a considerable time.

Q. During the time of your acquaintance with Minnie while she lived in Leavenworth, was she or not—did she or not have the appearance of being in a family way while she was at Leavenworth or Fort Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was she working at the time she had this appearance of being in a family way?

A. I understood at the Officer's Mess.

Q. At the Fort?

A. She was working at the Fort, yes, sir.

Q. About how long was it after she had left the Hyde's until you noticed her having the appearance of being pregnant?

A. I am unable to answer that question because I paid no particular attention at all at the time I noticed her in that way. She came down very frequently to the house and it was only when I noticed that that I took exceptions to her coming to the house and told her I didn't want her there.

Q. Did she discontinue visiting your home when you told her that?

A. Yes, sir, until her trouble had passed away, whatever it was, the indications had passed away.

Q. Then after the indications had passed away did she visit your home?

A. Yes, sir, and brought a man by the name of Peterkin and introduced him as her husband, and I was awful glad to think that she did.

> By Mr. Blakeney: We move to strike out "was awful glad" and so forth as not responsive and incompetent.

Q. Did you make any statement to Minnie in reference to her husband after her having married him?

A. No, sir, only received him friendly, in a friendly manner.

Q. Did you see him after that introduction?

A. Yes, sir, many times.

Q. Where?

A. He has been down to our place with Minnie.

Q. With Minnie? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you work any out at the Fort? A. Yes, sir.

Q. While you were living there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What kind of work did you do?

A. Contract work, I worked day work for the Government also.

Q. State whether or not you saw Mr. Peterkin at the Fort? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember about how many times you saw him at the Fort?

A. Oh, I never paid any particular attention to the times.

Q. About how long after you met Peterkin was it—— Well, I will ask you this: What became of Minnie?

A. She went on with Peterkin with the 18th Infantry, as I understood, to Fort Logan, Colorado.

Q. Do you know about when that 18th Infantry was transferred to Fort Logan, Colorado? A. Not exactly, no, sir.

Q. When was it with reference to the time that you moved to Fort Logan?

A. It was previous to me going to Fort Logan.

Q. Do you know about how long? A. No.

Q. Could you estimate the length of time?

A. I would only be guessing at it.

Q. About how long did Minnie live in Leavenworth and Fort Leavenworth, according to your best judgment?

A. About three years, in that neighborhood.

Q. About how long was it after you met Peterkin until Minnie left and went to Fort Logan?

A. That, I can't tell, they went as I understand together to Fort Logan as man and wife.

Q. When you got to Fort Logan, did you see them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were they living together at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After you met Peterkin, did you or not see Minnie frequently?

A. I seen—— In Leavenworth or in Fort Logan?

Q. That is in Leavenworth before she went to Fort Logan? A. I seen her quite frequently, yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever see Minnie in an impregnated condition more than the one time that she was pregnant? A. Yes.

Q. I don't mean—— I am not speaking now of the number of times that you saw her in that pregnant condition?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see her in an impregnated condition more than once? A. Not in Leavenworth, no.

Q. Not in Leavenworth? A. No.

Q. How about Fort Leavenworth? A. Neither one.

Q. How long was it after you manifested your displeasure of her visiting your home in the impregnated condition was it until you saw Minnie again?

A. Oh, it was several months.

Q. About how many?

A. That is a question I can't truthfully answer.

Q. Was it as much as a year? A. Oh, no.

Q. It was not? A. No.

Q. You are unable to estimate then how long it was after Minnie left Leavenworth and went out to the Fort until you saw her in this impregnated condition? A. No, I can't.

Q. You are unable—— How long would you say it was according to your best recollection?

A. Now, I will tell you, I will have to answer that in another way, you will have to let me explain to you. I paid no attention to the time she was at the Fort, you understand, until this thing came up and then I took notice of it and spoke of it, and I paid no attention to the time; it was quite a time, she had been coming to our house a number of times before that.

Q. After she had gone to the Fort?

A. After she had gone to the Fort, and for that reason I couldn't give you—it would only be guess work on my part.

Q. Are you able to estimate how long it was between the time this situation disappeared and you first saw her after its disappearance and the time that she went to Fort Logan?

A. Possibly it might have been a year, or a year and a half.

Q. You say you knew her at Fort Logan? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know of her giving birth to any children there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many?

A. I know two positive, and I am in doubt in regard to one.

Q. Do you know the names of the two you know of?

A. Well——

Q. Positively?

A. Two boys, we called them the Harrison boys, and Mable Peterkin, she was buried there in Fort Logan, it was about two years of age when she died, I think that is about her age now.

Q. You knew of Mabel?

A. I knew of her and I was at her funeral.

Q. You were at her funeral? A. Yes.

Q. Why do you say you knew positive about two children and were in doubt as to one of them, I didn't understand you?

A. I can't say whether Mabel was born after she had left Fort Leavenworth and went to Logan, because I lost track of Minnie after she had left, you understand, Fort Leavenworth.

Q. You lost track of her?

A. I lost track of her until I met her again in Fort Logan.

Q. You can't say positively that Mabel was born when—— I didn't get you?

A. I can't say positively whether Mabel was born in Fort Leavenworth or whether she was born after she went to Leavenworth.

Q. When was it you lost track of Minnie?

A. Well, I lost track of her when she went away from Fort Leavenworth to Fort Logan.

Q. Then you knew of Minnie and saw her up to the time that she left Fort Leavenworth?

A. Well, I perhaps—not perhaps the last few months, because she didn't continue coming down to the house.

Q. About how long would you say it was that she discontinued—— You mean she discontinued coming down to the house?

A. In the latter part of their stay, yes.

Q. How did you know they were still there then?

A. I knew the 18th Infantry were still there because I was working up to the Fort at different times.

Q. How long was this prior to the time that the 18th Infantry left Fort Leavenworth that you lost track of Minnie?

A. A certain coolness sprung up between us. Minnie, of course, would come down to our house and I wouldn't be there. She never was the same as she had been previous to that time.

Q. Previous to what time?

A. Previous to the time that I corrected her for her condition or spoke to her in regard to it.

Q. As I understand you, you did see her? A. Sir?

Q. I understand that you nevertheless saw her frequently? A. I never saw her frequently.

Q. I say you saw her frequently regardless of the fact of the coolness that had arisen? A. Oh, yes.

Q. But she was not as friendly and you were not as friendly with her? A. No, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Hamilton, Minnie first started coming to your house while she was working at the Hyde's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was when you first got to know her?

A. Yes, that is when I first got to be acquainted with her.

Q. You didn't know her in Carlisle? A. No, sir.

By Mr. German: Have you or not any objection to Mr. Allen redirecting this witness.

By Mr. Blakeney: No, sir.

By Mr. German: It is agreed that Judge Allen may redirect this witness.

By Mr. Hanford: I thought Judge Allen was present when the direct examination was made and knows that examination.

By Mr. German: Yes.

Q. Then, so you got acquainted with Minnie when she first started coming to your house from Hyde's?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she continued to come until this situation appeared? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, when you approached her on account of it, Minnie took a dislike to your reproaching her for it and stopped coming?

A. I told my wife about it and told her I couldn't have her coming to the house. My wife tried to excuse her and I felt sorry for her when she explained that she was an Indian and one thing and another and I felt sorry for her and still she remained away until her trouble was over whatever it was.

Q. You wasn't yourself as well acquainted with Minnie as you afterwards became, were you? A. No, sir.

Q. So it was on account of that fact, that she was more or less of a stranger and her being in that condition that you felt called upon to object to *t*her coming to the house?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Later on when you got better acquainted with her, you probably wouldn't have objected so much, would you?

A. I wouldn't have her come to the house when she was not married and come in that condition because it left a bad impression, that was the only objection I had in the whole case.

Q. Did you see her in that condition while she was still working for the Hyde's, did it show? A. No, sir.

Q. It showed after she left there?

A. It was after she left there but how long, I wouldn't say.

Q. When you did notice it after she went out to the Fort, didn't it occur to you that Minnie might have been looked after better when she was at the Hyde's?

A. Well, my impression was that I thought when she left the Hyde's that she ought to have been sent back to the school. That is what I thought ought to be done with the girl, I thought the Fort was no place to send a girl.

Q. Did it occur to you that that might have been the reason for Minnie leaving the Hyde's, that is, after you noticed it, didn't you get the idea that that was perhaps why she wanted to get away from the Hyde's, because she knew that was coming on?

A. No, I can't say that I thought of the Hyde's at all, sir, in regard to the case. If you want my impression on that, I always considered it was some officer at the Fort——

By Mr. Blakeney: We object to his impression as incompetent, and not responsive.

Q. How long did you say she staid away after you first noticed that condition?

A. After I told her to keep away, she kept away several months until this condition was apparently normal.

Q. Several months?

A. Several months, I should say.

Q. Then, about how long after she first arrived at your house or first started to going to your house, when you say that this all took place, in a nine months' period?

A. I can't answer that question, sir, because I paid no attention to it or her coming to the house. She has been to the house numberless times.

Q. It was during her first year in that section of the country?

A. No, I wouldn't say it was the first year.

Q. You can't fix the time? A. No, I can't.

Q. Do you know whether she went to Fort Logan ahead of you or after you?

A. She was there when I got there, sir.

Q. And during that time she was still—she was living with—— A. Peterkin.

Q. This man Peterkin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But the first time that you knew him was when she brought him to your house in Leavenworth?

A. In Leavenworth and introduced him as her husband.

Q. Did she introduce him as her husband or the man that she was going to marry? A. No, sir, as her husband.

Q. So you got the impression that she was married?

A. All I could learn from them, Chaplain Perry married them at the Fort. I knew Chaplain Perry while at the Fort.

Q. You never heard of him before?

A. I never heard of Peterkin before, no, sir.

Q. Did she come to your house so often after that time?

A. Yes, she came quite often for a while.

Q. Did Peterkin ever come again to the house?

A. Yes, sir, I seen him at the house many times.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. How long did you say you lived at Leavenworth after you met her husband, Peterkin?

A. How long I lived at Leavenworth?

Q. How long did Minnie live at Leavenworth after you met her husband Peterkin?

A. Well, sir, that I can't answer. It would cause work on my part to give a reply to that.

Q. You are just testifying from memory?

A. Yes, sir, that is all I am doing, to the best of my memory.

Q. There is nothing in your mind to fix the time that elapsed between any of these transactions?

A. That is all, yes, sir.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. One question I am not sure whether was asked on redirect I want to ask, Mr. German asked you. Mr. Hamilton, you stated on your direct examination that you understood from Grodevant that Minnie was working for him?

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Blakeney: We object as a repetition referring to hearsay evidence, incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

By Mr. Hanford: I want to object to the question on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and hearsay.

Q. State whether or not it was before or after that that you noticed Minnie's condition?

A. One minute please, from the time Grodevant spoke to me about this?

Q. Yes?

A. No, I was up in Wyoming when we were talking about Minnie. It was long after.

Q. What was long after?

A. Grodevant was speaking to me in regard that Minnie had worked for him, you understand, that Minnie worked for him at the Fort. Him and I were at Wyoming at the time. He constructed Fort McKenzie, I was painting it, it was then that he told me Minnie worked for him so long.

By Mr. Blakeney: We move to strike out all of the testimony of this witness about Grodevant telling him that Minnie worked for him, as narrative, incompetent, hearsay, and immaterial.

Q. Mr. Hamilton, about how long——

A. I was working up there in 1901.

Q. Wait a minute. Was there any period of time of more than thirty days from the time you first met Minnie while she was working for Hyde and the time that you saw her last before she left Leavenworth, excepting the few months that you had nothing to do with her on account of her condition, that you didn't see her?

By Mr. Blakeney: We object as leading, suggestive, incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. I am just trying to place things, gentlemen, the best way I know how to and consider the question. I can answer yes or no*t* to that question, I hardly think there was.

Q. About how long was it from the time that you first saw Minnie while she was working for Hyde's until you last saw her while she was at the Fort?

A. Do you mean the length of time that——

Q. Yes, sir?

A. I had first seen her to the last time I had seen her?

Q. Yes, sir?

A. Oh, it might have been two years, perhaps, something like that. I can't get down to dates, because I didn't take interest enough in it.

Q. You say you saw her during the time she worked at Hyde's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that you knew when she went to the Fort?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that she later was in a pregnant condition?

By Mr. Blakeney: We object as leading and suggestive and not redirect.

Q. And that later you saw her with Peterkin?

By Mr. Blakeney: We object as leading and suggestive and not redirect.

Q. Now, about how long a period of time elapsed between the time that you first saw her and the time that you last saw her?

By Mr. Blakeney: We object now as being a repetition of the question asked within the last five minutes.

Q. I wish you would think about that, Mr. Hamilton, and answer it to the best of your——

A. Let me get that question again, please?

Q. Read the question.

By Mr. Allen: I will withdraw that and ask him this question:

Q. I wish you would think about this question, Mr. Hamilton, and answer it to the best of your memory, to the best of your knowledge: About how long was it from the first time that you saw Minnie at Leavenworth until the time that you last saw her before leaving for Fort Logan?

A. I first saw her in the fall of eighty-five—eighty-four, and I think the last time, to the best of my knowledge and belief, I seen her in eighty-seven.

Q. During all of that time, how frequently did you see her? A. Quite frequently I seen her, sir.

Q. During all of that time, can you say whether or not she was in a pregnant condition more than once?

A. No, sir, that was all that I ever seen her.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. I only seen her in that condition once in Leavenworth, and I wouldn't swear she was in that condition, apparently she was. That is the way I will put that, because I can't tell, I never seen the fruits of it.

Q. Was she ever apparently in that condition more than the one time that you saw her? A. No, sir.

Recross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. After she married Peterkin, they kept house, did they?

A. I understood they did, they both lived at the Fort.

Q. Lived at the Fort? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You don't mean to say that you saw her with him frequently there for the month or more during that time that you didn't see her?

A. I can't answer that positively, because I wasn't interested enough you understand, sir.

Q. You had no interest in it at all? A. No, none at all.

Q. And after a lapse of some thirty years, you are just giving your recollection about seeing this woman during that period of time?

A. Yes, sir, I am just giving the best knowledge I know.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. You have no interest in this case in the world?

A. Not a particle, sir.

Q. Have you ever been employed by any one to assist them in getting up evidence in this case?

By Mr. Blakeney: We object as not redirect.

By Mr. Allen: We ask it on direct.

By Mr. Blakeney: We object now to this counsel commencing a direct examination of the witness.

Q. Answer.

A. Was I ever employed by anybody? I received my services for giving testimony, and the time that I was occupied in getting affidavits and one thing and another that I had given in the case for Mr. Buell. That is the only time that I ever—— If you call that being hired, I was.

Q. For Mr. Buell?

A. No, but they wanted affidavits which I had given for Mr. Buell.

Q. Who was it employed you?

A. A fellow named Noble, he never let me know who he represented.

Q. You were never employed by Mr. Buell?

A. No, no.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, MARY SPAIN HAMILTON, produced, sworn, and examined as a witness for and on behalf of the Government, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What is your name? A. Mary Spain Hamilton.

Q. What is your age?

A. I was born in 1859, in August, 1859.

Q. Where do you live? A. In Los Angeles, California.

Q. What is your husband's name?

A. Claudius A. Hamilton.

Q. What was your name before your marriage?

A. Mary Spain.

Q. Were you ever connected with the Carlisle Indian School at Carlisle, Pa.? A. I was.

Q. In what capacity? A. In superintending the laundry.

Q. Superintending the laundry? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that before or after your marriage?

A. That was before.

Q. When were you married? A. In '83.

Q. In eighty-three? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where were you married?

A. In Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. To Claudius A. Hamilton? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About how long before your marriage was it that you left the school?

A. I left the school—— I wasn't married when I left the school, I got married afterwards.

Q. About how long after you left the school until you were married?

A. Well, I left the school about eighty-two and I was married in eighty-three.

Q. When you were connected with the school, did you know an Indian girl named Minnie Atkins there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know her very well? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did she have anything to do with your work in the school?

A. Yes, sir, well, once or twice a week I had her to come to the place and work. The girls all had to learn industrial work. So, Minnie every day was sent to me to teach. Once a week about she would come.

Q. While she was there state whether or not she was a good girl? A. Yes, sir, she was.

Q. Did you or not take any special interest in her?

A. Well, I didn't take any special interest any more than she was obedient and a good worker, good worker and I liked her for that, and everybody in the school liked her, she was agreeable.

Q. Now, Mrs. Hamilton, after your marriage, where did you live? A. In Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. What street? A. On Kiowa.

Q. In your own home? A. No, I rented a place.

Q. Rented a place? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What number on Kiowa?

A. Well, I can't hardly remember that now, I just forget the number but it was near the cathedral.

Q. Did you ever see Minnie Atkins in Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. About when with reference to the time of your marriage?

A. Well, I was married in '93.

Q. Eighty-three, you mean?

A. Eighty-three, and I don't think she left the school until eighty-four, around that time, to the best of my recollection.

Q. How did you happen to see her there?

A. Well, she called on me, come to see me.

Q. Where was she working at that time?

A. At Mr. Hyde's, the banker.

Q. What was Mr. Hyde's initial or given name, do you know?

A. Well, I don't know, just knew he was Mr. Hyde and a banker; and I knew his sister, Mary Hyde, in the school.

Q. You knew her personally?

A. Yes, sir, but she is dead now.

Q. Mr. Hyde's sister Mary was in the school was she?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did she do? A. She was matron.

Q. Matron? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see Minnie very often there at Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. About how frequently after you first saw her there at Leavenworth, did you see her while she was at the Hyde's?

A. Well, I didn't see her but two or three times while she was at the Hyde's, she didn't stay there very long.

Q. Where did she go from Mr. Hyde's?

A. She went to Fort Leavenworth.

Q. How far is that from Leavenworth?

A. Well, I don't know I never paid any attention.

Q. Well, it is not a part of the City of Leavenworth, is it?

A. Out at Fort Logan is a soldier's Post.

Q. You mean at Fort Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. She went out to the Fort from the Hyde's?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the occasion of her going to the Fort did you see her?

A. Oh, yes, she seen me the evening she went up to the Fort.

Q. How do you know she went to the Fort?

A. Well, she came and talked to me and got a little money to go.

Q. How much? A. A dollar.

Q. D*u*d she leave anything with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was it?

A. A little pin, a little breat-pin.

Q. Why did she leave the breast-pin with you?

A. Well, she thought she ought to give me something in place of the money, but I told her I didn't want the pin, but she left it anyway.

Q. Have you that pin yet?

A. No, sir, some of those people here got it.

Q. When we were out at Los Angeles? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: We offer the pin in evidence, your Honor. It is in the possession of Mr. Penick or the Clerk, I don't know which. It is among the exhibits which were introduced at the taking of this witness' testimony at Los Angeles.

The Court: It will be admitted.

Q. Now, Mrs. Hamilton, after Minnie went out to the Fort, did you see her very often? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you see her?

A. She would come down to the house.

Q. Come to your house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From the Fort? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About how often would she come to your house?

A. Well, about once a month or so.

Q. Well, while she was at the Hyde's, so far as she would come to your house during the time that she was at the Hyde's did she show any evidence of being in a family way?

A. No, sir.

Q. At Carlisle, when you knew her there, did she show any evidence? A. No, sir.

Q. After she went out to the Fort, did she ever show any evidence of being in a family way?

A. After she went there, no not for quite a while.

Q. Not for quite a while, she finally did? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you take any particular notice of that condition of hers? A. Yes, I did.

Q. About how long after she went to the Fort was it that you noticed this condition?

A. Well, that puzzles me, it was within two years. I really can't tell you, it is so long ago I would have to be truthful about that, and it is within that period that I noticed it.

The Court: Within two years?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did she come to your house very often after this condition showed up? A. Yes, sir, she came quite often.

Q. Did your husband talk to you about it?

A. Yes, sir, he quarreled with me over it and didn't want me to have her coming there.

Q. What did you do about it?

A. I told him I knew Minnie at school, and I took her part. He didn't want me to have her coming there though.

Q. What did you finally do about it?

A. Well, I told Minnie about it, and finally after a little bit she stopped coming.

Q. Then, did you see her after that?

A. No, I didn't see her for quite a little while.

Q. But did you afterwards see her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was she then in this same condition? A. No, sir.

Q. It had disappeared? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did she bring anyone with her to your house?

A. Mr. Peterkin.

Q. When was it she brought him, before or after this condition disappeared? A. After.

Q. Did you meet Mr. Peterkin?

A. She fetched him to my house.

Q. Did she introduce him to you?

A. She introduced him to me as her husband.

Q. As her husband? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you say anything to her about it?

A. No, I didn't say anything to her about it.

Q. Did you see her very often after that?

A. Well, quite often after that.

Q. About how often?

A. Well, once a month or so, probably more than that.

Q. Where was she still living? A. At the Fort.

Q. Where would you see her?

A. She come to my house, always come to my house.

Q. That is where you would always see her?

A. Always see her at my house.

Q. Did she continue to live at the Fort, or did she ever leave there and leave Leavenworth?

A. She continued to live there, as long as I knew her, I always knew of her living at the Fort.

Q. Did she ever leave there? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Did she quit coming to your house?

A. Yes, and disappeared and went to Fort Logan and never told me.

Q. She went away without your knowing it?

A. Yes, sir, with this soldier that belonged to this regiment, he was ordered there.

Q. Peterkin? A. Yes, sir, she went with him.

Q. You just understood that she had gone with him, I suppose?

A. Well, that is what I heard afterwards, I heard that.

Q. Did you see Minnie after that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where? A. At Fort Logan.

Q. Where is Fort Logan? A. In Colorado.

Q. Near what city? A. Denver.

Q. Near Denver? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you happen to see her?

A. Well, my husband got the contract of painting Fort Logan, and he went there with Mr. McNeil, and when we got there we found that Minnie was there and I was surprised.

Q. Do you know about what year you went to Fort Logan?

A. No, but it is down in my statement, my husband has the year.

Q. Do you remember the years very well?

A. No, I don't remember the years very well.

Q. Now, at Fort Logan, how long did you stay there?

A. Well, I lived at Fort Logan about six or seven years.

Q. During the time that you lived there, did Minnie live there? A. No.

Q. How long did she live there?

A. Well, she lived there, to the best of my knowledge, three or four years, I guess.

Q. While there who did she associate with?

A. Well, her husband was there, Peterkin— She said he was her husband. He was with her for a long time and then he went away.

Q. Then, who did she live with after her husband left?

A. Well, then she had Harrison.

Q. Did you know Harrison? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was his business? A. Butcher.

Q. Where did he live?

A. He lived right in the little town.

Q. What was the name of the little town?

A. Logan Town.

Q. Where was that with reference to Fort Logan?

A. That was right down from the Fort.

Q. Right up against the Fort?

A. Right close to the Fort ground, yes, sir.

Q. Did Minnie have any children out at Fort Logan?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many?

A. Well, she had one baby that died there, Peterkin's.

Q. What was its name?

A. Mabel. It died and was buried in the soldier's cemetery, the name was Mabel Peterkin.

The Court: What was the name?

A. Mabel Peterkin.

Q. How old was that child when it died?

A. It couldn't have been more than eight or nine months old.

Q. Was it a boy or girl? A. It was a girl.

Q. Did you see the child?

A. Yes, sir, I was there the night it died.

Q. You were there the night it died? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did she have any other children there?

A. Well, she had two little boys.

Q. Two boys? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What were their names?

A. The Harrisons, I guess that was their names.

Q. Do you know what their given names were?

A. Well, I don't remember.

Q. Don't remember? A. No, sir.

Q. Were they born before or after this little Mabel?

A. They were born after.

Q. After? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know which one was born first of those two boys——Well, you don't know their names, you couldn't tell?

A. No, sir.

Q. After the two boys were born did you see Minnie very often? A. Yes, sir, seen her quite often.

Q. Where did you go from Fort Logan?

A. I moved down to the city, down at Denver.

Q. About how far is Fort Logan from Denver?

A. Must be about eighteen miles or so.

Q. What railroad connects Fort Logan with Denver?

A. Well, there was Uncle Sammy, they called it, it was a suburban train.

Q. They called the train "Uncle Sam"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know about Minnie leaving Fort Logan and going off anywhere?

A. Yes, I knew she left but I didn't know where. She told me she was going away.

Q. Do you know of her returning to Fort Logan after that? A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. Did she tell you where she was going?

A. No, she told me she was going away, but she didn't tell me where she was going.

Q. Do you know what became of those two boys?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Now, that is the last you ever saw of Minnie?

A. That is the last I seen of Minnie.

Q. Now, Mrs. Hamilton, do you know how long you lived in Leavenworth?

A. I lived there about seven years I think.

Q. Beginning in what year?

A. Well, I went there in about eighty two I think.

Q. Lived there until about eighty nine or something like that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mrs. Hamilton, while at Leavenworth, you have related about seeing Minnie possibly once a month except this period of time when this pregnancy showed up, and then afterwards disappeared. Was Minnie in a pregnant condition so far as you could tell at any other time while at Leavenworth, except the time that you stated?

A. Just the once that I knew of.

Q. Just the once that you saw? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mrs. Hamilton, in recent years, did anybody come to you wanting to locate Minnie, or inquire about Minnie?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. About how long ago? A. About 1914.

Q. Where? A. At Denver.

Q. Where were you living at that time?

A. I was living on South Logan.

Q. South what? A. South Logan.

Q. On South Logan Street, in Denver? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have since then moved to Los Angeles?

A. Yes, sir. Since then I have moved to Los Angeles.

Q. Who was this person who came to see you?

A. Sadie James.

Q. Do you remember what month or what time of the year? A. Well, it was about June, June 1914.

Q. Did she have a conversation with you about Minnie?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Relate the conversation?

Mr. Stuart: Well, we object. We were not present.

The Court: I hardly think that the conversation of Sadie James with this woman at this stage is competent.

Mr. German: As far as the evidence appears that is true. We possibly had better hold the witness until later on that. You may have the witness.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mrs. Hamilton, the first time that you saw Minnie, after you had previously seen her at Carlisle, was in Leavenworth, Kansas? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what year was that?

A. The first time I seen her?

Q. After leaving Carlisle?

A. Well, that would be about——well, it was after eighty four.

Q. It was in eighty four, you say?

A. Well, because I got married in eighty three and I didn't see Minnie until after that.

Q. You rather think it was the year following the year you were married? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So it was 1884? A. About that time.

Q. Where did you see her at that time?

A. At my house, it was in Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. She came to your house?

A. Yes, she come to my house.

Q. Did she tell you what she was doing? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was she doing?

A. She was working for Mr. Hyde.

Q. Mr. Hyde, the banker? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And while she worked for Mr. Hyde she continued to come to your house pretty often? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She told you a good deal about Mrs. Hyde?

A. Yes, she told me she couldn't get along with Mrs. Hyde.

Q. And she used to come to you and tell you her troubles?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So, she was coming quite often? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did she work for the Hydes after she first came to your house? A. Not very long.

Q. Well, about how long?

A. Well, I just couldn't state that. I really don't remember, but I know it wasn't a very long time.

Q. Well, was it about a month?

A. Oh, yes, it was longer than that.

Q. Possibly two or three months? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after she left the Hyde's you say she went out to Fort Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when she went out to Fort Leavenworth, she continues to come to your house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you kept in touch with her in that way?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she used to come and visit with you as old friends? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she kept coming and came pretty often, didn't she? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mrs. Hamilton, your husband had not known Minnie prior to the time he saw he in Leavenworth, had he?

A. No, sir, he didn't know her.

Q. And he didn't know her as well as you did, did he?

A. No, he didn't.

Q. In fact, he objected to Minnie's coming to the house, didn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And he told you about it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you told Minnie of his objections, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And told her to stay away?

A. Well, I just didn't tell her to stay away.

Q. You told her that he didn't like it?

A. That he didn't like it, yes sir.

Q. And Minnie cried and just didn't come any more?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did she tell you that her condition was as suspected?

A. No, sir, she didn't talk on it at all.

Q. Because you didn't ask her about it?

A. No, I didn't ask her any questions.

Q. And you noticed it for sometime before, yourself?

A. Yes, sir, sure.

Q. You noticed it before your husband did?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't tell you, did you? A. No, I didn't.

Q. You felt sorry for Minnie and knew she was an Indian girl? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And irresponsible and not abot to look out for herself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And so you protected her? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: I object to that as argument.

The Court: This is proper cross.

Q. Now, Mrs. Hamilton, you noticed this condition some two or three months before your husband mentioned it, hadn't you? A. Well, I just hardly chance to remember.

Q. Well, you noticed it before she began to get large, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Began to suspect it before it began to show, didn't you? A. Well, yes.

Q. But didn't speak to Minnie and she kept on coming to your house before it began to show? A. Yes.

Q. And then your husband told you of his suspicions?

A. Yes.

Q. And you told him of your suspicions; that you knew it was a fact? A. Yes.

Q. He objected to her coming to the house and you asked him to be easy on her, and he would not.

Q. So you told her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she didn't come back any more, did she? A. No.

Q. Now, Mrs. Hamilton, how long after Minnie had gone out to the Post and began coming back to your house was it that you began to suspect this condition?

A. How long she had been out there to the Post?

Q. Yes, how many weeks had she been out to the Post?

A. Well, I can't tell that; in a period of about two years, I couldn't state that.

Q. But Mrs. Hamilton, you do know, however, that it was not very long after she went to the Post and kep- coming back to your house that it began to look suspicious?

A. No, I couldn't tell that because I couldn't be sure of that.

Q. Mrs. Hamilton, how long after this appearance disappeared, did Minnie come back and bring this fellow Peterkin with her? A. Quite a long while.

Q. And she brought him to your house and introduced him to you as her beau?

A. First said her beau, and afterwards said she married him.

Q. You saw Peterkin just that once, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. And never did see him after that?

A. Yes, he came to my house after that.

Q. After that? A. Yes.

Q. How many times? A. Quite often.

Q. Quite often? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Sure of that? A. Sure.

Q. Came with Minnie? A. Came with Minnie.

Q. He came all the while she was telling you he was her beau?

A. She told me she got married to him, and she fetched him down as her husband.

Q. But that was quite a long time after this condition had disappeared? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That she brought him first to your house?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that you met him. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, covering how long a period of time did he come to your house—you say he came to your house quite often?

A. Yes, but I don't just know the period of time.

Q. Did you know him for possibly a year after he first came to your house? When Minnie first brought him?

A. Probably about that time, I don't just know.

Q. Then you think during that time that you were in Leavenworth and knew Peterkin for about a year?

A. Well, for about that time.

Q. Now, you say they came to your house quite often?

A. Quite often; I don't just know the times. Never paid much attention to it.

Q. Then, how long was it, after she brought him to your house and introduced him as her beau, did you hear that she got married to him?

A. Well, it was her that told me she got married to him; I didn't hear it.

Q. How long after, was that?

A. Not very long; about the first time it was her beau and the next time it was her husband.

Q. The next time it was her husband? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mrs. Hamilton, you say that Minnie didn't tell you about this condition and you noticed it for two or three months until it began to show up?

A. No, she never told me about that. I noticed it myself.

Q. And you noticed it that long?

A. I noticed it myself, yes.

Q. Now, will you also fix about the length of time after that condition disappeared that she came with Peterkin?

A. Well, no, I can't, because I don't remember.

Q. Mrs. Hamilton, isn't it a fact that you began to suspect Minnie of being in that condition shortly after she went out to the Fort?

A. I can't say that; I can't remember that, hardly.

Q. And didn't you suspect that it was some soldier out at the Fort? That she was running around with the soldiers out at the Fort? A. Well, I had an idea in that way.

Q. Mrs. Hamilton, didn't you suspect somebody in Leavenworth? A. Well, I don't know.

Q. Did not you and your husband talk it over and discuss somebody in Leavenworth, as being the party that you suspected? Don't you remember that you testified that you suspected Mr. Hyde's brother?

A. Oh, my, no; I don't remember that at all.

Q. You didn't tell me that? A. No; not to [] knowledge.

Q. Didn't you and your husband talk it over and decide that he was the party that was responsible?

A. No, I don't remember that.

Q. At any event, Mrs. Hamilton, you noticed this condition after she went out to the Fort soon enough so that it might have been somebody at Hyde's?

A. Well, it was within the period of the two years; I just can't tell that hardly.

Q. Then when you saw Minnie in that condition, Mrs. Hamilton, you remember about her crying and she told you she was in trouble, didn't she, when she wanted to [] the Fort, came to you and cried and wanted to borrow a dollar?

A. She didn't tell me anything about that. Said she had trouble with Mrs. Hyde.

Q. I am not asking you about that. But she came to you and told you she wanted to go out to the Fort and that she was in trouble and wanted to borrow a dollar?

A. Yes, sir, because she didn't have the money.

Q. You remember about that condition and remember her coming and telling you she was in trouble and right away you suspected something, didn't you?

A. Well, I don't know; I never thought that part of it.

Q. You didn't think that part of it? A. No, I didn't.

Q. Now, Mrs. Hamilton, you state that your husband didn't know Minnie so well at the time that he told her that he didn't want her to come to the house any more?

A. No, he didn't know Minnie very well.

Q. But after that he got better acquainted with her, didn't he? A. He got better acquainted with her.

Q. And then he didn't object to her coming to the house any more did he?

A. After he knoew her condition, he didn't want her to the house any more.

Q. Didn't want her to the house?

A. No, he didn't want her there.

Q. He didn't know her very well, and you explained to him that you had known her at Carlisle? A. Yes.

Q. So, Mrs. Hamilton, it was early in her relation with you at Leavenworth that this condition began to show up, wasn't it? A. No.—

Q. Because your husband hadn't gotten acquainted with her yet had he? A. Not very well but he was always at work.

Q. But he knew she was coming to the house, didn't he?

A. He knew, yes.

Q. He knoew that from you, and he afterwards did get better acquainted with her, and while Minnie never liked him because he hadn't let her come to the house, still he stood for her, didn't he?

A. Yes, he let her come but he didn't want her there.

Q. So, Mrs. Hamilton, it must have been done at least within the first year that you knoew Minnie at Leavenworth; it was while you had just discovered her, and your relations had not gotten very far along?

A. You see, I would want to be correct on that and I can't say.

Q. You can fix it within the first year, can't you?

A. I can't do that; I would have to make it within the period of two years. I can't do that.

Q. You testified before, you remember, when your deposition was taken at Los Angel*us*, don't you? A. Yes.

Q. And you did testify there that it was in the first year, in fact it was within few weeks after she went out to the Fort, didn't you? A. Yes, but I can't do it.

Q. You testified to it then, didn't you?

A. Well, I just don't—I didn't see my statement then.

Q. Mrs. Hamilton, let me ask you this question. Your testimony was taken down out in Los Angel*us*, in January 1915, I believe you say? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when did you next hear of this case, or when did anybody next come to see you about this case after your depositions were taken? A. I don't believe there was anybody.

Q. Nobody came to see you at all? A. No, not after that.

Q. Not after that? A. No.

Q. When did you get word to come here to testify at this hearing? A. I got a subpoena from here—to come here.

Q. And that was mailed to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did anybody come to see you and arrange—

A. Yes, there was a gentleman came to see me.

Q. And di- he talk to you about that case?

A. United States agent came.

Q. Did he talk to you about the case at that time? Did he go over it with you?

A. Well, no; he didn't go over it with me.

Q. He didn't go over your testimony with you?

A. No.

Q. Who have you discussed it with since you arrived here, Mrs. Hamilton? A. Not anybody.

Q. Haven't talked about it with anybody at all? A. No.

Q. Where have you been staying?

A. At Miss Robinson's.

Q. You have not talked to anybody at all about it since you arrived? A. No, sir.

Q. Who was it came out to Los Angel*us* and arranged for you to come here? Who talked with you at that time?

A. I just forgot the name. United States—

Q. Mr. Bruff? A. Is that the name?

Q. Was it Mr. Bruff? A little man with a mustache?

A. Yes.

Q. Was anybody with him? A. Nobody was with him.

Q. Now, how long did Minnie come to your house—how often did Minnie come to your house while she was working for the Hyde's? You say she came often—how often?

A. I just can't tell.

Q. Two or three time- a week?

A. Oh, no; not that often.

Q. I will ask you, Mrs. Hamilton, if at the time your deposition was taken as a witness on behalf of the Government, at Los Angel*us*, California, January 11th, 1916, at room 517 Federal Building, in the city of Los Angel*us*, the following question was not asked you and the following answer made by you: Did you see her very frequently there in Leavenworth? Answer. Yes, sir. Question. After that time? Answer. Yes, sir. Question, About how often? Answer. Oh, well, she would come probably two or three times a week. Did you you testify that? Isn't that your testimony, Mrs. Hamilton?

A. Yes, I guess it is.

Q. That is your testimony. Then you were asked, then, when did she come and you answered—cut that out—I will put that in another way. The following question was asked you: Question. Then where did she go? To which you answered—Answer. She went to Fort Leavenworth. That was your testimony, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. And then the following question was asked you during the time you were at Leavenworth, did Minnie show any evidence of being in the family way, to which you answered as follows: Answer. Yes, sir. Question. How did you come to know about that? Answer. Because she showed; showed up in that condition. Question. Where did you see her? Answer. Why she came down from the Fort and used to come to my house and she kept coming and she kept getting larger all the time. Is that your testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then the following. Where was it you noticed Minnie was in this condition—in the family way? Answer. In my house—in my own house. Question. How long did you continue to see her in that condition? Answer. Well, right about the beginning she wasn't so large, and she kept getting larger and I kept looking and watching her, and I suspected something, and then she got up pretty good size and my husband—he objected to her coming to my house. Isn't that your testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: If it please the Court, it strikes this is not different from what she has testified here.

The Court: It hasn't struck me that it is materially different. I assume the purpose is for examining her as to some difference.

Mr. Hanford: It leads up, Your Honor.

The Court: Alright.

Q. Then the question was asked you did she ever come to see you any more after that. The answer, no, not after he objected. Question, Did you see her again, then? Answer. Afterwards? Yes, sir. After everything was all over. Question, Do you know about how long it was from the time you told her of your husband's objection until she again visited you in the house; did you see her there? Answer. Well, it was quite a while but I can't just recall how long it was—how long. It was quite a while. Is that you- testimony?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, Question. How did you let her come to your house? Answer. She came back and fetched a soldier with her, and told me it was her beau, Peterkin. Question. About how long did you see her after this, after this condition of pregnancy disappeared and prior to the time she left Leavenworth, or left for Fort Logan? Answer. You mean after she got through pregnancy, you mean? Question. Yes, and had gotten alright. Answer. Three or four days about. Is that your testimony? A. Yes.

Q. And then the following was asked you: Question, Mrs. Hamilton, state whether at or before the date at which you let Minnie have a dollar and she that pin with you, state whether or not she was in a pregnant condition at that time apparently? Answer. No, she was not; she didn't show; she might have been but she didn't show, you know. She might have been in that way.

A. Yes, but she was not; she might. I don't know anything about that.

Q. She might at the time she gave you that pin?

A. I don't know anything about that.

Q. And then the following was asked you, page 430, question, how many weeks afterwards, was it, that you noticed that condition?

Mr. Hanford: I am going to go back to page 429.

Question, from page 429, How did she act when she told you she wanted to go out to the Fort? Answer. Well, she was in awful trouble; she cried and and she just seemed to be like she was broken hearted. Question. And she continued to come to your house quite often? Answer. Yes, sir. Question. Until you noticed this condition? Answer. Yes, sir. Question. You say that she might not have been in a pregnant condition at tha- time but it didn't show? Answer. No, sir. Well, I don't know, You know, I never noticed it. It was quite a while afterwards that I noticed it—that she was getting large; quite a while after she went up to the Fort. Question, But she kept coming to your house all that time? Answer, Yes, sir; kept coming to my house. Question, About how many weeks, was it, that you noticed that condition? Answer. Well, right at the beginning, she kept coming until I noticed it, you know; long before my husband did, but I didn't let on; but I never let on until he noticed it himself. She got pretty large and he couldn't help it. It was quite a while because he didn't pay much attention. Is that your answer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then the following was asked you. Question. Do you remember about how long it was after you gave her the dollar that the condition had disappeared? Answer. Oh yes, it was quite a while. I don't just recall how long. Question. Less than a year, thoug-? Answer, Oh, yes. Question. From the time that you gave her the dollar until you noticed this condition of pregnancy? It couldn't have been more than several weeks—that is a number of weeks, any way? Answer. Oh, it was more than that; more than several weeks. Question. A couple of months? Answer. About three months, I think. Is that your testimony?

A. Well, I know, but I forget.

Q. I am asking you if that is your testimony? Answer, Yes, that is. Question. About three. Answer. Yes, that is I first started to notice it just about three and a half months that I noticed, but I didn't pay much attention to it then. You can't always know, you know. You form different opinions, and you can't tell. She was getting large, I know that. Is that youe testimony? A. Yes.

Q. And on Page 443 the following: "Q. Did you notice her being big the first time you saw her after she came down from the mess? A. Not the first time, no. Q. About how long? A. She afterwards, about the second or third time I started noticing her." Is that your testimony?

A. Well, I don't know——

Q. Is that your testimony, Mrs. Hamilton, I am asking you?

The Court: You are asked, Mrs. Hamilton, whether or not you so testified?

A. Well, I don't remember that. I can't understand how it is I got it in in that way.

Q. If the transcript of your testimony showed——

A. Just shortly after she went to the Post you say I testified that way?

Q. You were asked questions continuously there all of that time, were you not? They went over the whole matter with you, didn't they?

A. I don't like the way that answer is there.

Q. I am not asking whether you like it or not.

The Court: We will not have any controversy. You are asked Mrs. Hamilton whether you gave that testimony out at Los Angeles?

A. Well, I can't remember about that one thing that I said two or three months.

The Court: All right, proceed.

Q. And then the following took place, the following questions and answers were had, Page 444: "Q. And you told Minnie that your husband objected? A. Yes. Q. About how long was that after Minnie had come up to Fort Leavenworth, up to the mess? A. About three or four months I think it would be." Is that your testimony? A. I can't understand why I testified—

Q. I am asking you, Mrs. Hamilton if that is your testimony?

The Court: Did you so testify?

A. I don't know whether I did, that short period I can't remember.

Q. Will you state yes or no, Mrs. Hamilton, whether you did so testify at that time and place. A. Well, I forget, because I don't remember that I stated it in that manner.

The Court: Is this the Examiner's transcript?

Mr. Hanford: This is the Examiner's transcript.

The Court: Well, all right. If she says she don't remember, you may introduce any portion that conflicts with her testimony here. You may cross examine this witness, but don't ask her questions for admissions that are the same that she has given here. Get to the point of conflict.

Mr. Hanford: I am trying to, your Honor. I have lined this up and it is hard to do.

The Court: Is there not a way so you can give these gentlemen a list so they will know in advance whom they will expect on the stand? That is, the witnesses who are here whose depositions have already been taken. Here is a witness whose deposition you have taken.

Mr. German: I believe, your Honor, we only have two or three such witnesses and we will be glad to do that.

Mr. Stuart: You mean two or three witnesses whose depositions have been taken?

Mr. German: That is correct. I mean to say we have only two or three witnesses whose depositions have been taken that have been brought here.

Q. And then, Mrs. Hamilton, I will ask you if at that time and place you did not testify as follows, reading from Page 444: "And you think that when she had been at the Fort about four or five months when your husband noticed it? A. Well, I think so about that time. Q. About four or five months. About how long was it after your husband noticed it and you complained to him was it that he saw Minnie again? A. It must have been about five months, I guess, it was quite a while I know." Did you so testify at that time and place? A. I kind of forget now, I will have to think about it.

Q. Reading from page 445, I will ask you: "Q and sometime after that you met Peterkin? A. Yes, sir, and she fetched him to my house and introduced him. Q. Introduced him as her beau? A. Yes, sir." And on Page 449: "Q. Would you estimate the number of months or estimate it in your own way, the length of time about from the time you met Peterkin and the last time you saw Minnie at Fort Leavenworth? A. Why, she just fetched him down there and introduced him and I never saw him any more until I seen him at Fort Logan." Did you testify that at that time and place?

A. I forget that; I did see him, I did see Peterkin.

Q. Following that I will read: "Q. That is Peterkin? A. Peterkin. Q. And you saw Minnie at Leavenworth again? A. Two or three times, I guess." Was that your testimony?

A. I seen Minnie more than two or three times after.

Q. Will you state whether or not you so testified at this time and place as I have read to you?

A. I can't testify that.

Q. At Los Angeles?

A. I seen her more than that, I can't testify that, no I forget.

Q. And on Page 449: "Q. Now, will you estimate about how long it was between the times that Minnie left Hyde's and went out to the Fort until you saw Minnie in this pregnant condition? A. It seemed about three months or so, three or four months." Did you so testify at Los Angeles?

A. I can't remember.

Q. At the time and place I have mentioned before?

A. I can't remember that about how I testified.

The Court: You will have her testimony on the stand before you.

Mr. Hanford: I am going to ask to have the whole deposition considered.

The Court: Unless it is absolutely necessary I am not going to consider the deposition where it doesn't conflict with her testimony here.

Mr. German: We will state this: That we are willing to agree that he is reading correctly her testimony given out at Los Angeles in January, 1916, to save any trouble.

The Court: We will have no trouble about that. She probably should be interrogated about the differences, conceived differences. Cross examine.

Q. And on Page 450, I will ask you if the following was not testified by you at that time and place: "Q. Where did you get the idea?" First let me ask you, Mrs. Hamilton, at the time Minnie was working for the Hyde's and used to come to your house, did she ever tell you about any old negro woman that was a friend to her? A. No, she never did.

Q. Never told you. A. No, sir.

Q. You never heard her mention any old colored woman?

A. Never heard her mention.

Q. Now, I will ask you if at Los Angeles, at the time and place I have before mentioned, if you did not testify as follows (Page 450): "Q. Where did you get the idea that you may have heard of some negro woman being a friend to Minnie? A. Well, on account of her having these disputes with Mrs. Hyde, and I think this old colored lady lived there near, and I can't recall now but I think. Q. Did she bring that in the conversation about her troubles with Mrs. Hyde? A. Yes, she said Mrs. Hyde was mean to her, and I think this old colored woman knew it or something, I just can't recall that part of it very well. I didn't pay much attention." Did you testify as I have read?

A. Yes, I remember that, yes.

Q. Well, now, you recall?

A. She did tell me about the old colored lady.

Q. And that was in connection with this trouble?

A. Well, she told me that she was good to her when she was coming away, but she didn't tell me she staid with this old colored lady. She just said she was a friend to her.

Q. Mrs. Hamilton, You remember that a day or so before your deposition was taken in Los Angeles, I came out to your house and brought a couple of gentlemen with me in the evening? A. What place was I living then?

Q. Well, I can't remember the address. But you do remember that before your testimony was taken in Los Angeles, that I came out there and brought a couple of men with me and talked to you in your house, didn't I? A. Yes.

Q. And one of them wrote down what you said, and everything that was said and done there, didn't he?

A. At least I thought he did.

Q. You just thought he did, you couldn't tell what he was doing, could you? A. No.

Q. Didn't you tell me at that time, Mrs. Hamilton, that this condition of pregnancy that you noticed in Minnie, you noticed within the first two or three months that she began coming to your house? A. I don't recollect that.

Mr. Hanford: That is all.

The Court: Any further cross examination?

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mrs. Hamilton, how old are you?

A. I was born in '59.

Q. Fifty nine? A. In August, fifty nine.

Q. Have you been in good health the last few years?

A. Well, yes, I have been pretty well except for asthma.

Q. You suffer from that a good deal?

A. Yes, I suffer for the last two years pretty bad.

Q. Lost a good deal of sleep, haven't you? A. Sir?

Q. You have lost a good deal of sleep during that time, haven't you? A. Well, the last year.

Q. The last year? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Stuart: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cobb.

Q. Do you remember the name of this old colored woman that was a friend of Minnie there at Leavenworth that you referred to in your testimony?

A. No, sir, I don't remember any names, she never mentioned any name.

Q. She never mentioned any name? A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't know at that time who the old colored woman was? A. No, sir, I didn't.

Q. Therefore, you wouldn't know now who she was?

A. No, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. How long was Minnie at the Carlisle Institute while you were there, how many years?

A. Well, she came about eighty-one and I left about eighty two, a little after eighty two.

Q. Are you certain that she came to Carlisle in 1881?

A. Oh, sure, Miss Robertson was there.

Q. Well, I don't care about Miss Robertson, she can tell it herself? A. After eighty two.

Q. Was it in eighty two you left? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the year 1882 you left there? A. Yes, sir.

Judge Stuart: That is all.

Re-Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mrs. Hamilton, when Minnie would come to your house while she was working at the Hyde's and cry———

A. Sir?

Q. While she would come to your house and cry, what was it she would tell you?

A. Well, Miss Hyde, you know, didn't like her and used to scold her, tell her she don't do her work right. She said she couldn't please Mrs. Hyde didn't make any difference what she done, she couldn't please her.

Q. That is what she cried about? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you stated that—Mr. Hanford, rather, asked you about possibly suspecting some person of being too intimate with Minnie? A. You mean my husband?

Q. Oh, no, Mr. Hanford, the gentleman who questioned you a while ago asked you about who and your husband discussed there talking about who may have been too intimate with Minnie. State whether or not she had been to the Fort so long that you and your husband discussed the question as to whether it was some soldier or not?

A. Well, we did talk over that.

Q. Did you and your husband ever discuss the question as to whether she had gotten in a family way while at the Hyde's? A. Oh, no, she never did.

Q. Now, you spoke of this man right here, Mr. Bruff—Stand up Mr. Bruff please?

A. Yes, sir, he was the one came to Los Angeles.

Q. About a couple of months ago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he call your attention to what this record showed you had testified to in January, 1916?

A. Yes, he called my attention to the three months time and I was surprised because, that is, the time, I can't understand why it would say that because I forgot and I don't think it was that length of time.

Q. He read the questions and answers?

A. He just mentioned, he never read anything to me.

Q. What did you say to him about it?

A. I was really surprised that I made that statement; I couldn't understand how it was.

Q. Did you say anything about wanting to correct it?

A. Yes, I did, because it is just a short period, I know that is really not so; it was longer time than that.

Q. Now, Mrs. Hamilton, did Mr. Bruff, this man who came to see you about two months ago, did he make any suggestions to you about how long a time that was, did he tell you how long it was? A. No.

Q. Or how long he wanted you to say it was?

A. No, sir, he didn't say anything.

Q. In fact, didn't you say when he got through, you are the only man that has ever talked to me——

Mr. Cruce: We object to that as leading.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. What did you say to him about the way he had talked to you and about suggesting and anything of that kind?

A. He didn't seem to say very much.

Q. What did he say—what did you say to him?

A. Well, I told him that part of it, it was over the year about in a year, that I didn't say that.

Q. Did you intend when you testified at Los Angeles to say it was three or four months? A. No.

Mr. Stuart: We object.

Mr. German: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. You said Mr. Bruff read your testimony over to you that you had given in Los Angeles?

A. No, he didn't, he just called my attention to that one place.

Q. To that one place? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did he say about that at that time?

A. He just said that is what I stated.

Q. What else did he say?

A. Just that period, two or three months, was all that was said.

Q. What else did he say?

A. I said that there was a mistake and that I made a mistake, that it was longer than that.

Q. What did he say?

A. He asked me about what the time was did I think, and I said about a year.

Q. Did he have a paper when he called your attention to the mistake you had made? A. He had a paper.

Q. And called your attention to the mistake you had made? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then you said you wanted to correct that mistake? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Stuart: That is all.

Mr. German: That is all.

Mr. Hanford: If the Court please, if they are going to excuse Mrs. Hamilton as a witness for the Government, we would like to have her remain here.

The Court: None of the witnesses will be excused during the course of the trial unless it is by agreement of counsel of all sides, calling attention of the matter to the Court.

Q. Didn't you also testify at Los Angeles, that your recollection of the lapse of time was not good?

Mr. Stuart: We object to that because it is leading. She is his own witness.

(Witness dismissed)

Mr. German: We now offer the deposition of the witness Julia Foy, taken at Sheridan, Wyoming, in January, 1916, before Giles A. Penick, Examiner, which appears in his transcript of deposition shown on page 66.

JULIA GRODEVANT FOY being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Where do you live, Mrs. Foy?
A. 425 West Works street, Sheridan, Wyoming.
Q. How long have you been living in Sheridan?
A. Since October 14th, 1900.
Q. What is your husband's name? A. Milo W. Foy.
Q. Does he hold any official position?
A. Well, he is going out of office today.
Q. What office is that?
A. City Treasurer, city Commissioner.
Q. Of Sheridan? A. Yes, sir.
Q. How long have you been married Mrs. Foy?
A. Since October 14th, 1914.
Q. What was your father's name?

A. Herbert D. Grodavant.

Q. What was your mother's name?

A. Lattie West Grodavant.

Q. Are your parents living? A. No, both are dead.

Q. When did your father die? A. November 1st, 1908.

Q. When did your mother die? A. December 29th, 1912.

Q. How old are you, Mrs. Foy?? A. I am 25.

Q. You were born then in 1890? A. 1890, April 13th.

Q. Where were you born? A. Denver, Colorado.

Q. Did you live with your parents up to the time of your father's death and then with your mother up to the time of her death? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you understand whether they had lived in Leavenworth, Kansas, prior to your birth?

A. Yes, I knew they had.

Q. Was your father connected with the United States Army?

A. He was a civil employe as Superintendent of Instructions.

Q. While he was living in Denver, his work was at Fort Logan?

A. Part of the time and part of the time he had an architectual office.

Q. Did your father keep any memorandum or records of expenses of his personal and family's expenses?

A. He kept an account, yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever see him making any of these records?

A. Often.

Q. What period of his life, so far as your knowledge extends, did he practice doing that?—keeping a record of his expenses and expenditures?

A. Well, from the time he was 14, until a few days before his death. I have the records.

Q. Not from your personal knowledge?

A. No, but he usually did it at home; I would see him doing it in the evening.

Q. What did he keep a record of those expenditures in?

A. Small note books.

Q. At the time of your father's death, was there left by him, any of those note books?

A. Yes, all of them.

Q. And then, what was done with them after his death?

A. Mother and I kept them.

Q. After your mother's death, what became of them?

A. I took them; I was the only child.

Q. You have them now? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you please see whether there is one covering the years 1884 and 1885? A. Yes, sir, there is.

Q. Is that it you hold in your hand? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I wish you would look at that and state if you know, whose handwriting appearing therein, is.

A. It is my father's handwriting.

Q. Is that one of the books that you referred to as having come from your father at his death and been preserved by your mother and yourself up to the time of her death, and by yourself since then? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: We offer that—the book now held by the witness, as Exhibit No. 1 to this witness' testimony, and particularly that portion of it covering the period of time beginning with the 1st of October, 1884, and ending with the 1st of October, 1885.

Mr. Hanford: The defendants Minnie E. Folk, Harry B. Folk, Edward C. Hanford object to the introduction of this book in evidence on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and not properly identified, and on the ground that it is hearsay.

Mr. Blakeney: Counsel has made two offers. I want to object to his general offer for the reason that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and hearsay, and not properly identified; and I want to object to the special offer of the items which he says he particularly and especially offers, for the reason that the same are incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and hearsay and not properly identified.

Mr. Hanford: The defendants Folk and Hanford also object on the ground that the offer is indefinite and double.

Q. I ask you please to refer to the book that you—that has been just referred to, to the date October—

A. To the 22nd?

Q. Yes, October 22nd, 1884. A. Yes, sir.

Q. There appears to be only one entry dated October 22nd? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In whose handwriting is that entry?

A. That is my father's handwriting.

Q. Please refer to item dated October 31, 1884.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The first item in the list of items under that date, whose handwriting is that in?

A. It is my father's handwriting.

Q. Refer to, please, to the item bearing date of November 15th, 1884. A. Yes, sir.

Q. The first in the list of items under that date, whose handwriting is that in?

A. That is my father's handwriting.

Q. In whose handwriting is the item bearing—the 5th item bearing date of November 29th, 1884?

A. That is my father's handwriting.

Q. In whose handwriting is the third item under date December 12th, 1884? A. My father's handwriting.

Q. In whose handwriting is the 5th item under date December 5th, 1884? A. In my father's handwriting.

Q. In whose handwriting is the second item under date of January 31st, 1885? A. My father's handwriting.

Q. Now, in whose handwriting is the 2nd item under date of February 28th, 1885?

A. My father's handwriting.

Q. In whose handwriting is the 3rd item under date April 1, 1885? A. My father's handwriting.

Q. In whose handwriting is the 8th item under date April 30th, 1885? A. My father's handwriting.

Q. In whose handwriting is the last item under date of May 30th, 1885? A. My father's handwriting.

Q. The first item under date January 2nd, 1885?

A. My father's handwriting.

Q. And the 4th item under date of July 1, 1885?

A. My father's handwriting.

Q. The 3rd item under date of July 1, 1885?

A. My father's handwriting.

Q. The 2nd item under date August 31, 1885?

A. It is my father's handwriting.

Q. The 2nd item under date of September 15, 1885?

A. My father's handwriting.

Q. I wish you would look at the intervening items; the items appearing between the years and dates that I have mentioned, and state in whose handwriting they are.

A. They are all in my father's handwriting.

Q. Mrs. Foy, in the line of the 1st item, the one date October 22nd, 1884, appears in parentheses the letters "C C T" and the figures "14"—whose handwriting are those in?

A. My father's.

Q. State whether the figures appearing, giving the dates and the figures, appearing after the years and items indicating the amount, are in your father's handwriting.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And all of the writing? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, where were those books found upon the death of your father? A. They were in his tool chest.

Q. Where did he usually keep them during his life time?

A. The ones that he was not using were always in the tool chest.

Q. What do you mean by the ones he was not using?

A. The current year book.

Q. Now, have you with you here, all of the book- of his, pertaining to his records—expenditures—that were carried over by you—that have been preserved by you?

> Mr. Hanford: We object on the part of the defendants Folk and Hanford on the ground that the testimony calls for a conclusion of the witness; and the further ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. I have all but one of the books with me.

Q. Where is it? A. At home.

Q. What year does it cover? A. It is the first book.

Q. It is before any of those you have? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many have you here with you?

A. 12, I think—12, yes, sir.

Q. What is the earliest year appearing in any of the books you have with you?

A. My father was born in '50 and he started in when he was 14, and that would be in '64, his birthday.

Q. Well, at any rate, the books you have here, you cannot readily find what is the earliest year there without looking through—the earliest year is long prior to the '80's, is it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In any of the books you have with you here?

A. Yes, sir, 1885 I think is the one.

Q. Now, did your father keep such records as that up to the time of his death?

A. Up to two days before he died.

Q. Were all of those books together in his tool chest when he died, except the last year?

A. Yes, sir, except the one that was in his pocket of the suit that he had been wearing.

Q. And he died in 1908? A. Yes, sir.

A. Have it with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether these books have been in your possession—your and your mother's possession up to the time of your mother's death, since your father died.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in your possession since your mother died?

A. Yes, sir, we have never been without them.

Q. May the court take this to Muskogee and then return it, Mrs. Foy? A. I would rather have them together—

Mr. Allen: If you will let us have that one, I will personally guarantee we will return it to you in just the same shape it is in.

Mr. Hanford: There won't be any trouble over that because I think all the parties will agree to that.

Mr. Allen: It is stipulated and agreed by and between all of the parties that a photographic copy of the pages of the book offered in evidence by the Government may be made and caused to be made by the Examiner and may be substituted by him in lieu of the original book and subject to the objections made to the introduction of the original book, and that then the original book may be returned to Mrs. Foy by the Examiner.

Mr. Hanford: I only agree to the photographic copy for the reason that the matters ought to be put in evidence are all letters and figures that can be readily copied and it does not cover very many items. In the making up of the record on appeal, a copy of that kind can be inserted in the record very easily and very handily, and show everything that is necessary to be shown. The photographic copy is to be made, each one separate and individual for all of the copies of the printed records that is gotten out. Those defendants have just been required to pay $150 and more for the insertion of small photographs of records in the printed transcript of the appeal from the Receivership, and it is for that reason that we prefer the copy of the items and the amount.

Mr. Allen: Let the record show that counsel has not agreed.

Mr. Hanford: I will agree to the stipulation just dictated. It occurs to me now that the printing of the record on appeal will not require photographic copies because the words and figures can be printed; copies that I referred to, were those that cannot be copied and disagreement is with the understanding that the complainant only wishes to have copied the small portion of the book; that is, from October, 1884, to October, 1885.

Mr. Blakeney: I will not agree to anything except a delivery of the book as evidence in the case.

Mr. Allen: Mr. Blakeney says that he will agree to have the pages of the book photographed and now agrees to the stipulation that I have dictated, from October 1st, 1884 to October 1st, 1885.

Mr. Blakeney: My objection is that there will be these pages of exhibits in this case and it is essential that we have the original, but in this particular instance, now, I will consent to the stipulation made by Judge Allen.

The Examiner: At this time the witness surrenders to the custody of the Examiner, the book referred to and identified as Government's Exhibit 1.

Q. I see the name Lottie appearing through there sometime; do you know who bore that name?

A. That is my mother's name.

Mr. Blakeney: Judge Allen, your offer here was the pages of this book commencing with the first entry in October in which it appears Minnie was paid?

Mr. Hanford: There is no testimony there; the book is the evidence.

Mr. Blakeney: You have offered the book—showing the Minnie item, sometime in October, down to and including the last item in which Minnie appears—you have offered all intervening items as well as those that relate to Minnie?

Mr. Allen: Yes, sir.

Mr. German: We offered the book.

Mr. Blakeney: From page to page first, and then you offered especially those items between those dates?

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: Now, your Honor, there is an important exhibit which we offered in connection with her testimony. It is here and I would like to inquire about those offers.

The Court: It goes with the deposition. If it was offered as an exhibit it is a part of the deposition.

And thereupon, FRANK J. GRODEVANT, was called, sworn and examined as a witness for and on behalf of the Government and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What is your name? A. Frank J. Grodevant.

Q. What age are you, Mr. Grodevant?

A. Sixty four next January.

Q. What do you do, Mr. Grodevant?

A. I am superintendent of construction in the Quartermaster's corps U. S. Army.

Q. In the United States Army? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where is your residence?

A. At present I am stationed at El Paso, Texas.

Q. Stationed at El Paso at the present time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were living at Fort Sheridan, Wyoming—You were stationed at Fort Sheridan, Wyoming, a while?

A. No, sir, I never was stationed there.

Q. What is the Fort near Cheyenne?

A. Fort D. A. Russell.

Q. How long have you been in the United States Army?

A. Well, if I am with the Government until November 12th, it will be thirty years.

Q. What was the first year of your connection with the army? A. At Fort Logan, Colorado.

Q. Fort Logan, Colorado, what year?

A. That was in 1887.

Q. Were you ever at Fort Leavenworth in Kansas?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have a brother there named Herbert Grodevant? A. I did.

Q. Where did he live in the eighties?

A. He lived back of the Prison.

Q. At Fort Leavenworth? A. At. Fort Leavenworth.

Q. Back of the military prison?

A. Yes. sir, back of the military prison.

Q. At Fort Leavenworth. Was he married? A. He was.

Q. Were you married? A. No, sir.

Q. What family did he have in the eighties there at Fort Leavenworth? A. Himself and his wife.

Q. Did you or not live with him? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. When did you come to Fort Leavenworth?

A. Well, I can't give the exact date, but it was I think in February, 1884, after my father's death.

Q. How long did you live with your brother there at Fort Leavenworth?

A. I was there until I went in the employ of the Government in November, 1887.

Q. Were you there then during the years 1884 and 1885?

A. I was.

Q. Did you know an Indian woman by the name of Minnie Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was she?

A. She was a domestic in my brother's family.

Q. When?

A. Well, I can tell pretty positive from my brother's record which I received. When I first was appraoched on this subject I said it was about 1885.

Q. Yes?

A. But I have since been—I come to the conclusion that it was partially in 1884; my brother's record so states.

Q. What kind of a record do you refer to?

A. His books, books of expense.

Q. Is your brother living or dead?

A. No, sir, he died some years ago.

Q. Is his wife living? A. No, sir, she is also dead.

Q. He has a daughter living? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is her name? A. Foy.

Q. Julia Foy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did she live? A. Sheridan, Wyoming.

Q. What did your brother keep in this book that you refer to? A. He kept an expense account.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. Well, any monies he spent he kept an expense account. Any disbursements of his money, purchases.

Q. How long did he do that?

A. He had been doing that for years, before he was married in fact.

Q. And how long after he married did he continue to do that? A. Why, I saw him years after right along.

Q. I show you a book, which has been marked Government's Exhibit 1, which was introduced in connection with the testimony of Mrs. Julia Foy, and will ask you to examine it. Look at the entries in that book in a general way and look at the handwriting. Mr. Grodevant, whose handwriting are those entries in? A. That is my brother's handwriting.

Q. Your brother Herbert? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The brother about whom you have testified?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether you have a personal knowledge of his entering items of expense incurred by him?

A. Yes, sir, I saw him do it at Leavenworth after I came there.

Q. Fort Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When would he make the entry with reference to when he would make the expenditures?

A. Well, I have seen him making them most of them in the evening.

Q. Did he make entries every evening or not?

A. Well, I couldn't say as to that.

Q. State whether that book that you hold in your hand was one of the books used by him in the way you refer to?

A. Yes, sir, he had narrower books than that, smaller books.

Q. Is that one of the books that he was using?

A. I saw him using this style of book, yes, sir.

Q. About how many of these books did you know of his ever having used or put together?

A. Different ones that I seen?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, you know, I didn't live with him always. I know him to keep accounts whenever I was with him because he and I both started them there.

Q. Did you do that way, too? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you kept that up?

A. No, sir, after I went to the Philippines, I couldn't keep it up. They had so many variations of money.

Q. But I say, you did do it up to the time you went to the Philippines? A. Yes, sir.

Q. A daily record? A. Yes, sir, of my expenses.

Q. Did you include*d* every item of expense?

A. Yes, sir, everything.

Q. Street car fare?

A. Yes, sir; everything—even newspapers.

Q. I will ask you if your brother's statement and your's was the same in practice—or to the same effect?

A. Well, the general result was the same about recording expenses.

Q. Now, Mr. Grodevant, was there any servant in your brother's family prior to the time Minnie Atkins was a servant? A. Oh, yes, sir.

Q. There were others? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any servant in the family afterwards?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Grodevant, during the time that Minnie was in the family, state whether your brother kept a record of the payment of wages to her?

A. Well, I can't state just how he kept the payments or what they were.

Q. I will show you this book which has been introduced in connection with the testimony of Mrs. Foy and call your attention to the item appearing under the date October 22nd, 1884, which reads October 22, Minnie Atkins——

Mr. Cruce: We object to the introduction of that statement, if Your Honor please. It is hearsay, and incompetent, testimony.

The Court: Well, he is incorporating it in a question, now.

Q. Parenthesis October 14, end of parenthesis, two dollars: state whose handwriting that is in.

> Mr. Cruce: Associate counsel tells me we are not objecting, so I will withdraw the objection.
> The Court: Alright.

A. That is my brother's handwriting.
Q. That is your brother's handwriting?
A. That is my brother's handwriting.
Q. Now, look at the item of October 31, 1884, and state whose handwriting that is in. A. That is his writing.

> Mr. German: I will not go further with this witness on that line until we prove that by Mrs. Foy.

Q. Mr. Grodevant, by reference to that book, can you now refresh your memory as to the time when Minnie Atkins was in your brother's family as a servant?
A. I can't as to the exact date; only by the reference here.
Q. About how long was she in your brother's family?
A. Well, I stated in my deposition, I could only recollect in 1885.
Q. Yourself, personally?
A. Yes, sir, as near as I could recollect.
Q. Independent of any record?
A. Yes, sir, independent of any record. That was impressed in my mind when the question came up without reference to this book or any record.
Q. Do you have an independent recollection of that?
A. Yes, sir, of the year.
Q. About how long did she stay there, according to your independent recollection?
A. Well, I can't fix any date. To the best of my recollection as to the length of time, I should say.
Q. How?
A. I couldn't fix any length of time for her being in the employ of my brother's people—a mere recollection.
Q. Was you living there when she came? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Were you living there when she left? A. Yes, sir.
Q. You had been there a while before she came?
A. Yès, sir.
Q. And you stayed there a while after she left?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. What did she do around the home?
A. Well, she was a domestic; she washed; was not much of a cooker—did the general housework.
Q. Did she wait upon the table in the dining room?

A. Well, there wasn't any general waiting on the table. The things were placed on the table and we ate.

Q. Did you see her very frequently or not?

A. Well, I didn't see her every day.

Q. About how often would you see her around the home?

A. I might state I was at the Prison, or the Fort, you know, during the day.

Q. Yes; were you at this home during the day?

A. Only in the morning and evening.

Q. Morning and evening? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For breakfast and the evening meal? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then were you at home at night? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, about how often would you see Minnie?

A. Probably several times during the week. Some evenings I wouldn't see her when I came home late.

Q. Now, at the period of time that she worked for your brother's family considering the time when she begun the work there, and running through until the time when she was discharged or discontinued working there, state whether you say her every week in the manner you just suggested.

A. Yes, sir, I saw her every week when she was there.

Q. She was in your brother's employ continuously from the time she begun when you first saw until she finally quit?

A. Yes, sir, as far as I know, yes, sir.

Q. Well, you know, do you not? A. Yes, I think I do.

Mr. German: Now, I desire to invite Your Honor's attention to the fact that this expense account—record—shows a payment to her, beginning—the first payment to her was in October, 1884, and the last one was on September 15th, 1885.

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir, but we don't agree with him that it shows a continuous payment during that time.

Mr. German: I know you don't.

Mr. Stuart: We don't agree that the book shows, Your Honor——

Mr. German: That is a question for the Court.

The Court: His statement is that the book shows the first payment in October, 1884, and the last payment of date, September, 1885, but you don't admit that it shows her continuous service there between those dates.

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir, the book don't show it.

Mr. Hanford: If Your Honor please, we have a stipulation in regard to that book.

The Court: Alright.

Q. Mr. Grodevant, during this time, was Minnie Atkins —did she give birth to any child while she was working there for your brother? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did she have the appearance of being in the family way? A. No, sir, not to my——

Q. She didn't to you?

A. No, sir, I never saw her for any very great length of time but she never gave any appearance of that kind to me.

Q. You are not a married man? A. No, sir.

Q. But you do know the appearance of a woman who is pregnant? A. Yes, sir. I do.

Q. That is when it is developed to show outwardly?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what was her demeanor while there with relation to her conduct toward men so far as you observed?

A. I never saw anything out of the way with Minnie?

Q. Was she or not on duty regularly?

A. So far as I know.

Q. Did you see her after she left the employ of your brother?

A. Yes, sir, I think I saw her a couple of times afterwards there.

Q. Around the Fort? A. Around the Fort, yes, sir.

Q. Do you know for whom she was employed?

A. Well, I know now, I couldn't recall the names, but I have heard it. The Stafford's—an officer in the army.

Q. You remember the fact that she worked for Staffords but you didn't recall his name until recently?

A. Yes, sir, I remember the fact.

Q. Do you know when she worked for the Staffords with relation to when she worked for your brother's family?

A. No, I don't; I can't tell the interval between.

Q. Was it before or after she was employed in your brother's family? A. It was afterwards.

Q. Where did Lieutenant Stafford live?

A. I can't tell you; I never did know.

Q. Well, was he in the Fort?

A. He was at Fort Leavenworth, as I understand.

Q. You mean you don't know what particular quarters he had? A. Particular house, no, sir.

Q. What was your brother's business there?

A. He was the foreman in the Prison of the wood-working department; carpenter's job.

Q. Who was Mr. Stafford?

A. Mr. Stafford was an officer in the army as I understood.

Q. A lieutenant?

A. I can't say whether he was a lieutenant or a captain.

Q. At those time- you saw Minnie, was she or not in a family way after she left your brother's?

A. At no time did I perceive her in that condition.

Q. Did you ever see her after that except when she was working for the Staffords? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where? A. I saw her at Fort Logan.

Q. At Fort Logan? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you go to Fort Logan?

A. I went in November, '87.

Q. What company did you go with, if any?

A. I didn't go with any, I was ordered there by the Government. It was my first employment in the Government service.

Q. That was your first employment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know of Company E of the 18th Infantry being transferred from Fort Leavenworth to Fort Logan?

A. I don't recall it, no, sir.

Q. When was Fort Leavenworth established — I mean Fort Logan, established?

A. Well, there wasn't anything done on it until these plans—there were temporary buildings there when I first went to Fort Logan.

Q. Just temporary?

A. It was called the Post near Denver; it hadn't been named.

Q. How long did you remain stationed at Fort Logan?

A. About three years and a half.

Q. And you knew Minnie there?

A. I saw her there, yes, sir, occasionally; not very often.

Q. Did you know much of her there? A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Grodevant, would you be able to identify or to state whether this plat represents a correct plat of the location of your brother's home with relation to the Military prison at Fort Leavenworth as it existed in 1884-5?

A. I think I would if it were correctly drawn. That is about the way it was when I lived there.

The Court: Fort Leavenworth or Fort Logan?

A. Fort Leavenworth.

The Court: What bearing has that on the case?

Mr. German: None, right now, Your Honor. I will offer it for the future.

The Court: You do not introduce it now?

Mr. German: We do not.

Q. The court reporter has marked this Exhibit A-79, state whether it represents approximately the relative location of the buildings as located there?

A. Yes, sir, when I lived there.

Q. Who lived near your brother?

A. Collins, and Southman, and the Clarks.

A. Did you know William Jackson? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he live near there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Henry Jackson? A. Yes sir.

Q. Are their residences correctly set forth on this plat?

A. Yes sir.

Q. The location of them?

A. As I remember them, yes sir.

Q. Mr. Grodevant, I show you a photograph of resident; do you recognize that? A. I do.

Q. Whose residence is that?

A. That is the front porch of my brother's residence.

Mr. Hanford: The way it was then or the way it is now?

A. I don't know how it is now; I haven't been there in 20 years.

Mr. German: I ask that that be marked as exhibit A-80.

Mr. Hanford: Does this purport to be a photograph of the residence the way it is now, or the way it was then?

Mr. German: I don't know; now, I guess.

Mr. Hanford: Was it the same way then?

A. Yes sir, that dorman was put on while I was there.

Q. Now, I show you another photograph which has been marked A 81, I will ask you to examine that and state if you recognize the buildings in that.

A. I recognize portion of it but it has been altered since I saw it.

Q. Altered? A. Yes sir.

Q. From the portions which you recognize, state what building it is.

A. That is a part of my brother's residence, or one similar to it.

Q. This is which part?

A. The kitchen portion; had one window in the back.

Q. You recognize that? A. That portion.

Q. And the porch?

A. No, sir, the porch is different from what it eas when my brother lived there.

Q. What is the difference, Mr. Grodevant, in that respect?

A. This porch was not covered at the left; when I lived there it was just a stairs and platform.

Q. What we call the steps? A. That is all.

Q. And the platform—the floor, in other words?

A. Yes, sir; that dormant window was not on.

Q. The one on the left hand side of the picture?

A. No, sir, and this porch is different.

Q. On the right hand side of the picture? A. Yes sir.

Q. Was there a porch on there?

A. Yes sir, I should say by memory, about eight steps of this incline down here.

Q. In the rear of the house? A. Yes sir.

Q. There was a porch on both the right hand side and the left hand side of the rear?

A. Of the original house, yes sir.

Q. But it was not covered like those porches were?

A. No sir.

The Court; I assume this will become material.

Mr. German: It will become material.

And thereupon cour- takes a recess until 9:30 o'clock A. M.

And thereafter, on May 4, 1917, the Court reconvened at ten o'clock, A. M., pursuant to adjournment, and the following proceedings were had.

And thereupon, FRANK J. GRODEVANT was recalled for further direct examination and testified as follows:

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Grodevant, you spoke of some repairs being made on the residence of your brother while Minnie was with him there? A. Yes sir.

Q. Do you know what time, during the time she was working there that occurred?

A. I think it was in the spring of 1885.

Q. You think it was in the spring? A. Yes sir.

Q. Where did Minnie, what part of the house was she permitted to use as her private room?

A. She lived in the second story of the house.

Q. Second story?

A. Yes, sir, it was a half story, it was not as high as the main part, the part she lived in.

Q. How is that?

A. The part she had her room in was not as high as the main part of the house.

Q. Was it in the rear? A. On the south side.

Q. Which way did this house face?

A. This house faced west.

Q. Was it a two story house? A. Just one portion.

Q. One portion? A. Yes sir.

Q. The room she occupied was the part of the second story? A. It was the attic of the lower part.

Q. A portion of the house was two story and a portion was a story and a half?

A Yes, sir, it was unfinished at the time she first occupied it.

Q. Was it finished during the period of her working there?

A. I think it was in the second summer, 1885.

Q. Did you know a banker there known as George H. Hyde living in Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sri, I had one transaction with him.

Q. What bank was he connected with?

A. Well, I don't recollect.

Q. Was it the German National Bank?

A. I think it was, yes, sir.

Q. Did you know where Minnie worked before she came to work for your brother? A. Well, I always understood——

Mr. Stuart: Well, we object to that.

The Court: Yes, what you understood you are not permitted to state.

A. It is only hearsay.

Q. Where did you get the information you had on the subject of where she worked before she came to your brother's? A. My sister-in-law said——

The Court: It don't make any difference where he got the information, he couldn't state now.

Mr. German: We offer to prove by the witness that within a week before Minnie came to work for the Grodevant's, Mrs. Grodevant stated to the witness that she was in the employ of George H. Hyle.

The Court: That is, Mrs. Grodevant stated to him?

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir.

The Court: Clearly hearsay absolutely.

Mr. German: We except.

The Court: Exception noted.

Q. Mr. Grodevant, you stated that you knew Minnie at Fort Logan? A. I saw her there, yes, sir.

Q. After you had left Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know of her having any children there?

A. When I first saw her she was wheeling a baby.

Q. Wheeling a baby? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what became of that child?

A. I don't know what became of that particular child.

Q. Do you know of her having—of a child of hers having died there? A. Yes, sir, I always understood so.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, we object.

The Court: Well, this man's understanding isn't competent. We are now going back a good many years, and if we add to the lapse of time the matter of hearsay.

Q. Who was the first person buried in the Post Cemetery at Fort Logan—— Do you know who was the first person buried at Fort Logan Cemetery?

A. I don't know definitely, it is only hearsay.

Q. Were you there at the time?

A. I was at Fort Logan at the time, yes, sir.

Q. Was there any particular comment growing out of the fact of that burial? A. No, sir, not that I know of, no, sir.

Q. Have you seen this Minnie Atkins recently?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where? A. I saw her at the Severs Hotel.

Q. When? A. Saw her Monday morning.

Q. Did you have any conversation with her? A. I did.

Q. State whether or not she, in the conversation, said anything about your brother and his wife?

A. She asked how they were.

Q. Did she call their names?

A. Well, she called them by Mr. and Mrs. Grodevant.

Mr. German: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Did you go up to her at any time here to find out what she knew about this case? A. No, sir, Judge.

Q. Did you say, what you said was a mere social conversation amounting to only a few seconds, wasn't it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Grodevant, where did your mother live during the year 1885? A. Well, I don't know——

Q. Can't you tell where your mother lived in 1885?

A. She didn't have any definite residence.

Q. Well, where was she staying then?

A. She came there and visited me some.

Q. Didn't she stay in Topeka during 1885?

A. My mother?

Q. Yes? A. Step-mother?

Q. Yes? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Where did she stay?

A. I don't believe she was ever in Topeka.

Q. What was your step-mother's name.

A. Mary C. Grodevant.

Q. Mary J. Grodevant? A. No, sir, Mary C.

Q. She was left a widow when your father died in 1885?

A. Yes, sir, in Syracuse, New York.

Q. And during the year 1886 and 1885, didn't she live in Topeka with a son by a former marriage?

A. Not to my knowledge, no, sir.

Q. Well, do you know? A. No, sir.

Q. You don't know. Don't you know that your brother, Frank, visited her frequently during the year 1885?

A. My name is Frank.

Q. That you frequently visited her during the year 1885 in Topeka for two or three days at a time? A. No, sir.

Q. Just recall that now, didn't you visit your mother during the summer of 1885? A. May I make a remark?

Q. Yes, certainly, make any explanation you choose?

A. Before my father died I recall my father and mother were in Topeka before my father died; father and mother came west and they went to Topeka.

Q. This house that you spoke of there had a living room, bed room, dining room, and kitchen down stairs? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And two bed rooms and an unfinished room in the attic? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Minnie lived in the unfinished room? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, that unfinished room wasn't completed until after the fiscal year in 1885, was it now then, that is after July? A. Yes, after July.

Q. After July when it was completed? A. After July.

Q. So, that the room had the gable end of it unfinished until July, didn't it, it wasn't a complete room until July?

A. They only put dormers in, Judge.

Q. I say it wasn't a complete room until July?

A. I think not.

Q. Now, Minnie lived in that room for a little while during the winter of 1885? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There wasn't any fire there? A. No, sir.

Q. Cold winter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she left there frequently at night and staaid away on account of the cold, didn't she?

A. Well, I don't know as to her going away, Judge.

Q. Now, do you know whether she went away or not?

A. No, sir.

Q. You do know that there was no fire there?

A. I know that Judge.

Q. And you know that that room was exposed to the weather? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You can't say to the Court whether she was away during the night time or not? A. No, sir, I cannot, Judge.

Q. The truth is, Mr. Grodevant, that you were away during all of the day, wasn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You got your breakfast at eight o'clock in the morning and went away and staid the whole day?

A. I had my breakfast before eight o'clock.

Q. And you went out and did your days work and came back at night and went to bed to sleep? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had no particular knowledge of this girl at all, did you? A. No sir, I didn't, Judge.

Q. You just saw her about the house occasionally, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Paid no particular attention to her? A. No sir.

Q. You weren't looking to see whether she was pregnant or not, were you? A. No sir.

Q. It didn't enter your head, did it? A. No sir, did not.

Q. And therefore, when you state that she didn't appear, you mean that you didn't see anything at the infrequent times that you saw her that suggested it to you?

A. No sir, I did not.

Q. That is what you mean exactly? A. Yes sir.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, you heard Mrs. Grodevant complaining at her frequently about staying out late at night, didn't you? A. Yes, sir, I heard that.

Q. Staying out late at night? A. Yes sir.

Mr. German: I object to that as hearsay.

The Court: The question was whether he heard Mrs. Grodevant complaining to Minnie about her staying out late at night. I think that is proper cross examination of this witness, with relation to Minnie staying there, her conduct, and all that sort of thing; I think that is competent, I don't think that is hearsay. That is a circumstance in regard to Minnie's living there.

Mr. German: If I didn't misunderstand the witness, he stated Mrs. Grodevant said she staid out late at night.

The Court: Did you ever hear Mrs. Grodevant complaining to Minnie about staying out late at night?

A. No, not to Minnie. I heard her complaining in my presence.

The Court: The answer will be stricken.

A. I never heard her upbraiding Minnie for anything.

Q. Minnie used to wear a red dress, didn't she?

A. Yes sir, a polka-dot dress.

Q. And Minnie had her hair braided down her back? You remember that, don't you? A. Yes sir, I do.

Q. Mr. Grodevant, she was a simple, childish girl, wasn't she? A. Yes, she was.

Q. You just her to have the mind of a child, didn't you?

A. It wasn't a very braod mind?

Q. And you had noticed her with that polka-dot dress on and black hair down her back? A. Yes sir.

Q. Did you ever hear Mrs. Grodevant ever speak to her about being too intimate with soldiers? A. No sir.

Q. Now, you don't know, Mr. Grodevant, whether Minnie was away a week or ten days, or two weeks at a time, di you?

A. I don't recall it at all.

Q. She might have been away two weeks, and you not know it—or three weeks and you not know it?

A. Yes, sir. Only one thing that led me to think that she might have been.

Q. What is that? A. That book.

Q. That is what we want to talk about now.

A. I hadn't seen that book until yesterday.

Q. Now, you say this is your brother's handwriting?

A. Yes sir.

Q. This is the book they introduced? A. Yes sir.

Q. Now, that book shows, Mr. Grodevant, that on June 2nd, Minnie Atkins was paid one doller, doesn't it?

A. I can't remember that.

Q. I will have to identify it. June 2nd shows Minnie Atkins was paid a dollar, doesn't it? A. Yes sir.

Q. June 2nd. Now, we will turn over here further, on July 14th, we find that Maggie was paid five dollars, and a dollar and a half, and it is carried out to five dollars; he evidently made a mistake about the five or a mistake about carrying out; it would either be six and a half or a dollar and a half remitted?

A. Something was wrong there.

Q. Something was wrong there. Who was that Maggie?

A. Maggie Curry.

Q. Maggie Curry? A. Yes sir.

Q. Now, Maggie Curry did work for your brother? About that time, didn't she? A. Yes sir, Maggie worked there.

Q. Now, this book shows that Maggie got five dollars, don't it? A. Yes sir.

Q. During the month of June? A. During June.

Q. From June 2nd to June 14th, don't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, there is no other entry there for Minnie until July 1st, is there? A. No sir.

Q. And on July 1st Minnie got ten dollars, didn't she? A. Yes sir.

Q. Now, if she got two dollars and a half a week, that made ten dollars a month, don't it? A. Yes sir.

Q. The book shows, however, that five dollars was paid in July? A. Yes sir.

Q. That means in your judgment that he advanced her five dollars in July? A. Yes sir.

Q. Advanced her five dollars for July? A. Yes sir.

Q. So that meant that she didn't get any pay until between the 2nd and the middle of June, didn't it?

Mr. German: I object to that.

Mr. Stuart: Well, Your Honor——

The Court: The book itself probably will speak as to what is there, with such explanations as he may properly give as to the manner in which it was kept.

Mr. Stuart: I thought Your Honor preferred that I explain the book as I went on.

The Court: That is alright for you to explain it, but if you are arguing now what the book shows, we will have the—we will leave the witness out of it.

Mr. Stuart: I am not trying to explain it myself but asking if the book shows that.

The Court: If that is on the book, the book will show it.

Q. This book shows that Minnie didn't get any money in June except on June 2nd, don't it?

Mr. German: Well, we——

Mr. Stuart: Read the book, then.

The Court: Let him answer.

Q. Have you studied this book?

A. My niece sent me a copy of the payments that were made in this book after I discovered it.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read)

The Court: Do you know whether the book shows that or not? ,

A. I don't; I said I don't recall.

The Court: Well, frame your question again; so far as what the book shows, of course the book itself is the best evidence.

Mr. Stuart: I was trying to explain it for the benefit of the Court.

Q. Now, the book does show, does it, that Minnie received a dollar on the 2nd day of June? The book shows that? A. Yes sir, the book shows it.

Q. And the book shows that she received ten dollars on the first of July—I believe in July, early in July—ten dollars? A. Yes sir.

Q. And the book shows that five dollars of that was for July? A. I so understood it.

Q. So, the only entries on the book, then, are June 2nd, a payment to Minnie, and the next entry on the book is a July payment? A. Yes sir.

Mr. German: You mean to say so far as that month is concerned?

Mr. Stuart: I mean so far as this book is concerned.

The Court: Well, the book will show for itself as to later payments. I understand, now, he is interrogating in regard to that particular payment in June and early July?

Mr. Stuart: That is it, Your Honor.

Q. Now, Mr. Grodevant, you knoew Maggie Curry about like you knew Minnie Atkins?

A. About like the same, yes sir.

Q. Knew a girl was there? A. She lived next door.

Q. You don't know how long she worked there?

A. No, I don't.

Q. You know that she did work there in the summer of '85? A. Yes sir.

Q. Now, Minnie's duties about the house were simply to do help do the washing and housecleaning?

A. Yes, sir, and general work.

Q. She was not much of a cook? A. No sir.

Q. And Mrs. Grodevant had to do most of the cooking? A. Yes sir.

Q. There were only three of you in the family, weren't there? A. Yes sir, that is all.

Q. Yourself and brother and his wife? A. Yes sir.

Q. And your brother's wife was a very domestic woman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She baked her own bread, didn't she? A. Yes sir.

Q. And Minnie's work was generally outside of the dining room? A. Yes sir.

Q. It was only occasionally that you would see her in the dining room? A. Only occasionally, yes sir.

Q. Maggie Curry did exactly the same kind of work that she did, didn't she?

A. Yes, sir. I don't think Maggie Curry did any washing.

Q. But the other work was about the same. A. Yes sir.

Q. Now, during that time, your brother frequently got parole men to come to the house to work, didn't he?

A. Yes sir.

Q. And off and on, he had them do what work they could do around the house? Helping around there? A. Yes sir.

Q. That is true, isn't it? A. Yes sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Grodevant, in this book, under October 31, 1885, I call your attention to the entry to which I point. That shows that Maggie Curry was paid six dollars on that date?

A. Yes, sir, the 31st of October.

Q. That was in your brother's handwriting?

A. It is, yes sir.

Q. And reads, Maggie Curry, six dollars; and on December 7th, 1885, there is an entry Maggie Curry, two dollars and a half? A. Yes sir.

Q. That is in your brother's handwriting? A. Yes sir.

Q. You so identify it? A. I do.

Q. And it shows that she was paid two dollars and a half on that date? A. Yes sir.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Grodevant, you say Maggie Curry worked there some? A. Yes sir.

Q. Was she a white girl? A. Yes sir.

Q. And where did she live? A. She lived next door.

Q. Next door? A. Yes sir, in the next house.

Q. In the next house? A. Yes sir.

Q. Can you tell—could you tell, you say you don't know just how much she worked there, could you tell by reference to that book, to refresh your memory, as to payments made to her, and how much she did work there? How often and when?

A. I can't from that book, but as I recollect, she came there at different times.

Q. Yes sir?

A. You see, she lived next door, and when Mrs. Grodevant was ill, or anything, she would get Maggie to come and assist in doing the work about the house. But at one time, I don't recollect when, she was there for a number of weeks.

Q. Outside of that one time, did she ever work there regularly? A. I don't think so.

Q. Do you recall her and Minnie being in the house at the same time? A. No, I don't.

Q. You don't remember whether they were or not?

A. No sir.

Q. You spoke a moment ago of parole men doing the work around the house, under Judge Stuart's cross examination. What sort of work would they do?

A. Oh, they would cut wood, or bring in coal and sweep the walks.

Q. That book of your brother's shows a payment to Lettie, now and then. Who was Lettie?

A. That was Mrs. Grodevant.

Q. Mrs. Grodevant? A. Yes sir.

Q. Can you refer to that book, look through the different items of expense as recorded there by your brother and tell the name of every person who was a servant who appears on there? A. I don't think I could.

Q. You knew Maggie Curry. A. Yes sir.

Q. And knew the work she did in the home was that of a servant? A. Yes sir.

Q. As to Minnie, the work she did was as a servant?

A. Yes sir.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: We offer the deposition taken before Mr. Penick, of Margaret Mortion, appearing in the transcript, beginning at page 599.

And thereupon MARGARET MORTON, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Please state your name, age and place of residence.

A. Margaret Morton; age 41; 901 East 12th street, Kansas City, Missouri.

Q. What was your maiden name.

A. Margaret Diffley.

Q. After the death of your father, was your mother married to any one else? A. Yes sir.

Q. Whom? A. Charles Woods.

Q. Where were you living in 1884 and 1885?

A. Fort Leavenworth.

Q. And 1886? A. Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. Did you know Minnie Atkins, or Indian Minnie, or Minnie Peterkin? A. Yes.

Q. In 1880? A. Yes, I knew her in 1885.

Q. Where was she when you first became acquainted with her? A. Fort Leavenworth.

Q. For whom was she working if you know, when you first saw her?

A. She worked for Lieut. Stafford at Fort Leavenworth, and she worked at Grodevant's.

Q. Did you know her when she worked for the Grodevant's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you know her before she went to work for Stafford's?

A. Well, I don't know just exactly how long it was but I know Stafford's was the last place she worked; she left there and came to my mother's house—rented some rooms there.

Q. What name did she go by when she came to your home?

A. Minnie Peterkins.

Q. Was anybody living with her as her husband at that time? A. Her husband, Charles Peterkins.

Q. What year was that? A. That was in '86.

Q. How long did she live at your—did they live at your home?

A. Well, she lived there, I think, three months—two or three months, something like that.

Q. State if you know whether or not during the time that she lived at your home, and at your home she gave birth to a child?

A. Yes, sir, she gave birth to a baby boy there, the latter part of July of 1886.

Q. Was that child born at your home? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you at home when the child was born?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What became of that child? A. It died.

Q. Did you know how long it lived?

A. No, I am not positive, but I think it lived to be about four or six weeks old, something like that—probably longer but I am not positive.

Q. Do you know the name of the child?

A. No, not exactly; I think it was Robert Lee, if I am not mistaken.

Q. Where was this child buried, if you know?

A. It was buried in Mt. Muncie.

Q. Do you know whether or not this child was christened?

A. Yes, it was christened just a few hours before it died.

Q. By whom? A. By Father Kelley.

Q. How long did Minnie live at your home after the death of this child?

A. Well, I am not positive but I think it was just a month or two; I know it was no longer than two months, if it was that long.

Q. Do you know where she then went to?

A. Why then, she was getting ready to go to a Fort in Colorado but she just didn't leave our house and go there. I think she went from our house and stayed with a family on 7th street and Kiowa, or Dakota.

Q. Do you know the names of those people?

A. I think it was Hamilton—some friends of her's.

Q. Where was this child christened?

A. Right at the house.

Q. Were you at home at the time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you stated that was just a little while before the death of the child? A. Yes.

Q. Who else was there besides you at the time that the child was born?

A. Well, of course my mother was with her; I was in the other room when the child was born, of course. They came and woke my mother up and she went in there, and took care of her in the night.

Q. Do you know whether any one else was there?

A. Just my mother and the Doctor was all.

Q. What Doctor? A. Dr. Carpenter.

Q. Who was present besides you when the child was christened?

A. Why, my mother, and Minnie—the mother of the child, and my sister and myself, and the lady who stood for her, Mrs. Walker.

Q. Is Mrs. Walker living now? A. No, sir.

Q. Is your mother living now? A. No, sir.

Q. Was Mr. Woods living at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Your sister's name? A. At that time was Mary Diffly.

Q. What is her name now? A. Mary Allen.

Q. Where does she live? A. Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. Did you ever know of Minnie giving birth to any other child during the time—or at any time?

A. No, sir, I do not.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mrs. Morton, when were you born?

A. In 1874, at Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. In Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then in 1886, you were 12 years old, is that right?

A. Well, I was 12 years old.

Q. What month in 1874 were you born?

A. 24th of January.

Q. January '74? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You said that you worked at Fort Leavenworth?

A. No, sir, I didn't work there. I lived there with my parents.

Q. Where did you live in the Fort?

A. Well, right back of the Prison—the building os torn down now.

Q. Was that prior to your mother's marriage to Mr. Woods?

A. Yes, sir, she was married when she moved there.

Q. And you didn't work out at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. A child of 11 years old? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know Minnie Atkins at that time, or did you just see her about?

A. No, I knew her.

Q. You knew her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Talk with her? A. Yes.

Q. Did you go with her? A. No.

Q. You said that child lived four or six weeks?

A. I say I should judge it was about four or six weeks old when it died—it might have been older or it might have been younger—that is the best of my knowledge.

Q. You saw the child about the house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Minnie nurse it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The child was a good deal of care was it not?

A. Why, it was sick, I think, almost from the start; I am not positive but I think it was.

Q. That is, it wasn't a healthy child? A. No.

Q. It was sickly and troublesome?

A. Yes, I remember hearing it cry a lot.

Q. It gave Minnie a good deal of care, and your mother, perhaps too, did it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You said that Dr. Carpenter—. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was the Doctor? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have testified before in this matter—that is on the Receivership hearing? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At Muskogee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time you stated that Dr. Griffith was the Dr. that attended Minnie? A. No, Dr. Carpenter.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mrs. Morton, that you were asked was there a Doctor, and you answered yes, sir, and then you were asked what Doctor, and you answered, if I am not mistaken his name was Dr. Griffith?

A. No, sir, I didn't.

Q. Then if the record of that hearing shows those questions and answers, the record is wrong, is that so?

A. Why yes, because it must have been a misunderstanding. I never knew any one in Leavenworth by the name of Dr. Griffith. I remember they asked my mother about a Doctor, and she referred them to Dr. Carpenter.

Q. And you remembered that at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mrs. Morton, that your recollection has been refreshed? A. No, sir, I don't think so.

Q. Since that time? A. No, sir.

Q. After the child was born at your house, Minnie herself was sick for some time, was she not?

A. Why, no, I don't know that she was — outside of the confinement of the child.

Q. How long was Minnie in bed?

A. Well, I can't say that I know; she was up and around when the child died.

Q. She went to the funeral when the child was buried?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. She was attended by another woman, was she not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was a woman that lived next door to you?

A. No.

Q. By who?

A. She lived about a block and a half, I guess, from our place.

Q. Who was that?

A. Mrs. Harter, I think they pronounced it; I don't know whether it was Harder, or Harter.

Q. She assisted Minnie to get ready to attend that funeral, did she not?

A. Well, I don't know about that; she took care of her and the child at the confinement. She wanted my mother and my mother told her she was going away, and she would have to get somebody else. Of course, my mother would have taken care of her in the meantime, if it happened before, but my mother had the day set to go away and she told her she would have to get somebody else, and she didn't, and she had taken sick in the night, and they came in for my mother and she went in and she had taken care of her that night and the next day, and she got this Mrs. Harter.

Q. They went to the funeral in a carriage? A. Yes.

Q. That was Minnie's first attempt to get out after the child was born, was it not?

A. Well, I am not positive about that but I rather think it was. Of course, she might have been next door to the grocery store, something like that.

Q. But you don't recall?

A. I don't remember her going anywhere, no.

Q. She spent her time in the house, recovering from the affects of the child birth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And taking care of the child herself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did this woman that you speak of, assist in nursing the child through its illness? A. That is Mrs. Harter?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, she was back and forth there; I don't think she paid much attention to the child, but she was back and forth there but she took -are of Minnie and stayed until she got up.

Q. They made no attempt to take the child about? A. No.

Q. Until it died? A. No.

Q. Where did you first live, Mrs. Morton, after you came to Leavenworth from the Fort?

A. I lived on North Eighth street; I think the house address was 816, or 815, I am not sure now.

Q. You went to live at the same house where this child was born? A. Yes, sir, it was at my mother's house.

Q. Is that in the locality called a suburb of Fort Leavenworth—called Cincinnati District?

A. In Fort Leavenworth, but I think that place that we lived——

Q. I mean where you lived. A. Yes, I think so.

Q. You state that after Minnie left your house, she went to a family called Hamilton?

A. She either went there and stayed after she left our place, or either went to Fort Leavenworth and stayed; it seems as though she wasn't well.

Q. Then you don't know that she went to the Hamilton's?

A. No, I am not positive of it.

Q. Why, do you state then, that she did go to the Hamilton's?

A. Why, I thought she did, but I am not positive she went to the Hamilton's first after she left our place.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mrs. Morton, that she found employment in the city of Leavenworth, in the town of Leavenworth?

A. I know she worked some place, as I said, after she left our place.

Q. Then you didn't keep any track of her after she left?

A. No, I know she came to our house; she was back there several times after she left our place.

Q. Was your sister at hom- at the time this child was born?

A. No, sir, she was not in Leavenworth.

Q. She was not in Leavenworth? A. No, sir.

Q. And she didn't know about it?

A. No, she didn't know about the birth of the child.

Q. Where was she? A. At Muscotah, Kansas.

Q. Muscotah? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is Mrs. Allen that you speak of? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She is older than yourself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you told by anyone Mrs. Morton, since this matter came up, that Minnie went to the Hamilton's? A. No, sir.

Q. That was, then, sort of a case of conjecture on your part?

A. Well, as to my recollection, she knew the Hamiltons; I say she went there after she left our place or after she went to work, and couldn't stand the work—or something—but I know she stopped there before she went to Colorado.

Q. Isn't it your recollection, Mrs. Morton, that Minnie left your house and attempted to work out in Leavenworth, and did work for a family in Leavenworth for a while and then found that she couldn't stand the work, and then went to the Hamilton's?

Mr. German: I object to that question unless he names the family.

A. Why, I knew she went to work but I don't know whether it was before she went to the Hamilton's, or after she went to the Hamilton's, but I know she did work there in Leavenworth before she went to Colorado, and that it seems to me to the best of my knowledge, she was sick and went there and stayed until she went away; of course, she might have went to the Hamilton's.

Q. Did you ever hear of Minnie working for a Jew family in Leavenworth?

Mr. Allen: We object to that unless he names the family.

A. It was a Jew family, I think, that she went to work for.

Q. Did you ever hear of the name Hirshfield?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Isn't that the family that she worked for?

A. I think so.

Q. And she did work there for a while until she found she couldn't work? A. Yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Mrs. Morton, what was your maiden name?

A. Margaret Diffly.

Q. Spell the last. A. D-i-f-f-l-e-y .

Q. What is your husband's name? A. John R. Morton.

Q. When were you married to him? A. In 1888.

Q. In 1888? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you living with him now? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are you doing, what business or occupation, if any, do you— A. We are in the hotel business.

Q. You are in the hotel business? A. Yes.

Q. What hotel? A. We have the Eastman hotel.

Q. Eastman Hotel? A. East 12th street.

Q. Eastman hotel, on East 12th? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What number on East 12th? A. 901.

Q. You are now 44 years old? A. No, sir.

Q. How old are you? A. 41.

Q. 41? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were born in 1872? A. '74.

Q. In January, 1874? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And this is February, 1916? A. Yes.

Q. And you are 41? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then in 1884, you were 11 years of age, or in 1885, or '86—1886 you were 11 years of age, is that right? A. No, sir.

Q. You were 12, then? A. I was 10, wasn't I?

Q. You were 10? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were 10 years of age when this child was born at your place? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How do you know what year it was born there?

A. Well, because I remember what year we moved down town, and I remember what year my step-father died in.

Q. It was the year you moved down town and the year step-father died?

A. No, sir, my step-father died in '85.

Q. What time in '85? A. November 22nd.

Q. Where were you living then? A. Fort Leavenworth.

Q. Now, the fact that your step-father died when you were living at Fort Leavenworth, enables you to fix the date that this child was born in '86?

A. Well, it was born, and we moved down to Leavenworth the next May—the following May.

Q. How long did you live down town?

A. Before the child was born, you mean?

Q. No, how long did you live there before you moved some where else?

A. Well, that was my mother's home; I don't know how long before we went to the Fort—I lived there until I was married.

Q. Lived there until you were married after moving from the Fort? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But the fact that you did move there in May, 1886——

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Fixes in your mind that the child was born in that year?

A. Why, I know it was.

Q. And that is the way you know it?

A. Yes, sir; we moved down in May and the child was born in July.

Q. Do you know what day in July?

A. Well, not exactly; it was the latter part of July.

Q. Don't you know it was the 31st day of July?

A. I am not positive about it.

Q. That is your best recollection? A. Yes.

Q. Your best recollection is the 31st, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. What hour of the day?

A. Well, I can't say that—between mid-night and morning sometime.

Q. Between mid-night and morning, the 31st day of July?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Or between mid-night and morning the 30th day of July? A. No, it was the 31st.

Q. And if it was after mid-night, it may have been the 1st of August, is that right?

A. No, the child was born—yes, between mid-night and morning of the 30th.

Q. Now, you remember that?

Mr. Allen: We object to that—the witness has stated.

Q. Is that right—do you remember that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It has been some 30 years ago, hasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who first notified you that Minnie was going to move to your house?

A. My mother; I was there when she came down and wanted the rooms.

Q. When Minnie came down? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Minnie came down and spoke to your mother in your presence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did she say?

A. Well, she just said that she wanted to rent the rooms, and my mother told her she didn't have any rooms to rent; she said they were ordered away and she didn't want to buy and furniture and she would like to come down and rent those rooms and stay there—I don't know what she said about it—but for a while, and she said my sister and mother were going home, and she wanted to rent the rooms, and she claims she didn't want to buy any furniture because they were going away.

Q. What else did she say?

A. I suppose she talked my mother into letting her have them.

Q. Your mother finally let her have them?

A. Yes, my mother let her have the rooms.

Q. Did she say anything about why she wanted the rooms —why she wanted—

A. I guess she was working at Fort Leavenworth and she couldn't stay there in her condition.

Q. I asked you what she said?

A. She said she wanted a place to stay?

Q. During confinement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She said that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your mother finally consented to let her stay there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was Mr. Peterkin with her?

A. No, sir, he wasn't with her that time at all.

Q. When did the conversation take place?

A. Just a few days before she came down to the house?

Q. You don't remember the date? A. No.

Q. That they had that conversation?

A. No, it must have been along in June sometime.

Q. June? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She stayed at your place then—

A. She was there a month about—three or four weeks before the child was born.

Q. Three or four weeks before the child was born?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say you had known Minnie at that time for several months? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long had you known her?

A. I knew Minnie since '85.

Q. What time in '85?

A. Well, I think it was in the fall.

Q. What date in the fall, or month?

A. I can't tell you that?

Q. Don't you remember the day and month? A. No.

Q. Where was she living when you first got acquainted with her?

A. Why, she came up there in the building where we were living, that is where I first seen her.

Q. Came up to rent the building, you say?

A. Why no; she had a position and was working, but she knew some folks up there—or something—and she came up there to see those folks.

Q. Just to visit? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember who it was she came to visit?

A. No, I don't; several families were living there—she might have come to look at the rooms, for all I know.

Q. What was that building that you were living in?

A. Just a big building where the employes of the Fort lived.

Q. Sort of a boarding-house?

A. Yes, boarding-house underneath and rooms up stairs.

Q. What do you say it was named by at that time—what was it called?

A. I think it was called the Murphy Mess.

Q. Whose? A. Murphy.

Q. The Murphy Mess? A. Yes.

Q. And civilians working at the Fort would stay there?

A. Yes.

Q. What was your mother staying there for?

A. They lived there; my father was employed at the Fort, and they had rooms there.

Q. Your step-father? A. Yes.

Q. Employed at the Fort? A. Yes.

Q. And as a civilian, he was living in this boarding-house?

A. Yes.

Q. How long had you been living there, when you first met Minnie?

A. Well, we lived there from May until—course, as I say, I don't know what month I met her in at all; we moved up there in May.

Q. May of '85? A. May of '84.

Q. And you think you lived there a year before you met her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, why do you say it was in the fall of '85?

A. Because I remember it was.

Q. You have a distinct remembrance? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That it was in the fall of '85? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What do you mean by fall—what months do you include in the fall?

A. Well, it was after my father died—he died in November—and I guess this was along in December when I first met Minnie, or either the latter part of November.

Q. You met her after your father's death? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The latter part of November, or December, you think now? A. Yes, I think so.

Q. How did you happen to meet her? Did she come in and ask any of your family for rooms?

A. Well, I can't say that; I don't know. She was in the building—I don't know how.

Q. You actually met her, or merely saw her?

A. It was a kind of curiosity among us children, to tell you the truth, because she was an Indian.

Q. You saw her—were you introduced to her?

A. My mother was.

Q. At that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did she show Indian? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Very marked, wasn't it?

A. Yes, sir, we could tell she was Indian.

Q. Very black? A. No, she wasn't so black.

Q. But she showed that she was an Indian?

A. Oh, yes, sir.

Q. Now, from that time on, did you see her up until she came to your house, as you say, in June or July? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You saw her at occasional intervals?

A. I would see her occasionally, yes sir.

Q. When she came up there, did she say anything about she and her husband wanting to move over there?

A. Not at that time.

Mr. Allen: We object to that as repetition of the former question.

Q. What was the answer?

A. Not at that time, I don't think she did; didn't come to see about the rooms until we went down town.

Q. I am not talking about down town, I am talking about when she came to the Mess room.

A. No.

Q. Say anything about she and her husband wanting rooms? A. No.

Q. What did she say, then, about her husband, if anything? A. Nothing that I know of.

Q. She introduced herself as Minnie Peterkin?

A. I don't know how they met.

Q. Did you learn her name was Peterkin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you learn that she was married and living with a man when you first met her?

A. No, not when I first met her.

Q. When you first met her in November or December, she was Minnie Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first find that she was Minnie Peterkin?

A. When she came down to our house, that was the first time I knew about her.

Q. The first time? A. Yes.

Q. Did anybody tell you she was Minnie Atkins, or know that she was just going by that name around the Fort?

A. That was the name she went by—Minnie Atkins.

Q. Minnie Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear her called by any other name until she came to your residence to inquire about the room?

A. No, sir.

Q. She came down and told your mother her name was Minnie Peterkin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your mother knew less than nine months previous to that her name was Minnie Atkins, didn't she?

A. Well, I don't know when she married, or anything about her, or when she'd taken up this name.

Q. You met her frequently after you first met her?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she was always known as Minnie Atkins?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your mother knew her as Minnie Atkins?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your mother let her come in in July under the name of Peterkin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And have the child? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In your mother's house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What day was it baptized?

A. It was baptized the same day it died.

Q. Well, what day did it die then?

A. In August, sometime, I can't tell you the day.

Q. Don't you know the day? A. No, sir, I don't.

Q. Only one day that you know, is that the child was born the 31st day of July, 1896? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the only one? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did your father die—step-father?

A. Step-father?

Q. Step-father?

A. November, 1885—22nd of November.

Q. Where were you living at that time?

A. Fort Leavenworth.

Q. And you stayed there until the following May?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it was after your father died that you met Minnie?

A. Yes, sir.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Mrs. Morton, you stated a while ago in answer to Mr.—you answered yes, to the question of Mr. Blakeney, in which he asked you if it was July 31st, 1896 that this child was born.

Mr. Blakeney: 1886—let my question be changed.

A. 1886.

Q. When did your mother move from the Fort to the town of Leavenworth? A. In May of 1886.

Q. Was Dr. Carpenter your family physician?

A. No, he was not, but it seems as though my mother wanted him to doctor—my mother's doctor was Dr. Brock, and as far as I remember, Brock was Carpenter's partner, and they couldn't get Brock and got Carpenter.

Q. Was Mrs. Allen at the christening and death of the baby? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What year did you say you were born in? A. 1874.

Q. What month?

A. January 24th—the 24th day of January.

Q. Then you 42 the 24th of January this year.

A. 41, I think; maybe I am more than what I think.

Q. Mrs. Morton, this deposition has to be read to the court at Muskogee, and they will not be able to see the witness to ascertain the color, so I will ask you, are you a white woman?

A. Yes, sir.

Witness dismissed

Mr. German: I move to exclude from the room, Mr. Long, and Dennis Jones, if they are going to be used as witnesses in this, and I request the Examiner to exclude them. Mr. Frank Long, is the man I referred to.

Mr. Hanford: I would like to have the record show that no subpoena has been issued for Mr. Long—he is not under process to testify as a witness.

Mr. Stuart: Dennis Jones is an attorney at law, practicing in the court.

Mr. Blakeney: I would like to make the suggestion that counsel for the United States, has had the constant advice and assistance during the proceedings without objection of the representatives of Garfield Buell and others, and at least by agreement of parties, there has been no objection interposed to anybody that could render any material assistance to the attorneys examining the witnesses.

Mr. German: I desire to question the statement of counsel in reference to counsel for—

Mr. German: We offer the deposition of CHARLES PETERKIN, taken before Mr. Penick, appearing in his transcript, beginning at page 555.

CHARLES PETERKIN being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Mr. Peterkin, please state your name, age, and place of residence.

A. Charles Peterkin, age 56; residence 413 Highland Avenue, West Somerville.

Q. Have you any occupation at this time, Mr. Peterkin?

A. Yes, sir—waitin fo- pay-day.

Q. Are you a—

A. Retired soldier, United States Army.

Q. You are a retired soldier in the United States Army and draw pay as such? A. I do.

Q. How long did you serve in the United States Army and in what capacity?

A. From the 2nd day of April, 1881, to the 21st of April, 1908. Now, it may save you gentlemen a little trouble, we have an Army officer here—ex-Army officer—that may after a while spring this on me about my saying I had 30 years in the American Army but I have three years and four months double time coming to me. I am just doing this to save this to save trouble, like Mrs. Mohr when she her mother died six years before. I just say that for general information to save trouble.

Q. Mr. Peterkin, in 1885-'06, where were you stationed?

A. In Fort Assinboine, Montana, and Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. When did you go to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas?

A. I think in March '85.

Q. Were you at that time a private soldier? A. I was.

Q. With what company associated?

A. Company E, 18th, United States Infantry.

Q. When did you leave Fort Leavenworth?

A. In the fall of '87.

Q. During the time that you lived at Leavenworth, did you become acquainted with an Indian woman named Minnie Atkins? A. I did.

Q. Have you seen her recently?

A. Yes. What was it—February—February, last year.

Q. Where? A. Muskogee, Indian Territory.

Q. Was that at the time of the receivership hearing of this case? A. It was.

Q. Was that the same woman that you knew at Fort Leavenworth? A. It was.

Q. When did you first see Minnie Atkins to know who she was?

A. Well, in the Spring of '85, when I first saw her, she was working for Lieut. Stafford at Fort Leavenworth.

Q. How long after that was it when you met her formerly?

A. In the early part of '86.

Q. What month?

A. I am not sure but I think it was somewhere in January.

Q. From the time that you first saw her in 1885 until you met her formerly in 1886, do you know whether she was keeping company with any man?

A. Yes, she lived with a private of my Company by the name of Oliver.

Q. What was her physical appearance when you first saw her in 1885, as to being pregnant, or otherwise?

A. Well, soon after I became acquainted with her, I soon discovered that she was, I presume, about three or four months in the family way.

Q. That was when? A. In '86.

Q. I am speaking of the time when you first saw her in 1885.

A. Well, she was not in the family way then, as it was afterwards proved, because she had no children then. She was all the time living with Lieut. Stafford and working for him.

> Mr. Hanford: I move to strike the answer of the witness as not responsive to the question and based upon—and because it is hearsay and states a conclusion and opinion of the witness.

Q. What do you mean by afterwards proved, Mr. Peterkin?

> Mr. Hanford: I object to the question as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and as leading.

Q. That you may understand me, I mean this. Did you base that answer upon was shown in the trial in this case, or by your personal knowledge of Minnie Atjins from that time on?

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and leading.

A. My knowledge of her condition was by experience—living with her.

Q. About how frequently did you see her from the time——

> Mr. Hanford: I move to strike the answer on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and based upon hearsay, and states a conclusion of the witness.

Q. About how frequently did you see her from the time that you first saw her in 1885, until you commenced living with her in 1886?

A. Well, I should say five or six times a week.

Q. During any of thay time, did she have the appearance of being in the family way or of having given birth to a child?

Mr. Hanford: I object to the question on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. I am speaking now of 1885.

A. You want to know if I had any chance of knowing or thinking that she was in the family way?

Q. I am asking you as to her appearance in 1885.

A. Her appeaarance was the same as any woman when I first met her, or at least saw her, as a woman not in the family way.

Q. State whether or not she retained that appearance up to the time that you met her in January 1886.

A. She certainly did.

Q. Yo- spoke awhile ago of living with her. When did you commence to live with her?

A. The second day after Oliver's discharge.

Q. When and where was he discharged?

A. Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. About when?

A. I think it was in January 1886; of course I am certain about 1886, but the month I am not sure about.

Q. Had Oliver been going with her. A. Certainly.

Q. From the time you first saw her, to know who she was, until the time he left?

Mr. Hanford: I object to the question on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and states a conclusion of the witness and is leading.

A. He was.

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike the answer on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and states a conclusion of the witness, and hearsay.

Q. Do you know the given name of this man Oliver?

A. Patrick.

Q. Was that his name or his nick-name?

A. Well, I think it was Patrick; I am sure that was his official name.

Q. Did he serve in the same Company that you served in?

A. He did. He served 15 years in the Company of the 18th Infantry.

Q. To refresh your memory, was the man about whom you are testifying, William D. Oliver?

A. That is the name, yes sir,—Oliver—O-l-i-v-e-r.

Q. Oleo? A. Oliver—O-l-i-v-e-r—is his name.

Q. And was he not assigned to Company E, 18th Infantry?

A. He was.

Q. And you with Company E; [A.] I belonged to the same Company.

Q. Do you know where he was enlisted from?

A. No, at first?

Q. Yes. A. No, I can't tell.

Q. To refresh your memory, was he enlisted at Buffalo, N. Y.?

A. He might have been; he often talked about Buffalo, and he acted as though he was from Buffalo.

Q. What was his nationality? A. An American.

Q. When did he leave Fort Leavenworth with reference to his discharge?

> Mr. Hanford: I object to the question on the ground that it is imcompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. If you know. A. After his discharge?

Q. Yes. A. He left Fort Leavenworth that very day.

Q. If the records of the War Department show that he was discharged on December 18th, 1885, at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, then you say that on the following day is the day that you commenced living with Minnie?

A. I do.

> Mr. Hanford: I object to the question on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, leading and suggestive, and I move to strike the answer, the witness having answered before I had an opportunity to interpose my objection.

Q. What was the nationality of Oliver, if you know?

A. I think, American.

Q. Did you know him very well at Fort Leavenworth?

A. Certainly; I served from September '81 until the time of his discharge.

Q. How intimate were your associations?

A. Not very intimate.

Q. To refresh your memory, was he not an Englishman?

A. He might have been; that is, I think I can remember hearing him say that his parents were English.

Q. Do you know who Minnie worked for before she worked for Stafford?

A. Well, Minnie told me that she worked for the Post carpenter over at the Prison—what is his name?

Q. Was his name Grodevant?

A. Yes; I think for a short time she worked for the Commanding Officer of the Prison.

> Mr. Hanford: I move to strike the answer on the ground that it is hearsay.

Q. Do you know what his name was. A. Blunt, I think.

Q. Where did you and Minnie stay when you first commenced living with her?

A. At Staffords.

Q. Where with reference to the Stafford's house?

A. In her room.

Q. Was that in a servant's house?

A. No, it was in their kitchen.

Q. Kitchen?

A. Yes; she used it as a bed-room, also.

Q. What time would you go there and leave?

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. As a rule, immediately after Retreat, roll-call.

Q. What time would that be? A. Sunset.

Q. Would that be before or after the evening meal was served at the Stafford home?

> Mr. Hanford: I object as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. After, as a rule. I got mine, I know that—that isn't for you.

Q. How long did you continue to live with Minnie Atkins?

A. From, a*w* I told you before, the day after he was discharged until the Fall of '89.

Q. Where? A. At Fort Logan, Colorado.

Q. All of that time?

A. Except three months, I think, she was—I left her in Fort Leavenworth, but she joined me in Fort Logan, Colorado, in the Spring of '88.

Q. How long did you continue to live with her at Fort Leavenworth?

A. From the time, as I have said before, the day after Oliver was discharged until the Fall of '87, when I moved to Fort Logan, Colorado.

Q. How long was it after you had left Minnie Atkins and had gone to Fort Logan, was it that Minnie joined you at Fort Logan?

A. Now, I think I went to Fort Logan in November, and I think she joined me, maybe in the early part of March of '88.

Q. During all of the time that Minnie lived at Leavenworth, after you first saw her in 1885 until she joined you at Fort Logan, did she have any children?

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. If I understood the question, did she have any children before she joined me?

Q. Yes sir.

A. At least between the interval of the time I left her at Fort Leavenworth and when she joined me?

Q. No sir; I am directing your attention to the time, now, when you first saw her in 1885. From that time until the birth of Mabel Peterkin, at Fort Logan, had she had any other children?

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; that it is leading and suggestive, and calls for hearsay testimony.

A. She had one child.

> Mr. Hanford: I move to strike the answer of the witness for the same reason.

Q. When and where was that child born?

A. Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. Whn? A. In the summer of '86.

> Mr. Hanford: The same objection and motion to strike.

Q. About what month, Mr. Peterkin?

A. Either——

> Mr. Hanford: The same objections.

A. In July or August of '86.

Q. At whose home was that child born?

> Mr. Hanford: Same objection.

A. Mrs. Woods.

Q. Did it live or die. A. It died.

Q. At about what age? A. Less than a month, I think.

Q. Do you know where it was buried?

A. In Leavenworth, but I can't exactly say; can't mention the name of the cemetery.

Q. To refresh your memory, was it Mt. Muncie Cemetery. A. I think so.

> Mr. Hanford: I object to the question as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and leading and move to strike the answer of the witness which was made before the objection was fully stated.

Q. Are you a married man. A. Am I?

Q. Yes sir. A. Yes sir.

Q. How long have you been married?

A. Since September of 1901.

Q. Were either of you, or Patrick—or Oliver—married to Minnie Atkins?

Mr. Hanford: Objected on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. Neither one.

Mr. Hanford: And based upon hearsay.

Q. Did you ever talk to Minnie Atkins with reference to the father—with reference to who was the father of this child?

Mr. Hanford: Object on the ground that it is incompetent.

Q. That she had at the home of Mrs. Woods?

Mr. Hanford: Objected to because it is irrelevant and immaterial?

A. It was not necessary.

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike the answer of the witness as not responsive to the question.

Q. Had she associated with any other man besides this man Oliver, from the time that you first saw her in 1885 until you commenced living with her, after the discharge of Oliver?

Mr. Hanford: I object to the question on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; leading and suggestive, and calls for a hearsay testimony.

A. I don't think so.

Q. Would it have been possible for Minnie Atkins to have been pregnant during any of the time, beginning with the time when you first saw her in 1885, until you commenced living with her, without you knowing it or having observed it?

Mr. Hanford: I object to the question on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; calls for a conclusion and opinion of the witness; is leading and suggestive, and hearsay.

Q. I mean the pregnancy nearing childbirth.

A. It was possible because it was so.

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike.

Q. What do you mean by the last—by the answer, Mr. Peterkin?

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not proper direct examination.

A. I mean it proved for itself that she was in a family way.

Q. Did the birth of a child result from the pregnancy about which you are now testifying?

A. It did.

Q. Was that the child born at Mrs. Woods' home?

A. It was.

Q. In order that you may understand me, would it have[] possible for her to have been pregnant more than the one time about which you testify, at any time commencing with the time that you first saw her in 1885, and ending with the birth of the child at the home of Mrs. Woods, and you not have known of it?

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, calls for a conclusion of the witness, and opinion of th*w* witness, and is hearsay testimony, and *a*s suggestive.

A. Not very probable.

Q. Was she pregnant at any of those times except the time you have testified about?

> Mr. Hanford: Object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, calls for a conclusion and opinion of the witness and is hearsay testimony.

A. Not very likely for many reasons.

Q. Did she give birth to any child from the time you first knew her in 1885 until the birth of Mabel Peterkin at Fort Logan, other than the child born at Mrs. Woods?

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; calls for heresay testimony, and a conclusion of the witness.

A. None other.

> Mr. Hanford: Move to strike the answer of the witness for the same reason.

Q. Did you ever talk to Minnie about whether or not she had ever given birth to any other child before the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin, at the Woods' home?

A. No.

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent—strike the objection, I withdraw it.

Q. Did she show any signs when you first saw her in 1885, of ever having had any child?

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. No.

Q. Are you able to say from your experience with women whether or not this Robert Lee Peterkin, the child born at the home of Mrs. Woods, was her first child?

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. Yes, for many reasons.

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike the answer as not responsive to the question.

Q. Was it or not her first child?

Mr. Hanford: I object to the question on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, the witness being shown not qualified to testify in that regard.

A. I thought it was her first child for many reasons.

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike the answer as not responsive to the question.

Q. When was her next child born?

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. In the summer of '88.

Q. The summer of '88; what was the name of that child?

A. Mabel.

Q. Where was she born? A. Fort Logan, Colorado.

Q. Was that Mabel Peterkin. A. Yes.

Q. Did she have any other children before the time you left her at Fort Logan, Colorado?

A. The time that I left her at Fort Logan?

Q. After the birth or Mabel, did she have any other child before you left Fort Logan?

A. Two, I understand.

Mr. Hanford: I object to the question as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and hearsay.

Q. Were they born before or after you left Fort Logan?

A. After.

Q. All you know about that is what you have heard?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you send any money to Minnie Atkins after you left Fort Logan, for any purpose?

Mr. Hanford: Object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. I am sorry to say, yes.
Q. How much did you send her and for what purpose?
A. Forty-five dollars.

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and move to strike the answer which was stated before I had completed my objection.

Q. For what purpose?
A. To pay her fare to Fort Clark, Texas.
Q. Did she come to you—did she come to you to Fort——
A. She did not.
Q. At Fort Clark, Texas, then you went from Fort Logan to Fort Clark, Texas. A. Yes.
Q. When was that—about when? A. In the fall of'89.
Q. With what Company?
A. Company E, of the 18th Inganthy.
Q. Did Minnie Atkins ever tell you prior to the time of the birth of this child a. Mrs. Woods where she had worked before coming to the Fort?

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. Yes.

Q. With whom did she tell you she had worked?

Mr. Hanford: Object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, leading and suggestive.

A. Don't remember.
Q. Did she tell you for whom she first worked in Leavenworth.
A. I can't remember the name of the family but the man, I think, was a man employed in a bank at Leavenworth.
Q. Would you know the name if you would hear it?
A. Certainly would.
Q. To refresh your memory, was that name Hyde.
A. It was.
Q. Did she tell you where she went to from Hyde's?

Mr. Hanford: Object to on the ground that it is irrelevant, incompetent, and immaterial, and hearsay.

A. Yes sir, I understood her to say that she went from Hyde's to this carpenter's at the Military Prison at Fort Leavenworth.

Q. The man Grodevant about whom you testified a while ago? A. Yes.

Q. About when was it that she told you of this?

> Mr. Hanford: Object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. I presume the first week that I lived with her.

Q. In your first statement given in connection with this case, did you tell about Minnie having worked for Hyde?

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Q. And having left Hyde and gone to this carpenter at the Military Prison? A. Yes.

Q. With Minnie Atkins associate with members of the negro race during any of the time that you knew her?

> Mr. Hanford: Object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and calls for hearsay testimony.

A. No.

Q. Was she what is commonly known as a public character when you knew her?

A. Not by any means.

Q. When you knew her prior to the time you went to Fort Clark, Texas?

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; calling for hearsay testimony and a conclusion of the witness, and an improper question, and move to strike the naswer for the same reason.

Q. Other than this man Oliver and yourself, did you know of Minnie Atkins associating with any other man up to the time that you left Fort Logan?

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and calles for hearsay testimony, and conclusion, and opinion of the witness.

A. Yes, she lived with one man after I left her.

Q. I am speaking of up to the time that you left her at Fort Logan.

A. Yes, this girl that she named Mabel Peterkin, is a daughter of a man by the name Burke.

> Mr. Hanford: I move to strike the answer as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; not responsive to the question, and is hearsay.

Q. Who was Burke?

A. A private of M Troop, 6th United States Cavalry.

Q. Up to the time that you finally left her at Fort Logan, did you know of her association with any other man other than the three you have mentioned? A. No.

> Mr. Hanford: I object to the question as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and move to strike the answer for the same reason.

Q. Did she associate with any other men besides you three during those years?

> Mr. Hanford: Same objection.

A. I don't think so.

Q. Was Minnie Atkins a drinking woman during any the time that you knew her?

> Mr. Hanford: I object to the question on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; calls for a conclusion of the witness, and hearsay testimony, and is an improper question.

A. She was not.

Q. Did you know the Hamiltons at Leavenworth, Kansas? A. I did.

Q. When did you meet them with reference to the time that you commenced living with Minnie?

A. Minnie took me to their house.

Q. Was that before or after Robert Lee was born?

A. Before.

Q. Are you sure of that date?

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not proper direct examination.

A. Date?

Q. As to whether it was before or after?

A. That I visited there as a caller—friend?

Q. Yes. A. It was before the child's birth.

Q. Did you know of any differences that Minnie and the Hamiltons had?

A. None, they were friends at Fort Logan.

Q. And they were friend- at—were they friends at Leavenworth from the time you got acquainted with them until Minnie left there? A. Yes.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Peterkin, what were your duties while you were stationed at Leavenworth—you were assigned to the Company and had the usual routine duties?

A. Of a private soldier.

Q. Of a private soldier. You had your drills and routine the same as other soldiers in the Company? A. Yes.

Q. And you attended their formations?

A. All—strictly considered a first class duty soldier.

Q. You had your guard duty, fatigues, and drills, etc?

A. That includes first class duty.

Q. You lived in barracks? A. Certainly.

Q. At Company quarters? A. Yes.

Q. Those were the old frame barracks, were they not?

A. No, the new ones in the West End.

Q. Well, they are what they call the old ones now; they were the new ones then? A. Yes.

Q. Was that the regimental station, or what your regiment divided?

A. Divided; we had two Companies of my regiment there.

Q. What was Lieut. Stafford? Was he on duty with the troops? A. He was a student officer.

Q. He was at the Line School. A. Yes sir.

Q. And he lived—had quarters in what is known as the Bachelor quarters? A. Yes sir, kindergarten.

Q. The kindergarten, they called it. A. Yes sir.

Q. And he had no rooms for servants, and so Minnie——

A. Had to occupy the kitchen.

Q. It was there that you used to go and see her. A. Yes.

Q. And prior to this, I suppose it was your knowledge that this other man went to see her there?

A. Oliver?

Q. Did you know of his going with her prior to that time?

A. Sure.

Q. Is it your testimony that he was going with her all of the time prior to your taking up with her? A. Yes.

Q. Then did you go to see Minnie at Stafford's with the knowledge and consent of Lieut. Stafford, or with the knowledge of Lieut. Stafford, I will say?

A. Well, I presume indirectly.

Q. You had never discussed with him——

A. Not by any means.

Q. Now, you had no consent or authority of your Company Commander to absent yourself and occupy quarters in Lieut. Stafford's house, did you?

A. No sir, he wanted to attend to all that kind of business himself—that is my Captain. In those days, an enlisted man was not considered human.

Q. Now, if you had had authority, it would have been with authority of the Company Commander; you would have been relieved of the duty of occupying barracks and living out, and had no such authority? A. Oh no.

Q. They had the canteens in those days, did they not?

A. No sir.

Q. Where did the soldiers assemble for recreation?

A. In the settler's store?

Q. Settler's store it was then? A. Yes.

Q. Now you used to congregate with the soldiers at the settler's store and other places? A. Very little.

Q. I believe you told me at one time that you were fond of card playing and used to play cards a good deal?

A. I am a pretty good seven-up player, now.

Q. How about poker? A. Fairly good.

Q. And you used to play a good deal of cards at that time? A. I did.

Q. At the settler's store or barracks. A. Barracks.

Q. Do you recall how you first got to see Minnie? Did you just notice her working in the kitchen and around the quarters?

A. I noticed her but had never spoken to her until the morning after Oliver was discharged.

Q. But you had seen her at Stafford's? A. Oh, sure.

Q. And knew that she was there?

A. And walking around with Oliver, evenings.

Q. And that, you say, was in the spring of '85? A. Yes.

Q. Did you go to town with Minnie, and go other places than the Hamilton's? A. As a visitor, no.

Q. You didn't go to town with her very much?

A. As a rule I went with her; went to the circus once in a while—never shopping.

Q. The Post was at that time quite separated from the town, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. You had to take the bus going back and forth?

A. Yes.

Q. There was no street car or railroad? A. No.

Q. Mr. Peterkin, you remember when I came to see you in Boston—let's see, it will be August 1914, about—and talked [] you about Minnie—you remember my coming to see you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you remember telling me about the Hamiltons being friends of Minnie's? A. Yes.

Q. I will ask you if you don't recall telling me that Minnie and Mr. Hamilton did not—were not good friends, but that Mrs. Hamilton and her brother, John Stain, were Minnie's friends but that she didn't like Mrs. Hamilton's husband?

A. Well, I——

Q. Well, I want to ask you if you remember telling me that? I will ask you if that was not your recollection that that was the fact—that Minnie and Mr. Hamilton were not such good friends?

A. Well, I can't say that I told you that because I don't know anything of it now, because whenever we were in their house, whoch was mostly at Fort Logan, Colorado, he was quite agreeable.

Q. Then, you didn't go to their home very much at Leavenworth? A. Not very much; I don't think more than once.

Q. It was shortly after you met with Minnie that she wanted you to go there and took you to the Hamilton's house?

A. I think so.

Q. Who attended Minnie at the time of the birth of this child that you speak of that was born at Mrs. Woods' house?

A. Dr. Carpenter.

Q. Did you go and get Dr. Carpenter? A. I did.

Q. Do you remember where the Woods lived?

A. Certainly.

Q. Where about? A. I was there not very long ago.

Q. Where was it?

A. At the house in Leavenworth. May I ask him if he can remind me of the name of the street?

Q. I will ask you, was it North Eighth street?

A. Eighth street, I think it was, but the North part of it, I don't remember, but I remember it was in the northern part of the city.

Q. Eighth street? A. Yes, Eighth street.

Q. Minnie was sick some time after the birth of that child? A. She was.

Q. In fact, Minnie got up from her sickness to attend the burial of her child, is that not so?

A. No, she wasn't sick when the child died.

Q. She wasn't sick? A. No.

Q. It died suddenly after birth, though?

A. Yes, I think two weeks—I don't know.

Q. But was she about the house?

A. Sure, excuse the word sure—that is the eastern answer, you know—"bringing up Father."

Q. Do you recall about how she was sick after the birth of the child? A. Off and on.

Q. I mean until the child was buried.

A. You mean what we call child-birth?

Q. Yes. A. I think she stayed in bed ten days.

Q. But she didn't go back to the Post; stayed there at the Woods' house?

A. Yes; that is, for a time. She worked in the Post after that.

Q. Sometime after it? A. Yes.

Q. But what I am trying to get at is this—that the death and burial of the child followed soon after its birth? A. Yes.

Q. And that Minnie up to the time of its death and burial had not goteen about any, she was there at the house?

A. Yes, yes.

Q. And the effects of the child-birth were not fully over?

A. Like all women.

Q. Yes? A. Naturally.

Q. Do you recall the child was healthy or whether it was sickly from the time that it was born?

A. It seemed healthy to me, alright.

Q. Do you know how long it was sick?

A. About 48 hours, I think.

Q. Do you know what it died from?

A. Yes, sir, cholera infantum.

Q. Cholera infantum?

A. Yes, sir—heat. It was very warm there in July and August.

Q. You had nothing to do with the Prison at the Post?

A. Not at all; that is an independent establishment.

Q. That was at the upper end of the Garrison?

A. Garrison.

Q. And the employes of the Prison and their quarters were all located adjacent to the Prison? A. Yes.

Q. So that you were separated from that part? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall how long before the birth of that child in 1886 it was that Minnie left Stafford's, about?

A. Before the birth?

Q. Yes. A. It might have been two months.

Q. Did she work any place in the Post prior to going to the Woods' after leaving the Stafford's? A. She did.

Q. For whom?

A. A Cavalry officer whose name I can't remember, a short time.

Q. And then went to the Woods', in time to give birth to this child? A. She did.

Q. Do you know how long she was at the Woods' before the child was born?

A. It might have been 5 or 6 weeks.

Q. You stated that you saw Minnie as often as five or six times a week prior to the time that you became associated with her—how would you see her, Mr. Peterkin?

A. Wel-, as a rule, every evening in those days all soldiers and their girls went walking in the evening and that is the way that I saw her—walking with Oliver.

Q. And you would see her at the Stafford's house, or their kitchen? A. Working.

Q. And about there? A. Yes.

Q. Did you see her go from there and go there? Go to there and go from there?

A. Well, I can't remember having seen her going and coming because my quarters were considerable distance from Stafford's quarters.

Q. How do you know, Mr. Peterkins, that Minnie was living [ ] Oliver and not merely going with him?

A. We all knew that he slept in bed with her.

Q. How did you know that?

A. Hundreds of times, for I seen him open the door and come out in the morning while I was on sentry duty, and all of the sertries.

Q. That is the back door?

A. Yes; that kind of looked suspicious.

Q. On sentry duty you would be stationed where you could see this from your post? A. Certainly.

Q. Around officer's quarters?

A. The Post was back of the officer's quarters—lots of knot holes in the fence, you know.

Q. And you knew that Minnie was there at the house? A. Certainly.

Q. Because you had seen her there?

A. And have often seen her come to the door and talk to him before he would leave the house.

Q. Then from the time that you first knew Minnie—saw her—you knew that Oliver was going to the Stafford's house to see her? A. Yes.

Q. How long after you began living with Minnie was it—about—that you discovered that she was in a family way?

A. Well, about the first month.

Q. About the first month. You testified that it was November, you think, that you went to Fort Logan. I will ask you, Mr. Peterkin, if it was not October 1887, that you went to Fort Logan from Leavenworth? A. Fort Logan?

Q. Fort Leavenworth to Logan? A. I think it was.

Q. October? A. I think so; I am pretty sure.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Mr. Peterkin, did you ever heard of, or know of Minnie Atkins ever visiting—staying at the home of Granny Letcher?

A. Never heard of such a person.

Mr. Hanford: I object to the question on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; calls for hearsay testimony and move to strike the answer of the witness as given before I had the opportunity to object.

Q. Did you ever know of Minnie Atkins visiting or staying at the home of Granny Letcher?

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; calls for a conclusion and hearsay testimony.

A. As I said before, I never heard of such a person until I had been in court at Muskogee.

Q. Did you ever know of her visiting at the home of any negro? A. Never.

Q. Family in Leavenworth?

Mr. Hanford: Same objection and motion to strike.

Q. Did you ever hear of her ever visiting at the home of any negro family in Leavenworth? prior to the time that you were at Muskogee in this case? A. Never.

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and move to strike.

Q. You say that you don't ever think you were at the Hamilton home but about once, in Leavenworth?

A. Once, I think; that is as a visitor.

Q. Do you know—have you given any thought to the time with reference to the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin, when you were there? A. Any other time?

Q. Yes. A. Except as a visitor?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I was there about two o'clock in the morning that this child was born at night—P. M.—at least, in the morning it would be A. M., but it was during the *m*ight.

Q. At Hamilton's home? A. Yes, Hamilton's home.

Q. What were you doing there?

A. I went there to ascertain if Mrs. Hamilton had received money from Minnie Atkins that I had given her to help with her confinement expenses.

Q. When was that, you say, with reference to the birth of this Robert Lee Peterkin?

A. It was, I presume, during the birth of the child, that I started for their house at that time of night, which was not over—well, ten minutes walk from the house in which Minnie was confined in.

Q. Did you find out anything?

A. I had not up *i*ntil today, yet.

Q. Did you see any of them?

A. I did, and Mrs. Hamilton said that she had—nothing like that had taken place. I asked Minnie if she had any money to pay the Doctor, or give him some, as they expect in a case like that with strangers and she has yet to explain to me what become of that money.

Q. Did you make it known to the Hamilton's who you were, at that time? A. Sure, certainly; we had quite a talk.

Q. Now, to refresh your memory, didn't you and Minnie Atkins go to the Hamilton home after Robert Lee was born, and there Minnie introduced you as her husband, or her sweetheart? A. I don't think so.

Q. You think it before? A. I think it was before.

Q. Mr. Peterkin, Mr. Hanford asked you awhile ago, if you made certain statement to him. State what you did state to him when he came to see you in Boston.

A. Well, it would simply be a repetition of what I have already recited to you people because when I first started to talk to Mr. Hanford, I told him that I was dealing with a delicate case; that I would tell nothing but the truth, and I remarked to him and cautioned him—not knowing exactly what he was or was not—that he was dealing with the most inconsistent, damnedest liar that ever walked on the face of the earth, and that was Minnie Atkins.

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike the answer as not responsive to the question.

Q. Did you then recite to him substantially the same facts you have recited here in your testimony? A. I did.

Q. Mr. Peterkin, there was offered in evidence as Government's Exhibit 23, a letter that Mr. Hanford wrote to you on November 23rd, 1914; I will ask you to read this exhibit in the record in case No. 4464, pending the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, beginning just above the middly of page 457, with the words, Government Exhibit, and ending at the bottom of page—and ending on page 459, and ask you if that is a copy of the letter received.

Mr. Allen: May not it be agreed that it is?

Mr. Hanford: Is that an attempt to put in the record on the Receivership hearing or—

Mr. Allen: German took that original letter, I suppose, but I haven't got it.

Mr. Hanford: I will admit that the substance is correct, except that it appears from the printing that there are errors which are typographical and are indicated as such in the print.

Mr. Allen: We offer that letter in evidence.

Mr. Hanford: I admit that this is a copy and you can offer the original.

Re-Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Peterkin, that letter was written to you in answer to a letter from you to me? A. Yes.

Q. You wrote me at Seattle and sent me a copy of a letter that you had received from Judge Rosser, is that not true?

A. Yes.

Q. You had my card with my Seattle address?

A. Got it yet.

Q. Some time after that you received this reply to your letter? A. Yes.

Q. At the time that you came to see me in Boston, I told you that I wanted to find out about this boy Tommy Atkins, is that not so?

A. No, sir, excuse me; not to my memory now, because your visit when you left, was quite a mystery to me. I didn't quite understand.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Peterkin, that I told you that I wanted to find out about this boy, and you told me that she didn't have the boy—that it was a girl? A. Where?

Q. Here in Boston.

A. Oh no, no, no; no, sir, because I—

Q. You recall, Mr. Peterkin, my making notes of what you told me? A. Yes, but there are all kinds of notes.

Q. And you recall my making notes as you talked to me?

A. Yes, sir, you know they asked me that question in court and I didn't remember but it afterwards came to my mind that you did.

Q. And isn't it a fact that I told you that what you told me was, I wasn't interested in, because I was trying to find out about this boy, and you told me that you knew nothing about any such a boy?

A. Well, I couldn't have told you that because I have a pretty good memory and I always made*d* up my mind if ever I had to go into court that I would have to tell the truth, and then I wouldn't get into any trouble, because I am a little bit hot-headed, in or out of court, and it wouldn't do for me to tell anything but the truth, and I couldn't have told you that.

Q. Well, what did you tell me?

A. In regard to the child, I certainly must have told you that the child I knew of, was a boy because I had so much to do with it, and of course, that is pretty well proven that it was a boy. That old priest in Leavenworth church pretty well proves that to you fellows.

Q. I admit, Mr. Peterkin, that it was a boy and it was proven to be a boy, but don't you think that you might have had a lapse of memory at that time and stated to me that it was a girl?

Mr. Allen: We object.

A. All kind of things are liable to happen.

Q. I will ask you this—you recall that when you came into the room, I told you what that I was really wanting to see you about was this boy, and the first thing that you said to me was, this boy born in Leavenworth—and the first thing you said to me was, she didn't have a boy in Leavenworth, it was a girl?

A. No.

Q. And I told you what I wanted to find out about was a boy born to her prior to her going out to the Fort and prior to the time that she left you but that I had taken a chance in coming to see you in the hopes that you might have known something about it?

A. Well, I will tell you—I am sorry that you understood it that way, Mr. Hanford, because it wasn't that way, and of course if I had said that I say now that it was a grand mistake.

Q. Admitting, though, that it was a mistake, Mr. Peterkin, don't you think that that is what you told me?

Mr. Allen: We object to the argument.

A. No, no, Mr. Hanford, I don't think so; I don't think so, and if I did, I hope that I will be allowed to change it because if I told that it wasn't the truth and I ought to have the same privilege as Sadie James to change her testimony.

Q. Mr. Peterkin, Minnie, the time that you referred to her, was of a secretive disposition, is that not true?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as argument and calling for a conclusion of the witness and not proper cross examination.

A. Well, she was in a way, but for her to exercise those qualities either with Oliver or myself, she had very few chances.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Mr. Peterkin, what time during the night was it, that Carpenter came to deliver this child?

A. As near twelve as it could possibly be.

Q. How long before the child was born?

A. Think that was—she wasn't sick, I think, over two hours. I think the Doctor had just got there, if he did, in time. I don't remember that because I didn't remain in the house; I was blowing smoke up in the air in the back yard.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: We offer the deposition of JOHN P. HESSE, taken before Mr. Penick, and beginning in his transcript at page 596.

JOHN C. HESSE, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Will you please state your age, name and place of residence?

A. John C. Hesse; my age is 80 years; my residence, Washington.

Q. What official position do you hold at this time?

A. I am Chief of Division in the Adjutant General's Office.

Q. As Chief of Division in the Adjutant General's office, do you have charge of the original records showing the enlistment and discharge of persons serving in the United States Army?

A. No, I haven't exactly charge of them but I can get them when I ask for them because the Adjutant General is the only party who has charge of them.

Q. Are the records showing the enlistment and discharge of William D. Oliver now in your custody?

A. Yes, sir, in my hands now—the original enlistment contract of William D. Oloer, that is, his first enlistment.

Q. Have you the record in your custody now showing the discharge of this man Oloer?

A. Yes, the muster roll of Company E, 18th Infantry, for the month of November and December, 1885, shows shows William D. Oloeo, a corporal of that Company was discharged in Fort Leavenworth on the 18th of December 1885, by reason of expiration of term of service.

Mr. Allen: We offer the record identified by the witness in evidence, and by agreement of parties, the witness is permitted to read the record, in so far as it contains any entry to William D. Oloeo.

A. The spelling is—here it is—it makes it there read O-l-i-v-e-r-, and it is not clear.

Q. Will you please read th- entire record showing any entry in reference to the discharge of this man William D. Oliver?

A. Why, it is spelled O-l-v-e-r-; there is no "i" there, as far as I can see.

Q. Just read the entire record so far as he is concerned.

A. Corporal, day, enlistment—December 19, 1880, enlisted at Fort Assiniboine, Montana Territory, by Lieut. Bates for the period of 5 years; and that he was discharged at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, December 18th, 1885, by reason of expiration of term of service. Do you want the date of the last payment by the Paymaster?

Q. Yes.

A. That he was last paid by Lieut. Col. Rucker, to October 31, 1885—due the soldier for continued service, ten years and three months. Discharge and final settlement given. Due soldier for retained pay, sixty dollars, clothing not allowed. I think that refers to the other—I think it is, due soldier retained pay sixty dollars, and clothing not drawn. Sixteen dollars and twenty-eight cents—character good.

Q. Does that record to what Company he belonged at the time of his discharge?

A. Yes; Company E, 18th Infantry.

Q. Stationed at Leavenworth, Kansas?

A. Stationed at Leavenworth, Kansas.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Hesse, the Adjutant General is the legal custodian of these records, is he not? A. Yes.

Q. And you have before you the subpoena that was served on the Adjutant General, or his representatives, have you not?

A. Yes.

Q. General McCain designated you to secure this record?

A. Yes.

Q. And testify for his benefit? A. Yes.

Q. To facilitate the gaining of this testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are familiar with the records of this office?

A. I am; I have been her- 54 years and I should be familiar with it.

Q. I will ask you if this is the original and only record of the matters about which you have testified?

A. The only record and that is the original signed by officers and I recognize their signature.

Witness dismissed.

Thereupon, J. L. BRUFF was recalled for further redirect examination and testified as follows:

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Bruff, you are a special agent of the Department of Justice? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Bureau of Investigation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Bruff, it appears in the testimony of Mr. Peterkin that one William Oliver, a soldier in Company E, Eighteenth Infantry, Stationed at Leavenworth, 1884, was an associate of Minnie's. Have you made any effort to find Mr. Oliver?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you successful? A. No, sir, I was not.

Q. What effort did you make to find him?

A. In the War Department and the Pension Office in Washington.

Q. Did you find a record relating to him in the War Department? A. There was a record of his military service.

Q. Of his Military service? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they have his address?

A. They did not at the War Department.

Q. Did you go elsewhere with a view of finding out where he was? A. I did.

Q. Where? A. Pension office.

Q. Did you find any record there relating to him?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you get a supposed address of his there?

A. There is a record there of an application made by his wife for a pension, and on investigation it was found that he was dead; she had applied for a pension.

Q. Mr. Bruff, the testimony of Mr. Peterkin shows a man by the name of Patrick Burk was with Minnie some, possibly in 1887 and 1888 for two or three months, maybe more. Have you made any effort to find Mr. Burk? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What effort did you make?

A. At the War Department.

Q. What was the result?

A. I got his military record.

Q. What does it show—I will ask you this: Could you find him? A. No, sir.

Q. Why?

Mr. Stuart: I would like to inquire as to the purpose of this testimony.

The Court: I apprehend the purpose is to show this man is either dead or isn't available.

Mr. German: That is correct, your Honor.

Mr. Stuart: I don't think there is any dispute about that.

Mr. German: Well, if they admit it, that is all right.

The Court: Well, if they admit it, that is all right.

The Court: Very well, we will not go into that any further.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: We offer the deposition of Mrs. John Stafford, appearing in Penick's transcript of depositions, beginning at Page 356.

CORNELIA G. STAFFORD being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. What is your name? A. Cornelia G. Stafford.
Q. Where do you live? A. San Diego, California.
Q. How long have you lived in San Diego?
A. We came here in September of '96—ten years.
Q. Where did you live in 1885 and 1886?
A. Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.
Q. Were you married at that time? A. I was.
Q. To your present husband—Major John Stafford?
A. Yes.

Q. Did you know a girl named Indian Minnie, or Minnie Atkins? A. I did.

Q. At Fort Leavenworth in 1884- '05- '06 and '07?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you first get acquainted with her?
A. In September, or October, 1885.

Q. State the circumstances under which you become acquainted with her. A. When did I?

Q. Yes; did she work for you?
A. She worked for me, yes.
Q. When did she commence working for you?

A. Well, as near as I can remember it was either September, or October, in 1885; I think it was September, but I am not sure—either in September or October.

Q. How do you happen to remember the time that she commenced working for you, Mrs. Stafford?

A. Because Major Stafford was ordered to the School at Fort Leavenworth, and I took her as soon as we went to house-keeping—as soon as we got our quarters. I don't remember whether that was September or October; I think it was about September 15th as well as I can remember.

Q. She commenced working for you at the time you commenced house-keeping?

A. At the time that we commenced house-keeping at Fort Leavenworth—as soon as we got our quarters.

Q. Where did you commence house-keeping—what house?

A. I don't know what—they used to call it the old canteen; it was assigned to the School—I don't know what they call it now—some Hall—but it was what we used to call the old School [illegible].

Q. You say that your best recollection is that you commenced house-keeping there about the 15th of September?

A. As I remember, yes.

Q. And Minnie commenced working for you when you commenced house-keeping? A. Yes.

Q. How long did she work for you?

A. She worked for me until about the following June.

Q. When she came to work for you what was her physical condition or appearance? A. Normal, good.

Q. Did she appear then, or show any indications of having suffered from any recent sickness?

A. Not at all, she was the picture of health—strong and robust, and well.

Q. Where did she live during the time that she was working for you?

A. She had a—in our kitchen; we had two rooms and a kitchen. She had her cot in the kitchen.

Q. Did she associate with any men during the early part of her employment by you? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Was she at your house constantly?

A. She was there all during the day, of course, as to the evening, I don't know where she was, but she was with me constantly from the time she came until I dismissed her.

Q. Did she sleep at your house every night during that time? A. So far as I know, she did.

Q. What was the occasion of her leaving you?

A. Well, I dismissed her because her condition indicated her condition and I didn't want her on my hands. She denied it but her appearance indicated that that was her condition.

Q. Do you know who she was going with during that time?
A. I do not.

Q. Do you ever know a Charles Peterkin? A. Never.

Q. Did she associate*d* during any of the time that she stayed with you with negroes?

A. There were no negroes at the Post that I know of—I never saw her with one.

Q. Do you know where she came from to your house?
A. I don't know at all; I have no idea.

Q. Had you heard? A. Not a w*a*rd, I just took her.

Q. Had you heard whether or not she formerly lived at the—worked at the Post?

A. No, I didn't know—I didn't know anything about her when I took her.

Q. What causes you to remember that—what fact creates the impression in your mind that it was about the 15th of Septimber that she commenced working for you, Mr. Stafford?

A. Because Major Stafford was detailed to the School, and the School year commenced in September and we went to house-keeping as soon as we got the quarters. Whether they were assigned to us in September, or October, I don't remember. He was detailed there for the School from 1885 to 1887.

Q. To refresh your memory, how long had you lived at the Post before you commenced house-keeping.

A. About a month.

Q. And when did you go [ ] the the Post, Mrs. Stafford?

A. The end of August.

Q. During what part of August?

A. Well, about the 25th, I think.

Q. Was it a full month before you commenced keeping house? A. Well, I don't remember.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as leading and suggestive.

A. Are you able to say about when you commenced house-keeping with reference to the time that you went to the Fort?

Mr. Blakeney: We object as repetition.

A. Well, I would say about the middle of September, as well as I can remember.

Q. When were you married, Mrs. Stafford?

A. In July 1885—the 8th of July.

Q. Your husband is a retired Major now in the United States Army? A. Yes.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Mrs. Stafford, you are testifying to transactions that occurred some thirty-five or thirty-six years ago, and you are able to fix the date only by the circumstance that you went to Leavenworth some time during the latter part of August, of first of September, 1885? A. Yes.

Q. You recall that you stayed some little while in Bachelors Quarters before you went to house-keeping?

A. No, those were our quarters assigned—we stayed there—never moved; we were assigned to the School quarters. When the class went there, those were the quarters assigned by the officers of the School.

Q. You stayed there some little while before you went to house-keeping?

A. No, we went to house-keeping the day we went there; we stayed at the hotel possibly some two weeks before we went to house-keeping.

Q. Before you went to those quarters, you stayed at the hotel two weeks?

A. About two weeks at the Post headquarters.

Q. Did you go to house-keeping right there?

A. Yes, right there.

Q. What hotel? A. The Post hotel.

Q. You had no way of fixing the date that you stayed at the Post hotel?

A. No, I have no statement of it at all; we went there about the 25th of August and stayed there until we went to house-keeping.

Q. You say sometime between the 15th of September and first of October, you went to house-keeping?

A. Yes, I say as well as I remembered—we went about the 15th of September; that is my recollection.

Q. Then your recollection is that you stayed some three or four weeks at the hotel?

A. As I say it was thirty-five years ago and it is kind of hazy.

Q. When was your attention first called to the transaction?

A. Well, when Major got this letter asking about Minnie.

Q. You got a letter about a year ago inquiring about Minnie?

A. Well, I don't remember when the letter came; Major got this letter.

Q. Had your attention been called to it about a year ago?

A. I think about a year ago.

Q. And from the time that the incidents closed at Leavenworth until you received this inquiry, you never thought about it?

A. Never thought about it. I didn't remember that I had had the girl—I knew her name was Minnie. When I dismissed her service, that ended it.

Q. You were living at Sandiego when you received this inquiry? A. Yes.

Q. So you had no way of refreshing your recollection?

A. Not the slightest.

Q. And after getting that, that is the conclusion you reached?

A. Yes. I know the facts—I know when we commenced house-keeping.

Q. You married in July of that year.

A. Yes, married in July of that year.

Q. Where were you married? A. San Francisco.

Q. And where did you go to from San Francisco?

A. We went East—St. Louis and Chicago, and had a tour of the East.

Q. How long were you on that tour?

A. Well, until we went to Leavenworth—the end of August.

Q. Did you go back to San Francisco?

A. No, we didn't go back.

Q. You went on around the East?

A. And ended up at the Fort.

Q. You ended at Fort Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. Where was the last place that you stopped before you came to Leavenworth? A. Detroit.

Q. Stopped at a hotel in Detroit?

A. No, I was with an aunt there.

Q. Visited and aunt at Detroit? A. Yes.

A. How long did you visit there? A. Two weeks.

Q. And where was your stop just preceeding that?

A. St. Louis.

Q. Where did you stop in St. Louis?

A. I don't know—some hotel.

Q. And you can't give the name of the hotel?

A. I don't remember the name of the hotel, no.

Q. You can't, by thinking a minute, think of the name of the hotel?

A. No, I can't remember the name of the hotel if I thought all night.

Q. You stopped at a hotel in St. Louis? A. Yes.

Q. And that would have been in the late summer of 1885? A. Yes.

Q. And then you went to Detroit and visited your aunt?

A. Yes. Now, that is as near as I can remember; of course, thirty-five years ago—we went to Detroit and St. Louis, and Detroit was the last place, and from there we went to Ill. We might have gone to Chicago before we went there, I can't remember thirty-five years ago of the places that we went to.

Q. You would be as certain about that as you would be the number of weeks that you boarded before you went to house-keeping at Leavenworth?

A. Yes, of course, I wouldn't say how many weeks I boarded.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mrs. Stafford, you testified, I believe, that Minnie slept in the kitchen of the quarters? A. Yes.

Q. What did she have for a bed?

A. She had a cot—an army bed—an army cot.

Q. A hospital cot, or a camp cot.

A. Just a camp cot, a small cot

Q. Then it didn't remain there all the time during the day, did it?

A. Yes, she had a cover for it—a canvas cover that she put over it during the day.

Q. And that was the only accomodation that she ever had?

A. That was the only accomodation that she ever had at our house; that was the only accomodation we could give her —we didn't have anything else.

Q. You stated, I believe, that you didn't know of any associates—of Minnie's associates? A. No.

Q. Did any one occupy the quarters with her or was she alone?

A. She was supposed to be alone; I don't know that anybody was there.

Q. Then, when her work was ended in the daytime, you lost track of her?

A. I lost track of her when she finished with the dinner —she was through, and she could do what she chose until the next morning. I didn't bother with her.

Q. Did she have days of leisure that were allowed her? A. No.

Q. No days off?

A. No, no days off, except Sunday afternoon after she finished her noon dinner.

Q. Do you know where Minnie went after you discharged her? A. No.

Q. You don't know whether she worked for anybody in the Post?

A. No, and I know she didn't work in the Post when I discharged her; she got out of the Post, but where, I don't know.

Q. You are sure that she went out of the Post, however?

A. I don't know but I think she did. As far as I know, she was not int the Post; I never saw her again.

Q. Do you remember whether or not there was a young Cavalry officer who lived in either the adjoining building or the same quarters? [A.] No.

Q. That you were in—that employed her? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear Minnie refer to any soldier by the name of Peterkin? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear Minnie called by the name of Peterkin? A. No.

Q. You don't remember anybody by that name? A. No.

Q. Mrs. Stafford, did you know of Minnie's condition for very long before you discharged her? A. No.

Q. Then you let her go as soon as—as soon after you discovered her condition——

A. Well, she was pretty close when I discharged her; it was very, very evident.

Recross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Mrs. Stafford, do you remember what wages were paid Minnie?

A. I think I paid her twelve dollars a month but I am not sure. I am pretty sure it was twelve dollars a month.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Did you say, Mrs. Stafford, that the first house-keeping you ever did after you were married, was when Minnie commenced working for you? A. Yes.

Q. Minnie commenced working for you at the time you commenced house-keeping? A. Yes.

Q. Did Minnie show any signs while she was at your house of nursed a child or——

Mr. Hanford: I object to the question as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Allen: I believe I will withdraw the question: she testified in regard to it, I think, sufficiently.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: We offer the deposition of Major John Stafford, appearing in Mr. Penick's transcript of Depositions, beginning at Page 365.

And thereupon JOHN STAFFORD being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Please state your name, age and residence.

A. John Stafford, San Diego, California; age 61 years of age.

Q. What is your official title, or rank?

A. Major, United States Army, retired.

Q. How long have you been retired?

A. Since August 1906.

Q. Major, where did you live in 1885-'06?

A. Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. When were you married to Mrs. Stafford?

A. July 8th, 1885.

Q. When did you go to Leavenworth with reference to the date of your marriage?

A. Last week o*g* August, 19885.

Q. Have you a copy of the order assigning you to Fort Leavenworth? A. No, not that order.

Q. What order have you?

A. I have the order assigning me to the organization at Fort Leavenworth—I didn't bring that, but I may have it at home.

Q. What is the date of that order?

A. September 3rd, 1885.

Q. When, with reference to the date of that order, did you go to Fort Leavenworth?

A. Well, at least a week previous to that order.

Q. When did you commence housekeeping with reference to the time that you went to Leavenworth?

A. The exact date?

Q. Yes. A. Well, I can't give the exact date.

Q. Can you give it approximately?

A. Well, between the 10th and 30th of September, I will say.

Q. Are you able to say, now, definitely, whether it was later than the 30th of September?

A. Oh, it wasn't later than then September 30th.

Q. When you commenced house-keeping, who, if anybody, was employed by you as a servant in your home?

A. An Indian girl by the name of Minnie Atkins, or Minnie.

Q. When did she commence working for you with reference to the date that you commenced house-keeping?

A. Well, it was the same date.

Q. How long did she work for you, Major?

A. Well, between six or eight months at least.

Q. Why did she leave?

A. Well, I don't remember why exactly she left—I didn't discharge her.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mrs. Stafford discharged her?

A. Yes, she discharged her.

Q. Do you know why she discharged her?

A. Well, she was undoubtedly in a family condition.

Q. At the time that she came to work for you, what was her physical condition?

A. Apparently normal, good.

Q. Did she show any signs of any recent illness?

A. Not at all, no.

Q. During the time that she worked for you, was she there all of the time? A. So far as I know, yes.

Q. With reference to the time that your quarters were assigned to you by the quartermaster, when did you commence house-keeping?

A. Well, probably the following day; at least, a few days after they were assigned to me.

Q. Why were you staying at the hotel the several weeks that you say that you stayed there?

A. Waiting for the assignment of the quarters.

Q. Did you move into the quarters immediately when they were assigned to you?

A. Immediately, yes.

Q. Do you know where Minnie came from when she came to work for you? A. I do not.

Q. Had you heard where she had previously worked?

A. No, not to my recollection.

Q. Did you know of her associates while she was with you? A. No, no.

Q. With other people? A. No.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Mayor, you were married in July of 1885? A. Yes.

Q. You took a trip East and returned to Fort Leavenworth, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Where were you married?

A. In San Francisco, California.

Q. Had you been transferred before you started on your wedding tour? A. Yes.

Q. You had been ordered to Fort Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. You were off of duty—you were given—what do you call it? A. Was given two months leave.

Q. Do you remember about when you were given that?

A. The order was probably issued about a week—the first of July, I would say.

Q. You would say about the 1st? A. Yes.

Q. By whom are those orders issued?

A. By the Division Commander of the Pacific.

Q. Are they made a matter of record? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Copies of the order could be secured from the War Department?

A. Yes, I think I have a copy myself.

Q. On this leave of absence you were married and took your trip, did you? A. Yes.

Q. Before the leave of absence was granted, do you recall whether or not you had been transferred to Fort Leavenworth, or were you transferred during the time that you had your leave?

A. The transfer, or the order of transfer was issued, and then I applied for my leave—two months leave; that is my recollection of it.

Q. Where was the last place that you made a stop prior to going to Fort Leavenworth? A. You mean over night?

Q. Yes.

A. I think it was the Leland hotel in St. Louis.

Q. Do you recall that you did stop at the Leland Hotel when you were in St. Louis?

Q. Yes, I am pretty sure that it was the Leland hotel.

Q. You visited some of your wife's people in Detroit? A. Yes.

Q. Did you go from St. Louis to Detroit?

A. No, I went from Albion, Ill., two weeks.

Q. Where did you stop at Albion? A. At my home.

Q. You visited your parents there? A. Yes.

Q. At Albion, Ill.? A. Yes.

Q. And went from there where?

A. From there I attended Mrs. Stafford en route from Detroit to St. Louis—Galesburg, I think—Ill., some place.

Q. You joined her en route and went to St. Louis?

A. St. Louis.

Q. How long did you stay at St. Louis?

A. Probably a week or ten days.

Q. And your recollection is that you stopped at the Leland hotel? A. That is my recollection.

Q. You were a regular guest there? A. Yes.

Q. You registered? A. Yes.

Q. And then you wetn from there to Fort Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. When you reached Fort Leavenworth you didn't find apartments signed you? A. No.

Q. And you stopped at the Post hotel?

A. Yes, it was known as the Keeling, or Post hotel; either one is correct.

Q. You think that you stayed there a few weeks at the hotel before you were able to obtain your quarters?

A. I think so, yes.

Q. You have no way of fixing with entire certainty the length of time?

A. No, not without reference to the record orders.

Q. What records, Major, could you suggest to us that might fix the time with definiteness?

Q. Well, the order of assignment to quarters of the Student Officers would fix it as to date.

Q. You think that within a few days after that assignment you did get your quarters?

A. I moved in as soon as I could; moved my trunk.

Q. What quarters did you move into?

A. It was an old barracks, converted into a section of rooms. I think it is now called the Sherman Hall.

Q. Major, who would issue the order of assignment to rooms?

A. Why, the Commanding Officer directed the Post Quartermaster to make the assignment, or the commanding officer may do it himself, I am not sure which.

Q. Orders were issued in regular Army orders?

A. I think so, oh, yes.

Q. And copies could be secured from the War Department, or army Post? A. Yes, I think so.

Q. If they were issued, it could be procured, you say——

A. Oh, yes.

Q. You are not certain whether it was done by order or by verbal direction?

A. Verbal direction of the Commanding Officer it might have been, you see.

Q. When you were so assigned, you had an apartment of three rooms? A. Yes.

Q. Two you occupied, and the other you used as the kitchen? A. Yes.

Q. In this kitchen you had a cot for your servant?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether or not that cot was occupied regularly or not? A. No, I can't state that.

Q. After the dinner hour, you kept no further trace of your servant? A. No.

Q. She was supposed to retire after you leaving the kitchen and was up before you returned to the kitchen in the morning? A. Well, I don't know anything about her.

Q. You don't recall ever going into the kitchen while she was occupying the cot?

A. No, I never did, as I remember.

Q. To say whether the cot had been occupied any single night you had no way of stating? A. Oh, no.

Q. You did notice later that she showed evidence of being pregnant? A. Oh, yes, yes.

Q. And to your recollection, was discharged for that?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you put the length of time that she was employed from six to eight months; your recollection is that she was discharged about July, wasn't it?

A. I can't fix whether it was June, July or when it was; she was with us a long time.

Q. She stayed there a number of months? A. Yes.

Q. If she was at that time claiming to be the wife—common law wife of a private, named Peterkin, you had no information or don't now recall the fact?

A. No, I didn't know anything about it.

Q. Have you any method of fixing these facts in your mind, more by the searching of your memory as to how long she was employed, etc.?

A. No, there is no data that I know of.

Q. Do you remember the wages that you paid her?

A. No, I don't remember.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. I overlooked one matter that I wanted to inquire about and I will now do it before the cross-examination of Mr. Hanford. Major, have you received any letters or telegrams from any of the counsel representing the defendant in this case, in reference to your knowledge in the case?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you them with you?

A. I have two telegrams with me.

Q. Let me see them, will you?

Mr. Allen: I ask to have marked for identification, the telegram which is handed me by the witness (Government's Exhibit 2). We wish to mark the other telegram handed me by the witness as Government No. 3. (Offer so marked).

A. There is one answer incorrect that I gave.

Q. Just in a minute, Major, they will let you correct it. I hand you for identification the Government's Exhibit No. 2, is that the original telegram received by you from the Western Union Telegraph Company? A. It is.

Mr. Allen: We offer it in evidence.

Mr. Blakeney: We object to Exhibit 2 as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and not properly identified and not being primary evidence.

Mr. Hanford: Defendants Folk and Hanford object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; has no bearing upon the issues in controversy, and is not properly identified.

Q. I hand you Government's Exhibit 3, and ask you if that is the original telegram received by you from the Postal Telegraph Cable Company? A. It is.

Q. When was this received by you? A. July 15th, 1914.
Q. Where? A. San Diego, California.
Q. Is your present address 3592 Front Street? A. It is.
Q. Was that your address on July 15, 1914? A. It was.

Mr. Allen: We offer this telegram in evidence.

Mr. Blakeney. We object to Government's Exhibit No. 3, as incompetent, irrelevant, and nor material, and not properly identified and not the primary evidence.

Q. Major Stafford, when did you receive Government's Exhibit No. 2, and where?

Q. February 24th, 1915, at San Diego, California.

Mr. Allen: We re-offer Government's Exhibit No. 2.

Mr. Blakeney: To which we object to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and not properly identified, and not the best evidence.

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not properly identified and not the best evidence.

Q. Referring to the matters written with a lead pencil on the front and back of this telegram, were those figures and this writing on the telegram when you received it?

Mr. Hanford: We object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. The writing on the back is in my handwriting; I don't recall the figures in front.

Mr. Blakeney: The question was, was it on there when you received it.

Q. Were those figures on there when you received it?
A. Oh, no, no, I don't remember them.

Recross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. This lead pencil writing on the back of Exhibit No. 2, you say is in your handwriting, Major? A. It is.

Q. Do know what, and why, and when, that handwriting was placed there? A. What and why?

Q. Yes. When was it placed there, and why?

A. As a memorandum of the original in reply to the inquiry of the telegram of February 25th.

Q. You made that memorandum ther- for the answer which you returned to that telegram?

A. I believe this memorandum is the correct answer as I recall it.

Q. Ther- purports to be two memorandums. Do you recall whether or not it was also the answer to some second telegram? A. No, that is all one answer.

Q. You think that is all one answer? A. I think so.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. You said you wanted to make a correction, Major, in your testimony?

A. It is immaterial, I suppose, but I stated that my order for detail, or transfer to Leavenworth, was issued prior to the granting of my leave. It should be the first; leave was granted first, and order for my transfer to Fort Leavenworth was dated July 31, or August 5th, 1885. My leave was granted about July 1st.

Recross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Do you remember where you received the order?

A. For my transfer.

Q. Yes. A. I think Detroit, Michigan.

Mr. Hanford: I object to the whole of the testi—witness, on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and move to suppress the deposition.

Redirection Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Major, have you a copy of the order assigning you to—what was the order you have there?

A. Just detailing me to the different organizations.

Q. By whom is that order signed?

A. That is the Commandant, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. That order was the order detailing you to the different offices? A. Yes.

Q. You were at that time, I believe you said, already in Fort Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. And what is the date of that order?

A. September 3rd, 1885.

Mr. Allen: It is agreed that the original order about which Major Stafford has just testified be read into the record.

Mr. Blakeney: We reserving our objection to its competency, relevancy, and materiality.

Mr. Hanford: I wish to preserve the same objection but I join in the stipulation.

Mr. Allen: Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, September 3rd, 1885, order No. 216. Extract * * * * Roman figure two followed by a period. The following named officers having reported at this Post, in compliance with special orders numbers ——, figures —— 174 and 178, Headquarters of the Army, dated Washington, D. C., July 31, and August 5th, 1885 respectively, are hereby assigned to troops and commands at Posts as follows, and will report to their respective troop and company commanders on the 5th, inst. * * * * Company A, 4th Infantry; Second Lieut. John Stafford, 8th Infantry * * * * by order of Col. Thomas H. Ruger, signed Robert F. Bates, 1st Lieut. and Adj., 18th Infantry, Post Adjutant.

Mr. Hanford: I wish to restate my objection to the testimony of this witness—all of the testimony—on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial and move to suppress the deposition. It is understood that my cross-examination is to the testimony adduced by them in behalf of the Government and the defendant, Henry Carter.

Mr. German: What are the grounds, Mr. Hanford?

Mr. Hanford: On the ground that I stated in my my objection that the testimony is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Major Stafford, the first telegram that you received from me which I now show you as marked Government's Exhibit No. 3, was dated July 15th, 1914—that was the date you received it? A. I think so, yes.

Q. This telegram is dated in typewriting as July 15th, 1915, and the 15 is changed to 14, in lead pencil. Do you recall who made that alteration?

A. It was done before I received it; I don't know.

Q. The telegram was received in 1914, then?

A. Exactly.

Q. You made no reply to that telegram?

A. Well, I think I did; I always replied to everything I received; I must have replied, although I don't remember.

Q. Do you remember what your reply was?

A. No, I don't; not now.

Q. The telegram calls for no reply, does it?

Mr. German: I object to that as calling for a conclusion of the witness, and an opinion.

Q. Examine the telegram, Major, and then answer the question, please.

A. I didn't make a reply to that telegram, I am sure; I answered the queries by letter.

Q. Have you a copy of the letter that you wrote in answer to that telegram? A. No.

Mr. Hanford: I will ask to have this letter marked as exhibit 2 on behalf of the defendants Folk and Hanford, for identification.

Q. I will hand you this letter, Major, and ask you to state what that is.

A. A letter written by myself.

Mr. Hanford: I will offer this letter in evidence.

Q. That is the letter you spoke of as being your answer to that inquiry?

A. I think so, yes; I have no better recollection of it.

Q. Subsequent to that inquiry you received that telegram which I now show you, marked Government's Exhibit 2?

A. Yes.

Q. W*as* is the date of that telegram?

A. February 24th, 1915.

Q. And this is dated from Paola, Kansas, is it not?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you reply to that telegram? A. I did.

Q. Do you remember what your reply was? A. Well——

Q. I will ask you first, have you a copy of your reply to that-

A. Memorandum data, on the back of the original telegram.

Q. Is it not a fact that your reply was in substance as follows: E. C. Hanford, care Severs Hotel, Muskogee, Oklahoma. When Minnie Atkins left my employment in 1886, her physical condition indicated pregnancy. Cannot recall other inquiries—and that was sent by telegram and signed Major Stafford. Is that or not, in substance your answer?

A. It is undoubtedly part of it; whether it is all, I can not say.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Major Stafford, that you received a second telegraphic inquiry from Mr. Hanford about the time you received the telegram from Paola, Kansas, asking as to the conditions of Minnie Atkins, as to pregnancy about the time she left your employ? A. I may have.

Q. Have you in your possession the copy, or the original, of any such telegram?

A. No, not that I can recall.

Q. Do you recall sending a telegram to Mr. Hanford, dated February 25th, 1915, in substance as follows: San Diego, California, February 25th, 1915, E. C. Hanford, Severs Hotel, Muskogee, Oklahoma—Cannot state positively, employed Minnie Atkins about nine months from October 1st, 1885, J. Stafford, Major, United States Army—did you send such a telegram to Mr. Hanford? A. I believe I did.

Q. At any rate, there were two telegrams sent the same date according to your recollection?

A. Well, there may have been, I didn't pay much attention to it—there may have been.

Q. Those telegrams were sent with some interval—that is, with some several hours between, were they not?

A. Yes, I remember it now—I remember they were.

Q. And the second one, in answer to a second inquiry?

A. Undoubtedly.

Q. Well, you haven't a copy of that with you? A. No.

Q. The first telegram was sent by you about 2:45 P. M., is that correct?

A. I don't remember the hour; I think I telephoned it down from home.

Q. Your first answer was to the affect that Minnie Atkins had worked for you about nine months from October 1st, 1885, that was the first telegram, is it not?

A. The first telegram was "Couldn't state positively. Employed Minnie Atkins about nine months, October 1st, 1885." I think that is correct.

Q. And that was in reply to the telegram that you hold in your hand, marked Government's Exhibit 2?

A. Well, I don't know what it was in reply to, but that was my telegram.

Q. And your second telegram as to her condition of pregnancy was in answer to a second inquiry, a copy of which you have not at this time? A. No, I haven't.

Q. Do you recollect what that second inquiry was, in substance?

A. When Minnie Atkinson left my employment in 1886 her physical condition indicated pregnancy. I can't recall other inquiries.

Q. That was the second answer?

A. That was my telegram, whether it was first or second, I don't remember.

Q. On the back of that telegram, marked "Government's Exhibit 2," there is a notation with a line drawn between the two separate parts of it; does that indicate anything to you at this time with regard to that notation, as to whether or not those are separate notations, or were made at the same time? A. The notations erased——

Q. I refer to the line?

A. Yes, that is one, that was the end of the telegram.

Q. That was the end of the first telegram? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what follows under that line is an answer to the second one? A. Undoubtedly, yes.

Q. Major, in the quarters where you lived when Minnie Atkins worked for you, there was just three rooms? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether or not any one was in the habit of occupying the kitchen besides Minnie?

A. No, I can't state that.

Q. The kitchen adjoined your quarters, did it not?

A. Yes.

Q. Wouldn't it have been possible for you to have known whether or not there were other occupants in addition to Minnie herself. A. Yes, it would have been possible.

Q. Don't you think that you would have become cognizent of that fact if it were a fact?

A. From sound or seeing, or what do you mean?

Q. From any source by general observation?

A. Well, I could have become cognizant of it but——

Q. But you did not? A. No, I paid no attention.

Q. If a soldier belonging to any of the troops regularly stationed at Leavenworth had had any authority to live outside of his barracks and occupy quarters that were assigned to you, it would have been with your permission and knowledge, would it not?

A. Why, certainly, she couldn't occupy——

Q. Did Minnie Atkins ever hold out any soldier or any one as being her husband while she lived there and worked for you? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Not that you know of? Did you ever know a soldier named Peterkin? A. No, not by name, no.

Q. Did you ever know of any of Minnie Atkin's associates amongst men while *w*he worked for you? A. No.

Q. Private soldiers are required to occupy quarters in Barracks with their company, are they not? A. Yes.

Q. In Army Posts? A. Yes.

Q. And to do otherwise is by special authority? A. Yes.

Q. The barracks are inspected when occupied by troops?

A. Yes.

Q. Are they not? A. Yes.

Q. And soldiers are allowed to be absent only by permission? A. Yes.

Q. And if they are absent without permission that fact is sure to become known, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. Did you keep a personal record of accounts at that time showing your expenditures for household purposes?

A. No.

Q. There is nothing that you can refer to showing the payments that you made to Minnie Atkins while she was in your employ?

A. Not unless I had my old check book, which I destroyed.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: We offer the deposition of Mary Catherine Allen, taken before Mr. Penick, appearing in the transcript of depositions, beginning at Page 730:

And thereupon, MARY KATHERINE ALLEN being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Please state your name, age and place of residence.

A. Mary Katherine Allen; I am 48 in this year, and my residence is 14th and Metropolitan Avenue, Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. Where were you living in 1886?

A. Well, in the spring of 1886, I was in Jackson County, Kas.

Q. Did you come back to Leavenworth during that year?

A. Yes, I came to Leavenworth the 3rd day of August, '86.

Q. Had you formerly lived in Leavenworth?

A. I was born at Fort Leavenworth.

Q. How long had you been here at that time?

A. Well, I think I had been away about fifteen years, or sixteen; I think I was four years old when I left here.

Q. Who was your mother?

A. My mother was married twice after my father died. Her name was Woods—Margaret Woods.

Q. Was Mr. Woods your step-father?

A. My step-father.

Q. Where did you stay upon your return the 3rd day of August, 1886?

A. At my mother's residence.

Q. Where was that, Mrs. Allen?

A. On 8th street, second house from the corner of Kickapoo and 8th; I don't just remember the number.

Q. Did you know in 1886, an Indian woman named Minnie Atkins, or Minnie Peterkin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Charles Peterkin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you get acquainted with them?

A. I got acquainted with her on the 3rd day of August at my mother's house.

Q. Were they at your mother's home when you returned?

A. Yes, I met both of them at the same time.

Q. Did this Minnie Atkins, or Minnie Peterkin, have a baby at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About how old was that baby when you returned?

A. Well, I think it was about four days old.

Mr. Blakeney: We want to object to all this examination as not pertinent to any issue in the case; incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. Did you know the name of that baby?

A. I heard the name given to it the day it was baptized.

Mr. Hanford: We object to all this testimony in regard to this child, on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. Where did you live during the fifteen or sixteen years that you were away from Leavenworth, just before the 3rd of August, 1886?

A. I was at my uncle's, in Jackson County, Kansas.

Q. Were there any babies born in that family during the time you were there. A. Yes, sir, about seven.

Q. Had you seen those babies when they were very young? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Immediately after the were born? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you since then given birth to any children?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many children have you?

A. Well, I have had six living—six that have lived.

Q. Do you know whether or not this baby that you saw when you returned to your home, was a fully developed baby? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Blakeney: We object to the competency of the witness, and also that the evidence is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection.

Q. State whether or not it was a fully developed baby.

A. Yes, is was fully developed.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevane, and immaterial, and like to have the record to show that I was stating the objection while she answered, which objection was that the witness is incompetent, and the evidence is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Hanford. We make the same objection, and also object on the ground that it states—calls for a conclusion of the witness, and that she has not been properly qualified to testify in regard to that matter.

Mr. Stuart: We move to strike it out because we had no time to make the objection before the answer, on the ground that the witness is not an expert as to childbirth, or development.

Q. You say that prior to this time you had seen about seven babies just after they were born?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as immaterial; that the Witness is not an expert and cannot be competent.

Q. Since that time, you say you have given birth to six children?

Mr. Blakeney: We object as a repetition, and also, incompetent.

A. Yes, I gave birth to six children; I am the mother of six living children.

Q. From your observation, knowledge and experience with children, are you able to say whether or not—are you able to tell whether or not a baby, soon after its birth, is a fully developed baby or not?

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and object to the competency of the witness.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection.

Mr. Stuart: The same objection.

A. Why, yes, from what I have seen of children since, it looked like it was a fully developed baby.

Mr. Blakeney: I move to strike out the answer as not responsive, and particularly the last statement—we move to strike out particularly it looked like a fully developed baby.

Mr. Hanford: We join in the motion to strike.

Q. State whether or not this child was in your opinion, a fully developed baby.

Mr. Blakeney: We object to the competency of the witness, and to the testimony as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Stuart: The same objection.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection.

A. It was.

Q. Is this child that you saw there with Minnie Atkins upon your return, living or dead?

A. It was living when I first saw it.

Q. Is it living or dead now?

A. That baby that I saw at my mother's house?

Q. Yes. A. It is dead.

Q. When did it die with reference to the time you returned? A. When did it die?

Q. Yes.

Mr. Blakeney: We still object as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection.

A. Why, when it was about two weeks old.

Q. Was this child christened? A. No, sir.

Q. Baptized? A. It was baptized.

Mr. Stuart: We object to that because the record that you offered is the best evidence unless she saw it.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection.

Mr. Blakeney: The same objection.

Q. Were you present when the child was baptized?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who baptized the child? A. Father Hill.

Q. Do you know whether anybody went for him and if so, who? A. My sister and I went for him.

Q. At whose request?

A. Well, I think it was the mother.

Q. Were you present when the child died? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did he die with reference to the time that he was baptized?

A. Just soon after; I don't think he lived over an hour, or something like that—maybe a couple.

Q. Where was he buried?

A. Well, I can't say what cemetery because I wasn't acquainted with the cemeterys at that time, and I just can't say.

Q. Do you know what name was given this baby? A. Yes.

Q. What was the name? A. Robert Lee.

Q. Robert Lee Peterkin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did Minnie stay at your home after the child was born, and after the child died?

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Blakeney: The same objection.

A. Why, I think she left about the latter part of August, or the first of September—somewhere along there.

Q. Have you lived in Leavenworth since that time?

A. Ever since that time.

Q. When were you married?

A. I was married February 13th, 1888.

Q. Is your husband living now? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What business has he been engaged in or is he engaged in at this time?

Mr. Hanford: We object as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Blakeney: The same objection.

Mr. Stuart: The same objection.

A. He is a Guard at the Federal Prison at the present time.

Q. Mrs. Allen, the Court can't see you—I will ask you this question—you are a white woman? A. Sure.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as immaterial.

Mr. Stuart: We object as immaterial, and an attempt to bolster his own witness by proving color.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mrs. Allen, you were not present when the child was born? A. No, I wasn't at home.

Q. And this is the first time that you saw it—was when you arrived? A. Yes.

Q. Where was it when you saw it?

A. In bed with its mother.

Q. The mother was ill from the affects of child-birth?

A. Yes.

Q. In bed? A. Yes.

Q. Now you state that the child was a fully developed child; by that you mean, the bodily development—that it was formed and——

A. Well, he looked like a fully grown child to me. I had saw several children before that and taken care of them.

Q. But you couldn't observe or know anything about its general health? What I am trying to ask you about—what you observed was its bodily condition?

A. It looked healthy and was healthy, until just a few days before it died.

Q. Do you know what it died from?

A. Well, they said it was brain fever. I know it kept twisting and turning its head all the time on the pillow—throwing its head from one side to the other all the time.

Q. And that caused some worry, or apprehension, by its doing that—attracted attention to its actions, did it not?

A. Yes, I knew at the time—said its head must have hurt ir on account of the way it twisted its head.

Q. Did it give evidence—did you know that it suffered from it?

A. Oh, yes, you could see that it was suffering.

Q. And finally it became evident that the child was not going to live?

A. Yes, the Doctor stated that he wouldn't live, and somebody spoke about having it christened.

> Mr. Blakeney: We object to this cross-examination of Mr. Hanford, as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. Minnie, its mother, went to the funeral, did she not?

A. Yes, she went to the funeral.

Q. And I believe that she went with the child in a hack?

A. Yes, her and a colored woman went in a hack.

Q. Her and a colored woman? A. Yes.

Q. Is that the colored woman who helped her to get ready to go to the funeral?

A. Yes, that is the colored woman who washed and dressed the baby, and she held it while it died.

Q. The mother herself was ill from the affects of the child-birth, was she not?

A. Well, I don't know; she seemed to be ill at that time.

Q. Well, she was in bed, wasn't she, for some time after giving birth to this child? A. Oh, yes, the ordinary time.

Q. About how long?

A. Well, she might have laid in bed twelve days but I don't think it was any longer than that. I don't think it was because I know my mother said she was—she got up quite soon for being as sick as she was at that time.

> Mr. Blakeney: I move to strike out what her mother said as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. Who nursed the baby and took care of it, up to the time that it died, do you remember?

A. Well, my mother took care of it, I think, for a day or two days; then she left, and came out after me in the country. Then there was another lady come in and had taken care of it that I wasn't acquainted with—I had seen her but I didn't know her; that is, I wasn't personally acquainted with her.

Q. And she was taking care of it when you arrived at the house.

A. Well, the evening that I went in—the afternoon that I went in—I got to Leavenworth about noon, and I guess I saw it about one o'clock, and there were nobody in the room except the husband and mother.

Q. And you saw this woman about the house, thought, afterwards?

A. Oh, yes, I saw her, I think, once; I think she came in the next day, and there was some trouble or something—she didn't want to take care of it longer.

Q. It gave a good deal of trouble, did it not?

A. No, the baby wasn't sick, or anything; it seemed she didn't have the time to take care of it any longer.

Q. What date did you say that you arrived there at the house, Mrs. Allen? A. The 3rd of August.

Q. And you stayed at the house from then on, did you?

A. Yes, I was there for, oh, maybe a month—maybe two; I don't think that I went to work that I can remember of until October.

Q. What time of day, was it, that you arrived at the house?

A. Oh, we got into Leavenworth, I think, about noon.

Q. About noon?

A. I think so; along about the noon hour.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. How old were you when you first saw Minnie there with that baby. A. I was 18 in the March before.

Q. Eighteen; you were not married at that time?

A. No, I was not married.

Q. When was your first child born?

A. My first child was born November 19th, in '88.

Q. '88? A. Yes.

Q. A little more than two years after this child was born? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long ago has that been? About thirty years, hasn't it? A. No.

Q. How long has it been?

A. It was about—let me see—about 28 years.

Q. Well, it was in '86, you say?

A. When I first saw this baby was in '86.

Q. That is what I am talking about; that is what I mean. It has been about thirty years since you saw the baby that time? A. About twenty-nine years.

Q. You have no distinct recollection about how that baby looked twenty-nine years ago, have you? A. What is that?

Q. You haven't got an- distinct recollection about how that baby looked twenty-nine years ago, have you?

A. I would know it again if I seen it; if I seen it laying dead or as I seen it first.

Q. You would know that baby now, anywhere?

A. If it looked just like it did then, I would.

Q. You are quite sure you would know it if you were to see it now after thirty years? A. Well——

Q. Well now, your judgment as to whether that baby was developed is based on your subsequent knowledge of babies, isn't it, and not knowledge of babies that you had prior to that time?

A. Well, I had seen and taken care of maybe six or seven little children after they were a few hours old.

Q. Had you been a nurse?

A. No, m*u* uncle ~~raised~~ me and I had taken care of the children.

Q. How old were you when you were taking care of children for your uncle?

A. Twelve or thirteen, somewhere along there.

Q. You are basing your judgment on babies on what you knew at twelve or thirteen, or after you had your babies?

A. When I left my uncle, they had a baby three or four months old, and I had taken care of it until I left.

Q. You had six since 1888 that lived?

A. Yes, one lived just about two years and four or five months old.

Q. That was the first time that you ever saw Minnie Atkins? A. August 6th.

Q. That is the first time that you ever saw her? A. Yes.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Were those babies that you had seen prior to the time that you saw Minnie, were they fully developed babies at the time of their birth? A. Yes, they were.

Q. Then you never had seen an undeveloped child born?

A. Never until I had a couple of my own.

Q. Up until that time you had never seen any?

A. Never did.

Q. And all you know as to undeveloped babies was on- that you had of your own?

A. Never undeveloped baby until one of my own.

Q. How many did you have?

A. I lost two that were small.

Q. And the only undeveloped babies that you ever saw were two of your own? A. Yes.

Q. Was the old that you say helped dress the baby a colored woman? A. Yes, she was a colored woman.

Q. What was her name? A. I can't say.

Q. Was the baby that you saw there—was it a white baby?

A. Oh, you could tell it was not a full white child.

Q. What could you tell from seeing the baby, was its color?

A. Oh, I don't think it was as white as a right white child would be; I couldn't say that it was dark, and I know it was not really white.

Q. Well, did it show Indian, or negro characteristics?

A. Well, is showed it had a little Indian.

Q. Little Indian.

A. It favored its mother, I know that much.

Q. What Doctor attended it?

A. Well, I didn't know the Doctor at that time; I can't say.

Q. Well, did you ever know him afterwards?

A. Yes, I learned afterwards what Doctor it was.

Q. Well, did you know the name of the man that you saw at that time—that you afterwards learned his name?

A. Yes.

Q. What was his name? A. Carpenter.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Mrs. Allen, what do you mean by a fully developed child?

> Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and as to the competency of the witness.
> Mr. Stuart: The same objection.

A. Well, the reason I thought it was fully developed, the children I had seen——

Q. I mean what do you mean by a fully developed child? Do you mean a nine months child?

A. Yes.

> Mr. Blakeney: I move to strike that out.
> Mr. Stuart: Objected to as leading, suggestive, incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.
> Mr. Hanford: The same objections.
> Mr. Blakeney: The same objection and I move to strike the preceeding answer.
> Mr. Stuart: The same objection.

Q. State whether or not from your knowledge before and after the occurrance of which you have testified, are you able to say whether this was or was not a nine months baby?

Mr. Blakeney: We object; the competency, relevancy as to the knowledge of the child is not proper, and is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. From your knowledge of children before the birth of this child? A. You mean do I?

Q. What do you say as to whether or not this was a nine months baby?

Mr. Blakeney. We object to the competency of the witness, incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; we object to this being gone over on redirect.

Mr. Stuart: Let her answer the question.

A. I think it was a nine months child.

Recross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Did you ever see a seven months child?

A. I saw one.

Q. Will you please tell me the difference in looks between a seven months child and a nine months child?

A. The one I seen was——

Q. Well, what is the difference?

Mr. Blakeney: We object to her telling the difference about the one she saw. She shows that she is incompetent as a witness in this matter—incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. Can you tell the difference between a seven months child and a nine months child, Mrs. Allen?

A. I could.

Q. Mrs. Allen, don't you know there are lots of seven months children living, in good health today?

A. I know that.

Q. Don't you know there are lots of eight month children living, in good health today?

A. I do not.

Q. You don't? A. Don't think so.

Q. Can you tell me the peculiar difference between a seven months and a nine months child—some ear-marks that indicate the difference between them?

Mr. Blakeney: We object; the witness has shown that she is incompetent.

Mr. Allen: I object to the remark of counsel, repeated over aand over again.

Q. You cannot give any difference, can you?

Mr. Blakeney: I still object to the incompetency of the witness.

A. Shall I answer?

Q. Yes. I want you to tell me, if you can, what tje difference in looks is, between a seven and nine months child.

A. Well, a nine months child looks plump—you can tell it is fully developed; another baby isn't—a seven months baby is kind of withered.

Mr. Allen: We object to the laughing of counsel.

Mr. Blakeney: Who is laughing?

Mr. Hanford: On whose part, Judge Allen?

Mr. Allen: The part of the Government.

Mr. Hanford: Laughing on whose part?

Mr. Allen: T. W. Bell.

Mr. Blakeney: I want the record to show that objection—that nobody laughed; there was some smiling about the matter.

Q. Did you ever have a seven months child? A. No.

Q. Never did? A. I never did.

Recross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Was this seven months that you saw born in a normal way, or was it an exception by surgery?

A. Well, I can't that; I don't know how it happened—anything like that, but I just saw it.

Recross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. How do you know it was a seven months child?

A. Well, I heard the Doctor say so.

Q. That is the only information that you have?

A. The mother of it and the Doctor said so.

Mr. Blakeney: We move to strike out all this witness's evidence that pretends to be of an expert nature for the reason that she is incompetent to give expert testimony.

Recross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Was this seven months child of which you speak born exactly seven months after marriage?

A. I can't say how that was.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: We offer the deposition of Father Kelley, taken before Mr. Penick, appearing in his transcript of depositions, beginning at Page 725:

And thereupon BERNARD STEPHEN KELLEY being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What is your name? A. Bernard Stephen Kelley.
Q. Are you a Minister of the Gospel?
A. I am the Priest of the Cathedral.
Q. At Leavenworth? A. Leavenworth Kansas.
Q. Have you in your custody, the register—
A. Register of the baptism.
Q. Register of baptism?
A. I have; I will read that if you want me.
Q. Just a moment please; I want to identify that. Where is that kept?
A. This is kept in the archives of the Cathedral, on 5th and Kiowa.
Q. This is in a bound volume?
A. Bound volume, yes, sir, including all the baptisms from '75 to '95.
Q. And then the book was filled and re-placed?
A. Re-placed by a new one, yes.
Q. Have you any personal knowledge with reference to the baptism of one Robert Lee? A. I have not.
Q. In 1886?
A. No other than this record gives me.
Q. How long have you been at Leavenworth?
A. Nearly seven years.
Q. You had not been here before? A. No, sir.
Q. This record you found when you came here?
A. In the archives, yes, sir.
Q. Did you know M. J. Hill?
A. I did not; he died when I was ordained.
Q. You knew of him?
A. I knew of him from hearsay, that he was a Priest at the time all of these records show—they are all signed by him. He baptized all of these children.
Q. Have you a record there of the baptism by Father Hill, of Robert Lee, the child of Charles Peterkin?

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. I have.
Q. What page of the book does that entry appear?
A. Page 337.

Mr. German: We offer that record in evidence.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not properly identified.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection.

Mr. Stuart: We object to it but let me ask a question.

By Mr. Stuart.

Q. Father Kelley, did you make any of those entries yourself? A. I did not, sir.

Q. You don't know whether they are correct or not, personally?

A. From the natural condition of things, I know they are correct.

Q. I don't care about your argument, Father; you don't know whether they are correct or not, except from information—personally, you don't know that they are correct?

A. Personally, I didn't see the entry.

Mr. Stuart: We object to it because it is not properly identified, and not shown to be correctly kept.

By Mr. German.

Q. Let me ask you one further question. What is the practice with reference to who makes the entries of baptism?

A. The one who baptized the child; the priest who baptized the child makes the entries.

Q. In that book? A. In this book.

Q. Is that the book of original entry with reference to the baptism?

A. It is; this is the original book in which Father Hill entered this on the 15th of August, 1886—the date he baptized the child.

Mr. Blakeney: I move to strike out the last answer as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not the best evidence.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection.

Q. You stated that Father Hill is dead?
A. As far as I knew.
Q. You understand him to be dead?
A. Yes, as far as I know.

Q. I understood you to say that your understanding was that he died before you when ordained? A. I think so.

Mr. German: I want to re-offer it.

Mr. Blakeney: I interpose the same objection—incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not properly identified.

Mr. Hanford: The same objections.

Q. Who is the custodian of that record? A. I am.

Q. In whose custody has it been ever since you came here?

A. In my custody.

Q. Is the record there made, and similar records made pursuant to any rule, or canon of a church?

A. Every priest is commanded to make this record and keep a book of baptism in his parish.

Mr. German: Now, we can have the same understanding about having this read into the record?

Mr. Blakeney: Yes.

Mr. Hanford: We agree.

Mr. German: With the understanding that your objection goes to it as if the original was in.

Mr. Stuart: Yes.

Q. Father Kelley, will you please read that, in so far as it pertains to Robert Lee, from the beginning to the end?

A. Register——

Mr. Blakeney: I want to interpose the objection to anything being introduced that is not in the English language.

Mr. German: I will ask that it be copied in the Latin.

A. Registrum Baptizatorium in Ecclesia, Cath. Immac. Concep. In Civitate Leavenworthensis, Dioecesis Leavenworthensis. Nomen familiae. A. D. 1886, Die Mensis. Registrum Baptismorium. Observanda. Ego infrascriptus baptizavi, Robertum Lee, natum Die 31st Julie, 1886, ex Charles Petegin (a-Cath) ex loco West Indies et Marie Atkins, ex loco Texas, conjugibus. Patrina furit Lottie Wager. (Sg.) M. J. Hill. Petegin Aug. 15, 1886. Baptized privately at home.

Q. Father Kelly, will you please translate that into the English language?

Mr. Blakeney: We object for the same reason—incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not the best evidence.

A. Register of the Baptism in the Church of the Catholic of the Immaculate Conception in the City of Leavenworth, and Diocese of Leavenworth. The name of the family, the year and the day of the month. Register of the Baptism and the Observation. And the undersigned baptized Robert Lee, born on the 31st day of July, 1886, from the union of Charles Peterkin, a non-Catholic from West Indies and Mary Atkins, from Texas, the God-mother was Lottie Wager. M. J. Hill, signed. Baptized on the 15th day of August, 1886. Baptized privately at home. That is all.

Q. I didn't qualify you to make that translation. You understand the Latin language?

A. A little bit, yes, sir.

Q. The Court didn't see the smile; you really understand it very well indeed, do you not, Father? A. Why——

Q. You are capable of translating the Latin into the English? A. Yes, sir.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: We offer the deposition of J. J. O'Donnell, taken before Mr. Penick, appearing in his transcript of depositions, beginning at page 722:

And thereupon, J. J. O'DONNELL being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. O'Donnell, where do you live?

A. Here in the city, 518 Shawnee street.

Q. How long have you been residing at Leavenworth?

A. I was born here October 1st, 1862.

Q. You have lived here all your life?

A. It has always been my home, yes, sir.

Q. What business are you engaged in?

A. Undertaking business at the present time.

Q. Were you engaged in the undertaking business in 1886?

A. I was working for my father who was running an undertaking and furniture business.

Q. Where was your father's business located at that time?

A. 509 Delaware street.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the keeping of the books of accounts of records of your father's business at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you keep them?

A. Yes, sir, what was kept, I kept them.

Q. Have you with you this morn, the book of account showing sales of coffins and interment materials for the month*s* of August, 1896? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that it before you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember of the sale of a casket for the burial of a child by the name of Robert Lee Peterkin?

A. My records show*s* that.

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. The record shows on that date, there was a coffin sold for burial of that child; the record shows——

Q. Have you any independent recollection about that?

A. No, not particularly; that has been quite a while ago.

Q. Is that the record before you there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the date? A. August 16th, 1886.

Q. Who made the entries pertaining to that sale?

A. Who made the entry?

Q. Yes. A. I did; that is my handwriting.

Q. Is the entire entry in your handwriting?

A. Yes, sir, as far as I can see.

Q. What did you make that up from?

A. That is the report of the sale; when the goods went out, they were charged up to this gentleman. An order was received for a coffin to be turned over to him to be used for whatever purpose he wanted it.

Q. Is that the only record that has been kept of that sale?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was the entry made in the book at, or near the time of the transaction?

A. Why, the customary procedure is to enter it the same as——

Mr. Stuart: We object to that; answer the question yes, or no.

A. Why, sure; made on the same date as it went out.

Mr. German: We offer that entry in evidence.

Mr. Hanford: We object to it on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Stuart: We object because it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not properly identified.

Mr. Blakeney: What part of it do you offer?

Mr. German: What I want to know, is there any objection to its being read out of the book instead of——

Mr. Blakeney: I have no objection.

Mr. Stuart: Oh, no.

Q. Mr. O'Donnell, will you please read the entry in its entirety?

Mr. Blakeney: I have no objections to its being read but we object to the evidence.

Mr. German: I understand.

A. August 16th, 1886, Charles Peterkin, Company E, 18th Regulars, One three foot, plain, walnut coffin, no glass or coffin box, three dollars and seventy-five cents. The name is Robert Lee Peterkin, age about 4 weeks, buried in Mr. Muncie. That is all the record. There was no public records kept and that is all we keep for our own information.

Q. Now, there is a little further entry with reference to the payment.

A. Well, August 16th, credited by cash, three dollars. Balance due, seventy-five cents, which never [] collected.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: We offer the deposition of A. S. Schott, taken before Mr. Penick, appearing in his transcript of depositions, beginning at page 719.

A. L. SCHOTT, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Will you please state your name, age and place of residence?

A. A. L. Schoot, age 45—nearest birthday—and residence is 1311 South Broadway.

Q. What official position do you hold at this time with Mt. Muncie cemetery?

A. Superintendent, Secretary, Treasurer.

Q. Is Mt. Muncie Cemetery incorporated?

A. I think it is, although I can't find the charter. It was established in 1886, before the time that corporation charters were issued, I think; established in 1886, under the law in Kansas prevailing at that time.

Q. Under the present name of Mt. Muncie Cemetery?

A. Yes, sir, Mt. Muncie Cemetery Association.

Q. Has it been since that time a burial ground?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As Superintendent, Secretary, Treasurer, Mt. Muncie Cemetery, have you the custody—in your custody—the records showing interment in that cemetery? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the book I am now handing you?

A. That is a volume of interment certificates.

Q. Are those the original certificates of interment in your possession? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About which you have testified? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Those certificates are not numbered in the book, are they? A. They are; each certificate carries a number.

Q. I call your attention now to number 4239 and ask you what it is?

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and not the best evidence.

A. The certificate shows that the name of the deceased is given as Robert Lee; place of nativity, Leavenworth; late residence 615 8th street; date of birth July 31, 1886; date of death August 15, 1886; date of interment August 16th, 1886, 5 o'clock, P. M.; Disease, brain fever; parents names, Charles and Minnie Peterkin; in whose lot interred, county; section 12, row 18, grave 64; name on undertaker, O'Donnell; permit obtained by Minnie Peterkin as certified that the person above named died of the disease named on the date named; signed, John Hannon, Chairman of Committee on Poor. Here is a note here.

Q. That is alright.

A. It says, no interment allowed unless signed by certificate of physician or undertaker. The caption is, certificate from Mt. Muncie Cemetery.

Q. Have you read everything that is contained in that certificate?

A. This is a cancelling stamp on it—Auditor's office, Cancelled Leavenworth, Kansas, which shows it went through the county officer's office, as some others, for payment by the county.

Mr. Allen: We offer the certificate, identified by the witness in evidence.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Hanford: We object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial; it not being pertinent to any of the issues in this controversy.

Mr. Allen: It has been read into the record. There will be no objection on account of the original not being offered, will there?

Mr. Blakeney: No.

Mr. Hanford: The original is offered.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon, Sister MARY GERTRUDE was called as a witness for and on behalf of the Government, and having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Pinson.

Q. Will you state your name?

A. Sister Mary Gertrude.

Q. What is your calling in life, Sister Mary Gertrude?

A. I am a Sister of Charity.

Q. With what institution if any are you connected?

A. With St. John Hospital, Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. How long have you been connected with that institution? A. Nearly five years.

Q. You went there in 1912?

A. Yes, sir—— No, I went in 1911 and staid until 1915, then I was away, and I have been back since August, 1916.

Q. Is your connection with the Hospital such as to place you at the head of the institution?

A. No, sir, I am secretary.

Q. As secretary of the institution, do you have custody of the records? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For the institution? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you a record, have you always had a record there pertaining to the things of the inmates and the dates upon which they were in your hospital? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I hand you a book, which I will ask the Stenographer to identify as Government's Exhibit A-81. I ask you to state what the volume is, I hand you Government's Exhibit A-81. What do you call that volume?

A. I don't know what you mean.

The Court: What book do you call that?

A. We call that the Hospital Register.

Q. Is that the book that contains a portion of your record to which you referred a few moments ago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the time you came to St. John Hospital and during your connection with that institution, is that the register which you have used? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the register now in use?

A. No, sir, I have one three years, a new one of three years, going on three years.

Q. Then, I understand you, up to three years ago, this particular book was used by you and the hospital?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to an entry appearing on page 5 of this record, referring to the name of Minnie Pedikin, appearing as Patient No. 44. Are you familiar with the handwriting of the person who made that entry? A. No, sir.

Q. What is the date opposite that name, which purports to be the date at which that person was in the Hospital?

A. October 7th, 1886.

Q. Are you familiar with the circumstances surrounding the making of that entry?

A. No, sir, I don't know the one who made it, I wasn't there then.

Q. Was that entry upon the books there and is the book in the same condition as when it was delivered to you in 1912?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention——

> The Court: Is there any question about the authenticity of this book?
> Mr. Stuart: No, sir.
> The Court: Then, I take it that it will be agreed that this party named there appeared in October, 1886, as appears?
> Mr. Pinson: Just one other question, if Your Honor please.

Q. I call your attention further to a notation appearing in the index, which reads as follows: "Atkins, Minnie, Pedikin five." In whose handwriting is that?

A. That is my handwriting.

Q. What was the occasion of your making that entry?

A. Well, so many called asking about her that I thought I would find it easier, because they asked for Atkinson and there isn't in the book any Atkins or Atkinson.

Q. That record was made for your convenience since this matter came up? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what date it was that you made that entry in the index? A. No.

Q. Approximately?

A. Well, I don't remember, it might have been two years ago, something like that, when they were around asking questions about her.

Mr. Pinson: Now, if Your Honor please, it might be admitted that the entry is in the handwriting of a sister who is now dead, and that that can be testified to by another sister.

The Court: Will there be any question about that?

Mr. Stuart: I don't think so, Your Honor, not a bit in the world.

The Court: Let the record show that this entry—that it is admitted that this entry is in the handwriting of a sister who is now dead.

Mr. Pinson: We now offer the book in so far as it pertains to the entry just referred to, the entry appearing at page five, and if I may read that into the record.

The Court: Let it be examined first.

Mr. Pinson: One other question.

Q. Do you know the period of time covered by this record, can you tell from an examination of the volume?

A. I can tell from looking at it, yes, sir. That is 1885.

Q. Well, just what date in 1885 does the volume begin?

A. March 12th.

Q. And I believe you have already said that it extended up until about three years ago?

A. Yes, December 31, 1913.

Q. Now, have you made an examination of this record to ascertain whether the name Minnie Atkins or Minnie Peterkin is upon that record as at any other time being a patient in your institution?

A. No, I have never found it in the world.

Q. You have made an examination? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You never found it except the one time? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you any other record in your institution on which a patient from 1884 to 1888 would be contained?

A. No, I don't think so.

Q. No such record has come into your possession?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Pinson: We now offer in evidence the notation referring to—— May I read it into the record?

The Court: Yes, I would like to have the Stenographer show the lines and the headings. Have you concluded your direct examination?

Mr. Pinson: Yes, sir.

The Court: Any cross?

Mr. Stuart: No, sir.

Mr. German: We now offer the deposition of Elmo E. Matthews, taken before Mr. Penick, appearing in his transcript of depositions, beginning on page 19.

And thereupon ELMO D. MATHEWS, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. What is your name?
A. Sergeant, first class, Elmo D. Mathews, hospital.
Q. What are your duties as first class Sergeant?
A. Sergeant, first class.
Q. Sergeant, first class, hospital corps?
A. Why, preparation of reports and supervising the hospital in general.
Q. Do you have charge of the records of the hospital?
A. I have.
Q. Have you a record of the births in the hospital in 1888?
A. Yes.
Q. What record is that?
A. It is the record of the Medical Department and it shows under the——
Q. You needn't show that now. It is the report of——
A. The Medical Department.
Q. Is that record required by law to be kept in your charge by the hospital department?
A. Yes, by the Medical Department.
Q. Is this the book—that you have in your hand—the original record of the births and deaths occurring at the hospital?
A. It is.
Q. During the time it shows? A. It is.
Q. Was this record made under Regulations of the War Department? A. It was.
Q. How long have you been in the custody of these records? A. Over a year.
Q. Whom did you receive them from?
A. From my predecessor, Sergeant Fontaine.
Q. You were relieved by him at that time?
A. I relieved him at that time.
Q. I mean you relieved him at that time? A. Yes, sir.
Q. I will ask you to examine the record and see whether or not you have any record of the birth of any child in August 1888.

Mr. Hanford: I object—go ahead.

A. There is a record of a child in August 1888.
Q. In what place in the record is this birth shown?

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial and not pertaining to the issues of the case.

Q. You may answer. What place in the record?
A. Page 70; page 70 consolidated report of the Medical Department.
Q. What is the name of the child this record shows was born at that time?

Mr. Hanford: I object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. Nancy Peterkin.

Mr. Allen: We now offer in evidence page 70 of the record identified by the witness.

Mr. Hanford: I object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and not tending to prove or disprove any issue —any fact or issue involved in this case.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and not a record required by law or any proper authority to be kept, and it is incompetent and not properly identified and immaterial. I do not object to the form of putting it in, if it is admissible.

Mr. Allen: May the witness read into the record the page of the record identified?

Mr. Blakeney: We have no objection—that is, subject to our exception; we have no objection to it if it is admitted, to his reading it into the record as evidence.

Q. You may read the page of the record referred to.
A. Register of birth during the month—day—August 4th, 1888; sex, female; name of child, Nancy Peterkin; father, name, rank and regiment, or corps of father, and if civilian, his occupation, Charles Peterkin, Company A, 18th Infantry; maiden name of mother, Minnie Atkins; race or nationality of parents, father West Indian—mother, American; age of parents, father 29, mother 24; number of child by this mother, first.
Q. What is that?
A. Signed by Charles Richards, Captain and Assistant Surgeon, U. S. Army.
Q. For what year is this? For what period is this—for what period of time does this record cover—the hook from which you read this entry?

A. From November 1887 to June 30th, 1889.

Q. Does this record cover—include all the births and deaths occurring at the—what do you call this—the Post Hospital? A. The Military Reservation.

Q. At the hospital for the Military Reservation, is that what it is?

A. I wasn't here at that time and can't say.

Q. Does this record include all of the births or deaths occurring at the Post hospital during the period of time that you have mentioned?

A. I wasn't at the Post at that time and can't say but the directions of the Surgeon-General are that all deaths and births and marriages occurring on the Military Reservation be recorded.

Q. Is it so considered and recognized? A. It is.

Q. Is this the official record in your custody? A. It is.

Q. Of the births and deaths occurring at the—on the Military Reservation? A. It is.

Mr. Hanford: Just a minute; I want the record to show on my statement, the participation of Mr. Meserve in the examination of this witness, suggestion questions, and interrogation of the witness, and my objection to the same.

Mr. German: Mr. Meserve was not appearing.

Mr. Blakeney: I want to withdraw my objection to the introduction of this record.

Q. Does the record identified by you show the death of Nancy Peterkin? A. It does.

Q. Where does this entry appear?

A. During the report for the month of June, 1889?

Q. Will you read—

Mr. Allen: Is there any objection to the witness reading the page of this record showing the report of the—

Mr. Hanford: Put your question so that we can tell when you are through—

Mr. Allen: We now offer in evidence, sheet No. 1, opposite page 98, in so far as it shows anything concerning the death of Nancy Peterkin.

Mr. Hanford: Let the record state what it shows.

Mr. Allen: I will state what I want to prove and you may object to it.

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and has no bearing upon the issues of the case.

Mr. Allen: Is there any objection to the witness reading the page of the record identified?

Mr. Blakeney: There is no objection to the form in which it is offered, is it?

Mr. Hanford: No objection to the form; I object to the testimony.

Q. Alright; you may read.

A. Register of death among civilians with the command, during the month; name, Nancy Peterkin, age 10 months and 24 days; sex, female; race, white father, Indian Mother; cause, cholera infantum; date, June 28th, 1889.

Mr. German: Give the name of the surgeon, please.

A. Charles Richard, Assistant Surgeon, U. S. Army.

Q. Signed? A. Signed, Charles Richard.

Q. This page of the record—state whether or not this page of the record is a part of the same record identified by you as showing the birth of Nancy Peterkin.

A. It is except a different month.

Q. It is in the same book? A. Same book, yes, sir.

Q. Is there any other record in your possession showing the dates of births and deaths during the period that you have testified a while ago, this record covers?

A. This is the only official record that we have.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. You say that this is a book kept in the hospital?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What hospital do you refer to?

A. The Post hospital, Fort Logan, Colorado.

Q. By whom is the book kept? By who was the entries made and when made—when made?

A. I was not present at the time; they are authenticated by the signature of Charles Richard, Captain, Assistant Surgeon.

Q. Do you keep this record up to this time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When are the records made in this book in reference to——

A. They are made at the end of each month; the records are posted.

Q. These are the monthly reports?

A. Monthly reports, yes, sir. These reports are made at the end of each and every month to the Surgeon-General of the Army.

Q. How is it transmitted to the Surgeon-General of the Army?

A. By mail; a copy of this report is forwarded to the Surgeon-General of the Army.

Q. Do you make this report in duplicate?

A. Duplicate, yes, sir.

Q. One copy is kept in the hospital?

A. Yes, sir, and one on file in Washington, D. C.

Q. Who is Mr. Charles Richard? Was he Assistant Surgeon of the Army at that time? A. He was.

Q. At this Post? A. Yes, sir.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: We offer the deposition of EDWARD L. BATTERTON, taken before Mr. Penick, appearing in his transcript, beginning at page 2.

At Fort Logan, Colorado, on December 30th, 1915, at the office of the Quartermaster, at 10:35 A. M., testimony herein was taken as follows, on behalf of the United States:

EDWARD L. BATTERTON being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What is your name? A. Edward L. Batterman.

Q. What relationship do you bear to the United States Army?

A. Quartermaster-Sergeant, Quartermaster Corps is my rank.

Q. Where are you stationed? A. Fort Logan, Colorado.

Q. What age are you? A. 45.

Q. How long have you been stationed at Fort Logan?

A. Since March 14th, 1915.

Q. Were you ever stationed at Fort Logan prior to that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you any duties pertaining to the keeping of records at the Post? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do those records include the records pertaining to the Post cemetery?

A. Yes, sir, the record of interment at the Post cemetery; that is a part of my duties under the Post Quartermaster—under the Quartermaster of the Post, rather.

Q. Have you the record book of interment at Fort Logan?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have it with you now? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does it contain any entries with reference to one Mabel Peterkin?

Mr. Blakeney: Henry Carter objects as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial; not tending in any manner to enlighten or affect the issues involved in this case.

Mr. Hanford: The defendants Minnie Folk, Harry B. Folk, Edward C. Hanford, object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial to any of the issues involved in this case.

Q. I am not asking now for the entry.
A. I understand. Yes, sir, it does.
Q. Where in the record does that entry appear?
A. Under No.—running number 66, page 2, record book of interment of Post Cemetery, Post Logan, Colorado.
Q. Is that the only page in the book where——
A. The only page in this book.
Q. How does it happen that that interment record is kept?
A. Do you mean the authority for keeping it?
Q. Yes. A. Army Regulations 497, I believe it was.
Q. Provide for it?
A. In accordance with Army Regulations 497, of 1915.
Q. Do you know how long that has been any Army Regulation? A. No, I am unable to say.
Q. That is a part of what Article, Mr. Batterton?
A. Article 48.
Q. Do you know what was the number of the Regulation in force in 1889? A. I am unable to say.
Q. That can be obtained at the War Department, at the office of the War Department?
A. Yes, it can be obtained there; they have copies of all the Regulations. That is not part of the record in this question, is it?
Q. Yes.
A. Well, it may be obtained at the War Department if they feel free to give it.
Q. Have you that Regulation here? A. I have not.
Q. The entry that you referred to in this book—will you read it into the record, please sir, the Regulation that you have just referred to? A. You mean that 497?
Q. 497, yes, sir.

Mr. Blakeney: Henry Carter objects as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection on the part of the defendants Minnie Folk, Harry B. Folk and Edward C. Hanford.

Q. Paragraph 497 of Army Regulations, 1915; record of interment will be kept by Quartermaster which will be turned over by him when relieved to his successor, or transmitted to the Quartermaster-General if the Post be discontinued.
Q. There are some changes in the verbiage there, I notice Mr. Batterton; what are those changes?

A. Changing the designation from chief of the Quartermaster Corps to Quartermaster General.

Q. Do you know when that change was made?

A. I can find out if it is necessary.

Q. You don't recall? A. I don't recall.

Q. It is since the promulgation—I mean it is since the publication of the bound volume from which you have read that Regulation?

A. Yes; it is a change in the designation and does not affect the book as printed any more than the name of the head of the Department.

Q. Where did you get the interment record which you have? I don't mean this morning but when you assumed charge of the records.

A. From Quartermaster-Sergeant A. W. Stanley, who turned them over to me by order of the Quartermaster in March 1915 when I took charge of the office—that ought not to be when I took charge of the office, but when I took charge of the property grounds.

Q. What is the entry contained in that book with reference to Mabel Peterkin?

Mr. Blakeney: I object to that as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Hanford: I object on the grounds that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and I further object on the ground that the witness is not competent as his testimony and the Army Regulations disclose that he is not the proper custodian of this record qualified to testify as to its contents.

Mr. Blakeney: Also the further objection that the record is not properly identified.

Mr. German: I will withdraw that question.

Q. Who is the custodian of this record?

A. Who is the custodian?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. The Quartermaster or his agent if he should delegate them to take care of them.

Q. Has he made any delegation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who has he delegated? A. Delegated myself.

Q. So you are the custodian?

A. Yes, sir, through his orders.

Q. Was that a verbal or written delegation? A. Verbal.

Q. Will you please——

Mr. Hanford: I withdraw my objection as to the competency of the witness.

Mr. Blakeney: I withdraw my objection and object to this evidence on the ground that it is irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial.

Mr. German: Not that the witness is not qualified to testify with reference to the record?

Mr. Blakeney: I withdraw all that objection and interposed a new objection.

Mr. German: You withdraw also you- objection sofar as it reaches the question of the competency of the witness to testify concerning the record?

Mr. Hanford: Yes; all I want to do is to go ahead and get through. He has the book but I stand on my objection as to this testimony, that it is not competent in this case.

Mr. German: That it is immaterial evidence in this law suit, is that your contention?

Mr. Hanford: Yes.

Q. Now Sergeant, will you please—are you at liberty to allow this record to be introduced into evidence and carried by the Examiner to the court at Muskogee, Oklahoma?

A. The provisions of the Army Regulations does not prohibit me from giving this evidence.

Q. You didn't quite answer my question. Are you at liberty to allow this record itself to be taken by the Examiner, Mr. Penick, to the court at Muskogee? A. No, sir.

Mr. German: I now offer in evidence the book referred to, in so fas as it contains entries pertaining to Mabel Peterkin.

Mr. Hanford: I object on the part of Minnie E. Folk, Harry E. Folk, and Edward C. Hanford on the grounds that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and not pertaining to any of the issues in this case.

Mr. Blakeney: I object to this evidence offered because it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and not tending to prove or disprove any issue in this case.

Mr. German: Now gentlemen, not waiving your objections, may not the Examiner copy that entry so far as that is concerned and that be satisfactory evidence to the Court if the Court admits it, to what the book shows?

Mr. Blakeney: I agree.

Mr. Hanford: I agree to that.

A. Record book of interment, Post Cemetery at Fort Logan, Colo.; running number 66; name, Mabel Peterkin; rank, daughter of Private Peterkin; Regiment E, 18th Infantry; date of death, Month June; day, 28th; year 1889; grave marks, section E, No. 100; original place of burial locality, section E79.

Q. Now, is there another entry pertaining to Mabel Peterkin? A. No, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Sergeant, this book contains the entries showing interment—all interments at the Post Cemetery, does it not?
A. I can't positively say.
Q. I will call your attention to No. 32 on the opposite page; what does that show?
A. Wallace, infant son of Lieut. Wallace.
Q. Date of death?
A. Date of death May 10th, 1896; grave mark, Section D, No. 56; original place of burial, section E82.

> Mr. German: I desire to enter an objection. I move to strike the last question and answer on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and improper cross examination.

> Mr. Blakeney: I move to strike the last question and answer by Mr. Hanford as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. That book, you say, was turned over to you with all of the entries on the 1st and 2nd pages that have been referred to, entered as they now appear?
A. I don't quite get all of that question. (Question read.)
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you know in whose handwriting they are made?
A. I would like to say something here that is not in the record. I am not sure that I do that it is this gentleman right here, Mr. Kane.
Q. Do you know when they were made? A. No, sir.
Q. Isn't this record, a copy of some former record kept in the Post? A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you think that was copied by Mr. Kane?
A. Yes.

> Mr. Blakeney: We now move to strike all of the evidence as to this record as secondary, incompetent and immaterial.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Do you know when Mr. Kane may have copied that into the book you hold? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know what he may have copied it from?

A. No. sir.

Q. Is this the only record that you have pertaining to the record of interments at this Post, at the Cemetery at this Post?

A. I can't positively say but I believe that the former record is on file some place in this Post, in the Department, I mean; in the Quartermaster's Department of this Post.

Q. Which is the official record, this one or the other one?

A. They are both accepted as such.

Q. How did this one happen to be made?

A. I can't say.

Q. Who is Mr. Kane?

A. Mr. Kane, is the retired First Sergeant, now *i*mployed by the Quartermaster.

Q. In what capacity, clerk or what?

A. I don't know just how he is borne on the rolls—teamster.

Q. Teamster? A. Yes, borne on the rolls as teamster.

Q. Has he any duties with reference to the making up of records? A. He did have at the time this record was made.

Q. Was it made before or after you were assigned to this Post? A. Before.

Q. You recognize it as his from the handwriting.

A. Yes, sir.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon, EDWARD L. BATTERTON, being recalled on behalf of the defendants, Minnie E. Folk and others, further testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. You may state your name. A. Edward L. Batterton.

Q. Your rank?

A. Quartermaster-Sergeant, Quartermaster Corps.

Q. Stationed at Fort Logan, Colorado? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have in your possession at the present time, a record known as the record book of interment, Post Cemetery, at Fort Logan, Colorado? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That record is particularly in your custody?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And required to be kept by you as a part of your official duties? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That record is required to be kept by Articles of War?

A. Yes, sir. No, not by Articles of War.

Q. By Army Regulations? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to entry No. 32, page 1 of that record book and ask you what that shows?

Mr. German: I object to that on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. I do not object to the witness reading from the book into the record in the event that the information given by the record is material evidence in this case.

Mr. Blakeney: I object to the evidence as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and I ask here to offer the examination of the witness on my cross-examination on voir dire in this matter which shows that the record is incompetent as evidence.

Q. Read the entry, Sergeant.

A. Running number, 32; name, Wallace; rank, infant son of Lieut. Wallace; date of death, month May; day, 10th; year, 1896; grave mark, section D, No. 56; original place of burial, section E82.

Q. You were previously sworn in this case, were you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the first opening today? A. Yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Are you acquainted with Lieut. Wallace—is that it?

A. Yes, sir, Wallace—Lieut. Wallace.

Q. Lieut. Wallace? A. No, sir.

Q. He is not living at the Post at this time? A. No, sir.

Q. I notice that this entry No. 32, is found on page 1 of your record; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And No. 66 that you formerly read is found on page 2?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is correct, is it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Explain why deaths that occurred in—I call your attention to 28 which I notice, that the death is recorded to have taken place in 1908. I will ask you if this record does not show that it does not appear to be a record made in the order which the deaths seem to have occurred?

A. I didn't get all of that question.

Mr. Blakeney: I will withdraw the question.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: We offer the deposition of George F. Cain, taken before Mr. Penick, appearing in his transcription, beginning at page 12.

And thereupon GEORGE F. KANE, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What is your name? A. George F. Kane.

Q. You live at Fort Logan, Colorado? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What relationship do you bear to the United States Army? What is your rank? A. I am a retired soldier.

Q. What is your age? A. About 60.

Q. What is your rank—what office did you hold in the Army? A. First Sergeant.

Q. And you have been retired for about how long?

A. Fifteen years.

Q. You have served your full term of 30 years?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are now in the office of the Quartermaster-Sergeant at Fort Logan?

A. Yes, sir, the Quartermaster's Department.

Q. What are your duties?

A. Labor in the Quartermaster's Department.

Q. Do you keep any records? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you keep any of the records? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have anything to do with making up the records in the Quartermaster's office?

A. Yes, I am in charge of the property branch and records.

Q. You hold book in your hands, known as the record book of interment at Post Cemetery at Fort Logan, Colorado?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who made the entries in that book?

A. These entries or the original ones?

Q. Those entries in that book? A. I did it.

Q. When did you do that?

A. I ain't sure but I think it was in 1899. I think that was the time when they interred a lot of these people who were buried up there.

Q. What do you mean by that? Re-interred?

A. Yes, re-interred them.

Q. Did they rearrange the cemetery at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the place of burial of those who were buried there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that the occasion of making up a new interment record?

A. Yes, sir; they would take them out of one grave and place in others.

Q. Do you mean 1909? A. Yes.

Q. Instead of 1899? A. Yes; I wasn't here in 1899.

Q. About 7 or 8 years ago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About six years ago, I should say. A. Yes.

Q. That is when you made this book which you are holding in your hand? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it at that time in 1909 that this rearrangement of the cemetery—— A. To the best of my belief, it was.

Q. Under whose—how come you to make that book? Who had you do it?

A. Some officer of the 21st Infantry; he had charge of the changing of the graves—the rearranging of them.

Q. Where was the information contained on this book—in this book, obtained from?

A. I guess it must have been obtained from the original book; whether it is here or not; I guess it is, I ain't sure.

Q. Have you looked for it this morning? A. Not yet.

Q. I notice in this record that the first twenty-two running numbers seem to run in regular order so far as the date of death of these interred are concerned; that after that, they are not in regular order so far as the dates are concerned. How does that occur?

A. I don't know; they ain't in rotation.

Q. For instance, number 32 appears to have died in 1896, whereas number 29 appears to have died in 1908 and number 47 appears to have died in 1904 but number 48 appears to have died ten years prior to that and in 1893. How comes—how does that happen that they now come in that order?

A. Well, I guess they come in that order from the other book; that is all that I can explain.

Q. But I notice—what is the order so far as they are interred on this book is concerned—what relationship does it bear to the location of the graves in the cemetery?

A. I don't know. I guess we will have to get that other book; get it out and hunt it out.

Q. At any rate you gathered the information that [] have placed on this record that you have in your hand, in your lap, and that you placed on there in 1909 from the other book?

> Mr. Blakeney: It is my objection that this is secondary evidence, causing all of this later evidence—I withdraw my objection that the first entries made were not in original evidence—the first evidence offered was not the original evidence and don't object because it is secondary.

Mr. German: Alright.

Mr. Allen: Alright.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: We now offer Sections 558 to 593, both inclusive, of the Regulations for the Army of the United States, in force in 1889, relating to the Post cemetery; we have here a certified copy of them.

Mr. Cruce: What is the materiality of that testimony?

Mr. German: The evidence which has just been offered by depositions shows the burial of Alice, or Mabel Peterkin, at Fort Logan in 1889, at the Post cemetery, at Fort Logan, Colorado, and it was proved by certain records in the custody of the Quartermaster Sergeant at Fort Logan, and I simply am proving that these records are kept pursuant to certain regulations as was testified to by the witness.

The Court: What is the purport of those regulations?

Mr. German: The first Section I referred to, relates * * *

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: I would like permission of the Court for the court reporter to copy these sections, that this book may be returned, and make copy of these regulations and insert same at this point. That record is Exhibit A-82.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: We offer the deposition of Mary Land, taken before Mr. Penick, appearing in his transcription of said depositions, beginning on page 15.

MIRIAN LAND being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Your name is Mrs. Marian Land? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Where do you live Mrs. Land?
A. I live in Logantown.
Q. Colorado?
A. Yes; Fort Logan, Colorado, is my address.
Q. How long have you lived here?
A. About 23 years, I *h*uess.

Q. Do you remember what year you came in?

A. No, I can't remember positively. If I had of knowed what questions I had to answer—I have got my marriage certificate there—but it is about 23 years as near as I can remember. My husband went to the Cuban war and he never came back and he died of malarial fever and we had been married six years when he left here.

Q. What was his name?

A. G. W. Land—George Washington Land; he was a soldier for six years.

Q. Did you know an Indian woman by the name of Minnie Atkins? A. An Indian woman?

Q. Yes. A. I never knowed her by Atkins.

Q. Did you know an Indian woman here at Logantown?

A. At the same time, at that time?

A. Yes, when you came here. A. No.

Q. Did you ever know an Indian woman that lived at Logantown?

A. Only Minnie—Minnie Peterkins; I never knowed the other. I didn't go round much. I was here quite awhile before I went around much. I never remember another Indian woman around here myself.

Q. Except Minnie Peterkin? A. Except Minnie Peterkin.

Q. Was she living here when you came here?

A. I can't swear to that, as I told you.

Q. Do you remember how long it was after you first came here before you first knew Minnie Peterkin?

A. How is that?

Q. Do you remember how long it was after you first came here before you first knew Minnie Peterkin?

Q. Oh, I was here about a couple of years, I guess, as near as I can remember.

Q. You don't remember her well, do you?

A. No, awful poor. That is the reason that I hate to have anything to do with anything like this. I was here and I must have been here about two years because when I knowed her, of course that was after I bought the little place. I built another one, so I must have been here two years any how.

Q. Did Minnie ever live in any of your property?

A. She lived in the little house where those two men found me. I lived in the Fort and she lived in the little house over there. That was the winter of the Cuban war, that she lived there; I know, because it was while they were down to the war. Of course you fellows remember our Cuban war—I have lost tract of it—is it 17 years, or 18?

Q. 17. A. 17—that is what I thought.

Q. Now did you know Minnie before she lived in your little house?

A. No, I didn't know her; I just knowed her around. I just knowed her around but I didn't know of her any more than to just know of her just like anybody you see back and forth.

Q. How old are you Mrs. Lamb?

A. I was 67 last May—the last day of May.

Q. Did Minnie have any children so far as you know?

A. She had one but whether—it seems to me that she had the second one when in that little house of mine but that I can't swear to.

Q. Do you know the names of those children?

A. No, I do not. I knew the name of Charlie—that was the oldest one—but the other, I don't remember the name and I can't remember to swear to whether the second boy, or the girl was the oldest.

Q. Were there two boys and one girl that you knew of?

A. Two boys and one girl; if I remember right, the second child was born in that little house of mine, but as I told you, I can't remember it well enough to swear to it.

Q. Did you learn of either of those three children dying?

A. I can't remember, as I tell you, sir; it seems to me that one of them did.

> Mr. Hanford: I object to the question and move that that portion of the answer that was gotten in before my objection, be stricken on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and does not pertain to any of the issues in this case.
> Mr. Blakeney; I also object for the reason that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and move that the answer of the witness be stricken that was given before the objection could be interposed.

A. That little man that was in here just a little while ago—

> Mr. Hanford: I object.

Q. Was your husband a member of the Infantry?

A. Yes, he belonged to the 7th Infantry but he was not a soldier when he left here.

Q. Did you ever learn of Minnie having any children besides those three?

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.
> Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and seeking hearsay.

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you ever know of Minnie having any other children besides those three? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know of a man named Harrison? A. Yes.

Q. Having lived with Minnie?

A. I knowed she was always good friends with him; of course, the rest is none of my business.

Q. Do you remember his given name?

A. No; he run a little butcher shop down there

Q. Did you know of Charles Peterkin and Minnie—

A. No, he was about that high when I knowed him.

Q. That is the child that you refer to?

A. Yes; it was Minnie's boy—I never knowed any other.

Q. Did you know the name of the man—of any man that associated with Minnie before this man Harrison did?

A. No.

Q. At the time that you knew Minnie, was this man Harrison associating with her or not?

> Mr. Hanford: I object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Q. I want to change the question; I will ask the question over. Consider the objections to it in its new form. Did you know of any man living with Minnie before this man Harrison lived with her?

> Mr. Hanford: I object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. No.

Witness dismissed.

> Mr. German: We offer the deposition of James O'Conner, taken before Mr. Penick, appearing in his transcription of depositions, beginning at page 27.

And thereupon, JAMES O'CONNER being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Your name is James O'Conner? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you at this time in the United States Army, Mr. O'Conner? A. Retired, yes, sir.

Q. What was your rank? A. Post Commissary Sergeant.

Q. When did you enter the service of the United States?

A. In 1883—that is, in the service of the United States—I mean the Navy.

Q. You were in the Navy at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you enter the Army? A. In 1885.

Q. Were you ever stationed at Fort Logan, Colorado?

A. I was, sir.

Q. Where do you live now?

A. I live in Littleton, Colorado.

Q. How far is that from Fort Logan?

A. It is three and seven-tenths miles.

Q. When did you first come to Fort Logan?

A. In March—March 19th, '89.

Q. How long were you stationed at Fort Logan?

A. From that time until December 20th, 1890 and again—this, however, was my station all the time but we was up after the Indians in the Sioux campaign.

Q. How long were you up there? A. Three months.

Q. Then how long did you continue at Fort Logan?

A. Until April 7th, '98.

Q. Where did you go then?

A. Went to Tampa, Florida, on our way to Cuba.

Q. And you went to Cuba and then returned to the mainland? A. Then returned to New York.

Q. Were you ever located in Indiana? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you ever at Fort Wayne? A. I was, sir.

Q. What state is that in? A. Michigan.

Q. When were you transferred to Fort Wayne, approximately? A. I went to Fort Wayne in November 1899.

Q. How long were you there? A. About 7 months.

Q. Now, when you first came to Fort Logan in the spring of 1899, did you know an Indian woman named "Minnie"—whose given name was "Minnie"—or did you know her, and if so, when?

A. I knew her about three or four months after coming here; that is, I knew her by name but didn't know her personally.

Q. Who was she living with when you first knew her?

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. Who was she living with?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, she was living with either one of two men; which, I don't know.

Q. What was their name?

A. One's name was Cunningham and the other man's name was Harrison.

Q. Did you know of her having any children?

A. I knew of——

Mr. Hanford: I object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. I know of her having one child, at least; that is, when I came to know her personally, and that child was to be buried the next day.

Q. How long was that after you came here, approximately?

A. Approximately four or five months; maybe longer.

Q. Did you know the name of that child? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know of her having any other children?

Mr. Hanford: We object to that as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. I know of seeing her; whether it was before this child died or afterwards—I seen two little tots running around Harrison's butcher shop, back of there, you know—the man she lived with—which I presumed was hers.

Q. Did you know whether they were boys or girls?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know of Minnie living—where, with reference to Fort Logan, was it that Minnie was living?

A. She was living, not in Fort Logan—she was living at the town of Sheridan—the town outside of Fort Logan.

Q. How close is that to the Fort?

A. Well, about 40 feet across the railroad track.

Q. Just across the railroad track? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There is a little town there?

A. A little town; this is called Logantown—it properly belongs to the town of Sheridan.

Q. Did you know of Minnie leaving here between the time that you first knew her and the time that you left here in [illegible]?

A. Yes, sir, I remember her leaving on the train; where she was going to, I don't know.

Q. Did you have any conversation with her at that time?

A. Not any, except to say, goodbye Minnie—where are you going?

Q. What did she say?

A. She said, I am going to get some money. I said, good luck to you; in fact there was a half a dozen of us there—we just went down for a walk at the time.

Q. Did she or not have these two children with her at that time?

A. If my memory serves me right, she had these children with her at that time but they might have belonged to some one else because there were two or three women with her. It was on this Uncle Sam, you know.

Q. You referred to the Uncle Sam—what do you refer to?

A. That is the train between here and Denver—that is the official name of it, you know.

Q. Did you ever see these children after that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever see Minnie after that? A. Once.

Q. Where? A. Fort Wayne, Michigan.

Q. After you had been to the Cuban war? A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any conversation with her at Fort Wayne, Mich.?

A. No, sir, just simply to say, how-do-you-do, Minnie? I passed her on the side-walk; I knew of her being there but I didn't meet her until that time. She had been over to my house.

Q. Who was she living with up there—what man?

Mr. Hanford: I object as irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial.

A. I can't speak his name now; he belonged to the band, however—a tall man.

Q. To refresh your memory, was it Price or Rice?

Mr. Hanford: We object to that on the ground——

A. Rice—now I can see the man very plainly.

Mr. Hanford: Objected to because it is leading.

Q. That was in 1900—I have forgotten what year you said you were in Fort Wayne? A. In 1899.

Q. You have never seen her since?

A. I have never seen her since.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Sergeant, the Uncle Sam train is the one that carries the Post people now into town—that is, into Denver when they want to go?

A. Yes, it is the local train that flies between Denver and Fort Logan.

Q. People who live out here travel backward and fourth a good deal, do they not? A. They do, sir.

Q. Seeing a person going aboard the Uncle Sam, is nothing unusual, is it?

A. No, nothing unusual without these people going aboard says goodbye—they are going away—and then of course, it would be kind of——

Q. I understand you saw Minnie going aboard the train and you said goodbye to her?

A. Well, I said goodbye to her, yes, sir, but others—several—said goodbye to her at the same time.

Q. How did you know she was going away?

A. Well, she said she was——

Q. That was after you said goodbye?

A. Yes; no, it was just before I said goodbye.

Q. But she told you where she was going? A. No, sir.

Q. Is that the only time that you knew of her leaving here? A. That is the only time, sir.

Q. Did she remain away?

A. Well, so far as I know of, she remained away; I never saw her afterwards until I saw her at Fort Wayne, Michigan.

Q. That is the next time you saw her?

A. That is the next time I saw her. Of course she could have come back and been there without my knowing it.

Q. How often did you see her around here prior to the time that she went away?

A. Oh, I would see her probably once a day—sometimes twice a week; I used to see her pretty often.

Q. You said that you were at Fort Wayne 7 months?

A. About 7 months; I think I was up there in November and went to New York—November, December, January, February, March—well, from 5 to 7 months. I wouldn't say exactly but just about that time.

Q. How did you come to leave Fort Wayne?

A. By orders. My company was sent from Fort Wayne, Michigan, to Madison Barracks, New York.

Q. That was the only company of the 7th?

A. The only company of the 7th Infantry.

Q. The rest of the regiment remained at Fort Wayne?

A. Yes, sir, the rest of them that were there at Fort Wayne; some of them were at Wauka Lake.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. You were acquainted with Lieut. Wallace?

A. Lieut. Wallace—yes, sir, I was.

Q. When did you know him—during what period of time?

A. I knew him in 1892, I believe it was that he first joined us here.

Q. And where did you know him?

A. I knew him as a 2nd Lieut. of Company A, 7th Infantry.

Q. I said where.

A. Oh, where; why, at Fort Logan.

Q. How long did you know him at Fort Logan?

A. About 7 or 9 months; he was here about 9 months I take it. He belonged to my company at the time he left here.

Q. And did he ever come back? A. He did, sir.

Q. And do you know how long it was before he came back?

A. I can't be sure but I believe it was something over two years.

Q. And then how long did he stay?

A. Now, I don't know; he was with the regiment when he went to Cuba.

Q. Several years? A. Several years, yes, sir.

Q. Now was he a married man?

A. When he came back here the second time he had a wife with him.

Q. And what year did you say he came back the second time—about the year?

A. Let's see—'92-3-4—he must have been back about '95.

Q. '95? A. To the best of my recollection.

Recross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. You have been interviewed by a number of people at different times in regard to these matters that you have just testified to, haven't you, Sergeant?

A. I have been interviewed by two gentlemen; the gentleman right there and Mr.——

Q. His name? A. This gentleman right here.

Mr. German: Indicating Judge Allen.

A. Judge Allen and one other.

Q. Mr. Robinson? A. Mr. Robinson, that is the man.

Q. And you told them the facts that you just testified to here?

Q. Yes, just about the same; yes, just about the same.

Q. You told them about Minnie going away?

A. No, I don't believe that question was ever asked me before until today—I don't believe that was ever asked me.

Q. Didn't you talk to me this morning at the Post Exchange? A. Yes.

Q. And didn't I ask you about Minnie going away and didn't you tell me that she couldn't go away because she didn't have the money?

A. Sir, I believe you asked me something if Minnie was away several times, and I told you that at the time, that there was one time she couldn't very well go away; that she had nothing to go away on.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you told me that you never knew of her going away because she didn't have money to go away on? A. I might have made that statement but if I did——

Q. Then your recollection as to Minnie's going away and saying goodbye to her and her statement to you at that time is a recollection that has come to you since you talked to me this morning?

A. Well, yes, it is a recollection that comes to me and I can picture the day she went; the evening—or afternoon that she went.

Q. But that occurrence must have been suggested to you in some way, or by some one since you talked to me?

A. No, sir, it was not; it was just my getting right down to thinking about Minnie and thinking about the case all the way through. There is nobody spoke to me since I spoke to you; the only man I spoke to since then was Mr. Robinson when he came in. Well, I spoke to him over the 'phone this morning and he asked Judge Allen——

Q. That is Mr. Robinson the Pinkerton Detective man?

A. I don't know who he is; I know him as Mr. Robinson. He asked me how he could get Judge Allen on the 'phone; wanted to know if he could get him over there and I told him, no, but hold the 'phone and I would connect him.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Was that the extent of your conversation with Mr. Robinson this morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Just before—shortly before you came on the witness stand this afternoon, I inquired of you out there what you knew of the case, did I not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, who was the first man that you ever told before you testified here about the conversation Minnie—the statement Minnie made when she was leaving here before you came on the witness stand and told it?

A. About her leaving, when she was leaving with the children?

Q. Yes. A. That is when I seen her at the depot.

Q. Yes. A. This is the first time.

Q. Did you make any statement to me about it out there in the hall, before you came in here?

A. I don't remember—I don't think so.

Q. You spoke of Judge Allen—this gentleman here (indicating Judge Allen) having talked with you; do you remember who was with you on the occasion when he talked with you?

A. There was nobody in the office at the time except I and Judge Allen.

Q. When was that?

A. Oh, some time—I don't know how many months ago.

Q. To refresh your memory, was there a man by the name of Cook with him—Fred Cook?

A. I don't remember, sir; I don't know, sir.

Q. What are you doing now?

A. I am steward of the Post Exchange.

Q. What is the Post Exchange?

A. The Post Exchange is a co-operative store, run by the different organizations of the Post.

Q. Here at Fort Logan? A. At Fort Logan.

Q. And that is your place of business?

A. That is my place of business.

Q. And that is where Mr. Robinson called you on the telephone for Judge Allen?

A. For Judge Allen, yes, sir; he wanted Judge Allen on the 'phone.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: We offer the deposition of Mary Jenson, appearing in the transcription of depositions, beginning on page 37.

And thereupon MARY JENSEN being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Please state your name and residence.

A. Mary Jensen; 57 years old; I live at the town of Sheridan, called Logantown.

Q. Are Sheridan and Logantown the same place?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that just outside of the Fort?

A. Just outside of the Fort, yes, sir.

Q. Mrs. Jensen, do you remember Minnie Peterkin having lived out here during the '80's or early in the '90's?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember about the time that she came here?

A. She came here, I think, about the latter part of '87. or the beginning of '88.

Q. Were you at that time married? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was your husband?

A. Julius Frederick Jensen, Commissary Sergeant.

Q. Where? A. At Fort Logan.

Q. At that time, did you live in the Fort?

A. No, sir, I lived down in Logantown—they called it—no quarters were built in the Fort.

Q. Where did Minnie Peterkins live with reference with your home at that time?

A. She lived in the little dug-out, down at the other end of the town.

Q. How far from your house?

A. Well, I would say it would be about two blocks at that time.

Q. How long did she live there?

A. Well, she lived there over a year to my knowledge.

Q. Then where did she move to?

A. Well, after my husband's death in 1890, I had to move into another house and she—— I was on the front of the lot and she was on the back of the lot.

Q. Do you know where Mabel Peterkin was born?

A. She was born in the dug-out.

Q. Do you know about when? Do you know what became of Mabel Peterkin?

A. Yes, Mabel Peterkin——

Mr. Hanford: I object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Blakeney: I object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. She died.

Q. About when, do you remember about when she died? If so, please state.

A. Well, she died about '89.

Q. About how old was Mabel Peterkin when she died?

A. I think she would be near a year old, I think.

Q. Do you know of Minnie having any other children?

A. Yes.

Mr. Hanford: I object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Q. What were the names of the other children?

Mr. Hanford: I object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Q. You may answer.

A. I don't really know the children's names.

Q. Were they boys or girls?

A. Two boys; she had two boys.

Q. Were they born before or after Mabel Peterkin?

A. Quite a while after.

Q. With whom, if anybody, was Minnie living when Mabel Peterkin was born?

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. Well, I don't know—she was working for Dr. Richards previous to her little child taking sick.

Q. I mean was she married?

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. She went by the name of Minnie Peterkin and that is all that I do know.

Mr. Hanford: I object to that and move to strike the answer on the ground that it is hearsay.

Q. Do you know whether or not she was living with any man at that time?

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. Well, she was living with this man Peterkin.
Q. Who did you say she was living with?
A. Peterkin, at the time of the child's death.
Q. Who was Peterkin?
A. He was a soldier in the 18th Infantry.
Q. Did she live with any—later live with any other man that you know of?

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. Yes, I heard she did.
Q. With whom did she later live?
A. A man by the name of Harrison.

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike that as hearsay.

Q. Did you say Harrison?
A. Harrison, the butcher, yes, sir.
Q. What is his occupation, *t*ou say? A. Butcher.
Q. Where does he live?
A. He lives in Logantown—as they called it.
Q. Was he living with her at the time of the birth of these boys?
A. I don't know whether they were really living together or not but the children was his—every body said do.

Mr. Hanford: We object to that as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and move to strike the evidence on the ground that it is hearsay.

Q. When did you last see these boys?
A. Let's see—that has been about—1902 or '03.
Q. 1902 or '03? A. Yes, either of these years.
Q. Where did you see them?
A. They were in Logantown at the time.
Q. How old were they at that time?
A. Well, I haven't any idea; they were quite small and there seemed not to be very much difference between the two children's ages.

Q. How long after the date of death of Mabel Peterkin was that?

A. Oh, that was—let me see—about five or six years.

Q. You said 1902 or '03. [A.] In 1902 or '03.

Q. You stated a ehilw ago that Minnie—that Mabel Peterkin was born in 1907 or '08.

A. '87 or '08.

Q. '87 or '08? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And died in '89?

A. Yes, sir; born in '88, died in '89 and my sister died in the following October, so I can't very well forget it.

Q. Then it would have been thirteen or fourteen years after that that you saw these children?

A. Did I say that?

Q. Yes. What do you mean?

A. Well, 1992 or '93.

Q. You mean 1892 or '93? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know about what year Minnie left here?

A. No, I haven't any idea; she went away on different occasions and came back again.

Q. When did she finally leave? A. I haven't any idea.

Q. Do you know anything about the year?

A. No, I don't know anything about the year she left in.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. You say Minnie left on different occasions and came back again? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long would she be gone during those times?

A. Well, a matter of a couple of months or so.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, we took the deposition of Sadie James; she was two days under direct examination, and five and a half days on cross-examination, and she has been brought here pursuant to a subpoena issued by the defendant, and it is immaterial to us whether we offer her deposition or put her on the witness stand. I merely suggest that is all.

The Court: What have you to say about Sadie James going on the stand?

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, to save time, we will put in her deposition.

The Court: That will be very agreeable to the Court.

Mr. German: Let the record show that we all consent.

The Court: Now, she is here; she may be used for some purposes possibly?

Mr. German: Yes, I suspect.

The Court: Now, Judge, Sadie James is here, and will probably be used for some purpose; I assume that you will not use her on all matters covered by this deposition, at any rate you don't want to double up this record?

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, we are willing to excuse her entirely.

The Court: I don't ask you to do that.

Mr. German: We will determine whether we are willing or not.

The Court: Sadie James' deposition will be admitted, then.

Mr. German: It appears in the transcript of record, the first statement beginning on page 621; the next on page 927; the next on page 1422, and the last beginning on page 1567 of the transcription of the evidence.

And thereupon SADIE JAMES, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. State your name? A. Sadie James.

Q. What age are you? A. I am 46.

Q. Where do you now live? A. Where do I live?

Q. Yes. A. Well, you mean just where I am stopping at?

Q. Yes.

A. I am stopping at 1707 East 11th Street, Kansas City, Mo.; I don't live there, I am stopping there.

Q. Did you ever live in Leavenworth, Kansas?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever live in Tulsa, Oklahoma?

A. Yes, sir; that is my home now.

Q. What is your husband's name? A. William James.

Q. How long have you and he been married?

A. Three years in March—this coming March.

Q. What was your name before that A. Before James?

Q. Yes. A. Johnson.

Q. What was your name when you lived in Leavenworth, Kansas, at first. A. Sadie Harris, my maiden name.

Q. Do you know an Indian woman named Mrs. Minnie Folk? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know her as Minnie Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first know her?

A. I met her in July of '84, in Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. About how long did she live in Leavenworth?

A. Minnie?

Q. Yes.

A. She came there in 1884 and left as near as I can remember about the fall of '87, or spring of '88, I am not positive which time that was that she left.

Q. Did you know of her having any children at Leavenworth? A. I did not.

Q. After she left Leavenworth, when did you next see her?

A. I saw her in 1895, in Kansas City, Mo.

Q. Where were you living at that time?

A. I were living at 5175 Campbell street.

Q. Kansas City? A. Kansas City.

Q. Where in Kansas City, about, was it that you saw her on that occasion? A. The first part of the day I saw her?

Q. Yes, where was it?

A. I saw her on 5th and Bluff, at the old Union Depot—I was going down that way.

Q. How did you happen to see her?

A. I was walking down the Avenue and saw her coming over toward the depot; she had two children.

Q. You say she had two children with her?

A. Yes, sir, and a bundle on her arm.

Q. Did you learn the names of those two children?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time? A. I did.

Q. What were their names?

A. Harvey and Charlie Harrison.

Q. Harvey and Charlie Harrison? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What age were they?

A. Well, Harvey, the baby one, was about a year and a half old; she was carrying him and leading the other one—he seemed to be about three years old. I had taken them to my house and keep them there.

Q. Took them to your house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how long did they stay at your house?

A. We got out the the house about half past eleven, I guess, and it was about four o'clock in the evening when they left.

Q. So she left the same day she came?

A. She left my house, yes, sir, the same day she came.

Q. Did she say anything about where she was going?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did she say?

A. I asked her—I hadn't seen her since she left Leavenworth—I said Minnie, where did you come from, and she said, I came from Colorado.

Mr. Blakeney: I move to strike out that part of the answer as not responsive.

Q. I will ask you another question, Sadie. Did she say any thing about where she had come from?

Mr. Blakeney: We object as leading and suggestive.

A. Yes, sir, from Colorado.
Q. Did she [] anything about where she was going?
A. Yes, sir, to Indian Territory.
Q. Did she say anything about what she was going to the Indian Territory for? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Blakeney: We object to the question as leading.

Q. What did she say?
A. She told me—I asked her where she was going, and she said she was going down to the Indian Territory to draw her money.
Q. Draw what?
A. Her money; they were going to be paid off.
Q. Did you see her again that year, or the next?
A. I saw her about eight or nine months in the next year, '96.
Q. Sometime in '96?
A. It was about eight or nine months after I first saw her until I saw her again.
Q. Then, when did you next see her?
A. You mean after '96?
Q. Yes. A. I saw her in June, 1914.
Q. Where? A. In Fort Lawton, out in Seattle.
Q. State of Washington? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you know the defendant, H. U. Bartlett, who lives at Tulsa? A. Yes, sir, lives at Sapulpa.
Q. Lives at Sapulpa, does he? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you ever know a child, or a man, named Thomas Atkins who was related to Minnie Atkins? A. No, sir.
Q. Were you ever engaged by anybody—anybody connected with this law suit, to endeavor to find Thomas Atkins?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. The allottee of—you know about the land that is [] controversy? A. Yes, sir.
Q. The allottee of the land in controversy? A. Yes, sir.
Q. That was in connection with some litigation then pending in the District Court of Creek County, at Sapulpa, was it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who first engaged you in connection with the finding of Thomas Atkins? A. H. U. Bartlett.

Q. H. U. Bartlett; when? A. March, 1914.

Q. Where were you living at that time?

A. I was stopping in Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. Was anyone else, so far as you know, working for Mr. Bartlett? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the same direction? Who?

A. Bettie Mann.

Q. Sometimes known as Sarah Mann? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And sometimes known as Sarah Asbery?

A. Bettie Rasberry.

Q. Bettie Rasberry? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you say you were living at the time you were engaged? A. Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1914.

Q. Where was Bettie living?

A. Living at Sapulpa, Oklahoma.

Q. Through whom were you engaged at that time to help Mr. Bartlett? A. Who got me to see Mr. Bartlett?

Q. Yes. A. Bettie Rasberry—Bettie Mann.

Q. What were you engaged for—what were you to do? Tell what was said on that subject.

Mr. Hanford: We object as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial as to what she was engaged for by Mr. Bartlett.

Mr. Blakeney: We object to all of that question except the last clause of it.

Mr. German: I withdraw all of it except the last clause.

A. Bettie came to me in March—she was up to Leavenworth—I didn't know she was in town—

Mr. Blakeney: We object to what Bettie said as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. Bettie got me the job——

Mr. Hanford: I want my object to rest on the ground as hearsay as to what Bettie Mann said to her, or she said to Bettie Mann.

Mr. Stuart: I want to make the objection, Your Honor, please on the ground that it is irrelevant, incompetent, and immaterial, and because it refers to a transaction between this witness and parties who have no connection of any kind with Page, or the interests that he is asserting in this case.

A. Between Bettie and I?

Q. Yes, about your employment to work for Mr. Bartlett?

Mr. Blakeney: We object as hearsay and calling for hearsay statements.

Mr. German: I concede the objections made to the preceding question which may go to this all.

Mr. Blakeney: Alright.

A. She wanted—she asked me; I will have to explain, I suppose, what she wanted me to do before I got to Mr. Bartlett?

Q. Yes.

Mr. Blakeney: We object for the reason that it is hearsay and incompetent.

Q. Tell what Bettie said.

A. Bettie came to my house and said; Sadie, you know that deed that Harjo and I got for H. U. Bartlett, and I said yes, and she said, J. B. White is about to make him some trouble about it.

Q. Sadie, let me interrupt you a little.

Mr. Blakeney: We move to strike out all this statement of the witness to case, as incompetent, hearsay, and has no connection with any of the parties to this controversy, and not material to any question before the court.

Mr. Hanford: Same objection, and the further ground that it is not responsive to the question.

Q. Prior to the time that Bettie came to you in March 1914, had you made any efforts to find Thomas Atkins?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, proceed to tell what Bettie said to you on the occasion that you were referring to.

A. She said J. B. White is about to make him some trouble about that deed.

Mr. Blakeney: We still object for the same reason, that this is hearsay and incompetent.

A. And we have got to find the Thomas Atkins to make this deed good. She said, I have been working on this case three years and I don't believe there ever was a Thomas Atkins.

Mr. Blakeney: We move to strike out what she said about there never being a Thomas Atkins as hearsay, incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Stuart: The same objection for Page.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection for the defendants, Folk and Hanford, and the same motion to strike, also.

A. I have been working two years for H. C. Bartlett and J. B. White, and they have got so much confidence in me now, that it would not do to let them know no better. I said to this White man, that you work for, got any money, and she said, yes; and I said, well, can you get me a job, and she said, yes—all you got to do is to tell him you know Minnie—which I did—and that you know when the child was born. I said who ever said that Minnie had a son born by the name of Thomas Atkins?

Mr. Mahoney: We move to strike out what she said about the son being born, referring to what the witness says as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Hanford: We object to the witness testifying by way of narrative, and move to strike the foregoing part of her testimony as not responsive to any question, and as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Mahoney: I want to interpose now, the further objection to allowing this conversation. It now appears that it is irrelevant, and immaterial and wholly hearsay, and not connected with any of the parties to this controversy.

Mr. Stuart: The same objection for Page.

A. May I speak and say why she told me about the deed?
Q. You go ahead and just answer my questions.

Mr. Hanford: Will you ask the questions, Mr. German?

Mr. German: She hasn't finished answering; you fellows interrupted her.

Mr. Mahoney: You are merely asking that she answer the questions formerly asked.

Q. Just go ahead and state all the conversation that I asked you about between you and Bettie in March, 1912.

A. That she had no children born by the name of Thomas Atkins. She said, I said so, myself; she said, I will wire to Mr. Bartlett tonight and have him in Kansas City by tomorrow morning, and you go down there and meet him at the Stafford hotel, and all you got to do is to tell him that you know a child was born and you will get a job. I said to her—Bettie, I said, come go down here with me, I said, to a negro lawyer's; him and I have just pulled off a deal—Dennis Jones—and we can get anything fixed that we want. I had taken her down.

Q. Now, was that—is that about all of the conversation before you left this place?

A. Before I had taken her down there?

Q. Yes? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Then what did Bettie do?
A. We went down to Dennis's.

Mr. Hanford: Now, I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; not relating to any questions involved in this litigation.

Mr. Stuart: Same objection for Page.

Q. What did you go down to Dennis Jones' for?

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike then, if the answer was answered prior to my objection.

Mr. Blakeney: I want to object to this question, as asking for a conclusion and incompetent.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection.

Mr. German: I will withdraw that question.

Q. What was said between you and Bettie with reference to going down to see Dennis Jones? A. I told him——

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and hearsay, and asking for a conversation among others not interested in this suit.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection.

Mr. Stuart: The same objection.

A. I had taken her down there, and going down there I framed to have Thomas Atkins—I told her I could get anything done with Dennis I wanted to because I just pulled off a deal with him.

Mr. Blakeney: I move to strike out about framing up as not responsive and merely an expression of an opinion that she could frame up.

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike on the grounds that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and states a conclusion of the witness, and is not responsive to the question.

Q. Did you find Dennis Jones in? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you and Bettie have any conversation with him about Thomas Atkins? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Tell what was said.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and calling for hearsay, and a statement of parties not connected with this litigation.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection, and on the further ground that it does not relate to any matters in litigation, or concerning any parties to the litigation.

A. I had taken her down there and introduced her to Dennis. She said, Mr. Jones, you know the woman that worked here, Indian woman by the name of Minnie Atkins? He said, no; she said, why she used to work for banker Hyde. He said, I know banker Hyde but I don't know no Indian Minnie that ever worked for them but I will write a letter to his brother, Albert Hyde, Wichita, Kansas, and ask him where his brother is and saw that he knows where Minnie went. Bettie said, I don't care anything about Minnie because she is dead; I want a boy started [] her by the name of Thomas Atkins, born in 1885—said, can you do it? He said, I can get lawyers, doctors, and bankers, in Leavenworth, Kansas, to swear that Hell's an ice-box.

Q. Go ahead.

A. She said, well, I want you to work with us on the job. By that time somebody come in, Jim Swift and Ben Porter, two Indian- who were working with Bettie. We stopped the conversation and Bettie told him she was going to catch that car—interurban car—and go back to Kansas City, and that he could work with me, and I said, Dennis, I will be back up here about six o'clock this evening. That was then so,e time after two or three—between half past two, or three, I guess, in the afternoon. I had taken her over to an old sporting place——

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not responsive to any question, and move to strike that part of her testimony.

Mr. Blakeney: I insist that she be permitted to tell about going to a sporting house.

Q. Did you and Bettie leave Dennis's office then?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Where did you go to?
A. Went to this sporting place.
Q. Did you do, or say anything, with reference to this Thomas Atkins at this sporting place? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Who did you see there? A. Rubert Smith.

Mr. Hanford: We object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Blakeney: We move to strike out the answer. The witness answered instantly upon the question being completed by counsel for the reason that the question seeks to draw out so much incompetent testimony and the and the answer is incompetent, hearsay and immaterial.

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike for the same reasons stated by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Who did you see?

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, I would like to state for Page, that the objections heretofore interposed, go to all this narrative of this witness as representing Bartlett or in the service of Bettie Mann, in connection with Bartlett, because it is hearsay, incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and Mr. German, you will consider my objection to that?

Mr. German: You mean all the way through Mr. Stuart?

Mr. Stuart: Yes, this matter, just to save time.

Mr. German: Well, let me see, Judge. I, sometimes I might ask another question that might correct what might seem to me to be a well taken objection.

Mr. Stuart: Well, we will run it along and unless you change the character of the testimony, of the questions, the objection goes.

Mr. German: Alright.
